New administration is studying city operations

The Post city council, with a new mayor and three new council members, met for the third time in as many days last night (Wednesday) to start off a program of familiarizing the new members with the phases of city operations.

Mayor Giles C. McCrary told the council Wednesday that since the city manager, Warren is retiring, it is important that the new council members familiarize themselves with city operations before making any decisions such as employing a new city manager or taking up any other important matters. Also facing the council is the task of employing a city attorney and corporation court judge, following the resignation of Carleton P. Webb as city attorney and Percy E. Printz as city judge.

Following Monday night's regular council meeting, at which the newly-elected mayor and two of the newly-elected councilmen—Lester Nichols and Mike Mitchell—were sworn in, the council held special meetings Tuesday afternoon and Wednesday night to hear the city manager continue his nine-

We think everybody is pleased and impressed with the way Mayor Giles McCrary and the new city councilmen are digging in with long hours of study of the city's operations before decision-making begins. The council met last night or Tuesday afternoon studying the city budget, and were back at their study and discussion last night. It looks like status must be another qualification to become a councilman these days.

Garza Countians are reminded they have an important special election coming up Saturday, April 19, when voters will go to the polls to decide whether or not to change a Garza County Hospital district to operate Garza Memorial Hospital. Scout troop needs new home here

Post Rotarians have begun a search for a suitable meeting place for Boy Scout Troop 319 — some of the boys can call their home — after a talk at the Tuesday luncheon by Silas Short, chairman of the troop committee.

Short said the "roof has collapsed" on the two former railroad warehouses the troop has used for years for the last 20 or more years. He said a lot of youngsters are interested in Scouting but are discouraged because of lack of a suitable meeting place.

Police break up gang fight here

Police Sgt. Ois G. Shepherd Jr. and Patrolman Max Chaffin took five youths into custody after breaking up a gang fight on North Street late Saturday night. Three of the youths were taken to Slaton, but the fourth, who suffered knife wounds and was knocked unconscious, was removed for medical attention.

Bombing stop hurt, Post soldier says

Specialist Four Gene Nowell, home on furlough after a year in Vietnam, said he expected to be shot at the day he landed over there, but that it was six months before his outfit went into action. After those first six months, however, Nowell saw lots of action. He came out of it with two Purple Hearts and two medals for valor.

The injuries that earned him the Purple Hearts put him in the hospital for 28 days. He was wounded by a Viet Cong - tossed grenade, and later suffered a hernia while carrying a wounded buddy to safety.

Wind of change blows strongly in elections

A spring wind of change blew strongly through the voting precincts here Saturday as seven new members were elected to the seven available positions on the Post City Council and Post Independent School District trustees—including a new mayor, and the first woman ever elected to the school board.

Giles C. McCrary, local rancher and independent oil operator whose father, I. N. McCrary served as mayor of Fort Worth from 1939 through 1949, piled up a 370 - 211 margin in defeating incumbent John N. Hopkins to win the mayorship.

Mrs. Donald (Billie) Windham easily outdistanced two male opponents in winning her Place 3 race for a seat on the school district trustees and thus became the first woman ever elected to the board here according to Supt. Bill Shiver's school records.

Housebreakers are nabbed in the act

Mr. and Mrs. Will Parker captured two of three Snyder juveniles last Friday night after the trio broke into the home of Parker's father, Hardy Parker, at 305 South Ave. H.

The third juvenile escaped after pulling a knife on Parker, but was taken into custody by Snyder officers Wednesday morning. All three boys have been turned over to Snyder juvenile officers.

Shiver worked out the detailed tornado alert plan after attending a Disaster Preparedness Conference in Lubbock March 25 called by the Disaster Relief Division of the Texas Department of Public Safety.

None of the three incumbent city councilmen sought re-election so it was an open field.

In the city race, the top three election candidates sought numerous voters are elected to two-year terms. In the school district bered places on the board of trustees for three year terms, except for the place 3 race won by Mrs. Windham which was for the remaining one year of a term opened by resignations.

Regional historians are to meet here Tuesday

Museums, archaeology and tourism are topics that will highlight the regional meeting of County Historical Survey Committees being held Tuesday, April 15, at the C. W. Post Boy Scout Camp here with the Garza County Historical Survey Committee as host.

Invitations to attend the regional meeting have been extended to county chairmen of 23 counties, according to Mrs. A. C. Surman, chairman of the Garza County Historical Survey Committee. Additionally, other interested individuals are invited to sit in on the meeting.

Jaycee workshop set for Sunday

Approximately 200 Jaycees are expected here Sunday, April 13, for a bi-area workshop for Areas I and II, State Director Joe Bailey of Post said today.

The workshop will begin at 2 p. m. in the primary school auditorium. Those here for the event will include Bob Buck, president of the Texas Jaycees; Queen Stapleton and Ronnie Wright, Area I vice presidents; Steve Stevens, Area II vice president; Bill Hart, chairman of the state Jaycees' Future Directions program; and E. M. Lawrence, an Area IV vice president and a candidate for state Jaycee president.

the only incumbent on the ballot who had served for about a year by appointment at the place 3 position, for the place 6 position, 273-168 in the closest race.

Bob Macy, local rancher, defeated Mrs. Mollie Kolb, the second woman candidate, 370 to 258 for the place 7 position.

Voters turned thumbs down by nearly a 2 to 1 margin on the proposition to issue $8,000 in time warrants for the construction of a Program participants will include State Archaeologist Curtis Tunnel, who will discuss the significance of archaeology in a well-balanced historical preservation program.

A member of the Travel Development Section of the Texas Highway Department will discuss the various services that department has available for Chambers of Commerce and other tourist - oriented groups. Also, a newly - prepared slide program that highlights attractions on the nearby Texas Travel Trail will be presented.

Museum Development and Operation is the topic of TSHSC staffer, Miss Diana C. Files. Miss Files fills the newly - created position of museum consultant for the survey committee.

Other members of the TSHSC staff will discuss pending legislation affecting historical preservation.

Bailey said one of the main topics to be discussed at the workshop is the proposal to reduce the number of state Jaycee areas from seven to four.

Worked out for maximum protection

Post schools have 'tornado plan'

The Post Schools have a detailed "tornado plan" worked out to give students and teachers maximum protection should a storm emergency arise here, Supt. Bill Shiver announced today.

Every professional member of the school staff has an assignment.

Shiver said parents may pick up their children at any time, if they so desire, provided they come to the main front entrance of the school building only. No parents will be permitted inside the buildings during a tornado alert.

The first aid station will have a person on duty to communicate with parents regarding the whereabouts of their children under such emergency conditions, Shiver said.

Shiver worked out the detailed tornado alert plan after attending a Disaster Preparedness Conference in Lubbock March 25 called by the Disaster Relief Division of the Texas Department of Public Safety.

At that meeting, the department of public safety requested all area schools to work out a detailed tornado emergency plan under the slogan: "Be prepared rather than sorry."

THE AFTER-GLOW OF EASTER

By Charles Peters

We have experienced "Easter '69". Probably there was a little extra excitement around your church last Sunday. The Theme: A Resurrection which occurred nearly 2000 years ago! It isn't difficult to accept the Resurrection of Jesus Christ as a historical event. It's documented very well and verified by irrefutable sources.

"Lo, I am with you always, even to the end of the age." Matt. 28:20

But after the messages are delivered, the prayers expressed, and the songs are sung what remains to support our lives every day until "Easter '70"?

SECOND: He wills to be present in a special way where there is a fellowship of obedient and seeking followers.

"For where two or three have gathered together in My name, there I am in their midst." Matt. 18:20

There are at least three truths which make the Easter Story contemporary for everyone. They reveal the availability of the Resurrected Christ to all.

THIRD: His presence depends upon our desire for Him to attend our affair and our willingness to seek His counsel.

"But they constrained him, saying, 'Abide with us', . . . and he went to tarry with them." Luke 24:29

FIRST: He has continued to be with His people in a new dimension—not bound by physical limitations—accessible to everyone at the same time and any place.

Get the message: Easter is today . . . tomorrow . . . every day!!!!
Eact Lord's Day is Easter time . . . if you desire it to be!!!!

OUR READERS

WRITES ON CLEAN-UP
Dear Helen:
Still enjoy reading the "Post" paper very much. Especially enjoyed reading your column about the dog being on Patty's roof. We enjoyed living across the street from them. Always something exciting going on in that wonderful family.
Wish you lots of luck in your clean up. One of my tenants here is from Smithville, Tex. Her father is mayor. It is one of the cleanest towns I have ever seen. I asked her how they keep it so clean. They had an all-out clean up and made some new laws. If owners didn't cut lots, clean up around homes, take old cars away and tear down old structures or fix them up, the city did it and the owners were made to pay for it. They were fined and still are if things aren't kept clean. The mayor got a lot of bad criticism but now they all like him cause their town gets so much comment from tourists for being so clean.
Lexa is moving back to Texas from Massachusetts. He has accepted a position on the Facilities Planning Staff of the University of Texas. He goes to work June 1. Will live in Austin, of course. Besides the campus the staff is responsible for the Arlington and El Paso campuses as well as the Medical and Ocean research schools.
He is on a week's vacation right now in Jamaica, Puerto Rico.
When you are in Houston, please call us cause we would love to see you.

These men know cotton...

...and they know what Paymaster's Certified Lint Block Program means to all High Plains Cotton Growers.

Dr. L. L. Ray
Associate Professor, Texas A & M University South Plains Research and Extension Center, Lubbock
"The Texas High Plains has made tremendous progress in upgrading the quality of cotton fiber. This was accomplished by planting better varieties, using better quality seed and marketing through lint blocks or similar programs. The image of this area is greatly improved and it has meant millions of dollars to growers. I am concerned that we do not lose ground. We must (1) plant varieties that will produce fiber the mills want and can use; (2) plant the best quality seed; (3) do a good marketing job."

Harry E. Arthur
Assistant Director, Textile Research Center, Texas Technological College, Lubbock
"A planting program wherein Certified seed is used is certainly a great step toward production of a more uniform fiber. A Certified lint program would help to assure the mills of a reliable supply of quality cotton from which they could choose to produce a given fabric."

Bonard Stice
Johnson Gin, Brownfield
"Growers who continue in Paymaster's Certified Lint Block Program this year are going to be glad they did," says Bonard Stice. "Paymaster Certified 111 is one of the best, and growers in our area get $10 to $18 more profit with it than any other variety... even in 1968. Mills are getting more and more selective. Paymaster 111 is what they're looking for because of its good, uniform qualities."

Burke Slaughter
Grower, Wellman
Burke Slaughter has been in the Paymaster Certified Lint Block Program for the past three years... will stay with it this year. "It makes me money," he says, "and that's what I'm after. I get about $10 to $15 a bale more by being in the Certified Lint Block Program. Even with last year's depressed prices, I had better quality and got a higher price, so I feel I came out ahead. The market's for quality... and Paymaster Certified lint is what it takes to satisfy the demands of the mills."

PAY BILLS To Enjoy Continued CREDIT

The credit bureau's message to the consumer is simple. Pay promptly. Spelling it out clearly—never let an account go past due without payment or immediate contact with the creditor.

Never allow an account to become an item charged off to profit and loss. This means that the merchant has given up hopes of collecting and has changed your account from an asset to an expense item. The item is automatically recorded in the files of the credit bureau. There it cannot be changed or altered unless subsequent dealings with the same firm results in a better record.

Never allow an account to be listed in the collection department of the credit bureau. Payment in full will result in better credit reports, but the item must remain on file for many years to come—perhaps for the rest of your life.

Your credit record is a picture of your character and has been found to be an extremely accurate guide to your future actions, particularly pertaining to whether you will pay future contracts and debts.

Keep your picture bright and shining and enjoy all the conveniences of the machine age. You can cut off the advantages of credit buying by disregarding or ignoring warnings of your merchant friends.

STUDY SHOWS VALUE OF MESQUITE CONTROL
A seven-year study by the Agricultural Experiment Station has demonstrated that mesquite pastures will stay in better shape and heavier calves when pastured with mesquite-controlled ranges. Researchers were E. D. Robison, Marion and B. T. Cross of Texas A&M University Agricultural Research Station at Spur. Project was conducted from 1963 on eight 20-acre pastures in the Texas Mesquite Belt. Mesquite on four pastures was controlled periodically with mechanical and chemical treatments, while the other pastures were untreated. Groups of five 3-year-old steers selected to graze the pastures under each treatment at monthly intervals. Cattle remained in their respective areas at all times except 60-75-day breeding season.

Animals on both areas performed satisfactorily during the study. But cows grazing pastures lost less weight in winter and gained more in summer than those on mesquite.

Calves produced on the cleared pastures averaged heavier at birth than those on the brushy pastures. The biggest difference of 74 pounds occurred in 1967 and the difference of 6 pounds in high rainfall year.

For the seven-year period, weaning weights averaged 599 pounds with the cleared pastures and 473 pounds for those on mesquite pastures. Better production on the improved pastures has been worth an additional 78 cents per acre per year.

Forage production also increased on the cleared pastures, the researchers noted. Major improvement was found in plant composition and forage quality on the mesquite-controlled areas.

YIELDS AND USE MAJOR FACTORS IN FEED GRAIN PICTURE

Two major economic trends have largely dominated the feed grain situation in the United States during the past 20 years, reports a Texas A&M University Extension economist.

John G. McHaney lists the trends as the 6 per cent annual average increase in per acre yield of feed grains since 1954 and the 3.5 per cent increase in the annual rate of their use.

During the period from 1949-1953, domestic use and exports of feed grains were virtually in balance with production. But, he adds, production and use, since, have not stayed in balance and in some years large carryovers resulted. The yield of feed grains in the nation is now about double that for the 1949-53 period but total use, including exports, has increased by only about 50 per cent.

The disparity between yield and total utilization has made necessary the diversion of considerable acreage from feed grains to soil-conserving uses. The current feed grain program has as its objective the diversion of 37 million acres. The sale of feed grains in Texas, mostly grain sorghum, annually accounts for approximately 12 per cent of cash farm receipts, says McHaney. Its production in both Texas and the nation is big business and means much to the economy.

The abundant supply of feed grain in Texas along with an efficient range cattle industry, feeder calves, have been major factors in the rapid expansion of the cattle feeding and meat processing industries in the state, he notes.

A SPLINT FOR COMPLICATED FRACTURES

A new plastic composition for holding in place the broken teeth and bones of war wounds was described recently to the American Chemical Society.

A dough-like mixture of plastic and chalk, the composition can be used as a temporary "splint" material to severe fractures until they mend, according to Dr. G. M. Brauer, research chemist at the National Bureau of Standards, who presented the report. Coauthor was Dr. E. F. Hugert of the U. S. Army Dental Corps, Walter Reed Army Medical Center. It is hoped that the new method will be adaptable to use in the field by an army medical corpsman, Dr. Brauer said. At present, fractured jawbones and other facial injuries are splinted by an "arch bar" technique that is time consuming, damaging to tissues, and requires specialized laboratory facilities and highly trained personnel.

The new composition is easy to manipulate into any desired shape. It hardens in seven minutes to make a tough, rigid splint. Unlike other materials that have been tried for this purpose, it does not give off excessive heat during hardening, and does not damage tissue or cause discomfort to the patient. It can be applied directly to mucous membranes, the chemist reported.

"A large percentage of all injuries incurred in combat are manifested as damage to facial structures," Dr. Brauer said. "Among these, fractures of the jawbone commonly occur."

The material consists of a powder containing 50 per cent methyl methacrylate plastic and 50 per cent calcium carbonate (chalk), with a hardening agent called N,N-dimethyl-p-toluidine. The hardened product shows enough strength, rigidity, and dimensional stability to function as a splint.

The product has been further evaluated by Col. S. Civjan of the U. S. Army Institute of Dental Research, where it has been applied successfully to human fractures of the jaw and mouth, including spearated teeth, he reported.

"The characteristics and properties of the plastic suggest its usefulness in non-dental as well as dental procedures," Dr. Brauer pointed out. "Non-dental applications may possibly include the fabrication of orthopedic appliances, the stabilization of surgical implants, and the replacement of portions of the calvarium (skull) following craniotomy (surgical) procedures."

VISIT MOTHER IN HOSPITAL

Vietnam View

as reported by Marine Corps Combat Correspondents and edited by
GySgt. Bob Montgomery

When people come across the word Marine, the first thing that comes to their mind is a rugged, rifle-bearing, stubbled-bearded, fighting man.

For one Marine officer and six enlisted men of the Civil Affairs section, Force Logistic Support Group Alpha at Phu Bai, just the opposite is true. They still maintain that Marine ruggedness — but instead of carrying a rifle, they carry clothes, food and building tools of peace.

The present section, headed by 1st Lt. George O. Rohlfen, R. I., Fairbault, Minn., and S-Sgt. Henry V. Goodno, 34 Winter St., Waterville, Me., has a total of 74 men — the accumulated civil affairs experience.

These Marines have the distinction, although to them a sad one, of being the last group of Leathernecks to serve in this capacity at Phu Bai. In a few weeks civil affairs of the Hue - Phu Bai area will be taken over by a U. S. Army team. In the meantime, the Marines are being feted and feasted by the Vietnamese who they have helped over the past two and one-half years.

GOING OVER past records, Goodno proudly related the work that has been accomplished by his predecessors and his present crew.

"We support four hamlets, an orphanage, a 13 - room combined grade school and high school, plus a large Chieu Pho (open-arms) center," Goodno said. "In addition, our medical team treated nearly 40,000 patients in 1968."

Goodno pointed out that the Chieu Hoi program is the most satisfying job they have worked on.

This program is a government effort offering rewards to local Viet Cong if they come over to the side of the South Vietnamese government.

So successful has this program been in the central I Corps area that last August the Chieu Hoi village at Hue had 700 occupants, commonly referred to as Hoi Chanh, or returnees.

"THE RETURNEES," Goodno said, "have three choices upon completion of a two - month rehabilitation course. They can enlist in the South Vietnamese Army, join the 'Kit Carson' program (become scouts for allied forces) or enter into civilian life in a village of their choice. If they choose the latter," he continued, "the government will support them for six months, which is considered ample time to establish themselves."

Sgt. Goodno, on his second tour of duty in Vietnam, gave an account of how he felt. "I came here in 1966 as an infantryman I felt differently about the people. This tour I have worked in civil affairs for a full year. I have gotten to know these people, how they live and what their customs and feelings are."

"Once you get to know them," he continued, "you find they are very sincere and become lasting friends once they understand you. Truthfully, I have to leave."

Getting hit in the eye by a flying 40mm high explosive projectile is enough to ruin a Marine's day. It happened to Pfc Lenny L. Kleist and it knocked him end-over-end nine times, but all-in-all, it was still a lucky day for him.

Kleist, 18, 4224 S. 18th St., Omaha, Neb., has an injured eye but things could have been much worse — the round could have exploded on contact.

Kleist's unit in the Fifth Marine Regiment, 1st Marine Division, was conducting a sweep during Operation Taylor Common when they made brief contact with the enemy.

The small band of Viet Cong quickly high-tailed it from the area when the action began, but during that time a deadly 40mm projectile was fired toward Kleist. Kleist was approximately 25 yards away from where the round was fired, but it hit him at a 45-degree angle. Due to the angle, he was knocked off his feet and the round glanced off his head without exploding. Ordinarily a round explodes on the slightest contact once it has traveled 15 yards after being fired. Luckily for Kleist, this just wasn't an ordinary round.

"My eye is still sore, but I won't lose my vision in it and I'm lucky to be alive," Kleist said while recalling his close encounter with death.

Kleist is scheduled for an operation to repair some shattered nerves around his eye and then he will return to the United States.
