No. 1 Effie Bell Awaiting Orders Wednesday Morning

Lucerne Corporation of Dallas, Dilworth Hager and Magnolia Petroleum Company have reported an official 24-hour potential of 143 barrels of 40.3 gravity oil for their No. 1 Maude E. Rasberry, nine miles northwest of Crowell. It is a Caddo discovery. Flow was through 18-64 inch choke from open hole at 6137-60 feet. Gas-oil ratio was 261-1. The discovery is in section 26, block A, SPRR survey. The No. 1 Rasberry was originally drilled by the Ohio Oil Company and abandoned at 5736 feet in April, 1950. Lucerne et al re-entered the hole, drilled deeper and set 5 1/2-inch casing at 6137 feet. Panhandle Discovery The second wildcard in Foard County that is attracting considerable attention is Panhandle Oil Corporation's No. 1 Effie Bell, a conglomerate discovery in the Abb Luce survey, three miles southeast of Crowell. There has been no previous conglomerate production in Foard County. Nearest oil production in the county to Panhandle's venture is about 10 miles northeast, in the Thalia sector, where production is in the Cisco series. Panhandle Oil has reported logging five conglomerate sections in its No. 1 Bell at 5242-60, 5302-08, 5326-32, 5335-48 and 5410-21 feet. The 5410-18 foot interval was perforated with 32 jet shots, then casing swabbed and shut in for 12 hours with 400 feet of free oil then being found in the hole. Tubing was then run and packer set. Section was then swabbed with 25 sacks of sand, 115 barrels of heavy oil and 40 barrels of flush oil. After being swabbed for 45 minutes, the well kicked off and flowed 309 barrels of oil, including 74 barrels of new oil, in six hours. During the last two hours of the six-hour test, it flowed 25 barrels per hour through tubing. Pressure on tubing was 700 pounds. Panhandle's No. 1 Effie Bell was awaiting orders after salt water showed when three additional sections were perforated. Salt water showed when the test swabbed after perforations were made at 5244-54, 5302-08 and 5335-41 feet. These perforations were squeezed off and completion is expected to attempt completion in a lower conglomerate section previously perforated at 5410-18 feet. Panhandle's No. 1 Effie Bell was originally drilled by the Texas Company as the No. 1 T. N. Bell and abandoned at 5900 feet in December, 1944. Panhandle re-entered the venture, washed down the hole, and set 5 1/2-inch casing at 5476 feet.

Other cooperators who have made application for terraces this month are: Ray Hysinger, northeast of Crowell; Paul Shirley, north of Crowell; T. B. Quillen and Claude McLaughlin, west of Crowell; Moody Bursley, northeast of Crowell and Tom Bursley, southwest of Crowell; Travis Vece, south of Crowell; J. M. Hill, south of Crowell; Fred Hammonds, south of Thalia; E. A. Boren, northwest of Crowell; and Glenn Shook, south of Crowell. Funeral Services for Dud Greening Held Wednesday

Long-Time Crowell Resident Succumbs in Hospital July 5

J. D. (Dud) Greening, 73, pioneer Foard County resident, died in the Foard County Hospital Tuesday morning at 5:15, following a long illness. Mr. Greening had been confined to his bed for seven months. Funeral services for Mr. Greening were held at the Womack Funeral Home Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, July 6, with Rev. C. T. Aly, pastor of the First Baptist Church, officiating, assisted by Rev. Warren Everson. Pall bearers were Johnnie Wright, Parker Churchill, Glenn Goodwin, Dayton Everson, Gordon Cooper and Kenneth Greening. Those who assisted with the funerals were Mrs. Parker Churchill, Mrs. Marie Callaway, Mrs. H. B. Sanders, Mrs. Jim Russell, Mrs. Zola Greening and Mrs. Warren Everson. James Dudley Greening was born June 2, 1882, in Farmington, Grayson County, Texas, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Greening. He came to Foard County with his parents in 1901. On March 23, 1902, he was married to Miss Zada Murdock at Gunter, Texas. Following their marriage, they returned to Crowell and have made their home here most of the time since. Two children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Greening: J. L. Greening of Henrietta and Mrs. Louise Goss of Edmondson, Texas. Both of whom were here at the time of their father's death. Mrs. Goss had been here for some time on account of her father's serious illness. Mrs. J. L. Greening and Mr. Goss were also here. Mr. Greening was a farmer for many years, but his last employment was carrying the outgoing mail from the Crowell post office to the depot and the incoming mail from the depot to the post office, a position he held for almost 20 years. He had been in failing health for several years and was confined to his home. Mr. Greening was of a kind and friendly disposition and had a host of friends among the young folks, as well as among the older people in the community. Survivors include Mrs. Greening, the son and daughter; one brother, Ben Greening of Crowell, and several nieces and nephews.

OFFICES PAINTED

The offices of Roberts-Beverly Abstract Co. on the south side of the square were re-decorated last week. The paint job was done by John Wishon, who was assisted in preparing the walls for the new coat of paint by his son, both of whom were here at the time of their father's death. Mrs. Goss had been here for some time on account of her father's serious illness. Mrs. J. L. Greening and Mr. Goss were also here. Mr. Greening was a farmer for many years, but his last employment was carrying the outgoing mail from the Crowell post office to the depot and the incoming mail from the depot to the post office, a position he held for almost 20 years. He had been in failing health for several years and was confined to his home. Mr. Greening was of a kind and friendly disposition and had a host of friends among the young folks, as well as among the older people in the community. Survivors include Mrs. Greening, the son and daughter; one brother, Ben Greening of Crowell, and several nieces and nephews.

Cemetery Association Has Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the Crowell Cemetery Association was held in the Down Town Bible Class room Friday afternoon, July 1, with Mrs. N. J. Roberts, president, presiding. Minutes of the last meeting, held one year ago, were read by Mrs. C. C. McLaughlin, secretary. Mrs. Roberts made an interesting talk and told of the many things that had been accomplished during the past year at the cemetery. She also mentioned the problems that often arise and how they are met. Among the tools needed by the sexton, Earl Eubank, to enable him to keep up with his work was a power lawn mower. Since that time, the Down Town Bible Class voted to buy the lawn mower. Mrs. Roberts is assisted in her work of looking after the cemetery by Mrs. B. W. Self and at times they make several trips a day to the cemetery.

City Lake Fishing Tickets' Price Reduced

M. M. Welch, member of the City Council, announced last week that the price of fishing tickets for the City Lake has been reduced from $1.00 to 50 cents. Very few fishermen had been trying their luck in the City Lake since it was reopened May 1, due partly to the small catches being reported and the $1.00 charge.

Over 20,000 Acres Foard County Land Leased as Result of Oil Discoveries

Probably the best prospects for an oil field in Foard County since the Texas Company field was brought in in 1933, has kept Crowell and Foard County people astir all week as leasing activity continues at a fast clip. Cause of all the oil excitement here are the No. 1 Maude E. Rasberry, a Caddo discovery nine miles northwest of Crowell, and Panhandle Oil Corporation's No. 1 Effie Bell, an indicated conglomerate discovery three miles southeast of Crowell. Both wells were at one time abandoned as dry holes and have been re-entered. According to records in the office of J. A. Stovall, county and solicitor, as well as among the more of land have been leased since the first of last week. However, much of the land that has been leased has not as yet been recorded in the court house, and J. R. Beverly, of the Roberts-Beverly Abstract Co., estimates that between 20,000 and 25,000 acres have been leased as a result of the two discoveries. Leases have been selling for from $2.00 to $5.00 per acre, with the latter figure the more predominate selling price. Royalty has been selling at between $50 and $60 an acre.

Conservation District Farmers Are Urging Soil Builders

Cooperators of the Lower Pease Soil Conservation District are planting mung beans, guar and peas as a soil building, cash crop this year. The cooperators of this district who are planting these crops are Henry Kubicek, H. Ellis Sharp, O. T. Holmes and Gene Kennedy. These farmers who have previously reported that these crops increase yields following these legumes as much as 25 per cent. W. F. Stater, whose farm is located 2 miles northeast of Crowell, states that on his farm increased the yield of the crop which followed by 33 to 50 per cent. During 1954, Tom Young, a cooperator operating the Odis Tooley farm 6 miles north of Quanah, made more clear money from guar than he did from grain sorghum. From 15 acres of guar, after expenses, Tom had $7.61 per acre left. The grain sorghum was not good enough to harvest. W. W. Grisham, Route 4, Chillicothe, reported that cotton after 2 years of legumes made 500 pounds of lint cotton per acre. Cotton after cotton made 250 pounds of lint cotton per acre. At 28c per pound, the legumes increased income to the farmer $79 per acre. Supervisors of this district and all agricultural agencies agree that farmers who are planting these legumes will receive the benefits of a soil building crop to restore soil fertility, a cover crop to prevent water and wind erosion, and a cash crop to provide income to the farmer.

RAINS IMPROVE CROPS

Recent rains have greatly improved crop conditions over Texas. In some areas the rains assured a crop. In other areas it will make possible planting of a crop. The improved situation has called attention to the fact that Texas likely will have a big milo crop this year. Farm leaders are advising Texans to look into opportunities for feeding some milo to cattle and hogs this year. It probably will sell at near the new low support price level, agricultural forecasts say. The Suez Canal was opened in 1869.

The departments reporting the largest increase were the Department of Agriculture with an increase of 3,401, the Department of Interior with an increase of 1,159, and the Department of Commerce with an increase of 379. Those departments reporting a decrease were the Department of the Treasury with a decrease of 1,254, the Post Office Department with a decrease of 759, and the TVA with a decrease of 368. In the Defense Department the increases were reported to be approximately 3590. These figures show that, notwithstanding reports to the contrary, the Federal payroll continues to increase and that no real substantial reduction in force has been made.

It has long been recognized that on account of pressure on bills up for certain federal projects that it is many times harder to keep the appropriations of the Federal Government, which represents the money to be spent, in line with revenue. There is no question but what this is an acute problem in the management of our government. Recently it has been suggested that a super committee should be set up in the Congress which would, in effect, defer action on all appropriation bills that had been passed until after there had been a determination of what the income of the government would be, and then this committee would presumably cut the appropriation to fit the revenue. This proposal, it seems, has practically no merit for instead of getting at the real problem it would create a committee which probably would usurp all of the constitutional authority of both the Chief Executive and the Congress. It unquestionably

Instalment Credit Growth Called Normal and Healthy

With the American people buying goods and services at a record rate, instalment credit is an important factor in helping to sustain prosperity, and there is nothing "alarming" in its growth, according to the American Finance Conference.

In support of this conclusion, the Conference points out that of all automobile instalment debt now outstanding, three-quarters will be paid off in twelve months or less, and nearly half within six months. "It is only natural," says Thomas W. Rogers, executive vice president of AFC, the national association of automobile finance companies, "that with sales of cars running at a high rate, there will be some expansion in credit totals, as a nearly two-thirds of all car buyers make use of time payments." "But at the same time," Rogers continued, "people who bought cars last year and the year before are paying off their contracts. In fact, during 1954 repayments on all types of instalment credit exceeded new credit extended by $86 million."

The average new car will last ten to fifteen years, so paying for it initially over a period of two years looks like good business sense. At the end of the payment period, the buyer has built himself an equity in an asset with a definite market value, and he has had the use of it while making payments.

The 47 million passenger cars now in the hands of Americans are worth more than $35 billion, industry spokesmen estimate, and there is only about $10.6 billion of debt outstanding against these cars. "It would be a perfect setup for some sort of real dictatorship in this country. It seems to me that a lot more realistic approach would be to make the Bureau of the Budget responsible to the Congress rather than to the President and then there could be some real coordination between the income and outgo of federal funds. As it exists now the Bureau of the Budget acts for the President in recommending expenditures and the Congress does not have the facilities in many instances to check the real merit of its recommendations."

Credit Depends on Sale of Goods

Continued economic progress of the American people and improvement in our standard of living is directly related to the availability and growth of instalment credit, according to A. J. Blasco, vice president of the American Finance Conference.

In an address delivered recently at the University of Kansas, Blasco said, "Instalment credit is a derived demand — derived from a steady flow of consumer purchases. It is not adequately used until it has aided consumer purchases to the point that our productive capacity is fully employed."

The credit expert also hit at attempts by some economists to determine "safe limits" for the aggregate amount of instalment credit by relating national totals to such indexes as liquid assets and total production.

"Consumer credit is a tool of marketing and distribution," he continued. "We cannot consider the level of total consumer credit without taking into account the aggregate level of our markets." Providers of credit, such as the sales credit companies, which finance automobile purchases, must work closely with the sellers of goods, according to Blasco. "It is their joint effort that will continue to bring prosperity to both. The task ahead, for the entire nation, is to use instalment credit as intelligently as we can in order to make it serve us. Without it, our markets will contract and our living standards will drop drastically."

redients in one end and an endless hot dog comes out the other, all ready to eat.

Nothing this remarkable actually exists, but at a food retailers' convention in Cleveland some startling glimpses of things to come were on display. Machines are available which can do practically all of the manual tasks in a food store. An automatic wrapping machine operated by one attendant can wrap forty packages of meat a minute. An automatic molding machine makes hamburger patties, sausages, mock chicken legs, or boneless veal chops right in the store, and it can turn out 2,100 hamburger patties an hour in almost any thickness or shape desired. Automatic scales print the exact weight, price and type of meat for self-service operation marking. There are automatic baggers which weigh out and bag any desired amount of produce. The had check artists are being taken care of by a new machine which photographs the cashier of a check from the waist up while simultaneously micro-filming the check.

Once again our competitive free market system is working to give a better deal to the consumer. Store mechanization provides greater food variety and shopping convenience, along with the lowest possible price.

WIN, PLACE AND SHOW

Who profits most from the operations of American corporations? Some figures from the U. S. Department of Commerce provide an answer.

Last year, American corporations paid out $165,800,000,000 in wages and salaries to the people who provided the human energy used in the production of goods and services. They paid $17,200,000,000 to government in taxes—money that built roads, supported schools, helped maintain the military establishments, and did a thousand and one other jobs. They had a total profit of $17,800,000,000. Some $8,000,000,000 of this was retained in the business to pay for expansion and other job-creating activities. The balance went to the stockholders—the people whose savings made the existence of the corporations possible.

So, in dividing up corporate income, the workers come first, the government second, and the owners third.

Again—The Public Be Damned!

It used to be that everyone was enthusiastic and happy when an enterprise announced that it was about to spend a large amount of money on expanding its facilities, and thus provide more employment, more goods or services for consumers, and more taxes. It's a safe bet that the great majority of people still feel the same way. But there's a group in government which has a very different attitude. They would substitute government-owned, tax-exempt power plants for highly taxed private enterprise.

To take a concrete instance, a number of utilities in the Pacific Northwest have ambitious plans for greatly increasing their capacity. The cost, over a period of years, will run into hundreds of millions of dollars and the region's need for the power is acute. But the advocates of a socialized, tax-subsidized, tax-free federal power monopoly don't like this a bit. One of them now demands a congressional investigation of a utility company which is a leader in the expansion program.

A spokesman for the company made an apt answer. Of the Pacific Northwest utilities he said: "The principal thing they have in common is a desire to meet a public responsibility by working to bring about the early construction of much-needed new power plants. That is more than can be said for the political obstructionists who say we can't have anything but federal power, even if it costs us a power shortage."

This situation is not limited to the region in question. Urgently needed power projects of great size and cost have been and are being blocked on the Niagara River in New York, on the Snake in Idaho, in the Southeast, and elsewhere, and for the identical reason—because socialist minded politicians are determined that we can't have anything but federal power. Thus the nation's economic progress is undermined. Thus great sums that would be paid in taxes to all units of government by the proposed projects are lost to us. Thus power shortages are made imminent. How long will Congress and the people put up with this "the public be damned" attitude?

All Would Lose

Two changes in the Fair Labor Standards Act are now proposed. One would increase the federal minimum wage, by 15 cents or more an hour. The other would extend the Act to certain enterprises, retail trade among them, which have hitherto been specifically exempted by Congress.

If the minimum wage is raised, workers in the higher brackets will inevitably demand increases, in order to maintain their established differentials. A whole new inflationary spiral could be started. In virtually all business, wages represent one of the biggest operating costs, and one of the factors in establishing prices to the consumer.

Extending the coverage to enterprises now exempt would create problems equally bad and possibly worse. As an example, retail experts say that in some cases the increase in cost would be more than the profits stores now earn. Management would have no course but to reduce employment wherever possible. Thus the unskilled marginal workers, whom the minimum wage reaches, would search in vain for jobs, and would not have the opportunity to learn the skills needed for advancement.

The point is that no one gains in the long run when wages are arbitrarily established by law, instead of by the worker's productivity and value.

Irrigation from Wells Continues Expansion in Plains Area

More than 4,000,000 acres of land is being irrigated by 33,537 wells on the High Plains of Texas. This and other facts are presented in the annual irrigation survey by E. V. Thurmond and Ralph L. Jones of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

The reports, made yearly since 1949, show the tremendous expansion of irrigation in the area. The first report showed that 12,478 wells were being used to irrigate 1,711,000 acres on 9,025 farms. By May 1955, the number of irrigated farms stood at 17,099; the number of wells at 33,537 and the irrigated acreage at 4,017,530.

From May 1954 to May 1955, 5,554 wells were added and the acreage irrigated increased by 390,425. The greatest increase in the number of wells during the seven year period was the 6,268 added from May 1952 to May 1953. The increase in the area irrigated rose by 598,094 acres.

Hale county with 3,700 wells is the leader in this category. These wells supply the water to irrigate 470,000 acres. The 3,000 wells in Swisher County supply the water for 480,000 acres. The report shows Hockley County with 3,550 wells; Lubbock with 3,300 and Lamb County with 2,800 to rank high in the area.

Butane is used on 15,447 wells while natural gas powers another 11,881 pumping plants. A majority of the wells, 24,779, had a pumping lift of more than 125 feet and 17,592 were shown with a pumping capacity of under 700 gallons per minute.

Grain sorghum, cotton, wheat, alfalfa and sudan, mostly for pasture, were the principal crops irrigated. According to the report, grain sorghum led cotton in 1955.

Our Weekly Sermon

He's My Brother

Two boys were tumbling in the snow. First one was down, then the other. It looked like just a friendly tussle until suddenly one began to get the advantage. The bigger boy pounded the smaller one into the snow, deeper and deeper, and was none too gentle in doing it.

A friend of mine, watching him, grew concerned and called out to the bigger boy, "Be careful there, you're hurting him!" Back came the answer quickly, "That's all right, mister, he's my brother!"

So many people think it's all right because he's our brother. What if we speak thoughtlessly, unkindly? What if we make little promises and forget to keep them? "Oh, that's all right, he's my brother!"

It has been said that "home is the place where we are treated the best and act the worst." Let's give this thought, and begin to treat the family as though they are human—for they are. Courtesy is not to be reserved for strangers—pour it out on the family and see how they appreciate it.

This works in the church, too. We take things for granted too often, thinking that people will understand what we do and say, however sharp. Too often youth is shallow in its treatment of the elderly. Somehow, young people think they will be always young; old age is unthinkable to childhood. It should be added, too, that our elderly friends have forgotten they were once younger and doubtless did the things they now forbid in their grandchildren. The ties of home and church do not make rules of courtesy unnecessary, but rather make them sweeter.

"He that loveth his brother abideth in the light, and there is no occasion of stumbling in him."

ONE CHARGE TOO MANY

Omaha—After running his car into a ditch on a country road, Edward E. Kepfle, 23, started walking for help. He had walked a mile when deputy sheriffs, seeking the owner of the wrecked car, caught up with him. They handed Kepfle a ticket, including a charge of leaving the scene of a property-damage accident. However, police said that was going too far and Kepfle was only charged with driving with no driver's license.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Billie Ray Brashear of Sadler, Texas, he was born with congenital club feet but the crippling condition will soon be corrected and he will be able to lead a normal boy's life. Holding him above is Mrs. Lucille Covington, a nurse's aid at the hospital. Timmie, like thousands of other Texas children, will be a member of the Scottish Rite Hospital until he is 15 years old and will be eligible for treatment until that time.

Texas Viewpoint In Washington

By PRICE DANIEL U. S. Senator

The pending resignation of Robert B. Anderson from his post as Deputy Secretary of Defense was a shock and surprise to most of us here in Washington. Bob Anderson has distinguished himself as one of the most able men of this Administration. He first served as Secretary of the Navy and was later promoted to the position he will now leave. The amount of work and knowledge necessary to hold down these responsible positions is apparent from the fact that the biggest part of our tax dollar goes to the defense establishment. Anderson's resignation is a great loss to both the Administration and the country.

These views are shared by Democrats and Republicans alike. President Eisenhower once said to me that he considered Bob Anderson one of his best appointments, and it was generally believed that Anderson would be promoted to the post of Secretary of Defense in due time. Even before this is printed, some of the reasons for this resignation may be known to the public. Whatever they are, his shoes will be hard to fill.

Senate Majority Leader

Senator Lyndon B. Johnson is receiving praise throughout the country for his excellent job as majority leader of the Senate. Newspapers, magazines, columnists and commentators agree that he is having greater success than any other majority leader in modern times. Whether they agree with him or not on the various issues presented, most members of the Senate also pay tribute to his ability to get the work done. Mention has been made of one day when the Senate passed 90 bills, confirmed an Ambassador and a Federal Trade Commissioner, and then recessed because it was temporarily out of pending business.

For the first time in many years the Senate is ahead of the House in its legislative program. Usually the House is ready to adjourn far ahead of the Senate. It is

Atoms for Peace Conference

In Geneva, Switzerland, August 10-20, there will be a world-wide conference on peaceful uses of atomic energy. As a member of the Senate Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, I have been invited to attend this conference and am now making plans to do so. In the future it is anticipated that we will be dealing more and more with nuclear energy as a source of power. The major nations of the world, including Russia, will present in Geneva exhibits and reports showing the latest information on possible uses of atomic energy for constructive rather than destructive uses.

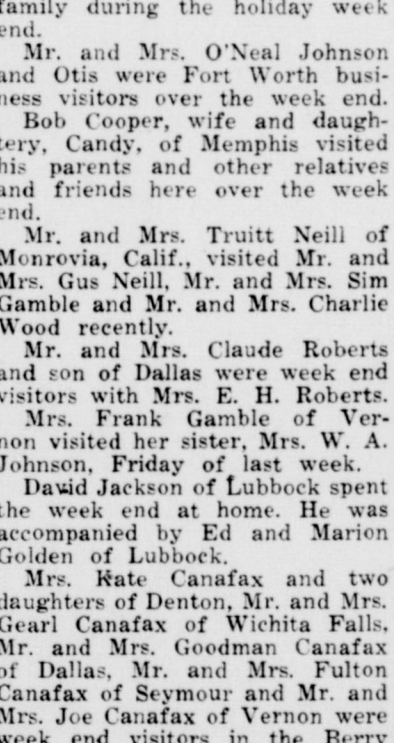

Originally devised as a destructive weapon, atomic energy may yet play a most important role in bringing about peaceful relations among the nations of the world. The time has about arrived when military men of all countries realize that atomic warfare could mean destruction of civilization. There are so many atomic bombs available on both sides of the world-wide conflict that all may be forced to the conclusion that war cannot be used as a method of settling differences in the future. Cooperation toward peaceful uses of atomic energy may help in preventing its destructive uses.

Battles of Peace

Even if we are able to prevent fighting wars in the future, there will be victories to be won in peaceful pursuits. The Communists will continue their propaganda of political and social revolution. It will be up to us who believe in Christianity and Democracy to reach the minds, hearts and souls of men and women and boys and girls throughout the world. We have principles, ideals and ideas which are far more appealing than atheistic Communism. The only trouble is that we are not doing as much as the Communists toward selling our principles and philosophy to people of other nations. If they knew more about us, they would understand us and know that our way of life with all of its moral and spiritual ideals is far better than the materialistic preachments of the Communists.

Home Demonstration Notes

MRS. MARY D. BROWN

As you know, I am leaving July 10 for the Tailoring Workshop to be held at T. S. C. W. in Denton. I will be gone for the rest of July.

Then in August, we will have our pre-tailoring meeting to discuss fabrics, patterns, equipment, etc.

This tailoring school, which I will hold in October and November will last 5 or 6 weeks. We will meet one day each week. Each woman that I teach will go home and teach 2 or 3 more women in her own community each week.

The tailoring school is open to all women in this county, not just Home Demonstration Club members. Each woman will make a coat or suit.

By learning to tailor, we can save a great deal of money on our clothes and I hope a great many of you will join our tailoring school.

You will buy your own material and equipment, of course, but there will be no charge for joining the class and attending the tailoring workshops.

When I come back in August, we will talk more about how and when to join.

Rayburn is not going to be outdone. He will see that the House catches up on its work before August 1. That is the date the leaders predict Congress will adjourn.

When I come back in August,

we will talk more about how and when to join.

Hardeman Farmer Finds Conservation Pays Off Financially

by Henry Ashford

"Conservation pays," says Delmar Newman, who is more than pleased with soil and water conservation practices which he has installed on his farm three miles southwest of Goodlett since becoming a cooperator of the Lower Pease River Soil Conservation District in 1949.

Mr. Newman is now serving on the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee of Hardeman County.

The above statement is not idle talk with this conservation minded farmer as he has records to increased crop yields to prove his point.

Newman is particularly interested in conservation practices because they reduce both soil and water erosion and he appreciates the increased yields from the practices.

In 1954, wheat on the Newman farm which was terraced yielded 17 bushels per acre while adjacent non-terraced land produced 9 to 13 bushels per acre. At the 1954 price of $2.26 per bushel, that was a profit of $13.56 per acre made on terraced land over unterraced land.

With the financial assistance of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation office, would have been more than enough in one year to establish conservation practices on the farm which would be of benefit for many years.

During the same year, 1954, oats on terraced land made over 62 bushels per acre, where unterraced land produced 51 bushels, which was an average increase of $6.60 per acre. Barley averaged 47 bushels on terraced land last year for an increase of 12 bushels per acre over unterraced land, or $7.20 per acre increased income.

Newman said he liked large ter-aces with wide bases that are easy to work when asked about large and small terraces.

Another advantage of this practice, as pointed out by Newman, is that he has found that in extremely dry years when most farmers don't make a crop, he has been able to make enough seed above terraces to keep him in business. He said that many farmers lose more than half of the annual rainfall by not having terraces, and that he finds that he can keep the major portion of his crops are made where water soaks into the ground for winter use, Newman concluded.

In addition to terraces, Newman uses stubble mulching, legumes and other soil-building crops as practices on his farm.

WEST SIDE H. D. CLUB

The West Side Home Demonstration Club entertained the members' families with a picnic at the community house at the regular meeting time of June 28.

A picnic supper was served by the ladies and games of 42 were enjoyed by everyone.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. M. O'Connell, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ross, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Thomson, Mr. and Mrs. Parker Churchill and son, Monte, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Mathews, Mrs. Oscar Gentry and Miss Margaret Curtis.

"Real Cost" Is The Big Thing

The number of dollars or pounds or rubles or any other currency a worker earns is not in itself important. What is important is what they will buy. Thus, the price charged for any commodity should be measured by what is known as "real cost"—that is, the amount of time that must be worked to earn enough to buy it.

A recent comparison, based on Bureau of Labor Statistics, on "real costs" in the two metropolitan areas of Moscow and New York City, is striking and important. In Russia, all the means of production and distribution, with a few unimportant exceptions, are state-owned. There is no competition, in any recognized sense of the word, on either the manufacturing or retailing level. In this country, by contrast, factories are free to produce what they think the people want, stores are free to stock it, there is intense competition all along the line, and the consumer has complete freedom of choice.

How do the two diverse systems compare, in actual physical results? In Moscow, the average worker must work 117 minutes to earn the money to buy a pound of choice beef and 168 minutes in the case of a dozen eggs—in New York the figures are 22 minutes and 21 minutes. In Moscow, the worker must put in 42 days of time to get enough money for an overcoat and days for a table model radio in New York the respective figures are 3 days and 13 days. The difference is similarly true with other foods and products. You might keep this in mind the next time you go shopping and mentally give free enter a little of the credit it deserves.
