Cattlemen of Texas Have Large Share in Buying Cattle

Austin, Sept. 4.—Cattlemen of the state will have a large share in the buying and movement of cattle in the government's Texas program, it has been announced here today by Adam R. Johnson, state relief director, after the appointment of a co-ordinating committee at Houston, last week.
The committee includes Dolph Briscoe, Uvalde, past president of the Texas and Southwest Cattle Raisers association; E. J. Spiller, Fort Worth, secretary-manager of the same association; Grover B. Hill, Amarillo, regional drought relief director in Texas; Dr. H. L. Darby, inspector in charge, Bureau of Animal Industry; R. D. McCrum, cattle movement supervisor, Texas Relief Commission and J. C. Weaver, Livestock agent of the Missouri Pacific Railroad.
This committee, Johnson said, will study and approve all contemplated changes in the quota buying program, adopted last week to prevent congestion at pens and processing plants. The new committee already has approved a plan whereby counties where government canneries are located will not ship purchased cattle out of the county but will process them at the home cannery.
This arrangement will allow for additional shipments above the 45 per cent quota from counties where cattle are in a more distressed condition than in other parts of the state. In all such cases, this committee will have the final work in determining what areas will be designated for the additional shipments, Johnson said.
Miss Ethel Payson of Dublin informed the police that her mother had turned shoplifter and Mrs. Payson confessed when arrested.

CORN STALKS MAY BE USED TO MAKE GOOD FEED THROUGH USE OF TRENCH SILOS SAYS EXPERT

Chas. N. Shepardson, Head of Dairy Husbandry Department Texas A. and M. College.
Hundreds of tons of feed that could be used to save cattle this winter are wasting in the fields today. Corn stalks that failed to make, or that have had the corn removed, are being lost by allowing them to stand in the field. These stalks if harvested and put in a trench silo can be made into palatable and nutritious feed. Normally these stalks are hardly worth the cost of harvesting and few farmers have machinery for handling them.
But, with hay prices approximately doubling those of a year ago and prospects of going higher, it will pay any farmer to cut and save his stalks even though they must be handled by hand.
The trench silo is easily constructed and can be dug to fit the feed available. Texas housewives know the value of the tin can in saving fruits and vegetables for winter food. Many Texas farmers still have to learn the value of the silo in converting coarse, dry stalks that are normally wasted by the cattle into a juicy, palatable feed that will be consumed readily. Stunted sorghum and other crops of that type can be materially increased in feeding value if handled in this way.
Another advantage of this method is the elimination of danger from sorghum poisoning. There have been several accounts in the papers recently of cattle losses due to grazing sorghum. This is caused by prussic acid on the sorghum, which is lost when the sorghum goes through the fermentation process in the silo.
In putting these crops in the trench, care should be taken to see that they are packed tightly. Add plenty of water to moisten the entire mass. Cover with about one foot of dirt. The ensilage will be ready to use in about two weeks. Fed with one to two pounds of cottonseed meal per cow per day, it will make a good maintenance ration and will return from fifty to one hundred per cent more feed value than the same crop fed dry.
While attorneys were endeavoring to reach a settlement among themselves, a Superior Court jury at New Haven, Conn., passed the time singing hymns in an ante-room.
Raymond Johnson, Washington negro, swallowed a pair of dice when police raided a gambling game at which he was present.

TRIBUTE TO MOFFETT

A deserved tribute to George Moffett of Chillicothe, representative in the Texas Legislature from this district.

In a Star-Telegram article last week, Utecht summarized the recent gubernatorial campaign.

However, a Governor is only a Governor. There is a group of legislators who really run the State Government, and the Legislature usually cares very little what a Governor thinks or wants.

Coke Stevenson, speaker of the House, and Senator Clint Small were the only other Legislators mentioned besides Moffett in Mr. Utecht's article.

SCHOOL DAYS AGAIN

All over the United States thirty million children are flocking back to the public schools.

Thirty million youngsters, getting ready to take the places of as many oldsters in a few years. That is as many people as there are in all Poland.

The future of the United States of America lies in the hands of these young ones.

We hear of subversive teaching creeping into some of the public schools in some of the big cities.

Most important of all is that our public schools should give the children as much as they can absorb of knowledge of how the world of grown-ups gets a living and manages its affairs.

Lazy men usually have a lot of theories which, like themselves, won't work.

A FORTUNE OUT OF AIR

Shortly after the close of the Civil War a young inventor, just past 21, endeavored to interest old Commodore Vanderbilt in a new brake for railroad trains.

After listening with impatience to the proposition, the Commodore asked whether the inventor really meant that he could stop a rushing train with nothing but air.

"Then get out of here," he said. "I have no time to waste on fools." The young inventor was George Westinghouse.

His early struggles were typical of those of many other young men with an idea and nothing else.

His early struggles were typical of those of many other young men with an idea and nothing else, but he was more fortunate than most of them.

OATHS FOR TEACHERS

Teachers in both public and private schools in the state of New York will be required to take the oath of allegiance.

It might seem to some that such a law is superfluous, but the fact that many teachers have protested against taking the oath indicates that the requirement may not be a bad idea.

Every official must take the constitutional oath of office, and as there are few positions in which loyalty to the nation is more essential than that of a teacher.

A loyal teacher could have no valid reason for not declaring his or her loyalty, while a refusal to make such a declaration would be rather conclusive evidence that the teacher in question was unfit to teach future American citizens.

A NEW CALENDAR

It is universally conceded that our present calendar, with months ranging from 28 to 31 days in length, presents certain disadvantages because of the lack of uniformity.

The late George Eastman devoted considerable time and money to an effort to secure adoption of a calendar with 13 months of 28 days each.

This arrangement would have many advantages for accounting and statistical purposes, but would present difficulties in other respects.

Another proposal is now being put forward by calendar reform associations in New York and London, which would retain the present 12-month year, but give 31 days to the first month of each quarter.

There is some valid argument for each of these plans, but it is doubtful that either will gain acceptance within the lifetime of anyone now on earth.

Unfortunately, it isn't safe to assume that a train has already passed just because you can see its tracks.

Some walk to reduce, while others are reduced to walking.

ACTS AND EPISTLES

The peril of building up an organization around a single person is that when he dies or withdraws the organization falls to pieces.

Bruce Barton

The good they did, as Marc Anthony said, is oft interred with their bones. Surely this process of disintegration, natural enough following the death of any leader.

They received a rude shock within a very few days. Peter and John, in preaching on the streets of the city and performing deeds of healing, gathered crowds that interfered with traffic and caused them to be arrested.

Those words deserve notice for the light they throw upon the figure and manner of the real Jesus as contrasted with the unsatisfying portraits of Him that have come down to us through the ages.

These that have turned the world upside down are come hither also; and these all do contrary to the decrees of Caesar, saying that there is another king, one Jesus.

Only a little later, not more than forty years after the death of St. Paul, Pliny the Roman Governor of Bithynia is compelled to write to the Emperor Trajan for instructions as to how he may check the growth of this extraordinary new sect.

MARNE ANNIVERSARY

Twenty years ago, from September 6 to 10, 1914, the momentous First Battle of the Marne was fought.

Prior to the beginning of this historic five days' struggle the Germans had advanced through Belgium and northern France and were within a few miles of Paris.

In this great battle it is estimated that 900,000 Germans and 1,000,000 Allies were engaged on a battlefield 120 miles long.

Nearly four years later much of the same territory was to be the scene of the Second Battle of the Marne, in which, with Marshal Foch in supreme command of the Allied armies, Germany's last hope of winning the war was definitely blasted.

LEGUME HAY BEST

"The best forage plants are alfalfa and vetch. Alfalfa may be placed in the front rank of such plants; for once sown it lasts 10 years, fattens lean cattle and is good for the sick."

Thus in substance, did the leading agriculturist of his day advise his fellow farmers. The quotation is from the writings of Lucius Columella, author of the most complete ancient treatise on agriculture.

Similar advice is contained in a bulletin of the Department of Agriculture. It is declared that "an abundance of home-grown legume hay is the basis for an economical ration for dairy cows."

Although the superiority of legumes has been taught by experts from Columella's time to the present, only about 40 per cent of the hay grown in the United States is legume hay.

Both for nutrition and soil building, legume hay should have a prominent place in every farmer's program. Columella's advice is as good today as it was 19 centuries ago.

Ninety Per Cent Base Wheat Acres May Be Planted

Decision to authorize, in connection with the 1935 wheat program, the planting of 90 per cent of the base acreage of signers of the wheat adjustment contracts.

This course is expected to produce, under average weather conditions and allowing for the normal abandonment of wheat acreage, approximately 775 million bushels of wheat for harvest in 1935.

Benefit payments to co-operating producers would total approximately 162 million dollars at the rate of 29 cents per bushel on the domestic allotment of the base production of the co-operating producers.

Planting of 90 per cent, or approximately 46 million acres of this land would be authorized under the plan. The anticipated national total production of 775 million bushels of wheat, from farms of co-operators and others.

Pool Members May Sell or Get 2-Cent Advance on Cotton

Members of the 1933 cotton producers pool who hold participation trust certificates will have the opportunity to obtain the benefits of the 12-cent loan plan announced August 21 by the President or may tender their certificates to the pool and receive the market price.

Pool members now owe to the pool against cotton as evidenced by their certificates, 10 cents per pound plus carrying charges.

The cotton pool has approximately 1,950,000 bales of cotton held by around 450,000 cotton

TO THE VOTERS of the 46th JUDICIAL DISTRICT:

I desire in this way to express to those who supported me in my race for District Judge, my sincere thanks.

I carried two out of three counties of the district by a majority of 721 votes but it appears from returns in Hardeman County my opponent received enough votes to overcome my majorities in Wilbarger and Foard counties.

I entered the race trusting, if nominated and elected, to render the people of the district a service commensurate with the importance of the office.

I especially desire to express my gratitude to those members of the bar who supported me, such support coming from those who know best the requisite qualifications of the judge, is reassuring to me, that my course in the campaign was ethical and right.

I stressed the fact that what we need most in our courts is efficiency and rigid economy.

Sincerely yours, L. P. BONNER.

Estes Resigns

COL. CARL ESTES

Col. Carl L. Estes, East Texas publisher and editor-manager of the Tyler Courier-Times and Morning Telegraph, owned by the T. B. Butler Estate, Thursday announced his resignation from these publications effective Sept. 1st. Estes established the Telegraph for the Butler Company four years ago.

Going to Tyler 11 years ago as advertising manager of the Tyler Courier-Times, he advanced rapidly until he became editor 5 years later, and editor-manager 3 years later. The papers, six columns, carried no leased wire news service when he went to the East Texas city. Under his direction they were completely re-equipped mechanically, full leased wire services installed and, due to the forceful, fearless and outspoken editorial policy he pursued particularly in connection with the fight on "hot" oil, they have acquired a State-wide reputation as metropolitan dailies.

Commenting on his resignation in Dallas Thursday, Estes said: "I will continue the fight on 'hot' oil and will now devote my full time to my own publications and will continue my residence and headquarters in Tyler." Col. Estes publishes an oil magazine and is interested in a number of other East Texas newspapers.

Col. Estes, widely known East Texas political leader and at present a member of the Texas Relief Commission, has recently been put forward for National Democratic Committee member from Texas by friends in several North and East Texas counties, it being known that he stands in high favor with the incoming State administration as well as the National. He was one of the four delegates-at-large to the Chicago Convention, and led the Texas delegation in placing the State standard alongside that of California, which resulted in the stampede to President Roosevelt.

Austin, Sept. 3.—The Texas Relief Commission's program of rural rehabilitation will be pushed to the limit during the next two months, it was announced today by J. E. Stanford, director of the department, as he issued instructions to his field supervisors to employ assistants to help them carry out the program during the next eight weeks.

It is the aim of the department to house every family possible and supply them with capital goods before the winter season arrives. Federal authorities have been asked for a grant of $800,000 for rural rehabilitation in Texas in September as against $250,000 for the current month.

Stanford reported the program now being carried on in 142 counties and said it will be extended to others as soon as rains break long existing drought in these counties.

Tex. Interscholastic League 1935 Debate Question Announced

Austin, Texas, Sept. 5.—Wording of the debate question for the Interscholastic League for 1934-35 has been changed to restrict the subject to a discussion of government ownership of electric light and power utilities, rather than of all utilities, according to Roy Bedichek, chief of the University of Texas Bureau of Public School Interests. As previously announced, the question was "Resolved, that the Government Should Own and Control All Public Utilities." As amended, the subject is "Resolved, that the Government Should Own and Operate All Electric Light and Power Utilities." A 200-page bulletin on this subject is now in the press and will be ready for release soon, Mr. Bedichek said.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

by Charles E. Dunn

Hezekiah Leads His People Back to God.
Lesson for September 9th. 2nd Chronicles 30.
Golden Text: 2nd Chronicles 30:9.

Hezekiah ascended the throne when Judah, was in the throes of a spiritual depression. A young man in his 26th year, he was the share of his good qualities. "A good mother," wrote George Herbert, "is worth a hundred schoolmasters."

Rev. Chas. E. Dunn

Hezekiah's good son of unworthy Ahaz. Probably his mother, Abijah, atoned for the wickedness of his father. From her he doubtless inherited a large long reign of 29 years is of great importance. It witnessed the invasion of Judah by Sennacherib's Assyrian army which seized 46 cities and over 200,000 prisoners but was unable, because of a providential affliction, perhaps a pestilence, to capture Jerusalem.

But we are more particularly interested in Hezekiah's religious reforms. They are described in the 18th chapter of the 2nd book of Kings where we read that "he removed the shrines, broke the obelisks, and cut down the sacred poles; he demolished the bronze serpent made by Moses." And the chapter in 2nd Chronicles before our lesson says "he did that which was right in the sight of the Lord."

The lesson describes the king's invitation to all Israel and Judah to come to the temple at Jerusalem to keep the passover. Hezekiah saw that everything in both kingdoms was sinking from bad to worse. He therefore decided to assemble the separated peoples in festival worship of their common God. It was a wise and generous proposal inspired by a generous spirit. Unfortunately this gesture

The public is cordially invited.

Christian Church

Last Sunday's Sunday school attendance was the largest in almost two years. Let's keep up this good work. We will have Worker's Conference next Wednesday evening at the church to arrange our fall program; all teachers and workers be sure to come. Promotion Day will come the last (fifth) Sunday in this month. Rally Day, with a great service to honor our teachers, will be the first Sunday in October.

We enjoyed very much having Bro. Clark and his family visit us last Sunday and pray that God may use him for great things in His kingdom.

Bring your whole family and come to Sunday school next Sunday.

C. V. ALLEN, Elder.

Christian Science Service

"Man is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, September 9, The Golden Text is: "As many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God" (Romans 8:14.)

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "So God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him" (Genesis 1:27.)

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Jesus taught but one God, one Spirit, who makes man in the image and likeness of Himself—of Spirit, not of matter. Man reflects infinite Truth, Life, and Love. The nature of man, thus understood, includes all that is implied by the terms "image" and "likeness" as used in Scripture" (page 94.)

toward unity met with ridicule. But there was a large enough group in favor of the plan to make possible its successful fulfillment. Indeed "there assembled at Jerusalem much people to keep the feast . . . a very great congregation." Thus the passion for the larger view triumphed.

JAPS BEAT HARVARD

Harvard University's baseball team, now invading Japan, received a rather severe drubbing a few days ago at the hands of the Rikkyo University club in Tokyo, the score being 9 to 3 in favor of the Orientals.

Since the introduction of the game into Japan about 4 years ago by native engineers who had learned the game while studying in the United States, baseball has gained great popularity in that country.

Keio University was among the first colleges to take up the sport, after a group of students had translated a Spalding rule-book into the Japanese language. The game's greatest impetus resulted from the enthusiasm of Professor Isa Abe of Waseda University, who is called "the father of Japanese baseball." Under his leadership teams from the University made several tours of the United States, giving a good account of themselves.

Even the monks of the Buddhist monasteries in Japan cross bats with American missionaries. In one such game it is told that in the last half of the ninth inning, with the score standing 1 to 1, His Holiness, the Abbot of the monastery, playing shortstop, booted a hot grounder and allowed the winning run of the missionaries to trickle across the plate.

TRAILS END

Tenth Installment

Three weeks after a cream-colored roadster had been found wrecked in the sea at the foot of a cliff, a girl calling herself Anne appears at the desert town. She has bought, sight unseen, a ranch located thirty miles away. Barry Duane, her neighbor and his man, Petry, procure a reliable man for her and in Barry's car, they drive across the desert. They find a woman who has been sickened by the 'hole thing' and who has been the one to bring this precious story to him had left him worried and depressed. Why were women so hard on each other? Even his mother.

The trouble probably was that rancorous gossip. He flushed darkly at the recollection. So Nancy's name was being bandied about like that? A whispering devil of suspicion slily jogged his elbow and was thrust out of the way.

He could easily settle this. All he needed to do was to go upstairs and look in at Nancy. He smiled to himself and swung quickly toward the stairs.

Barry let himself in quietly. Anne was not there. He turned toward the door, blindly.

There was the slight sound of its opening. Anne stood there, staring at him.

"Oh—Barry!" She said it breathlessly. "You startled me."

His eyes swept over her swiftly, suspiciously, and dropped to the slim perfection of her slippers. On the side of one of them, marring its delicate sheen, was a long hair stain.

The blood sang in his ears again, so that he scarcely heard his own voice. "Anne, where have you been?"

Before that hard note she stopped short.

"Why, Barry, what is the matter?"

"Where have you been at this hour of the night?"

"At this hour? Why, it isn't late."

"I've been in the garden, Barry, what is the matter?"

"Within the past half hour I have had to listen to a sickening story that you were meeting somebody's chauffeur out in the garden."

She felt suddenly sick and tired. Barry's mother must have seen her and carried the story to him in bitter triumph. Who else hated her enough to do that? She wanted to tell him the whole hateful story, but she must not.

"Somebody must have been willing to carry tales about me to have hurried the news to you as quickly as that." She saw him flush, but she went on bitterly. "And whether I was there or not, I won't talk about it! I won't! I'll say things that we'll both be sorry for."

Her hands went up to her throbbing temples. They really did throb now. "Ring for Bertha, please. And stay until she comes."

He looked at her uneasily. He rang hastily and came back to her. "I'm sorry if you're not well," he said perkily. "Perhaps I'd better send for Dr. Carmichael."

"No, please. It's only my head."

They waited for Bertha in uncomfortable silence. There was a tap on the door, but it was Ellen's broad face which appeared.

"I rang for Bertha. Isn't she here?"

Ellen was a new maid. She grinned companionably.

"Yes'm, in a way, but it's her night out. She's been to a party. Ma'am, lookin' as pretty as a pitcher in the grand dress ye give her, and this good half hour she's been standin' at the end of the drive sayin' good-night to the young felly from Quinn's Garage. Is there anything I can do, Ma'am?"

"Bring me some ice cubes, Ellen. I've a headache."

The door closed on Ellen. Anne scarcely breathed.

"Nancy, forgive me! I've been a brute and I ought to be kicked for it."

He drew her around with coaxing hands.

"Don't you know I love you, Barry? There isn't anybody else but you. There couldn't be."

"I know," he muttered. "It's because you're so much to me, Nancy. . . . I think I'd go mad if you ever let me down."

She tried not to shiver, quaking a little at the narrowness of escape.

Luck had been kind to Cleo. Mrs. Duane, outraged and bitter, would go straight to Barry with her story. Cleo nudged down behind the wheel.

The driveway wound toward the end of the grounds in a double curve. The lights of the roadster swung around and picked up two scrawny figures, hastily backing out of their flaring range. One of them was Bertha.

"Alibi!" Cleo said under her breath. "Damn!"

It was close to midnight when Kennedy strolled back to the smaller chateau which housed the attendant, and he was met by a message that Miss Cleo wanted to see him. Kennedy was half sulky about it. Some deviltry, or he missed his guess.

Cleo received him in the Chinese room.

"I'm thinking of getting a new car, Kennedy. Do you know anything about racing cars?"

"A little," Kennedy's eyes narrowed slightly. He hesitated, and the desire to show that he had not always been at an employer's beck and call was too much for him. "I know their points pretty well," he added carelessly. "I've driven my own now and then."

"Really?" Cleo smiled encouragingly. "That was before you—er—gave up the Forty-Ninth Street house, wasn't it?"

All the lines of Kennedy's face sharpened.

"About that time," he said briefly. "So you've been looking up my record?"

"It wasn't necessary, Kennedy. You're quite well known."

He stared back at her, suspicious and half truculent. "Well, you know, I didn't try to get the job under an assumed name, anyway."

"Oh yes, I'm perfectly satisfied, Kennedy. But, of course, I know that a man of your experience isn't taking a chauffeur's position except for some special reason. Does John Gage know that you are in Granleigh?"

It must have been a sharp jolt for Kennedy, but this time his face—the gambler's face, after all—was absolutely expressionless.

"That's too deep for me," he answered indifferently. "If you mean the big fellow, I don't know what he knows. I've never met him."

"Not even that night last May, when this happened?" Cleo's hand rested for a moment against the filmy turquoise of her gown, just below her breast.

"You've had a busy day," he said dryly.

"Things have a habit of coming my way, Kennedy. And I know you went out tonight to keep an appointment with Mrs. Barry Duane, and just where you met her. . . . and by the way, how very much she looks like Miss Curtis! You're a wonderful driver, Kennedy, but you haven't any intention of staying on here as a chauffeur. You're here for money, Kennedy, big money. I'm afraid the courts would call it blackmail."

Kennedy listened, outwardly unmoved but taking lively account of this new situation.

"What's your game?" he asked bluntly.

"I'm not playing, Kennedy," Kennedy took the hint.

"My error." He temporized astutely. "But I got the idea that you wanted me to do something for you."

"Perhaps you could." She considered him thoughtfully. "There is someone in Granleigh whose presence is going to bring danger and unhappiness to some close friends of mine. Some day there will be a scandal, and she will be forced to leave in disgrace. It would be better for everybody concerned if she went away quietly, before her—her past became known."

"You want me to get Duane's wife out of the way?"

He had an unpleasant way of stripping facts naked and making her look at them.

"I wish her to go away. Alone."

"Reno, or a Mexican divorce?"

Pellagra Claims Many Victims In Texas Each Year

Austin, Texas.—Six hundred and forty-five Texans died last year of pellagra, declared Dr. John W. Brown, State Health Officer. Pellagra is a disease that is caused by lack of proper foods. It comes on slowly and may not be recognized until the victim begins to have sore mouth, stomach trouble and reddening and scaling of the skin. When these symptoms appear the disease has been present for some time.

The longer a person has pellagra the harder it is to cure, so one should be on the lookout for the early symptoms such as nervousness, indigestion, and burning of the feet and hands. The disease may become so severe as to affect the mind.

Pellagra is not contagious. As long as a person eats enough of the right kind of food and is not otherwise diseased, he is in no danger even if he lives with a pellagra patient.

The prevention of pellagra depends upon eating the right kind of food at all times. To make sure that the diet is right, it should always include plenty of milk daily, some fresh meat, and as many fresh vegetables as possible. Tomatoes, whole wheat products, salmon, brewer's yeast and fresh fruits are especially valuable. Having provided these essentials of proper diet, the rest may be arranged according to family and personal likes. In this way pellagra may be avoided.

A shepherd dog at Buna Vista, Colo., which had lost her only puppy, adopted a baby jack rabbit which her owner caught for her.

NEWS IS COMPLIMENTED BY EUGENE R. DILWORTH

Eugene R. Dilworth of Houston, of the Christian Science Committee on Publications for the State of Texas, has sent The News the following letter:

Dear Editor:

As your paper comes to my desk weekly I have thought with appreciation of the genuine service and pleasure you bring to your territory in supplying them with such a publication. Certainly it has come to be universally recognized that a paper such as yours, in so intimately contacting the lives of the citizens of your community, has a wonderful opportunity for good, and I wish to express to you my sincere appreciation for the highly effective way in which you are utilizing the valuable opportunity you have.

I am sure you know that I, as well as others in your community, am deeply grateful for the friendly and co-operative spirit with which you have published the material that we have for the press. I often read your church news column and am grateful for the recognition of the vital part the churches have in our lives. Religious news is becoming more and more of interest to humanity, for the stress and strain of modern problems are turning people to seek God.

Thanking you, and with sincere gratitude for the contribution you are making to human society, I am

Cordially yours,
Eugene R. Dilworth.

The Family DOCTOR

by JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M.D.

Classified according to their form, these little trouble-makers are "baccilli" and "cocci"; those words are plural; one of the first sort is a bacillus; one of the second is a coccus. "Bacillus" means rod-shaped; "coccus" means shaped like a bead or a round berry.

The baccilli make exceedingly bad company for their host. The mighty tubercle bacillus is known and dreaded—has baffled mankind for centuries in efforts to stop its depredations. It is one of the smallest of bacteria, and hardest to find. Imagine a hair a thousand times too small to be seen with the naked eye—and the hair cut into a hundred million short sections . . .

We have the tubercle bacillus, the typhoid bacillus, the colon bacillus, and a number of others—all known as "bacteria." They are rod-shaped. When found under the powerful microscope they must be stained with powerful dyes made for that purpose. They are invisible unless treated with stains.

The cocci—the bead-shaped—are numerous and many of them deadly. I think of nothing more dangerous than the meningococcus. The pneumococcus works havoc in the human lung; and the streptococcus—at least three varieties—no greater villain known. Many American school children talk about "strep infections." Too often this "bug" must be cut after and again—not always with success, we are sorry to acknowledge.

Staphylococci are so named from their different groupings when seen under the microscope. They are not so formidable as the streptococci; but all of the "cocci" are pus-producers—a fact worth remembering. It is also worth remembering that, of all the stuff peddled as "antiseptic," most of them are not worth carrying home!
