

Items from Neighboring Communities

FOARD CITY

(By Mrs. George Canup)

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Reed of West visited Mr. and Mrs. U. C. Rader last week. Mr. Reed is Mrs. Rader's nephew.

Ellis Black of Martin, Texas, was in this community Tuesday.

On account of the rain which fell Monday night the combines didn't run last week. A light hail fell west of this place and damaged some of the wheat.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Razanski and Mrs. Myrtle Whitby of Dallas are visiting Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Whitby.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Rader of Thalia are staying with Mr. and Mrs. Joe Rader during harvest.

Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Brown of Sudan visited Mr. and Mrs. Willie Brown a few days last week.

W. F. Berry and Dutch Banks of Royse City are here looking after Mr. Banks' wheat crop.

Roy Canup of Monahans is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Canup. He will work here a few days before returning to Monahans where he is employed by a lumber company.

Earnest and Misses Alma and Truda Patton of Crowell and Mrs. Garner of Vernon spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Farrar.

Mrs. Stella Callaway of Teague returned home Monday after visiting Mr. and Mrs. Tom Callaway and Mr. and Mrs. Will Callaway a few days last week.

There has been about fifty carloads of wheat shipped from this place.

Quarterly conference for the Methodist Church will be held at this place Sunday, June 27. Presiding Elder Cal. C. Wright of Vernon will preach at 11 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Johnson spent Sunday with Rev. and Mrs. G. E. Tyson of Truscott and attended church at that place.

Mrs. Miller Rader and son, J. C., and Mrs. Lester Myers and son, Bobbie Joe, of Crowell visited Mr. and Mrs. U. C. Rader Sunday evening.

A light shower of rain fell here Monday night. The combines can not run for several days.

Mrs. Lige Fox and son, Gene, and Mrs. Fox's nephew of Crowell visited Mr. and Mrs. U. C. Rader Monday.

Mrs. G. M. Canup was hostess to the W. M. S. Monday afternoon.

Ozzie Turner of Truscott was in this community Monday afternoon doing some repair work on a refrigerator for Mr. and Mrs. C. G. McLain.

Mart Owens, who has been sick for several months, was taken to a hospital at Fort Worth Saturday for treatment. He was accompanied by his brother, Bill Owens, of Sedan, and sister, Mrs. John Todd, and Tanner Billington of Crowell.

RAYLAND

(By Annise Davis)

J. M. Clark and wife spent Sunday with L. D. Mansel and family of Farmers Valley.

Fred Taylor and wife of Margart spent Sunday with her father, J. C. Davis, and family.

Miss Evelyn Beazley returned to Denton last week to attend the summer school.

Mrs. Luther Streit of Parsley Hill visited her sister, Mrs. R. A. Rutledge, Tuesday.

Several from here attended the funeral of Walter Rector at Thalia Tuesday.

Cecil Coe of Wellington was a business visitor here last Tuesday.

"MY SKIN WAS FULL OF PIMPLES AND BLEMISHES" Says Verna Schleppe. "Since using Adlerika the pimples are gone. My skin is smooth and glows with health." Adlerika washes BOTH bowels, rids you of poisons that cause a bad complexion.—Ferguson Bros., Druggists.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Keenan spent the week-end with relatives in Lockett.

Herman Schwarz and family visited relatives in Oklahoma Sunday.

Carl Davis and family of Riverside spent Tuesday in the home of Roy Davenport and wife.

Norman Brasher and wife of Los Angeles, Calif., spent a few days with her sister, Mrs. H. T. Faughn. Mrs. Faughn returned home with them for an extended visit.

Mrs. Bill Barrett of Paducah spent several days last week with her father, J. C. Davis, and family. Mr. Barrett came Sunday and they returned home with him.

J. B. Gray of Midway spent Thursday visiting J. C. Davis.

Carl Freeling of Fibe-in-One was a business visitor here Thursday.

Mrs. J. C. Davis and daughters, Mrs. Bill Barrett and children, and Mrs. Fred Taylor, and C. A. Davis visited their daughter and sister, Mrs. S. G. Presley, of Chillicothe, Friday.

Walter Daniel and family visited relatives at Good Creek over the week-end.

Mrs. Marie Smith and Miss Pearl Hunt of Vernon spent the week-end with Buck Clark and family.

Trace Bradshaw and family spent Sunday with relatives at Quanah.

C. A. Davis of Edinburg spent from Thursday until Saturday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Davis, and other relatives. He was returning home after having received his Ph. D. degree at the University of Maryland. He has been teaching in Edinburg Junior College for the past ten years.

Onion harvesting will begin here Monday. Part of the crop is very good.

TRUSCOTT

(By Ethel Mae Chilcoat)

Mrs. Bill Clark, Miss Annie Chesser and Mrs. Louis Chesser of Mineral Wells are here visiting Bill Clark and Brooks Chesser.

Lynette Chowning, who has been visiting her grandfather, Dr. J. E. Stover, at Friona has returned to her home here.

Mrs. Bruce Eubank, who has been in the Quahok Hospital, returned to her home Wednesday.

Little Donald Joe Brown is reported on the sick list this week.

Mrs. Clifford Orr and children, Junior and Martha, have returned after a visit with friends in Balinger.

Miss Inez Eubank of Carlsbad, N. M., is here visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Eubank.

Mrs. Leonard Loyd of Menard is here visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Solomon. Mrs. Loyd was the former Miss Valmeto Solomon.

Carmin D. Bishop of Quanah is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Byron Bates.

Hubert Chowning, who is working in Wichita Falls, spent the week-end with his family.

Pete Moody of Knox City visited friends and relatives here Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Onie Brummett are the proud parents of a baby girl born June 9.

Mrs. Bertha Young of Mineral Wells is visiting Mrs. H. A. Smith this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Burnett have been transferred to Senora where he will continue to work with the Humble Pipe Line Co.

Rev. John W. Tyndall of Crowell filled his regular appointment here Sunday night. He was accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. John Rasor and son, John Thomas, of Crowell and Rev. and Mrs. C. V. Allen of Spur. Bro. Allen was formerly pastor of this church.

Miss Nora Hawkins has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. A. F. McMinn. Miss Hawkins is a returned missionary from Brazil. She delivered an interesting address at the Baptist Church Sunday morning, relating a few of her experiences.

T. M. Frasier of Carlsbad, N. M., entertained a crowd at the Baptist Church Saturday night with a program composed of songs which he had written himself. Mr. Frasier is known as the "Dream

McMAKIN

Motor Coaches

Successors to RED STAR COACHES

East Bond

6:00 a. m., 11 a. m., 5:05 p. m.

Through buses from Crowell to Vernon, Frederick, Lawton, Okla. Direct connection to Ardmore, Chickasha and Oklahoma City, Altus, the short, all paved route. Connections at Vernon for Wichita Falls, Fort Worth, Dallas, Houston, Tyler, Shreveport, Austin and San Antonio.

West Bond

8 a. m., 2:20 p. m., 1:05 a. m.

Through buses to Lubbock, Plainview, Clovis, Odessa, Monahans, Hobbs, Carlsbad, N. M., Shortest routes and best roads into West Texas and New Mexico. Connections for Roswell, El Paso, Albuquerque, Amarillo, Denver and Los Angeles.

Travel by bus. All large, new buses. Low fares. For further information call local agent, Ferguson Bros. Drug Store.

The Carlsbad Cavern Route. Call agent for special group rates to the Caverns.

GETS WHITE HOUSE JOB

Miss Katherine Gilligan, twenty-six, of Lawrence, Mass., who has been named as new secretary for James Roosevelt, eldest son of the President, now serving as secretary to his father. She is assuming her new duties immediately.

Congressman W. D. McFarlane

Tax Dodging

The President sent a special message to Congress last week, pointing out many of the loopholes through which the wealth of the nation is escaping many millions of dollars annually, in taxation.

A resolution was introduced last week in the House and Senate appointing members of the Tax Committees of each body to investigate and report back their recommendations regarding the ways and means of eliminating loopholes in our tax laws.

The Senate immediately passed the resolution providing public hearings on all matters coming before it, however, the House Rules Committee insisted on any evidence or testimony presented, be left to the discretion of the Committee, as to whether or not any publicity would be given. The Tax Committees for the past three years have marched back down the hill and practically repealed all publicity on income taxes and have rewritten the law so even a member of Congress, cannot receive any information, except through the Tax Committees, which places the members of Congress at great disadvantage in learning what is going on regarding matters in the Revenue Department, and especially just what effect their loosely drawn tax laws are having upon the special privileged wealthy group and how much taxes they are paying and evading because of the loosely drawn provisions and exemptions.

The President pointed out that according to careful Treasury estimates, last year's tax measure raised more than $400,000,000 less than expected.

The writer spoke last Wednesday afternoon, specifically pointing out to the Congress the most important loopholes in our tax laws through which more than $500,000,000 in revenue is escaping annually. It is well known that a great deal of our wealth is invested in tax exempt securities.

The writer is one of 150 members sponsoring legislation that will take over and convert our own Federal Reserve Banking System, which under proper legislation should soon purchase the outstanding Government bonds and thus save the taxpayers nearly $1,000,000,000 per year in interest and thus eliminate one of the principal sources of tax losses.

The Congress is directly responsible for most of the existing loopholes in our tax laws. Specific exemptions have been written into our tax laws at the special instance of the powerful lobby

Singer."

A Baptist convention was held at Gilliland Friday with speakers from this district.

Miss Katherine Holmes has gone to Carlsbad, N. M., to visit her sister, Mrs. Ed Lefler.

GOOD CREEK

(By Viedie Phillips)

A. L. Cox Sr. of Lubbock is visiting relatives here. He will stay until after harvest.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Hinkle visited Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Nalls of Foard City Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Phillips of Claytonville spent Wednesday with Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Hinkle.

Cecil E. Dunn of Black visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Dunn, Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. H. K. Black attended the funeral of his aunt, Mrs. B. B. Black, of Truscott Tuesday.

G. L. Scott of Crowell spent Monday night with his son, L. R. Scott, and family.

R. H. Jones spent Friday night with Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Phillips of Claytonville.

Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Nalls of Foard City visited Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Hinkle Wednesday night.

A 2 1/2-inch rain fell here Monday night. Hail damaged the cotton some.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Daniel of Rayland visited Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Dunn Saturday night.

Miss Dorothy Love is spending this week with Misses Mary Frances and Vivian Collins of Crowell.

Mr. and Mrs. Pat McDaniel of Crowell visited Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Whitley Saturday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Hinkle spent Saturday night with Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Nalls of Foard City.

Mrs. R. L. Thomas and son, Ike Wilson, have returned home from Clovis, N. M., where they attended the funeral of Ike's grandfather, Mr. Wilson.

Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Nalls of Foard City spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Love.

Mrs. C. E. Dunn had the misfortune of getting burned with a pressure cooker Friday. Her left side was very badly burned.

Roy Daniel spent Saturday night with Mr. and Mrs. Howard Dunn of Truscott.

Miss Mary Ermine Owens of Claytonville spent Sunday with Miss Betty Lou Stinebaugh.

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Cox of Claytonville visited Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Dunn Sunday evening.

Billie Jo and Larue Scott spent the week-end with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Scott, of Crowell.

Combines that have been stopped for the last few days have resumed their work.

SHORTAGE OF LAYING HENS

College Station.—A heavy shortage of laying hens, with a corresponding increase in egg and poultry prices, is in prospect for the fall of 1937 and the early part of 1938, according to George P. McCarthy, assistant poultry husbandman of the Texas A. & M. Extension Service.

McCarthy said that high feed costs and low prices for poultry products had resulted in the heaviest culling program in recent years. The unfavorable price picture has also resulted in a decline in the purchase of baby chicks. McCarthy pointed out that commercial hatcheries have reported a 35 per cent decline in the sale of baby chicks.

With better egg prices in prospect, McCarthy urged that poultrymen give their pullets every chance to come into early production and to maintain production. "Poultrymen who feed their pullets properly during the summer and give them every opportunity to develop will be well repaid during the fall and winter," he said.

Not much chance exists of an unforgotten increase in the number of laying hens before the beginning of 1938, according to McCarthy. June and July chicks have proved profitable, and commercial hatcheries have suspended operations for the summer.

McCarthy said that high feed costs and low prices for poultry products had resulted in the heaviest culling program in recent years. The unfavorable price picture has also resulted in a decline in the purchase of baby chicks. McCarthy pointed out that commercial hatcheries have reported a 35 per cent decline in the sale of baby chicks.

With better egg prices in prospect, McCarthy urged that poultrymen give their pullets every chance to come into early production and to maintain production. "Poultrymen who feed their pullets properly during the summer and give them every opportunity to develop will be well repaid during the fall and winter," he said.

Not much chance exists of an unforgotten increase in the number of laying hens before the beginning of 1938, according to McCarthy. June and July chicks have proved profitable, and commercial hatcheries have suspended operations for the summer.

McCarthy said that high feed costs and low prices for poultry products had resulted in the heaviest culling program in recent years. The unfavorable price picture has also resulted in a decline in the purchase of baby chicks. McCarthy pointed out that commercial hatcheries have reported a 35 per cent decline in the sale of baby chicks.

With better egg prices in prospect, McCarthy urged that poultrymen give their pullets every chance to come into early production and to maintain production. "Poultrymen who feed their pullets properly during the summer and give them every opportunity to develop will be well repaid during the fall and winter," he said.

Not much chance exists of an unforgotten increase in the number of laying hens before the beginning of 1938, according to McCarthy. June and July chicks have proved profitable, and commercial hatcheries have suspended operations for the summer.

McCarthy said that high feed costs and low prices for poultry products had resulted in the heaviest culling program in recent years. The unfavorable price picture has also resulted in a decline in the purchase of baby chicks. McCarthy pointed out that commercial hatcheries have reported a 35 per cent decline in the sale of baby chicks.

With better egg prices in prospect, McCarthy urged that poultrymen give their pullets every chance to come into early production and to maintain production. "Poultrymen who feed their pullets properly during the summer and give them every opportunity to develop will be well repaid during the fall and winter," he said.

Not much chance exists of an unforgotten increase in the number of laying hens before the beginning of 1938, according to McCarthy. June and July chicks have proved profitable, and commercial hatcheries have suspended operations for the summer.

McCarthy said that high feed costs and low prices for poultry products had resulted in the heaviest culling program in recent years. The unfavorable price picture has also resulted in a decline in the purchase of baby chicks. McCarthy pointed out that commercial hatcheries have reported a 35 per cent decline in the sale of baby chicks.

With better egg prices in prospect, McCarthy urged that poultrymen give their pullets every chance to come into early production and to maintain production. "Poultrymen who feed their pullets properly during the summer and give them every opportunity to develop will be well repaid during the fall and winter," he said.

Not much chance exists of an unforgotten increase in the number of laying hens before the beginning of 1938, according to McCarthy. June and July chicks have proved profitable, and commercial hatcheries have suspended operations for the summer.

McCarthy said that high feed costs and low prices for poultry products had resulted in the heaviest culling program in recent years. The unfavorable price picture has also resulted in a decline in the purchase of baby chicks. McCarthy pointed out that commercial hatcheries have reported a 35 per cent decline in the sale of baby chicks.

With better egg prices in prospect, McCarthy urged that poultrymen give their pullets every chance to come into early production and to maintain production. "Poultrymen who feed their pullets properly during the summer and give them every opportunity to develop will be well repaid during the fall and winter," he said.

Not much chance exists of an unforgotten increase in the number of laying hens before the beginning of 1938, according to McCarthy. June and July chicks have proved profitable, and commercial hatcheries have suspended operations for the summer.

McCarthy said that high feed costs and low prices for poultry products had resulted in the heaviest culling program in recent years. The unfavorable price picture has also resulted in a decline in the purchase of baby chicks. McCarthy pointed out that commercial hatcheries have reported a 35 per cent decline in the sale of baby chicks.

With better egg prices in prospect, McCarthy urged that poultrymen give their pullets every chance to come into early production and to maintain production. "Poultrymen who feed their pullets properly during the summer and give them every opportunity to develop will be well repaid during the fall and winter," he said.

Not much chance exists of an unforgotten increase in the number of laying hens before the beginning of 1938, according to McCarthy. June and July chicks have proved profitable, and commercial hatcheries have suspended operations for the summer.

McCarthy said that high feed costs and low prices for poultry products had resulted in the heaviest culling program in recent years. The unfavorable price picture has also resulted in a decline in the purchase of baby chicks. McCarthy pointed out that commercial hatcheries have reported a 35 per cent decline in the sale of baby chicks.

With better egg prices in prospect, McCarthy urged that poultrymen give their pullets every chance to come into early production and to maintain production. "Poultrymen who feed their pullets properly during the summer and give them every opportunity to develop will be well repaid during the fall and winter," he said.

Not much chance exists of an unforgotten increase in the number of laying hens before the beginning of 1938, according to McCarthy. June and July chicks have proved profitable, and commercial hatcheries have suspended operations for the summer.

McCarthy said that high feed costs and low prices for poultry products had resulted in the heaviest culling program in recent years. The unfavorable price picture has also resulted in a decline in the purchase of baby chicks. McCarthy pointed out that commercial hatcheries have reported a 35 per cent decline in the sale of baby chicks.

With better egg prices in prospect, McCarthy urged that poultrymen give their pullets every chance to come into early production and to maintain production. "Poultrymen who feed their pullets properly during the summer and give them every opportunity to develop will be well repaid during the fall and winter," he said.

Not much chance exists of an unforgotten increase in the number of laying hens before the beginning of 1938, according to McCarthy. June and July chicks have proved profitable, and commercial hatcheries have suspended operations for the summer.

McCarthy said that high feed costs and low prices for poultry products had resulted in the heaviest culling program in recent years. The unfavorable price picture has also resulted in a decline in the purchase of baby chicks. McCarthy pointed out that commercial hatcheries have reported a 35 per cent decline in the sale of baby chicks.

With better egg prices in prospect, McCarthy urged that poultrymen give their pullets every chance to come into early production and to maintain production. "Poultrymen who feed their pullets properly during the summer and give them every opportunity to develop will be well repaid during the fall and winter," he said.

Not much chance exists of an unforgotten increase in the number of laying hens before the beginning of 1938, according to McCarthy. June and July chicks have proved profitable, and commercial hatcheries have suspended operations for the summer.

McCarthy said that high feed costs and low prices for poultry products had resulted in the heaviest culling program in recent years. The unfavorable price picture has also resulted in a decline in the purchase of baby chicks. McCarthy pointed out that commercial hatcheries have reported a 35 per cent decline in the sale of baby chicks.

With better egg prices in prospect, McCarthy urged that poultrymen give their pullets every chance to come into early production and to maintain production. "Poultrymen who feed their pullets properly during the summer and give them every opportunity to develop will be well repaid during the fall and winter," he said.

Not much chance exists of an unforgotten increase in the number of laying hens before the beginning of 1938, according to McCarthy. June and July chicks have proved profitable, and commercial hatcheries have suspended operations for the summer.

McCarthy said that high feed costs and low prices for poultry products had resulted in the heaviest culling program in recent years. The unfavorable price picture has also resulted in a decline in the purchase of baby chicks. McCarthy pointed out that commercial hatcheries have reported a 35 per cent decline in the sale of baby chicks.

With better egg prices in prospect, McCarthy urged that poultrymen give their pullets every chance to come into early production and to maintain production. "Poultrymen who feed their pullets properly during the summer and give them every opportunity to develop will be well repaid during the fall and winter," he said.

Not much chance exists of an unforgotten increase in the number of laying hens before the beginning of 1938, according to McCarthy. June and July chicks have proved profitable, and commercial hatcheries have suspended operations for the summer.

McCarthy said that high feed costs and low prices for poultry products had resulted in the heaviest culling program in recent years. The unfavorable price picture has also resulted in a decline in the purchase of baby chicks. McCarthy pointed out that commercial hatcheries have reported a 35 per cent decline in the sale of baby chicks.

With better egg prices in prospect, McCarthy urged that poultrymen give their pullets every chance to come into early production and to maintain production. "Poultrymen who feed their pullets properly during the summer and give them every opportunity to develop will be well repaid during the fall and winter," he said.

Not much chance exists of an unforgotten increase in the number of laying hens before the beginning of 1938, according to McCarthy. June and July chicks have proved profitable, and commercial hatcheries have suspended operations for the summer.

McCarthy said that high feed costs and low prices for poultry products had resulted in the heaviest culling program in recent years. The unfavorable price picture has also resulted in a decline in the purchase of baby chicks. McCarthy pointed out that commercial hatcheries have reported a 35 per cent decline in the sale of baby chicks.

With better egg prices in prospect, McCarthy urged that poultrymen give their pullets every chance to come into early production and to maintain production. "Poultrymen who feed their pullets properly during the summer and give them every opportunity to develop will be well repaid during the fall and winter," he said.

Not much chance exists of an unforgotten increase in the number of laying hens before the beginning of 1938, according to McCarthy. June and July chicks have proved profitable, and commercial hatcheries have suspended operations for the summer.

McCarthy said that high feed costs and low prices for poultry products had resulted in the heaviest culling program in recent years. The unfavorable price picture has also resulted in a decline in the purchase of baby chicks. McCarthy pointed out that commercial hatcheries have reported a 35 per cent decline in the sale of baby chicks.

With better egg prices in prospect, McCarthy urged that poultrymen give their pullets every chance to come into early production and to maintain production. "Poultrymen who feed their pullets properly during the summer and give them every opportunity to develop will be well repaid during the fall and winter," he said.

Not much chance exists of an unforgotten increase in the number of laying hens before the beginning of 1938, according to McCarthy. June and July chicks have proved profitable, and commercial hatcheries have suspended operations for the summer.

McCarthy said that high feed costs and low prices for poultry products had resulted in the heaviest culling program in recent years. The unfavorable price picture has also resulted in a decline in the purchase of baby chicks. McCarthy pointed out that commercial hatcheries have reported a 35 per cent decline in the sale of baby chicks.

With better egg prices in prospect, McCarthy urged that poultrymen give their pullets every chance to come into early production and to maintain production. "Poultrymen who feed their pullets properly during the summer and give them every opportunity to develop will be well repaid during the fall and winter," he said.

Not much chance exists of an unforgotten increase in the number of laying hens before the beginning of 1938, according to McCarthy. June and July chicks have proved profitable, and commercial hatcheries have suspended operations for the summer.

McCarthy said that high feed costs and low prices for poultry products had resulted in the heaviest culling program in recent years. The unfavorable price picture has also resulted in a decline in the purchase of baby chicks. McCarthy pointed out that commercial hatcheries have reported a 35 per cent decline in the sale of baby chicks.

With better egg prices in prospect, McCarthy urged that poultrymen give their pullets every chance to come into early production and to maintain production. "Poultrymen who feed their pullets properly during the summer and give them every opportunity to develop will be well repaid during the fall and winter," he said.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

1. In what way has Mrs. Helen Tiernan figured in the news recently?

2. How was Mrs. Helen Tiernan's crime discovered?

3. What title did Wallace Wilson receive when she became wife of the Duke of Windsor?

4. What airplane race was recently halted by the United States government?

5. The anniversary of what event of interest to Americans would the flight have commemorated?

6. What was the name of the ship in which Col. Charles A. Bergh made his famous New York to Paris flight?

7. How long ago was it that Charles A. Lindbergh made his famous New York to Paris airplane flight in the Spirit of Saint Louis?

8. What United States Supreme Court Justice recently returned to the bench?

9. How long was Justice Devanter on the Supreme Court bench?

10. For what did Cardinal delmonico figure in the news recently? (Answers on Page 3.)

NOTICE

To Users of Natural Gas

Owing to the fact that some of our customers do not pay their bills promptly on the 10th of each month we are forced to add the penalty. Please pay your bills on this date and avoid this penalty.

All bills must be paid on or before the 10th of each month to avoid penalty. From the 11th until the 25th the 10 per cent penalty will be charged and after the 25th services will be discontinued without further notice.

Texas Natural Gas Company

Crowell and Thalia

A. H. CULBERTSON

PLEASE BRING YOUR CARDS</

THE Foard County News

T. B. KLEPPER, Editor-Owner. Entered at the Post Office at Crowell, Texas, as second class matter.

Crowell, Texas, June 17, 1937

Preserve me, O God; for in thee I put my trust.—Psalm 16:1.

THE LONE EAGLE TEN YEARS LATER

Ten years have elapsed since the history making flight of Col. Charles Lindbergh from New York of Paris. Lindbergh left New York an unknown boy and landed 33 hours and twenty minutes later in LeBourget field just outside the gates of Paris a world famous character. Perhaps nothing has happened in aviation that has given to it the virile impetus that came from this dramatic flight. Ten years is a short time in the history of nations but the things that have happened in the field of aviation within that period constitute a remarkable page in the world's history. There is something of the miracle about it all. From the night that this practically unknown young man slipped away from the American shore and set "The Spirit of Saint Louis" down at the gates of Paris the drama and the romance of it has furnished an inspiration and an impetus to this new industry that will follow it through to the end. Whatever heights of perfection and completeness aviation one day reaches, future historians will continue to point to the genius of the Lone Eagle as its most powerful impetus.

CONDITIONS REVERSED

About this time last year Crowell people were facing a water shortage that was serious indeed and one that lasted throughout the summer. Water was shipped in to care for the needs of the people of Crowell. This year, however, that conditions is reversed and we not only have plenty of water in the city lake, but rains are coming too often for the comfort of those who have wheat that is not yet harvested.

The death of John D. Rockefeller Sr. at his home in Ormond Beach, Florida, brought to an end a most remarkable life. Mr. Rockefeller began his career when industry and development in this country was in its infancy. During the almost eighty years that he had been actually in touch with business all of the developments that have made industry in this country what it is have come into being. Mr. Rockefeller was not only permitted to view the panorama of development but to share in it and to have a large place in it. Mr. Rockefeller was a shrewd business man but unlike many men who are shrewd in business, he was also shrewd in the conduct of his life, in the manner in which he lived and in the appraisal of life's true values. A crowning evidence of this was the fact that while he was yet living he gave away the bulk of his great estate to many worthy causes. He chose to make this disposition of his faculties and was able to make an intelligent disposal of it. In addition to this he had the rare privilege of being permitted to live and see and enjoy the much good his large gifts made possible. What a wise thing to do. How much real pleasure he must have gotten from seeing the good his money could do in the world. It did everything that it could have done in his own hands and in his declining years he was, by this act, relieved of the burden of its care. After all what a smart thing it was to do.

The best way to preach the trade at home doctrine is to let the folks at home know through the medium of advertising what they can buy at home. It often happens that buyers go to the big town and make purchases only to find out afterwards that they could have secured the same article here for less money and less trouble.

The man who never tells any gossip seldom hears much. Gossips don't visit with that sort of man. They prefer the person who can give them an even exchange for gossip they peddle.

It is a wise man who knows good advice when he hears it.

INTERESTING FACTS OF THIS AND THAT

Since 1932 the consumption of sugar has exceeded production and the surplus has been reduced from 11,000,000 tons to 7,000,000 tons.

War Admiral, the winner of the Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs, received $52,050 as the purse.

$585,106 was bet on the results of the Kentucky Derby race track.

The owner of War Admiral, the winner of the Kentucky Derby race at Churchill Downs, was not permitted to see the race. He was ill at home.

The Hindenburg was Germany's 120th Zeppelin.

In the nine years before the disaster the Hindenburg and the Graf Zeppelin carried 1,000,000 passengers without the loss of a single life.

There were over 1,000 witnesses to the Hindenburg disaster.

VALTON WALLACE ELECTRICIAN Phone 199

There's no other REFRIGERATOR like it!

PERFECTION-MADE SUPERFEX

The Original Oil Burning Refrigerator

YOU'll find the very things in a SUPERFEX that only this built-for-the-farm refrigerator could give you. Perfection Stove Company engineers, from a half century of specialized experience in farm kitchen needs, know "what it takes" to build SUPERFEX so that it meets every condition encountered in rural service.

The powerful refrigerating unit in SUPERFEX—with its air and water cooled Super Condenser—gives you most refrigeration at least running cost. No constant flame—the kerosene (coal oil) burners are "on" only 2 hours and go out automatically, but the refrigeration continues throughout every minute of the day and night.

There are no moving parts to tinker with—no electrical or water connections—and you can use it or move it wherever you please. The way it's built, it should last a lifetime.

Check THESE FEATURES Greatest economy—users say fuel costs as little as $10.00 a year. Most dependable refrigeration—both air and water cooled, by exclusive Super Condenser top. Refrigeration is continuous although burners operate only two hours a day. No constant flame. Trouble-free—no electricity, running water, outside connections or moving parts.

It is such a food saver, it pays for itself—and you can buy it on our easy terms. See the SUPERFEX—we will demonstrate it in your own home—and you'll know the difference.

Lanier Hdw. Co. The Mark of Quality

NOBODY'S BUSINESS

BY JULIAN CAPERS JR.

Austin.—What effect the action of Con. Martin Dies, who obtained adoption by the national house of representatives of an amendment to the bill creating a federal judiciary in the Houston district, that would require the appointee to be a resident of that district, upon the plans of Gov. James V. Allred to obtain the appointment as federal judge, furnished grist for the political gossip mill here. If the bill is finally passed by the senate with the Dies amendment in it, it would mean Allred, a resident of Wichita Falls district, could not be appointed federal judge, and the whole elaborate plan, reported to have the secret approval of Senators Tom Connally, Morris Sheppard and Vice President Garner, would collapse. Friends of Allred here believe the Dies amendment will be taken out by the senate, under pressure from Garner and the two Texas senators. This will delay final passage of the bill, however, and keep the political situation in Texas in its present state of uncertainty and high tension for probably another four or six weeks.

Dies Mad at Jimmy

Dies offered and fought for the amendment because of his feud with the Texas governor, growing out of the candidacy of Clyde Smith, of Woodville, against Dies last summer. Smith, who startled the state four years ago by making a very creditable race for attorney general as an unknown was appointed assistant secretary of state under the Allred administration, and Dies credited the Allred forces with encouraging him to run against Dies.

The delay in settling the matter is particularly irksome to friends of Lt. Gov. Walter Woodul, who are anxious to begin his campaign for attorney general, and can't very well do so until they learn whether he is going to serve a year as governor, as he would do if Allred resigns. Close friends of Woodul declare the latter would not seek election as governor, even if he served out Allred's term but would run for attorney general, leaving the gubernatorial field open to Col. Ernest Thompson and Atty. Gen. Bill McCraw, now generally regarded as the chief contenders.

Press Officials Named

Members of the Texas Press association, at their annual convention in Brownwood, named R. J. (Bob) Edwards, publisher of the Denton Record-Chronicle, veteran Texas newsman, as president, and Deskin Wells, brilliant young publisher of the Wellington Leader, vice president. Sam Harben, perennial secretary, was renamed for the 27th time and Uncle Ben Harigel, of La Grange, treasurer. Joe Cook, of Mission, another youngster whose achievements have won wide recognition, became chairman of the Young Publishers' section. The Belo award, for best weekly newspaper of the year went to the Kerrville Times, edited by J. J. Starkey.

Press Freedom Curtailed

Disregarding the plea of Texas newspaper publishers that the law was a direct attack upon the freedom of the press, Gov. Allred signed, the bill prohibiting dentists from advertising last weekend. Allred at first indicated he would disapprove the bill, but it had the strong support of Secretary of State Edward Clark, whose recommendation to Allred apparently carried more weight than that of the press of Texas.

An interesting bit of gossip concerning this bill circulated here was to the effect that it was lobbied through the legislature by ex-Sen. Carl Hardin of Stephenville. Fortune, Dallas newspaper wo-

Land of the Triple "A"

The letter "a" probably gets heavier use in the Hawaiian language than in almost any other tongue. It is used not only singly, but in two's and three's. Examples are "Kaaa," a thread made of fiber; "laasana," devoted, and "maaaa," sea breeze.

Your Horoscope

June 14, 15—Sometimes you show a marked generosity to a friend, but generally you are very close in money matters. Although you do not always get your way, you like to change your occupation and residence often. Sometimes you seek advice, but do not always follow it, but generally you are very close mouthed about your affairs.

June 16, 17, 18—You possess a quiet, happy disposition, enjoying ease and the good things of life if they come your way. You are musically inclined, love poetry, but when it comes to business matters you are very impractical. You have many warm friends, but they are not always able to get very close to you, especially when you are in one of your melancholy moods. Your greatest difficulty is that you do not seem able to appreciate your own real worth.

June 19, 20—You are apt to have some very deep religious convictions but are not given to parade them. At working out home decorations you have marvelous taste. You are loving, kind, imaginative and generous to a fault, and while you possess a sarcastic vein it is generally good natured, witty and refined.

on a contingent fee paid by the "ethical" dentists' organization. If the governor had not signed the bill, Hardin, according to the story, would have been paid nothing for his four months' work getting it through the legislature. Certain large city daily newspapers are expected to support a legal test of the constitutionality of the act.

Notes

Opening of the Pan American Exposition at Dallas drew to the North Texas metropolis the largest assemblage of state politicians since last year's Centennial celebration. . . . Sen. Connally, Gov. Allred, Lt. Gov. Woodul, were headliners, while many members of the house and senate attended the opening. . . . Nudism which featured the Centennial last year, was conspicuously absent this time, and opening day visitors were uniformly enthusiastic in praising the new Cavalcade, magnificent spectacle depicting the establishment of liberty on the two American continents, written by Jan Isabelle Garner. . . . A terrific protest went up this week at Gov. Allred's action in vetoing two important measures, the soil conservation act and the Big Bend park purchase. . . . Opposition to the tax remission features of the first, which he also said was doubtful of obtaining federal aid because of its poor drafting and a $750,000 appropriation item to buy the park, were given by the governor as reasons for his veto.

State Finances

Some idea of the task confronting the legislature may be drawn from the final appropriation figures, after Gov. Allred had vetoed certain items and approved the big appropriation bills for the biennium. The total of the appropriations is $74,569,803 to run the government for the next two years, an increase of more than $10,000,000 over 1935-36. The state general fund deficit is about $10,000,000 and will likely reach $20,000,000 at the end of the year, which is the low point for tax collections. The legislature raised no additional revenue, but

ARE YOU PROPERLY INSURED?

Fire, Hail, Tornado, Property Damage

Let us show you what we mean by individual insurance service. Don't trust to luck when dependable insurance costs so little.

HUGHSTON - SPENCER AGENCY

Nobody expected the special session to balance a budget far out of balance as this. Substantial levy of new taxes on the departmental bills as passed, cut off about $450,000 a year, when it repealed race horse betting. The governor's vetoes eliminated more than $1,000,000 from the departmental bills as passed.

MEN! You Can Supply Your Clothing Wants Here....

From the greatest markets of the world, we have assembled the largest and most complete stock of men's and boys' wearables ever shown in Vernon. Almost all our goods were bought before recent price advances and you are assured of the most value possible for your money in every item.

TWO-PANT SUITS $19.75 and $24.75

Hundreds to select from and we invite your comparison of these with higher priced suits. If you are hard to fit, come to see us. We specialize in irregular sizes.

2500 Pairs Men's and Boys' SUMMER PANTS

The largest pants stock in West Texas—Can supply your size and pattern. Every pair tailored to fit and every pair of cotton pants sanforized.

MEN'S PANTS $1.50 - $1.95 - $2.95 - $3.95 - $4.95

BOYS' PANTS $1.00 - $1.39 - $1.69 - $1.95

3000 Men's Summer Shirts

Every conceivable new pattern is here from three of the world's greatest shirt makers—Manhattan, Jayson and "E. & W."

$1.00 - $1.50 - $1.95

INTERWOVEN SOCKS

The world's longest wearing socks in every new Summer pattern—Regular lengths and anklets.

35c and 50c

1000 Men's Hats

By far the largest hat stock in this part of the country, featuring "Stetsons" and "Lion Hats".

Stetson Felts $5.00 to $7.50
Stetson Straws $3.00 to $4.00
Lion Felts $1.98 and $2.98
Lion Straws $1.00—$1.50—$1.95

Nunn-Bush and Friedman-Shelby SHOES

It costs less to wear all leather shoes and we can fit your feet with shoes that will not only wear well, but look well and feel well.

$2.98 - $3.95 - $4.95

Nunn-Bush Shoes $7.50 and $9.00

FOR MEN / CY LONG'S STORE / FOR BOYS VERNON, TEXAS

Headquarters for Father's Day Gifts

Father's Day Sunday, June 20th

AUTOMOBILE LOANS

Low Rates
Quick Service
Confidential
Local Payments

SPENCER FINANCE COMPANY

Phone 283 Corner Rock Building

Locals

Coleman gasoline irons, $5.95.—W. R. Womack.

If you want to buy a farm, see me.—J. R. Beverly.

Fruit jars and canning supplies at M. S. Henry & Co.

Hat clearance—price 98c.—The Beverly Shop.

Sell your poultry, eggs, hides and cream to Moyer Produce Co.

When you think of paint you think of Sherwin-Williams first. Get it at M. S. Henry & Co.

Banana splits, 10c. Big milk shake, 5c. Big malt, 5c.—Reeder's Drug Store.

Sell your poultry, eggs, cream and hides and buy your feed at Ballard Produce Co.

Will take your old stove on a new oil, gas or bottled gas range.—W. R. Womack.

C. B. Graham offers for sale a quarter section of tight land, 1 mile west of Margaret, all in cultivation. 55p

Mrs. Annie Bell and two sons, Ray and Jimmy Dow, of Wichita Falls are visiting Mrs. Bell's sister, Mrs. Hartley Easley.

See the finest Inner Spring mattress ever built. Will give $5.00 for your old cotton mattress in exchange.—W. R. Womack.

I will be at the Hay's Hotel from 2 o'clock Friday afternoon, June 25, until Saturday afternoon, June 26.—W. C. Roundtree, M. D.

Miss Irma Brown, student nurse in the City-County Hospital in Fort Worth, is here for an extended visit in the home of her sister, Mrs. Coystal McClure.

Mrs. J. H. Cope and daughter, Marjorie Ann, and son, Robert, of Vernon are here visiting in the home of Mrs. Cope's sister, Mrs. T. S. Haney.

Headin' for the Big Roundup at Stamford

Bucking broncs, veteran cowhands, cowboys, and chuck wagons, pretty cowgirl sponsors! Here are a few advance shots of the Eighth Annual Texas Cowboy Reunion to be held in Stamford July 1, 2 and 3. Top left is Buck Hawkins riding "Calamity Jane" at last year's Reunion. Upper right is Walt Cousins, of Dallas, president of the old-time cowboys' association. Lower left, cowboys around a chuck wagon on a ranch near Stamford. Lower right is Miss Mary Louise Purdon of Stephenville, prize-winning cowgirl sponsor of last year.

Crowell Wins—

(Continued from Page One)
Sunday in the last league game of the first half.

The box score:

CROWELL	AB	R	H	E
Witcher, 3b	5	1	1	2
Graves, 1b	3	2	2	0
H. Green, cf	5	0	2	0
L. Green, ss	5	0	1	2
C. Russell, lf	4	0	1	1
Taylor, 2b	4	0	0	0
Bradford, c	4	1	1	0
J. Russell, rf	2	2	1	0
Crowell, rf	1	1	1	0
Todd, p	4	1	1	1
Totals	37	8	11	6

Score by innings:

Crowell	220	200	02x-8
Ace	000	130	100-5

Summary: Home run—H. Edmondson. Three-base hit—H. Green. Two-base hits—Graves 2, J. Russell, Preston. Double play—Graves, L. Green to Taylor to Graves. Pitching record—Todd, 9 innings with 5 runs, 13 hits, 2 walks and 2 strikeouts. H. Edmondson, 8 innings with 8 runs, 11 hits, 3 walks, and 2 strikeouts. Hit by pitched ball—J. Russell. Stolen base—Graves, C. Russell.

"Ladies' Night" New Feature at Rialto

A new feature at the Rialto Theatre is "Ladies Night" to be held every Tuesday to replace Bank Night, which was declared unconstitutional by the higher courts of Texas several days ago. A lady will be admitted to the theatre free with each paid adult ticket at the Tuesday matinee and night performances.

Crowell, Winning pitcher—Todd. Losing pitcher—H. Edmondson.

CARD OF THANKS

To our relatives and many friends, together with Dr. Hughes and Dr. Hill, we use this method of expressing our most sincere thanks for their many acts of kindness in helping us to care for our dear mother during her illness and death.

We hope at least to return in part, but should we in our feeble efforts be unable to recompense you in a fair measure there is a higher power who never fails to reward such acts and deeds of kindness.

We sincerely ask a portion of His rich blessings upon you.

J. C. Black and Family.
Mrs. J. M. Cash and Family.
E. L. Black and Family.

CROWELL SHOE SHOP
Expert Shoe Repairing
All Work Guaranteed
F. W. MABE, Proprietor
ARTHUR THOMAS, Mgr.

Announcement

I am now dealer in Thalia for the Massie-Harris Tractors and ask that you look these tractors over before buying. You can buy a Massie-Harris tractor with a 15 per cent down payment with the balance payable in 1937, 1938 and 1939.

Will be glad to give demonstration of these tractors.

CLYDE BRAY
THALIA, TEXAS

BEFORE YOU TAKE YOUR HOLIDAY TRIP

SEE US FOR
U.S. ROYALS
World-Famous for SAFE MILEAGE

HERE'S WHY

- ★ GOVWHEEL TREAD—a famous traction principle that gives you extra skid protection.
- ★ SAFETY-BONDED CORD BODY—exclusive with "U.S." makes every ply a safety ply... gives you extra skid and protection.
- ★ TEMPERED RUBBER—this patented "U.S." tread compound wears longer—gives you extra miles.

TODAY'S PRICES

U. S. ROYALS	4.50-21	$10
	5.50-17	$12.20
U. S. TIRES	4.40-21	$5.45
	5.50-17	$9.20
	6.00-16	$9.50

FREE SAFETY ANALYSIS... ALL MAKES

RAYMOND'S
MAGNOLIA SERVICE STATION

DISTANCE

Holds No Enchantment for Us

We have never had much interest in far-off things—except as news.

The progress of this community, the welfare of home people, mean more to us than anything outside our own circle.

There has been plenty of work to do. We have enjoyed doing it, and we intend to keep right on putting our weight and strength back of local enterprise.

You can count upon our co-operation in all ways that will advance your interests, and at the same time protect our depositors' interests.

CROWELL STATE BANK

FURNITURE

FOR EVERY NOOK IN the HOME

Two- and Three-Piece upholstered Living Room Suites, tapestry, velour and mohair covers that you will like.

$44.50 to $95.00

Four-Piece Bed Room Suites, in latest designs, genuine walnut and walnut finish, that you will like. Priced

$39.50 and up

Just received a big shipment of fancy Rockers and Chairs, solid walnut End and Occasional Tables.

9x12 Rugs $5.95

M.S. Henry & Co.

Thermos bottle lunch kits, $1.35 at M. S. Henry & Co.

Home storage, 125,000 bushels.—Self Grain Co.

Eveready radio batteries fresh always.—W. R. Womack.

All kinds of cool cotton frocks, $1.95 up.—The Beverly Shop.

Floor mats made by Congoleum only 10c at M. S. Henry & Co.

Miss Bonnie Gray of Lubbock is visiting Miss Myrna Holman this week.

Mrs. Glenn Williams of Rochester visited Mrs. Charles Scruggs this week.

Finest gas ranges, (natural or bottled gas), $65.00 to $220.00.—W. R. Womack.

Your wheat carefully weighed and tested by Mr. Andrews.—Self Grain Co.

Dick Todd left Monday for New London where he will work in the oil fields this summer.

Sell your poultry, eggs, cream and hides and buy your feed at Ballard Produce Co.

One-gallon thermos jugs for hot or cold, $1.50.—Reeder's Drug Store.

Two elevators running at Margaret, prompt unloading.—Self Grain Co.

Guy Speck of Post was here Wednesday visiting his brother, Hub Speck, and family.

Jar lids and canning supplies at M. S. Henry & Co.

Sam Crews, student in Texas A. & M. at College Station, has returned to his home in Crowell for the summer vacation.

Norge - Rollator refrigerators satisfy. The hotter the weather the faster they freeze.—W. R. Womack.

Mr. Andrews is careful, and will know whose wheat before placing name on ticket.—Self Grain Co.

Mrs. Oud Greening, Miss Louise Greening and Miss Almeda Crabtree were business visitors in Henrietta Monday.

Watterson 2-volt and 6-volt radio sets $29.00 and $64.95 complete. All batteries and Wind Charger.—W. R. Womack.

Miss Mozelle Lilly and Miss Neva Parsons of Fort Worth spent the week-end in the home of Miss Lilly's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Lilly.

Going to paint? Sun Proof (lead), Snolite (paste), Plasco (paste or lead), made by Pittsburgh Plate Glass and Paint Co. is the best to be had.—W. R. Womack.

Mrs. Ernest King, who has been in Fort Worth for the past several weeks with her sister, Mrs. L. C. Martin, returned to her home in Crowell Sunday. Mrs. Martin underwent a serious operation and is improving nicely.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Smith of Wortham and their daughter, Mrs. S. V. Johnson, of Arp were Saturday and Sunday visitors of Mr. Smith's nephews, Joe and Virgil Smith, and families. They also visited in the home of Mr. Smith's niece, Mrs. Mutt McKinley, of Thalia.

Store your wheat at home.—Self Grain Co.

Charles Ferguson was a visitor in Odessa and Wink last week.

Zenith and RCA radio tubes.—W. R. Womack.

Sell your poultry, eggs, hides and cream to Moyer Produce Co.

Perfection hi-power cook stoves at M. S. Henry & Co.

New merchandise arriving daily.—The Beverly Shop.

State bonded warehouse means safety for you.—Self Grain Co.

Zenith and Watterson 1938 models radio sets.—W. R. Womack.

Archer and Kayser hose for lovely women, 79c up.—The Beverly Shop.

Mrs. Roy Archer and children left last Friday for McKinney to visit her parents.

Two elevators running at Margaret, prompt unloading.—Self Grain Co.

Mrs. R. R. Magee returned Sunday from Mineral Wells where she had been for several weeks.

Mrs. H. Schindler, Mrs. T. V. Elliott and Miss Harriett Swain were in Wichita Falls Tuesday.

Phillips 44 fly spray, 20c a pint at M. S. Henry & Co.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Y. Beverly, Joe Wallace Beverly, Mrs. E. F. Ringgold and Miss Minnie Ringgold spent Sunday in South Bend.

Watterson and Zenith 1938 radios.—W. R. Womack.

Mrs. Bryon Davis returned Friday from Clarksville after a visit of two weeks with her mother, Mrs. Willard King.

Money advanced on stored wheat.—Self Grain Co.

Miss Betty Ray Dawkins of Childress is visiting Lola Mae Donaldson this week.

Best gum spirits turpentine, 75c to 85c gallon. Best linseed oil, $1.15 to $1.25.—W. R. Womack.

Two elevators running at Margaret, prompt unloading.—Self Grain Co.

Perfection highpower oil stoves, 3, 4 and 5 burner types. Cash or monthly payments.—W. R. Womack.

Two elevators running at Margaret, prompt unloading.—Self Grain Co.

A nice variety of dresses in chiffon, net, Bemberg, etc. Smart style, reasonable price.—The Beverly Shop.

Miss Ruth Ferguson, student in a business college in Dallas, spent the week-end in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Ferguson.

Miss Lida Sue Gorrell of Wichita Falls visited in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Gorrell, during the first part of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Buster Smith of Tipton, Okla., visited for a short time with friends in Crowell Sunday afternoon. Mr. Smith is linotype operator for the Tipton Tribune and a former employee of The Foard County News.

Canning supplies at M. S. Henry & Co.

We meet all competition.—Self Grain Co.

Wanted—25 to 100 old oil stoves as part payment on new oil, natural gas and bottled gas ranges.—W. R. Womack.

Our scales 34 feet long, capacity 57,000 lbs.—Self Grain Co.

C. V. Allen of Spur was in Crowell Sunday and Monday visiting friends and looking after business matters.

Miss Mattie Belle Greening of Dallas was here for the week-end visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Greening.

Mr. and Mrs. P. Toliaferro of Denton visited in the home of their daughter, Mrs. Tom Seale, from Thursday until Monday.

Mrs. A. Y. Beverly and son, Joe Wallace and Mrs. Laura Giddings were in Vernon Wednesday visiting in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Julian Wright.

Frank Hays Crowell of Wichita Falls is visiting in the home of his grandmother, Mrs. N. A. Crowell. He will also work with M. F. Crowell's thrasher.

Our scales weighs car, trailer all one load.—Self Grain Co.

Mrs. T. V. Elliott and Mrs. Irving Fisch arrived in Crowell Friday for a visit with their parents, Dr. and Mrs. H. Schindler and Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Thomas.

Mrs. Garland Burns returned to her home near Denton last Friday after visiting two weeks with her mother, Mrs. N. A. Crowell, and other relatives and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. C. V. Allen and son, James Victor, were here Sunday and Monday from Spur visiting friends. Mr. Allen was also attending to business here Monday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Burrow and two sons, W. C. Jr. and Barry, of Brownfield spent Saturday night and Sunday visiting Mr. Burrow's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Burrow, and other relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Bennie Witt of Tyler and Miss Susie Johnson of White City, who had been visiting in Tyler, spent Tuesday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Johnson. Mr. and Mrs. Witt returned to their home Wednesday but Miss Johnson will remain in Crowell for an extended visit.

Mrs. Tip Edgin attended a picnic at Diversion Dam near Wichita Falls last Sunday. It was in honor of C. L. Martin, general superintendent of the WPA workers of district 12, and was attended by the superintendents and timekeepers of the district and the office force at Wichita Falls.

ROTARY LUNCHEON

Ralph Burrow, who is at home on a furlough from the U. S. Navy, and Judge Claude Callaway made talks on the program of the Rotary Club Wednesday at noon at its regular meeting at O'Connell's Lunch Room.

Mr. Burrow told of his experiences in the Navy and Mr. Callaway talked on the committee's progress of securing money to pay for a portion of the land in the proposed new park one block south of the square.

Carl Vestal, Rotarian of Quanah, was a visitor at the meeting.

Classified Ads

For Sale

FOR SALE—Good wheat farm at half price.—J. W. Allison.

FOR SALE—A few ewes that will begin lambing Sept. 15.—Allen Fish. 52

FOR SALE—Porto Rican sweet potato plants, $1.00 per thousand; five or more thousand, 90c. Seed treated for disease. You can get any amount any time.—J. C. Davis, Rayland. 52

Used Car Bargains

1935 Ford De Luxe Coupe $425.00
 1935 Ford Sedan $385.00
 1935 Ford Tudor $375.00
 1934 Ford Tudor $325.00
 1934 Chevrolet Coach $325.00
 1933 Ford Tudor $195.00
 1931 Chevrolet Coupe $135.00
 1928 Oldsmobile $65.00

Trucks and Commercials

1936 Ford 157 DW Truck $485.00
 1934 Chevrolet Truck $385.00
 CC DW $385.00
 1935 L. H. C. Pick-Up $385.00
 1928 Chevrolet Truck $260.00
 1929 Ford Truck $85.00

SELF MOTOR COMPANY

Cash—Terms—Trade

NOTICE

A reward of $250.00 will be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of any person or persons stealing cattle in Foard County.

For further information see A. W. LILLY, Sheriff of Foard County, Crowell, Texas

Used Car Bargains

1936 Plymouth Deluxe 2-door sedan.
 1936 Plymouth Deluxe 4-door sedan.
 1934 Plymouth Deluxe 2-door sedan.
 1935 Plymouth Standard 2-door.
 1934 Chevrolet Deluxe 4-door sedan.
 1930 Ford Coach.
 1926 Oldsmobile 2-door.

All cars in first class condition and will appreciate an opportunity to demonstrate them.

See FRANK MOORE

BROWN MOTOR COMPANY
 Agent for Oldsmobile, Plymouth and De Soto Automobiles, the Display Room at Bursey Impl. Co.

Wanted

WANTED all kinds of second-hand furniture and stoves. Will trade mattress work.—Ketchersid Furniture Co. 1f

WANTED TO BUY—An Ed Alto Saxophone and a Bb Boehm Clarinet.—Apply at News Office.

No Trespassing

POSITIVELY NO FISHING

No fishing will be allowed in my pasture. Please do not ask.—Leslie McAdams. 1f

NOTICE—No hunting, fishing or trespassing of any kind allowed on my land.—Furd Halsell. 1f

No trespassing or hunting will be allowed on Big 4 Ranch in Foard and Knox Counties.—Frank

NO WOOD hauling, hunting or trespassing of any kind allowed on land owned or leased by me. Any est extent of law.—W. B. Johnson. 1f STATED MEETING of Crowell Lodge No. 840, A. F. & A. M., June 21, 7 p. m. Members urged to attend, visitors welcome.

 D. R. MAGEE, Worshipful Master
 CLAUDE GALLAWAY, Secretary

For Sale

Bosch Magneto, 4 cylinder . $20.00
Spitdorf Magneto, 4 cylinder . $15.00
SELF MOTOR CO

Death Bell of Rovereto

The Death Bell of Rovereto, hanging high in the Dolomites at the scene of some of the most severe fighting in the World War, tells one hundred times each evening in memory of all those who died in this great conflict. The great bell, says Collier's Weekly, made from cannons collected from every front, is dedicated to this service forever and its use for any other purpose, however important it may be, is absolutely forbidden.

Fern Plant is Productive

A healthy fern plant produces about 45,000,000 spores, each capable of producing a new plant.

MESCAL IKE By S. L. HUNTLEY

CHURCHES

Christian Science Church

Sunday School at 10 a. m.
 Sunday services at 11 a. m.
 Wednesday evening services at 8 o'clock.
 Sunday, June 20, 1937. Subject: "Is the Universe, Including Man, Evolved by Atomic Force?" The public is cordially invited.

Methodist News Notes

Rev. Ed Tharp, formerly a pastor in Foard County, was in our city Monday. Mrs. Tharp remained with her daughter, Mrs. D. R. Magee, to assist in nursing Mr. Magee through his illness.

The campaign headed by J. R. Beverly to liquidate half of our church debt has met with a responsive attitude. Every one sees and feels the need of caring for the religious life of our city. Through the campaign is not yet under way in full, contributions are coming in. Let every one respond to this cause which should be first in our hearts. We have been wonderfully blessed with a wheat crop surpassing any record of previous years, so let us wisely use it.

Regular services next Sunday. We cordially invite all to these services.
 E. L. YEATS.

Christian Science Services

"Is the Universe, Including Man, Evolved by Atomic Force?" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist on Sunday, June 20.

The Golden Text is: "Behold, the heaven and the heaven of heavens is the Lord's thy God, the earth also, with all that therein is" (Deuteronomy 10:14).
 Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "By the word of the Lord were the heavens made; and all the host of them by the breath of his mouth. For he spake, and it was done; he commanded, and it stood fast" (Psalms 33:8, 9).
 The Lesson-Sermon includes also the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The true theory of the universe, including man, is not in material history but in spiritual development. Inspired thought relinquishes a material, sensual, and mortal theory of the universe, and adopts the spiritual and immortal" (page 547).

Eastside Church of Christ

Elder Garner of Quanah will preach Sunday at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m.
 Sunday School at 10 a. m. and young people's meeting at 7:30.
 CLYDE COBB, S. S. Supt.

Two Minute Sermon

(By Thomas Hastwell)

For A Mess of Pottage: We read in the story of Esau and Jacob that Esau was punished and deprived of his inheritance and blessing because he failed to regard his birthright and treated it carelessly and with disrespect. As the story goes he sold his birthright for a mess of pottage, a thing of small value that satisfied but a passing desire. Because of his attitude and the loss of his birthright he was deprived of the privilege of leadership of his people and the reward of his inheritance. As we read of Esau's act today it appears foolish that a man would give away a possession that meant so much to himself and his people and his posterity for so little in return, for the mere satisfaction of a passing appetite. But how much more mindful are many today of their birthright than was the willful, pleasure loving Esau? We see every day young men and young women, heirs to the priceless birthright of a good name, a life of honor, integrity, industry and sobriety, cast it aside and sacrifice it for a life of idleness, intemperance, waste and sin, merely to gratify the foolish desire and mad pleasure of the passing moment. They yield to the weakness of the crowd. They scorn restraint, and discipline, and self control, and consume the sacred forces of life on the altar of the god of pleasure. They, too, sell their birthright for a mere mess of pottage.

Supreme Court Opinions

Massachusetts Supreme court has given advisory opinions to its legislature since colonial times.

Tungsten is the toughest of all metals.

Good Habits Are More Easily Formed in Early Childhood

Austin.—A child's habits are responsible, in a large measure, for their mental actions in later life, according to Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer. A child of five or six years may have a bad temper. He can be taught control so that it will not often be manifested. It would be better for him had he acquired a good temper instead of a bad one. Today the medical profession understands more fully the enduring influence of habits that begin in the nursery, or even in the cradle. In the young child, as a result of habit, certain types of behavior become established.

Perhaps the child had learned while yet an infant, that he could get what he wanted if he cried long and loud. Perhaps he had learned, when a little older, that bad behavior, as tantrums, screaming, rolling on the floor or sulking, brought him what he wanted after his request had been refused or ignored.

If he had this experience once, you may be sure that he would repeat the action the next time the occasion arose. If he found that such actions did not bring the desired results he would not try it again.

Other behavior habits, good and bad, are acquired from imitating older children and adults. In this way many likes and dislikes, tastes and ambitions which in later years become crystallized into character habits have their beginning. Calmness and poise, as well as nervous and panicky behavior habits established by imitation and made permanent by repetition. The elders are responsible far more than they realize for the conduct of the child in the family. In this we see a new meaning of the old adage, "As the twig is bent, the tree is inclined."

Brief Bits of News From Here and There

It is predicted that automatic gear shifts will be the next improvement in automobiles.

In a news questionnaire recently submitted to 300,000 school children by Current Events, a news publication studied by school children, but 514 scored as high as 96. 198 made grades of 5 or less. All questions were on current news of the day.

Following the disaster at New London, Texas, in which 455 school children lost their lives, the U. S. Senate asked that an investigation be made of the schools of the nation to determine in how many unsafe conditions existed. A 53 page PWA report showed that there were unsafe conditions in 1178 schools in 47 states. A resolution was introduced into the Senate requesting that WPA aid be granted all schools who desired to remove the hazard and were willing to meet the conditions.

The Securities and Exchange Corporation makes public among others the following big salaries paid in 1936: Walter S. Gifford, American Telephone and Telegraph president, $210,650; George

Uncle Jim Says

"Locust trees help stop gullies and are a cheap source of fence posts."

The use of trees to stop the growth of gullies is becoming popular over the State, according to C. W. Simmons, farm forester of the Texas A. & M. Extension Service. The trees not only retard erosion, but offer an additional source of farm income.

In humid sections of the State, Simmons finds that the black locust makes a quick growth, holds the soil together, and provides fairly good fence posts within a reasonable time. About 10 years is needed to produce serviceable posts from this tree on average soil.

In general, it is always best to plant trees which are known to be locally adapted. There are 27 varieties of pine and some 23 varieties of hardwood which are of commercial value in Texas, Simmons says. In sections where none of these are adapted, Simmons recommends planting such post yielding trees as cedar, mesquite, Bois d'Arc and black locust.

County agricultural agents have available detailed information regarding the planting of forest trees under the Agricultural Conservation Program, which carries provision for payment for this type of agricultural conservation.

Rules of U. S. Navy

The crews on the ships of the United States navy are forbidden to throw anything overboard that will float, as such debris might be used as a trail by enemies in time of war and by spies wishing to watch maneuvers in time of peace.—Collier's Weekly.

W. Hill, American Tobacco president $246,174; George Gordon Crawford, Jones & Laughlin Steel president, $250,000; W. R. Shuman, Fox Film vice president, $300,000; Thomas J. Watson, International Business Machines president, $343,237.

Florida requires a license costing $12 for out of state auto trailers carrying school children. This is to compensate for the extra burden thrown on local schools by the children of transients who pay no local taxes.

HAD ANY HEADACHES LATELY?

NO, THANKS TO YOU AND NERVINE

Nurse Thanks Friend for Recommending DR. MILES NERVINE

A nurse writes that she suffered from frequent headaches. Nothing stopped them until a friend recommended DR. MILES NERVINE. She says Nervine stops headaches before they get a good start.

Three generations have found DR. MILES NERVINE effective for Nervousness, Sleeplessness due to Nervous Irritability, Nervous Indigestion, Headache, Travel Sickness.

Get DR. MILES NERVINE at your drug store in liquid or effervescent tablet form.

Small bottle or package 25 cents
 Large bottle or package $1.00

Majestic Studio
 ROBERTSON—PARKER
 Paducah, Texas

Know Texas

Denton.—Summer travelers who feel the call of the "wide open spaces" must, of course, look to the West to find a vacation spot. Texas' Panhandle, painted with the glowing colors of its cowboy legends, offers a varied bill of fare to the visitor.

Probably the most inclusive route through the Northwest section of the state begins at Fort Worth on Federal highways 81 and 370, passes through Wichita Falls to Amarillo. After a circle through Plainview and Lubbock.

Remains of ancient Indian cultures are glimpsed by the tourist in the interesting old towns of Tascosa and Old Mobeetie up in the eastern corner. Then, traveling along the scenic Canadian River and southward he comes upon the land which formed the well-known XIT ranch, a 3,000,000 tract which was paid for the building of the state capitol. Just a remnant now remains.

Another large tract is the Goodnight ranch in the lower Palo Duro Valley southeast of Amarillo. Nearby is a state park of 15,000 acres, and also a museum of relics collected by the Panhandle Historical Society.

Although most of the great old ranches are being replaced more recently by oil and gas fields, fields of wheat and cotton, and between the high plains and Fort Worth are four ranches large enough to deserve mention—Spur, 6666, Matador, and Waggoner. In the nearby towns rodeos are held throughout the summer.

The territory of most historical importance is around Albany, Throckmorton and Graham, where Forts Richardson, Belknap and Griffin are located. These are among the most famous of the old frontier forts.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Glycerine is better than oil for lubricating egg beaters, meat cutters and juice extractors. It is tasteless and harmless.

Melted alum is better than glue for mending glassware. It holds well and does not show.

Strawberry Dainties: Select large, perfect berries and wash but do not remove hull. Hold by the hull and dip strawberry into fondant warmed in a double boiler until it will coat the berries smoothly. These are especially nice to serve at tea.

THIS WEEK IN HISTORY

June 14—United States Congress adopted the stars and stripes as the national flag, 1777. Duke of Wellington defeated Napoleon the traitor, 1801.

June 15—George Washington appointed commander-in-chief of the Continental army, 1775. Schumann-Heink, born, 1861.

June 16—Founding of the gas company in America, the Light Company of Baltimore, 1816. Ford Motor Company incorporated, 1903.

June 17—Battle of Bunker 1775. Father Marquette at Joliet, French explorer, among the headwaters of the Mississippi, 1673.

June 18—Oregon telephone change in Oregon opened at Portland, 1878. Napoleon defeated Waterloo, 1815.

June 19—Iceland, with the consent of the Danish government grants complete suffrage to women, 1915. Statue of Liberty received as gift from France, 1886.

June 20—The Savannah, first steamer to cross the Atlantic under the American flag, arrived at Liverpool, 1819. 1,000 Ford V8 built, 1934.

Here's a Hot SUBSCRIPTION BARGAIN!

For a Short Time Only See Us at Once

Your Choice of

THE WICHITA DAILY TIMES
 (Daily and Sunday)

Or, the

WICHITA FALLS RECORD-NEWS
 (Daily with Sunday Times)

FOUR MONTHS $1.50

CLUBBING OFFER

Either Wichita Falls Paper with

THE FOARD COUNTY NEWS

For FOUR MONTHS

$2.00

The Foard County News

BEAUTY'S DAUGHTER

By Kathleen Norris

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER II—One day while Victoria is asking her mother why she is so worried, Magda tells her she is a diamond. Ferdy Manners, a wealthy man from Argentina whom she had known a week before, Manners arrives a few hours later. He shows her a valuable Chishaw that has been in the Manners family for many years. She is shocked when she learns her father had contemplated selling it. He tells Manners a dealer had offered her $300 for the shawl. Victoria takes her to Nevada to a woman friend who has a sister named Catherine. There she tells her she is going to get a divorce. Victoria soon is in boarding school with her friend Catherine. Manners marries. They spend two years in Argentina. Victoria has studied in Argentina and at eighteen she visits her mother when Ferdy rents a villa home. Magda is unhappy with Ferdy's drinking and attention to other women. Vic disapproves, but for her mother's sake she is nice to him.

CHAPTER III

Victoria's mother was not happy. Galvanized and smiling, keeping a brave face to the world, Magda's soul tried to feed itself on husks. She told Victoria of the last years was a story of disillusion and loneliness, in a setting of luxury, travel, extravagance. Fritz had been dull, London Paris dreadful, Rosario down Buenos Aires, where Ferdy's mother and Spanish sister, perhaps had been insufferable. "Perhaps I oughtn't to tell you, Vicky. But the beginning of going wrong was of course here were always other women's wife was only to wear jewels and be introduced to a business friends, big German and Spanish cattle men, of them! The wife is a figure after the first year. If she sons, and keeps the peace in the family, and forgives him thing, the man is pleased with it she gets temperamental, to assert herself, he is angry. But he goes his own way she same."

Victoria looked thoughtful, her dark brows drawn together. "I oughtn't to stay here," she said. "Magda asked simply, 'What do you go?'"

Victoria idled herself into the summer and Victoria and Magda down to the shore again. This they had the smartest cot at the lodge, and the beautiful Mrs. Manners was much admired and entertained. Mr. Manners explained to everyone, a dash of white teeth, was for steelhead up in the mountains. Every hostess told Victoria that she had a beautiful man for her as a partner, but Victoria noticed that Magda found them really wonderful. October Ferdy went off on his yacht for six weeks. He was a little guilty about it and Victoria a large check "to New York." Later she heard that his twinges of conscience were because the yacht had been mentioned as including a few fellows' actual man, and the ubiquitous Magda did not know that. Victoria believed and hoped it not.

Victoria came back to California in the winter, and Ferdy came back Christmas. Little was said of the element on the trip, and the respect holidays in a splendid suite Fairmont hotel up at the top hill with the green iron beds of their breakfast room over the fascinating jumpers and stacks and long rows on the Embarradero. Victoria now said that he thought it go back to Rosario for months. He thought Magda was a great fool to go. It was not traveling; and she place anyway.

Victoria usually long period of affection and placation resulted in Magda's decision to go to South America.

Victoria told her mother she was to stay in California, because Catherine and Mrs. were going up to the lake again, and wanted her. Well—and because she really would like it—like it better. She might come down to Rosario later, all by herself. But—really she would like it better this way, now.

Magda was gently hurt, puzzled. Ferdy smiled, but Vicky knew that he was furious. She held her ground, good-natured and affectionate, but not to be moved. In the end they left without her, and Vicky and Catherine went up to the lake.

A week later, when she and Catherine were sitting down on the lake shore one day, Victoria told her the reason:

"Catherine, cross your heart and hope to die if you ever tell anyone this!"

"I do," said Catherine solemnly, suiting the action to the word.

"It was he," Victoria said.

"Who? Your stepfather?"

"My stepfather nothing!" Vicky echoed, repudiating the relationship. "He—Catherine, if you ever tell anyone this I'll never speak to you again!—he followed me into the sitting room one night—we'd all just come home from a movie—and kissed me and crushed me against him."

Victoria was at the dock, in the fine soft November fog, to see the big ship come in; the Empress of Panama was on time; at exactly one minute before eleven o'clock she drew up alongside, and all the excitement of landing began.

Then a mother and daughter were in each other's arms, and Victoria was laughing.

"And how's Ferdy?"

"Ferdy—Mrs. Manners' glance returned from the luggage and fixed itself upon Victoria. "Ferdy is—just the same—as ever."

"And when does he get here? Or does he go to Paris? You were so vague!"

"No, here. When the Loughborough's yacht does, whenever that is," Mrs. Manners said, in the same tone of pleasant indifference.

"And now, in a car here, and did you reserve my rooms?" she demanded gayly, as the custom formalities were concluded and she could pick the Pekinese from Victoria's arms again and accompany her along the pier. "Don't tell me it's going to be freezing like this."

"It's been actually hot, until today. This is just fog," Victoria explained.

Maid, dog, parrot, bags, they got into a large waiting car at the Embarradero, Mrs. Manners talking, as is the custom of returned travelers, of the amusing steward on the boat, the races at Havana, and of everything unimportant and inconsequential. They were driven rapidly up the steep hills to the big hotel; everything going with the smoothness of custom; Victoria's mother had been arriving and departing in just this manner ever since her second marriage five years earlier.

Soon Victoria and her mother settled at luncheon beside the fire.

"Well, this is an!" said Magda then. "And now we can talk. You look so well, Vic, and you're really handsome. Really you are! What have you been doing with yourself, tell me everything, you got my wires?"

"You're the one with the news," she said smilingly. "Nothing has happened here. Miss Butler put me on night duty last night—only the second time, and I'm dead! I had breakfast at the hospital at seven, and had to clean up three bath rooms, and stepped on my way downtown to leave my bag here."

"The hospital!" Magda echoed aghast, not hearing the rest. "You have been ill!"

Victoria's smile was reassuring. Her color was beginning to come back now, as she felt with vigor upon a three-inch steak, and there was revived light in her eyes.

"I'm in with Catherine," she explained. "Student nurses."

Mrs. Manners sat back and regarded her with puzzled eyes.

"Mummy, you're such fun—it's such fun to be talking to you such fun, and it's the best food I ever tasted! But darling," Victoria pleaded, "I had to do something. I couldn't just take a room somewhere and wait for you. You were with Ferdy way down in South America, and I was absolutely on the loose."

"But you were with Anna and Catherine?"

"Aunt Anna got a most flattering offer from a school in Cleveland. We couldn't go with her, and Kitty was going to be a nurse. So I went along to the hospital with her."

"You are handsome," Magda said, under her breath, not listening. "Don't they let you use makeup at all?"

"Not on duty, and you sort of get out of the habit. What are you looking at?" Victoria asked, with an embarrassed laugh, as her mother continued her placid scrutiny.

"Well, you're simply adorable, Vicky," she said at length, "and you get enthusiastic just the way you used to. But—although it's a little soon to talk about it, I had rather a different plan in mind for you. I was thinking of Europe, after your debut."

"Europe!" Vicky echoed, her own eyes suddenly blazing. She remembered her student year there under the gentle unremitting chaperonage of the Dominican nun. Again she heard the fountains of Rome splashing; saw the lights of the Piazza de la Concorda setting white statues and dark tree tops in bold relief against a blue night sky, caught a whiff of wet spring greenness from the grass beside the London Mall. "Oh, Mummy!" she said.

"Would you like it?"

"Oh, well, Mother—you and I?" Victoria's voice shook with excitement.

"We two?"

"Ferdy wouldn't mind?"

Instead of answering, Mrs. Manners looked away through the exquisite silky shadows of half-lowered lashes. Victoria's heart sank; she knew that gentle patience, she knew that long, resigned sigh. All was not going well between her mother and Ferdy.

The luncheon was cleared away; the two women resumed their chairs by the wood fire.

"There are a thousand persons to whom I ought to telephone," Magda said lazily. "I won't love this sitting here with you. You haven't told me anything about yourself, Vicky, have you seen or heard anything of your father?"

The question came suddenly, and with it the color rose to Magda's face.

"Yes, I saw Dad about two weeks ago," she said aloud.

Magda added no further questions, but her eyes were expectant.

"He's married again, you know, Mummy. I wrote you that. And they're going to have a baby. They were married last February, and they expect the baby at Christmas. He simply adores Olivette, and he's all excited about the baby."

"Ah!" Magda said and fell thoughtful. "Still up in Seattle?"

"He says he loves it."

Magda twisted the Herrendeen pearls in beautiful restless fingers.

But for some reason or other she felt a little chill in the air, felt that her mother wasn't wholly pleased with the news that Dad was happy and that a new baby was on the way.

"Ferdy," said Magda, out of thought—"Ferdy is a strange creature, Vicky. I may as well tell you now as at any time that everything's wrong—it's all wrong."

Victoria was silent, puzzled, and after a pause Magda went on lightly:

"And so—Mr. Fernando Ainsly Castello Manners and I have decided to separate. No, no, no, not a divorce," she interrupted herself to say quickly, as Vicky's stricken face was turned from the fire in involuntary protest. "He doesn't want a divorce. If he got a divorce Maud Campbell would have him married before he could turn around, and neither do I. If you get a divorce they can do all sorts of funny things about alimony, go to court and have it adjusted and lessened—I don't know what they can't do. But a separation means that you and I can live where we like, and do as we please. And so it's to be Europe—off we go! I'll get you some things—or we can get them there."

"The only thing," Victoria began somewhat hesitantly, "ought Ferdy pay for me, too? I mean, it's all right for a visit—it's all right for a few months. But after all—after all he doesn't love me."

"It's my money, and you're with me," Magda explained simply, with a touch of impatience.

"I was thinking of Ferdy, Vic," Magda said, out of a silence, "and thinking—" she stopped for a long sigh—"thinking of the tremendous difference there is in men," she said.

"I mean, Vic," she began again, as Victoria could find nothing to say—"I mean that—well, I suppose I was thinking of Lucius Farmer."

"Who's he?" A familiar tightening, a familiar sinking sensation was at Victoria's heart. Oh dear, Oh dear. This was commencing again was it?

"You must know his name, darling. He's about the most successful painter of murals in America. He made the trip with us from Buenos Aires, but he lives down here in Carmel with a perfectly impossible wife and daughters."

"And what did the impossible wife and daughters think of you, Mummy?"

"Oh, they weren't along—perish the thought! No, he was alone."

Magda's voice fell to a dreamy note. "One of the finest men," she said, under her breath. "I mean one of the simplest and—biggest—and gentlest—"

"This life would be heaven for women, Vic, if many men were like him!"

And again Victoria could find nothing to say.

More flowers came; the telephone rang; Magda's old friends were beginning to realize that she had arrived.

"I Love This Sitting Here With You."

Victoria was at the dock, in the fine soft November fog, to see the big ship come in; the Empress of Panama was on time; at exactly one minute before eleven o'clock she drew up alongside, and all the excitement of landing began.

Then a mother and daughter were in each other's arms, and Victoria was laughing.

"And how's Ferdy?"

"Ferdy—Mrs. Manners' glance returned from the luggage and fixed itself upon Victoria. "Ferdy is—just the same—as ever."

"And when does he get here? Or does he go to Paris? You were so vague!"

"No, here. When the Loughborough's yacht does, whenever that is," Mrs. Manners said, in the same tone of pleasant indifference.

"And now, in a car here, and did you reserve my rooms?" she demanded gayly, as the custom formalities were concluded and she could pick the Pekinese from Victoria's arms again and accompany her along the pier. "Don't tell me it's going to be freezing like this."

"It's been actually hot, until today. This is just fog," Victoria explained.

Maid, dog, parrot, bags, they got into a large waiting car at the Embarradero, Mrs. Manners talking, as is the custom of returned travelers, of the amusing steward on the boat, the races at Havana, and of everything unimportant and inconsequential. They were driven rapidly up the steep hills to the big hotel; everything going with the smoothness of custom; Victoria's mother had been arriving and departing in just this manner ever since her second marriage five years earlier.

Soon Victoria and her mother settled at luncheon beside the fire.

"Well, this is an!" said Magda then. "And now we can talk. You look so well, Vic, and you're really handsome. Really you are! What have you been doing with yourself, tell me everything, you got my wires?"

"You're the one with the news," she said smilingly. "Nothing has happened here. Miss Butler put me on night duty last night—only the second time, and I'm dead! I had breakfast at the hospital at seven, and had to clean up three bath rooms, and stepped on my way downtown to leave my bag here."

"The hospital!" Magda echoed aghast, not hearing the rest. "You have been ill!"

Victoria's smile was reassuring. Her color was beginning to come back now, as she felt with vigor upon a three-inch steak, and there was revived light in her eyes.

"I'm in with Catherine," she explained. "Student nurses."

Mrs. Manners sat back and regarded her with puzzled eyes.

"Mummy, you're such fun—it's such fun to be talking to you such fun, and it's the best food I ever tasted! But darling," Victoria pleaded, "I had to do something. I couldn't just take a room somewhere and wait for you. You were with Ferdy way down in South America, and I was absolutely on the loose."

"But you were with Anna and Catherine?"

"Aunt Anna got a most flattering offer from a school in Cleveland. We couldn't go with her, and Kitty was going to be a nurse. So I went along to the hospital with her."

"You are handsome," Magda said, under her breath, not listening. "Don't they let you use makeup at all?"

"Not on duty, and you sort of get out of the habit. What are you looking at?" Victoria asked, with an embarrassed laugh, as her mother continued her placid scrutiny.

"Well, you're simply adorable, Vicky," she said at length, "and you get enthusiastic just the way you used to. But—although it's a little soon to talk about it, I had rather a different plan in mind for you. I was thinking of Europe, after your debut."

"Europe!" Vicky echoed, her own eyes suddenly blazing. She remembered her student year there under the gentle unremitting chaperonage of the Dominican nun. Again she heard the fountains of Rome splashing; saw the lights of the Piazza de la Concorda setting white statues and dark tree tops in bold relief against a blue night sky, caught a whiff of wet spring greenness from the grass beside the London Mall. "Oh, Mummy!" she said.

"Would you like it?"

"Oh, well, Mother—you and I?" Victoria's voice shook with excitement.

"We two?"

"Ferdy wouldn't mind?"

Instead of answering, Mrs. Manners looked away through the exquisite silky shadows of half-lowered lashes. Victoria's heart sank; she knew that gentle patience, she knew that long, resigned sigh. All was not going well between her mother and Ferdy.

Victoria was at the dock, in the fine soft November fog, to see the big ship come in; the Empress of Panama was on time; at exactly one minute before eleven o'clock she drew up alongside, and all the excitement of landing began.

Then a mother and daughter were in each other's arms, and Victoria was laughing.

"And how's Ferdy?"

"Ferdy—Mrs. Manners' glance returned from the luggage and fixed itself upon Victoria. "Ferdy is—just the same—as ever."

"And when does he get here? Or does he go to Paris? You were so vague!"

"No, here. When the Loughborough's yacht does, whenever that is," Mrs. Manners said, in the same tone of pleasant indifference.

"And now, in a car here, and did you reserve my rooms?" she demanded gayly, as the custom formalities were concluded and she could pick the Pekinese from Victoria's arms again and accompany her along the pier. "Don't tell me it's going to be freezing like this."

"It's been actually hot, until today. This is just fog," Victoria explained.

Maid, dog, parrot, bags, they got into a large waiting car at the Embarradero, Mrs. Manners talking, as is the custom of returned travelers, of the amusing steward on the boat, the races at Havana, and of everything unimportant and inconsequential. They were driven rapidly up the steep hills to the big hotel; everything going with the smoothness of custom; Victoria's mother had been arriving and departing in just this manner ever since her second marriage five years earlier.

Soon Victoria and her mother settled at luncheon beside the fire.

"Well, this is an!" said Magda then. "And now we can talk. You look so well, Vic, and you're really handsome. Really you are! What have you been doing with yourself, tell me everything, you got my wires?"

"You're the one with the news," she said smilingly. "Nothing has happened here. Miss Butler put me on night duty last night—only the second time, and I'm dead! I had breakfast at the hospital at seven, and had to clean up three bath rooms, and stepped on my way downtown to leave my bag here."

"The hospital!" Magda echoed aghast, not hearing the rest. "You have been ill!"

Victoria's smile was reassuring. Her color was beginning to come back now, as she felt with vigor upon a three-inch steak, and there was revived light in her eyes.

"I'm in with Catherine," she explained. "Student nurses."

Mrs. Manners sat back and regarded her with puzzled eyes.

"Mummy, you're such fun—it's such fun to be talking to you such fun, and it's the best food I ever tasted! But darling," Victoria pleaded, "I had to do something. I couldn't just take a room somewhere and wait for you. You were with Ferdy way down in South America, and I was absolutely on the loose."

"But you were with Anna and Catherine?"

"Aunt Anna got a most flattering offer from a school in Cleveland. We couldn't go with her, and Kitty was going to be a nurse. So I went along to the hospital with her."

"You are handsome," Magda said, under her breath, not listening. "Don't they let you use makeup at all?"

"Not on duty, and you sort of get out of the habit. What are you looking at?" Victoria asked, with an embarrassed laugh, as her mother continued her placid scrutiny.

"Well, you're simply adorable, Vicky," she said at length, "and you get enthusiastic just the way you used to. But—although it's a little soon to talk about it, I had rather a different plan in mind for you. I was thinking of Europe, after your debut."

"Europe!" Vicky echoed, her own eyes suddenly blazing. She remembered her student year there under the gentle unremitting chaperonage of the Dominican nun. Again she heard the fountains of Rome splashing; saw the lights of the Piazza de la Concorda setting white statues and dark tree tops in bold relief against a blue night sky, caught a whiff of wet spring greenness from the grass beside the London Mall. "Oh, Mummy!" she said.

"Would you like it?"

"Oh, well, Mother—you and I?" Victoria's voice shook with excitement.

"We two?"

"Ferdy wouldn't mind?"

Instead of answering, Mrs. Manners looked away through the exquisite silky shadows of half-lowered lashes. Victoria's heart sank; she knew that gentle patience, she knew that long, resigned sigh. All was not going well between her mother and Ferdy.

The luncheon was cleared away; the two women resumed their chairs by the wood fire.

"There are a thousand persons to whom I ought to telephone," Magda said lazily. "I won't love this sitting here with you. You haven't told me anything about yourself, Vicky, have you seen or heard anything of your father?"

The question came suddenly, and with it the color rose to Magda's face.

"Yes, I saw Dad about two weeks ago," she said aloud.

Magda added no further questions, but her eyes were expectant.

"He's married again, you know, Mummy. I wrote you that. And they're going to have a baby. They were married last February, and they expect the baby at Christmas. He simply adores Olivette, and he's all excited about the baby."

"Ah!" Magda said and fell thoughtful. "Still up in Seattle?"

"He says he loves it."

Magda twisted the Herrendeen pearls in beautiful restless fingers.

But for some reason or other she felt a little chill in the air, felt that her mother wasn't wholly pleased with the news that Dad was happy and that a new baby was on the way.

"Ferdy," said Magda, out of thought—"Ferdy is a strange creature, Vicky. I may as well tell you now as at any time that everything's wrong—it's all wrong."

Victoria was silent, puzzled, and after a pause Magda went on lightly:

"And so—Mr. Fernando Ainsly Castello Manners and I have decided to separate. No, no, no, not a divorce," she interrupted herself to say quickly, as Vicky's stricken face was turned from the fire in involuntary protest. "He doesn't want a divorce. If he got a divorce Maud Campbell would have him married before he could turn around, and neither do I. If you get a divorce they can do all sorts of funny things about alimony, go to court and have it adjusted and lessened—I don't know what they can't do. But a separation means that you and I can live where we like, and do as we please. And so it's to be Europe—off we go! I'll get you some things—or we can get them there."

"The only thing," Victoria began somewhat hesitantly, "ought Ferdy pay for me, too? I mean, it's all right for a visit—it's all right for a few months. But after all—after all he doesn't love me."

"It's my money, and you're with me," Magda explained simply, with a touch of impatience.

"I was thinking of Ferdy, Vic," Magda said, out of a silence, "and thinking—" she stopped for a long sigh—"thinking of the tremendous difference there is in men," she said.

"I mean, Vic," she began again, as Victoria could find nothing to say—"I mean that—well, I suppose I was thinking of Lucius Farmer."

"Who's he?" A familiar tightening, a familiar sinking sensation was at Victoria's heart. Oh dear, Oh dear. This was commencing again was it?

"You must know his name, darling. He's about the most successful painter of murals in America. He made the trip with us from Buenos Aires, but he lives down here in Carmel with a perfectly impossible wife and daughters."

"And what did the impossible wife and daughters think of you, Mummy?"

"Oh, they weren't along—perish the thought! No, he was alone."

Magda's voice fell to a dreamy note. "One of the finest men," she said, under her breath. "I mean one of the simplest and—biggest—and gentlest—"

"This life would be heaven for women, Vic, if many men were like him!"

And again Victoria could find nothing to say.

More flowers came; the telephone rang; Magda's old friends were beginning to realize that she had arrived.

Victoria was at the dock, in the fine soft November fog, to see the big ship come in; the Empress of Panama was on time; at exactly one minute before eleven o'clock she drew up alongside, and all the excitement of landing began.

Then a mother and daughter were in each other's arms, and Victoria was laughing.

"And how's Ferdy?"

"Ferdy—Mrs. Manners' glance returned from the luggage and fixed itself upon Victoria. "Ferdy is—just the same—as ever."

"And when does he get here? Or does he go to Paris? You were so vague!"

"No, here. When the Loughborough's yacht does, whenever that is," Mrs. Manners said, in the same tone of pleasant indifference.

"And now, in a car here, and did you reserve my rooms?" she demanded gayly, as the custom formalities were concluded and she could pick the Pekinese from Victoria's arms again and accompany her along the pier. "Don't tell me it's going to be freezing like this."

"It's been actually hot, until today. This is just fog," Victoria explained.

Maid, dog, parrot, bags, they got into a large waiting car at the Embarradero, Mrs. Manners talking, as is the custom of returned travelers, of the amusing steward on the boat, the races at Havana, and of everything unimportant and inconsequential. They were driven rapidly up the steep hills to the big hotel; everything going with the smoothness of custom; Victoria's mother had been arriving and departing in just this manner ever since her second marriage five years earlier.

Soon Victoria and her mother settled at luncheon beside the fire.

"Well, this is an!" said Magda then. "And now we can talk. You look so well, Vic, and you're really handsome. Really you are! What have you been doing with yourself, tell me everything, you got my wires?"

"You're the one with the news," she said smilingly. "Nothing has happened here. Miss Butler put me on night duty last night—only the second time, and I'm dead! I had breakfast at the hospital at seven, and had to clean up three bath rooms, and stepped on my way downtown to leave my bag here."

"The hospital!" Magda echoed aghast, not hearing the rest. "You have been ill!"

Victoria's smile was reassuring. Her color was beginning to come back now, as she felt with vigor upon a three-inch steak, and there was revived light in her eyes.

"I'm in with Catherine," she explained. "Student nurses."

Mrs. Manners sat back and regarded her with puzzled eyes.

"Mummy, you're such fun—it's such fun to be talking to you such fun, and it's the best food I ever tasted! But darling," Victoria pleaded, "I had to do something. I couldn't just take a room somewhere and wait for you. You were with Ferdy way down in South America, and I was absolutely on the loose."

"But you were with Anna and Catherine?"

"Aunt Anna got a most flattering offer from a school in Cleveland. We couldn't go with her, and Kitty was going to be a nurse. So I went along to the hospital with her."

"You are handsome," Magda said, under her breath, not listening. "Don't they let you use makeup at all?"

"Not on duty, and you sort of get out of the habit. What are you looking at?" Victoria asked, with an embarrassed laugh, as her mother continued her placid scrutiny.

"Well, you're simply adorable, Vicky," she said at length, "and you get enthusiastic just the way you used to. But—although it's a little soon to talk about it, I had rather a different plan in mind for you. I was thinking of Europe, after your debut."

"Europe!" Vicky echoed, her own eyes suddenly blazing. She remembered her student year there under the gentle unremitting chaperonage of the Dominican nun. Again she heard the fountains of Rome splashing; saw the lights of the Piazza de la Concorda setting white statues and dark tree tops in bold relief against a blue night sky, caught a whiff of wet spring greenness from the grass beside the London Mall. "Oh, Mummy!" she said.

"Would you like it?"

"Oh, well, Mother—you and I?" Victoria's voice shook with excitement.

"We two?"

"Ferdy wouldn't mind?"

Instead of answering, Mrs. Manners looked away through the exquisite silky shadows of half-lowered lashes. Victoria's heart sank; she knew that gentle patience, she knew that long, resigned sigh. All was not going well between her mother and Ferdy.

The luncheon was cleared away; the two women resumed their chairs by the wood fire.

"There are a thousand persons to whom I ought to telephone," Magda said lazily. "I won't love this sitting here with you. You haven't told me anything about yourself, Vicky, have you seen or heard anything of your father?"

The question came suddenly, and with it the color rose to Magda's face.

"Yes, I saw Dad about two weeks ago," she said aloud.

Magda added no further questions, but her eyes were expectant.

"He's married again, you know, Mummy. I wrote you that. And they're going to have a baby. They were married last February, and they expect the baby at Christmas. He simply adores Olivette, and he's all excited about the baby."

"Ah!" Magda said and fell thoughtful. "Still up in Seattle?"

"He says he loves it."

Magda twisted the Herrendeen pearls in beautiful restless fingers.

But for some reason or other she felt a little chill in the air, felt that her mother wasn't wholly pleased with the news that Dad was happy and that a new baby was on the way.

"Ferdy," said Magda, out of thought—"Ferdy is a strange creature, Vicky. I may as well tell you now as at any time that everything's wrong—it's all wrong."

Victoria was silent, puzzled, and after a pause Magda went on lightly:

"And so—Mr. Fernando Ainsly Castello Manners and I have decided to separate. No, no, no, not a divorce," she interrupted herself to say quickly, as Vicky's stricken face was turned from the fire in involuntary protest. "He doesn't want a divorce. If he got a divorce Maud Campbell would have him married before he could turn around, and neither do I. If you get a divorce they can do all sorts of funny things about alimony, go to court and have it adjusted and lessened—I don't know what they can't do. But a separation means that you and I can live where we like, and do as we please. And so it's to be Europe—off we go! I'll get you some things—or we can get them there."

"The only thing," Victoria began somewhat hesitantly, "ought Ferdy pay for me, too? I mean, it's all right for a visit—it's all right for a few months. But after all—after all he doesn't love me."

"It's my money, and you're with me," Magda explained simply, with a touch of impatience.

"I was thinking of Ferdy, Vic," Magda said, out of a silence, "and thinking—" she stopped for a long sigh—"thinking of the tremendous difference there is in men," she said.

"I mean, Vic," she began again, as Victoria could find nothing to say—"I mean that—well, I suppose I was thinking of Lucius Farmer."

"Who's he?" A familiar tightening, a familiar sinking sensation was at Victoria's heart. Oh dear, Oh dear. This was commencing again was it?

"You must know his name, darling. He's about the most successful painter of murals in America. He made the trip with us from Buenos Aires, but he lives down here in Carmel with a perfectly impossible wife and daughters."

"And what did the impossible wife and daughters think of you, Mummy?"

"Oh, they weren't along—perish the thought! No, he was alone."

Magda's voice fell to a dreamy note. "One of the finest men," she said, under her breath. "I mean one of the simplest and—biggest—and gentlest—"

"This life would be heaven for women, Vic, if many men were like him!"

And again Victoria could find nothing to say.

More flowers came; the telephone rang; Magda's old friends were beginning to realize that she had arrived.

Victoria was at the dock, in the fine soft November fog, to see the big ship come in; the Empress of Panama was on time; at exactly one minute before eleven o'clock she drew up alongside, and all the excitement of landing began.

Then a mother and daughter were in each other's arms, and Victoria was laughing.

"And how's Ferdy?"

"Ferdy—Mrs. Manners' glance returned from the luggage and fixed itself upon Victoria. "Ferdy is—just the same—as ever."

"And when does he get here? Or does he go to Paris? You were so vague!"

"No, here. When the Loughborough's yacht does, whenever that is," Mrs. Manners said, in the same tone of pleasant indifference.

"And now, in a car here, and did you reserve my rooms?" she demanded gayly, as the custom formalities were concluded and she could pick the Pekinese from Victoria's arms again and accompany her along the pier. "Don't tell me it's going to be freezing like this."

"It's been actually hot, until today. This is just fog," Victoria explained.

Maid, dog, parrot, bags, they got into a large waiting car at the Embarradero, Mrs. Manners talking, as is the custom of returned travelers, of the amusing steward on the boat, the races at Havana, and of everything unimportant and inconsequential. They were driven rapidly up the steep hills to the big hotel; everything going with the smoothness of custom; Victoria's mother had been arriving and departing in just this manner ever since her second marriage five years earlier.

Soon Victoria and her mother settled at luncheon beside the fire.

"Well, this is an!" said Magda then. "And now we can talk. You look so well, Vic, and you're really handsome. Really you are! What have you been doing with yourself, tell me everything, you got my wires?"

"You're the one with the news," she said smilingly. "Nothing has happened here. Miss Butler put me on night duty last night—only the second time, and I'm dead! I had breakfast at the hospital at seven, and had to clean up three bath rooms, and stepped on my way downtown to leave my bag here."

"The hospital!" Magda echoed aghast, not hearing the rest. "You have been ill!"

Victoria's smile was reassuring. Her color was beginning to come back now, as she felt with vigor upon a three-inch steak, and there was revived light in her eyes.

"I'm in with Catherine," she explained. "Student nurses."

Mrs. Manners sat back and regarded her with puzzled eyes.

"Mummy, you're such fun—it's such fun to be talking to you such fun, and it's the best food I ever tasted! But darling," Victoria pleaded, "I had to do something. I couldn't just take a room somewhere and wait for you. You were with Ferdy way down in South America, and I was absolutely on the loose."

"But you were with Anna and Catherine?"

"Aunt Anna got a most flattering offer from a school in Cleveland. We couldn't go with her, and Kitty was going to be a nurse. So I went along to the hospital with her."

"You are handsome," Magda said, under her breath, not listening. "Don't they let you use makeup at all?"

"Not on duty, and you sort of get out of the habit. What are you looking at?" Victoria asked, with an embarrassed laugh, as her mother continued her placid scrutiny.

"Well, you're simply adorable, Vicky," she said at length, "and you get enthusiastic just the way you used to. But—although it's a little soon to talk about it, I had rather a different plan in mind for you. I was thinking of Europe, after your debut."

"Europe!" Vicky echoed, her own eyes suddenly blazing. She remembered her student year there under the gentle unremitting chaperonage of the Dominican nun. Again she heard the fountains of Rome splashing; saw the lights of the Piazza de la Concorda setting white statues and dark tree tops in bold relief against a blue night sky, caught a whiff of wet spring greenness from the grass beside the London Mall. "Oh, Mummy!" she said.

"Would you like it?"

"Oh, well, Mother—you and I?" Victoria's voice shook with excitement.

"We two?"

"Ferdy wouldn't mind?"

Instead of answering, Mrs. Manners looked away through the exquisite silky shadows of half-lowered lashes. Victoria's heart sank; she knew that gentle patience, she knew that long, resigned sigh. All was not going well between her mother and Ferdy.

The luncheon was cleared away; the two women resumed their chairs by the wood fire.

"There are a thousand persons to whom I ought to telephone," Magda said lazily. "I won't love this sitting here with you. You haven't told me anything about yourself, Vicky, have you seen or heard anything of your father?"

The question came suddenly, and with it the color rose to Magda's face.

"Yes, I saw Dad about two weeks ago," she said aloud.

Magda added no further questions, but her eyes were expectant.

"He's married again, you know, Mummy. I wrote you that. And they're going to have a baby. They were married last February, and they expect the baby at Christmas. He simply adores Olivette, and he's all excited about the baby."

"Ah!" Magda said and fell thoughtful. "Still up in Seattle?"

"He says he loves it."

Magda twisted the Herrendeen pearls in beautiful restless fingers.

But for some reason or other she felt a little chill in the air, felt that her mother wasn't wholly pleased with the news that Dad was happy and that a new baby was on the way.

"Ferdy," said Magda, out of thought—"Ferdy is a strange creature, Vicky. I may as well tell you now as at any time that everything's wrong—it's all wrong."

Victoria was silent, puzzled, and after a pause Magda went on lightly:

"And so—Mr. Fernando Ainsly Castello Manners and I have decided to separate. No, no, no, not a divorce," she interrupted herself to say quickly, as Vicky's stricken face was turned from the fire in involuntary protest. "He doesn't want a divorce. If he got a divorce Maud Campbell would have him married before he could turn around, and neither do I. If you get a divorce they can do all sorts of funny things about alimony, go to court and have it adjusted and lessened—I don't know what they can't do. But a separation means that you and I can live where we like, and do as we please. And so it's to be Europe—off we go! I'll get you some things—or we can get them there."

"The only thing," Victoria began somewhat hesitantly, "ought Ferdy pay for me, too? I mean, it's all right for a visit—it's all right for a few months. But after all—after all he doesn't love me."

"It's my money, and you're with me," Magda explained simply, with a touch of impatience.

"I was thinking of Ferdy, Vic," Magda said, out of a silence, "and thinking—" she stopped for a long sigh—"thinking of the tremendous difference there is in men," she said.

"I mean, Vic," she began again, as Victoria could find nothing to say—"I mean that—well, I suppose I was thinking of Lucius Farmer."

"Who's he?" A familiar tightening, a familiar sinking sensation was at Victoria's heart. Oh dear, Oh dear. This was commencing again was it?

"You must know his name, darling. He's about the most successful painter of murals in America. He made the trip with us from Buenos Aires, but he lives down here in Carmel with a perfectly impossible wife and daughters."

"And what did the impossible wife and daughters think of you, Mummy?"

"Oh, they weren't along—perish the thought! No, he was alone."

Magda's voice fell to a dreamy note. "One of the finest men," she said, under her breath. "I mean one of the simplest and—biggest—and gentlest—"

"This life would be heaven for women, Vic, if many men were like him!"

And again Victoria could find nothing to say.

More flowers came; the telephone rang; Magda's old friends were beginning to realize that she had arrived.

