Growth of P. O. Department

The Post Office department grew remarkably in the first 40 years of our present government. In 1789 there were 75 post offices and 1,875 miles of post roads. In 1928 there were more than 8,000 post offices and 114,780 miles of mail lines. Early postage rates were exceedingly high. For many years six cents was the lowest for a distance of only 30 miles. The cost ranged to 25 cents for 450 miles or over. Letter writers pleaded for cheaper postage. Congress in 1845 reduced the cost of half-ounce letters to five cents for 300 miles, 10 cents for distances over 300 miles. Further agitation resulted in a three-cent rate for the half-ounce letter in 1851.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY IS SPEAKER AT LUNCHEON

"The Individual Citizen and Law Enforcement" was the subject of a talk by Ed Gossett of Vernon, district attorney, at the luncheon of the Rotary Club Wednesday. Jno C. Roberts was in charge of the program. M. A. Pillars of Wheeler was a visitor at the luncheon and spoke briefly.

Mr. Gossett stated that crime absorbed one-third of the nation's income each year. He stressed the necessity of removing the incubators of crime, mentioning that it was better to prevent a disease than to try to cure it after it started, and the same case was true with regard to crime.

"We are going to progress and prosper only in proportion to individual responsibility and our big problems today are not so much political and economic as they are moral," he stated.

Amateur Tournament to Feature Graham Fair October 1 to 5

Graham, Texas, Sept. 17.—A West Texas-wide amateur tournament will feature the entertainment program of the thirteenth annual Young County Fair in Graham, October 1-5.

Among the other attractions will be horse races, cowboy exhibitions and a new aggregation of midway attractions, according to G. O. Cozart, fair association president.

The agricultural, livestock, poultry and women's work exhibit departments will be full of high quality displays. Persons interested in entering the competition in any of the divisions will be furnished a premium list on application. Mr. Cozart says.

Any person or group in West Texas not of professional rating in the entertainment vocation, who sings, dances, plays instrumental music or has any other sort of entertainment talent, are eligible to enter the amateur contests, officials of the fair announce. No entry fee will be charged and cash prizes will be awarded the winners. The first three evenings of the fair will be devoted to the preliminaries in the contests and the three winners on each of these programs will be given cash awards. The last two nights will be the finals and those who are judged the winners on these programs will receive additional prizes and will be presented on radio programs on at least two well-known Texas radio stations.

Mrs. Rascoe, Vance Swaim and Henry Black have already served this week.

In case the season is extended into December by reason of a district championship, the transportation volunteers will continue to serve in their respective order.

While these nine persons have assumed the responsibility of performing this creditable service, we feel that they should have the co-operation of others and if you have a desire to help, why not inform school officials of this fact or some of the individuals mentioned above?

With about four transportation dates to each person as matters now stand, some of the above patriots would probably be willing to share some of their work.

HOSTILE VALLEY

By Ben Ames Williams

PART VII — Saladine, in heavy rain, takes refuge in Marm Pierce's barn. Bart Carey, carrying Huldy, whom he has fallen from a ledge, enters. Marm declares her dead, but while an old woman alone, she breathes, asserts that she is not dead. Horrified, Jenny tells no one of the accident. She goes to the Ferrin to notify Will.

PART VIII — With him returns to Marm Pierce. She tells him of Huldy's death. He is bewildered. Zeke Dace is found. Will has to go to his farm to feed the cat. Jenny goes with him, having found that she is in a man's hands.

CHAPTER IX — "It turned out," good as it was, she never came to her. She was not dead; she was nodding; and Saladine saw her. "I see her, this morning. I left my car at Will's. He showed me the path down the brook, come as far as the with me. There's nothing there, no way she could find—she wasn't the kind to be seen." He added: "I was when Bart brought her."

Saladine nodded. "I telephoned to the steam mill, Jim. The crew had been all day. He added: "And in Haven was in Liberty, at the time he told me that when Bart's he went up the road, he'll hit the Mac's Corner."

Jenny Stood Silently By.

she did, I dunno as he'd harm her." He added harshly: "But if he did, I wouldn't blame him!"

The old woman's sharp eyes fixed on him. "You trying to let on that Will killed her, Bart?" she asked, in a matter-of-fact tone. "Speak out. No sense in talking around corners."

"I'm not letting on a thing about it," Bart assured her. "I'm trying to see through it, Granny, the same as you."

"I can see a-plenty," she said crisply.

The sheriff said, floundering: "I'd like to talk to this Zeke. Might be he'd know something. Maybe Will, he'll fetch him. Looks like I'd have to talk to that man."

But when Will and Jenny presently did return, they were alone. This hour she spent with Will was for Jenny deeply comforting. Huldy's accusation had faded into a cloudy unreality, like the substance of a dream. But Jenny was, more than any other emotion, felt a grievous sympathy for Will, for the remorse she knew she must endure; and she strove in small ways to reassure and comfort him, not by words, but by her steady supporting presence at his side.

They tramped in silence through the woods, the lantern swinging in Will's hand making the black shadows of the trees along the way swing like somber pendulums. They crossed the brook, and climbed the steep trail, and came up through the orchard to the barn; and while Jenny held the lantern, Will led the cows into the tie-up and secured them there. He pulled down hay for them, and went to the kitchen for the nail and returned ly to find him, long as we're setting here!"

"Nor you can't find him outside," Marm Pierce cried sharply. "Show some sense, Sheriff! You couldn't see Zeke ten feet away, a night like this, if he was a blind man. Set down. Use your head, 'stead of your feet! Use your eyes!"

"What good's my eyes going to do me here?" he urged.

"There's been enough to see, if you want to be blind," she told him; and she looked briefly at Jenny. "Jenny," she said sharply. "You were alright scared a while ago. I think you know something more'n you've told. You was down brook this morning. Did you see anything, hear anything at all?" Her tones were insistent.

Jenny, though her heart was pounding, spoke after a moment steadily enough. "The way was clear before her now, all doubts resolved. But she only said: 'I told you I heard someone talking, in the woods.'"

Marm Pierce protested frantically: "Nothing in that to scare you!" She came closer to the girl. "Jenny, I can see more than most; but I can't see everything. What was I scared you a while ago? When the sheriff said that about wishing Huldy had come to before she died? What was it, Jenny?" she demanded.

The girl smiled slowly, as at some secret thought.

"Go on, Jenny," said old Marm Pierce. "Tell the truth and shame the devil!"

Jenny looked at Will's bowed head, and her smile suddenly was radiant as the sun. "It don't mean a thing to me now," she protested softly. "Because I can see it now."

"What was it, Jenny?" the old woman insisted.

"Huldy did come to, for a minute, before she died," said Jenny then.

Marm Pierce cried in a deep incredulity:

"Jenny, she never did!"

And Bart exclaimed: "She couldn't, Jenny! Why, she was as good as dead before ever I got her here!"

Jenny repeated slowly: "She did, anyway!" And for a moment she said no more. She stood near the cabinet over the sink, where knives and forks and cooking dishes were stowed away. Bart was by the door into the shed. Marm Pierce was between Jenny and the stove; and Sheriff Sohier sat in front of the oven with his greatcoat loose about him.

Will was beyond the stove, near the other door, impassive, waiting.

Saladine, watching Jenny, thought she seemed in this moment to wear a mantle of grace. She looked at Will, and her eyes held his, and her tone was gently mirthful.

"She told me you did it, Will," said Jenny, with a smile on her lips, and her glance serene.

Bart uttered a low ejaculation; but Marm Pierce spoke in brisk insistence.

"How come you didn't call me?"

"I didn't want you," Jenny told her gently.

"The more fool you!" said Marm Pierce briskly, her patience near the breaking point. "What happened?" she demanded.

The sheriff spoke heavily. "Mis' Pierce, you let her tell it her own way," he urged. So Marm Pierce was silenced; and Jenny's eyes turned again to Will. The big man shook and swayed where he stood, as though this that Jenny had to say had struck him nerveless.

Then Jenny faced the sheriff steadily and she said: "Mis' Ferrin looked at me, and her mouth twisted into a kind of laugh, and she said something."

And the girl went on: "First off, I couldn't hear her. She was awful weak, and I leaned down and said to her: 'It's all right, Mis' Ferrin!' And she laughed at me.

Jenny's throat constricted strangely. The hounds were on the trail.

As though from far away she heard Will stammer: "Killed her, you mean?"

"Something like that."

Will stood with his head bowed. "I guess not," he said firmly at last. "Who'd do that?"

"I was thinking maybe this Zeke Dace," Sohier suggested.

But Will shook his head. "No, Sheriff," he insisted. "Whatever did happen, it wa'n't Zeke. He wouldn't go to hurt her." And he continued, half to himself: "There might have been some to hurt Huldy; but not Zeke! Why, I'd as soon think I did it myself," he said.

Jenny felt the shock of a great blow.

Then Bart chuckled; and Will turned to look at him: "What's the matter, Bart?" he asked. "What's funny?"

"What you said," Bart told him. "That's a joke, Will. I mean, to think you'd hurt Huldy," he explained, and he added hotly: "Not that anybody'd blame you! She needed it." He spoke to the sheriff. "Anyone around here will say the same!"

Will moved a little toward him. "I don't take that kindly, Bart," he said. "I don't want that kind of talk from you or anybody. Not about Huldy. Not now."

There was, briefly, silence; but after a moment the sheriff said, half to himself, in almost querulous tones:

"It's a pity she didn't come to long enough to tell what happened to her."

And it seemed to Jenny suddenly that this familiar kitchen was very small, and crowded, and stifling hot. She felt strangled, and her hand flew to her lips, and stark terror choked her. Then she saw Marm Pierce watching her with eyes suddenly keen and shrewd; and she felt smothered, and shrank back into the corner by the door.

And the sheriff spoke, there was silence for a moment; then Jenny had a respite for Joe Matthews, the undertaker, came out of the dining room. He spoke to Will.

"There, Will," he said. "I've done all that needs doing tonight; and if you want, I'll carry her home." He hesitated, added: "But if you take my advice, let her lay here tonight. I can tend to everything a sight better in the morning."

Marm Pierce said: "She's welcome to stay, Will!"

Will nodded. "Well, likely that's sensible," he agreed.

Jenny, while her attention was thus turned away from her, opened the door and stepped out on the porch, grateful for the taste of cool, moist air. In the kitchen she heard the sheriff say doubtfully: "I guess, Joe, you'll want to go along home now. I don't know as I ought to leave yet, though. I'd like to see this Zeke Dace, first. But I wish you'd bring Doc Harris in the morning. I want him to look her over."

When presently the undertaker came out to depart, Jenny drew aside out of his way. Sohier and Saladine crossed with him to where his truck stood, spoke with him there. Then Bart came out, and said to Jenny casually:

"Hot in there, ain't it?" And in a lower tone: "Don't you worry, Jenny! Nothing to be afraid of. He too had seen her, and then! It must have been plain for them all to see. But even as she thought this, she realized suddenly that she was no longer afraid, and wondered why. And then, without speaking to Bart, she came quickly back into the kitchen where were Marm Pierce and Will. Her hand touched Will's sleeve, and peace filled her; and a deep enlightenment and certainty, like a revelation.

Then the truck departed, and Bart and Sohier and Saladine returned indoors. After a moment the sheriff appealed to Saladine. "Jim," he said. "Looks like you could figure something out of this business. I guess you was the last one to see Mis' Ferrin alive."

Saladine shook his head. "I don't see into it at all," he confessed.

Bart turned to Will. "How about you, Will?" he urged. "Didn't you hear her screech when she fell? I'd have said everybody in a mile could have heard that. It sounded mighty loud to me."

Will shook his head. "The noise couldn't carry up to the farm, with the hill between, and the trees." He looked at Saladine. "I mind," he said, "when you went off with Huldy, Zeke he come out of the shed like he'd go along after you. I stopped him, made him stay behind." And he continued after a moment: "Seems like I ken' him there a sight longer'n it'd take you to get down to the brook. Supposing you didn't stop any time on the ledge."

"I didn't," Saladine said.

There was silence for a moment; then Will spoke again, croppingly. "By the time I figured you'd be gone," he explained, "I left Zeke and went into the house; but when it come on to rain, I wondered where Huldy was. I come out on the porch and yelled for Zeke, but he didn't answer, so I went hunting them. I started to go down the path to the brook. But then I decided there wa'n't any use in that." He added with a glance at Saladine: "I see tracks where you'd gone down, where your boots had slipped."

Saladine spoke quickly. "Boots? I've got shoes on. It was someone else," he insisted. "It wa'n't me."

Will said stubbornly: "It was boot tracks that I see. Somebody with boots on had gone down the trail."

And Bart spoke. "Guess Zeke had boots on, didn't he?"

"Likely," he agreed. "Yes, he did. I mind, now. He did."

The sheriff stirred. "The way it looks to me," he decided, "Zeke's the one to find; and we ain't like-

Chevrolet Trucks In Thrilling Tests Atop Pikes Peak

In the first formally observed and timed tests of motor trucks over the perilous hairpin turns and steep switchbacks of the Pikes Peak auto highway, near Colorado Springs, Chevrolet 1 1/2-ton and half-ton trucks demonstrated their power, endurance and efficiency over the course of the annual Labor Day hill climb contest, a distance of 12 miles, 2200 feet, with a rise of 4959 feet from the start to the summit, 14,109 feet above sea level. The upper illustrations show the 1 1/2-ton truck, driven by W. P. Bentrup, on its way to a record of 37 minutes, 52 1/2 seconds, with its full 3000-pound load (it made the run afterward, without load, in 26 minutes, 12 seconds), and the officials at the finish (left to right): Harry Hartz, technical advisor; Robert M. Ross, Detroit Times; Dan Kennedy, Colorado Springs Gazette and Telegraph; and John L. Jenkins, Chicago Daily News. The lower photos show the Chevrolet half-ton truck, which Harry Hartz drove to the summit in 25 minutes, 3 seconds, and the finish of the run of the 1 1/2-ton truck with full load.

cus enthusiasts of this vicinity will be on hand to participate in the gala event.

To commemorate the combination of the famous old Forenaugh-Sells Bros. show with the largest trained wild animal circus in the world, many startling new features have been added for the 1935 program. These include Maria Rasputin, sensational European wild animal trainer and daughter of the famous Russian monk, Grigori Rasputin who ruled the Romanoffs with the power of his hypnotic eyes prior to his demise in 1916; Bert Nelson, youngest of the wild animal subjugators, with more than a score of fighting, jungle-bred lions and tigers; John Helliot, renowned German trainer of savage beasts; Maximo, comedian of the slack wire; the famed Christiani troupe of bareback riders in somersaults from horse to horse; the Flying Odonas, the Hills and a great group of aerialists; Ruygner, noted equestrian and his educated horses; the Merckels, who walk upside down on lefty mirrors in the dome of the big tent; "Cheerful" Gardiner and twenty performing elephants; scores of clowns led by Earl Shipley, Paul Jerome and the Paul Jung Clown Acrobatic Trio; dozens of pretty equestriennes, a huge oriental spectacle and a big contingent of Indians, cowboys and cowgirls from the Pawnee Bill Ranch at Old Town, Oklahoma.

Performances will be presented at 2 and 8 p. m. with doors open one hour earlier in each instance to permit leisurely inspection of the world's largest and finest traveling wild animal menagerie which boasts among other zoological marvels a baby giraffe.

The Hagenbeck-Wallace and Forepaugh-Sells Bros. Combined Circus is a railroad show, moving in two trains of double-length steel cars.

Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus at Vernon Thursday, Oct. 3

The great Hagenbeck-Wallace and Forepaugh-Sells Bros. Combined Circus will present afternoon and night performances in Vernon on Thursday, Oct. 3, and circus sort of coughed, I guess that was when she died." A deep tremor shook her, but her voice was firm. "She laid there, looking at me, and her mouth grinning at me; but I guess she was dead by then. Anyway, she didn't say any more."

She finished and was still, waiting. And suddenly she was very tired, dreading what was to come. Yet for a while no one spoke at all.

"Her mouth was still kind of laughing," she finished. "And she

Watch Your Kidneys!

Be Sure They Properly Cleanse the Blood

YOUR kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as nature intended—fail to remove impurities that poison the system when retained. Then you may suffer nagging backache, dizziness, scanty or too frequent urination, getting up at night, swollen limbs, feel nervous, miserable—all upset.

Don't delay! Use Doan's Pills. Doan's are especially for poorly functioning kidneys. They are recommended by grateful users the country over. Get them from any druggist.

—PLENTY OF ICE AND FROZEN DESSERTS

... that's what your Electric Refrigerator will give you

Temperatures will be kept below 50 degrees inside the cabinet of your electric refrigerator, which is necessary for the proper preservation of food. If temperatures fall below this safety mark, molds, germs and bacteria immediately cause foods to decay.

Electric refrigeration gives you this necessary food protection and also many other added conveniences. There is a surplus of refrigeration power to quickly freeze ice and desserts for the family's needs.

The health and happiness of the home demands food protection the entire year—summer and winter. You can rest assured that foods will be properly preserved with dependable electric refrigeration.

Crowell "B" Squad Wins 7 to 6 Over Vernon "B" Eleven

The Crowell High "B" football squad won its first game of the season by defeating the Vernon Marines, "B" team of Vernon High, 7 to 6 on the local football field yesterday afternoon.

Trailing 6 to 0 in the final minutes of play, Coach Walker Todd's Wildcat boys got the air in scoring. A pass from Joe Eddy to Marvin McKown gained 25 yards and put the ball in scoring distance.

Another pass, Raymond Joy to McKown, was good for ten yards and a touchdown. Joy then crashed the line for the extra point to make the score 7 to 6.

Vernon scored early in the final quarter when Herring, fullback, broke through the center of the line on a 45-yard jaunt to the goal line. The try for extra point, by kick from placement failed.

Starting Line-Ups

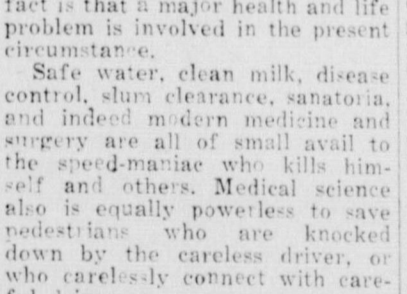

Crowell—Raymond Horn and Ike Wilson, ends; William Simmons and Glen Shock, tackles; W. F. Stater and Vernon Gibson, guards; Glen Don Reeder, center; Lyle O'Neil, quarter; Bernice Fitzgerald and Joe Eddy, halfbacks; Raymond Joy, fullback.

Over 1,500 Killed in Texas Each Year By Auto Accidents

Austin, Texas, Sept. 26.—Comparatively few people seriously realize the automobile's deadly power, but, according to Dr. John W. Brown, State Health Officer, over 1500 Texans are killed each year by autos.

Whether human nature can be sufficiently civilized by public opinion as to result in more careful driving and more cautious walking remains to be proved.

KING OF THE NETS

Wilmer Allison of Texas went through the national tennis tournament at Forest Hills, N. Y., to win the championship.

It is reported that automobile horns have been outlawed in London and bells substituted in their stead.

A Good Suggestion for Those With Show Windows

George Self has made a suggestion that we consider a good one for local merchants to consider with regard to night football games here.

Pick-Ups

Chillicothe Valley News: "Crowell will find the absence of Todd a handicap, both in morality and play. Too, opponents will feel confident this year in knowing Todd is out of the line-up."

Burburnett Star

Whatever they lack in size or ability, the Bulldogs make up in determination and courage. Add a few pounds to those boys and a little more experience there wouldn't be a team in the country that could lick them."

Paducah Post

"The Paducah High Dragons are taking their place this year among the football organizations which accomplish worthwhile things. They are representing one of the best schools of the state and are playing for the people of one of the best towns in Texas."

"Chub" the Cub

F. L. "Chub" Rennels, high school sports editor, was initiated last Friday night and was assigned the duties as statistician in keeping "finger-tip" information on yardage, first downs, passes, punts, fumbles, penalties and other facts of the game.

Difference in Doctors

A Crowell man tells a story in which he and two Crowell doctors figured as the three characters. Doctor No. 1 advised him to go to Colorado for his health.

Wildcats in White

Be careful tonight, or you may cheer the wrong team. Because of having sweaters of similar colors and appearance, it is necessary for the home team to change.

Wildcats are the boys in the white jersey sweaters and the boys in the customary black and gold that we know so well represent the "enemy."

And speaking of colors, we hope to see the time come when dear old Crowell High sees fit to change its colors. Entirely too many teams have either black or gold, especially gold, included in their colors and quite a few have both.

Down A. & M. Way

Word from College Station indicates that Freshman football prospects are pretty good.

The following comment was carried in Al Parkers' column in the Wichita Times yesterday: "Dick Todd and Bill Audish have formed a partnership that holds good not only in the halfback positions on the Aggie freshman team, but are campus buddies."

Stadium Name

Often we hear someone remark that our athletic field and gymnasium should be given some other name besides "Crowell High Stadium" and "Crowell High Gymnasium."

Nearer home the example of "Wester-Field" at Burburnett is cited, the clever combination resulting from the name of Burk's superintendent, Westerfield.

The name "velocipede" was given to the contrivance of Frenchman Blanchard and Rother, introduced in 1770. It consisted of two wheels placed upon which the rider sat propelling the machine by motion of the legs as in walking pushing forcibly backward the ground.

Cone-Bearing Trees

Conifers, or cone-bearing plants, originated on earth many millions of years ago in geological time than any of our present day forest trees.
