SAM TYE WRITES OF TRAINING CAMP

A letter written by Sam Tye to his parents at Foard City says in part: I am leaving Camp Travis tomorrow morning to where I cannot say. But there is one thing I do know, if nothing happens I am France bound in the near future. John Randolph left here last week and went to Waco, staid there one night and left the next morning for Jersey City, N. J. He will be trained over there instead of here, and I think that is my route. I took my shot in the nose for meningitis yesterday and stood general inspection this morning and will stand over-sea inspection as soon as I get to where I am going.

Now don't worry about me. I will let you know where I am going and how I am getting along all the time. I am getting as fat as a hog, have gained 11 pounds since I came down here.

I see Roy every day or two, but haven't seen any of the Foard County boys that came in this last call. There is just one Foard County boy that has not been transferred. That is Leo Roy Statser, the boy that married the Draper girl. I saw Ben Hoffman yesterday.

At five fifteen in the morning the bugle calls and we put on our rags, make up our beds, sweep the barrack then we are called out by a bugle call and a steam boat whistle for a reveille. Just as we snap into attention a salute is fired by the cannon. We are then dismissed and we wash our faces for breakfast. Then the mess call is sounded at six o'clock. We march in, eat breakfast, and as we march out wash our mess kit in a can full of scalding water. Have paper sanitary towels to dry our kit on. We then go and put up our kit and police up around the barrack, that is we get out and pick up all the cigarette stubs, cigar stubs and quids of tobacco and papers that are blowing around and every match stem that we can find. This is one clean place. We do all of this every morning. Then at seven o'clock we form a company front and are marched out for the drill field. There we drill until eleven forty-five doing squads right, squads left and squads right and left about, right and left about face and about face, forward march and rear march.

Oh, yes, I forgot to tell you about our morning exercise we take while we stand reveille breathing and all other kinds of exercises. Then at eleven fifty we are dismissed for noon mess. We go wash our sweaty selves and at twenty seconds of twelve a death whistle sounds in honor of the dead in France, and every moving thing in camp is stopped at attention until twelve. It doesn't matter where you are in camp nor what you are doing, you snap into attention and remain so until that whistle ceases to sound, then noon and all break for their bunks which they are very glad to see, and at 1 o'clock we are called out for school of military law. There we study until four o'clock, then we are dismissed for inspection, which has got to be perfect. You have to be clean shaven, your shoes shined and your clothes have got to be neat and clean and your hair cut neat, your blankets doubled just one way, your bunk must be fixed just one way. The army has but one way to do any thing and that is the right way. After inspection we get ready for retreat, which is at five o'clock. Then mess again at six. After mess we get our pass and go to town or the park, if we wish to go, and if not we go anywhere we want to in in camps without a pass. I see a show of some kind every night that I want to. I went to the Camp Majestic Wednesday and practiced singing for an hour before the show, which was a bunch of negro soldiers that had had been following a show. It was sure good. They brought their band with them. I usually go to bed at ten o'clock, not later than eleven, for taps ring at eleven and everybody is supposed to be in bed at that time, and if you are caught prowling around after taps the M. P. picks you up and to the guard house you go if you can't dig up a pass calling for later hours.

Well, as it is about sundown and this is my last night in the dear old camp, I will close and go bid Roy Wood adieu. I will drop you a card when I get to my destination. It matters not where I am do not worry about me while I am gone.

SAM.

BAPTIST CHURCH NOTES

The pastor and his family are now comfortably located in the east part of Crowell, and shall be delighted to have any one call to see them at any time any one chooses. Our phone number is 129 and we hope that at any time if there shall be some one we can assist, either physically or spiritually, if you know about such cases, that you will feel free to call us and tell us about it.

We are pleased with the way the work starts off and with the hearty co-operation so many are manifesting in the work. It will be delightful work if "all shall work and be at it all the time," for the glory of God and the advancement of His kingdom in the world.

Our church adopted a financial plan which the pastor has used for five years and it has proved 90 per cent efficient. This plan does not neglect a single member. It deals with a delicate subject in a universally acceptable way.

Believing there exists a close relation between spiritual growth and scriptural giving, this Bible plan of appeal has been introduced and is one of the most convenient systems that obtains in modern church work. The Bible teaches that the Christian should offer gifts, that the individual is to decide the amount of offerings, and that the offering should be systematic and proportionate. I am sure in the mind of Christ that every member becomes a regular contributor, that each contributor state how much the offering shall be, and that each member pray for the mind of the Master about his pledge and for like leadership for all other members of our church.

May I depend upon every Baptist in and around Crowell, your regular offerings to the work of our Lord, your presence at the services, your sympathy with a brother who seeks to serve his Lord, your confidence and your prayers?

Every one is invited to worship with us at all times and share the blessings that come to those who worship God.

J. B. HENDERSON, Pastor.

LIEUT. JIM BOMAR DISCHARGED

Lieutenant Jim Bomar who was with the 142nd at Camp Bowie was in Crowell this week and left Tuesday for Fort Worth. He is awaiting papers giving him an honorable discharge. He went to Hoboken with the regiment when it started to France, but was not allowed to go on account of physical disability. He had had two strokes while he was at Fort Worth and one a few hours before the ship sailed on which he was to have gone. He was sent back to Fort Worth and discharged as stated above. He had another stroke after returning to Fort Worth. He has been advised to remain out of the sun as much as possible in order to avoid a repetition of his experience. He says he regrets very much the fact that he could not go to France. He will probably locate at Vernon and have his family, now at Salt Lake City, return and be with him at Vernon.

Speaking of Lieut. A. Y. Beverly, Jim says he is certainly a fine officer and will make good wherever he is placed. He had the same to say of Lieut. Walter Taylor.

THE 142ND ARRIVED

Word has been received here that the 142nd Regiment which left Camp Bowie on July 11 has arrived in France. Among the boys of that regiment were Charley Arp, who has written his father and mother that he has safely arrived. He was a Crowell boy. We shall likely have some word for publication from the boys of that regiment before long. We hope so at least.

Among other boys who have been heard from are: Privates Geo. Stanley Walker, John Klepper, Leonard Roberts; Sergeant Frank Kirkman, and probably the relatives of all the boys who left here have had cards of their safe arrival overseas. In another column will be found an article saying that the entire 39th Division arrived over there without the loss of a man.

MRS. J. L. OWNBEY DEAD

After a few days of serious illness caused by Bright's disease, Mrs. J. L. Ownbey died at her home six miles south of town Tuesday morning. Funeral services were held at the Baptist church of which she was a member, Wednesday, after which interment was made at the Crowell cemetery. The family came from Georgia several years ago and have resided in this county ever since.

The deceased is survived by her husband and two sons. These have the deepest sympathy of the entire community in their sore bereavement.

He is on a detached service with eighty odd other men from his regiment but could not say how long he would be away, but he was getting along nicely he was in no hurry to return.

CHAS. BRYSON WRITES NEWS

Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind., Aug. 4, Foard County News, Crowell, Texas.

Sirs: Not having noticed any news from this far away place, I will give a brief description as I see it.

Fort Benjamin Harrison is located eight miles out from the city of Indianapolis, Ind., on a little creek, which is found in abundance, in this part of the State. Large shady groves are also found here, in fact, there is one in the very center of our drill grounds which we boys surely appreciate on hot days from about ten o'clock a. m. until near four in the afternoon. The days are usually very sultry but the nights are cool, in fact, most too cool to sleep comfortably.

Fort Benjamin Harrison as you will remember, was established many years ago. At the present time there are some thirty or more old brick barracks standing, but the little frame huts are much more to be seen, as there is some three hundred of those. Even the little canvas tents come in for their share. There are not very many of these tents, however, but the most prominent buildings you will find here, are the Y. M. C. A. huts. These huts mean so much to the soldier boys. Here is to be found amusements, a quiet place to read and write, a place to meet your friends who might be visiting in camp. We have three musical concerts each week and movies twice each week. Sunday School services Sunday, also church services. It is nice to feel as though you were at home in your own church. That is the way the "Y" men make a fellow feel.

Foard County has four boys to represent here namely: Earl Logan, Earnest Crosnoe, Lawrence Glover and myself. We are with the 21st Engineers corps. This detachment is due to leave for "over there" in the near future.

This camp is composed of mechanics, machinists, etc., and are men especially selected from every camp in the United States. This branch of the army ranks the highest in the U. S. army.

Best wishes to the News and its many readers.

C. R. BRYSON.

Mrs. Joe Johnson was called back to Olustee Wednesday on account of the serious illness of a relative.

FROM PVT. BERT BAIN

The following excerpts are taken from letters from Private Bert Bain to his mother, Mrs. G. C. Bain: "Fort McIntosh.

"Dear homefolks: "We are on target range now. Arrived here about five o'clock. Fifteen of us were put on post duty the first thing, and I was one of the number. We're on duty 48 hours, on two and off four. We were thoroughly tried out as to our ability as guards, but not one passed by me, not even the captain.

"We surely have had some experience in shooting. I handle a gun that kicks so hard when I shoot it that I have to crawl back up to it. We do most of our shooting lying down.

"I certainly had a job yesterday. There is a telephone at the place where the boys shoot from and also one where they shoot to, so they can keep record. I answered one of these telephones all day. Was in a trench. Had to talk just as loud and as fast as I could. The bullets would make clouds of dirt around me and I tell you, I sure did keep my head down where it belonged. The bullets whizzing around doesn't bother a soldier lad for we get use to all kinds of noises and when we get to France the big guns won't excite us much.

"73 out of our company were sent to Brownsville the 17th.

"We surely get hot and tired but I don't care how tough our work is we go on our way singing. Just wait until Uncle Sam's boys all get 'over there' then the war will soon be over. They are soldiers and are not afraid to fight. I am not afraid to go to France and I want to go when my number is called.

"Dolores Mines, Aug. 2.

Dear Homefolks:

On August 1st, our company was scattered in every direction. Two others and myself were transferred to Co. B. and received orders to leave Laredo August 2nd, on the six o'clock train, to where we didn't know. But when we found ourselves again we were 60 miles up the river at Dolores mining camp instead of on our way to France. There is about 30 in our company. I'm going out scouting in a day or two. Will have to travel around a foot on the river. When night comes I just take my pack off my back and lay down in some bushes on my little blanket. If a Mexican comes around I will have to get him or he will get me.

"I am a real soldier and in regular service for Uncle Sam away down on the border. I wear my belt filled with ammunition all the time, now. Our captain told us that we might be attacked any time and to always be ready. There is a certain bugle call which means 'to arms the enemy is approaching.' Then we have to fall into the trenches. Last night we were called out just to see how quick we could get in, but we boys didn't know until we got there but what we were in a real attack. The first thing you want to grab is your khaki shirt, then your belt and rifle, and next, the rest of your clothes if you have time. I did not have many of mine on before I was gone. The captain said I was alright that a man didn't want to take time to dress if a Mexican was after him.

"Well, I guess I will be here until September. Tell all 'hello' for me and that I wish them well. Don't worry about

RED CROSS NOTES

The Executive Board of the American Red Cross of the Foard County chapter met in regular monthly session Monday night, August 5.

The chairman of woman's work reported that in the month of July one box of 164 hospital garments was sent to the bureau of supplies. Also two boxes of knitted articles consisting of 90 pairs of socks, 20 sweaters, 10 helmets and 20 pair of wristlets.

There is now on hand ready to send 130 pair of socks and one big box of refugee garments.

This represents the summer work of the Vivian, Thalia, Rayland and Antelope auxiliaries, the Margaret branch and the Crowell chapter.

The quota for July, August and September has been received. With the exception of the yarn and 60 pair of pajamas—these are expected any time, and since we are instructed to "speed knitting," the workers will need to knit constantly, that we may complete our quota by October 1st. There is now plenty of sewing on hand and every workroom in the county is running on full time.

METHODIST CHURCH NOTES

After spending a few days in a meeting at Tolbert where the Lord greatly blessed our efforts in the salvation of many souls, we are again at home among our own people.

No true pastor loves to be away from his flock but there are times when duty calls him out and it is good to have true and faithful laymen who will carry the work on in his absence.

Let me urge all of our members to come out next Sunday and come praying that we all may have our spiritual strength renewed. To all we extend a cordial invitation. Come.

J. H. HAMBLEN, Pastor.

PANTHERS GET ACROSS OCEAN WITHOUT LOSS

Practically all of the Panther division is now in France, according to letters and cables received by friends and relatives here and over Texas.

Brigadier General Hutchings, who commanded one of the infantry brigades, has written to Major Walter Woodall, assistant adjutant general at Austin, telling of his safe arrival overseas. Gainesville relatives have heard of Brigadier General Hulen's arrival.

The division did not lose a man on the way across. The artillery, which left camp last, is now arriving in France.

It is expected that the division will be brigaded with French or British at once for a short time in order to gain experience at the front and then upit again under Major General Smith for active service.—Star-Telegram.

IT IS GOING TO RAIN

Of course, just when we do not pretend to say, but that it will rain some time a sufficient amount for all purposes in this country—is a certainty. It always has rained some time and it will do it again. It is true we have had a drouth like few in the history of the country, but the more bravely we stand it the better we will be prepared to enjoy the good times when they do come.

Let no one think that we are not liable to get our needed rains before fall. It is not impossible for it to rain yet in time to make some feed and cotton. There have been times when it rained in the summer, and lots of it to. In some of the years gone by West Texas has had in August as big rains as any that ever fell and it may do it again.

It is not at all improbable that we are nearing the close of the drouth which we have been going through for the last two years. We believe we are, and now is the time to exercise patience, stay in the boat and handle the oars.

It is going to rain. Yes, it is. Watch the prediction.

NOTICE TO SCHOOL TRUSTEES

The County Board of Education will meet Saturday, August the 10th, for the purpose of classifying the schools of the county into elementary schools and high schools, for the purpose of promoting the efficiency of the schools of the county. All district trustees are requested to be present.

Respectfully,
G. L. BURK,
Ex-Officio Member.

BOMAR SEVEN VOTES AHEAD OF CAMPBELL

The official count of the votes in the sheriff's race shows that Bomar was only 7 ahead of Campbell, instead of twelve, as was reported in last week's paper. All the other majorities and pluralities remain unchanged by the official count.

FORMER CROWELL BOY KILLED IN WAR

The following item in the Fort Worth Star Telegram of the death of Aubrey Cooper is of interest to the people of Crowell. He was the son of the Mr. Cooper who owned and operated the hotel west of Ringgold's store. Aubrey was then a young man in school at this place and graduated from the schools here about 1910. The family moved away to Hale Center, we understand, several years ago. This is what the Star-Telegram says:

The first boy from Fort Worth to lose his life in action in France is Lieut. James Aubrey Cooper.

Cooper's name appeared in Saturday's casualty list, his place of residence being given as Hale Center, Texas, where his parents reside.

Cooper graduated from Texas Christian University in 1916, where he attained much prominence in athletics, making his letter both in football and baseball. After leaving school he secured employment with the First National Bank and remained there until the first officers' training school opened at Leon Springs. He was commissioned as a first lieutenant at the end of the course and left shortly afterwards for France.

Aubrey Cooper is a brother of Claude Cooper, former Texas and National League ball player, who is now in training at Camp Travis.

FROM GLENN ROBERTS

The following are excerpts from letters from Pvt. Glenn Roberts to his mother, Mrs. S. M. Roberts, since he left for Camp Travis:

July 17, 1918.

Dear mother: We picked up boys along the way until there were about 300 of us when we got here at 12 o'clock yesterday.

July 18—We were examined yesterday and all our boys were accepted. We have our uniforms now and will send my suit case home. We had preaching last night and there will be services tonight.

July 21—We left San Antonio last night at seven o'clock and got here at six this morning. I like this camp much better than the one we left. Our tents are floored and our mess hall is screened in and we have a place to sit and eat at the table. Nine cars of us came in this morning. I have a Y. M. C. A. testament and some new songs they sing in the army. I am trying to be as good a son here as I was at home.

July 23—We have been drilling today and I like it fine but it will be some time next week before we get our guns. My left arm is hurting me and is badly swollen from the vaccination. Our squad will go on guard duty tonight at 9 o'clock and stay on till 9 tomorrow night. I like our Capt. and Lieut. fine. They are kind to us. We have coffee for breakfast, ice water for dinner and ice tea for supper. We have fruit of some kind every morning for breakfast, and have different kinds of meat, but I sure would like to have some home cured ham and some of your good jam.

Our squad of eight are all six feet tall. The lightest one is our corporal who weighs 140, and the heaviest one weighs 190. Have seen some fine country and some I would not have if it were given me. Crops in some places are good and some are more sorry than we have. Hello and love to everybody.

PVT. GLENN M. ROBERTS,
Co. B, 7th Replacement Battalion, Infantry camp, Camp McArthur, Texas.

PUBLIC SCHOOL OPEN SEP. 9TH

At a meeting of the Crowell school board last Monday evening it was decided to have the public school term for the year 1918-1919 to open Sept. 9. It has been the custom for the past few years to begin the school with a pay school of one month, but that will not be done this year. The free school will begin on the above named date. Further announcements will be made later.

A Reader.

ARE YOU A SLACKER?

"Have you a conscience void of offense?" If not, "be sure your sin will find you out."

The slacker who evades army service is soon known and held in disrepute by all.

Those who are slackers by failing to comply with the food regulations are not so easily detected, but you should remember that every nice white biscuit you eat and every spoonful of sugar used beyond the reasonable allowance made you is that much taken from the hungry women and children of Belgium and France. For many months they have only been getting one pound of sugar to where we have been getting three.

As I have heretofore said, I still believe that the great majority of Foard County people are loyal and true and are closely observing all rules and regulations made by Mr. Hoover. However, it looks a little like the amount of sugar taken out for preserving purposes is not of proportion to the visible supply of peaches and plums. Can your fruit and don't use so much sugar. Don't buy fruit that is in buckets and cans and then call for 25 pounds of sugar to make it into preserves. This regulation was not intended to apply to fruit that is already safely cared for.

JOE W. BEVERLY,
County Food Administrator.

Safety in Industries.

Industrial accidents cost this country 35,000 human lives and many millions of dollars annually, according to the Arizona State Safety News. "In addition, dismemberments and other serious injuries total about 350,000 yearly, while the annual number of minor accidents, causing loss of time, exceeds 2,000,000. The putting forward of Safety is effected by well-known methods: First, you must have an organization that will handle the proposition; second, you have to put your plant and equipment into a proper and safe condition; third, you have to educate people as to the importance of their own responsibility to the safety cause. To keep the ball rolling is the problem which confronts all Safety organizations."

How to Read.

At best the printed words of an author represent but a poor fraction of what is in his thought and feeling, or what he would express if he could. Therefore, it is well to follow Ruskin's advice on "reading for the thought," and "get into the habit of looking intently at words and assure yourself of their meaning syllable by syllable—nay, letter by letter." Not only does this help you to understand the author's meaning by comprehending his words, but the act of concentration fertilizes and awakens your own mind and tends to bring you into such sympathy with the idea expressed and with the author, that you are illumined by far more of the subject than the printed words alone contain.—William E. Towne in Nautilus.

Abyssinia of Today.

The dominant race in Abyssinia is Semitic. The Hamitic is the aboriginal race. The court or official language is Amharic, but Ethiopic is that of the church and literature. The national religion is Monophysite Christianity, but Judaism is found among certain tribes, and Islam is the faith of a considerable element of the population. The head of the Abyssinian church is the Abuna, "our father," who is a Coptic monk, nominated by the Patriarch of Alexandria. The government is a despotic monarchy based on a system partly federal and partly feudal. The civilization of Abyssinia has long been retarded by isolation and anarchy, but there is now a national awakening to the civilized world.

Meet me at Ferguson Bros.

To My Friends in the 46th District: Vernon, Texas, August 5, 1918.—

For the support you gave me on the 27th, I am deeply grateful. However, although I am ahead of Judge Coker in every county in the district, except his own county, I did not receive a majority over both my opponents and will therefore be in the second primary to be pulled off August 24th. I ask all my friends to remember the date, the occasion and the importance to me and to you also of this election, wherein the ultimate fate both of myself and others is to be decided.

Of my two opponents, the ablest of the two, Judge Tisdale, will not be in the second primary. Judge Coker having run slightly ahead of him. I regret this, as I consider him a most worthy young man. For him, in the future however, there will come other opportunities, and when they do come, if I can do him any good, I will be glad to do so. He made a gallant fight and received a most creditable support and one of which he may well be proud.

To all my friends, both those who voted for me and those who did not, I will say, you are still my friends and I am yours. You are cordially invited to come again on the 24th.

Yours,
J. A. NABERS.

CALOMEL DYNAMITES A SLUGGISH LIVER

Crashes into sour bile, making you sick and you lose a day's work.

Calomel salivates! It's mercury. Calomel acts like dynamite on a sluggish liver. When calomel comes into contact with sour bile it crashes into it, causing cramping and nausea.

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone, which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

If you take calomel today you'll be sick and nauseated tomorrow; besides, it may salivate you, while if you take Dodson's Liver Tone you will wake up feeling great, full of ambition and ready for work or play. It's harmless, pleasing and safe to give to children; they like it.

PROUD OF "REMINDER BOOK"

Mr. Binkinton Claims That by Its Aid He Has Been Saved Much Time and Worry.

"What I used to do when I put anything away," said Mr. Binkinton, "was to bestow it with great care in some place where I would know just where to find it, and then I would forget it completely. More than once when I have wanted something that I had thus carefully put away I have had to tear the house apart to find it.

"So it was until I evolved my 'Things Put Away' book which has proved to be a great help and comfort.

"Now when I put anything away I first enter it in that book, which is, of course, indexed, so that I won't have to look through a long list of things when I want to find anything.

"Once soon after I started the book I put that away somewhere very carefully and then forgot where I had put it and had a terrible time looking it up; but since then I have kept it in a spot where it can't fall to come under my eye daily; and it works like a charm.

"Really I should say that for anybody who like myself is apt to forget things a 'Things Put Away' book would be indispensable."

THE CROSS CHILD IS BILIOUS, FEVERISH

Look at tongue! If coated, clean little stomach, liver, bowels

Don't scold your fretful, peevish child. See if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign its little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with sour waste.

When listless, pale, feverish, full of cold, breath bad, throat sore, doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, has stomach-ache, indigestion, diarrhoea, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul waste, the sour bile and fermenting food passes out of the bowels and you have a well and playful child again. Children love this harmless "fruit laxative," and mothers can rest easy after giving it, because it never fails to make their little "insides" clean and sweet.

Keep it handy, Mother! A little given today saves a sick child tomorrow, but get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Remember there are counter-feits sold here, so surely look and see that yours is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Hand back with contempt any other fig syrup.

It's a false philosophy that the greatest savings are in the prices of the things you buy. There is nothing dirt cheap that is very often worth its price. Train the Memory.

The memory is a faculty which through patient practice may be cultivated and trained to a wonderful degree. Morphy, the celebrated chess player, could play several games of chess simultaneously without seeing any of the boards on which the various games were being conducted. It was a peculiarly impressive sight to see him standing in the middle of the floor, with his arms folded, defending himself and attacking the various opponents, with the position of the chess men on the several boards always in his mind's eye, observes a writer. The noted Jesuit Father Suarez was said to have known all the works of St. Augustine by heart. These consist of eleven large volumes. Pascal is said never to have forgotten anything he read, and the same is told of Grotius, Leibnitz and Euler. The mistics knew the name of every one of the twenty thousand citizens of Athens.

Where Cyclones Originate.

The most violent cyclones originate in tropical latitudes, in the Atlantic ocean to the north and east, of West Indian islands, and in the Pacific, in the China sea and in the neighborhood of the Philippine Islands.

The reason they are so destructive is because they are carried such great distances by extraneous influences. The West Indian cyclones are attracted toward the Gulf stream by the great volume of heated air which always hangs over it and follows its course; so the cyclones of the Pacific follow the course of Kuro Siwo, the great oceanic current which passes around the East Indian archipelago, the shores of China and the Japanese islands. Cyclones may be anywhere from 50 to 500 miles in diameter and may travel over a path 5,000 miles in extent.

PLAN OF GOVERNMENT LOANS TO RELIEVE WHEAT GROWERS IN WESTERN DROUGHT SEC.

The following statement is given out by the Treasury Department and the Department of Agriculture:

Acting upon the urgent representations that many wheat growers in certain sections of the West who have lost two successive crops by winter killing and drought have exhausted their resources and may be compelled to forego fall planting and, in some cases, to abandon their homes unless immediate assistance is extended, the President, on Saturday, July 27, placed at the disposal of the Treasury Department of Agriculture the sum of $5,000,000 to enable them to furnish aid to that extent. The two departments are already actively at work formulating plans for making loans under this authorization and complete details will be announced within the next few days and operations begun.

It may be stated generally that the Federal land banks in the districts affected will be designated by the Secretary of the Treasury as the financial agents of the Government to make the loans and to collect them. The Department of Agriculture, through its special officers, including the county agents, will ascertain the needs of the individual farmers and determine the feasibility of the planting.

The primary object of this fund is not to stimulate the planting of an increased fall acreage of wheat or rye in the severely affected drought areas, or even necessarily to secure the planting of a normal acreage, but rather to assist in tiding the farmers over the period of the stress, to enable them to remain on their farms to plant such an acreage as may be determined to be wise under all the conditions, with a view to increase the food supply of the Nation and to add to the national security and defense. It is distinctly not intended to be used to stimulate the planting of wheat or any other grain where such planting is not wise from any agricultural point of view and where other activities are safer.

It is not intended that this fund shall be used to make loans to farmers who have banking collateral and can otherwise secure loans. The recent action of the War Finance Corporation, indicating its willingness to make advances to banks and trust companies which have made loans to farmers and cattlemen, should ease the general financial situation and in large measure enable bankers to extend accommodations to farmers having such collateral. Banks are urged to avail themselves of the offer of the War Finance Corporation.

This fund, because of its limited amount, will be used necessarily principally in connection with the fall planting of wheat or of preferred substitute grain in the areas involved. This will not include consideration of cases of individuals who do not intend to, or who can not engage in, fall seeding who might otherwise be compelled to abandon their homes and make great sacrifices; provided sufficient funds are left after considering the pressing fall planting needs.

The loans will probably not be made for more than $3 an acre, and it is likely that a maximum of 100 acres in some localities and of 150 in others will be established. In addition to paying a reasonable rate of interest, each farmer will be required to contribute to an insurance fund out of the proceeds from the sale of his crops if his operations are successful.

The foregoing article, which was taken from the Official Bulletin dated July 30th, resulted from a conference of Washington officials and County Agents at College Station July 22nd. I have kept constant representations of conditions and the untiring efforts of the majority of the farmers of this county to raise food and feed before the Department and the above proposed aid is complete evidence that the Government will keep its promise made early in the year, to willingly help us if we did our best and failed. In the light of present circumstances it behooves everybody to calmly face the facts and make the best of a bad situation. It is no time to shirk obligations but it is the time for pure, unselfish co-operation between every individual in the county. It is no time for petty jealousies and strife but it is a time when the resources of the county should be utilized to the best advantage for all and we should not hesitate to accept, and make the best use of, the aid that is extended from without.

It seems to me that a mass meeting of every individual in the county would tend to strengthen the spirit of co-operation and go a long way towards solving many individual problems. Questions pertaining to road work might also be satisfactorily disposed of.

It is my sincere desire to assist in any undertaking that is for the general good of the people of Foard county and for the best interest of our Government. To that end I ask the co-operation of every citizen of the county.

Monks and the Silkworm.

About the year 552 two Persian monks stole furtively out of China with scanty luggage, but treasuring an ordinary bamboo cane. They set out on foot and made their way from China into Europe. In that cane were a multitude of the eggs of the silkworm moth, which the monks had stolen. They carried them to Constantinople. When the time came for the hatching of the eggs the monks tended the little caterpillars, fed them on the leaves of the mulberry, took their cocoons when they spun, and from them derived the first silk produced in Europe. Silk had for centuries before been a treasure of China, and its manufacture, like the insects which produced it, was jealously guarded. The monks, while on a missionary enterprise to China, had witnessed the whole process of silkworm rearing and the manufacture of silk.

Experts' Perilous Task.

One of the thrilling and hazardous duties which sometimes falls to the lot of game experts and wardens in mountainous regions of the West is to search out eagles' nests, rob them of their eggs, and perhaps take the young captive, says Popular Mechanic's Magazine. The perils of the task are not all passed when, with a rope ladder or by other precarious means, he has ascended or descended to the aerie, for then the intruder must face the powerful grown birds at close range, and often when he cannot defend himself to advantage. The searcher for the lofty nests also finds that the young fifty or sixty days old, can become disagreeably aggressive.

Fishing Village That Floats.

In the shadow of the huge Manhattan bridge which connects New York proper with Brooklyn nestles a veritable fishing village consisting of nine two-story houseboats moored side by side so as to form a solid row and sheltering the fishermen and their families, on whom New York city is dependent for a good part of its fish supply. But unless you are familiar with the vagaries of fish and the localities in which they school in certain seasons you need not go in search of this village. Often it disappears from a locality overnight, without any forewarning, reappearing as quietly a few months later.—Popular Science Monthly.

A Robert Browning Story.

Tennyson wore the same hat year after year, a big wide-awake, almost green with age. How long exactly he had had this hat nobody seems to know. His Inverness cloak was not quite so ancient, but had long since seen its best days. The great poet was scrupulously clean in his person, but he would not part with his old clothes.

He seems to have clung as closely to his boots as to his hat. William Allingham records in his diary: "Robert Browning died at Tennyson's last night. Tennyson is great force. He said, 'This pair of dress boots is forty years old.' Browning said it was good evidence of the immortality of the sole!"

CROWELL, TEXAS, AUGUST 9, 1918

Co-operation is the word, always, but more especially when times are below normal. It is the principle upon which business men should act towards each other and it is no less necessary to be observed between business men and the people. It is really the principle that underlies community development and community development is a blessing in which all share the good. There are supernormal, normal and subnormal times in the affairs of all countries, but no one of these conditions should interfere with the observance of the principle of co-operation. What we are trying to say is that we should all patronize each other when times are good and when times are not good. It is the only way we can build, and then it is the way we can hold together when the building ceases for a season, as it does sometimes. To cease to cooperate means to expose the structure which we have commenced to the forces of disintegration, and that would ultimately result in general ruin. Let us stand together and rise from the valley. If we stand apart we shall fall. In union there is strength, and strength is synonymous with life and activity.

Action has been taken in many of the big schools of the country prohibiting the teaching of the German language. Sentiment has been formed and has grown not so much because of the fact that we are in war with Germany as the fact that we discovered not long ago that Germany inaugurated a scheme to Germanize this country, and that was being done by trying to shape the thought of the youths of the country through the institutions of learning. It is well that this discovery was made in time to save our ideals of government and religion. Germany had already poisoned these institutions and would have accomplished her aim in the course of time. The reason she did not fear America any more than she did is because she thought her hold in this country was firm.

If we read signs correctly, there is nothing more certain than that the Allies are on the march to ultimate victory. It does not mean that they will not have reverses. They are not drifting towards that end, they are fighting and fighting is always an up-hill business. The Allies started up-hill when they routed the Germans from the Marne, and they are still going up-hill. The grade is heavy and long perhaps, but we are adding to the forces necessary to make that pull every day.

The draft age will probably be lowered to include 19 year olds and raised to include those of 45. Of course this will take a large part of our population out, but since it is the only thing to do the quicker it is done the better for us all. It ought to be the purpose of every American to make every sacrifice and do every thing possible to make a quick job of the work we have laid our hands to. On with the battle to a finish.

It is claimed that over 700 millions tons of coal will be consumed in the United States this winter, and in order to avoid a coal famine it will be necessary to distribute the work of delivery as evenly as possible in order to avoid a coal famine this winter. The Government is doing all it can to get the people to lay in their supply of coal before winter in order to avoid such famine.

If the Germans have suffered no defeat yet, as they claim they have not, we should like to know what would constitute a defeat for them. All their actions are according to plans, but they must have formulated their plans immediately when the Allies took the offensive, and their plans were to put space between the two armies.

Hindenburg is still going in the direction of Paris and if there is no stop over along the way he will get there after a while. He has taken the opposite direction, however, from what he has been going for the last four years.

Since July 15 the Allies have taken 60,000 prisoners and 800 guns, still the Germans have made a successful retreat, so they say.

AMERICANS DOING THE STUNT

Yes, that is just what they are doing, putting it in street parlance, they are doing the stunt over in France. That does not mean that the French are doing nothing. Everybody knows that they are fighters not surpassed in bravery and steadfastness of purpose, but the Americans are turning the tide of this war. It could never have been done if America had staid out of it. It is plain to everyone now that if we had not gone into the war the Germans would have won. But now they can't win. They have lost the war without the slightest doubt, not that a decisive victory has been won, for that is not the case, but the head-on which the Allies have on is certain to result in the crushing of the Germans, and the German heads have known it for a long time and the German people are beginning to find it out.

In the recent engagements we have demonstrated superiority in every phase of the contest, and that superiority will not diminish, but on the other hand it will increase as the weeks and months pass. Germany can not keep pace with the Allies in throwing new forces into the struggle and in furnishing them with the necessities of warfare. We now have nearly a million and a half men in France and they are going in steady stream all the time, so it is evident that at the present rate we are getting into the war we are bound to soon have the necessary strength to make victory a matter of time only.

Every one is proud of the record the Americans are making. And among those making that great record are some from Crowell. Is it not great to think that our own boys are there helping to whip these savages, for that is just what they are. No civilized people in the world has ever been guilty of such inhuman practices as have characterized the Germans in this war. So they are not a civilized people. That is the kind of a people our boys are helping to put the fixings on, and it will be done right. And by the way that is the kind of people we at home are helping to whip every time we buy a thrift stamp or donate to the Red Cross Society. We are all engaged in the work, if we are doing our duty as citizens.

STORY MADE EMERSON LAUGH

Recalled Incident of Young Man Sending Letter Intended for His Wash-woman to His Sweetheart.

Young Conwell was sent by Horace Greeley to interview Ralph Waldo Emerson for the New York Tribune. He was pleasantly received by Emerson in his home in Concord, surrounded by his family, recites the Kansas City Star. In the course of the conversation he asked Mr. Emerson what he laughed at. In all the writing of the Concord philosopher there is not a joke nor even a trace of humor.

Emerson replied that he never laughed. "Oh, yes, you do, father," cried the family. "We hear you laughing in the garden." "Well," Emerson said, "I do sometimes laugh at something I read when a boy, but it is foolish and not worth putting in a paper."

Mr. Conwell said that was just what he wanted. Emerson then told about an agitated young man who wrote two letters, one to his washerwoman and one to his lady love. He mixed them up, and the latter was very much astonished to receive this letter: "If you muss up the bosom of my best shirt again I will have nothing whatever to do with you."

Parliamentary Privilege.

Parliamentary privilege means the almost complete freedom from arrest that is accorded members of parliamentary bodies. The Constitution of the United States says that senators and representatives "shall in all cases, except treason, felony and breach of the peace, be privileged from arrest during their attendance at the session of their respective houses, and in going to and returning from the same; and for any speech or debate in either house, they shall not be questioned in any other place." Similar provisions appear in the constitutions of most of the states. The constitution of Indiana makes the provision broader. It says: "Senators and representatives, in all cases except treason, felony and breach of the peace, shall be privileged from arrest during the session of the general assembly, and in going to and returning from the same, and shall not be subject to any civil process during the session of the general assembly nor during the fifteen days next before the commencement thereof. For any speech or debate in either house a member shall not be questioned in any other place."

IS CAUGHT IN HIS OWN TRAP

Court Prosecutor, Insisting on Prisoner Demonstrating How Hard He Assaulted Man, is Speedily Shown.

It happened in the courtroom during the trial of a husky young man who was charged with assault and battery, relates the Cleveland Plain Dealer. Throughout an especially severe cross-examination the defendant stonily maintained that he had merely pushed the plaintiff "a little bit."

"Well, about how hard?" queried the prosecutor.

"Oh, just a little bit," responded the defendant.

"Now," said the attorney, "for the benefit of the judge and the jury, you will please step down here and, with me for the subject, illustrate just how hard you mean."

Owing to the unmerciful badgering which the witness had just been through, the prosecutor thought that the young man would perhaps overdo the matter to get back at him, and thus incriminate himself.

The defendant descended as per schedule, and approached the waiting attorney. When he reached him the spectators were astonished to see him slap the lawyer in the face, kick him in the shins, seize him bodily, and, finally, with a supreme effort, lift him from the floor and hurl him prostrate across a table.

Turning from the bewildered prosecutor, he faced the court and explained mildly:

"Your honor and gentleman, about one-tenth that hard!"

Fool Growing Plants.

Scientists have found the way to make the sun shine, as it were, upon agriculture. They charge the soil with electricity and the crops, fooled into believing that the sun is shining, commence to grow at a rapid pace. There is no deception about the results of this experiment, which are hailed as an achievement of vast importance in these days of war when the production and conservation of food are so tremendously vital.

In experiments that have been conducted under the auspices of the English government young strawberry plants are said to have increased in yield by 80 per cent, and even old plants are reported to have given 30 per cent more fruit. Potatoes can easily be persuaded, scientists claim, into the belief that a charge of electricity is genuine sunshine, as a result of which they forthwith grow prodigiously.

First Naval Battle.

The first naval battle recorded in the world's history was that between the Corinthians and the Corcyrans, fought 2,572 years ago. Corcyra, the island off the coast of Epirus, now called Corfu, had been settled by Corinthians, and for centuries owed allegiance to the mother city. In 604 B. C. the Corcyrans declared their independence, and the Corinthians immediately prepared a fleet to reclaim their colony. The Corcyrans sent out a squadron to meet their foes. After a furious contest the Corcyrans emerged as victors. From that time on sea battles were frequent, and all of the petty states of Greece built navies. The enmities engendered by that first sea struggle resulted over two centuries later in the Peloponnesian war.

Starting Traditions.

In ages which we call heroic, the saint works miracles, the warrior performs exploits beyond the strength of natural man. In ages less visionary, which are given to ease and enjoyment, the tendency is to bring the great man down to the common level and to discover or invent faults which shall show that he is or was but a little man after all. . . . The absurdity of a calumny may be as evident as the absurdity of a miracle, the ground for belief may be no more than a lightness of mind and a less pardonable wish that it may be true. But the idle tale floats in society, and by and by is written down in books and passes into the region of established realities.—Froude.

Rheumatism Relief -- 25c.

Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets), Are Helping Thousands Who Tried Expensive Things Without Result. It's Guaranteed.

There are three vital processes of human existence—the digestion of food, the extraction of nourishment from it and the elimination of waste. Poor digestion and assimilation means failure to derive full nourishment from food and that in turn often means impoverished blood, weakness, anemia, etc. Poor elimination means an accumulation of waste matter which poisons the body, lowers vitality, decreases the power of resistance to disease and leads to the development of many serious ills.

Rheumatism—due to some interference with the process of elimination, failure to get rid of certain body poisons—cannot be expected to yield to any medicine that fails to correct the condition responsible for it. Could any reasonable person expect to rid himself of rheumatic pain as long as rheumatic poison is allowed to remain in the body?

Think of this. It explains the success of Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) in so many cases. While other medicines have failed, thousands are using NR Tablets every day and getting relief. Why pay five or ten times as much for expensive things? A six box of Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets), containing enough to last twenty-five days—must help you, must give you prompt relief and satisfactory benefit or cost you nothing.

Nature's Remedy is not only for the relief of rheumatism. It improves digestion, tones the liver, regulates kidney and bowel action, improves the blood and cleanses the system. You've tried the expensive medicines and doctors, now make the real test. You'll get results this time. Just try it. Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) is sold, guaranteed and recommended by your druggist.

HANDS, ARMS, LIMBS ASLEEP

And Was Run-Down, Weak and Nervous, Says Florida Lady. Five Bottles of Cardui Made Her Well.

Kathleen, Fla.—Mrs. Dallas Prine, of this city, says: "After the birth of my child... I got very much run-down and weakened, so much that I could hardly do anything at all. I was so awfully nervous that I could scarcely endure the least noise. My condition was getting worse all the time... I knew I must have some relief or I would soon be in the bed and in a serious condition for I felt so badly and was so nervous and weak I could hardly live. My husband asked Dr. Cardui about my taking Cardui. He said, 'It's a good medicine, and a good for that trouble', so he got me 5 bottles... After about the second bottle I felt greatly improved... before taking it my limbs and hands and arms would go to sleep. After taking it, however, this poor circulation disappeared. My strength came back to me and I was soon on the road to health. After the use of about 5 bottles, I could do all my house-work and attend to my six children besides."

You can feel safe in giving Cardui a thorough trial for your troubles. It contains no harmful or habit-forming drugs, but is composed of mild, vegetable, medicinal ingredients with no bad after-effects. Thousands of women have voluntarily written, telling of the good Cardui has done them. It should help you, too. Try it. E 74

AFTER THE WAR By J. E. Jones

It is the business of the Government to look ahead. Already Washington has plans in operation to provide against the day of the homecoming of American soldiers.

War-risk insurance is one of the greatest plans of modern times. Vocational employment for wounded soldiers is an actuality, and plans are being perfected to take care of ten thousand incapacitated men, who are likely to return from Pershing's Army this year.

Secretary of Interior, Franklin K. Lane, has called attention to the fact at the close of the Civil War America met its problems of caring for the returning soldiers by throwing millions of acres of homestead land open for entry. The so-called Homestead Law was signed by Lincoln in the second year of the war, and out of our wealth in lands we had farms to offer millions of veterans. But the bountiful domains of the sixties and seventies have passed, and, as Mr. Lane puts it, "We have no land in any way comparable to that in the public domain when men turned westward with army rifle and 'rolled blanket' to begin life anew."

Even though the rich homestead lands have all been taken, the fact remains that there are still arid lands in the West, cut-over lands in the Northwest and in the states bordering the Great Lakes. The swamp lands of the South can be made available through their proper development. However the best opportunity for new home seekers doubtless lies in the Colorado basin. "That great project, I believe, will appeal to the new spirit of America," says Secretary Lane, who comments: "It would mean conquest of an empire in the Southwest. It is believed that more than three million acres of arid land could be reclaimed by the completion of the Upper and Lower Colorado Basin Projects. It has been officially estimated that more than fifteen millions of acres of irrigable land now remain in the Government's hands. This is the great remaining storehouse of Government land for reclamation."

The Drift of Farms

Harkening back to the days of the Civil War, there is an abundance of evidence that soldiers returning from military life showed a decided preference for agricultural pursuits. The soldier's life in the open appears to be conducive to the selection of the farm for a vocation. History challenges the prediction and prophesy so often heard that our soldier boys will flock to the great cities upon their return from Europe. They have never shown any tendency to coop themselves up in apartment houses and tenement flats.

The United States is no longer ignoring the experiences of other countries and governments, and we have ceased to drift along in a self-satisfied manner. A study has been made of the agricultural conditions of Denmark, Ireland, New Zealand and Australia with reference to the land situation, and it has been determined that organized community development in these countries has succeeded in turning the drift of population from the cities toward the farm. The Interior Department, under Secretary Lane, is urging that the Government seize the opportunity for immediate duty with reference to beginning new irrigation projects and reclaiming vast tracts of land that can be utilized after the war, so that the United States may be able to say to its returning soldiers: "If you wish to go upon a farm here are a variety of farms of which you may have your pick, which the Government has prepared against the time of your return."

Secretary Lane is very insistent that the United States get busy upon this phase of national development.

Government Employment Service

Under a new form of employment that has been worked out through the United States Department of Labor, a centralization of employment service for the purpose of recruiting and distributing labor for world production has gone into effect. The new United States employment services proposes to blanket the United States, and a large staff has been employed at Washington, while throughout the country Community Labor Boards have been established. Beginning with August 1 it is the purpose of the Government to control, as far as possible, the employment of labor. Ten thousand private employment agencies throughout the United States will be forced out of business.

Similar work has been carried on successfully in England since the beginning of the war.

President Wilson, in a message upon this subject dated June 17, said: "California draws its unskilled labor from as far east as Buffalo; New York from as far west as the Mississippi; thus labor has been induced to move fruitlessly from one point to another, congesting the railways and losing both time and money." Labor has been urged by the President to respond as loyally as heretofore to any calls issued by the Government employment service for voluntary enlistment in essential industry. The President adds: "And I ask for both alike to remember that no sacrifice will have been in vain if we are able to prove beyond all question that the highest and best form of efficiency is that spontaneous co-operation of a free people."

"Fundamental Laws"

United States Senator James E. Watson of Indiana, in discussing Government ownership said that he had been a student of the subject all his life, and that he had likewise devoted some time to the study of the study of "fundamental principles and the underlying policies of Socialism." Senator Watson declares that in the legislation aiming at taking over huge property interests that the doors have been opened to the policy "which, if relentlessly pursued, means inevitable changes in our form of government."

In the new policy extending Government control over our large industrial institutions, Senator Watson discovers the danger that "fundamental institutions, Senator Watson declares that the basic ideas of government are being overturned, with the result that we are led to suspect that our institutions are a myth, fundamentals a hallucination, and law and order irredescent terms." He asserted that our whole fabric of Government may even become only "a Utopia that can never be realized among men."

Senator Watson predicted that unless Congress checked the onrushing tide that all factories engaged in the manufacture of munitions and supplies will eventually be laid hold of and all the industries of the United States, save along agriculture, will soon pass under Government control. Senator Watson voiced the opinion that conditions are heading the United States toward Socialism. Public dissent is easily quieted, he points out by a course like that adopted with the railroads, when an increase of $300,000,000 in wages of railway employees followed speedily upon the heels of Government control.

"Chapel" in Printing Offices.

Benjamin Franklin, who was himself a printer in early life, gives the following explanation as to why "chapels" are found in printing offices. He says: "A printing house is always a chapel for the workmen, the origin of which appears to have been that printing was first carried on in England in an ancient chapel converted into a printing house, and the title has been preserved by tradition." Of course, the reference is to Caxton's printing press, set up in one of the chapels of Westminster abbey. The father of the chapel is one of the printers, who usually presides over any meetings that may be held.

Had Suffered All Her Life Without Any Relief—Tanlac Ends Trouble

"I was flat on my back for eight months and never did commence to get well and fell right until I began taking Tanlac," said Mrs. Inez Arnold of 1530 San Fernando Street, San Antonio, Texas, recently.

"Nearly all my life," continued Mrs. Arnold, "I have suffered from stomach trouble and intestinal indigestion. For the past eighteen years especially my health has been bad and while I did everything I could, my condition kept getting more serious. I suffered from nervousness, awful headaches and pain in my back and stomach. I could hardly sleep and nearly everything I would eat caused me pain. Sometimes I would get so dizzy I had to sit down to keep from falling. When I stooped over I could hardly straighten up again and I just felt miserable and bad all the time."

"The eight months spell I had alone cost me more than eight hundred dollars to say nothing of what I paid out at other times trying to get relief. I was all the time trying to get something to help me, so my joy can be imagined when I got Tanlac and began to improve. I believe I felt better with my third dose of Tanlac, it just seemed to suit my case exactly, and I kept taking it and improving until now I'm simply feeling fine. I can eat anything I want, sleep soundly and have no trouble in doing all my work. I declare I never felt better in all my life, and I wouldn't take anything in the world for what it has done for me because I honestly believe it has been my salvation."

Tanlac is sold in Crowell by the Owl Drug Store and at Thalia by Long Brothers.

GERMANY WORRIED ABOUT RUSSIA

A leading article in a recent issue of the Frankfurter Zeitung discloses the fact that the worthlessness of the Brest-Litovsk peace treaty with the Bolsheviks is drawing upon some of the German newspapers and that they have begun to worry about allied intentions in Russia. The article says in part:

The Mosco Soviet Government, which from the beginning was supported only by a majority, and in the eight months of its existence has hardly been able to broaden the foundation of its rule, is faced by an immediate peril. Its Red Guards, which were to preach in arms to the whole world the gospel of social revolution, are good enough for street fighting, but whether they can stand up to an enemy who is as well armed as they are has still to be seen.

"The success of the Czechoslovak, who in spite of all the victory reports of the Petrograd Telegraph Agency have broken the main traffic route of the Asiatic-Russian Empire, in any case speak a plain language. The Allies will assuredly bring arms in sufficient quantity to equip everybody who is ready to fight against the Bolsheviks, and they will hardly lack a supply of such adherents. The representatives of England will also be able to fight with catchwords as well as Lenine and Trotsky do; the speeches which Herr Kerensky has delivered in London have already set the time. The entente seems already to have established a connection with the Czechoslovaks, so that, if its undertaking is really carried out, it can from the beginning count upon a prop in the interior of Russia."

The Frankfurter Zeitung then inquires what view Germany should take of these undertakings, and what her own consequent attitude should be. It says:

"Even in enemy countries only a few dreamers probably think of restoring the broken front in the East; the Russian people may be considered incapable for years to come of such a military achievement. But perhaps it is calculated in London and Paris that the guerilla war which for months passed has never entirely ceased in the East can be made to flame up more strongly, so that the Germans would be forced to strengthen their protection. More important seems the political menace to the work accomplished at Brest-Litovsk. That work, with its many obscurities, never contained a guarantee of permanence, and the events of the last few months have made holes in it everywhere. If the Entente undertaking were to lead to the collapse of the Soviet Government, which concluded the treaty of peace and still rely upon that treaty, as Lenine has often said, there will remain very little of the peace. The task which seemed to have been accomplished will face Germany once more. It will still be more difficult than it was the first time."

"Where could a Russian government have any sort of prospect of lasting? It would be paradoxical if Germany were to see herself compelled to intervene in favor of the Bolshevik Government, when this government is played out. The Entente press attributes to German policy the intention of favoring a Russian reaction. But can anybody seriously expect a consolidation of the situation of any Czar who, with alien help, mounted the worm-eaten throne of the Romanoffs?"

expresses its fervent hope that Germany may be able to solve the new problem politically and with as little recourse to arms as possible. But it observes that Germany cannot get a real peace except with a real government, and that an increase of the present chaos must necessarily repeated German interventions. There is then an interesting rebuke of the Germans who "always speak and dream only of the strong hand."

"No amount of improvised manifestations by sham local governments ought to deceive us about the facts. If Russia today seems to be falling asunder into a number of big and little republics, we must not forget that this phenomenon was observed also during the first Russian revolution. Russian national feeling is still just as much a fact as the immense distances which, for example, separate the Don from Turkestan, where a Berlin Pan-German journal plants to satisfy Germany's needs if the Entente closes to us the world-seas. There are said to be even people who regard Turkestan itself only as a stage on the road to India. Such dreamers ought to consider that even Alexander the Great had to fight for seven years before he was able to establish a brief rule in Turkestan and on the western borders of India. Moreover Alexander had his base in Mesopotamia, considerably nearer to his strategical objectives, and he had not to reckon with the internal resistance which must today oppose an alien penetration of Russia." —Star Telegram.

Useful Parrot.

Unchanged and unattended, a parrot perched throughout the day on a chaise outside of a store in Seattle, Wash., and advertises the wares to be purchased therein to all passersby. During the summer time he is particularly useful, his owner having taught him to make this announcement: "Ice cream cones—five cents. Right inside." The appearance of a pedestrian in the vicinity of the store is a signal for the bird to repeat his announcement. The parrot has proven a great advertising card and has greatly boosted the business of the store to the advantage of the owner.

ANOTHER FOARD COUNTY BOY ON WAY TO FRANCE

A letter from Lee Roy Statser to his wife says that he is about ready to start to somewhere and does not know where. He says about 1,000 boys leave Camp Travis every day for France but that about that many come to the camp each day.

He is heard from later in the week and says that he is at Alexander, La. He says further:

"I am on my way to France. We will leave here the 3rd day of August for New York. There were 500 of us left Camp Travis and came here to make out a company. There will be 10,000 leave here the 2nd for France.

"I am carrying 62 pounds and my gun and drilling with it every day and until 9 o'clock at night. Believe me, we feel like resting when the time comes.

"I have seen several steam boats on the Mississippi river. We sure see some sights, too, along the road as we go rolling by.

The scout flyers are used in extraordinary dangerous work on the battle fronts in doing important military assignments which require the most daring bravery, keenest eyes, and steadiest nerves. As a precaution against the possibility of getting some tainted loyalty among these seventeen army surgeons General Pershing asked that these surgeons submit their family trees, so that their ancestry might be scrutinized by the chief war authorities. As a result of these rigid weeding out processes Major Beverly was one of the seventeen selected and well he might have been."

TRACING EVOLUTION OF BAR

In Old Rome It Had Its Origin in Relations Existing Between Patron and Client.

The Roman bar, writes S. P. Scott in Case and Comment, deduced its origin from the intimate association of patron and client in the days of the republic. This relation, founded upon mutual support and assistance, bore a considerable resemblance to that of lord and vassal during the middle ages without, however, including the oppressive restrictions imposed upon the latter by the laws of feudalism. Among the many duties required of the patron was that of transacting the legal business of his clients and appearing for them in court. This service was at first entirely gratuitous, but subsequently, when the ties of hereditary connection became less binding, and consultation with patrons was abandoned by their clients for the advice of jurists possessed of greater legal erudition, a voluntary fee, called an honorarium, was expected. The amount of this was established by custom, and, in the course of time, when excessive gifts of this kind were virtually demanded, all fees were regulated by statute.

After law had developed into a science the profession became recognized as a distinct calling, and legal procedure having been systematically organized, representation of parties in court was successively effected by three classes of persons—procurators, cognitors and advocates.

IDEAL SITE FOR REST CURE

City of Santa Cruz de la Sierra, in Bolivia, Practically a Place of Absolute Silence.

"The only tropical city of Bolivia, it stands some 1,500 feet above sea level so far from the outside world that mail deposited on January 7 reached New York on March 11. Of the 19,000 inhabitants of Santa Cruz de la Sierra 11,000 are female," Harry A. Franck writes in the Century.

"It is a city of silence. Spreading over a dead flat, half sandy, hinged plain, its right angled streets are deep in reddish sand in which not only its shod feet, by no means in the majority, though the upper class is almost foppish in dress, but even the solid wooden wheels of its clumsy ox carts make not a sound. There is no modern industry to lend its strident voice, though the town boasts three 'steam establishments' for the making of ice, the grinding of maize and the sawing of lumber, and every street fades away at either end into the whispering jungle. Narrow sidewalks of porous red bricks, roofed by the wide overhanging eaves of the houses, often upheld by pillars or poles, line most of the streets. But these are by no means continuous, and being commonly high above the street level and often taken up entirely, especially of an evening, by the families, who consider this their veranda rather than the pedestrian's right of way, the latter generally finds it easier to plod through the sand of the street itself."

Beautiful Chinese Gardens.
From time immemorial China has been called the flowerly kingdom, a name given by the Chinese themselves and singularly suited to the land which for ages was like an oasis of flowers of the spirit in the world desert of barbarism, observes the New York World.

In this oasis grew the arts of the bronze and stone worker, of the silk maker and embroiderer, of the potter, of the painter on silk, of the poet, philosopher and ethical devotee.

But China was not named the flowerly kingdom because of these flowers of the mind. Her flora is one of the most luxuriant in the world. It is estimated to consist of some 12,000 species, 9,000 of which are known and one-half of which are indigenous and not found elsewhere.

Such being the flora of China, it is readily understood that horticulture and gardening early became a skilled and honored profession.

Concerning Natural Death.

"Under normal conditions most complex animals have a characteristic and rather sharply defined duration of life. But one-celled animals, which reproduce by fission, are apparently immortal unless life is stopped by what may be called an accident, for as the cell divides in half, neither part may be called the parent, and both halves will go on reproducing. And by taking cuttings from a plant, a part of the original may be kept living indefinitely by repeated cuttings, while the parent plant dies at the close of its usual duration of life. Thus it would appear," concludes a writer in the Journal of Heredity, "that natural death is connected only with organisms which are composed of different organs which are inseparable."

NAMED FOR SPECIAL WORK

The McKinney Democrat-Gazette prints a lengthy item in last week's issue about Major A. F. Beverly of that place who has risen to prominence since the war started by his work at home in connection with army life, and who has been called to a special work in France. It is well to say that in connection with that work, for which he was one to be named, nothing but pure American blood was acceptable. Major Beverly is a nephew of J. W. Beverly and T. M. Beverly of this city. We can give no better account of the nature of the work for which he was called than by reproducing the following from the McKinney Democrat-Gazette:

France, Aug. 2.—American unconcern in a close fight not only has surprised the enemy, but it has brought a feeling of dismay to picked detachments charged with the duty of driving the fear of the German into the soldiers from overseas.

It appears to be a sort of gospel among the Germans that when they attack for the purpose of spreading terror, after careful plans and preparations, that the adversary should lie low and succumb or surrender at the scheduled moment. They are slow to admit that they may be found anywhere else than under cover when the frightfulness comes along.

Yet they do find American boys at times coming out into the open, rashly and unnecessarily to meet the worst they have to offer. This fighting spirit often amounts to foolhardiness and that is how the Germans classify it, although more in distress than anger. Some of the men from across the Rhine declare that it is not only foolhardy, but it violates the fighting rules since 1914 for a man to face them in the open when it is their attack.

"We could not take the village because the Americans were where they had no business to be," said a prisoner captured at Xivray, on the Toul sector. "They came right out through the barrage and it wasn't right."

Asked why it was not right, the German replied naively:

"They might have been killed." Although there is no evidence, it is probable that some unnecessary losses are attributable to this lack of temerity—losses that will diminish as experience tempers zeal.

LIFT YOUR CORNS OFF WITH FINGERS

Tells how to loosen a tender corn or callus so it lifts out

You reckless men and women who are pestered with corns and who have at least once a week invited an awful death from lockjaw or blood poison are now told by a Cincinnati authority to use a drug called Freezone, which the moment a few drops are applied to any corn or callus the soreness is relieved and soon the entire corn or callus, root and all, lifts off with the fingers.

Freezone dries the moment it is applied, and simply shrivels the corn or callus without inflaming or even irritating the surrounding tissue or skin. A small bottle of Freezone will cost very little at any of the drug stores, but will positively rid one's feet of every hard or soft corn or hardened callus.
