OVER MILLION BUSHEL WHEAT HARVESTED

Greatest Yield Since 1924; Eighty-Five Per Cent Crop Harvested

The wheat crop in Foard County passed the million-bushel mark Tuesday for the first time since 1924, when about 1,100,000 bushels were harvested in this county. According to figures obtained from the various elevator men, over 983,000 bushels had been delivered to the elevators Tuesday evening, and without doubt, enough wheat was brought in Wednesday to put the total well over one million bushels, although the exact figures could not be obtained at that time. It is thought at the present time that the crop this year will exceed the high yield of 1924. Elevator men estimate that about eighty-five per cent of the wheat has been harvested.

Although harvest did not get fully underway until the first of the week because of heavy rains last week, nearly one-half million bushels were delivered to the six elevators in the county. It is reported that many farmers are storing wheat in their granaries. This will add to the total yield of the county but it is impossible to get an accurate estimate on the amount stored.

Hot Weather Damages Yield

Due to the fact that the rains that fell last week were followed by hot winds, the yield will be lessened to a certain extent. Fields became so soft from the rains that it was impossible to run combines in time to gather the wheat before some damage was done. Some of the wheat has been bleached by the sun and tests have been running a little lower than in the past. The loss, according to reports, ranges from three to five bushels per acre, because the heavy heads pulled the stalks over far enough for the combines to miss a lot of the wheat, but the greatest loss is caused by the grain shattering and falling to the ground. In many instances, about one bushel out of every sixty is lost in the test.

Wheat Prices Good

Wheat sold at 95c per bushel Wednesday, the highest the price has been this week and 3c higher than Tuesday. The lowest price (Continued from Page Four)

Sand Encountered in Ward Oil Test

Interest was attracted to the wildcat oil test on the T. L. Ward land in the Thalia community this week when the bit reached a sand at 1,530 feet. At that depth the crew was drilling with about 600 feet of open hole and it was decided to underream and set casing before drilling into the sand and that work has probably been completed as we go to press. Two gas sands have already been encountered in this hole.

A. team and a business men's team, Gordon Bell and Pat McDaniel will be in charge of the town team. There will be a small admission and the proceeds will be applied on the stadium fund.

Trained donkeys will be furnished for the event by the Ranger Donkey Company. Mr. Mangrum, booking agent for the company, stated that all but three of the donkeys have been in over three hundred games and know how to follow the ball, which will make the game all the more interesting for the spectators.

Some of the cities in which his donkeys have been exhibited are Sherman, McKinney, Denison, Electra, Seymour, Vernon, Quanah and Childress. Wheat Truckers Strike in Crowell for Higher Hauling Prices Last Week But Quickly Dissolved by Local Officials

Crowell had its first "sit-down" strike Thursday when thirty-five out-of-the-county wheat truckers agreed not to haul wheat unless they were paid three cents a bushel up to five miles and more per mile over that distance. There was not a local driver's name on the list and many transient truck drivers did not sign the agreement.

The strike was quickly dissolved by Sheriff A. W. Lilly and Foster Davis, county attorney, who warned the truckers through their spokesman, W. F. Davis, of Littlefield, that agitation of a strike would not be tolerated in Crowell.

The spokesman said that the truckers had come to this county to help the farmers get their wheat out of the fields but they wanted "living wages" for their work. Sheriff Lilly told the truckers that they had not been asked to come here and if they did not want to work for the prices the farmers paid they did not have to haul the wheat but the strike agitation had to be stopped or more drastic steps would be taken. Several of the truckers returned to their homes and others have accepted the jobs offered by the farmers.

BOY SANDERS DIES INSTANTLY UNDER LOADED WHEAT TRUCK; RITES HELD LAST SUNDAY

Boy Sanders, 15-year-old son of Mrs. B. F. Sanders, was instantly run over by a loaded wheat truck. He had been working around the combine that was being driven by his brother-in-law, George Fox, about four miles northeast of Crowell. It is reported that the boy had sought a soft place near the car and fell in the field to rest and fell. By a twist of fate, the boy was in the path of the heavily loaded truck, which was making its way from the combine to the road. The wheels of the truck rolled over the back of the neck of the child.

A slight impact was felt by those occupants of the vehicle and it was thought that a wheat wheel had fallen under the wheels when they stopped to investigate the body of the boy was found. He was rushed to Crowell and Fox but shortly after reaching there the body was taken to Womack Funeral Home.

Fox stated that the last time he was seen he was sitting on a barrel on the trailer about five minutes before the accident and it was thought that he returned to the Fox home for a moment. The tragedy was unfortunate because the wheat stubble completely concealed the youth in those hours in the truck.

COMPLETION OF WARD BUILDING IS DELAYED

Bad Weather and Lack Of Material Delays Progress

Because of delays caused by lack of material and bad weather conditions, the approximate date of the completion of the new ward school building has been set at some time in October. It was first thought that the building would be completed by the time school opened next fall but the unavoidable delays are responsible for the postponement of the completion date.

Work is being rushed as fast as possible and just as soon as the brick work is completed, the latter part of this week, greater progress can be made on the partitions and roof. The hallway double partitions have been completed but a few of the room single partitions are not in place. Practically all of the ceiling joists are in place and just as soon as all of it is up, work will start on the roof.

Prospects were brightened greatly when $3,040 were appropriated by the WPA for the school building project.

Successful Wheat Farmer at 96

John W. Wesley of Margaret, oldest Foard County resident and one of the very first settlers in this section, was in town Monday looking after business. Mr. Wesley has finished harvesting a good wheat crop and when seen on the street was looking for a wheat buyer. Although Mr. Wesley had not farmed in many years, four years ago he bought a tractor and assumed the duties of helping to manage his farm in the Margaret community, and since that time has harvested four fairly good wheat crops.

Mr. Wesley was 96 years of age May 18, 1937, having been born in Sullivan County, New York. He was a Union soldier in the Civil War and a former New York policeman.

Two Check Forgers Arrested in Crowell By Local Officer

Two men, Jack Bailey and L. E. Autrey, wanted in Quanah on forged checks were arrested here early Sunday morning by A. T. Schooley, city marshal. They were held in the Crowell jail until they were taken charge of by Sheriff N. C. Owens of Quanah.

The arrest came as the result of the thoughtfulness of a Chillicothe merchant who cashed one of the forged checks. He wrote down the license number of the truck the men were driving and when it was found that the check was forged, he notified officers in neighboring towns. Mr. Schooley noticed the truck passing through Crowell Sunday morning about 6:30 o'clock. A quick check-up revealed that the license number was the same as had been broadcast.

Through questioning by Sheriff Lilly, it was found that the two men had forged checks in many different points between Houston and Quanah and it is estimated that approximately twenty of the worthless checks had been given by them.

Autrey is being held in the Crowell jail and Bailey has been removed to Quanah.

The Farm Tenancy Bill

Last week the House Agriculture Committee reported favorably a modified farm tenancy bill which authorizes a $10,000,000 appropriation for this year, $25,000,000 for the second and a $50,000,000 for the third year, for the purpose of assisting worthy farm tenants to purchase farms on 50-year terms at 3 per cent interest.

The administration raised these questions as to the basis for such a program:

1. Should the program be so planned as to give aid only to the farmers who have been exploiting their soil, or should it recognize the farmers who have been treating their soil right, and encourage them to go on doing so?
2. Should the program as a whole, either in its planning or its operation be judged on the basis of the attitude toward it of a few gentlemen farmers, whose principal occupation is not farming?
3. Should the Democratic System of local control and administration of the program by the farmers be continued, or should it be handled from Washington on a completely centralized and regimented basis?

Old Age Security

According to recent information from the Social Security Board, 27,704,396 Social Security Act members have been signed under the Old Age benefit program; 45 states have enacted unemployment compensation laws; 1,747,500 needy persons in 43 states will receive national, state and local aid under the public assistance plan during June. Of this number 1,347,000 are needy aged; 34,800 needy blind; 365,000 dependent children. Texas is one of the few states that has as yet failed to provide necessary legislation or funds to receive Federal Assistance to aid the needy blind, and dependent children.

The Townsend Plan

Representative McGroarty, the author of the Townsend legislation of the last Congress, spoke June 14 and appraised the Congress of the present status of the Townsend plan. He said:

"Mr. Speaker, my purpose in addressing the House this afternoon is to endeavor to clear up some confusion and misunderstanding which I am aware exists in the minds of members of Congress regarding the so-called and once popularly styled old-age pension movement known as the 'Townsend plan.'"

"It is well known in Congress and throughout the country that I was the first sponsor in Congress of this Townsend plan which, for a time, justly boasted of a vast following among the people, but which is now a complete and total wreck due, I believe wholly to the erratic and dubious methods employed by the man whose name the movement bore. . . . The thing that happened was the sudden decision of Dr. Townsend himself to throw a monkey wrench into the Clements machinery. Able and efficient as Clements was, he made one fatal mistake—he overplayed Dr. Townsend. . . ."

"The news writers sensed that the fine Italian hand of Clements was back of it all. So, the news began to appear in the newspapers and magazines. He also was regarded as news. The good doctor could not stand for a rival. He had come to believe he really was what Clements had built him up to be in the minds of the crusaders. And when this state of affairs had come to pass, Clements had to go. There was no room for two idols. . . ."

"There is now on the Clerk's desk of the House a petition to discharge the Ways and Means Committee from a House resolution which represents this wreck. It is called the 'general welfare act' by its author, the latest of the adventures to enter the once lush green Townsend pastures which are now a waste of withered grass. It is a strange document. I am embarrassed beyond words to learn that members of the House think it is my bill and have signed the discharge petition in that understanding. It is not my bill. I have nothing to do with it. I trust that members of the House who have signed the petition will remove their names from it. If they do not do so I fear they will live to regret it. They are in danger of losing the respect and confidence of the people. . . ."

"Their names on the petition places them in the unenviable position of aiding and abetting an effort to raise $5,000,000 in nickels and dimes from the old folks on the promise of Dr. Townsend that he be given that huge sum to enable him to pass his $200 a month 'general welfare' bill in the present Congress. That is what your name means on the petition. Your names have appeared in the Townsend Weekly 6 consecutive weeks as backers of the campaign to get the old folks to raise $5,000,000, hand it over to Dr. Townsend without any strings on it, and on the understanding that they will get $200-a-month pensions at this session of Congress—not away off in the future, but 'now.' That is the word, the word 'now,' published in the Townsend Weekly. My dear colleagues, can you afford to lend your names to this palpable fraud? You cannot. You must take your names off the petition."

SAFETY SLOGANS

The National Safety Council reports that traffic deaths for the first quarter of this year were 26 per cent higher than the corresponding period in 1936. Drive carefully.

It may seem heartless to pass up a hitchhiker but the lone car driver who does not takes a long chance.

The story is told of the traffic officer who stopped a young woman driver with the remark: "You were driving 65 miles an hour." "Well," she replied, "and I only learned to drive this morning." Sounds ridiculous but it is no more ridiculous than the man who has a couple of drinks of liquor and still thinks he can drive.

There are other bills pending before Congress that will more adequately provide for the aged and those needing Social relief than existing laws, and it is to be hoped that this legislation will be enacted at this session.

O Lord our Lord, how excellent is thy name in all the earth.—Psalm 8:9.

It is estimated that there are more than 1,500,000 federal employees who are exempt from state income taxes and nearly 5,000,000 employees of states, counties, and municipalities who are not required to pay federal income taxes. No reason has ever been given that justifies the practice. If one wage earner is entitled to pay a tax, all who come within the classification are entitled to pay the same tax. The salaries of both of these classes, as a rule, are in line with the compensation being received by others in other lines of business for the same service.

The dreamer who takes chances experiences a measure of life's fullness that the plodding conservativist never knows. There is a monotony about habitual conservatism that smother's a man's initiative and forces him to live always in the realm of reality. It is good never to lose one's ability to dream and build air castles for it is out of such dreams that the brilliant things in the world of reality are born.

"The men whom I have seen succeed best in life," said Charles Kingsley, "have always been cheerful and hopeful men, who went about their business with a smile on their faces and took chances and changes of their mortal life like men, facing rough and smooth alike as it came; and so found the truth of the old proverb, that good times and bad times and all times pass over."

We are told that a man, though defeated, should never regret if he has done his best. The individual may be able to console himself with this doctrine but it will be a long time before the world gives the vanquished man much credit for the struggle he put up no matter how cleanly or how vigorously the fight was waged.

Nebraska, which tried a one-house legislature this year, reports that it gave about the same satisfaction that the usual two-house legislature at $150,000 less cost.

WHAT WE THINK

(By Frank Dixon)

I think one of the strongest arguments in favor of a hereafter in which everything will be perfect and right and just, is the existence of so much wrong and injustice and inequality and unfairness in this world.

I think the world is easily led astray and is prone to follow the fellow with the most conceit and the best ballyhoo even though he is insincere, dishonest and superficial.

I believe that the man who is sincere and honest and just and fair often lacks the insides to ballyhoo himself and because of this lack the mass of people never recognize his virtues.

I believe the public, as a whole, is incapable of judging true worth in an individual and in a contest.

NOBODY'S BUSINESS

BY JULIAN CAIERS JR.

Austin.—When James V. Allred, then newly elected attorney general of Texas, filed penalty and ouster suits against 15 major oil companies and two associations, in 1932, charging they had violated the Texas anti-trust laws, he launched litigation that has become one of the most famous cases in Texas jurisprudence, and, incidentally, attracted attention to himself which eventually made him governor of the state.

Allred tried the case in district court in Travis County, and lost it, the court holding the NRA had voided Texas anti-trust laws. The case was appealed by the state, and the court of civil appeals again decided in favor of the oil companies, but on different grounds, maintaining the state anti-trust laws were void because they excluded certain agricultural groups from the laws' operation. The state took an appeal to the supreme court of Texas.

A sweeping victory for the state came last week, when the highest court reversed the court of civil appeals, held the anti-trust laws valid, and sent the case back to district court for trial on its merits. The decision surprised oil company lawyers, including Dan Moody, ex-governor, and John Black of Austin, rated as two of the state's ablest attorneys, as well as the attorney general, Bill McCraw, who prosecuted the appeal after he succeeded Allred. McCraw had so little confidence in winning that he had privately consulted legislators about enacting new anti-trust statutes, anticipating the existing laws would be held void by the supreme court.

The case now goes back to the lower court for trial, and will have to drag its weary way through the appeals courts, probably to the U. S. supreme court, for final decision, taking from three to five years additional time. Allred originally asked for imposition of $17,850,000 penalties, ouster from the state, and cancellation of the charters of the defendant companies and associations.

Tax Session in September

September is the month set by the governor for resumption of work by the legislature this week, as the anti-gambling session drew to a close with final passage of anti-log racing and general anti-gambling laws. Another flare-up occurred in House and Senate as criticism was voiced toward Allred for a message he sent up, urging the solons to legislate against organized, commercialized gambling, instead of petty personal vice. The September date will enable the governor to complete a survey of the state's tax needs, including those necessitated by the anticipated adoption of constitutional amendments in the August special election. There is a strong probability there will be two or more additional 30-day sessions, as many major legislative problems other than taxes, hang over from the regular session as a result of failure to pass bills, or of the vetoing of bills by Allred. These included among others pardon and parole legislation, soil conservation, the Big Bend park, oil leasing of school lands and many others.

Pension Funds Short

Quiet trimming of the old age pension rolls throughout the state is under way despite public announcements by pension officials that the pension fund is in good condition. There were approximately 130,000 pensioners on checks last month; this figure was trimmed about 3,000 to 127,000 for the current month. On the basis of funds to be available, the remainder of the year shown by the state treasurer, further substantial reductions will have to be made to meet the payments. The pension administration is authorized to order the delimitation of act, purge the rolls of all who have no possibility of support from children, relatives or other sources necessary to meet payments. A pension question is going to be a live political issue in Texas many years to come, according to every indication here. In past years the rolls will expand; in years they will be trimmed, matter how many official decisions may be issued.

Clarence E. Farmer, radical Fort Worth legislator, who favors pensions for all over 65, has told friends he expects to run for governor on a liberalized pension platform. The lieutenant governor's race is beginning to shape up with Senators John Reddick of Lufkin and Will Pace of Tyler, and former Speaker Coke Stevenson of Junction regarded as certain candidates. No announcement has come from any of the rumored candidates for attorney general, although Lieut. Gov. Walter Woodul continues busily indirectly campaigning with numerous speeches and other public appearances.

Extensive development of a neglected Texas industry was forecast here this week by W. W. Halcom, ex-Texas editor, and more recently attached to the secretary of state's office. Halcom has joined forces with Jack Hale, Houston industrialist, who has chartered a company to "quick freeze" Texas fish, oysters and shrimp, which preserves their fresh flavor indefinitely, and permits shipment long distances in fresh condition. The plan is to stabilize the Texas coast's fishing industry by maintaining a constant market, absorbing surplus through the preserving process in flush seasons, which would make fresh seafood available throughout the state all year. The process has been extensively used on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts to preserve seafood, fruits and vegetables indefinitely.

Late Jean Harlow is Starred in Picture At Rialto Tonight

Local fans have a chance to see Jean Harlow in the last picture she completed before her death when "Personal Property" shows for the last time Thursday night (tonight) at the Rialto Theatre.

In this picture Miss Harlow plays the part of a young widow who is about to marry an underwear manufacturer, played by Reginald Owen, in order to have a secure future. Robert Taylor meets her and forces his attention on her by having himself appointed a sheriff's officer to keep tabs on her (she is trying to evade her debts). In the course of events Taylor serves as butler at a party where the fiancee is present and a number of delicate situations develop which kept the Wednesday night audience at the Rialto in a continuous uproar of laughter.

The film reveals at the start that Taylor is an ex-convict much to the embarrassment of his brother, Reginald Owen, and his father, E. E. Clive, so his identity is kept secret from Miss Harlow and it is plainly shown that Reginald Owen thinks Miss Harlow has plenty of money, badly needed in his waning underwear business.

"Personal Property" has all of the elements necessary for good film entertainment. A decided comedy from the start, romance between Miss Harlow and Taylor develops, intrigue is introduced when Taylor accepts the job as sheriff's officer and in turn as Miss Harlow's butler and hostility is apparent from the time Owens finds Taylor in his fiancee's apartment until the climax is reached.

Wednesday evening services at 8 o'clock.
Sunday, June 27, 1937. Subject: "Christian Science."
The public is cordially invited.

Christian Science Services
"Christian Science" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist on Sunday, June 27.
The Golden Text is: "The earth shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord, as the waters cover the sea" (Isaiah 11:9).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Add to your faith virtue; and to virtue knowledge; and to knowledge temperance; and to temperance patience; and to patience godliness; and to godliness brotherly kindness; and to brotherly kindness charity. For if these things be in you, and abound, they make you that ye shall neither be barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ" (II Peter 1:5-8).

The Lesson-Sermon includes also the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Beholding the infinite tasks of truth, we pause—wait on God. Then we push onward, until boundless thought walks enraptured, and conception unconfined is winged to reach the divine glory" (page 323).

Methodist News Notes

Next Wednesday, June 30, at 7:30 p. m., will be the occasion of our third quarterly conference. This is to be one of the big days of our church year.

Each family of the church is requested to bring a well-filled basket lunch and we will have a picnic-conference combination. Tables will be provided on the lawn at the east of the church building. Ice water for a well-earned refreshment. Make your plans to serve your family evening meal in the congenial atmosphere of this occasion.

Our presiding elder will be present and some of the most important business of the year will be transacted after the eats are over. Let every family come.

Don't stay at home, because the Church is not perfect. How lonesome you would feel in a perfect church.

Come to church, and in its atmosphere you will become less critical, less pessimistic, and certainly more useful, and happier.

Money, Latin; Cash, French

The word money comes from the Latin, moneta, which originally meant "a mint," because the temple of Juno Moneta, in Rome, was the place where money was coined. Cash, on the other hand, is of French origin, derived from the word casso—a box.—Pearson's London Weekly.

Two Minute Sermon

(By Thomas Hastwell)

The Eternal Quest: The story of a human life is always interesting. Such a story is especially interesting when the life concerning which it is told is filled with adventure. There is the adventure of travel in new and strange lands, the dangers of the frontier, the jungle and the sea. All of these thrill with romance that catches and holds the human interest. To me these are always interesting. But to me there are two adventures which come to every young man and every young woman that rise above all of these others in importance and interest. One of these comes when the young man finds himself. When he discovers his place, his niche in the world—the thing for which God made and intended him. This is indeed the answer to the desire of every human heart. In this discovery lays the secret that opens the door to a contented and a happy and a useful life—when a man finds himself. The second great discovery, I think, comes when a man discovers God. Not in a superficial, a vague or uncertain way but when the fact of God in his life becomes a living reality, a conscious presence, a deep conviction. Such a discovery

Brief Bits of News From Here and There

Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer will spend $10,000,000 this year in the production of pictures.

From 1929 to 1936, 9,000 of America's banks closed through failures or voluntary liquidation. The Bank of America National Trust and Savings Association of California has 400 branch banks in 294 California communities. It has a record of not having had a bank closed during the depression. The bank is controlled by Amadeo Peter Giannini and his son, Lawrence Mario. An effort is being made to have a bill passed to permit the bank to operate in other states. There is much opposition to chain banking for fear it will give a monopolistic control of money. Brazil attempts to control the price of coffee by controlling the surplus. It controls the surplus by burning or dumping into the ocean all the crop harvested above the world's requirements. This year seven out of every ten bags of coffee produced will be destroyed. Last year 11,000,000 bags were carried over. The yield this year promises to be 26,000,000 bags. This will make a total supply of 37,000,000 bags. Brazil will export only 15,000,000 bags. This leaves a surplus of 22,000,000 bags. Brazil produces two-thirds of the world's coffee and destroys as much as it exports. The coffee grower receives 6 cents a pound at the Brazilian port. The government this year will pay one-fourth of a cent for every pound up to 30 per cent of the crop withheld and 3 1/2 per cent for withholding another 40 per cent or 70 per cent in all withheld. The government voted $36,000,000 for the purpose this year. Brazil is considering plans to extend the practice of drinking coffee to other countries and to substitute the growing of other crops for coffee.

that Ferd's coming up today. He has tickets and things, he said.

"Can you talk to him, Vicky darling? Do, that's a lamb," Magda said gaily.

Perhaps Mother was going to have one last dinner with her Lucius. Perhaps she had left a note somewhere; it might be in her rooms.

Victoria went in there, lighted the dressing table, a large square note addressed to "Vic." And even before her eyes reached its first words "My darling darling, you must forgive me..." somehow she knew.

"I never thought of this!" she whispered aloud, in the tumbled bed.

"Vic, we had a very serious talk this morning, you poor chicken, and I've been thinking about you all day," Magda said, her eyes rounded over her teacup.

Magda was a little subdued and pale in the morning, but showed no other signs of her recent emotion; the day was exciting with final purchases, much talk of wardrobes and plans.

Victoria looked down at the water-front over which the mist was softly closing. Through the cold dusk the fog horns were steadily sounding.

"Horrible weather to go through the Gate." "What makes you say that?" Magda asked, looking up from her letter.

"Heavy fog. You can't see the Konaie. Maybe that's she, going along now. I hope Ferd made her!"

"They'd wait for Ferd. They may not even sail. What is this, darling—the eighteenth?"

"Tomorrow—the twentieth." "Of course!" Magda reached for the trilling telephone.

"Call me if I'm asleep when you get back!" Vic answered, going toward her room. She heard Lucius' voice a few moments later; her mother's voice. "One more day of this," she said to herself.

Vic awakened with a start, with a sense of something wrong. The telephone was ringing, and someone was knocking at the door. The room was filled with dusk and fear and confusion.

At the door it was Otto, with the dinner card. On the telephone was Mollie Jarvis, saying good-by.

At the day moved on...

Miss Dickenson asked. "Have a nice vacation?"

"Marvelous. How's everything gone?" "Oh, beautifully. We missed you, of course, but everything's gone marvelously."

Two probationers came in with trays. A boy put his head in the door, said, "Miss Rockwood" and vanished. The hospital day had begun.

"Vicky, tell me, do you like Dr. Hardisty?" Louise Mary Keating asked interestedly, a few days later.

"Very much," Vicky said abstractedly. "Vicky, I'll bet you're in love with him! They say every woman he meets is in love with him."

Keating bit into a chocolate; looked at it with thoughtfulness. "I'll bet you're in love with him," she said.

"I'll bet you're in love with him," she said. "I'll bet you're in love with him," she said.

"Well, as a matter of fact, I will," Vicky said, beginning to smear her face with cold cream, after trying a towel over her tawny hair.

"And then you will see Dr. Hardisty every day, Vic?" "Not every day. But they're great friends. A lot of good it will do me to fall in love with Quentin Hardisty," Victoria went on practically.

"He doesn't know I exist." The Keats home stood out on Pacific avenue with the long lines of the Presidio eucalyptus trees and the Golden Gate below the drawing room's northeast windows, and a sweeping view of the bay and the mountains that framed the bay from the upper floors.

Victoria liked the atmosphere of the house; she said it reminded her of a book.

Victoria, who had gone to them from the hospital as Kate's nurse, had been kept on after Kate's recovery because of Duna's scarlet fever; and after that because of the feeble age of Mrs. Chauncey Clements, the children's English grandmother. Gently, agreeably, without any unpleasantness, Gran was dying. Victoria had a small room next to the old woman's luxurious one on the first bedroom floor, and the easy task of watching her dignified departure from a life in which she had behaved for eighty years with admirable decorum.

Violet Keats was in her early forties; her husband perhaps ten years older. She adored the small, blinking man with his fluffy gray mop "as only an English gentlewoman can adore a man," Vic told Catherine.

"We're dining alone, Victoria, you and I," Mrs. Keats said one day, in her crisp, brisk way. "I want to talk to you!"

desolation that seemed now like a deserted battlefield, like an ocean after a wreck.

Her glance went on. She saw the word "Tabiti," the word "Malolo," the words "snatch a few years of heaven..."

Victoria went to the balcony and sat down in a green iron chair. Her legs had failed under her; she felt cold, but her face was burning. One trembling hand clung tight to the note; in the empty hotel rooms behind her the lights shone brightly over the packed handsome trunks, with their bands of white and blue.

Coming into the diet kitchen at six o'clock on a summer morning, Florence Flood Dickenson discovered it empty, except for a solitary figure at the end of the long table.

The girl raised her head and showed a weary face that was yet keen with sensitiveness and sympathy and lighted with a tired smile.

"Hello, Dicky," she said, in a hoarse, sweet voice. "Oh, it is you, Herrdeen?"

It was when they were seated at the little table downstairs at the door, said, "Miss Rockwood" and vanished. The hospital day had begun.

"Vicky, tell me, do you like Dr. Hardisty?" Louise Mary Keating asked interestedly, a few days later.

"Very much," Vicky said abstractedly. "Vicky, I'll bet you're in love with him! They say every woman he meets is in love with him."

"We're dining alone, Victoria, you and I," Mrs. Keats said one day, in her crisp, brisk way. "I want to talk to you!"

"We've put it aside—we expected this." She went away and presently, when a maid had preceded her with a card table and silver and glasses, returned with a laden tray.

"You looked very charming with that baby in your arms," he said abruptly. Victoria and he were alone now; the men had had their supper; the fire had burned down low during the weary, comfortable talk that had followed, and presently a ringing telephone had taken the doctor to his study, and Mrs. Keats, murmuring something like, "Oh, dear, I must tell him—" had followed him.

He had seen her with Buntly in her arms, had he? The unexpected blood rose to Vic's face.

"Any man would be glad to come home and find such a scene at night," the man said.

"Well, would he?" Vicky countered. "Violet and I have just been having an argument about it. I say that nurseries and Nanas and health fires have all gone out of fashion. That isn't what men want, any more!"

"Only proving that you don't know anything about men," the doctor said. "I didn't think you did!"

"Most men would much rather have wives who are curled and dressed and painted and ready to go out at night," Victoria persisted, annoyed in spite of herself by his lazy air of complacency, and warning to her subject. "Men aren't crazy about Violet, because she lives for her husband and the children."

"You may be a little bit cracked on the subject of love and marriage," Dr. Hardisty said. "But you're amusing."

"Do you think I'm a little bit cracked on the subject of love and marriage?" Victoria demanded in surprise. "There are plenty of bachelors about. Is it so extraordinary that now and then a woman likes to play a lone hand? I have my work, my friends—everything I want. Why should I add to it all a man I don't want?"

"Because in your heart you know that you do want a man!" "You think so?" Vic asked, her face red.

"I do." Quite suddenly, quite simply his arm was about her and, for the first time in her life, a man kissed her on the lips. "There!" he said and laughed. In another instant he was gone.

Miss Elizabeth Kincaid Becomes Bride of Mr. Dale E. Grimes in Wedding Sunday Afternoon, June 20

In a pretty home wedding Sunday afternoon, June 20, in the home of Dr. and Mrs. R. L. Kincaid, their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Kincaid, became the bride of Mr. Dale E. Grimes of Edinburg, Texas. Rev. P. J. Merrill of Henrietta, a former pastor of the Crowell Christian Church, performed the impressive ring ceremony before a beautiful archway formed of ferns and gladioli. White tapers in crystal holders were arranged at either end of the archway. They were lighted by Mrs. Harvey Turnbough of Lubbock, sister of the bride.

Little Miss Mary Margaret Stephens, cousin of the bride, dressed in a four-length green taffeta dress, was flower girl. Miss Harriet Swaim, maid of honor, was the only attendant to the bride, while Mr. Henry Black of Crowell was best man to Mr. Grimes.

Miss Kincaid entered on the arm of her father, Miss Lucile Snyder of Austin, who has been public school music teacher in Edinburg and room-mate of Miss Kincaid, played "Meditation" from Thais, as a violin solo. She was accompanied by Mrs. J. S. Ray, as also was Mrs. T. V. Elliott of Wink, who sang "I Love You Truly." Mrs. Ray played Lohengrin's Wedding March as a processional and Mendelssohn's as a recessional. She also played softly, during the ceremony, "Love's Melody."

The bride's book was presided over by Mrs. Walter Hofmann, aunt of the bride.

The bride was lovely in a gown of white marquisette trimmed with taffeta bands and taffeta bows from neck to waist in the back and down the full length of the skirt in front. It was cut princess style with six-inch train and had short puffed sleeves. Her veil, finger-tip length, was caught with a braided satin halo. She carried a bridal bouquet of white rosebuds and lilies of the valley.

The maid of honor wore a tuckered model of orchid blue marquisette with a maize hat, the ribbons of the hat matching her dress. Miss Swaim's flowers were yellow roses.

Mrs. Elliott wore white lace over white satin with a corsage of sweet peas. Miss Snyder's gown was of pink marquisette. Mrs. Turnbough wore peach organza and Mrs. Ray wore blue chiffon.

The mother of the bride was attired in a dress of white crepe.

The groom and his best man wore white trousers with dark coats.

Following the ceremony an informal reception was held in the Kincaid home. The bride's table was laid with a lace cloth and the appointments were in blue and silver. Silver candle sticks with blue candles adorned the table. A two-tiered wedding cake centered the table and was cut by the bride and served with punch to the bridal party and guests. Garden flowers were used in the dining room and throughout the reception suite.

The bridal couple left soon after the reception for Edinburg, where they will make their home. For going-away Mrs. Grimes wore a suit of ashes of roses, with trim of dubonnet. All her accessories had the dubonnet trim.

Mrs. Grimes was reared in Crowell, the daughter of two outstanding citizens. She is a graduate of Crowell High School and has a B. S. degree from Texas State College for Women at Denton. Did You Know That—

By Myrna Holman, H. D. A.

Sweet potatoes grown from slips that have been dipped in a solution made from 1 ounce of bichloride of mercury to 8 gallons of water will be protected against such diseases as dry rot, stem end rot, etc.

A dry mixture of one-half salt and one-half corn meal will get rid of the birds that are eating your grapes and other fruits? Place it in shallow pans where the birds can eat it.

Fruits and tomatoes should be processed in a hot water bath rather than a pressure cooker? The flavor is better and less vitamin is destroyed.

All non-acid vegetables are processed at ten pounds pressure except greens, cream-style corn, and pumpkin which require 15 pounds? The red balls are "out" on the pinchusion cactus and that they are well worth more than a glance in passing?

LIBRARY NEWS

A new and popular novelist is Helen Topping Miller. Mrs. Miller writes of herself: "I was born in Fenton, Michigan, and grew up in time to inherit the wired pop-pour, bound collar and seven-pointed skirt cut daringly two inches from the floor." All her novels have the same characteristics of that sentence—wit, humor, lightness, and truth. The musical cadence of words fascinated her as the liquid appoggio of music thrilled her talented mother, and she always liked to write.

There was one lull in her career when a copy was returned with "Oh, my Gawd!" written across it in red ink by the editor, but now she has her fountain pen back, as well as her readers.

The library has copies of "Blue Marigolds," "Splendor of Eagles," "Love Comes Last," and "Let Me Die Tuesday."
