Advice To Politicians.

To the Politicians: My Dear Street Old Angeles—With tearful eyes and breaking heart I leave your shining ranks. My tears are tears of gladness; my heart is breaking with joy.

Somehow we have never seen the paradise you promised me to be. I have seen the mellow meadows and softer tones of the old-time fiddle of the people. I am aware that the good old-fashioned popular music which thrilled the hearts of our fathers are not in favor now with your angelic muses. Our country is keeping step to the modern boom-de-ave of ring politics, and waltzing to the earth-rattling and sky-ringing music of modern political "Vagrans." Our statesmanship now trips the light fantastic to the latter-day gold-standard "g rman" and the imperial expansion "ski-dance," at the expense of the people and the peril of the nation.

Common folk cannot understand this so-called high-class music, nor the figures of these new-fangled dances, and, therefore, they are in a condition which is beautifully illustrated by a tale I used to hear before politics snatched me my bald-head. At an old-time country dance, the fiddlers rosin'd their bows and took their places upon the platform. The floor manager rose and imperiously shouted: "Get your partners for a cotillion! All you ladies and gentlemen are to take your places in the center of the room, all you ladies and gentlemen are to wear shoes and no slippers. Take your places in a circle behind them; and you bare-footed crowd must file it around the corners." You dear old politicians wear the shoes and stockings, while we, the people, are bare-footed crowd. But I beg that you will believe me sincere when I say that I am contented with the corner, for there is more sincerity and genuine happiness there than I have ever found in the center. Many a time I have seen 150 pounds of unadorned treachery in one pair of shoes and a whole armful of slippers and skirtee in-sincerity in a single pair of stockings. I have swung corners with ingratitude and hypocrisy until I whizzed in the air and my coat-tails popped like a whip cracker. Who has not? I have danced in the same set with M. "Bookard" and Signor "Carriacrow." So has every man who ever entered the political ball-room. But I was always so awkward and so unfortunate as to be constantly stepping on somebody's political corns and ambitious buttons; and therefore I was in the midst of a perpetual "ouch" and the recipient of innumerable tender compliments and affectionate daggers, and now,

If you could see my mortal scars, The death records of my feet, You'd think I'd spent my life in wars Where whips, fists, clubs and stones Wage endless strife with flesh and bones.

But I have vanished from the center of politics to the warm corner of a happy home; and I find rest and sympathy here—under the outstretched wings of my native mountains. Who could not find rest and happiness in a land like this? The foot of man has never trod the sod of any spot on earth where purer fountains gush the hills and brighter streams falling from loftier heights, wind their shining way through the greener, sweeter, lovelier vales. Heaven never smiled on landscapes more beautiful, and the eagles never soared under softer skies than those which bend above the sun-painted cliffs and peaceful, happy valleys of my own East Tennessee.

To the pated politician who has grown weary of fishing for votes and angling for suckers, there is succor of sorrow here in the braiding brooks of the mountains where the genuine speckled trout plays hide and seek with the sunshine in the shoals or sleeps in the darkening eddies under the fragrant bloom of the overhanging honeysuckles. To the overworked servant upon whose head the snows that never melt have too soon fallen, these bright, leaping, laughing, dashing, buoyant mountain rivers are the symbols of youth, the synonym of happiness. On their grassy banks he may sit and listen to the singing of his reed and the swish of his line, and watch the game black bass as he leaps up out of the middle of the stream, with the hook in his mouth, and dashes in the sunlight, then darts back to make the reel sing and the line swish again. Or, if he wishes a diversity of sport and pleasure, I will loan him one of my shot-guns and a pair of my leggings, and we will leave the trout and bass and brimming river, and follow my brace of beautiful Lowellen birds dog, "Fiddle" and "Bow," into the fields and serenade the vanishing coveys, with chilled shot and smokeless powder. In such a life, in such a land, there is no room for the

Some say you do not know me, and I am not the man you seek, but I am a man of 100 acres of land, and I will give you 50 acres of land for your services. I have a fine lot of 50 acres of land, and I will give you 25 acres of land for your services. I have a fine lot of 50 acres of land, and I will give you 25 acres of land for your services. I have a fine lot of 50 acres of land, and I will give you 25 acres of land for your services.

Money for Dowerless Girls.
The Marquis of Bute has given a bequest to the English township of Cardiff for the benefit of deserving but dowerless maidens and it provides that the interest on 1,000 pounds be yearly awarded to some girl of the working class on the occasion of her marriage. The candidate has first to be nominated by a member of the corporation, a sufficient safe long time in advance and has had therefore to prove her right to the dower by means of good conduct. The application must be made and filed by the 15th of April, but thus far net a solitary candidate has presented her credentials. In 1899 a domestic servant was the lucky recipient of the money.

In Grandma's Day

Women were straight and strong. They could walk or work side by side with the men of the family. They lived under healthier conditions, there was more simplicity and less strain. Today it's different. The woman has all the care of the house and the wear of motherhood with duties superadded which were never dreamed of in Grandma's day. As a natural result, she's worn out when she ought to be in the full beauty of mature womanhood. Women who would preserve their health and strength should guard the delicate womanly organs. When these are diseased the whole body suffers loss of strength and beauty. Doan's Favorite Prescription cures the diseases that weaken a woman. Inflammation, ulceration and female weakness promptly yield to the power of this great remedy.

"I had been a great sufferer from female weakness for about two years," writes Mrs. Mrs. Mrs. Richardson of Gloucester, N.Y. "Doan's Favorite Prescription cured me. It did not do my work part of the time. I had had a bottle of Dr. Doan's Favorite Prescription and felt as well as I ever did."

AWAKE! O, SLEEPER!

We trust that our correspondents will awaken from their Rip Van Winkle sleep and favor us with weekly contributions of the daily doings of the people in their respective communities. A community that can't afford sufficient local items for a live correspondent must be deep in the throes of lethargy indeed. Let every school community in our county be represented in the News this winter. Your teachers would be admirable writers, no doubt. Stir things up, so that other good people may know of the good things you have that they may be constrained to come and cast their lot with you. An enthusiastic writer can be a great benefit to each community. Give it a trial this winter.

Lets all work together for the industrial development of our country.

The Boers are yet making it interesting for the British in the Transvaal.

A lightning rod drummer from Waco said last Monday that the crop in McLennan county this year was only one-fourth bale of cotton and fifteen bushels of corn per acre. He was struck on this country.

Somebody has explained the significance of the editorial "we." It may have a variety of meanings. For example: When you read that "we" expect our wife home today we refer to the editor; "we" are a little late with our work it includes the whole office force, even the devil and the towel; in "we are having a boom," the town is meant; "we received over 700,000 emigrants last year" embraces the nation; but "we have hog cholera in our midst" means that the man who takes the paper and never pays for it is very ill.—Ex.

A gentle thrill has passed over the political wires that we may expect an opponent to Judge G. A. Brown two years hence. When that moment arrives we will be found for Judge G. A. Brown.

The Cowman's Ideal Girl.

My ideal young woman is a native. She is a well bred one, too, but not a thoroughbred—they take no more care and are not good natured. Her range is short. Her feet are good enough to make one honest. Her hair is blue and her eyes are blue. Her nose is straight and her lips are red. She is not a hang about. She will not ranch till her hair is white. She has been riding a saddle, but she knows how to take a little tramp. She can get on a horse and hold the cut-out. She will go up when you go up, but not come back on you. She is not a minute. She's got all the best learning she needs, but she won't go around talking bad languages while the chickens scratch up a good garden while she's scripping. She can talk and she's good at it, but you don't have to put a jerk-line on her. She will get yourself sometimes. She doesn't cook good at all. She will make camp cook tips. She can't laugh. It don't take her long to get to keep her at mouth of the time and she don't do the job every time that you get wrong on the ranch. She's as well as she can get up for, but she can't get up for the boys and other things. She don't spend her money. She don't get somebody else. She don't get started somewhere. She don't get up to look like she's spanned that's been throat. She's a patch.

Tuesday was bright and beautiful and the election passed off without a jar. The "court" of the county was held on Tuesday, the 10th inst. The following were elected in the county: County Judge, J. W. Moore; County Clerk, J. A. Wright; Tax Assessor, A. F. Barkley. The precinct officers elected were as follows: J. P. Prec. No. 1, L. D. Phillips; Constable Prec. No. 1, J. W. Klepper; Commissioner Prec. No. 1, C. P. Sandifer; J. P. Prec. No. 2, W. W. Pigg; Commissioner Prec. No. 2, D. M. Ferebee; Commissioner Prec. No. 3, John Bruce; Commissioner Prec. No. 4, John Moore.

His Wide Range Committee.
Just after the speaker had made up his committee, writes a correspondent of the New York Tribune, a member from the Middle West approached him one day and, shaking him genially by the hand, said: "I want to thank you, Mr. Speaker; I am on a fine committee. Mr. Henderson smiled broadly. He was receiving more complaints than thanks in those days, and words of commendation were dear to him. "I am glad you are satisfied," he replied; "I like to please the boys when I can." The member laughed brimily: "Of course you know what committee I refer to," he said; "the committee of the whole; but I wouldn't mind if you could find me a chair on some other committee, too; I think I could do the work of both." The dry humor which prompted this incident pleased the speaker immensely, and his colleague did not seek in vain.

A Hollas preacher held forth on the square a while Saturday afternoon. Judging from his remarks, he expected to be met with hostile demonstrations. Our people are "long suffering and kind," and accord to all the right of free speech. Some of us have "clipped to the racket" that some religious fellows thrive on strenuous opposition, and that indifference is their death. This is the first time we ever "buffaloed up against" a Holy man. It seemed to us that he was as other men are. We saw nothing unusual except his Salvation Army tactics.

The Finest Engine.

The finest locomotive ever built was named Cornelius Vanderbilt No. 1. It was christened on the birthday of the grandson of the commodore, and about the time of his death, was lowered into a basement in the town of Marshfield, Wis., to do duty as a heating apparatus. The world knew it as "Old Van," and in its day it was not only the costliest engine on earth but the fastest. It is believed to have had a record of twenty-two miles an hour.

Healthy Mothers

Few mothers are healthy, because their duties are so exacting. The anxiety of pregnancy, the shock of childbirth, and the care of young children, are severe trials on any woman. But with Wine of Cardui within her grasp, every mother—every woman in the land—can give the child of personal health she sees her loved ones. Do you want robust health with all its privileges and pleasures? Wine of Cardui will give it to you.

WINE OF CARDUI

Strengthens the female organs and invigorates weakened functions. For every trouble in or weakness of the female system. Ask your druggist for Wine of Cardui, and take no other medicine under any circumstances.

Dr. Geo. C. C. Conner, Mich. "This I have used for years. I have seen it used by a woman who had been suffering with blood poisoning for several years. She had been advised to use the most expensive medicine, but she had not improved. She had heard of Wine of Cardui and she bought it. She used it for a few days and she felt better. She continued to use it and she was cured. I have seen it used by a woman who had been suffering with a severe case of leucorrhoea for several years. A sweet young lady came into a certain office in town this week and said:

"Oh, may I borrow your typewriter for a minute?"

"Why, certainly," was the response. "He is at school just now, but he will be out in a short while; just take a seat."

xxx

A certain young (?) lady sat and talked to us in our office the other day. She remarked: "I got a new dress every birthday."

We looked at her silently and to our inner self said:

"What a lot of crosses you must have on hand."

xxx

Our wife: "Be're marryin' you men swear on your bend's knees?"

Editor: "Yes, an' after we ju swear."

Urgent business—down town.

xxx

Tom Gafford: "My bro'hdn down in Hopkins has only acre of ground, yet he is gettin' rich."

"How does he do it?"

"Well, you see, he stands t' acre up on end and plants a trigarden on each side of it. By this year he had bad luck. I planted onions on one and potatoes on the other; and then t' onions got into the potatoes' eye and they couldn't see h'w grow."

"But how does he manage to hold the land up?"

"Well, you see, it's heavy mortgaged and the sheriff h' it up!"

xxx

We were discussing we were dressed in our usual manner the other day. We said:

"I saw you and she these two go to the city last night."

"Yes, she was dressed in a party leaf, as she was just coming."

"I thought so, and I wanted to push her in again, but was afraid."

Our point of observation was hastily removed.

xxx

We were having our weekly tilt with D. F. Thomson, our father-in-law, last week. We became grandiose (?) and said: "I am fond of my family. My father was a hero, my mother a shero and I—"

"Yes," he said, "and you are a hobo."

Then the fight came on.

Remember for cash we will sell you goods as cheap as any one, and sell you all you can buy, while others won't sell you but a dollar's worth.

Women Doctors in Russia.

Women physicians have established themselves all over Russia and have achieved a respected position. Dr. Kallmeyer, in the German Medical Weekly Journal, gives them high praise. Some are employed by the government, and since last year are entitled to a pension. They occupy positions as county physicians, school physicians, physicians for the poor and the municipal ambulance system, etc. Mrs. Dr. N. Schulz, in the St. Petersburg institute for experimental medicine, is one of the foremost experts in bacteriology, and her lectures are well attended by physicians of both sexes.

Helen Gould Donation.

It has been made known that Miss Helen Gould is the donor of $100,000 to the New York university for the Hall of Fame. She gave the money as a tribute to the memory of her father, and one of the names to be inscribed on the tablet that will perpetuate the fame of great Americans will be Jay Gould. At this time that is his daughter's desire.

Wilhelm Carries a Gun.

Shortly after Luchent murdered the Austrian empress the German kaiser took to carrying a revolver, which he now has always about him. Regular practice made him a first-rate shot.

Those "Souless" Corporations.
Since government evolved that artful product of disturbance and hypocrisy, the professional politician, appointments have been held under pretence as souless things; capable of guile besides which the diabolism of Caligula were pardonable of fence against humanity.

Give an individual the power, and he will claim and exercise the right to put his own price on common product, or to crush the liberties of others. This it has been since "pat-entage grow squared" to the joint heels of Abraham and Lot," and Rome was made the parting of Caesar's mad ambition.

But all individuals are not wicked and souless, nor are all corporations. The trouble is this: Corporations are abused by the politicians and public sentiment is driven to the commission of wrongs against corporations which are expressed in jury and court decisions and in acts of legislation that spring from prejudice rather than from justice. Resenting these wrongs, the corporations denounce, the public, and so an interminable and vicious war goes on between the two, from which both suffer and from which is spring a condition that makes concession and compromise—the great factors of wholesome progress to mutual understanding—nearly impossible.

Now and then, however, calamity comes to a people or community, and in the splendid charity of the corporation the public stands uncovered and the bawling politician is silenced. Such a calamity was administered by the mad furies of wind and wave to Galveston island but a little while ago, in the contemplation of which humanity is yet applied. Property was destroyed to the value of dizzy millions, and men, women and children, in that devil's revel of wind and wave, were slaughtered to the limit of so many uncertain thousands as to call forth the aid of every generous hand in Christendom an expression of sympathy from every chancellery of Europe.

come to the relief of the stricken island, to do so. But it will mention the railroads, the telegraph companies, the telephone companies and the express companies. These have been held up to public scrutiny and made the victims of the charges of prejudice to shameless audacity seem to merit special mention. Not one of them traversing the bay from the mainland escaped tremulous loss. The island had of it.

All Texas might stamped, but nothing could daunt the courage of Texas owes the preservation of its open doors to the commerce of the high seas to these railroads, no man consider without admitting all Texas to be their everlasting debtor. Much the same may be said of the telegraph companies. Particularly the Western Union company, the first to tender its services to the relief committee and to instruct its agents throughout the state to frank every message of inquiry, encouragement or condolence to the island. This was magnificent!

Free transportation provided by the railroads, at tremendous cost, to relief committees, to doctors, nurses, relatives of stricken, laborers, troops, clothing and provisions found for Galveston, as well as for victims of the catastrophic hurrying to relatives and friends and places of comfort and employment in the interior. This was grand!

Who shall now prate of these "souless" corporations without falling under the contempt of grateful humanity or shocking the conscience of the State? Shall it come to pass, forgetting these deeds of the most stupendous and timely charity of this or any other period, that men who build our laws and direct legislation shall deny the right of hearing before the bar of righteous opinion to these "souless" corporations, and continue to make them the prey of every damage suit lawyer in the land and of every adventurous politician who comes up from the forks of the creeks with some new scheme of taxation?

Wentworth Woodhouse.
Lord Mill will one day inherit, is the big house in England, and even his late hour is kept in feudal air. George Francis' Guests.
Citizen George Francis' train entertained the members of the Correspondents' Club of New York, at dinner at Mills house, No. 1, the other night. The club comprises the New York correspondents of all the principal newspapers of the United States. Mr. Train lives permanently at the great 29-cents-a-night hotel and is regarded as the fame of the hospitality. After dinner in the big restaurant in the basement, where the regular rate for a meal is 15 cents, Mr. Train took his guests to his own room in a corner of the seventh floor, where he lives in dignified retirement, surrounded by his papers and press clippings. The walls of the apartment, which is about eight by six feet in area, are covered with pictures and letter press, all referring in some way to Mr. Train and cut from papers and magazines covering a great many years. Mr. Train was 71 years of age on the date of Mayor Van Wyck during the first episode of earth for the Rapid Transit tunnel. He says he is a fanatic and the law, but intimates with a knowing wink, that he may show the world he knows what he is doing, notwithstanding. His conversation proves that he keeps entirely abreast with the doings of the work from day to day.

A Village Blacksmith Caved His Little Son's Life.
Mr. H. H. Black, the well-known village blacksmith at Galhauville, Sullivan Co., N. Y., says: "Our little son, five years old, has always been subject to croup, and so had have the attacks been that we have feared many times that he would die. We have had the doctor and used many medicines, but Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is now our sole reliance. It seems to dissolve the tough mucus and by giving frequent doses when the croup symptoms appear we have found that the dreaded cough has been more or less cured." There is no danger in giving this for it soothes the inflamed membrane and may be given confidently to a baby as to an adult. For sale by E. F. Hart.
