A QUICK READ OF THE NEWS

Just hopping along

Frog legs have been getting a lot of attention in Pascagoula, Miss. — and not because a new restaurant has opened.

Ann Henry, director of the Scranton Nature Center, started noticing something unusual when a tadpole at the center began its transformation into a frog.

"Legs began to grow out everywhere," Henry said. "Legs sprouted from various parts of the body, including the head. New legs would sprout from the older appendages."

After more than two months of growth, the frog had 15 legs, she said. The cause of the deformity is unknown.

Climber works on curse

The Boston Red Sox have tried high-priced free agents and late-season trades in their efforts to break the Curse of the Bambino and win their first World Series since 1918.

Now lifelong Red Sox fan Paul Giorgio has taken things into his own hands — at the top of Mount Everest.

On the advice of a Tibetan Buddhist holy man, Giorgio left a Red Sox cap on Mount Everest's summit last month, then burned a New York Yankees cap.

He was hoping to break the infamous curse, said to have been set when the Red Sox sold Babe Ruth to the New York Yankees.

So far, Giorgio's plan seems to be working. The Red Sox are in first place in the American League East.

New sheriff may be appointed this week

JOURNAL STAFF REPORT

The Bailey County Commissioners' Court will meet Friday to consider applicants to replace Sheriff Chance Coberley, who has resigned effective July 10.

In submitting his resignation, Coberley told County Judge Marilyn Cox that he needed to spend more time helping his wife, Cindy, in her struggle with cancer.

Coberley was unopposed for a full term as sheriff this year after being appointed to fill out the unexpired term of Coy Plott, who died in an accident while in office. Plott was serving his first full term after winning a Democratic primary battle against Ron Kemp, who is now Coberley's chief deputy.

Coberley had retired from the Amarillo

Police Department before moving to Bailey County, where his wife already was employed as a nurse.

Kemp also has a long history in law enforcement and is retired from the Albuquerque Police Department.

Cox urged anyone interested in the job to come by her office before Friday and apply.

Park View construction nearing end

JOURNAL STAFF REPORT

Jim Bone, administrator of the Muleshoe Area Hospital District, told the district's board members that estimates of the completion date for the new nursing home are as little as four weeks away.

He said the kitchen equipment should be installed this week.

Meanwhile, a citizen drive to complete furnishing the facility — known formally as Muleshoe Area Healthcare Center, Park View — had raised more than $21,000 at last report. Accounts have been set up at both local banks to accept donations.

Bone also told the board that it had recently been called to his attention that two new fire hydrants will be needed in order to ensure that no more than 1,000 feet of fire hose will be required to reach any part of the facility.

The hydrants will have to be fed by 6-inch water lines that are required to be 8 feet underground, he said.

He also said Five Area Telecommunications will make available an emergency generator, saving the district several thousand dollars.

The board unanimously approved an extensive revision of the district's nursing home admission policy.

The names are familiar . . .

Leah Bell (kneeling) of Muleshoe and Verda Broyles of Clovis discuss the names carved into planks on the deck at the Mule Lot, including those of Broyles and her late husband, Edgar. The Broyles came to the area in 1931, buying farmland in the Pleasant Valley community 13 miles northeast of Muleshoe, according to their daughter, LaVonne McKillip of Muleshoe.

Meeting to recruit football referees is set

Anyone interested in becoming a referee for high school football games is asked to attend a meeting scheduled for 7 p.m. July 10 at the Bailey County Electric Cooperative, 305 E. Avenue B.

According to Max Smithey, chairman of the Mentoring and Recruiting Committee for the South Plains Chapter of the Texas Association of Sports Officials, a minimum of 65 people will be needed. He said up to 200 people would be even better, in order to avoid crowded schedules.

Smithey is expected to attend the Muleshoe meeting.

He said the shortage of officials has already caused some games traditionally played on Friday to be moved to Thursdays and Saturdays.

"Would you want your school officials to announce that Friday's game had to be cancelled because no officials were available?" Smithey asked.

He said officiating chapters generally report recruiting 25 to 35 new officials each year and retaining about 10 for the next season. About 150 officials are needed in each chapter to adequately cover each week's varsity schedule.

The West Texas chapters (Amarillo and Odessa, in addition to the South Plains Chapter in Lubbock) all report that their membership has declined — up to 20 percent in the past three years.

They say they are unable to retain enough younger officials to offset the ones who retire.

Reasons for this, they say, are threefold: the verbal abuse officials receive, mostly from fans;

115 participate in 2001 Tour de Muleshoe

By DELTON WILHITE
Journal correspondent

A hundred and fifteen cyclists registered and rode in the Tour de Muleshoe on June 16, divided between the Fun Ride, Lance Armstrong Junior Olympics Stage Race or the U.S. Cycling Federation Time Trials.

Proceeds from the event benefited the Muleshoe Heritage Foundation.

Riders from as far away as Fort Worth and Dallas, Tijeras, N.M., and Anna, Texas, participated. Lubbock was represented by 38 riders, while Clovis registered 15 and 26 signed in from Muleshoe.

Lonnie Adrian, chairman of the event, said, "Our numbers were down slightly this year because we have changed the date of the event, but we believe the event will grow in future years because of fewer conflicts with other riding events around the area.

"We were very pleased with the turnout and participation this year, but we would like to see more of our local riders come out. You do not have to be a pro to finish the 10-mile ride and you might discover it is fun to ride with a group of friends. We also want to thank all the volunteers and sponsors that helped with this all-day event."

Muleshoe Mayor Victor Leal (second from right) cruises among a group of unidentified Tour de Muleshoe riders. One hundred fifteen participated.

The Muleshoe terrain does not provide much of a challenge to participants, but a 15 to 20 mph headwind proved a formidable opponent as long-range riders turned from U.S. 70 and headed south to U.S. 84 for the final leg back to Muleshoe.

A spaghetti lunch provided a welcome break for the riders before the time trials began in the afternoon.

Some Thoughts from the Hospital

Lying in a hospital bed for the first (and second) times in my life recently has given me quite a bit of opportunity to do two good things. To stop and to think.

At first, I admit, I had only such lofty thoughts as, how am I going to get from point A to point B without ripping stitches out, or how am I going to waltz with this IV pole and not pull tubing out, or how am I going to sneeze and not turn my toenails completely inside out.

But, later, some other

Focus On Faith

thoughts began to take shape. For one thing, it really is quite a commentary on the pace of our lives, that we need something like an appendix to give up, rupture, and die before we really take time to stop—and think. Sooner would really be better. And more fun.

Have you noticed lately that getting out under God's big sky is a very good thing? So is breathing his fresh air. At one point, I was afraid a nurse might think I was trying to jump out of a 10th-floor window. (That may come later when I get the bill.) Really, I was just trying to get my head under the sky for a minute and steal a few breaths of some outside air.

Life does roll on, even when the train of your life seems to be sitting on a side rail with other trains passing by. Sometimes even the side rail holds some surprising blessings.

I am quite sure that God knows how we feel all of the time, and he cares, and he doesn't minimize our hurting, even though he knows quite well, and we would do well to remember, that almost always someone around us hurts worse than we do.

I had a nice room on a nice floor of the hospital. It just happened to be largely a cancer ward. Now, to be sure, a really bad appendix is not a good thing, but the patients around me, and other sicker friends in the hospital, well, . . . seeing their situations made it hard even to feel very good about feeling bad. But God knows how we feel. All of us. And he cares. About all of us. No matter how intense the level of our sickness, or our fear, or our anxiety. He understands and he cares.

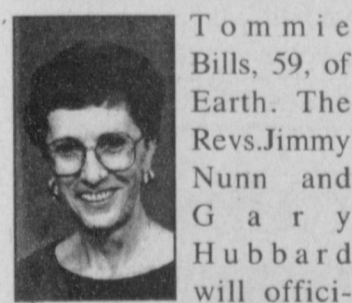

Lying in the hospital and/or being sidelined at home for a few weeks, I've also noticed how badly I've missed being with my family. Oh, my physical family, both here and elsewhere, has been great. So has my church family, and I'm so very thankful for so many dear and treasured community friends and for every Sunday School class or church or pastor who called or wrote or visited to assure me of their prayers. But I've really missed being at worship with my Christian family. As a sidelined part of the Body, I've been cared for by them very well, but I've missed actually being with the Body in worship. We're a very small part of Christ's larger Body, and there are many other fine parts. I hope you love yours as much as I love mine. But may I say with, I hope, pardonable pride, this little church is an incredibly good part of the Body and of my life. It'll be nice to be back.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor,
 We just saw the June 17 Bailey County Journal spread of 2001 father of the year contestants. How wonderful is the more than half-page spread of fathers' photos. And under their photo is a statement of why their dad is the best. I have clipped this article and am mailing and a copy of this letter to Free Market Foundation in Plano, Texas. In the mail today was a letter from the foundation. Its president, Kelly Shackelford, writes that they have launched a Texas Fatherhood Campaign. "Our goal is to reach the hearts of Texas fathers and turn them back to their children," she writes. I am sure that the Free Market Foundation would like to know about similar efforts in Muleshoe, Texas. They give this shocking statement: "Seventy-two percent of adolescent murders, 60 percent of America's rapists and 70 percent of long-term prison inmates grew up in home without fathers. "Children who grow up in fatherless homes are 20 times more likely to end up in long-term prison, 14 times more likely to commit rape, 10 times more likely to be a drug and alcohol abuser. . . . It is staggering." Shackelford wrote, "Recently, Tom Landry Jr. signed on the place of his dad (who died recently) as our honorary chairman. In spreading our campaign across the state, we are bringing the campaign to Dallas this summer. "And we have great news — the Texas Rangers have just signed on to the campaign! And a fatherhood conference has been set for Sept. 14-15. We also have plans for a press conference and an area-wide essay contest for kids about their dads." For me, it is of terrific interest and pleasure that the Muleshoe area and the Journal are in the forefront of recognizing the impact of dad's place in his children's lives.

Extension offers Insect Answers

SPECIAL TO THE JOURNAL COLLEGE STATION — A new page called Insect Answers has been added to the Texas A&M department of entomology's Web efforts.

It is a companion site to the horticulture department's PLANTAnswers, said John Jackman, entomologist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"Insect Answers is designed for people who have a problem with an insect and need management advice," Jackman said. "Or, if you're just curious about an insect, check out the Field Guide to Texas Insects on the Web."

There are about 30,000 insect species in Texas, and most insects have several different-looking life stages. About 200 species are regular pests, and 500 to 1,000 are occasional pests, Jackman said.

Insects play many different roles in the environment. They are important pollinators of most of the flowers, vegetables and fruit. Also, insects are extremely important in maintaining the balance of nature. Some are parasites or predators which help control other problem insects.

Perhaps the most important role of insects is as recyclers. Road kill, dead wood, grass clippings and compost piles would accumulate without insects helping to break them down.

A number of other sites besides the original entomology web site have been created. Each has a specific URL, but is linked to the original site.

"Several faculty members now have their own sites that we do not host, such as the Digital Dragonflies site in Stephenville. This site has exceptional images of dragonflies from around the state," Jackman said.

The general entomology site can be found at insects.tamu.edu. The Insect Answers link can be found there as well, or go directly to insectanswers.tamu.edu.

Shepherders try their own version of 'Dances With Wolves'

The scene opens with a lone Department of Interior bureaucrat fishing on the banks of a pristine stream somewhere on the vast western range.

He is nervously looking over his shoulder.

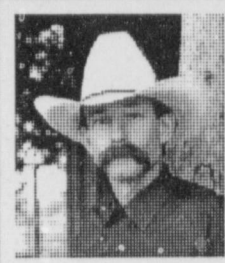

Son he spots a single sheep. An oidewe that has been left behind by the band. They approach one another. Tentatively, then gleefully. Soon they are playing together.

On a ridge less than a mile away, two Basque shepherders are watching. They laugh at the foolish scene below. "Baile con lana!" they say. The caption underneath reads Dances With Wool.

The shepherders ride down on their ragged mules and bum a cigarette, their version of counting coup.

The bureaucrat goes back to their camp and spends the night. He falls in love with their chorizos and Vino Fino. He soon adopts their habits — eating mutton, not shaving, smoking pigweed and naming sheep.

One day he returns to his original U.S. Army surplus tent, survey maps and cleansocks. He is attacked by a stealthy group of fellow bureaucrats who pummel him with carbon paper and regulations accusing him of consorting with the enemy.

They take him back to Washington, D.C., for reprogramming, holding up pictures of sheep brandishing machine guns with a patch over each eye, and happy prairie dogs gaily dancing with Tubby Toys.

But he escapes and returns to the vast western plain to be with his beloved shepherders and their merry band. But at night around the campfire, he tells his lanolin brothers that more bureaucrats are coming. More than the stars in the sky, more than flies on a carcass.

They will bring their wives. They will build condos where you are not welcome. They will replace the native plants with cottonless cottonwoods, Creeping Charlies and plastic milk cartons.

LADIES' GOLF ASSOCIATION

The Muleshoe Country Club Ladies' Golf Association met June 20 for its monthly luncheon and business meeting.

President Anita Allgood presided over the meeting. She welcomed guests Jill Duvak, daughter of Deborah Noble, and Duvak's daughter.

The birthdays for June were Allgood and Neats Foster, who was 39 again!

Linda Elder called the roll, read the minutes of the May meeting and gave the treasurer's report.

The men of the "Over the Hill Gang" were recognized for donating a concrete bench to be used by the gallery for watching golf. It will be placed on No. 9 hole.

The Ladies' Memorial Tournament will be July 18. This is a handicap-only tournament.

Elder announced that the next Hi Plains Playday will be July 11 in Hereford. It was in Muleshoe on June 6. (Elinor Yerby had the winning low net of the field; Foster had low net in her

They will replace native transportation with RVs, BMWs and riding lawnmowers.

"What's a lawn?" they asked.

And they will crush you with rules and taxes and propaganda. Then they will introduce wolves.

"Es!" they cried, which in Basque is "no!"

The final scene shows a few sheep on the trail, with the herders and the bureaucrat in the camp wagon. We can hear them talking in the distance, over the bleating.

"Maybe the reservation will be nice."

"Do you think they will let us have a casino?"

"What's a toxic-waste burial site?"

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

A SABBATH DAY'S JOURNEY!

THIS EXPRESSION IS USED BUT ONCE IN THE ENTIRE BIBLE (ACTS 1:12). BY MOSAIC LAW, THE ANCIENT ISRAELITES WERE FORBIDDEN TO LEAVE THEIR DWELLING PLACE ON THE SABBATH (EX. 16:29). HOWEVER, ON SABBATH, THEIR DAY OF REST, THEY HAD TO GO TO WORSHIP AT THE TABERNACLE, WHICH WAS ALWAYS IN THE CENTER OF THE CAMP! AND IT WAS ALSO MOSAIC LAW, THAT NO TENT COULD BE ANY CLOSER TO THE TABERNACLE THAN 2,000 CUBITS! (JOSH. 3:4) ONE CUBIT MEASURES APPROXIMATELY EIGHTEEN INCHES — THUS, 2,000 CUBITS IS 1,000 OF OUR YARDS — A NICE DISTANCE FOR A PLEASANT STROLL FOR ANYONE WHO DIDN'T WANT TO BE COOPED UP THE ENTIRE DAY!

BY THE TIME THE JEWS HAD SETTLED IN CITIES, THIS TRADITIONAL LAW OF STAYING AT HOME ON SABBATH HAD BECOME ENLARGED TO INCLUDE THE ENTIRE CITY IN WHICH THEY RESIDED! BUT THEY COULD NOT VENTURE BEYOND THE CITY'S WALLS FOR ANY REASON WHATSOEVER!

Combust sees rising role for ethanol

SPECIAL TO THE JOURNAL
WASHINGTON, D.C. — U.S. House Agriculture Committee Chairman Larry Combest, R-Texas, observed that a recent Environmental Protection Agency announcement holding California to clean-burning gasoline standards elevates ethanol as the clean, renewable, American-grown choice for a comprehensive energy plan.

EPA announced that it would not approve California's request to ignore the Clean Air Act's federal oxygen content requirement for reformulated gasoline.

Rather than seeking use of another oxygenated additive such as ethanol — produced from corn — state officials sought a waiver from clean-air rules by dropping the use of all oxygenates, after abandoning MTBE.

Ethanol now becomes the alternative oxygen additive of choice for states abandoning the petroleum-derivative MTBE.

"Ethanol becomes the American-grown, renewable resource for the comprehensive fuel mix called for by the president's energy plan," Combest said.

Demand for ethanol in California would be about 580 million gallons annually, with about 230 million bushels of corn necessary to produce the ethanol needed by California motorists, according to the National Corn Growers Association.

Citrus pectin may help prevent cancer

SPECIAL TO THE JOURNAL

WESLACO—A study published in the June issue of the Journal of Agriculture and Food Chemistry suggests that a component in citrus pectin may help prevent prostate cancer.

The study is the result of collaborative research among scientists at the Texas A&M-Kingsville Citrus Center at Weslaco, the University of Texas-Pan American at Edinburg and Texas A&M's Institute of Biotechnology at Texas Medical Center in Houston.

Pectin is a complex carbohydrate found in many plants, but is most abundant in citrus and has already been shown to reduce cholesterol and blood sugar. While the current study focused mainly on prostate cancer, scientists say pectin also may inhibit other types of cancer.

Dr. Bhimu Patil, a physiologist at the Citrus Center who isolated pectin from four citrus varieties, said the study is preliminary but justifies further investigations in pre-clinical animal models, then possibly in humans.

A Texas A&M-Kingsville graduate student, Yan Liu, who worked under Patil and recently completed her master's degree, conducted a major part of this study, Patil said.

"This is the first study that identifies a specific molecular target by which citrus pectin may affect the development of cancer," Patil said.

The study shows that a component derived from pectin can effect the miscommunication that occurs between cells of the prostate that can lead to malignancy, the life-threatening stage of cancer.

"There's cross-talk among cells of the prostate that keeps the prostate healthy," said Dr. Wallace McKeehan, a cell biologist at the A&M institute.

"During malignancy, the signals get garbled and the cells don't understand each other. You end up with rogue cells that are not behaving properly because they are not getting the right signals. They begin signaling and stimulating themselves and grow too much."

Overgrowth of cells, or the failure to properly stop growth, is a symptom of cancer, McKeehan said.

"We've plugged the elements of citrus pectin into the signal mechanisms that have gone haywire and shown that pectin can potentially effect that system and set it back to normal," he said.

The next step is to chemically identify the active ingredient in pectin that produced the favorable, in-vitro test results.

"Once we identify exactly what it is in pectin that has this effect, the long-term goal would then be to resolve the issue of how best to deliver it to the consumer," McKeehan said.

Patil said that could be accomplished in several ways, including enhancing pectin's presence in citrus by altering growing and harvesting practices, or by extracting and modifying the active ingredient of pectin and making it available in other foods or as a supplement.

Dr. Hassan Ahmad, an associate professor of biochemistry at UT-Pan Am, said his role in the collaboration was to purify various sizes of pectin after Patil isolated the carbohydrate from lemons, grapefruit, oranges and tangerines, to ensure that scientists at the institute worked only with specific sizes of pectin and not with any contaminants.

"Hopefully, our next role in this study will be to break down the bigger pectin molecule into smaller molecules, separate them and determine if any specific part of the pectin molecule is responsible for this inhibiting effect," he said.

Patil said that of the Texas citrus varieties tested, pectin from all four varieties showed levels of cancer inhibition but were highest in pectin from lemons and from grapefruit harvested in January.

"To get the best benefits of pectin, it's best to eat the whole fruit and not just the juice, since the highest concentrations of pectin are found in the meat of the fruit and in the membrane that separates the segments," he said.

of ozone, a major component of smog.

Reformulated gasoline is a cleaner-burning gasoline required by federal law to be used in certain major metropolitan areas of the United States with the worst ozone air-pollution problems.

A special thank you is extended to a group of Muleshoe citizens who literally developed this program from the ground up. A Scholarship Steering Committee was formed and met on April 10 to begin discussing plans for making this program successful. This committee was comprised of school board members, community members, and school employees. The committee came up with the ideas and action plan that was used to promote the concept. A big part of the success of this year's scholarship program is a direct result of this committee's work. Members of that Steering Committee are: Kay Graves, Nick Bamert, Max King, Lyndon Huckaby, Bob Finney, Victor Leal, Gordon Wilson, Clifton Finley, Curtis Smith, Pat Young, Chuck Smith, Thurman Myers, Staci Conner, Dick Pylant, Mike Holt, Sandy Vandevender, Duane Lloyd, and Robert Montgomery.

We want to thank the community of Muleshoe and friends of the school that gave so generously to support this worthy cause. We appreciate the Muleshoe School Board for its leadership in allowing us to pursue this goal. We want to say thank you to the volunteers and students that made posters and jars and copies and stuffed envelopes and donated services and did hundreds of other details that were necessary to complete this project. This truly is an investment in the future of our children and the future of our community. We can all be proud to live in a community that gives so generously to support its youth.
