Mr. Cope or "Johnnie," as he is familiarly known to his Crowell and Foard County friends, is a Foard County product, being born and reared to manhood in this county, receiving his education in the Crowell schools and a business college in Fort Worth. After finishing a business course he was employed in a grocery store operated by J. H. Self & Sons in about 1907. In 1911 he became associated with the Massie-Vernon Grocery store in Crowell as bookkeeper and has been connected with the Massie stores almost continuously since that time. NEW OFFICERS ELECTED FOR 1935 AT BANQUET FARMERS-BUSINESSMEN'S ASSOCIATION

The regular monthly banquet for the Farmers and Business Men's Association was held Tuesday evening at Raymond's Cafe in the Self Motor Co. building at which time officers were elected for 1935.

The program was in charge of Eli Smith and the first number on the program was a talk by John Rator, retiring president. Mr. Rator told of the difficulties encountered in promoting trades day during the past year and also recounted the encouraging features as well. He expressed optimism regarding conditions for the new year.

Following Mr. Rator's talk, Mayor C. T. Schlager gave an accurate and interesting talk concerning the work being done by the city council to increase Crowell's water supply. New wells are being opened up and the supply being realized from this source at the present time is sufficient to supply the city with water in the winter time. When this work is completed it is expected that the supply will be sufficient to take care of the greater supply that is needed in the summer, without having to pump water from the lake. The well water is of a better quality and is secured from a sandstone

JOHN WELCH IS INJURED IN CAR WRECK THURS.

John Welch, 17-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Y. Welch, is in the Quanah hospital suffering from injuries received when he was pinned beneath a trailer last Thursday night, about 1 1/2 miles from Crowell on the Margaret highway.

John and Vergie Smith were returning from having taken a drill to the farm of Marion Hughton. There was a trailer attached to the car and John had gone back to the trailer to get a flashlight which had been left there. While he was in the trailer, the head of the coupling pin holding the trailer, broke off and the trailer backed into the ditch and turned over, pinning the boy beneath it.

Smith went to the Welch home for aid and he with Mr. Welch and Munson Welch, father and brother of John, removed the injured boy from beneath the trailer and brought him to the Crowell hospital. He suffered a broken back in the accident.

He was taken to the Quanah hospital the next morning where an operation was performed and he is reported to be doing as well as could be expected.

SUPREME COURT ACTION

Washington, Jan. 22. (Associated Press)—Congress must do its own job of making laws. It cannot delegate that task to the President or to anyone else. That is the net substance of the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in the "hot oil" case.

Eight of the nine justices agreed that there was no legal authority for Executive control of "hot oil." The ninth, Justice Cardozo, agreed with his colleagues on the principle that the Executive could not make rules having the effect of law unless Congress prescribed the nature of those rules and set limits upon Executive power. Justice Cardozo, however, held that Congress had granted sufficient authority to the President in the matter of forbidding transportation across state lines of oil produced in excess of quotas set by the respective states.

The first set-back to the authority of the President under the New Deal was followed by the argument over the repudiation of the gold contract in the case of Liberty bonds and bonds of private corporations. The Administration is anxiously awaiting the Supreme Court's decision, in view of questions from the bench by Chief Justice Hughes and several Associate Justices, pointedly inquiring where Congress found authority for repudiating a contract.

The Gold Contracts
If the Supreme Court holds that Congress may not, under the Constitution, abrogate a contract written into a Government bond, in which payment in gold dollars of the present weight and fineness is specified, then every holder of a $1,000 Liberty bond is entitled to collect $1,690 in the present value of dollars. The right of Congress to fix the value of money is not questioned; but having depreciated the gold dollar, can Government then compel holders of gold obligations to accept less gold than their contracts call for?

The Supreme Court's decision is not expected for two or three weeks. In the meantime, all sorts of schemes to circumvent it should it uphold the sanctity of the Government's bond contracts, are being discussed at both ends of Pennsylvania Avenue.

Back in Place
Whatever the decision in the gold case, the court's positive stand on the question of the right of Congress to delegate its law-making powers has stirred official

Washington as nothing else has since the inauguration of President Roosevelt. It has put the more radical members of the Administration on warning that they must pay more attention to the Constitution and not try to grab off too much power for the Executive; and it has served notice on Congress that it must do its own work and not merely pass the buck to the President.

As one poker-playing Senator put it: "It's still the New Deal, but it's no longer Dealer's Choice. If we're going to play with deuces wild, we've got to say so in the House rules."

The 4 billions which the President asks for public works will doubtless be granted by Congress, but with many more restrictions upon how and for what it may be spent than in the case of previous blanket appropriations. It probably won't be appropriated before March, and in any event won't be available until July 1, the beginning of the next fiscal year, so its effects are not likely to be noticeable much before next fall.

Present indications are that the bill authorizing this expenditure will be a sort of modified CWA plan, the chief difference being that real work of permanent value will be required, and that wages will be down close to the bare subsistence level, instead of high enough to deter men from seeking private employment. Power probably also will be given to move workers at will from one part of the country to the other.

Hopkins and Ickes
Harry Hopkins, Relief Administrator, is regarded as the most appropriate man to run the new subsistence work scheme, but Harold Ickes, Secretary of the Interior and Administrator of PWA, doesn't like to let go of any authority. The latest gossip is that Hopkins may be appointed Under-Secretary of the Interior, at the same salary, $10,000 a year, he is now drawing, and administer the new project under Ickes' superior control.

That the new public works plan will have any appreciable effect upon private business enterprise is beginning to be seriously doubted even by good Democrats. But if Government stops spending, there will be a time-lag before private enterprise can get its capital working at full speed, and the Administration cannot afford to have a general howl raised by spokesmen for the unemployed, before the 1936 election.

Rambling 'Round New York With HUGH KENNY

That glitter of diamonds in a jeweler's window is positively unpleasant, they are so many and so brilliant. The window full is probably worth a hundred thousand dollars. And will they be put in a safe at five o'clock? They most decidedly will! Do you want antiques? Rare objects of art? Unusual silver, leather, tapestries, millinery, gowns or foods? Walk up Madison Avenue from 42nd Street to 68th or so—and take a large bankroll with you, for the street is lined with specialty shops of all kinds, many with smug and some with gorgeous windows. And some of them, unfortunately, sell it "Shoppe."

Sidewalk toy sellers work the year around in New York, shooting mechanical toys around and around, despite the perilous feet of hundreds of passers-by. Walk just ahead of the cop on 42nd Street between Fifth and Sixth and you'll see one after another bootblack picking up his little box. The cops seldom run them in and when they do, it is usually on another street where some own-

ECLIPSES OF THE SUN

While there is nothing mysterious about eclipses, they have always been of interest to the layman, and objects of intense scientific study to astronomers.

The eclipse of August 31, 1932, was the last total eclipse of the sun to be seen in the United States until 1945, when one will be visible in portions of Idaho and Montana.

But the next total eclipse to be seen over any considerable area of the United States will be that of 2017. It will sweep entirely across the continent, through Oregon, Colorado, Tennessee and intervening states, passing into the Atlantic in the vicinity of Wilmington, N. C.

Other total eclipses visible in portions of the United States will occur during the 21st century in the years 2024, 2044, 2045, 2052 and 2073.

OUR GREATEST PARK

About sixty years ago Congress set apart 3,575 square miles of land, mostly in Northwestern Wyoming, since known as Yellowstone National Park.

tainous plateau from six to eight thousand feet above sea level, with many high peaks of volcanic origin, but now extinct.

Of paramount interest to many are the geysers, about 100 in number—more than exist in all the rest of the world.

Good roads and modern conveniences for the comfort and pleasure of visitors are to be found in the park, which annually attracts a great number of tourists.

It was with excellent foresight that this wonderful region was dedicated to public use by Congress as the first of our national parks, of which there are now 22.

LIFE INSURANCE FUNDS

Recently a financial writer pointed out how widely the funds of life insurance companies are distributed in investments, and how many kinds of enterprises are dependent upon for the protection of policy-holders.

Only about 11 per cent of these resources is held in cash and in property used in the transaction of the insurance business.

When it is considered that legal reserve insurance in this country has assets of some 20 billions of dollars, the enormous influence which this vast amount of capital must exert upon the life of the nation can be readily understood.

by BRUCE BARTON

TEN GREAT MEN

Ten thousand ministers of all religious denominations were asked to name the ten greatest men in the Bible. It was not intended to include the name of Jesus Christ, but still His name led many lists and would, of course, have stood first in all.

Bruce Barton

The second name in order of the number of votes is that of St. Paul; the next is Moses, and the third, David. These are in practically all the lists. After these three the vote is more evenly distributed. The total number of men named is sixty, and some of those that have the smallest number of votes are accompanied by the best reasons for inclusion. From this notable list we select the following names, not in the order of their plurality but in chronological arrangement:

1. Adam, the first man with conscience and a knowledge of moral responsibility.
2. Noah, the man on whom at one time hung the hope of civilization.
3. Abraham, the prince of pioneers.
4. Joseph, political economist; man of vision and integrity.
5. Moses, lawgiver, creator of a nation, founder of the world's system of legislation.
6. David, shepherd, soldier, singer and king.
7. Jeremiah, most heroic of that heroic group, the prophets.
8. Judas Maccabaeus, the rebuilder of a nation.
9. John the Baptist, the herald of the dawn.
10. Saint Paul, apostle, traveler, author and martyr.

The reason for the larger number of names in the Old Testament is doubtless to be explained by the longer period which it covers. The New Testament narrative, from the beginning of the ministry of Jesus until the destruction of Jerusalem by Titus, is only about forty years, whereas the Old Testament traverses many centuries.

Adam: Whether you get your story of creation from Genesis or from Mr. Wells, the broad outlines are the same—a formless mass of matter in motion, evolving gradually into land and water, producing vegetation, and the lowest forms of life. Then higher forms, and still higher, until finally there came one amazing individual who raised himself upon his lower limbs and dared to say, "I am different from the rest."

At first he had a hard time defining the difference. He ate and drank like other animals. He reproduced his species in the same gross sensual way. The lusts of appetite ran in his veins with as hot a tide as in the beasts about him. He killed other animals and ate their raw and quivering flesh. Yet he was not like them. He walked unsteadily in an erect posture, and that was a distinction of no small significance, for it left the upper limbs free to serve the head.

All In Knowing How

The clever magician seldom fails to amaze his audience with his tricks. And they are tricks . . . but he has to know how to do them and keep in good practice. . . . Saving money . . . putting it away for future uses is also a trick. . . . It is the trick of spending a little less than your income and banking the difference. . . . The citizens who practice this thrifty trick are those who have money to invest when real opportunities present themselves.
