Motor Vehicle Owners Must Have Papers on All Cars

Due to drastic changes in the registration and transfer laws, it will be absolutely necessary for every car owner to have all papers on their cars or trucks before they can be re-registered, it was announced Wednesday by A. W. Lilly, tax assessor-collector.

The proper papers will include a certificate of title on the vehicle. To neglect this matter might cause a long delay in registering a car, Mr. Lilly stated. In the past the public has always managed to get cars registered some way, whether car owners had the proper papers or not, but from now on it will be impossible for the tax collector to register a car without all necessary papers.

DARING DESTRUCTION TEST in Fearful Death Valley Gives New oil a Plain Record for Long-Lasting Protection Why 5-Quart fill — none added — lasted 13,398 miles... Certified When you're wringing wet these days, just think of Death Valley. It holds the official U.S. record of 134° hot. Wild animals there rarely come out in the heat of day. You'll admit that's a hotspot for testing any motor oil. And that's exactly where 6 representative oils got a fair trial for their lives—to give you up-to-date certified mileage figures. NEW CONOCO Nth MOTOR OIL gave more than Twice the mileage averaged by all others tested This Death Valley mileage record is today making sales records for Conoco Nth oil — popular-priced. And here's how this oil was proved for you in advance—by a daring Destruction Test: 6 identical new stock coupes were broken in alike. Test officials had checked engines, part by part, insuring uniformity. The Referee bought 5 big-name oils at retail. The other oil was the same new Conoco Nth that you can buy today. The Referee put one strict 5-quart fill in each engine; locked it up tight. Never a drop could be added. All cars ran 57 miles an hour—in the same Death Valley desert—on the same sizzling days. Drivers switched around to even up human factors. Impartial observers eyed every move—every mile. CERTIFIED I hereby certify that the Death Valley Test and related work were thoroughly and fairly conducted. Engine Destruction occurred in each case at the mileage stated. H. M. Jackson Consulting Engineer, who during Academic year Professor of Automotive Engineering, Purdue University CONOCO Nth MOTOR OIL Man-Made new Economy aid in Conoco Nth In this patented oil there's an extra life-giver. Man-made. It's full name is Thialhene inhibitor—an inhibitor being something that does the job of keeping a thing in check. Now your engine's normal explosions can't help causing foul leftovers. These must be properly kept in check to keep them from making your oil "fester," get weak and pass out. But you know how Conoco Nth oil "beat the rap" in Death Valley. It stood up better . . . by as much as 161%. Of course you're not in the business of test-driving, doing all the most furious things. You just want to run every fill right up to as many miles as qualified authorities say is safe for your car. And without trying to "stretch it out," you still ought to save plenty on Conoco Nth. For you can figure by the record that Conoco Nth can take you a whole of a way between quarts. Change today at Your Mileage Merchant's Conoco station. Teach me thy way, O Lord, and lead me in a plain path.—Psalm 27:11.

We have just finished reading a book on self-improvement. The theme of the writer of the book is that everyone should check up, give himself a thorough audit at least once a year, discover his weakest spot and set about earnestly and diligently to correct it. One new spot corrected each year, according to this writer, will result in very noticeable improvement in the course of a few years.

It is being predicted that within the next three months the country will experience a transition into a war economy. Controls will be more exacting and there will be more burdensome restrictions. Even this country isn't so big and resourceful but that it will feel the burden and the brunt of a defense program as big as the one now before it.

It is an old saying "politics make strange bedfellows." War, it seems, is like politics in this particular. Six months ago imagine England allied with Russia, Finland allied with Hitler and the United States allied with Russia.

One-half of safe driving is driving carefully yourself and the other half is looking out for the other driver who shouldn't be driving a car because he is incompetent to be trusted with one.

They're Going Away by the Thousands—on

MOVIE VACATION

Most people, all over the country, are desperately busy these days. Many haven't time for long vacations; some are waiting for them. But thousands upon thousands have discovered the restful relaxation of frequent, short "vacations" at the movies.

A movie vacation will rest you in body—and more important still—in mind. You'll come out of your favorite theatre with a completely changed point of view. Work and problems that seemed difficult will become much easier. All because, for a cost reckoned only in pennies, you've seen interesting places, watched different people, heard interesting talk.

Not far away from you is such a movie vacation. Turn to page 8 for the most convenient listing of the offerings of your local theatre.

Helping Hand

One reason you see so much advertising is this:

It helps people with something to sell to find customers.

It helps those folks called "consumers" to find out about things they want to buy.

All of which is another way of saying advertising saves a lot of time for everyone.

That's why advertising pays—on both sides of the counter.

We can't decide which is worse, to listen to a man tell us about his bad luck or listen to one brag on how shrewd and smart he is.

As far as our observation goes the fellow who uses his own judgment in making his decisions does not make nearly so many mistakes as does the individual who has to talk his problems over with everyone he knows before he decides what he should do.

Once a man decides to keep his ear to the ground and never take a stand on matters of public interest until he discovers what the sentiment of the public is he seals his fate. Such a man may continue in office for some time but he will never go down in history as a leader. History will merely mention him as one of those who "also served."

An oil shortage exists in the East due to the fact that fifty tankers which have been engaged in transporting oil by water to the eastern seaboard have been turned over to Great Britain. The government is considering taking over an additional 50 to 100 tankers for the British. If this is done it is said compulsory rationing of gasoline will become necessary in the eastern states. A pipe line to supply this area is being planned but is it not likely that construction could be completed before two years?

Wheat farmers are objecting to the 40-cent penalty assessed on each bushel of wheat produced above the individual allotment. When the quota was accepted by 80 per cent of the wheat growers last May they also accepted the penalty of one-half the basic loan rate for over quota production. According to Secretary Wickard the adoption of the quota system was for the purpose of holding down production. Without the program farmers would today be receiving less than 40 cents a bushel on all their wheat.

According to a neighboring editor there is not much danger of a revolution in this country for the reason that not enough people get mad enough about the same thing at the same time.

OUT OF HARM'S WAY!

What We Think

Hundreds and thousands of children in this country, what must be their interest in human and social welfare, are being treated with no more consideration for their welfare than are the children of the lands that we often refer to with a note of regret as being uncivilized and heathen.

I refer to the children of those families in which the parents are either incompetent or unwilling to give to their children a semblance of the care to which they are entitled.

Every small community has one or more such families and, unfortunately, more of them.

These parents, through ignorance, indifference or selfishness, allow the children to grow up wild, neglected, untrained and uncared for.

Such children, until they come in contact with their first school teacher, never know the simplest rules of sanitation and social conduct. Patterning after their parents they grow up knowing no different and surrounded with a background that handicaps them for years. The first several years of their lives are spent correcting in themselves the faults and errors and social habits that their home life has put into their lives.

Some day when we become more intelligent we are going to worry less about the children of other lands of whose rearing we are now critical and devise a means whereby children of this country in undesirable surroundings can be taken from worthless and incompetent parents, and in some state institution given the care and the rearing to which they are entitled.

I am aware that the suggestion is going to meet with an instant protest. There will be those who contend that, however inefficient and indifferent they may be, the place for the children is with their parents, that it would be wrong and cruel to deprive the parents of them even though they are indifferent to their welfare, do not know how to care for them, or properly rear them.

With this I do not agree, because I believe that when it comes to a question of the welfare of the child and the desires of the parents, the welfare of the child comes first.

If our professed interest in human welfare means anything it means that the children of the race are entitled to a square deal. I contend they do not get it when they are forced to live in a home in which the surroundings are squalid, and filthy, made so by lazy, worthless, inefficient and incompetent parents who waste such money as comes into their hands with drink and other foolish expenditures and make the children pay the price of their own selfishness.

How anyone can contend that such a parent has any rights that should be considered above the rights of the child, I am unable to understand. That such a home is a better place to rear a child, than a properly conducted institution with Christian personnel and sanitary surroundings, a home atmosphere and wholesome food, I am willing to admit.

The solution is not simple by any means, but that does not mean that there is not a solution and that a solution should not be applied.

Senator Connally Heads Big Committee

Washington, D. C. — Texas Senior Senator Tom Connally has been selected by the Senate of the United States to head the powerful Foreign Relations Committee. Senator Connally is the first Texan to have ever gained this distinctive honor.

Senator Connally is particularly well suited for his new assignment, with his years of service on the committee in both the House and Senate, his knowledge of conditions gained by personal visits to all sections of the world, and his acknowledged debating ability.

Industry Gears Itself to Demands of National Defense

As American industry gears its vast resources in response to the demands of national defense, veteran truck men recall echoes of an earlier day when the motor truck, a relatively untried factor in the transport picture, was "drafted" to play a major role in defense activities.

Harking back to the 1917-1918 scene, W. E. Fish, manager of Chevrolet's commercial car department, contrasted the two periods. "At that time, the motor truck—of which only 355,407 were produced in the two-year period—was considered primarily as a piece of equipment to work side by side with the draft horse at fundamentally the same sort of job. No truck manufacturer could foresee the versatility of the commercial car nor the vital influence it was to have in American life.

"In the five-year period beginning in 1914, only 546,437 trucks were produced, and their manufacture was spurred to a measurable extent, by government order, as army transport officials visualized the role the truck could play.

"By contrast, during the past five years 3,824,857 trucks have rolled from the assembly lines of the nation's motor manufacturers, and in 1940, a total of 4,650,000 trucks were in use throughout the country.

"Today the truck does hundreds of jobs undreamed of in 1914 and does them with an efficiency that would amaze the designers of those pioneer models. Yet today's commercial cars produce more power, operate with far greater efficiency, run more economically, and cost as little as a third the price of the average truck in 1914.

Office Workers Should Have More Exercise, Says Health Officer

Austin.—"The average person, if considering the question at all, likely will conclude that the white-collar worker lacks hazards such as surround the man or woman in industry. Accident prevention campaigns, which have been directed toward making the plants safer places in which to operate, have given rise to this popular notion. Nevertheless, the fact remains that those in offices also are confronted with hazards which are no less real simply because they are somewhat intangible and often insidious in their effects," states Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer.

"A prominent health educator recently topped his list of office hazards with the swivel chair. He indicated that in its virtue lies its vice. Being comfortable, the office worker either by choice or a measure of necessity remains in it. Thus its harm is not of itself, but in the physical inaction for which it is responsible, coupled with bad posture due to undisciplined sitting.

"Again the male office worker, despite his comparative physical inactivity is prone to consume more food than is good for him. Excess weight in many cases results. And excess weight can be a health liability. On the other hand, a limited number of the female contingent are likely to be too streamlined-conscious. Over-emphasizing this idea frequently results in breakfastless days, light lunches, and insufficient dinners.

Malnourishment with its untoward effect upon well-being, as well as a consequent lack of resistance to disease, is neither conducive to health nor maximum vitality.

"Emphasis on the need of physical conditioning as a direct result of the present emergency should be reflected to some extent in a constructive change in the office worker's habits. More daily exercise in the open, a more rational attitude toward food from both the over-eating and under-eating standpoints, adequate amount of sleep, and a curb on excesses of all kinds are natural buffers against the disadvantages to which the office population is subjected.

In factories safety committees, safety education, and protected machinery so much to eliminate industrial hazards. On the other hand, in the office the removal of less pronounced but just as real hazards depend largely upon personal interest, understanding, and action."

Men with Deferred Military Service Urged to Assist

All Selective Service registrants in Texas who have been deferred from military service by war were urged this week by General J. Watt Page, State Director, to offer their full assistance to State and local civilian defense agencies.

Many young men have been granted deferments because of their occupations, because they have dependents, or because they are not physically capable of undergoing service in the armed forces, General Page said. Nevertheless, he added, they are qualified to perform some work in connection with civilian defense activities and should offer their services to existing agencies or those which are being organized.

DO YOU THINK IT IS GOOD BUSINESS... INSURANCE IS CHEAP COMPARED TO THE PROTECTION YOU GET... Hughston Insurance Agency

Act of 1940, gave no indication that it intended to excuse these men from the obligation which rests upon every young man—that of helping his country in times of emergency. General Page pointed out. Every man is expected to do his share, in one way or another, when a crisis threatens the national security. He said.

"They can do their part by offering their services in the interest of civilian defense. In the very near future, almost every community will be engaged in civilian defense activities. Such activities, of course, cover a wide range and should include tasks for all young men who are deferred from military training."

No young man should shirk his responsibility if it is humanly possible for him to take part in the increasing civilian defense activities, General Page said.

May God's blessings be upon each of you. Mrs. Cleve Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Orville Grimm, Mr. and Mrs. Pete Gamble, and Other Relatives. An experimental school for child geniuses has been opened in New York. The school accepts children between 3 1/2 and 5 1/2 years old and instructs them for seven years. Only pupils with an IQ ranging between 134 and 194 are accepted. The 56 students meeting these requirements are above the average in health. They are of all races including three negroes. The parents of the children are for the most part physicians, lawyers and professional men, though one mother is completely uneducated and one father is a chauffeur. Considerable rivalry was exhibited on the part of parents to secure admission of their children into the school. Our Weekly Sermon

By Rev. Ralph E. Stewart, Associate Director Radio Station WMBI, Chicago.

What is Salvation? The question, What is Salvation? is one of the most vital that can be asked.

Its importance can be seen from the fact that salvation is the great concern of heaven. Listen to God as He speaks through the prophet Isaiah to a wayward, haughty, and stiff-necked people: "Come now, and let us reason together... though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool" (Isa. 1:18).

speed up my return and still get back at sunset." He made a great effort and came back just as the sun was sinking in the west. But he had overexerted himself, and he dropped dead of a heart attack.

What shall it profit a man if he is able to get everything else in the world and lose his own soul? The answer is obvious—it profits him nothing.

Salvation was the great concern of the apostle Paul. He declared, "I could wish that myself were accursed from Christ for my brethren;" "I am made all things to all men, that I might by all means save some."

But, in the third place, salvation should be the supreme concern of man for himself. "What shall it profit a man, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul?" (Mark 8:36).

The story is told of a man who was offered all the land that he could encircle from sunrise to sunset. He set out early in the morning to run as fast as he could, and determined in his heart that he would run until the sun was high overhead and then he would retrace his steps, and thus encircle as wide a territory as possible.

But when noontime came he looked up and saw other wooded lands and well-watered plains. He thought to himself, "I will run just a little farther and then through the prophet Isaiah to a wayward, haughty, and stiff-necked people: "Come now, and let us reason together... though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool" (Isa. 1:18).

What shall it profit a man if he is able to get everything else in the world and lose his own soul? The answer is obvious—it profits him nothing.

Salvation was the great concern of the apostle Paul. He declared, "I could wish that myself were accursed from Christ for my brethren;" "I am made all things to all men, that I might by all means save some."

But, in the third place, salvation should be the supreme concern of man for himself. "What shall it profit a man, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul?" (Mark 8:36).

The story is told of a man who was offered all the land that he could encircle from sunrise to sunset. He set out early in the morning to run as fast as he could, and determined in his heart that he would run until the sun was high overhead and then he would retrace his steps, and thus encircle as wide a territory as possible.

speed up my return and still get back at sunset." He made a great effort and came back just as the sun was sinking in the west. But he had overexerted himself, and he dropped dead of a heart attack.

What shall it profit a man if he is able to get everything else in the world and lose his own soul? The answer is obvious—it profits him nothing.

Texas Chamber of Commerce Planes Fight for Equalization Freight Rates for Texas

West Texas Chamber of Commerce is in action again in fight for equalization of freight rates for Texas, according to information received by this week.

By its affiliate, the State Equalization Federation, the Chamber has made formal plea to Interstate Commerce Commission to be deterred from its investigation of transportation charges in various States with the view of leveling the rate as between the various defined territories.

This broad federal inquiry of the regional chamber, which is its logical conclusion, is to strike down the discriminatory rate structure being proposed by Texas producers and consumers. Charges are 60 to 85 percent above those in official level. The WTCC contends that level is an outrageous penalty against Texas.

By the WTCC and FREF petition with the ICC asking for denial and reversal of a pleading entered by the railroad of the United States to indefinitely postpone the rate inquiry. The petition for postponement followed an ICC in St. Louis last month, commission investigators results of a two years' interterritorial rate study with resulting recommendations for sweeping revisions. By C. G. Jensen, ICC member, brought recommendations to the level of class rates in western territory, including, as reduced 30 to 40 percent.

Railroads did not like the study. They have, in fact, strenuously to the interterritorial rate study. By formal pleading they asked that it be halted—this on the ground that times and conditions are abnormal and that, during the national emergency, the question of freight rate adjustment should be put on ice. The West Texas Chamber of Commerce and Freight Rate Equalization Federation have gone into action against this contention. Their brief, filed Saturday with the ICC, sets out, in summary:

That now, when democracy throughout the world is being challenged, is no time for the agencies of democracy to cease functioning; that the ICC, as one of the great agencies of American democracy, should now as never before be diligent and alert in carrying out its constitutional and statutory duties.

That while an emergency bringing abnormal conditions does exist, it applies relatively and equally to all sections of the country and therefore does not disturb the relationship of transportation costs and rates as between the various territories, or as between the carriers on the one hand and the shippers, producers and consumers of goods moving in transportation on the other hand.

And that—quoting from the petition—"that there is something wrong with our national freight rate situation... is evidenced by many recent events. The possibility of gasless Sundays in the East, while there exist unlimited reserves and potentials in the Southwest, presents a national problem." The petition then goes on in support of the existence of such a problem, to quote from the ICC itself: from President Roosevelt's report on economic conditions in the South; from the report of the National Resources Planning Board rate inequalities; and from House Document No. 264, Congress of the United States, holding that "the freight rate structure of the railroads... is the complicated product of former days." Wherefore, say the WTCC and FREF, "we believe an immediate inquiry into the rates of the various territories is a national necessity... and respectfully pray that the petition of respondent rail carriers be denied and that these (ICC) proceedings be conducted to final disposition."

The petition is signed by J. Thomas Davis, president of the West Texas chamber of commerce;

J. M. Wilson, heading the Freight Rate Equality Federation; D. A. Bandoe, manager of both; and W. R. Ely, of Abilene, their counsel. A statement by the WTCC manager said: "The railroads are sending copies of their petitions for postponement to thousands of shippers throughout the country, asking them to join the carriers in tying up this great national inquiry. To offset this, our organizations are urging our affiliates, the FREF alone having 136 different organizations with more than 400,000 members on their rolls, to join us in asking the Interstate Commerce Commission to request the Attorney General of Texas to take similar action by filing an independent petition supporting the ICC, under a legislative mandate given his department last year, when $30,000 was appropriated for the ensuing biennium for prosecution of a Texas case before the ICC."

The Class 1 railroads have been joined in their objection to the proceedings by the Central Official Territory Rate conference, and by the governors of the states of New York and Michigan. Arranged to date on the other side—with WTCC and FREF—asking that the ICC continue the inquiry, are the American Trucking Ass'n, Inc., and affiliated motor carrier associations in the Southwestern, Central, Mid-Atlantic, Western and Southern territories; also the Southern Governors freight rate conference composed of the governors of Tennessee, Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina and South Carolina.

Finally, as additional token of national interest in and concern over the case, filing of another petition opposing the railroads' postponement plea was announced Monday by the public service commissions of Alabama and nine other Southern and Southeastern states.

Two Minute Sermon

(By Thomas Hastwell)

When One's Spiritual Battery Is Down: I talked recently with a man who was deeply disturbed over the fact that he was about to lose his position. His worry not only unfitted him for his work, but unfitted him for seeking a new position. I asked him why he did not try praying about it. "I've tried that," he said, "many times, but it doesn't help me. I can't seem to get the help I need and must have from it. The incident reminded me of one morning recently when I went out to start my car. It was a cold morning and the battery would not turn over the engine. I had to have the battery recharged before I could start the car. Prayer is like that. Unless an individual builds up his spiritual faith in advance he cannot expect to turn to it when the need is great. The individual who never learns the secret of prayer when emergency and need comes finds himself like my car battery on the cold morning, too low in spiritual energy to lift himself out of his problems. God realized that man would have need of prayer in this troublous world, but like many other bless-
