Appli-cations are accepted by the county agricultural conservation committee for the county in which the equipment is to be used. A veteran must show that he has need for the equipment, that he has been unable to obtain new or used equipment, and that supply-ing of new equipment will tend to increase food production.

Preference certificates are issued for each item of equipment based on minimum needs as determined by the local committee. The certificates are presented to a local dealer, who is required to give such orders priority, provided the veteran meets the price and sale terms for payment for the equipment. Because of recent extensive work interruptions in steel production and the present work stoppages in farm machinery man-ufacturing plants, production of most essential items during February was extremely low and preference certificates were es-pecially needed to obtain equipment.

Rollin'em faster
on the Santa Fe

Santa Fe serves the Southwest with two main lines.

The northern route runs across the plains of Kansas, southeastern Colorado, and goes over the mountains at Raton Pass.

The southern route leans south in eastern Kansas, runs through Oklahoma, the Texas Panhandle (where it is joined by other Santa Fe lines serving Texas), crosses central New Mexico, and joins the northern route again near Albuquerque. Along these main lines Santa Fe has increased its yard facilities, etraightened out curves and length-ened sidings to handle more freight

Centralized Traffic Control sys: tems have been installed, virtually adding another "main line" to important parts of the Santa Fe.

A great new double-track steel bridge across the Colorado River removes the "bottleneck" created by the old single track bridge it replaces. 80 giant 5400-horsepower Diesel locomotives-the most powerful freight Diesels in the world-are pulling heavy freights over our ly strong. I remember asking my mother why spiders spun such beautiful webs. The spider web which the spider lives. One day as I was looking at a web a large fly blunderingly flew into it and became entangled in its meshes. Instantly the spider rushed out of his hiding place and begun to cast fine strands of web about the struggling fly. Two or three times the fly almost escaped but the spider cast more and more webs about him tying him tighter and tighter. At last the fly was bound to the spider by many webs which he securely by many webs which he could not break. He was a prisoner and the spider could do with him as he wished. How like the web of a spider is wrong doing. The first time an individual yields to wrong he can break away and perhaps the second and the third and maybe many times. But eventually, like the spider and the fly the web of habit has bound him up, until struggle as he will, he cannot escape. In the beginning we can all escape from wrong doing but as the habit grows it bewe become a victim to a sin that has gradually become our master.

We are bound helpless by an invisible web.

There were 35,000 new homes built during the month of January, but 25,000 is such a small ary, but 25,000 is such a small per cent of the number needed that it hasn't eased the shortage born in the United States, but on hanged at the Execution Dock in the Island of Nevis.
