Man Who Killed Last Buffalo In This Section Tells Interesting Story of Area in Pioneer Days

Jim Moody of Truscott Came Here in 1880 As Cow Puncher

Much interesting and possibly little-known history of this section of Texas is found in the life story of one of its oldest and most colorful pioneers, Jim A. Moody, 78, of Truscott. Mr. Moody, in easy, unharmed conversation, can plainly picture the conditions in this area from 1880, when he first came here as a line-rider for the Farr Ranch.

A rare quality found in this true pioneer is that of his remarkable memory and modesty. Although Mr. Moody has had a large part in the development of this section of Texas, he claims no glory in the progress and tells of no incidents occurring to him, unless there were other persons involved. Mr. Moody stated in an interview that he could plainly remember occurrences in the 1880's and 1890's even better than events which happened a year or even a few months ago.

Mr. Moody can hold the attention of his listener with a natural ease and also carry him back through the years to events that have transpired. One can picture it as plainly as if they themselves had actually been there to see it. He talks with an easy flow of words and has a merry twinkle in his eyes and a humor that belies his 78 years.

When asked for a story concerning his life, Mr. Moody replied that a story about him and his earlier life would not be interesting and that he had never done anything worthy to be put into a story, but with his colorful background, Mr. Moody represents the thinning ranks of the wiry, hardy, determined pioneers who made possible the development of one of the greatest areas of the United States and who have now either passed on or have retired to watch the younger generation take up their work where they left off, and at the same time treasuring their memories of the untamed West, when only the hardiest were able to cope with nature's obstacles.

Kills Last Buffalo

Mr. Moody related an interesting and little-known story of an event of importance to the history of this section of Texas, which he tells of the slaying of the last buffalo to be killed in this area.

This outstanding bit of history occurred in the winter of 1880, a short time after Mr. Moody's arrival here. He told that there were a few buffalo drifting through the country, but only one was killed in the winter of 1880, and at that time he did not realize it was to be the last one.

In relating the story, Mr. Moody stated that Bill Harrison, Joe Ratliff and himself were riding along King Creek and Little Wichita River, about 20 miles west of Truscott, when they found the buffalo. Mr. Harrison and Mr. Ratliff, with the hounds, gave Ratliff, who shot the buffalo with a rifle, the honor of the kill. He chased the buffalo until their horses were exhausted and were forced to stop.

In the meantime, Mr. Moody did not join the chase, but remained in the background and watched the flight of the wounded buffalo, the spot subsconsciously marking the place where he last saw it. After the party was re-united, he led his partners to the place he thought the buffalo would be, and found the animal in the breaks. Having it in a weakened animal in a place from which it could not escape, they easily killed it with their six-shooters, thus bringing to a climax to the buffalo hunt in this section of West Texas. Little did the three men realize at that time that in later years their names would be recorded as those who killed the last buffalo in this section.

Arrived Here in 1880

Mr. Moody came to this section of West Texas in 1880 as a cow puncher with a Farr and lived owned by J. A. Farr and lived for some time at a camp 23 miles west of Truscott in the edge of King County as a line rider on the Farr Ranch. He later moved to a camp four miles west of the mouth of Good Creek in Cottle County.

At this time all of the counties of this area had been laid out, or surveyed, but were not organized. The towns of Crowell, Paducah, Truscott and other neighboring cities had not yet come into existence.

The Farr Ranch was sold in the summer of 1891 and Mr. Moody returned to his home in Wise County, near Decatur. In September, 1881, he came back to this county with a herd of cattle. (Continued on Last Page)

LAST RITES FOR J. P. WHITLEY HELD SATURDAY

Succumbs in Home of Daughter in Crowell Friday Morning

Last rites for J. P. (Jack) Whitley, who died in the home of his daughter, Mrs. Pat McDaniel, in Crowell Friday morning at 11:55 o'clock, were held from the Crowell Baptist Church Saturday morning at 9 o'clock with Rev. W. B. Fitzgerald, pastor, officiating. Interment was made in the Crowell cemetery with the Womack Funeral Home in charge of arrangements.

Mr. Whitley had been in poor health for the past year and had been ill at the home of his daughter for several weeks.

A special vocal solo, "We Will Never Grow Old," was sung by Irby Cox of Vernon, who was the song leader for the Baptist revival. He was accompanied by Miss Anne Lee Long.

Pall bearers were Jack Gilland, Bill Hudgeons, Jack Vessel, Jim Roark, Riley Lloyd and H. K. Black. Flower bearers were Mrs. William Simmons, Mrs. Herman Biggerstaff, Miss Frances Hanks and Miss Tessie Wilson.

John Peyton Whitley was born at Gainesville, Cooke County, on Sept. 25, 1877. He was reared in Gainesville and married Miss Clara Cook in that city in 1903. Nine children, all of whom survive, were born to them.

In about 1911, Mr. Whitley moved to Foard County with his family and settled on the D. C. Greer farm southwest of Crowell, where he lived until recently.

He is survived by his widow, four sons, William, Allen and James of Crowell, and Raymond of Pecossett, Okla.; five daughters, Mrs. Bill Kimesy, Mrs. G. S. Black, Mrs. Pat McDaniel and Miss Mattie Belle Whitley of Crowell and Mrs. Arthur McBridge of Pecossett, Okla.; three brothers, Luther Whitley of Whitesboro, Oscar Whitley of Crowell and Marion Whitley of Tipton, Calif., and a number of grandchildren and other relatives.

Number of Divorces Make Slight Gain On Marriages Here

Divorces made a slight gain on the number of marriages in Foard County during the first six months of 1939 when compared with the figures for the same period of 1938, according to tabulations made at the office of the county clerk. The gain is very slight, but is just enough to show that Dan Cupid has neglected his work in Foard County. June, the month famous for its many marriages, saw only three licenses obtained here during its thirty days.

During the first half of the year, a total of 16 marriage licenses were issued from the office of the county clerk, and this is eight less than the 24 issued during the same period of last year. Although the number of licenses for 1939 is low, they have been issued consistently through the six months. Three licenses were issued during each of the following months: January, March, April and June. Two licenses were written during February and May.

There are eight divorces recorded on the court records for the two terms of district court held here this year, and this is one more than the number granted during the first half of 1938. The checkup revealed that the divorces had climbed by one and marriages had decreased eight. Five divorces were granted in the February term of district court and three in the May term.

A large number of persons must decide to "tie the knot" between now and the end of the year if 1939 is to tie last year in the number of licenses issued. At the end of 1938, there had been fifty couples to obtain their marriage licenses in Crowell.

With district court to be in session two more times during this year, it now appears that 1939 will go over the mark of 1938, during which only ten divorces were granted. A comparison of figures reveals that only two more divorces have to be obtained to equal this number. There is also a great possibility of a big increase of marriages during the remainder of the year, as two licenses were issued on July 1.

GOOD RAIN IS FOLLOWED BY HOT WEATHER

Row Crop Prospects Are Good; Railroad Bridge Damaged

People of Foard County have been sweltering under the most severe heat wave of the summer during this week, which followed the 1 1/2-inch rain which fell here last Saturday night. Street thermometers have hovered around the 100-degree mark during the past few days, and the heat from the direct rays of the sun have been almost unbearable.

Crops Good

The heat wave has not yet done any damage to young row crops and sufficient rain has been received over the county to make the prospects for cotton, feed and other crops better than they have been. One farmer in the Rayland community stated that crops there were better than he has seen them in many years.

In spite of the fact that the heat has made living fairly uncomfortable this week, there have not been many hot, damaging winds, and farmers say that rain is not needed right at the present, as all of the crops are being plowed, hoed and prepared for the rains.

APPLICATIONS FOR '39 COTTON SUBSIDY READY

When Measurements Completed, Farmers Will Be Notified

Applications for the 1939 cotton subsidy payments will be ready for the farmers' signatures as soon as the farms have been measured and the measurements confirmed, provided the cotton acreage has not been over-planted, according to information released Wednesday by Weldon P. Herman, administrative assistant.

The following statement was released by Mr. Herman: "As soon as the supervisor has measured your farm, this office will notify you of your measurements and tell you to call at the county agent's office and sign application for the 1.6 cents per pound cotton on your allotted acres times your adjusted acre."

Within the next few days farmers of the county will start receiving letters from the county agent's office carrying the information named above by Mr. Herman. The form will be filled with the crops, measured acres, allotment and acres in excess of allotments.

The data given in the letter, unless found to be incorrect, will be used in computing conservation payments for 1939. If a farmer carries out additional practices after the measurement, he is requested to notify the office at once so that he can be given credit for the extra practices.

If the date in the letter is found to be correct, the farmer is requested to sign it and return it to the county agent's office as soon as possible. Immediately after the return of the letter, the farmer is ready to sign an application for the 1939 cotton subsidy payment.

'Come Into the Kitchen', Invites Modern Woman

The kitchen today can be the loveliest room in the average home! "This is possible because time and labor saving electric servants keep it clean, cool and cozy," says Miss Eudora Hawkins (inset), home economist for the West Texas Utilities, who frequently visits in the numerous homes here which now are equipped with the electric range. "Come into the kitchen' is a standing invitation in thousands of homes where women are proud to show the beauty of cooking equipment and the ease with which they cook," Miss Hawkins declares. She insists that the electric range is the foundation for an all-electric kitchen, supplemented by electric refrigerator, dishwasher, hot-water heater and the many smaller appliances designed to "take drudgery out of the home."

could be more desirable, would be more wonderful to mankind than the coming of God's Kingdom on earth? With its coming will vanish all evil, all wrong, all hatred, all covetousness, all envy, all strife, all malice, all contention, all injustice. In other words a perfect world will come on earth. I believe that some time God's Kingdom will come on earth even as it is in heaven. I believe that it will one day come because I believe the universe was planned for good and the struggle man through all the known history of the race has been upward and onward toward higher and nobler and better and finer ideal and living. But all who pray "Thy Kingdom come on earth as it is in heaven," should remember they do so that God's Kingdom will never come on earth until first comes in the hearts of men in the heart of him who prays. When God's Kingdom comes in the hearts of mankind, the prayer will be answered, God's Kingdom will have come on earth.

The items below were taken in whole or in part from the issue of The Foard County News of July 4, 1924.

Wheat Yields High With wheat making an average of around 25 to 30 bushels per acre it is not surprising that occasionally some would be found to yield even more than that.

Onions Thirteen and fourteen ounce Bermuda onions are samples of a Crowell garden on display at The News office.

First Cotton Blooms On the first day of July, 1924, W. A. Cogdell brought to The News office two cotton blooms which had come from his farm southeast of Crowell.

National Guard Leaves The National Guard boys from Foard County will leave this afternoon by train for Chillicothe where they will catch the special train coming from Amarillo and bearing National Guard boys to the annual encampment at Galveston.

Grasshoppers S. E. Tate says the hoppers have destroyed his cotton, practically all of it having been eaten. But even if he should fail altogether in cotton he has made at least twice as much wheat as he had estimated.

Breaks Arm Mildred, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dave Sallis, got her arm broken last Sunday week, while playing with some children at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Mapp.

Time Changes A Los Angeles boy won the secondary oratorical championship of the United States. Poor boy. There's no place for orators in the movies.

Charging Cruelty Robert Herrick, organist in a Chicago hotel, sued his wife for divorce. One instance of her cruelty, he said, was pulling out all the stops of the organ when he was playing.

To Those Owing Delinquent Taxes

Penalty, Interest and Costs Will Be Added on All Delinquent Taxes Due the City of Crowell on the 16th Day of August, 1939.

The City has been very lenient with those owing Delinquent Taxes, however, the time has come when it is forced to make collection on these taxes in order that it may meet its obligations and function in the manner in which a City must if it is to be of any benefit to the people.

Why not save the penalty, interest and costs which will be added to your taxes by paying them before the 16th of August, 1939?

The City Council earnestly requests that all owing delinquent taxes make a decided effort to pay them at once. In the event taxes are not paid, the City will be forced to use other means to enforce collection.

Whose keepeth his mouth and his tongue keepeth his soul from troubles.—Proverbs 21:23.

Most of the reasons for an individual's lack of success lies in himself. Instead of trying to adapt himself to the world in which he finds himself he spends his time trying to change the world and people to fit his ideas and his attitudes. Success never comes this way. Success comes only to those who recognize the rules of the game and play according to the rules. Wrong attitude, wrong concepts, stubborn intolerance are not elements of success nor do they contribute in any way to success.

The best proof that the most of us can live within our budget is the fact that there are many with the same obligations that we have but with considerable less income who are living within their means.

Only 3 Out of 100 See Themselves As Others Do Says Psychologist

Only three out of 100 persons see themselves as others see them in business. Eighty-two rate themselves higher than their friends rate them; 15 rate themselves lower. So says William Marston in the current Rotarian Magazine, reporting on a survey in which he asked more than 10,000 people to score themselves on qualities which personnel experts deem essential for success in business.

"The tendency of the average person is, naturally, to think more highly of himself than anybody else does," the psychologist writes, "and, consequently, to follow his own dictates rather than those of his superior. But," he adds, "until the ambitious worker learns somehow or other to evaluate himself through the mind of his chief, he is likely to be more bother than benefit to his employer."

"A successful business career," according to Marston, "boils down to this: the worker must master his own job thoroughly in such a way as to please his business superiors. He must compete aggressively and courageously with his rivals, but at the same time he must co-operate with them to turn out a maximum group product. To keep from landing in jail, or at least from being fired," he continues, "an ambitious worker must develop his social-control traits before turning loose his self-seeking drive. Submission to superiors is and always will be the first business trait which everyone must acquire. Submission by no means implies servility, a boot-licking attitude, or a 'Yes-man' technique, but it does mean the ability to understand the boss' point of view and the willingness to be governed by it."

The average person, he believes, is unable to understand other people's opinions of him because of a "deep-seated determination to assert oneself over others and never permit them to exert control over you. In short, there exists a widespread delusion that success is attained by leading others; never by following somebody else. The truth is quite otherwise. The world needs many more followers than leaders and, consequently, yields its rewards more readily to those who know how to take orders. Moreover, willingness and ability to follow furnish one of the best possible and most practical preparations for future leadership. But the average individual, unfortunately, refuses to be led, and therefore never gets an opportunity to lead."

Babies Should Receive Constant Care During Summer

Austin.—As the thermometer shows signs of climbing higher and higher some of the ways by which babies may be kept well and comfortable during the hot weather and may be safeguarded against "summer complaint" are outlined by the Texas State Department of Health.

"The best way to keep your baby well," advises the department, "is to take your well baby to your doctor regularly for advice and supervision, and to follow the doctor's instructions carefully and very faithfully. If your baby develops any digestive trouble, call your family doctor at once. He'll tell you what to do."

"Summer complaint, or cholera infantum as it is sometimes called, and other digestive diseases that are dangerous for babies, are germ diseases. The germs that cause the disease get into the baby's food or in the water given the baby to drink. Babies who are nursed by their mothers and who are given cooled, boiled water to drink are protected from these sources of danger. Care should be taken not to wear a baby in hot weather except under a doctor's orders."

"If mother's milk is not available, the best substitute for it is fresh cow's milk or unsweetened evaporated milk mixed with an equal quantity of water. If sugar or additional water is needed, it should be mixed with the milk according to your doctor's directions. All milk or milk mixtures given to children up to two years of age should be boiled. The feedings should be kept in individual bottles and kept on ice until used. Each feeding should be warmed as needed."

"Always wash the hands thoroughly before preparing the baby's food, and before handling the baby's bottle. All dishes, pots, bans, bottles and nipples should be sterilized by boiling.

"Throw out any milk left in the bottle after feeding. Don't leave the bottle in the baby's crib or carriage. It will attract dirt and flies. Rinse out the bottle; put the nipples aside, and see that both are sterilized by boiling before using again."

"Be very careful to protect the baby and the baby's food against flies. Flies are potent disease carriers. Keep a supply of clean mosquito netting on hand to throw over the baby's crib or carriage while the baby sleeps."

"Some of the diarrheal diseases that grownups have are catching. Keep the baby away from people—both children and grown ups—who are suffering from such diseases."

"If your baby develops diarrheal trouble, don't let it run on. Call your family physical at once."

What We Think
(By Frank Dixon)

Our neighbors across the street has a family of two boys and two girls in their teens. All four of them more or less wild, as they say, and do pretty much as they please.

The father was talking to me about them the other day. He was very unhappy as was his wife over the way his family was turning out. "We have tried the best we know how," he said, "to bring them up as they should be. We have given them every advantage we could possibly give them. We have made many sacrifices that they might have the advantages of education and have the things that their friends have. I have never been a man who earned a large income, though I have always been employed. All that I have made has been put into our home and into our children."

We have no control over them. If we cross or oppose them in any way they resent it bitterly with many unkind and bitter remarks. While they feel free to make demands upon us they give us no understanding that they expect to lead their own lives and do as they please and desire no suggestions or advice from us.

It is a keen disappointment to us now that they are grown when their company would mean so much to us and cause us to feel repaid many times over for all our sacrifices. Instead they are willful, selfish, ungrateful, disobedient and thoughtless."

We, as well as all of the other neighbors, know what the unhappy father said was true. All of this was well known throughout the neighborhood.

I am not going to presume to say that the unhappy condition in this particular family is due to the fault of the parents but I believe that it is as it is in the majority of cases where families turn out as did this one.

The secret of the whole trouble lies in laxity of discipline. The children are not taught discipline in their earlier years and when it is imposed upon them later they resent it as an infringement upon their liberties.

The child that is taught the necessity of obedience and discipline from its cradle days up is more apt to respect it and yield to it than the child whose training in discipline has been neglected.

Discipline in this instance is not meant the submissive yielding to a harsh autocratic authority, but rather the stern, firm, but nonetheless loving, discipline and guidance that creates respect for parental authority in the home and respect for civil and criminal law in later life.

There is no set rule that can be applied because there are no two children that react the same.

It is also true that there will be a certain number of failures there is in every human effort. There will be children who will be perverse and refuse to submit to authority and discipline. There always has been and may always continue to be. Human nature is not arbitrarily formed. It grows and develops. Some natures will not respond to any sort of training, but the only solution to my neighbor's problem, and the problem of others like him, is through obedience and discipline taught consistently and persistently and intelligently from the very cradle up.

NOBODY'S BUSINESS
BY JULIAN CAPERS JR.

Austin.—Friends and foes of Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel's sales-tax constitutional amendment taxation program to finance social security were in agreement that a special session of the Legislature will have to be called during the autumn, in the wake of adjournment of the regular session which raised no money.

There were indications here that Gov. O'Daniel may have to revise considerably his announced and indicated plans to get himself re-elected. First, his declarations that no special session will be held, may have to be revoked when the Federal government passes upon the new liberalized Texas pension law. The Board of Control has submitted the new law and the rules and regulations under which it proposes to administer the act, to the Federal Social Security Board. Whether federal matching of State funds will be continued will be determined and announced by the U. S. Board soon.

Crisis Is Due Soon

Second, a crisis in pension payments, even if Federal aid is continued, is rapidly approaching. Deductions to repay loans made by the pensions administration from Dallas banks, under authority granted by the Legislature, are being made monthly, and will make a serious cut into pension revenues. The yield from beer, wine, whiskey and vending machine taxes is below last year.

Third, when substantial additions are made to the pension rolls under the liberalized act, the administration will have no choice but to prorate the available payments among 118,000 old pensioners, and whatever number of new pensioners are added. That is going to mean a substantial cut in present average payments of around $13.80 per month, and a terrific protest is going to arise from those on the rolls. The pressure for a special session to enact a statutory tax bill that will raise some more revenue for pensions is going to be overwhelming, and with a gubernatorial election coming up next year, keen observers here think a special session will be called.

Fair Trades Act Blasted

Gerald Mann blasted the so-called fair trade act, lobbied by Texas druggists, and paid for by Eastern manufacturers and jobbers, when he ruled it was unconstitutional on its face. It appears that Sen. Franklin Spears of San Antonio, its sponsor, was looking out the window when he accepted a Senate amendment declaring the whole act should fall if it violates the Texas anti-trust laws. Mann held it does violate the anti-trust laws and therefore, by its own declaration, cannot stand. Gov. O'Daniel is expected to veto it, as gossip in Austin has it that the Attorney General agreed to rule on this and other questionable bills for O'Daniel in advance of his signing them, only if the Governor would agree to veto those Mann found unconstitutional. The little Attorney General doesn't want to be put on a spot by declaring a law void, and then having to go into court to try to indicate a fairly even division of sentiment. Even the old folks themselves are not in accord, many expressing the belief that the special interest lobby, knowing the amendment would never get by the House, deliberately espoused it and urged killing all other tax bills, in order to create a deadlock, and avoid any further taxation at present. At any rate, the special interest lobby shed no crocodile tears over defeat of S. J. R. No. 12, for which they worked so earnestly up until the dying moments of the session.

Watching the Race

Sen. Joe Hill of Henderson announced in Dallas that he and several House members would take the stump early in September to resist any "purge" movement by O'Daniel, and tell the folks their side of the taxation controversy. Many observers believed Hill hoped to nourish a boomlet for his candidacy for Governor by this stroke.

The politicians were examining other gubernatorial candidates, real and potential, with a keen eye this week. They pointed out that Coke Stevenson, Lieutenant Governor, will be in a poor position to run for O'Daniel seeks reelection, which is regarded as certain. Stevenson, despite rumors he may be a candidate for Governor, could hardly find an issue against O'Daniel, best observers here believe. He was strongly for S. J. R. 12, and he pledged his full support to O'Daniel and the O'Daniel program during the last runoff campaign, after O'Daniel had endorsed him. Stevenson's friends declare he is too loyal and too grateful for O'Daniel's help last year, to make a race against the governor.

That leaves Rail Commissioner Ernest Thompson, who was runner-up last time, and whose friends declare he is a certain candidate, and Bill McGraw, ex-attorney general. McGraw has been busily making speeches to small groups in North Texas, but has not committed himself as a candidate. He probably sounded the keynote of his present indecision when he told friends recently that he "always made a better race when he didn't have any campaign funds." Attorney General Gerald Mann, with a cinch race without opposition for a second term as Attorney General, has given no indication that he will take a chance in the gubernatorial contest.

AN AMERICAN BUILDER

The American skyscraper is one of the greatest of modern marvels, and the Empire State building in New York represents its highest development. An interesting story of its erection is told by Paul Starrett, the man who built it, in a recent book.

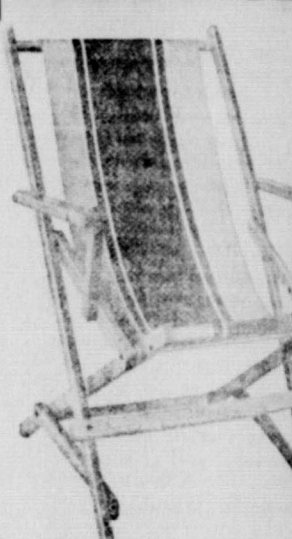

Five leading builders bid on the job and Starrett obtained the contract, agreeing to complete the tallest building in the world in 18 months. He did it in 11 months, in spite of a strike in plants supplying the steel girders during a part of the construction period. Four months were required to tear down the Waldorf-Astoria hotel which formerly occupied the site.

The Empire State is 102 stories high and rises 1,248 feet from the street level. It contains 67,000 tons of steel, and its total weight is 308,000 tons—so heavy that it did not have to be anchored to the ground, yet it sways only two and a half inches in a 100-mile an hour wind.

Mr. Starrett has built many of the country's large structures, including the Plaza, Commodore and Baltimore hotels and the Pennsylvania station in New York, the Blackstone hotel in Chicago, and the Lincoln Memorial in Washington. Now, at the age of 72, he is undertaking the largest housing contract ever let.

But the building of the Empire State, 200 feet higher than any other on earth, will remain his greatest pride and crowning achievement.

PROGRESS

YESTERDAY—Ambitious youngsters upset kitchen routine as they dashed repeating, soldering-irons from kitchen stove to their home-made "superhete" . . . and even the rich, and static "houghten" ones, were lucky if they "got" more than the tuning, at . . . TODAY . . . The world around is yours for the tuning, at the prices the majority can afford to pay—perfected to almost the nth degree. . . .

TOMORROW—You will see the events as they actually happen. Television will be made available to all—and (judged) by our knowledge a few years back) it's very impossibility makes possible further developments even more wonderful. Out of the tinkering of boys a short time ago have come the commercial improvements of scientific developments which lead us to say, as we switch on the radio and built with television rooms. We'll be able to fly away from a ball game during the seventh inning and watch the last two innings as we hurry home in our "flivver" planes to dinner, a hundred miles away.

Nothing seems impossible . . . and therein we have the reason, a foundation of faith in our own intelligence, for the hope and belief we have in our future as the greatest nation on earth.

STAMP CHANGED CANAL

An interesting story of how a postage stamp caused the United States to build the great ship canal at Panama instead of through Nicaragua is told in a Belgian magazine, but we do not guarantee its accuracy.

When the question of whether to select the Panama or the Nicaragua route was before the Senate, there was a lively debate, each route having its champions among the solons. Among the points discussed was that of danger from earthquakes. Senator Wilburn argued against the Nicaragua route, saying it was in highly dangerous volcanic territory. Senator Followly, who favored that route, declared that the president of Nicaragua had solemnly assured him that no volcanic eruptions had occurred in his country for centuries.

A young engineer, who was interested in the Panama project, then showed Senator Wilburn a Nicaragua postage stamp which depicted the Monotombo volcano in eruption. Wilburn immediately obtained enough stamps to place one on the desk of each senator, with a note calling attention to this official admission of volcanic activity.

As a result, Nicaragua was abandoned and the Panama Canal route was approved by a big majority of the Senate.

Great Business Need Is Social Leadership and Responsibility

The power of creative leadership has not departed from business and industry, believes Samuel N. Stevens, business psychologist of Northwestern University. "Neither can I accept the principle," he writes in the current Rotary Magazine, "that extensive socialization of control will produce more in the long run in social outcomes for the workers of the United States as a whole."

But he does hold that management should establish a worthy type of social leadership, uphold high social objectives, and accept social responsibilities for the welfare of its workers.

"If these three social challenges are accepted," he predicts, "such leadership would eliminate industrial unrest by establishing a new kind of partnership between business and labor. It would create real security, not of social-security numbers and unemployment insurance cards, but of programmed work. People would regain habits of self-reliance and self-sufficiency which anxiety and suffering have caused them to lose."

These things can come if business leaders accept the larger responsibilities inherent in their place in the economic system.

Because industrial management would not voluntarily shoulder the burdens which such an outlook makes necessary, today it finds itself robbed of many traditional prerogatives, he adds.

A few years ago businessmen were able to dictate the conditions of work, rates of pay, hours of work, and who should or should not be employed, but this is strikingly not true today, he points out. There has been a flood of restrictive legislation, state and federal, which, for example, sets definite standards of health and safety in industry, makes workmen's compensation compulsory, and dictates the terms of old-age pensions and unemployment insurance.

Besides, Dr. Stevens shows, the growth of unions and the fact that many of their edicts now have the force of law further tie the hands of management, and present trends indicate that more rather than less outside pressure will be exerted on industry in the future.

Seeking the cause for this striking loss of privileges, Dr. Stevens finds it in the anti-social attitude of a minority of business organizations, "chiselers" whose unscrupulous practices have made necessary the legal attack on the abuses they allowed. To combat the unenlightened attitude of the few is the mass of legislation and restrictions under which every company now must function if it is to function at all.

POPULAR TOWN NAMES

If someone were to ask you what is the most popular name for towns in the United States, what would you guess? Unless you had checked up the names in the United States Postal Guide, it is safe to say that you would not hit upon the right name in a dozen guesses.

Of course, Washington would suggest itself, also Springfield, possibly Paris. But neither of them is the leader, although Washington stands in the second rank.

The most popular town name in the United States is Clinton, of which there are 30 having postoffices.

Next comes Chester, Florence, and Washington with 28 towns of each name; then Clayton, Madison, Marion and Troy, 22; Glenwood, Kingsport, Newport and Salem, 26; Ashland and Centerville, 25.

There are 24 Cleverlands and the same number of Springfields, several of them being important cities. Other names range from this number downward. There is only one New York, but two Chicagos, 6 Philadelphias and 8 Detroits.

The outstanding popularity of the name Clinton is somewhat difficult to understand, although two statesmen of that name were very prominent in the early days of the republic.

George Clinton was the first governor of the state of New York and was vice president of the United States at the time of his death in 1812. His nephew, DeWitt Clinton, was also governor of New York and an unsuccessful candidate for the presidency, being defeated by Madison.

Whether it be through the fame of these statesmen or the euphony of the name itself, Clinton is the favorite name for towns in the United States.

Tabulating the breakfast habits of a class of seniors and comparing them with their scholarship, she found a definite superiority in the ratings of those who ate breakfast over those who did not.

"Sacrament" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, July 9.
The Golden Text is: "Create in me a clean heart, O God; and renew a right spirit within me" (Psalms 51:10).
Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Jesus saith unto them, Children, have ye any meat? They answered him, No. And he said unto them, Cast the net on the right side of the ship, and ye shall find. They cast therefore, and now they were not able to draw it for the multitude of fishes" (John 21:5, 6).
The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science Textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The nature of Christianity is peaceful and blessed, but in order to enter into the kingdom, the anchor of hope must be cast beyond the veil of matter into the Shekinah into which Jesus has passed before us" (pages 40 and 41).

OUR WEEKLY SERMON
By Rev. Chauncey B. Nordland, Extension Director, Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.
The Christian and Prayer
Text: Praying always with all prayer and supplication in the Spirit, and watching thereunto with all perseverance and supplication for all saints.—Ephesians 6:18.
Prayer for most people seems to be a forgotten art. We do not expect the people of the world to know anything about the value of prayer, but Christians should pray without ceasing. There are many reasons for our being constantly in the attitude of prayer, but among the chief reasons we should like to suggest that God commands us to pray and invites us to come to Him as our loving heavenly Father; and as long as men have unceasing needs there should be unceasing prayer.
The man who makes light of prayer is to be pitied. He robs himself of one of the highest privileges to which a mortal can aspire, and he misses much comfort, courage, and high aspiration that might be his for the asking. No large growth, whether in holiness or any other Christian characteristic, has ever been attained without the giving of time to be often and long alone with God.
The Bible contains many summonses to prayer. "Ask and ye shall receive." "Men ought always to pray, and not to faint." "Pray that ye enter not into temptation." "Pray without ceasing."

Our Lord Jesus Christ has given us the best example of one who prayed unceasingly, and His prayer life should be, as is every part of His life, an example and a guide to us. After strenuous days He spent long nights in prayer. He prayed before He chose His disciples and when He sent them forth. He prayed before He uttered the command and brought Lazarus forth from among the dead. He prayed on the Mount of Transfiguration, and His disciples received an answer to that prayer, a foregleam of the glory that they should enjoy throughout eternity with Him. In that last fellowship supper in the upper room we find Him in prayer. Before He went to His death on Calvary's cross He prostrated Himself before His heavenly Father in Gethsemane. On the cross in the midst of suffering He prayed, and even now seated on the right hand of the Father He continues His intercessory ministry for those for whom He died. If Christ must pray, how much more ought we to pray!
The apostle Paul enjoins God's people to pray always. This means to be at all times in the spirit of prayer. It does not necessarily mean that we should spend all of our time on our knees, but that our hearts should be attuned to His heart. Whether in the midst of difficult tasks or in the hustle and bustle of everyday life we should instantly turn to Him and give expression to the deepest desires of our hearts.
We have one whom Christ has sent, even the Holy Spirit, who will lead us in our prayers. He summons us to pray; He puts the prayers upon our hearts if we are yielded to Him, and He translates our prayers in terms which are acceptable to God.
Paul also says we should pray with entreaties. This means that there should be an eager quest for something. It means that we should be in dead earnest.
Every need we have is a summons to prayer. Our God is a God of grace. His is an open invitation. He has said, "Come." Do you have burdens, sorrows, fears, spiritual thirst, hunger? God invites you to come, and He who is our all-sufficient heavenly Father is more anxious to give us the desires and needs that are ours than we are to give in answer to petitions from our earthly children.
Prayer also promotes the growth of the spiritual life. It has been said that we become like those with whom we associate. One cannot spend time alone with God without partaking of His nature, and we soon discover that the more time we spend with Him the richer become our spiritual experiences.
Nor should it be forgotten that prayer brings power. We cannot tell how or why, but we soon come to know the truth of the statement that God through prayer changes things. If we can but realize the effectiveness and the true value of prayer in a day of increasing need, there will be on the part of those of us who belong to God increasing and unceasing prayer.

Foard County Farmers Have Lost Approximately $8,000 Each Year on Soil Building Payments

An estimated amount of $8,000 per year has been lost by farmers of Foard County in soil building payments since the Government farm program started in 1933.

The AAA has placed approximately $17,000 at the disposal of Foard County farmers, to assist them in carrying out practices such as terracing, seeding legumes, establishing pastures and planting green manure and cover crops—that is, practices which conserve or build up the soil.

Grain sorghums if plowed or disked under before heading will qualify under the practice in Montgomery, Wise, Parker, Hood, Somervell, Bosque, Coryell, Bell, Williamson, Travis, Hays, Comal, Bexar, Wilson, Karnes, Bee, San Patricio, Nueces, and Kleberg and all counties east of those named.

Each acre of the following counts at two units ($3): 1. Seeding adapted varieties of alfalfa. 2. Seeding permanent grasses or pasture mixtures containing a full seeding of Rhodes grass, Dalias, grama, or Bermuda grass.

This practice applies only in Dallas, Deaf Smith, Hansford, Hartley, Hutchinson, Lipscomb, Moore, Ochiltree and Oldham.

Each acre of the following counts as one unit (15 cents an acre): 1. Seeding small grain crops for harvest in 1939 on a contour run with a farm level or surveyor's instrument or on established terraces.

of the work of making a crop has already been destroyed in the Southwest. The insect may yet rob us of the fruits of our labor, if we are not alert to meet them.

The methods and machinery for the control of flea hopper, boll weevil, leaf worm and boll worm have been thoroughly tested and worked out by the state and Federal agencies supported by your taxes for that purpose.

The soil-building payment is made in addition to the regular conservation payment for planting green manure, and is separate also from the price adjustment, or parity payment.

Weldon P. Hermy, secretary of the County Agricultural Conservation Committee, makes the following explanation of how the soil-building payment is earned.

Each acre of the following counts as three units ($4.50) in establishing a permanent vegetative cover by planting sod pieces of perennial grasses, on land containing sufficient moisture to start the grass.

the northern cotton territory of the Southwest the flea hopper may still be the most serious pest at this season of the year.

The best available information on how and when to fight insects can be had by any cotton grower, on request to his county agent or state experiment station.

(1) Fifty cents per acre of cropland in excess of the total soil-depleting allotment for the farm.

(2) One dollar and fifty cents per acre of commercial orchards on the farm January 1, 1939.

Each acre of forest trees planted as specified in the regulations counts as five units ($7.50).

TRACTOR OPERATORS—Our stock of parts is complete and we can supply you with any part you need.

CAR OWNERS—No matter how big or how small your want may be, we invite you to ask us for it, because from our large stock, we are sure we can have you the needed part in a moment's notice.

Chevrolet Vacuum Gearshift Meets Approval of Public

Rarely has a new automotive feature scored such a hit with the public as has the new vacuum gearshift with steering column control, introduced by Chevrolet on its 1939 models.

Simplicity characterizes the new gearshift, according to Ed Hedner, national director of service for Chevrolet.

(3) Two cents per acre of non-cropland open pasture land plus $1 per animal unit of grazing capacity.

To show how this maximum assistance for soil-building practices is figured, take a farm with 200 acres of tilled land, a cotton allotment of 60 acres, 3 acres of commercial orchards, 150 acres of noncrop open pasture land with a grazing capacity of 8 animal units, and a total soil-depleting allotment of 135 acres.

Each acre of the following counts as one unit ($1.50): 1. Seeding biennial or perennial legumes, perennial grasses (other than timothy or red top), or mixtures containing perennial grasses, perennial legumes, or biennial legumes.

Because the vacuum shift enables the motorist to drive without removing either hand from the wheel, increased safety of operation is one of the advantages directly traceable to the new device.

In this example, $48 is the largest amount available to assist the farmer in carrying out soil-building practices.

Soil-building practices are measured in terms of units. For example, construction of 200 linear feet of terrace qualifies as one unit of practice; seeding an acre of alfalfa counts as two units; an acre of green manure counts as one unit; each eight acres of contour farming with inter-tilled crops rates as one unit.

THOUGHTS OF SERIOUS MOMENTS He who can conceal his joys is greater than he who can hide his griefs.—John Casper Lavater.

Each of the following counts as one unit ($1.50): 1. talks by Rev. Johnson, John E. Long and R. K. Ayers. Rev. Johnson spoke concerning the revival meeting now in progress at the Methodist Church in which he is doing the preaching. Mr. Long told of the Boy Scout camp held at Camp Boulder in Oklahoma last week, and also introduced Ted Crosnoe, who won the $5.00 prize offered by C. P. Sandifer for the "best camper" of the 24 boys from Crowell and Truscott in attendance. Mr. Sandifer, in a short talk, presented the prize to which Ted responded. Ted was also elected to membership in the national fraternal Order of the Arrow along with John Clark Long and John E. Long at the close of the camp last Sunday.

A talk by R. K. Ayers, executive of the Boy Scouts of America in the Wichita Falls area, closed the program. Clean Up Your Own Front Yard First, Advises Van Loon

"The only way in which we can ever hope to bring about a happier state of human affairs is by doing so first of all within our own bailiwick," Hendrik Willem van Loon, genial philosopher-historian, cautions would-be reformers in the current Rotarian Magazine. "Our present world is nothing to be proud of," he admits, "and is sadly in need of a complete overhaul." But how best to change this gloomy picture? In answering this question, Van Loon asks that he be not suspected of any undue optimism. "Both by nature and by training," he explains, "I am rather a follower of the doctrine which holds out mighty small hope for the future of the human race. But if I am entirely honest with myself, then I must confess that, given just one per cent of one per cent of a chance, the average man is not quite so bad as we sometimes depict him in all his sorrowful cussedness and greed. And I have discovered that on the whole he will function best of all if we appeal to his sense of duty as a good neighbor, rather than if we

(Continued from Page One) tie for Mayberry & Crawford of Graham, Young County, who at that time purchased what is now the Masterson Ranch near Truscott. In the winter of 1883, Mr. Moody returned to Wise County and in the spring went to Franklin County. From that county, he returned to King County with a herd of 1,200 head of cattle owned by the Stevens Brothers. He entered the employment of Garrittson Brothers in the summer of 1883, and remained with this outfit for 7 or 8 years. At this time, the larger ranches of this area were the Moon Ranch, DDD Ranch, Farr Ranch, Dykes & Yarber and Gunner Brothers. Mr. Moody worked for the DDD outfit, part time, from 1880 to 1893.

Buys Own Ranch

Mr. Moody stopped purchasing cows in 1894, at which time he left the employ of the DDD Ranch, and purchased a small ranch one mile northwest of Truscott on Bluff Creek. He still owns the ranch, which is stocked with about 200 head of cattle. "First Families Came in 1882" During the first few years that Mr. Moody lived here there were no families, only cowboys and other men who had come to prepare homes in this part of the West. The first families came in 1882, and these lived in dugouts built near China Lake, one mile west of Truscott, which served as the Dempsey Ranch headquarters. Mr. Dempsey purchased this ranch, then a sheep ranch, from Lou and John Casner soon after shearing time in 1881. The dugouts, of which the ruins still remain, were built by C. H. Bedford, who at that time was on of the biggest ranchman in this part of Texas. In reviewing living conditions of those days, Mr. Moody said that things were "rough enough" but they did not starve. There was practically no sickness, but if anyone was injured, he had to go to Seymour for the nearest doctor.

There was very little, if any, cattle rustling during the early days, but there was some brand burning, by which means brands on cattle were changed. Some were caught but the arrest of a "brand burner" created little excitement, because, as Mr. Moody stated, "when a 'brand burner' was captured he was 'lawed' around for a while and then turned loose." Court was held in Seymour in those days, as Baylor and Knox Counties were not divided until 1885.

During the early days, cattle were driven to markets at Gainesville and Fort Worth. Mr. Moody made two drives to Gainesville, taking cattle to market. These trips took about 17 to 20 days to complete.

First Postoffices The vicinity which is now Truscott received its first mail from the postoffice at Pease City and later Margaret. Mail was brought in by bookkeepers. Later mail was delivered from Benjamin and was brought to the postoffice on horseback. When the railroad reached that part of Knox County in 1908, the postoffice was moved to what is now the city of Truscott.

Remembers First Well In speaking of Mr. Moody's remarkable memory, this fact is again brought out when he told of attending the Doan's picnic recently and picking out the place where he helped Bill Druid dig a well, which was probably the first well dug in this area, and this was the first time that he had returned to Doan's Crossing since the 1880's when he spent three days working on the well. Although the well has been filled up and all traces gone for many years, he was able to pick out the location by trees.

Born in Bowie County Mr. Moody was born in Bowie County, near Texarkana, on December 19, 1861, but moved from there in 1862 with his parents to Wise County. They later went
