CLAUDE ABSTON IS TAKEN BY DEATH JUNE 16

Claude D. Abstons, 39, of Thalia, died Friday afternoon, June 16, at about 4 o'clock in a Vernon hospital. He became ill at Thalia the previous Sunday and was taken to the hospital, where he underwent an operation Saturday night. His condition was satisfactory until Wednesday night and after that time it gradually became worse until death came.

Mr. Abstons was born at Willow Grove, Tenn., on Sept. 13, 1893. In 1904 he came to Texas with his parents, who settled on a farm in the Bayland community. They remained there until 1916, moving at that time to a farm one mile north of Thalia. In 1919 the family moved to the home in Thalia where Mr. Abstons lived with his mother until being moved to the hospital at Vernon. The deceased's father died at this home on Jan. 29, 1929.

At the time he became ill, Mr. Abstons was employed at the Brown and Chapman service station in Thalia and also assisted his brother, Bob, in the garage business that he conducted in the building adjoining the station. He, Tom and Bob Abstons were partners in the Abstons Bros. Grocery, which was established at Thalia in March, 1929. They sold their interest in this store to C. C. Wheeler and L. D. Fox Jr. in Sept., 1931.

Except for a few years spent in farming near Oklahoma City, Mr. Abstons spent all of his life in the Bayland and Thalia communities after coming to Texas nearly thirty years ago. He remained single throughout his life.

He was closely devoted to his family and friends and was straightforward and dependable in his everyday dealings throughout his life. He took pleasure in being of assistance to anyone in need of aid that he was capable of giving.

Those surviving are his mother, Mrs. J. A. Abstons of Thalia; four brothers, Leslie Abstons of Granite, Okla., Bert P. Abstons of Rayland, Bob and Tom Abstons of Thalia, and three sisters, Mrs. Arthur C. Phillips of Sudan, Texas, Mrs. Fred Rennels of Crowell, and Mrs. John Thompson of Thalia. All were present for the funeral services.

Funeral Services

Elder R. L. Collier, minister of the Vernon Church of Christ, officiated at the funeral services which were held at 3:30 o'clock, Friday afternoon, at the Womack Bros. of Crowell had charge of funeral arrangements.

Nieces, nephews and cousins served as pall bearers and flower girls. They were: pall bearers—Hubert and Jim Abstons, F. L. Rennels Jr., Earl Phillips, Willie Colson and Wilbur Edent; flower girls—Naomi and Melba Phillips, Maple Eden, Lorene Cobb, Willie Abstons and Mrs. Raymond Grimm.

A very large crowd was present for the services, interment followed in the Thalia Cemetery.

Mr. Hlavaty has farmed near Thalia for the past eleven years. He and Mrs. Hlavaty will continue living on this farm until their cotton crop is gathered this fall. After that they will establish a home in Seymour. Mr. Hlavaty is now spending a considerable part of his time in Seymour.

He has been a successful farmer in Foard County and has done especially well with poultry. In connection with his farming, he has also operated a custom hatching business for a number of years.

Quanah Man Spoke At Pro Rally Here On Sunday Evening

Rev. R. N. Huckabee, pastor of the First Methodist Church at Quanah, was the principal speaker at the prohibition rally at the Crowell Methodist Church Sunday evening. Local churches dismissed services for this rally and a fair-sized crowd was present for the occasion.

Following a song service led by Sam Mills, the county prohibition chairman took charge of the meeting and after telling of its purpose, he introduced the principal speaker.

In commenting on the coming election, Aug. 26, at which time the beer amendment will be voted upon, Rev. Huckabee said: "We don't have to win, but to fulfill our moral obligation we must give the best that is in us in the fight for prohibition." He discussed at length the evils of liquor, from moral, healthful and economic standpoints.

He stated that the officers of the association for the repeal of the 18th amendment consisted mainly of millionaires who were anxious to see liquor legalized and taxed in order to shift the burden of taxation from their wealth. It was pointed out that 75 per cent of the funds received by this wet association came from 50 millionaires, according to figures revealed in a Senate investigation.

J. H. Crouch of Wichita Falls, executive secretary of the United Forces of Prohibition for the 23rd Senatorial District, followed Rev. Huckabee with a brief talk. He told of the method used for financing the fight for retention of prohibition.

Mr. Crouch stated that permanent books were to be compiled for each Senatorial district and that names of those contributing one dollar or more would be published in the book for their district and that these prohibition books would find permanent places in libraries of the state.

Blank checks were passed among members of the congregation and many of these were signed and dropped in the collection plates.

Mr. Crouch stated that there would only be about 750 persons in Foard County that would be eligible to vote on Aug. 26 and that with proper work on the part of Foard County people, this county should have an overwhelming majority for the dry cause.

PLANS BEING MADE IN FOARD COUNTY TO RECEIVE BENEFIT FROM GOV'T. COTTON CONTROL

Foard County cotton farmers will meet during the week, beginning Monday, June 26, to take action on the U. S. government's cotton acreage reduction plan. Community meetings have been planned for the entire county for the purpose of giving official information to cotton growers in regard to the requirements and details of the law.

According to best information that can be obtained at the present time, the reduction called for will be from 25 to 40 per cent of the present acreage. The price to be paid by the government for the cotton acreage reduction will be based on an average yearly production basis over a period of years.

The price of lease without option on government owned cotton will run from $7.00 to $20.00 per acre. Where an option on government cotton is desired by the farmer, the price will range from $6.00 per acre up to $12.00 per acre, based on yearly average production of the land and in addition an option is given by the government at the rate of six cents per pound on the number of bales that the land would produce on an average.

The land retired from cotton production may be planted to feed, vegetables or any crop that will not come into competition with other government controlled crops.

It is thought that the contracts for leasing will be available for signing beginning Monday.

Unless a sufficient number of cotton farmers agree to one of the two plans offered to assure the plowing up of 10,000,000 acres of cotton, the farm relief program will be abandoned so far as cotton is concerned.

County Committee

County agents will play a major part in this farm relief program and will co-operate with county committees in directing its work. The local agent, Fred Rennels, has announced that the Foard Co. committee that is to have charge of acreage reduction is composed of the following: Dr. R. L. Kincaid and M. S. Henry of Crowell and T. M. Haney of Thalia. The government has suggested that this committee be composed of a banker, merchant and farmer.

Community meetings have been arranged and community committees will be announced at these gatherings.

Community Meetings

These meetings have been arranged as follows:

Pioneer Friends of G. W. Harrell Claim That He Has Spent More Time in Saddle Than Any Man in This Section of Texas

Many old-timers of Foard County claim for G. W. (Uncle Bud) Harrell, 71, the honor of having spent more time in the saddle than any other man in this section. Mr. Harrell lives 4 miles northeast of Crowell and recently won first place as the oldest rider at the horse show in Crowell on Trades Day.

Before a large crowd on that day he proved that he can still ride like a capable young cowhand. Although his days as a cowboy have passed, he saddles his horse each day to ride after his milk cows. During the past sixty-five years, very few days have passed that he has not been in the saddle. He cannot remember when he first started riding, however, at the age of 10 he was working as a cowboy for his father and three years later he was placed on his own resources in facing life's responsibilities.

Uncle Bud is one of the pioneer cowboys of this section of Texas, coming to what is now Foard County in 1885. Except for a number of years spent in Oklahoma, he and Mrs. Harrell have since lived in this county.

Born in Louisiana on March 1, 1858, he was brought to Texas at the age of 6 months by his parents, who settled in San Augustine County. His father, G. W. Harrell Sr., engaged in farming and stock raising. After living in San Augustine, Henderson and Johnson counties, the family returned to Henderson where the head of the family died when G. W. Jr. was 13 years of age.

Left with the responsibility of hustling for himself, G. W. Jr. left home to find work wherever possible. He worked in Tarrant County, near Fort Worth, as a cowboy until 17, at which time he and two brothers, John and Joe, moved to Palo Pinto County and started stock raising. Joe Harrell once lived in this county and is now living at Ardmore, Okla.

They remained in Palo Pinto one winter and then moved down the Colorado River to McCullough County. Later they left Texas and secured a ranch near Ardmore where they remained for about 7 years. In 1884, John Harrell died.

Came to Foard

Joe and G. W. Jr. departed from Oklahoma in 1885 and came to the part of Texas that is now Foard County. They settled about six miles west of the site that later became Crowell and started cattle raising. They took up land at a dollar an acre, however, it proved to be railroad land and they had to leave it after two years. In 1884 G. W. Harrell married Mrs. Anna Wright near Marietta, Okla. She came to this section with her husband.

While living in this section, Mr. Harrell had the experience of finding six human skeletons near Sloan Springs. The six whole skeletons were together in a pile and a number of moccasins were scattered about them.

By a coincidence, Mr. Harrell heard a complete story 15 years later in regard to these skeletons. While living near Lawton, Okla., he was talking to Jones Vaughn, an old buffalo hunter and mentioned the discovery of the pile of human bones.

Vaughn promptly replied that he and another man were responsible for the bones being there. He told of a time when he and another man were hunting buffalo in that area and suddenly found themselves surrounded by Comanche Indians. After killing six Indians with their buffalo guns, the other redskins left. The two buffalo hunters then left the dead Indians in one pile.

Buffalo Hunter Vaughn was also in the battle of Adobe Walls, the last major Indian raid in Texas, and gave Mr. Harrell detailed information about it. Later Mr. Harrell became a close personal friend of Chief Quannah Parker, who was with the Indians at the time of this battle, and heard from him the other side of the story, however, both parties gave about the same accounts of the skirmish, he stated.

Among other Colorado scenes which the famous globetrotter considers phenomenal are the mountain sunsets, the stone formation in the Garden of the Gods near Colorado Springs, Yampa canyon, the Great Sand Dunes in the San Luis valley, and Carbon Mountain, the peak that is shaking itself to pieces.

"Tourists who would like to see a real old-fashioned god's rush should go up into the mountains near Canon City," says Wells. "Hundreds of excited people are busy panning the precious metal there right now."

The Conoco program may be heard by local listeners who tune in on stations WFAA, KOAI or KOA Wednesday night at 8:30 o'clock.

DRY FORCES ARE BUSY IN STATE

The United Forces for Prohibition in Texas are shaping their plans for the coming election on August 26th, when the state votes on legalization of 3.2 beer and repeal of the 18th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

Many of the districts have been organized into fighting machines and active work is being done daily in the organization of the remaining districts.

It is reported that Senator Morris Shepherd will return to Texas about the first of July and tour the principal cities speaking for the prohibition forces, together with a number of Congressmen who are scheduled to speak for the dry cause.

Recent efforts at Austin to allow the payment of poll taxes after February 1st gives encouragement to the strategists of Prohibition. The wets evidently thought the payment of additional poll taxes would aid them while the dries conclude that those who have paid their poll tax for this year, when there was nothing but the ideal of citizenship to urge them to do so, will in the majority be the dry votes in the coming election.

A number of large prohibition rallies have been held throughout the state. In the 23rd district these preliminary dry rallies have been held in Electra and Burk Burnett in Wichita County, Henrietta in Clay County, Holliday and Archer City in Archer County, Seymour in Baylor County, Sunday, June 18th, similar dry meetings were held in Graham, Young County; Vernon, Wilbarger County; Crowell, Foard County; Chillicothe in Hardeman County with a previous rally, having been held in Quanah several weeks ago.

The headquarters of the 23rd district at Wichita Falls, Texas, plan to carry the fight into every community of every county of the district and anticipate a clean sweep for prohibition.

Grasshopper Control

Grasshoppers are reported to be doing considerable damage in several sections of the county, especially to young cotton and gardens. The greatest damage has resulted where the fields adjoin pasture lands.

Poison bran mash has given the best results in controlling grasshoppers. There are a number of different materials used to mix the arsenic with, but the best results have been obtained by using wheat bran.

Mix the bran and poison together thoroughly. Mix amyl acetate and molasses in about two gallons of water. Pour this liquid over the bran and poison until every particle is moist.

If it is desired to kill grasshoppers in pasture land, sow the entire area where they are migrating from fence rows or pasture into cultivated crops, sow fence rows and a fairly good margin of the pasture, and also a fairly broad margin of the cultivated crop with the mixture.

Amyl acetate is preferable in the mixture, but six oranges or lemons may be substituted for one ounce of amyl acetate. Do not place the mash in piles. Do not use lead arsenate. Use white arsenic or paris green.

New Variety Wheat. W. G. Chapman of the Thalia community ordered a sufficient quantity of wheat seed from the Kansas Agricultural Experiment Station to plant twelve acres.

Former champion Jack Dempsey, who promoted the Baer-Schmeling contest, has Baer under contract for future battles and is now hailed as the successor to Tex Ricard in big-time promoting.

than his old seed. The imported seed yielded 12 bushels per acre while his field planted in his old seed produced only eight bushels per acre. This wheat had been on test at the Experiment Station for the past several years, last year being the first time that it was sold to the public for planting, according to Mr. Chapman.

G. W. Harrell

Indians were going from the Oklahoma Indian territory to New Mexico. Coming upon the white settlement at Adobe Walls, the Comanche chief, who was not Quanah Parker at the time, decided to attack it, although the other Indians discouraged the idea.

Two white men who were sleeping in a wagon were killed when the attack came at daybreak and a six-shooter taken from one of these men was shown Mr. Harrell by Quanah Parker. Following this unsuccessful attack, the Comanche chief was discarded upon the Indians' return to their grounds near Lawton and Quanah became chief.

Leave Foard. After living west of Crowell for about two years, Mr. and Mrs. Harrell moved just across Pease River and remained there for about one year. In 1888 they settled on the place where they are now living. He bought a half section of railroad land and built a box house on it.

They remained there for about 12 years and then moved to the Indian Territory, settling near Cache. Mr. Harrell was one of the participants in the Oklahoma land rush. His home was within four miles of where Quanah Parker resided and it was while living there that Mr. Harrell became well acquainted with this famous Indian.

After farming for about a year he built a hotel and he and Mrs. Harrell operated it for about 7 years. During this time, however, Mr. Harrell continued working as a cowhand and looked after some of his own cattle in addition to working for wages for nearby ranchers. Indians were numerous in that section. Little trouble was experienced with them, although they had a habit of supplying their meat needs with ranchers' cattle and about all that the ranchers could do about it was to keep the Indians from taking too many heads.

The Harrells returned to Foard County in 1914 and again settled on the farm they had left. They have since lived there. Mr. Harrell now manages this 260-acre farm and still leads an active life about it. Mrs. Harrell's son, Dempsey Wright, former Foard resident, is now living in Oklahoma City. Mrs. Roy M. Fox of Crowell is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harrell.

Progress on Orient

G. T. Crowell came from Benjamin Monday and talking a few minutes with the Orient railroad crew, gained some information as to their aims and expectations. The crew was then laying track within three miles of Truscott and by Wednesday night expected to be eight miles north of Truscott with the surfacing work. A squad of surfacers was then to be sent to North Wichita and another to Beaver Creek to rebuild the railroad dam. The steel crew was not very large, numbering only about 60, but are making very good speed, considering the rough portion of the country over which they were laying.

At last the road is almost within the bounds of what we call home and if good time is made in bridging the Wichita, we will soon hear the whistle.

Crowell Orchestra

Although Crowell is considered an inland town, there is not another town of double its population which can boast of nor produce as much high grade musical talent. This is the verdict of traveling people, many of whom are in a position to extend such a favorable criticism.

The Crowell Orchestra is of strictly home talent, and while it has never asked for contributions, it is now in need of a piano and any donations for this purpose will be appreciated.

The orchestra at present is composed of the following members, all of whom are active and render some part in the entertainments: Mrs. C. E. Hutchison, Miss Essie Thacker, Mrs. J. F. Witherspoon; Messrs. C. E. Hutchison, D. L. Reavis, T. B. Klepper, J. J. Kroll, A. Y. Beverly, Lee Allen Beverly, Archie Campbell and Richard Lynn, director.

John S. Ray has bought a threshing outfit and is serving the public in helping to save the grain.

James Kroll and Miss Pearl Thompson and Riley Self and Miss Hardy, while out horseback riding at Cotterwood Sunday, came upon a couple of young coyotes. Of course the boys couldn't miss the sport of catching the young animals and after a hard chase, captured them and brought them to town.

W. R. Womack has purchased the entire interest of Ben M. Greening in the furniture store of Greening & Womack.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Bell on the 24th inst., a boy.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

by Charles E. Dunn
Jesus Our Lord and Savior.

Lesson for June 25th. Peter 1:39.
Golden Text: Matthew 28:18-20.

This is a review lesson, where we pause to summarize the meaning of the lessons of the Second Quarter, dealing with the drama of the life of Jesus from the middle of His ministry to His death and resurrection.

At the beginning we saw the Master, with His disciples, pushing into Syria. There he met the Greek woman who sought and found His healing touch for her afflicted daughter. Note the absence here of either sex or race prejudice.

Then we study one of the most critical episodes in the career of Jesus, the conference at Caesarea Philippi, where the Master, apparently for the first time, openly acknowledged that He was the Messiah, and demanded of His disciples sacrificial obedience after the pattern of the Cross.

There followed the thrilling episode of the Transfiguration. In the darkness of the night Jesus, with His three most intimate disciples trudged up a mountain, and there, at its summit, was He transformed, His whole person assuming an unearthly splendor.

Then we watched the Savior rebuke the self-seeking of His ambitious followers by placing a little child in their midst; we studied the exceeding suggestive story of the rich young ruler; we walked with our Lord as He journeyed toward Jerusalem to face His Cross; we shared in the enthusiasm of the crowd as they hailed Him, upon His entrance into the city so close to His heart, as King; we delighted in His skill in confounding those who tried to entrap Him with their captious questions; we rejoiced in the devotion of the woman who poured costly ointment upon His head; and we noticed the startled look upon the faces of the twelve, and heard their nervous query, "It is I?" as He announced His betrayal.

Finally, we saw our King on His cross, crucified at Calvary. It is a bitter but glorious Cross, a throne fit for a matchless Master. And soon we saw the grip of death released, and a risen Lord who reigns forever in the hearts of all who love Him.

SERMONETTE

WHEN WE ARE NEAREST TO EACH OTHER
By Arthur B. Rhinow

A boy scout executive told this story.

On a Sunday morning, in a summer camp, he watched a boy enter the chapel, sit down on one of the benches, and bow his head, occasionally wiping his eyes. No one else was in the chapel. After a while the executive interrupted the boy's devotions.

"Why are you here at this time, looking sad and praying?" he asked solicitously.

"Oh, well," the boy explained; "my father and my mother promised to come up and visit me, and they couldn't come, and I felt bad about it, and I thought I could be nearer to them in this chapel than anywhere else."

Surely a touching incident. Perhaps the boy's parents were devout people who would be at the services of their church at that very hour, and he thought he would be united with them in worship. Blessed is the boy whose parents live with God.

But it may be he was prompted by a deeper intuition than his little mind could grasp.

When are we really near to each other? Man may shake hands and remain distant; women may kiss and keep a wall between them; we may converse and still be strangers; we may even work together and remain selfish. Mere ceremonies and formal co-operation do not unite us. We never really come near to each other until spirit touches spirit, as when we pray together. Then soul blends with soul, and though we be miles apart, we are one in God.

Christian Science Churches

"Christian Science" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, June 25.

The Golden Text is from Isaiah 9: "The people that walked in darkness have seen a great light; they that dwell in the land of the shadow of death, upon them hath the light shined."

Among the passages to be read from the Bible will be the following from John 14: "Jesus saith unto him, Have I been so long time with you, and yet hast thou not known me, Philip? . . . the father that dwelleth in me, he doeth the works . . . He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also . . ."

The Lesson-Sermon will also include citations from the Christian Science textbook by Mary Baker Eddy, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," one of which will be as follows (p. 26): "Divine Truth, Life, and Love gave Jesus authority over sin, sickness, and death. His mission was to reveal the Science of celestial being, to prove what God is and what He does for man. . . . He proved by his deeds that Christian Science destroys sickness, sin, and death.

"Our master taught no mere theory, doctrine, or belief. It was the divine Principle of all real being which he taught and practised. His proof of Christianity was no form or system of religion and worship, but Christian Science, working out the harmony of Life and Love."

THE ALLEN COMPANY

Henry Ford
Dearborn, Mich.

June 19, 1933

A COMPANY THIRTY YEARS OLD

Last Friday the Ford Motor Company completed 30 years of automobile making.

It is also my fortieth year at the same job. I made my first engine in 1893, and it still runs. This is the engine that won the Selden Patent Suit—which took the motor car out of the exclusive class, and opened the automobile industry to hundreds of manufacturers who started during the last 30 years.

Some of the men who began with me that June day in 1903, are working here yet. All of the principles we laid down then, are still operative; we find that they have great survival value for the future. To date they have produced and sold over 21,000,000 Ford cars.

Although we created the automobile market we have never thought it was good for anyone to monopolize it. We have always believed that before business could be good for one, it must be good for all. Our discoveries and improvements have always been open to other manufacturers without patent restrictions.

Of course, there is one thing we cannot share—everyone must get it for himself—and that is experience. Money could duplicate our buildings and machines, but it cannot duplicate 40 years of experience. And it is experience that makes a motor car.

But the past does not especially concern me; it has all been a preparation for the future. For myself, I feel that I have just been gathering the tools to do something worth while, and that my real task is still ahead.

Great changes are upon the world. False ideas of every kind are vanishing in the general upheaval. Those who built truly on principle will survive—their service will carry over. Business integrity and commodity honor will be fully justified. And newer and better ways of living will appear.

That is the outlook for this young thirty-year old Company of ours.

AWAKENED WOMAN

by ELLINORE BARRY

teenth Instalment

Joyce Ashton, poor creature, suffered loss of memory following a taxi accident in Dallas. One morning two years ago, after a fall from her balcony, her memory restored, to find as Frills, the wife of Niel, a rich California fruit packer, determined to tell nobody of her fall but set about learning the cause of her life in the past.

From the conversation of friends and letters in her desk she learned that she had been in a pleasure-loving young man's arms. One letter that troubled her was from a woman signing herself "Belinda" and blaming Frills for not giving her a baby. Sophie was called to be her baby, Frills said. She also found herself in an affair with a man named Maitland. In San Francisco, she went while her husband was on business, she met Ainsworth, a poet whose name she had always admired. When he returned home, she decided to tell him about her life. But this line was dangerous, for Neil was pathetically devoted to her. He called upon Neil's mother, Joyce finds adorable. Later, the poet, Robert Ainsworth, several times stopped for lunch when she was on horseback. One day he started to go to her.

emotional storm she had passed through, and smiled into the mirror. At that, he whirled her around and crushing her to him again buried his face in her neck. "Oh, . . . dearest . . . most beautiful. . ."

She put her arms around his shoulders and whispered shyly, "Oh, am I all that . . . to you?"

"And so much more that I can't put into words!" he murmured, kissing the tip of her ear. . . .

After a while Joyce was able to put on her hat and then, with his arm around her, they set out to walk through the woods.

After she was in the car, with Dickie on the seat beside her, Ainsworth leaned against it with his arms still around her and gave her a final kiss.

"Can't I do the calling next time? We've got some serious talking to do about this situation of ours. Tell me where this mysterious aunt of yours lives!"

All at once she realized the ambiguity of her position. "I'll come again in a day or two." She was thankful for the uncon-that she set out for Neil's mother's house in dragging rebellion. Even Mrs. Packard's gentle gratitude and pleasure failed wholly to rout her constant sense of frustration.

"I wonder whether something is going wrong in the business," Mrs. Packard remarked in the course of the afternoon. "Neil hasn't been himself lately."

"I don't know," replied Joyce. "He hasn't said anything to me and I think the business is all right." She knew only too well what was the cause of Neil's depression but she could not tell his mother.

"Please don't worry about Neil too much," she said gently. "I feel sure this is just a temporary thing. There may be some business deal in the air that Neil is brooding over a little. He'll come out all right."

Mrs. Packard looked as if she were grateful for Joyce's effort to relieve her mind but not wholly convinced that the matter was so simple as it sounded.

When Neil arrived, Joyce insisted on their leaving shortly after. All the way home she could not get out

Joyce sat at her dressing table and stared dreamily at herself

ventional slant that made him answer cheerfully. "Oh, all right. I have to go up to the city for a day or two. I think it's next Tuesday."

"Oh, no, don't . . . don't stay away long," begged Joyce.

"But you'll come back before I go? Good Lord, it's four whole days till then!"

Even though she knew it was late, Joyce drove home slowly.

It was maddening to have to go out to dinner at the Carters. It was to be a more or less formal affair followed by a "theatre party."

Both Mr. and Mrs. Carter were devoted to Neil, but their aversion to Frills was only thinly veiled.

When she was ready to go, Joyce sat at her dressing table and stared dreamily at herself, wondering what Robert would think of her now.

"You're looking stunning tonight, Frills!" Neil had come up behind her and interrupted her dreaming.

Joyce started at his words and blushed furiously, partly in a sort of shame at being caught so obviously admiring herself, partly with annoyance at being forced to a realization of Neil's right to so address her. She jumped up and went to the closet to get her evening cloak, remarking casually in a voice of which she tried to keep out all trace of her nervous irritation. "Thanks for the compliment, but the credit is really yours. It's a lovely dress but I couldn't have had it if you weren't such a generous provider, my dear Mr. Packard."

Neil took from her the luxurious cape of sea-green transparent velvet and they went downstairs together. "By the way, mother telephoned me a little while ago," he said, "the doctor has ordered her to stay in bed a few days and she wondered if you would come tomorrow afternoon and sit with her for a while? She's missed you lately . . . and . . . you know . . . and she's so happy at the way you've been to her . . . I'm worried," he went on, as he laid the lovely cloak about her shoulders and for a moment held her to him, "there's something wrong about it. I wish I knew what to do."

"Oh, I'm so sorry," exclaimed Joyce. "I'll go tomorrow and spend the afternoon with her. I've . . . I know I've neglected her lately."

"Darling that's sweet of you . . . I wish . . . I wonder . . . Frills, what the devil can I do to . . . win you back? Isn't there any chance for me?"

"Oh, please Neil, don't!" cried Joyce, "don't start that again. . . . Come on, we'll be late and you know Mrs. Carter likes to begin on time when she's giving a theatre party afterwards."

Most parties in Manzanita had a way of splitting up into couples and Joyce found herself taken in charge by her dinner partner when they afterwards set out for the theatre. This happened to be Paul Packard, much to her satisfaction, for his company made it possible to sit without talking during the picture. Joyce deliberately shut her eyes to the sartorial illurements of the picture and returned in spirit to the little shack on the lonely hillside.

Before the next afternoon she was torn by such longing to see Robert of her mind that one significant moment when the pinched grayness of Mrs. Packard's face had struck her.

"Mother sure looked tired, didn't she?" remarked Neil as they drove home. "How was she during the afternoon? Did she talk much?"

"A little less than usual, I think. It seemed to exhaust her. Neil, she's worrying about you. She thinks something is . . ."

They were both silent. Joyce did not dare ask what it was that was troubling him, because she felt so sure she knew.

Joyce lay awake a long time that night seeing the situation with an appalling clearness, from every point of view. "I was ready enough to condemn Frills for treating Neil the way she did. I was disgusted at her for having an affair with Maitland. And now, just because Robert Ainsworth seems to me to be worth a million Arthur Maitlands, it doesn't make any real difference. If I deceive Neil that way, I'm hurting him, too, and I'm no better than Frills was. And . . . and . . . Oh, I feel like a miserable worm to be taking all this luxury and love without doing anything to deserve it, even using it to . . . to hurt Neil so terribly. If only he didn't love me so much. And he was so happy for a while. It was almost pitiful how grateful he was for so little. Oh, I can't bear to . . . to think of it even." Joyce buried her face in the pillow and tried to stifle the sobs which shook her.

At breakfast the next morning Neil glanced at her and said, frowning anxiously, "Didn't you sleep, Frills? You look kind of pale and dragged out this morning, dear."

Joyce's nerves were on edge after her stormy night and Neil's concerned tone struck her almost like a blow. To her horror she felt her eyes fill with a quick rush of tears. The worried look on his face deepened. "Why, sweetheart, what's the matter? Aren't you well? Does your head ache? Why didn't you stay in bed?"

But Joyce swallowed the lump in her throat and summoning all her self-control she answered quickly, "Oh, I'll be all right. I just didn't sleep very well."

"Well, you'd better take a nap today sometime. What are you doing, anything special?" he went on.

No, I . . . guess not. I'm going to run out to your mother's for a few minutes about noon nad take her some magazines and books. I may ride this afternoon."

OVER 250 U. S. TIRES TO ARRIVE EARLY NEXT WEEK

Response of Foard Co. People to New Tire Deal Is Pleasing

Early in April of this year Hanna's Station took on a full line of United States Tires. The fact that the people of Foard County recognize quality and really appreciate fair prices is shown by the excellent tire business we have done since taking on U. S. Tires.

As a result of our confidence in these tires, as well as that shown by the people of this section, we will have over 250 new U. S. Tires to arrive here either Monday or Tuesday. We already have a large stock on hand, so if in need of tires, be sure to come around and see us.

BATTERIES! !

Of course most everyone in this section knows that Hanna's Station carries a complete line of U. S. Tires and petroleum products, but maybe you have overlooked the fact that we also have a complete line of HARRISON-SMITH Storage batteries, spark plugs, fan belts, tire patch, and various other handy auto accessories.

If you are in need of a battery, come around and learn of our battery deal.

U. S. TIRES have maintained a position right at the top of the tire industry over a long period of years because of QUALITY and FAIR PRICE. And remember—TEMPERED RUBBER does make a big difference.

Make Perfect Coffee . . . EVERY TIME . . . with These Automatic "Electrical Servants"

Authorities agree that the only perfect coffee is real French Drip Coffee. This is because a perfect brew requires three very definite things. First, that coffee grounds and water should come in contact but once. . . . Second, that the contact should be of about 3 1/2 minutes duration. . . . Third, that the water used in coffee-making should not be boiled, but maintained at a temperature about 16 degrees below the boiling point. When these three definite things are done, the result is a smooth, rich flavor . . . a clear, sparkling amber color . . . and an intriguing, appetite-awakening aroma.

Here are two appliances that enable you to make perfect coffee EVERY TIME! The Manning-Bowman French Drip Coffee Urn, and the Hotpoint Coffee-Maker automatically assure the perfection of all your coffee. No embarrassing failures . . . no disgusting "dishwater" coffee . . . none that would "float an egg." You'll have perfect coffee every time through the automatic perfection of these modern "Electrical Servants."

Specially priced, for a limited time only, you'll find one of these modern appliances an absolute necessity in your home. Like all electrical appliances, too, they may save money for you—for this modern way requires less coffee to produce a wonderful brew. Ask any employe for a demonstration TODAY. Convenient terms if desired!

Do you know that your increased use of Electric Service is billed on a surprisingly low rate schedule . . . and adds only a small amount to your total bill?

Defective eyesight is the cause of thousands of accidents, errors, misunderstandings, mistakes and general inefficiency. Normal eyesight, therefore, is of such great importance that the optometrist advises a careful and thorough examination of the organs of sight every year, to ascertain whether or not glasses are needed, or whether or not lenses should be changed.
