CROWELL STATE BANK RESUMES NORMAL ACTIVITIES FOLLOWING END OF NATION-WIDE HOLIDAY

The Crowell State Bank resumed normal operations Wednesday following the nation-wide bank holiday of several days. No restrictions as to deposit withdrawals came with the opening and the bank is now operating the same as it was before the holiday was declared.

Local bank officials report a substantial increase in deposits and express their appreciation to the people of this section for their display of confidence in the local financial institution during the moratorium, which started on March 3, and since its termination.

Recovery Sweeps Nation
One of the most brilliant recoveries in security prices in the history of the New York Stock Exchange came Wednesday as a result of restoration of financial confidence which has swept the country with the reopening of thousands of sound banks.

Of particular interest locally was the increase in the price of wheat and cotton and other farm products that came following the end of the bank holiday.

Federal Farm Loans May Be Secured from 2 Different Sources

Farmers now have the opportunity of making applications for federal loans with two governmental agencies. As mentioned in The News last week, applications may be made for crop production loans with the Foard County loan committee of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. Those on this committee are Dr. R. L. Kincaid, Silas Moore and N. J. Roberts. Loans from this agency are for crop production purposes only and the crop to be produced serves as collateral for the loan.

Applications for loans may also be made with the Regional Agricultural Credit Corporation and the local organization for this source consists of Dr. Kincaid, chairman; R. H. Cooper, M. S. Henry, E. V. Halbert and Leo Spencer, directors. Mr. Spencer also serves as secretary.

C. T. Schlagal Seeks Re-election as Mayor

C. T. Schlagal has authorized The News to announce his candidacy for re-election to the office of mayor of Crowell in the city election that is to be held on Tuesday, April 4.

Mr. Schlagal has served in this office for a number of years and states that he is seeking re-election on the basis of his past record as mayor of Crowell.

"I feel that my acquaintance with the city's present condition and needs and my past experience in dealing with the city's problems will do much in aiding me to efficiently discharge the duties of this office during the next two years if the people return me to this position. Experienced leadership in the city's affairs will be needed during the next two years more than ever before and if I did not believe that I could measure up to the qualifications necessary in this capacity, I would not seek re-election," Mr. Schlagal said.

Massachusetts Editor, Life-long Republican, Strong for Roosevelt

Frank Harper, weekly newspaper editor of Bridgewater, Mass., visited in The News office Saturday while on his return to Bridgewater after a visit of a few months in California, Washington and Oregon.

Mr. Harper was in The News office last October while on his way to California and at that time his prediction that Hoover would not carry 12 states seemed a little radical, however, Hoover did not even do the political situation by the Massachusetts editor in October turned out to be very accurate.

After talking with hundreds of people in various walks of life, from Portland, Oregon, to Crowell, Mr. Harper stated that everywhere you find the greatest confidence in President Roosevelt, regardless of the people's politics. "I have been a Republican all of my life and voted the first time for a Republican for President in 1892, however, I am proud of the fact that forty years later I voted for the first time for a Democratic President. It is my firm belief that Roosevelt has done more for the country since March 4, than Hoover did in four years," the visiting editor said.

Mr. Harper predicts that business will be seventy per cent normal by the end of 1933 and that full recovery may be expected sometime in 1934. "These are not just my predictions, but the opinions of about nine out of every ten men that I have talked to in many states in the last few weeks," he stated.

CROWELL BEATS BIG SPRING AT STATE BASKETBALL MEET; LOSE SECOND GAME TO SAN ANTONIO

The most successful season in Crowell athletic history came to an end for the Crowell High School Wildcats at the State basketball meet at Austin last week. After defeating Big Spring 38 to 33 in the opening round, it remained for Thomas Jefferson High School of San Antonio to eliminate the Wildcats from the State race and to finally smash Crowell's undefeated record, which stood at thirty-three consecutive victories when the local quintet entered their final game with the Alamo City team, Crowell losing by the score of 46 to 28.

Athens High School succeeded Temple as State champions after defeating Thos. Jefferson in the semi-final and Jeff Davis of Houston in the final game.

Results in the State tournament, which was held on Friday and Saturday, follow:

- First-Round Games
Athens 62, El Paso 29.
Thomas Jefferson (San Antonio) 27, Zavalla 23.
Crowell 38, Big Spring 33.
Jefferson Davis (Houston) 48, Gilmer 36.
Dallas Tech 35, Beeville 21.
Lamesa 40, Temple 28.
- Second-Round Games
Athens 50, Bryan 19.
Thos. Jefferson 46, Crowell 28.
Jeff Davis 28, Dallas Tech 24.
Lamesa 38, Brownwood 21.
- Semi-final games
Athens 40, Thos. Jefferson 34.
Jeff Davis 35, Lamesa 31.
- Third-Place Game
Lamesa 33, Thos. Jefferson 32.
- Championship Game
Athens 36, Jefferson Davis 20.

Crowell fans and players can take pride in the fact that the Wildcats beat a team this season that had beaten Athens. During the Christmas holidays, the Big Spring Steers defeated the Hornets during Athens' road-trip in West Texas.

In the third game of the tournament at 11 o'clock Friday morning Crowell met Big Spring and won 38 to 33. Crowell held the lead throughout most of this closely fought game. The Steers started a rally in the third quarter to tie the score at 16 and 16, field goals by Jack Russell and William Wisdom soon gave Crowell a lead that the opponents could not overcome. Crowell led 15 to 12 at the half. Jack Russell with 21 points, was the scoring sensation of this game. Only one player scored more points than this in one game of the tourney. Cobb of Athens scored 22 points against El Paso.

At 7 o'clock Friday night the Wildcats met Thomas Jefferson High of San Antonio, the team which had previously defeated Zavalla. The first quarter was evenly fought and Crowell held the lead a good part of the time, however, after the opening period the San Antonions started a scoring spree that could not be stopped and won the game 46 to 28.

The guarding of Todd and Allee was the feature of this game. Time after time they broke up the well-timed plays of their opponents and did much to hold the score below 50 points. The Alamo City boys were "on" in this game and played better than at any other time during the tournament.

Basketball Squad Honored Wednesday at Rotary Luncheon; Todd Elected Captain For 1934; Live Wildcat Is Given To Team

Coach Grady Graves and nine members of the Crowell High School basketball team were guests at the luncheon of the Rotary Club Wednesday. W. F. Kirkpatrick was in charge of the program which was featured by an address by Rev. O. Savage, a brief talk by Coach Graves, the election of Dick Todd as the 1934 captain, the presentation of a George Self of a four-month old bobcat, a member of the wildcat family nevertheless, and its acceptance by Capt. Loraine Carter.

Following a brief expression of appreciation for the luncheon by Coach Graves, the principal address of the program was given by Rev. Savage, pastor of the Crowell Baptist Church and former athletic coach at Cleburne. The message proved to be one of the most interesting and inspiring ever heard at the local club.

"What now?" Rev. Savage asked of the boys in opening his address. Just remember you can't win tomorrow's game on yesterday's success," he said. The speaker stated without in life a person could play the games of "success" or "failure." The game of failure was mentioned as the one having the easiest goal to reach and members of one's team in his game consisted of idleness, selfishness, greed, hate, lust, conceit and their like.

"In the game of success, you are he referee," Rev. Savage stated. In giving the members of the team to play this game, the speaker used a basketball team as an example. "Interest" and "Initiative" were named as forwards; "Courage" as the center, and "Work" and "Will-power" as the guards.

Several qualities that each "Success" player should have were mentioned. "By taking plenty of interest and using proper initiative, you will score many points," he said. In regard to "courage" Rev. Savage explained that many had the wrong conception of that quality. "It is not cowardice and not courage that causes persons to stage hold-ups, kidnappings, etc., he said. "Stand up for your ideals and never yield to cowardice. Be courageous in all things," the speaker added.

Following this address, George Self gave a very clever discussion on the "Wildcat" and his success when pitted against Eagles, Cubs, Lions, Coyotes, Tigers, Bulldogs and other names that go with the athletic teams of this section.

to the visiting squad and was accepted by Capt. Loraine Carter, who expressed appreciation on behalf of the team for the gift and for the luncheon.

The Crowell mascot was secured by Mr. Self and Amos Lilly from Rouse Scott, who captured the cat on his farm in the Good Creek community several weeks ago. F. W. Mabe donated material and work in preparing its harness. Mr. Lilly was present at the luncheon and volunteered to assist in caring for the mascot.

The final event on the program came when ballots were passed among the nine players, Capt. Carter, Bill Dunagan, Jack Russell, Bill Dunn, Fred Spears, Dick Todd, William Wisdom, Dick Todd and Mitchell Allee, with the result that Todd was elected captain for next year's team.

BACK TO THE FARM

We have heard a great deal of talk about the "back to the farm" movement and we have been somewhat skeptical about a good deal of it.

Investigators report that the farm population of the United States is today, as great as it ever was. It had reached its peak in 1910 and then began to decline, but has been increasing steadily in the past three years.

Naturally, most of the families who leave the cities for the farm are those who were brought up in the country. City folks without any rural background are likely to have a pretty hard time of it making a living at farming.

We have always believed that the only stability for the average citizen is in having his own land under his feet, that the only people who are reasonably sure of a living, regardless of general economic conditions, are those who get their own living from the soil.

One thing newsmen like about the Roosevelt cabinet is that they have short names which fit nicely into the headlines.

Jig-saw puzzles are furnished jail inmates at Herkimer, N. Y. Which may cause some transfers to the lunatic asylum.

Anyway, the bank holidays didn't make much difference to those of us who are accustomed to doing without money.

"Sweet are the uses of adversity," perhaps, but one easily gets fed up on this particular brand of sweetness.

The President says folks must quit speculating with other people's money—and it looks as if they have.

STREET CARS AND MEN

Surely no one will consider us lacking in reverence if we say that every one of the "principles of modern salesmanship" on which business men so much pride themselves, are brilliantly exemplified in Jesus' talk and work.

Bruce Barton

"The minds of busy men are in motion," he would continue. "They are engaged with something very different from the thought you have to present. You can't jump directly at them and expect to make an effective landing."

"Thus, gradually, your two minds reach a point where they can join without conflict. You encourage him to say 'yes' and 'yes' and 'that's right' and 'I've noticed that myself,' until he says the final 'yes' which is your favorable decision."

Jesus taught all this without ever teaching it. Every one of his conversations, every contact between his mind and others, is worthy of the attentive study of any sales manager. Passing along the shores of a lake one day, he saw two of the men whom he wanted as disciples.

"Come with me," he said, "and I will make you fishers of men." Fishers . . . that was a word they could understand . . . fishers of men . . . it sounded interesting . . . well, what is it, anyway? They listened. They were convinced. They said yes—and they went with Him.

Washington, D. C. (Autocaster) March 15.—One of the oldest bits of political humor is to predict that four months after a given President take office all the banks in the United States will be closed. The catch in that joke is of course, that four months from March 4th is the 4th of July.

JOE GISH! SOME PEOPLE ARE AS HELPLESS IN HARD TIMES AS A ROBOT WITHOUT A WALL PLUG...

both unpopular and out of date in Washington now. President Roosevelt's inauguration was the last one to be held on the fourth of March; his successor will take office on Jan. 20, 1937. And, moreover, it didn't take four months or even four days after his inauguration for all the banks in the country to be closed. In fact, in practically every state the banks had been closed by proclamations of the Governors on the day that Mr. Roosevelt took office.

The promptness with which the new President took action as a result of the banking crisis has furnished at least one answer to the questions which everyone in Washington has been asking as to what sort of a President Mr. Roosevelt would be. His inaugural address promised speedy action, and he followed up the promise by issuing a proclamation on Sunday, the day after his inauguration, closing every bank in the United States for 4 days, while at the same time he summoned the new Congress together in extraordinary session to meet, March 9th.

There seems to be general approval of President Roosevelt's point of view, that the present economic situation is comparable to war and requires emergency measures as drastic as those used in war time. Indeed, it was a war time statute, the Trading with the Enemy Act, that the President found his authority to forbid the removal of gold, silver, or currency from the United States or from any bank, without specific authority from the Secretary of the Treasury.

The new President's intimation that unless the new Congress prove able to move swiftly he would ask for as broad authority as has ever been delegated to a President even in war time, did not surprise those who know his determination to use every possible means to start the wheels of business again.

The Seventy-third Congress, which is now in session, is more completely under the control of the President than any Congress has been for many years. Mr. Roosevelt will not have to ask twice for anything that he wants. He already has greater powers in some respects than his predecessor had. In the very last week of the old Congress a bill was passed authorizing the President to do what Mr. Hoover had asked authority to do, that is to consolidate numerous bureaus and government activities in the interest of economy. Congress refused to let Mr. Hoover do this, but gave full authority to his successor—and Mr. Hoover signed the bill.

Other Pressing Problems One of the first things that the new Congress will have to tackle, as soon as the pressing banking and financial legislation is out of the way, is the appropriation for veteran relief. The bill providing almost a thousand million dollars was passed on the last day of the session of the old Congress, and was vetoed by Mr.

Hoover a few minutes before he retired from the Presidency. There will be no funds of any kind available for veterans' relief, etc., after July 1st, until the Congress makes a new appropriation for that purpose. This puts the economy in this item of governmental expenditure squarely on the new Administration. Anyone who has studied the subject of practical agreement that more than four hundred million dollars can be saved by cutting off financial and hospital service for those whose disabilities are not traceable to their war service, by affecting other economies in administration of these funds.

It is reported that President Roosevelt has a plan to bring the Government's health and social services under one head, now have the U. S. Public Health Service, the Veterans' Administration, the Government hospitals, the insane, and various other government activities relating to health and medical care, besides the Army and Navy medical corps.

One piece of new legislation appears to be quite probable, an amendment to the Volstead Act increasing the allowable percentage of alcohol in beverages. In other words, the proposal to permit the resumption of the manufacture of containing somewhat more than 3 percent of alcohol is slated for passage by the new Congress.

"Madame Secretary" Social Washington, as distinguished from official Washington, is beginning to adjust itself to change in the Administration. An important question has been how the question of how the new Secretary of Labor should be addressed. "Miss Perkins" or as "Mrs. Perkins" or as "Mrs. Perkins" would like to be addressed as "Madame Secretary."

Parishioners of the old St. John's Church, which is diagonally across Lafayette Square from the White House, are reported to be somewhat chagrined at the fact that President Roosevelt, although a member of the Protestant Episcopal Church, is not going to attend this church.

"Church of the Presidents" St. John's Church went to St. John's Church, where they were to attend when he was Secretary of the Navy. It was natural, since Mr. Roosevelt, eight years was a member of Thomas's Parish, and a vestry member for considerable part of that time.

St. John's Church was built to provide for the occupants of the White House. President Madison was the first President to practice attending services at St. John's regularly, and seven presidents since Madison had been communicants there.

MAGAZINE RACK PLACED AT LOCAL POSTOFFICE

As a result of action by the Columbian Club a magazine rack will be put into operation at the Crowell postoffice. Due to general conditions many people have been deprived of the opportunity to read newspapers and magazines and it is for this reason that the co-operation of the public is asked in placing any magazines or newspapers on this rack that they have no further use for so that they may be secured by those who would otherwise be deprived of securing such reading matter. This plan was in operation at the postoffice for a number of years but has not been used for some time.

Thalia overcame the lead and was ahead 17 to 16 at the half and 23 to 22 at the end of the third quarter. The riding of Roy Barry of Byers, former Crowell resident, provided the highlight of this game. He accounted for four of his team's five goals. Horace Robbins was Wichita Falls' outstanding player. Barry and Robbins carry two-goal handicaps.

The FACT FINDER

Origin of Panic

Although the word, "panic," is applied to a period of severe financial distress, it originated on the battlefield of Marathon. It will be remembered in that famed encounter, that a mere handful of Greeks put a vast multitude of Persians to flight, and the honor of the victory was all given to the God, Pan who smote the Persians with sudden and unaccountable fright. They lost all sense or reason and this condition of affairs took its name from the god who was supposed to have caused it.

Christian Science Churches
"Matter" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, March 19.

The Golden Text is from Isaiah 26: "O Lord our God, other lords beside thee have had dominion over us; but by thee only will we make mention of thy name."

Included with other passages to be read from the Bible will be the following from Psalms 112: "Praise ye the Lord. Blessed is the man that feareth the Lord, that delighteth greatly in his commandments. . . . Wealth and riches shall be in his house; and his righteousness endureth for ever. . . . He shall not be afraid of evil tidings; his heart is fixed, trusting in the Lord."

The Lesson-Sermon will also include citations from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy; among these will be the following: (p. 265): "Man understands spiritual existence in proportion as his treasures of Truth and Love are enlarged. Mortals must gravitate Godward, their affections and aims grow spiritual—they must near the broader interpretations of being, and gain some proper sense of the infinite,—in order that sin and mortality may be put off."

"This scientific sense of being, forsaking matter for Spirit, by no means suggests man's absorption into Deity and the loss of his identity, but confers upon man enlarged individuality, a wider sphere of thought and action, a more expansive love, a higher and more permanent peace."

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

by Charles E. Dunn

The Effects of Alcoholic Drinks.
Lesson for March 19th. Proverbs 23:29-32.

Golden Text: Proverbs 23:32

The book of Proverbs is a most admirable treasury of the popular wisdom of Israel. One would have to search long to find a better guide-book for the pilgrimage of life. The twenty-third chapter from which the lesson is taken, contains the most complete and lively picture of drunkenness in the Old Testament. We can see the carouser lingering long, with bleary eyes, over the bottle. And we are warned that if we follow his path, our vision and speech shall become queer, our nerves insensible to tempest or pain, and we shall long for an awakening from our drunken slumbers to return to Bacchanalian revels.

So much energy has been exhausted in the heated discussion concerning prohibition that the detrimental effects of alcohol upon character have been almost forgotten. In many circles the use of hard liquor is considered an indispensable adjunct to hospitality. The harmful are ignored.

It is true that everyone admits the evil of drinking to excess. Moderate drinking, however, is usually looked upon as harmless. Now that the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment seems certain, it is to be expected that European custom of imbibing wine and beer of relatively low alcoholic content will come to be generally considered a normal social habit. It remains to be seen to what extent the American people will exercise due self-control.

But even if moderate drinking becomes the rule, rather than the exception, it does not follow that we are safe. For life has become highly mechanical and complex. Jesus and His disciples doubtless drank wine. But there was no machinery of consequence in their day, no railroad, no automobile, no aeroplane. Life has speeded up enormously with the result that a slight error in judgment, of no moment in the days of old, may now easily result in a fatal accident. It is undeniable that one drink of alcoholic liquor is sufficient to make an automobile driver a possible murderer.

Sobriety, then, is today essential.

Tips on Taxes

LEGISLATIVE NEWS SERVICE OF THE TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION, AUSTIN

AUSTIN—There is a very noticeable lessening of talk about the need for new taxes in order to balance the State budget within the last few days. Economy moves gained correspondingly in momentum, following the declaration of a bank holiday. This is true, although it was apparent that perhaps a majority of the legislators were sincerely endeavoring to redeem the pledge to reduce the cost of State government 25 per cent.

Chances of a sales tax are generally regarded as having disappeared. There is less talk of an income tax. Automobile license fees are almost certain to be reduced. The Senate is yet to act on a bill adopted by the House providing for a third lower license fees on automobiles and light trucks. The House has voted to reduce the State poll tax to the constitutional minimum of $1. A Senate bill is pending to fix the limit of the State ad valorem tax to 57 cents for this year.

Another new measure made its appearance in a bill which would levy a tax of 2 cents per 1,000 cubic feet of natural gas. An exemption clause relieving the first 150 million feet for each produced for each three months, it is claimed, will have the practical effect of relieving Texas consumers of any additional tax burden. The previous purpose of the bill is to realize revenue from gas exported to northern and eastern states.

Natural gas at present pays a gross production tax of 2 cents. The proposed bill would heavily increase this tax on exported gas. Backers of the bill claim $1 per cent of gas marketed from the Panhandle goes to the North and East. They also claim that the proposed 2-cent tax would yield, based on 1932 consumption, more than $1,700,000 annually, compared with about $120,000 paid in gross receipts last year.

State budget of less than $30,000,000, as compared with an eight-year average of $45,000,000 and last year's figure of $42,000,000 is in prospect, if reduction recommended by the House appropriations committee is finally approved. Judiciary, eleemosynary and departmental appropriations have been finished in committee. College heads have been instructed to bring in recommendations for 35 per cent reductions in their budgets. Educational appropriations are incomplete.

Efforts to abolish eight State colleges are apparently defeated. The Senate killed a bill to that effect.

Institutions scheduled to close bill were teachers colleges at ton, San Marcus, Alpine, and ogdoches, John Tarleton at ville, junior A. & M. at C. A. I at Kingsville and Mine at El Paso.

There were 10,443 beneficiaries of Confederate pensions on rolls. Although there has been 243 deaths among pensioners 1924, the number has dropped from 12,897 to the figure for

AWAKENED WOMAN

by ELINORE BARRY

First Installment

Even before she opened her eyes, Joyce was aware of being in a strange place. For a moment, however, she was still too drowsy to make an effort to move. A dull ache throbbed in her head. Her whole body felt heavy, weighed down by an insistent lassitude.

Then other sensations asserted themselves. Her fingers, moving languidly, sent her drowsy brain the message of some sort of cool silken material under their sensitive tips.

She kept her eyes shut while she tried to think things out. She remembered perfectly now. . . . She was in a taxi going to the Hotel Blackstone in Chicago. It was sleeting, and in the traffic another machine skidded suddenly and crashed into them.

And then they had brought her— where?

It didn't smell in the least like a hospital. And the bed was softer than any cot she had ever felt.

Suddenly she was afraid to open her eyes. Completely awake now, she lay tingling with curiosity, filled at the same time with a foreboding of some strange, frightening revelation to come.

Where could she be?

At last she could stand the uncertainty no longer. Without moving she opened her eyes and stared straight ahead of her. Her first look showed a cluster of large oranges hanging like golden balls in the sunshine against a background of clouds and blue sky.

Orange! She had never seen oranges actually growing. Still without moving she rolled her eyes from one side to the other. They traveled to the bed to her hands, lying inert in the satin cover. Suddenly she became aware of three separate facets starting in their significance that they set her heart to pumping and analyzed her muscles.

She could never tell which shock was the first to register; the circle of tiny diamonds on the third finger of her left hand; the rumpled condition of the other side of the bed; or the cheerful masculine whistle coming from somewhere in the house one behind her!

A hot wave flooded her face and she moved. She rolled her eyes from one side to the other. They traveled to the bed to her hands, lying inert in the satin cover. Suddenly she became aware of three separate facets starting in their significance that they set her heart to pumping and analyzed her muscles.

"Oh, I'm . . . I'm all right," she stammered hardly above a whisper. A look of relief came into the face above her. "Whew, but you gave me a scare. Frills," he exclaimed. "Sure you're all right? Doc's coming over today to take another look at you. Better stay in bed and get a rest. If you're really all right, I've got to dash to the city to get my train for Chicago. But I won't go if you're not. You don't seem just right."

"Oh, no, really, I'm alright," she said hastily. "I just have a headache. It'll be all right."

"You're sure? . . . Good! . . . Well, good-bye, honey. Take care of yourself. You can always reach me at the Blackstone, you know. I'll expect to hear from you."

He leaned over, took her face between his large firm hands and kissed her. After he had kissed her twice, while Joyce tried furiously to recall the blush she felt burning her face, he added, hesitatingly, "Look here, Frills, I wish you'd . . . go a little easy while I'm away, will you. I'll be worried about you all the time partly open door at the right giving a glimpse into a closet full of clothes. . . . at the left a wide-open door into a spacious white tiled bathroom.

Suddenly, as she stood motionless on the threshold, feeling like an intruder entering some one else's bedroom, she caught sight of a girl with short wavy hair, clad in a delectable mauve pajama suit. With a gasp of surprise she realized it was her own image reflected in one of the two full length mirrors which flanked the dressing table."

Well! . . . She moved hastily up close to the mirror and examined herself with interest. Fascinated, she examined her face more closely and smiled suddenly with pleased surprise at the image in the glass. "You look really a whole lot . . . prettier than you ever did in Philadelphia, I must admit! The bathroom was another exciting discovery. It was a large, spare room, elaborately tiled, with magnificently modern fittings and fixtures. Joyce gasped with pleasure as she looked.

Through the big open window at if I think you're . . . pulling any more reckless stunts, you know. And—"

"Oh, no, don't worry about me!" interrupted Joyce, wishing he would stop kissing her and go away, "I won't do a thing, I . . . I know I'm going to feel like being very quiet for . . . for awhile."

This sort of answer was evidently unexpected, Joyce decided, when she saw the surprise in his face mingled with relief. In speaking before, his voice had revealed a note of apprehension, as if he were afraid of the way his words would be received. "What sort of a disposition can I have had?" she wondered.

"Well, good-bye, honey," he said once more, and kissing her again, he stood up. "I've got to hop off. I'll wire today from somewhere along the line."

Joyce lay and listened to his steps receding inside the house. Then she drew a long breath and sat up suddenly. "So that's my . . . my husband. He has a very nice voice, and I don't feel exactly afraid of him. I think he's got a kind, pleasant look on his face. . . ."

Her thoughts were in confusion. What did it mean?

Gradually her sense of dizzy panic gave way to puzzled curiosity. Lying there in the sweet scented sunshine her mind grew clearer and she tried to fathom the situation unemotionally. But it was no use; the pieces didn't fit; she had nothing to go on. . . .

Swinging her feet over the side of the bed, she found a pair of high-heeled satin bedroom slippers which she put on, an then stood up and stretched cautiously. She felt somewhat stiff and lame, especially all down the side, shoulder, elbow and knee.

"Ouch! That must be the side I fell on. To think that I always wanted to learn to ride horseback and now I've done it and had a bad fall besides—and I don't know a thing about it!"

She went over to the big window of the sleeping porch and stood for a few moments in the warm sunshine, gazing out eagerly. Beneath her lay a terraced garden, full of a blaze of flowers. A high hedge surrounded the garden, down one side of which grew a row of slender Italian cypresses, stiff and dark and theatrical looking. Beyond the hedge stretched a huge orchard of fruit trees. Joyce stared down at it in amazement. She had never seen such an enormous orchard in her life. The rows of white blossomed trees seemed to run out for miles and miles over a flat valley, like a drift of snow across a huge plain. Along the farther horizon undulated a line of strange, puckery, treeless hills against the sky. As her glance followed them to the right, she saw that beyond the low hills rose high mountains.

She turned reluctantly away from the view of the sunny garden and the open country, and entered the house. She found a large bedroom with flowered cretonne curtains and cushions . . . ivory-tinted wicker furniture . . . a little pile of silk underclothes at the foot of the big smooth bed . . . luxurious dressing table with a low seat in front of it . . . a the left, the sun was streaming in, bringing with it that indescribably sweet odor which had greeted Joyce on her waking. Part of it must come from those acres of trees in bloom beyond the garden, part of it from the waxen blossoms of the orange tree.

In spite of the mystery, in spite of the complication she was about to meet, it was impossible, after a two-year-long diet of Mrs. Lowrie's boarding-house, for Joyce not to feel a thrill of pleasure at finding herself in these lovely surroundings. With a little hop of sheer excitement she crossed the big bathroom and pushed open another door which she noticed stood just slightly ajar.

"Oh, His . . . his dressing room. I suppose," she muttered, hesitating on the threshold. She entered shyly, crossed to the dresser, and took from it a large photograph in a heavy silver frame. Her own face smiled out at her.

It was her own; but Joyce felt, nevertheless, that she must be looking at her double. "Of course, it's retouched a lot, and the shorn hair and the pearls and the evening gown make a difference, but I . . . don't know . . . there's something so assured and sophisticated and daring about it that it doesn't look like me, not like Joyce Ashton . . ."

PRECAUTIONS NEEDED

In winter weather I see many people, old and young, making hurried little trips without sufficient protection against cold. A housewife will drop her kitchen things, and rush down to the bakery for something needed for dinner; she hasn't time to put on a wrap—and, it's only a short space—three blocks. So she whizzes out bareheaded and with short sleeves out for warm housewears. She may have been perspiring just the least bit—but that's nothing; she has done the same thing a thousand times.

But—she encounters a keen north-east wind—just a little damp as she turns the corner coming back; it produces a shiver up and down the spine. She hurries in with her purchase—does not perspire any more that day. The deed has been done.

At bedtime she notices a slight sore throat with a tickling short, dry cough. Unless she sets in to work to break it up, she may have it hang on for a week! All because of that hasty trip to the bakery, without proper protection.

This letter is to tell you some little things worth while. You must throw on a wrap when going out into sharp cold, no matter how short the trip contemplated. This applies to men as well as to women or children. Keep the surface of the body warm—that's the law of safety.

I know we used to "tear around" with impunity, but we can't do it now. We have hotter houses and thinner clothing than we once provided. We are not pioneer settlers any more, and hardened to the climate. Careful attention to the simple advice here may prevent a serious illness: I hope so.

POISON in Your bowels!

Poisons absorbed into the system from souring waste in the bowels, cause that dull, headachy, sluggish, bilious condition; coat the tongue; foul the breath; sap energy, strength and nerve-force. A little of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will clear up trouble like that, gently, harmlessly, in a hurry. The difference it will make in your feelings over night will prove its merit to you.

Dr. Caldwell studied constipation for over forty-seven years. This long experience enabled him to make his prescription just what men, women, old people and children need to make their bowels help themselves. Its natural, mild, thorough action and its pleasant taste commend it to everyone. That's why "Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin," as it is called, is the most popular laxative drugstore sell.
