Construction Work on New Elevator Proceeds Rapidly

Work has proceeded at a rapid pace on the construction program of T. P. Duncan & Son electric and it is expected that work will finish pouring concrete for the four new tanks, which will give the plant over 100 times its former storage capacity.

The tanks are 15 feet in diameter and over 75 feet high. The new walls of the concrete head house was finished last week and this part of the elevator towers 86 feet above the ground, a height equal to that of a two-story building.

Sixty men have been employed in construction program for the past week. Due to the concrete forms used in this type of construction, it is necessary for the pouring of concrete to continue day and night until the walls are completed. Work proceeded as usual throughout the week.

Service Station Work

The brick building for the Gulf service station that Dr. J. M. Hill is constructing on the north side of the square is nearing completion and workmen will soon be pouring concrete for the runway.

DO YOU KNOW?

Early man's only method of keeping track of the hours of the day was by watching the movement of a shadow from a post as it moved across an arched line on the ground.

TODAY'S FACT

A 25 or 30-cent investment in a Classified Ad has resulted in profits of many dollars that would not have been realized otherwise.

Prohibition Rally Held at District Court Room Tues.

A prohibition rally was held in the district court room Tuesday night in the interest of increasing sentiment against the legal sale of beer in Crowell. The attendance was cut short by the rain, however, about 45 persons were present.

C. V. Allen was in charge of the gathering and following a brief talk, he introduced the principal speaker of the evening, T. L. Rouse, editor of the Vernon Times. Mr. Rouse discussed many angles of the beer situation, stating that the entering wedge in bringing the open saloon and all of its evils back, "Even forgetting the moral side of this question," Mr. Rouse stated, "it is not worthwhile from a business standpoint. The profit derived by the beer retailer is more than offset by the loss to those in other lines of business with whom this money would have been spent had it not been for beer."

After instruction by Rev. O. L. Savage on marking the ballot to be used in Friday's election, the meeting adjourned.

Most of Foard Co. Helped by Excellent Rain Tuesday Night

Except for the extreme western portion, an excellent rain fell over Foard County Tuesday night and early Wednesday morning, amounting to an inch and seven-tenths at Crowell. East of Crowell the rain became some lighter, but for the county as a whole the rain was about the same here. A half inch was reported in the Good Creek section.

The rain was the first one to fall in a manner sufficient to supply any water in the Texas Company's lake on Good Creek, about four miles northeast of the Johnson Gas Plant of that company. The 64-foot dam creating this lake was completed before the first of the year.

She was converted at the old Banister Chapel in what was then Hardeman County at the age of nine years and united with the Methodist Church at that time. She has been a consistent Christian all her life and up until the time her health failed she was a faithful attendant at all church services. She has been in failing health for a number of years.

RELIEF OFFICE MOVED

The local relief office was moved this week and is now occupying the east half of the basement of the court house. It was formerly located in the building next to the post office.

"I wouldn't give one corner of the United States for all of China," is a statement made by Kinloch Cole in summing up his opinion of his native land after spending the past fourteen years on what is the "bottom of the world" to Americans.

The arrival of Mr. Cole in Crowell last week marked his first return to his "old home town" since leaving it in September, 1913. A wide variety of experiences has come his way during the 21 years' absence from Crowell, but in spite of the many years and experiences, Mr. Cole still remains a Crowellite at heart and states that Crowell will always be "home" to him no matter how many thousands of miles may separate him from the town.

Three daughters, Ida, 11, Frances, 10, and Roberta, 8, who reached Crowell with their father on April 9, had spent all of their lives in China until boarding a United States bound steamer at Shanghai on March 13. The little girls are already of the opinion that Crowell people are the finest in the world and they want to remain here always.

Kinloch Cole is a brother of Grover L. Cole of this city and he and his daughters are now guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cole. They expect to leave San Francisco for China about July 1 of this year.

Mr. Cole has spent the past nine years in Tsingtau, a city of over 20,000 people, which is located about 300 miles north of Shanghai. Before going there he spent five years in Tientsin. During 13 of these 14 years he has been employed by the British Cigarette Co., which has plants in both cities. He is now in charge of the leaf department of the factory at Tsingtau, pronounced "Singtow."

At the age of 17, Kinloch Cole left Crowell in September, 1913, going to Waco, where he remained until May, 1914, at which time he enlisted in the U. S. Army and was sent to the state of Washington.

With the United States' declaration of war against Germany on April 6, 1917, Cole was ordered to overseas duty on May 1. Joining the Harvard unit of the American Red Cross, he departed from New York on May 11, 1917, and landed at Falmouth, England, on May 23. After a week in England he embarked from Folkestone and set foot on French soil on May 30.

This was the first American unit to land in France after the entrance of the U. S. into the war. It consisted of about 150 men and a few nurses, who were assigned to duty with the British army upon their departure from America. To begin with there were only six regular army men in it, however, the others were mustered into the service of the army. Robert U. Patterson, present surgeon general of the U. S. Army, was commander of the group. Cole was the sergeant major of the unit and the only Texan in it.

After landing at Bologna, France, the unit was assigned to hospital duty at Dannes-Cameille. It was there that America's first

The month of April has been declared by proclamation of the Governor of Texas as the time for raising funds for this purpose and in this state the campaign is being conducted by the Texas Society for Crippled Children, under the direction of Margie Neal. The campaign has the endorsement of President Roosevelt, Governor Miriam Ferguson and the State Board of Education. Funds from the sale of the White Cross Seals will be used to supplement the very inadequate appropriation of $10,000 per year for the 20,000 crippled children of Texas.

The schools follow the general plan of instruction courses given under the direction of E. W. Timper, sales promotion manager, and J. M. Crawford, chief engineer of the Chevrolet Motor Co., at important points during the automobile shows. Some 4,000 retail salesmen got first hand information on the new mechanical developments at that time, and found the instruction so valuable as an aid in selling that the courses have been extended.

Preliminary to the opening of the schools, four men from each of the nine Chevrolet regional offices spent a week in Detroit and Flint, where Mr. Crawford instructed them thoroughly, bringing out the facts about each new engineering feature and the significance of each fact from the standpoint of the owner and operator. The new Y-K frame, with its vastly increased rigidity; new and more powerful engine, with greatly improved performance; "knee action" wheels, resulting in revolutionary comfort and driving ease; and other important developments, were explained fully, after which the 36 members of the class were dispatched to their respective territories to pass the information along to the sales organizations there.

OUR WANTS AND NEEDS

Our needs are few compared to our wants. We might want new clothes, a new house or a new car. What we need is a patch on our clothes, or a paint job on our house. But what we need and have to have is some repairing on our car if we keep running it. So if you can't comply to your wants of buying a new Chevrolet let us repair your old car. Get it up in good shape and avoid trouble.

WHY YOU SHOULD INVESTIGATE THE NORGE ELECTRIC REFRIGERATOR

BEFORE YOU MAKE UP YOUR MIND TO BUY YOUR ELECTRIC REFRIGERATOR

Every worthy piece of Merchandise is engineered, planned, built or manufactured by some worthy person, or group of persons. The NORGE-ROLLATOR Electric Refrigerator is no exception to this rule.

POWERED WITH A NORGE ROLLATOR COMPRESSOR

Originated by Howard Blood, one of the most outstanding automobile engineers and the Borg-Warner Corporation, who is world renowned for making fine precision parts for automobiles, and the fact that NOT an American automobile on the roads of our country or being made today, but what has some part in it made by Borg-Warner Corporation, and the further fact that the NORGE-ROLLATOR is manufactured by the NORGE Corporation, which is a division of the Borg-Warner Corporation, in itself, is enough to attract the attention of every one who contemplates the purchase of an electric refrigerator.

The NORGE Rollator

A roller inside a cylinder or another roller housed in a permanent bath of fine oil, rolls over at a slow rate of speed, silently, efficiently, distributing the agent used in the system at a very economical cost and practically no wear at all. One stock rollator Test, has constantly run night and day for more than 8 years. No Wear Yet.

As Borg-Warner has on many occasions developed these high class precision parts, accepted by the automobile trade as Nothing Better, it follows that the NORGE-ROLLATOR is a worthy mechanism to be investigated.

The Norge, powered with one of these famous Rollators, is the peer of any Electric without the Rollator and is superior to every make with the Rollator.

Has always used less than the cost of an ordinary light bulb based on wattage employed by any comparable box.

Why Liquid Laxatives are Back in Favor

The public is fast returning to the use of liquid laxatives. People have learned that the right dose of a properly prepared liquid laxative will bring a perfect movement without any discomfort at the time, or after.

The dose of a liquid laxative can be varied to suit the needs of the individual. The action can thus be regulated. A child is easily given the right dose. And mild liquid laxatives do not irritate the kidneys.

Doctors are generally agreed that senna is a natural laxative. It does not drain the system like the cathartics that leave you so thirsty. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a liquid laxative which relies on senna for its laxative action. It gently helps the average person's bowels back to regularity.

You can always get Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at any drug store, ready for use. Mfg. N. R. A.

Many Deaths Caused By Wild Horse Herd

Austin, Texas, April—A herd of wild horses was responsible for approximately one thousand deaths in Texas last year, according to Dr. John W. Brown, State Health Officer. Under the hood of the automobile are from 40 to 100 horses. Whether these are tame or wild and dangerous to human life depends to a large extent upon the drivers. Pedestrians, also, must be "safety minded," if the number of lives lost in fatal automobile accidents is reduced.

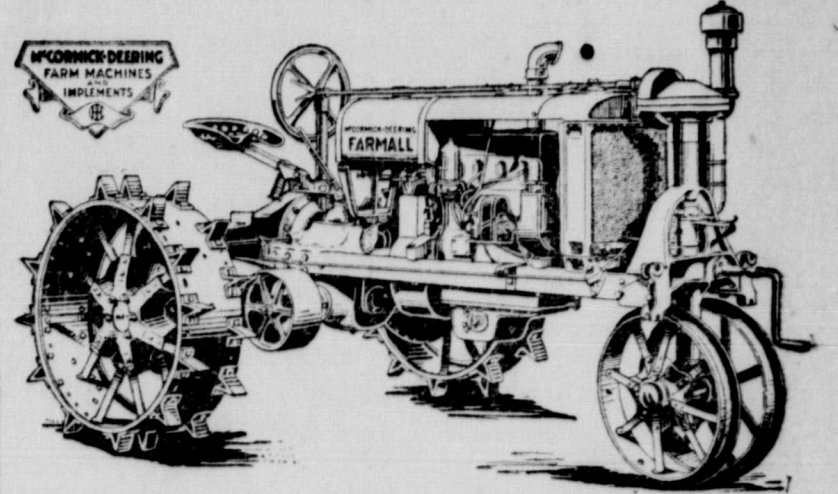

In cities, hundreds of thousands of people in the aggregate deliberately and habitually throw caution to the winds by jay walking, by crossing streets at all points but at intersections, by dodging around street cars and even by deliberately disregarding traffic signals. And highway walkers also are more likely to move with, rather than against traffic, which of course results in greater risk, especially at night.

The automobile driver himself, intoxicated by the joy of effortlessly stepping up his machine to an excessive speed, and in hundreds of other ways violating the rules and the ethics of the road, makes of this magnificent invention the Frankenstein it has so sadly turned out to be.

It needs to be more emphasized upon the average brain than it is today, that all the healthful living in the world is of no avail when one either as a driver or as a pedestrian takes chances with the automobile and loses. Moreover, proper water and milk control, as well as the many other safeguards to health and life, mean absolutely nothing to a dead man killed by his or another's automobile.

Gioeovanni Renci, of Trieste, Italy, was so hungry when he came home from work that he "wolfed" his food, then complained of pains in his stomach. Surgeons found that he had swallowed a spoon and a fork.

The New Farmall 20 Tractor Is Ready Now

McCormick-Deering

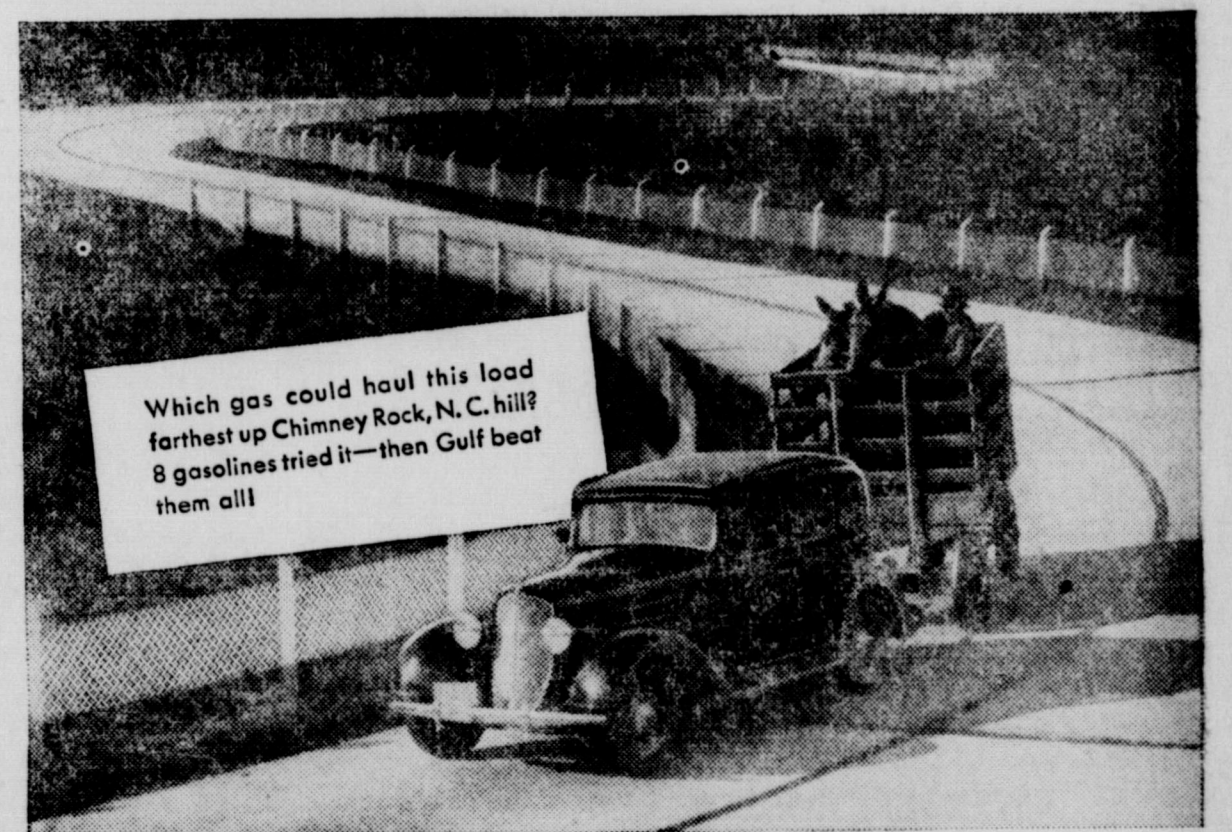

HERE we are with the New McCormick-Deering Farmall 20 Tractor. This model has practically the same physical dimensions as the regular Farmall—but it has a good 10 per cent more power, 4 forward speeds, enclosed steering gears, and enclosed steering brakes.

The advantages of the additional power and extra speeds which make the Farmall 20 more flexible are appreciated when it comes to pulling 2 plow bottoms and the heavier tillage tools in tough going, operating 4-row cultivators, 2-row Farmall corn pickers, 2-row potato diggers, and all drawbar, belt, and power take-off jobs. Farmall 20 speeds are 2 1/2, 2 3/4, 3, and 3 1/2 miles per hour.

You will admire the Farmall 20 when you see it at work. It has all the features that have made the regular Farmall famous. Ask us about it now.

brought back by Dr. W. C. Holden and his party after a six weeks' absence on the first major Texas Technological College scientific expedition.

"The Indians became quite friendly toward us after the first few days," Dr. Holden said. "We were in close contact with the natives and were in many of the homes. They permitted us to see unusual religious ceremonies and even make pictures of them. We have compiled a large amount of information which we consider very valuable in modern research."

casualties occurred after the entrance of the U. S. into the war. Shortly after the arrival there on June 1, 1917, bombs from a German airplane caused the deaths of many patients and killed four members of the American unit outright. L. Fitzsimmons, for whom the Fitzsimmons government hospital at Denver is named, was among those killed.

"Our colonel didn't censure the German aviator for this action," said Cole, "because our hospital was next to a cement factory and England's largest ammunition dump in France and no doubt the six bombs that landed on the hospital were meant for the other plants."

From Dannes-Cameia the unit was moved to Bologne, where it took over a gambling casino for a hospital. In Sept., 1917, Cole was sent with a surgical team to Paschandle, where the British had prepared for a major offensive, which failed because mud made it impossible to move the artillery up to support the infantry. After a month there, Cole returned to Bologne and in Feb., 1918, was transferred to duty with the American forces.

He helped establish a base hospital at Lanxres, just back of the American sector. It took care of American casualties resulting from the leading battles in which U. S. doughboys participated. The unit operated there until the Armistice.

In France Two Years After spending a little more than two years in France, Cole returned to America in June, 1919. Remaining with the army, he made several round trips from New York to France with the transport service and was transferred to the Philippines in Nov., 1919.

He was stationed at Corregidor, the Gibraltar of the Philippines, until June, 1920, when he was ordered to duty at Tientsin, China, remaining on routine duty there with the 15th Infantry, which has been in China since 1912, until Nov., 1921.

He left the service at that time and became associated with the British Cigarette Co. at Tientsin. It was there that he married Cyrena Tchernivsky, who was born in Constantinople. She died on May 10, 1932, and was buried in Tsingtao, where Mr. Cole has spent the past nine years with the British Cigarette Co., having gone there from the factory at Tientsin.

Tsingtao Modern Taken as a whole, Tsingtao is as modern as any city in China, Mr. Cole states. It has no old sections, as is the case with practically all other cities in China. The town was laid out and fortified by Germany. There was not a building on the peninsula where it is located until 1898. With the outbreak of the World War in 1914, Japan took over the city and carried on where the Germans left off. Tsingtao remained a Japanese concession from 1914 until the Washington conference of 1921-22. The railroad which was built 350 miles north from Tsingtao to Tsinan by the Germans prior to the war, was taken over by Japan in 1914. After the Washington Conference the railway was returned to China. This road is the only one paying in China today, according to Mr. Cole, because Chinese troops are not allowed within five miles of the road's tracks, nor within 25 miles of Tsingtao since Japan took over Tsingtao and the line in 1927, although the line is operated by the Chinese.

"There is ample demand for railway service in China if it is not interfered with by the army. When I first reached Tsingtao that country was overrun by soldiers, however, the Japs cleared them out in 1927 and since then conditions in Tsingtao and with the railroad have been much better," Mr. Cole stated.

Manchurian Situation "If it had not been for Japan going into Manchuria and its previous entry into Shanghai, practically all foreigners would have had to leave China before now," said Mr. Cole. He believes Japan is the only stabilizing influence in that part of the world and while he likes the Chinese people much better from a personal standpoint, than the Japanese, yet he is in sympathy with the action as a whole taken by Japan, even though it had been condemned by the U. S. under the Hoover administration and by the League of Nations.

Practically all of the Japan-China trouble was brought on by irresponsible parties and rabid elements in China, according to Mr. Cole. He stated that the Japanese boycott was started by the Kumontang party, which had been organized by the Central government. The party was represented in each district by a sort of sub-committee, which in turn was controlled by the worst type of racketeers.

They carried on the Japanese boycott openly in Chinese territory, but more secretly in International settlements and concessions. Goods were confiscated, merchants were illegally tried and heavily fined and deplorable conditions in general existed, according to Mr. Cole.

This brought on the Japanese occupation of Shanghai in 1931-32 and then the invasion of Manchuria, which from all reports was infested with bandits who continually interfered with Japanese property and who hindered and destroyed Japanese trade, Mr. Cole said.

Following the Japanese invasion Manchuria became Manchukuo, and held that name until just a few weeks ago when Henry Pu Yi became the Manchu Emperor of the new state of Ta Manchu Tikuo, which is under the protection of Japan, although officially in Chinese governed territory.

The new state is there to stay, believes Mr. Cole, who thinks that the U. S. will be "cutting off its own nose to spite its face" if it does not recognize Ta Manchu Tikuo. He says that the party now in power in China wishes to recognize the new government and that except for the aggressive Cantoneses, the Chinese are not likely to offer further defiance to Japan, but seem to be willing to cast their lot with their racial kinsmen.

Russia-Japan Relations When questioned concerning the tenseness of relations between Russia and Japan at the present time, brought about mainly by the Manchurian situation, Mr. Cole stated that foreigners in China believe that the United States played a major part in keeping hostilities from breaking loose between these two great powers before now.

"Over there we believe that the greatest diplomatic stroke toward peace in many years was the recognition of Russia by the United States and while there is no assurance that this will stop a war, yet it sure threw a wrench in the Japanese army machine, since this opened a vast source of supply to Russia that she did not have before and as a result Japan calmed down a great deal and was willing to negotiate with Russia on matters that she had ignored before the U. S. recognition came," Mr. Cole stated.

400 Miles from Manchuria His present home in Tsingtao is about 400 miles south of Ta Manchu Tikuo (Manchuria). Most of the foreigners there now are Russians, many of whom were practically forced out of Manchuria by the Japanese. The climate at Tsingtao is similar to that of Foard County.

Mr. Cole and his daughters can speak the Tsingtao dialect, however, the hundreds of different Chinese dialects cannot be understood outside the localities where they originated. "Mandarin" is the national language and can be understood throughout China by the better class of Chinese. A knowledge of about three thousand characters is necessary to read a Chinese newspaper and be a Chinese scholar, one knows as many as 10,000 characters.

In regard to the factory where he works, Mr. Cole stated that he manufactured one hundred million cigarettes daily, most of which were sold to the Chinese at a time. About 2,000 Chinese foreigners, 3 of whom are Americans, are employed at the factory.

Pioneer Newspaper Editor Is Visiting Daughter in Crowell

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. McDaniel of Dallas are here for a visit in the home of their daughter, Mrs. J. Y. Welch, and family. Mr. Welch brought them to Crowell after visiting his daughter, Lucille, at Dallas and his parents at Anna, Texas, last week.

Mr. McDaniel is a pioneer editor and printer and has published a number of papers during his lifetime. He learned the printing trade in Missouri over fifty years ago. He came to Texas in 1878 and went to work at Lockhart, near San Antonio and there met many men prominent in Texas history.

He states that he has voted the straight Democratic ticket since he was 21 and that he has never known anything but Democracy, unalloyed. Mr. McDaniel was present for the Democratic convention in St. Louis in 1876, at which time Samuel Tilden was nominated.

In late years Mr. McDaniel has retired into church work, becoming an elder in the Disciple Christian Church. He has lectured and preached and is still active in that capacity. Even at his advanced age he is "ready to go" on any proposition that tends toward civil righteousness.

definite plans for a soft ball league in Crowell would be announced next week. L. T. Edwards of this city and C. H. McClellan, Wichita Falls Rotarian, were visitors at the luncheon.

President George Self asked members to co-operate in the campaign for the sale of White Cross Seals in raising funds to aid crippled children of Texas and handed out 100 seals to each member with the request that they sell as many of the seals as possible before the next meeting.

Christian Science Churches

"Doctrine of Atonement" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, April 22.

The Golden Text is: "We also joy in God through our Lord Jesus Christ, by whom we have now received the atonement" (Romans 5:11).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "I came forth from the Father, and am come into the world; again, I leave the world, and go to the Father" (John 16:28).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The Christ was the Spirit which Jesus implied in his own statements: 'I am the way, the truth, and the life; I and my Father are one.' This Christ, or divinity of the man Jesus, was his divine nature, the godliness which animated him. Divine Truth, Life, and Love gave Jesus authority over sin, sickness and death. His mission was to reveal the Science of celestial being, to prove what God is and what He does for man" (page 26).

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

by Charles E. Dunn

Our All For the Kingdom. Lesson for April 22nd. Matthew 19.

Golden Text: Acts 20:35.

There is much to be said in favor of the young man who inquired of Jesus the way of eternal life. He had the precious gift of youth with its radiant health and ardent dreams. He was so personally attractive that Jesus fell in love with him. He had wealth and social standing which opened to him doors of rare opportunity. Above all, he was apparently a person of unusually high character. But with all his charm and popular appeal, he was not satisfied. Worldly success left him cold. He was eager for something more than the comfort and prestige of an assured position amongst the elite. Life as he knew it bored him by its trivialities. He was wistful for a nobler philosophy. Disillusioned by the vanity of earthly pursuits, he came to Jesus seeking to know the secret of His haunting gospel of loving good-will.

How did the Master receive him? Sympathetically, of course. But Jesus was too exacting to admit him just as he was into the circle of His disciples. "There is one thing that you lack," He declared. "Go, sell all you have, and give the money to the poor." It was a totally unexpected challenge, too bitter a pill for the young man to swallow. Keenly disappointed, he turned away, making the great refusal. The cost of marching under the Christian banner was too great.

What was the matter with this attractive youth? The trouble was that he did not own his wealth, but his wealth owned him. He was like the plutocrat of whom Ruskin writes who carried his fortune on his own person in a belt of gold so heavy that when the ship upon which he was traveling foundered, he was unable to save himself, and so sank to a miserable death.

Now let us beware of supposing that this danger is confined to the unusually rich. The fact is that the acquisitive impulse is strongly rooted in all types of humanity. One of the primary duties of the Christian is to keep this passion for possession under strict control.

THE STORY SO FAR

Nancy Gordon trades herself in for fifteen thousand dollars—the price of her family and the freedom of her father, Roddy, who stole, for a time, that amount from the bank in which he works. Nancy, lately in love with young Roemer, nevertheless agrees to a secret elopement with Dr. Gordon, and with the help of her father's friend, Dr. Morgan, a sophisticated married woman, but he and Nancy and hopes to win after marriage. In Washington they are married. Nancy is a bride—and afraid of it reached her; suddenly, shaken as she was, she thought of Richard. Would Page have spared her as Richard had?

"You mustn't say such things, Page," she said weakly, "and I— I mustn't hear them, I—" she could not finish her sentence.

He caught her hands almost roughly in his.

"Answer me," he gasped hoarse.

Either the visitor had put out all she wanted to, or she was tired of it; she was acting going. Nancy heard their movements in the hall. Mrs. Gordon came, panting.

"Nancy, do you think she knows anything?"

"Nancy shook her head doubtfully. "Unless—" There he was, but Nancy would believe that. It was too much, she thought she only wanted you to get Richard."

Gordon's face changed. "I know that he—that they were engaged," she said. "Anyhow, he's in love with you, Nancy, I know that!"

A strange smile twisted Nancy's lips. "He isn't now," she said. "Perhaps he doesn't like her in the family—and I—"

"Laughed wildly—" I threw my arms round her neck," she said, "Nancy!" her mother blushed a girl.

Nancy did not blush, she suddenly white to the lips caught at Mrs. Gordon's hand blissfully.

"There's Page Roemer coming," she said. "What shall I do?" she cried. "Manda's face appeared at the door."

"Page Roemer, Miss Nancy," she said softly, showing the whites of her eyes, "I said maybe 'no' in an 'again maybe you', but he's waitin', says he's wait till he sees you' any- yes, m'm."

"That's all right, Mandy. I'll Mr. Roemer."

Mrs. Gordon gave a little gasp at the girl's hand slip. She was eager to escape as Amanda left alone to face the invitation. Nancy dreaded it. Now, fresh from the thought of Richard's re- ception, of Richard's rage at the fear of him, she must face

"You'll leave this house, sir. That's what you'll do."

ly, "tell me the truth—you don't love him—did you have to marry him, Nancy?"

"Yes," she answered faintly, not understanding, "I had to marry him, Page." She was too cleansouled to understand.

Richard would have known it, but Page dropped her hands and rose to his feet, tramping up and down the room like a madman. He had loved her, loved her deeply, and Richard had robbed him. Richard must have done what he would never have dared to do. She—God, was she worthless? He could not believe it, yet she said so. Yet—he drew an agonized breath, he couldn't give her up, he'd get her away from Richard yet, damn him!

"Page clenched his fist, he would like to smother him, but if he did, if it came out—poor Nancy! She—? He stopped short in his walk and stood thinking; was she worth the struggle? The world would say "no." His own selfish ego cried, no, not now! Then he looked at the girl.

She looked like a broken lily. All the blood in his body surged up into his head: he turned hot with rage. Damn him, he should not keep her!

"Nancy!" he flung himself down beside the girl, hot with his rage and passion. "Nancy, I love you," he cried, "I adore you!" he seized her poor shaking little hands and covered them with kisses.

The girl quivered at his touch. His hot lips on her hands sent the blood back to her heart. Love—dumb, agonized, denied—struggled in her breast.

"Oh, Page!" she gasped. "I—I thought no one cared any more!"

Nancy felt the fierce intake of his breath, she seemed to feel his love enfolding her, crushing her. A wild thrill of happiness, of love, "Page, you mustn't! I—ah, I've behaved like a bad woman!" she wailed, "you've got a right now to despise me, to think I'd—I'd do anything when I believe like this—why, Page I—I married!"

"Married?" he snapped his fingers, "that for such a marriage! I'll break it—listen to me, Nancy, I'm a lawyer, I'll break it—I'll—"

"You'll leave this house, sir. That's what you'll do,"

Richard, I can't bear this! I know the truth, Nancy told me—she's been dragged into a secret marriage. If it were right, if she loved him, I—I could stand it. As it is I'm here, I'll also be here, ready to serve her, to get a divorce for her, to get her free."

Mr. Gordon made a furious gesture with one hand. "That's enough! I understand. Now—go!"

He was shaking with rage and Nancy saw it, she looked at Roemer imploringly.

"Please go now, Page!" she pleaded.

He hesitated and then he turned, took her hand, kissed it and went out passing Mr. Gordon with the air of a conqueror.

"Good day, sir, I'm sorry you misunderstand."

"I don't misunderstand," Mr. Gordon thundered, "good day, sir, and good riddance!"

The front door closed sharply.

H. D. and 4-H Club Activities

WEST RAYLAND H. D. CLUB

A mouse proof kitchen cabinet is the latest improvement made in the kitchen of Mrs. Dave Sallis, co-operator in the Gambleville H. D. Club. The cabinet is built across the longest side of the kitchen with cupboards built up on each end for use in storing dishes and groceries. There are six drawers with doors below across the front of the cabinet. To two of the doors are built bins for flour and meal and are made so that they open straight out like the other doors. The dough board from an old cabinet was put in place above the flour bin.

Other parts of the old cabinet were used in the back walls. The sides and bottoms of all of the drawers were made from goods boxes secured without cost. The back and floor of the cabinet are lined with sheet iron so that it is mouse proof. The top is covered with zinc and the whole painted in old ivory and green.

"It keeps the gate from sagging and makes it much easier to open," says Mrs. J. B. Rasberry, co-operator in the Vivian H. D. Club, concerning the wheel on the barn yard gate.

A fourteen inch wheel from a disc has been attached to the lower edge of the gate where it closes. This allows the gate to roll open and shut easily. Since the gate is a very large one, it needed something to prevent it from sagging and the wheel serves this purpose.

Mrs. Rasberry gives her son, Raymond, credit for the idea.

MARGARET H. D. CLUB

THE REIGN OF DAVID

What a romantic story of success! The simple shepherd lad, David, tending his sheep and playing his flute, receives a sudden summons home. Saul, the King, who is passionately fond of music, has sent out a call for a musician. The boy goes to court and by his modesty and quick intelligence becomes a favorite. The blustering Goliath affords his courage a golden opportunity; in a single hour he wins the gratitude of the nation by killing Goliath with his sling in battle, and with it the jealous hatred of King Saul.

At length Saul in battle defeat has his own guards run him through and David ascends the throne. With firm hand and statesman-like vision he enforces order within the kingdom and respect without. So successful are his campaigns that he is able to establish a garrison in far-off Damascus and levy tribute on the Syrians, while Hiram, the powerful king of Tyre, is glad to claim him as an ally and a friend. He is one of the real characters in all literature. You can see his sturdy body and strong but kindly face; you hear his tones and feel his presence, for there is no attempt to make him anything more than human. In fact his sin—the great blot on his kingly career—is set forth in complete detail. It is one of the famous illicit love-stories and has been the theme of countless poems and plays.

Walking one afternoon upon the roof of his palace David saw a beautiful woman in her bath. It was love at first sight. He sent immediately to inquire her name, and though it was told him that she was the wife of Uriah the Hittite, he took her into his harem. The act was made more heinous by the fact that Uriah was away, fighting his king's battles at the front. After a period the girl, Bathsheba, brought David the uncomfortable news that she was with child. Then came the act of villainy. David conferred with Joab, his general, and arranged that Uriah should be sent into the very foremost rank at the next battle. Loyally the brave soldier fulfilled his orders and, as had been expected and hoped by the king, he was reported among the casualties. Bathsheba became the favorite of the palace and bore a famous son, Solomon, for whom she secured the succession through her influence over David.

It is not a pretty story, and the prophet Nathan, a rugged old preacher who feared nothing, did not allow the king to forget his sin. Until his dying day David was conscience-stricken. We are quite sure that many of the Psalms which are attributed to him must have been written by others, but we know that he did write this one, a bitter cry of repentance: "According unto the multitude of thy tender mercies blot out my transgressions."

Arraigned for taking four books from a book store in Chicago, Edward Martin told the judge that he desired to study modern fiction and couldn't afford to buy the books.

Failing in his attempt to sell some old books from his father's estate, O. J. Husemeier, of Antigo, Wis., idly began to look through them. In the pages of one he found $335 in old bills.
