Saturday's vote to end hot political campaigns

County's ballot has five races

One of Texas' most interesting Democratic runoff campaigns in years will come to a sudden halt Saturday when voters go to the polls to nominate a U. S. senator, a governor, a lieutenant governor and a comptroller of public accounts. Voters in Garza County and three other counties of the 106th Judicial District also will nominate a candidate for district attorney.

With the big "reform" issue having just about been taken care of in the first primary election, new issues have developed between the state candidates in the runoff campaign, with the fight waxing hottest between Bill Hobby and Wayne W. Connally for lieutenant governor.

Voters have had plenty of opportunity to keep themselves informed on the issues through the news media during the last few weeks, and will have their say at the polls Saturday.

Predictions are that the vote in Saturday's election will be lighter than it was in the first primary a month ago, but the way "steam" has been building up the last week or two in the four statewide races, there is a chance of a slightly heavier vote being recorded Saturday than there was May 6.

Something that could help increase the number of voters in this area over the first primary is the fact that both gubernatorial candidates, Dolph Briscoe and M. S. Frances "Sissy" Farenthold, made visits to Lubbock and other West Texas places this week.

In the first primary election, 1,462 of Garza County's 2,445 registered voters cast ballots — about 60 per cent. The 2,445 figure for the number of registered voters in the first primary has been increased some by registrations which came too late for a vote May 6, but in time for a vote on June 3. Ten absentee votes were cast here for the runoff primary, with one mail ballot still out.

The Democratic ballot for Garza County voters in Saturday's election will be as follows:

For U. S. Senator: Ralph W. Yarborough and Barefoot Sanders.

For Governor: Mrs. Frances Farenthold and Dolph Briscoe.

For Lieutenant Governor: Bill Hobby and Wayne W. Connally.

For Comptroller of Public Accounts: Robert S. Calvert and James (Jim) Wilson.

For District Attorney: Joe Smith and Vernon D. Adcock.

AFTERNOONS OF JUNE 7&8

Job applications to be taken for foundry

Job applications will be taken in the afternoons of June 7 and 8, Wednesday and Thursday, for the first 25 employees to be hired by George Carter for Post's new foundry, The Little Foundry.

Carter told The Dispatch yesterday that applicants should report to the foundry between the hours of 1 and 5 p.m. on either of the two days.

"We are an equal opportunity employer," Carter said with a grin, "which means that women as well as men will be considered for the foundry work if they wish to apply."

Carter told The Dispatch that he hopes to employ the first 25 new workers next week and put on an additional 25 in another two weeks after that.

"It looks like we'll be operating two 10-hour shifts a day when we get rolling," Carter said.

Carter said job applicants should come to the former metal grain warehouse he is purchasing from Mike Mitchell in which to open his foundry and industrial design operation here.

Carter said the pouring of a concrete floor in the warehouse is scheduled to begin today and that he hopes to begin his operations here by June 15.

"We are already about 751 tons of casting behind schedule," Carter said.

He plans to be in Chicago Monday to purchase additional equipment and will start moving his foundry equipment from Lorenzo to Post next week.

He expects to bring eight employees to Post from Lorenzo with him when he opens operations here. "I've already told them to start looking for their own housing here," he said.

Granberry, a recent Texas Tech grad, plans to move here from Lubbock as soon as he can find housing for his family. He and his wife have one child.

Dillard funeral held Saturday

Funeral services for Herman R. Dillard, 54, who died about 4:30 p.m. last Thursday at his home at 706 West 14th St., were held at 3 p.m. Saturday at the First Baptist Church, of which he was a member.

Dillard, who had lived in Post since 1955, formerly operated a laundry and was also a former employee of the Texas Highway Department. He was born in Floydada on June 8, 1917.

Survivors include his wife, Ruby; two daughters, Mrs. Gayle Anthony and Mrs. Jo Beth Wartes, both of Albuquerque; a brother, Delbert Dillard of Midwest City, Okla., and three grandchildren.

The Rev. Robert Griffin, pastor of the First Baptist Church, officiated at the funeral services. Burial was in Terrace Cemetery under the direction of Hudson Memorial Home.

Pallbearers were Harry Reeves, David Midkiff, C. H. Hartel, Chester Keeton, Clarence Gunn and Jerry Hays.

'Calamity Corner' stop sign hit in short turn

The stop signs at the newly-laid median at "Calamity Corner" (Avenue F and U. S. Hwy. 380) hadn't much more than been put up until one of them was banged into.

The stop sign at the intersection was hit by a local motorist about 5:30 p.m. Sunday as he made a turn off the avenue onto the highway. He was given a ticket by city police for "improper turn."

The damaged sign has been replaced by the highway department.

Clovis woman is county's fourth traffic fatality

A 56-year-old Clovis nurse aide, Mrs. June Laveta Tyler, became Garza County's fourth traffic fatality of 1972 when she died at 11:05 a.m. last Friday in a Lubbock hospital about an hour after being injured in a broadside crash 14 miles northwest of Post on U. S. Hwy. 84.

Three others, including a companion of Mrs. Tyler's, Mrs. Neva Anna Henley, also of Clovis, were hurt. She was still in Lubbock Methodist Hospital Wednesday. Her condition was described as "fair."

Occupants of the other vehicle, John Paul Nelson, 69, of Snyder, and his wife, Eva, were treated at Mercy Hospital in Slaton and released.

Highway Patrolman Ken Gilbreath said the crash occurred as Mrs. Henley's auto was crossing U. S. Hwy. 84 at its intersection traveling northwest on the highway at the time, the patrolman reported.

Funeral services for Mrs. Tyler, who had been a nurse aide at Clovis Memorial Hospital for about 10 years, were held in Clovis at 2 p.m. Monday.

Man, wife hurt in auto crash

A McAllen couple, Bill F. Harper, 78, and his wife, Vera, 73, remained in "serious" condition in a Lubbock hospital Wednesday from injuries received in a one-car accident last Friday afternoon 22 miles southeast of Post on U. S. Hwy. 84.

Highway Patrolman Ken Gilbreath said the accident occurred when Harper's auto ran off the highway into the median and struck a culvert.

The couple underwent emergency treatment at Garza Memorial Hospital before being transferred to Lubbock Methodist Hospital.

GETS TOP BAND AWARD

Willima Jenice Bullard, a member of this year's high school graduating class, was awarded the Post band's John Philip Sousa award at a recent concert. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. (Corky) Bullard, she was a drum major and played the French horn in the Post Antelope band.

COMMUNITY CENTER

New voting place for the 'big' box

Garza County's biggest voting box, Post No. 1, will be moved from Teen Town to the Community Center, between the bank and post office, for Saturday's Democratic runoff election, according to Charles Didway, Precinct 1 Democratic chairman.

The Teen Town building, at the corner of Avenue M and 10th St., has been used as the Voting Precinct 1 polling place for the last several years, except for one year when a general election was held at the First Presbyterian Church instead of the youth building.

The Teen Town building has fallen into a "sad state of affairs" through non-use the last several months, and the City of Post, which has charge of the Community Center, granted the county Democratic organization permission to use the center for Saturday's voting.

... Leave of Absence

Postex contract to Hudson & Sparks

Hudson and Sparks, dirt contractors, have been awarded the contract to build three lagoons for the new waste treatment facility of Postex Plant, Vic Slater, plant manager, announced this week.

The contract price was not announced.

Work is expected to be completed by Aug. 31, Slater said.

He commented that the largest of the three lakes or lagoons will cover 18 acres.

"It's so big I bet the wind will blow waves across it," Slater commented.

The waste treatment facility, which also will be made available to the City of Post, is expected to cost $100,000 according to the April announcement of the project here by Charles F. Myers, Jr., chief executive officer of Burlington Industries.

SUMMER READING CLUB

Grade schoolers are reminded to enroll in the Post Public Library's Children's Summer Reading Club. Youngsters may enroll in the club at any hour the library is open.

Brockman gets leave of absence from Wacker's

John Brockman has been given a "leave of absence" with full pay and allowances by Wacker's because of his long illness and Keith Atkins has been transferred in from Paris, Tex., to succeed Brockman as manager of the new Wacker's store here.

Brockman, who has been too ill to visit the store but occasionally since February, unlocked the front doors of the new Wacker store last Thursday morning to let in the horde of shoppers and start Wacker's Grand Opening.

"We wanted John to be manager when the new store opened," Homer Gough of Altus, Okla., district supervisor, told The Dispatch.

Brockman told The Dispatch he was very appreciative of the leave of absence with full pay offered him because "I simply don't have the strength yet to do much although I'm feeling a little better."

He expressed his thanks to Wacker's officials and to his many local friends and customers for all considerations shown him during his long illness.

Atkins, manager of Wacker's store at Paris for the last seven years, is originally from Hobbs, N. M., and has been working for the Wacker store chain since he went to work in Wacker's Lovington store in 1957.

He and his wife, Sandra, have one daughter, Phyllis, 12. They are members of the Church of Christ.

Atkins told The Dispatch he hopes to move his family here from Paris "in a week or so."

Truck driver hurt in US-84 crash

Wayne Woodward, 25, of Snyder was "shook up" and bruised when the Halliburton truck and trailer he was driving overturned in the median on US-84, 21 miles southeast of Post at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday.

The highway patrol who investigated said Woodward was in a convoy of three Halliburton trucks returning to Scurry County from an oil field job when Woodward swerved his truck into the median while passing another truck and finally overturned, doing considerable damage to the vehicles.

Woodward was taken by Snyder ambulance to a Snyder hospital.

Rural phone service improved; rates up

With General Telephone Company having virtually completed its upgrading of rural telephone service in the Post area, the rate increase voted the company by the Post city council several months ago is reflected in the current month's billings.

The council voted to grant the rate increase in order for the telephone company to help offset the more than $90,000 the project cost. G. T. Hamilton of Brownfield, division manager, told The Dispatch yesterday that the upgrading has been completed except for the taking down of a few of the old overhead lines. The new lines in the rural areas covered by the project are underground.

Hamilton said the rural improvements include going from eight-party to four-party lines and also installing one-party lines for rural customers wanting them.

In town, the rate increases amount to 30 cents a month for residential phones and 90 cents a month for business phones. The increase to rural customers is from $5.10 to $6.50 a month for residential phones and from $5 to $12 a month for business phones, of which there are only three or four in the rural areas, Hamilton said.

Well, this is the first Dispatch 20-pager in many and many a moon — and all due entirely to "that woman", Sissy Farenthold, who is seeking to wrest the Democratic gubernatorial nomination away from Dolph Briscoe in the runoff primary Saturday.

Sissy's political advisers called from Austin Tuesday afternoon to inquire about the price of an eight-page advertising tabloid supplement and had 2,000 copies "all about Sissy" in to us by bus yesterday afternoon, plus the check for payment.

Which should enthrall all of Sissy's willing workers around town of whom she seems to have dozens.

The only issue we've seen Sissy "bomb out" on during the campaign is the West Texas water issue. She wants to throw out the Texas Water Plan as unworkable and "start over" working for water for West Texas only, she explained in an interview in Lubbock Monday.

That brought instant dismay to West Texas water leaders who well know this West Texas area already doesn't have "enough votes" to sling any appreciable political weight around in Austin by itself.

They see years of work for naught if the water plan is discarded.

What it boils down to is that Sissy is trying to take a positive stance on West Texas water because she needs the votes although she is completely opposed to the Texas Water Plan. She has nothing to offer but a "West Texas priority."

You know, some farmers are talking about buying water from the new Post Lake for irrigation purposes.

And somebody quite knowledgeable here on water commented on our question as to if it might be feasible to pump water "up the cap" from the new lake by saying, "Unless something happens they won't even have drinking water up there in another 10 years."

Well, it will all come out Saturday, one way or the other, and The (See Postings, page 8)

Calf roping school to begin Monday

Something new in "summer rodeo" breakouts will open a "classroom hour" of 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. Monday on the O. S. Ranch, east of Post — a rodeo calf roping school.

Prather, ranch operator of O. S., who has organized the school with Toots Mansfield of Big Bend, former seven-time world champion calf roping in the 1940s and 1950s, has a full class of 24 ropers.

They will pour into Post over the coming weekend from Alabama, Texas and points in between. "Students" will bring their horses along for the two weeks instruction. Prather told The Dispatch he will provide "only the instruction, and a place to sleep."

Each student pays $350 tuition for course. The young ropers will be in Post motels or wherever they please between the long daily roping sessions. No meals go with the instruction "out at the ranch," so they also should bring local restaurant's some added business.

Prather said Mansfield and Olin Young of Peralto, N.M., will be the roping instructors for the class. Young has been one of the nation's top calf ropers for the last 15 years.

Students will get 8 to 10 hours of roping instruction daily. The school will end Saturday, June 17.

The calf roping school really is nothing new, according to Prather, although this is the first one for him and the first to be held in this area.

Mansfield is the originator of such rodeo training schools and has conducted many of them. Other rodeo schools are held in bull dogging, bronc riding, bull riding and team roping, Prather said.

A most unusual political campaign

One of the choicest "games people play" is called politics and come the Democratic runoff primary Saturday we are going to see how a very unusual one comes out—Texas style.

The opponents are Dolph Briscoe, the Uvalde rancher, and Frances (Sissy) Farenthold, one of the liberal leaders of the Texas Legislature who is styled as "that woman."

There are a lot of considerations to give the pater of campaign words, and these two candidates obviously have given their methods a lot of thought.

Sissy has removed her liberal tag, as best she can via hand over shoulder, and calls herself the "people's candidate." Since she can only win with conservative votes, this is obviously a good play.

Briscoe's position is a bit awkward. Certainly, he cannot take the usual political swats at Sissy as he proceeds down the campaign trail. In doing so, he would lose more votes than he could possibly hope to gain, because after all Sissy is a woman. Sissy would be the first to cry "foul" if presented this argument, but it is psychologically true, and Dolph, Sissy and everybody else knows it.

Briscoe also is a hard candidate to criticize. He simply hasn't been involved in that "mess in Austin." To try to blend him in with that background is difficult to accomplish to any thinking voter.

Briscoe in the entire campaign hasn't been too critical of anybody. He knew that in the runoff, he would need the votes of those who stumbled at the May ballot box. Sissy has been firing from the hip in all directions now for well over 100 days. She had to make an impression.

Now it is a whole new ball game. There's just the two of them. One is an articulate, lawyer-trained woman. The other is a quiet sort of guy who has made a success of everything he has undertaken so far. He isn't much of a speech maker really, so he knows better than to tangle with Sissy in a word bout. That would be pitting her strength against his weakness.

For those who complain that Briscoe has said little—literally nothing, really—about "issues" in his campaign, they are right.

Briscoe knows very well what the people want this year. They want a real change in Austin leadership and some sort of a guarantee that the "rascals are all turned out."

The decision this time isn't going to be made on who comes up with the most unique tax idea on how to extract another $265 million—and probably much more—from the pockets of Texans next year, which actually is the No. 1 "bread and butter issue" in Austin for 1973, 1974, 1975, and ad infinitum, to borrow an old Roman phrase.

Come to think of it, Sissy hasn't said much about that either except that it must be done.

Neither candidate has said much about the "issue" long forgotten which is closest to our editorial heart—how to tear down some of the mushrooming state bureaucracy in Austin and actually cut the cost of Texas governmental operations. After all, the voting bloc of Texas employs as a whole is one of the biggest prizes for any political campaigner.

Come Saturday, it will be up to the voting folks to decide who they want, a liberal crusader or a quiet conservative in the governor's mansion, which Sissy has labeled "the people's house."

Don't get us wrong. We think Sissy is "really something." We think all the efforts around town made in her behalf is the first political awakening in Post in many a year. She is a very articulate woman loaded with political ideas.

But that doesn't change our premise that Dolph Briscoe is a quiet, successful guy who can "cool it" in Austin. After the "mess" there we are not quite ready for a political slugging match between the liberals and conservatives in Austin for the next two years, which would be what would happen if Sissy moved into "the people's house."—JC

Runoff election important to all

If you've been keeping tab on what's been going on lately, you'll know that Saturday's runoff election is mighty important to the candidates who were fortunate enough to make it. It should be no less important to the voters.

The candidates for U. S. Senator, Governor, Lieutenant-Governor and a number of other offices to be decided Saturday, at least as far as the Democratic nomination is concerned, have been "going after" votes just as if they believed every eligible voter will go to the polls and "x" his or her choice. That, we are sorry to say, isn't going to be the case.

Thousands of voters in Texas who are registered to vote will pass up Saturday's runoff election just as if no election were being held. That has always been the case and, no doubt, will continue to be. All anyone who beats the drum to get out the vote can hope for is to get as many of the eligible voters as possible to the polls.

Only about 60 per cent of Garza County's registered voters cast votes in the first primary. That is by no means a good record, but it could be even worse in Saturday's second runoff primary. Let's try to see that it isn't. How the races to be decided Saturday come out are as important to us as they are to the candidates—believe it or not.—CD

What our contemporaries are saying

Drivers are safer when the road is dry—but the roads are safer when the driver is dry.—Soybrook, Ill., Gazette.

If the government wants a practical, useful plan to eliminate unemployment, how about building a freeway to the poorhouse?—Jonesville, Mich., Independent.

One of the weaknesses of a democracy is that it makes no organized effort to train its leaders—they are usually selected because of personal popularity. We train truck-drivers, lawyers, teachers and engineers, but not the people who direct spending of 80 billions of our dough each year.—Pocomoke City, Md., Worcester Democrat.

While government is designed to serve the people, it cannot be expected to support all of them.—Whittier, Calif., Review.

Another explanation of the modern child's manners is that too many woodsheds have been converted into garages.—The Florence (Ala.) Herald.

TEXANS HAVE an opportunity to vote for a real "winner" by casting their votes for Mrs. Frances "Sissy" Farenthold when they go to the polls Saturday. We hope enough of them "x" Sissy's name to put her in the governor's office and give that office back to the people, where it belongs.

Mrs. Farenthold finished far behind the front-running Dolph Briscoe in the first primary, but I feel she is going to be out in front after the votes are counted Saturday night. More and more voters have learned in the last 30 days that Dolph Briscoe has nothing much to say for Texas, and I have my doubts that his actions would speak any louder than his words if he were elected governor. We've had that kind before, haven't we?

THE SURPRISE showing Sissy Farenthold made in the first primary hasn't brought any new charges against her by her political opponents, but it has brought louder shouting on some of the old charges leveled at her. Water, for instance. Just because Mrs. Farenthold thinks the Texas Water Plan impractical in its present form, her opponents allege that she would go so far as to leave West Texas "high and dry" as far as water is concerned.

It is inconceivable that a sensible woman who aspires to be governor would want to deny any section of her state all the water it needs for survival. Mrs. Farenthold believes that a more practical and less expensive plan can be worked out to bring water to West Texas, and her belief is shared by thousands of West Texans.

WHAT TEXAS needs in the governor's chair is someone who can take charge and restore order in Austin. We don't need the same people in high office, dueling for public attention with flaxen words while quietly working on schemes that benefit only a few. We need a governor who also has a keen sense of compassion for the little guy—the common, everyday, hard-working, tax-paying Texan. Too long has the Texas Capitol been known as a haven for high-powered pressure and special interest groups.

The trouble with Dolph Briscoe's campaign is that it has everything but a candidate. So, let's keep the "People's Uprising" going... Let's nominate "That Woman" as governor.

AND LET'S, by all means, vote — one way or another.

A couple of my readers have helped me over blank spots in this week's column. One of them gave me this:

REMEMBER ME? I'm the fellow who goes into a restaurant, sits down and patiently waits while the waitresses do everything but take my order.

I'm the fellow who goes into a department store and stands quietly while the sales clerk finishes his little chit-chat.

I'm the man who drives in to a gasoline service station and never blows his horn, but waits patiently while the attendant finishes reading his comic book.

Yes, you might say I'm a good guy. But do you know who else I am? I'm the fellow who never comes back, and it amuses me to see you spending thousands of dollars every year to get me back into your store, when I was there in the first place, and all you had to do to keep me was to give me a little service and show me a little courtesy.

AND HERE IS the other reader's contribution:

ARE YOU WILLING To close your book of complaints and to open the book of praise?

To believe other men are as sincere as you and to treat them with respect?

To ignore what life owes you and think about what you owe life?

To stop looking for friendship and to start being friendly?

To be content with such things as you have and to stop whining for the things you do not have?

To enjoy the simplest things of life and cease striving for the artificial pleasure of the day?

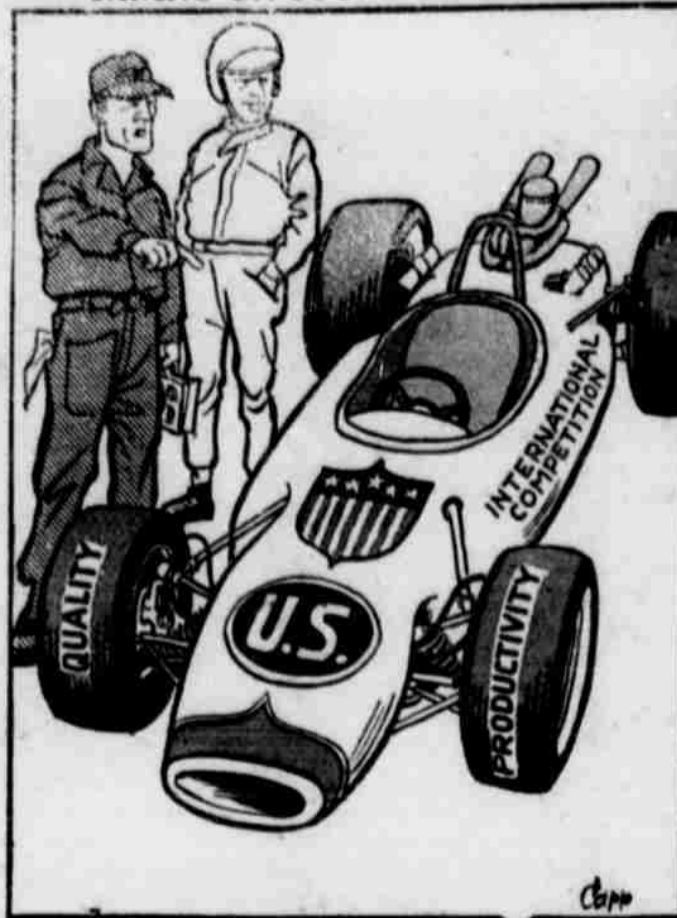

To forget what you have accomplished and meditate on what others have done for you?

To cease looking for someone to help you and to devote yourself to helping others?

Massive attack against venereal disease begins

Austin—The State of Texas has begun a massive attack against venereal disease. Dr. James Health, announced today that the Health Department has launched a gonorrhea and syphilis program aimed at halting the ever-increasing incidence of Texas. VD is said to be of epidemic proportions throughout the state.

The State Health Department has received an initial grant of $1.17 million in federal money to be used to bolster the VD control effort and to aid local communities in carrying out their own VD control programs. The money will become available in July.

"Texas has made great gains in VD control by significantly increasing the incidence of infectious syphilis," said Dr. Health. "but lack of funds prevented the launching of an effective attack against gonorrhea. Texas is only one of many states receiving Federal funds for a massive, nationwide VD effort, aimed heavily at the gonorrhea under control."

A man is never a failure until he has failed in naming men their mark after sixty.

LEARN THE HARD WAY
This time of the year many school seniors are considering colleges and the part that education may play in their future. Many, of course, will elect to go to a college or university. But many will attend a vocational or trade school.

There are excellent choices provided for the students who carefully select the school which they plan to attend. These seniors deciding to continue their education in a trade or vocational school, and those persons deciding to go back to school, my Consumer Protection Division offers these words of advice:

Vocational and trade schools offered in Texas are reputable establishments. While this has been true for some time, an act known as the Proprietary School Act passed by the Texas Legislature at its last session and amended by the Texas Education Agency has greatly improved the situation. This act provides for licensing, bonding and regulation of trade schools, but prospective students should not rely solely on the regulation of such institutions. They should make a thorough investigation before they decide to attend a school.

There are reports where some of these schools have closed their doors after receiving tuition payments from prospective students, and have either gone broke or moved from the state and there is no way the student can recover the money.

We have received complaints of substandard instruction offered by some schools.

One of the prime rules for interested persons to follow when thinking of enrolling in a school is to avoid high pressure tactics requiring immediate enrollment. Some salesmen will state that failure to enroll immediately will result in the inability of the prospective students ever to enter their school.

Remember — legitimate schools always allow sufficient time for a salesman to make a complete investigation of their facilities, the quality of their instruction, and training programs.

Prospective students should carefully check the terms of the enrollment contract prior to signing. These terms should be thoroughly understood. What provisions are made for cancellation by the student? Is he able to receive his tuition back and if so, what amount and under what conditions?

You should remember that the written provisions of the contract control over the oral representations made by the salesman. If there is ambiguity in the contract or doubt on the part of the student as to the meaning of the language of the contract, this should be resolved in writing prior to signing the contract.

In some instances we have found that unscrupulous salesmen make exaggerated promises concerning

Camping season opens Sunday at Camp Post

Sunday, June 2, will find nearly 200 Boy Scouts and leaders heading for Camp Post, just southwest of town, and the first of 8 weeks of outdoor skills, fun, aquatics, and living.

Bob Hurst, South Plains Council

camping coordinator, said today that many new features will highlight this season's camping schedule at Camp Post, where F.A. "Chief" Runkles is camp ranger.

Featuring aquatics and a rifle range, as well as standard Scouting skills, Camp Post will brighten the camper's week with the inauguration of the Rainbow skill trail on Friday. This trail is for Scouts who are First Class candidates seeking the First Class award.

Each Friday noon will find all Scouts in camp doing campsite cooking, as all facilities are made ready for the 300 parents and visitors coming to view the traditional closing campfire. The Order of the Arrow Indian dancers will perform for the campfire audience.

CHURCH ANNIVERSARY

The White River Lake Church of Christ held its second anniversary services Sunday. The minister, Joseph Johnston, delivered the sermon at the morning worship and Syd B. Wyatt, minister of the Post Church of Christ, at the evening service.

job opportunities either while attending school or after graduation. Prospective students should be aware of the fact that a placement service does not guarantee them a job.

Finally, the trade schools general reputation is of utmost importance. If there is a Better Business Bureau in the town in which the school is located, you should check with them prior to signing any contract. If there is no such bureau, ask for the names of several former students. You should then contact these people and get their opinion of the school.

While this takes extra time, the caution is well worth the delay involved. If the school is legitimate it will be there tomorrow. If not, the time to find out is before turning over the tuition money.

JOE SMITH

CANDIDATE FOR DISTRICT ATTORNEY
106th Judicial District

(Paid pol. ad by Joe Smith)

"But . . . I couldn't believe she could win the whole thing!"

Sure I knew Texas needed something better. But then, like so many, I only felt the choice was among the other three. After all, all the experts said she didn't have a chance. The polls said she couldn't possibly win. And none of the big shots voted for her. How was I to know?

Yeah, I voted in the first primary . . . voted, you might say, for a 'second choice'. I didn't know Texas could win the whole thing — real reform, honest officials and a government at last that just worked for us — the people.

So June 3 I'm voting again. And this time I'm voting for the whole thing —

Card of Thanks

The Close City community wishes to thank all who helped us win first place in District 2 of the Texas Community Improvement Contest. Without so much help, our success in winning first place would not have been possible.

For good friends we want to apologize for being so long in letting you know, but each of two hospital hitches ended and started so close together, time too short. Your prayers, phone calls and cards telling us how we were missed was enough. Also don't want to forget Dr. Wilson and his crew for the treatment while away. Walter and Covey Duckworth

The family of Estelle Williams would like to extend its most heartfelt gratitude to all of the people who did so much to help. All the food which was prepared, the flowers and cards that were sent, the members of the community who helped with the farming, and other acts of sympathy and understanding were deeply appreciated. We would also like to thank Drs. Harry and Charles Tubbs, the hospital staff, the nurses, and the Pink Ladies for all that they did for Estelle, but also for the consideration they had for the family.

I wish to express my sincere appreciation to all my relatives and friends for the flowers, cards, and visits during my illness. A. L. Norman

We wish to thank all of you for kindness, food and flowers. We so appreciate all the love that was shown us. The family of Herman Dillard

The Lord's Prayer—Revised

By George L. Miller

I read the other day that a new motion picture, "The Godfather" promises to soon become the biggest money-making film of all time. It's already grossed $50,000,000 and crowds still flock to the theatres where it is showing.

I wondered about this, and my wondering led me to some interesting thoughts. Does the success of this film, and the book before it, tell us something about our people and our times? Perhaps the image of a Godfather—strong, compassionate with his own, approachable and responsive to the needs of his friends, and best of all of the restrictions of society and outside the law—is the very image we would like our God to fill.

Perhaps we are praying to "Our Godfather," which art in heaven," our friend in a high place who sees how I have been wronged and will come to my aid.

Perhaps we are asking our Godfather in heaven to circumvent the laws of life, suspend the natural order of things, intervene and work miracles that we are unable to work on our own.

Perhaps we are asking him to solve the hard problems of life we are too weak or too unwise to solve ourselves.

Perhaps we turn to him for swift vengeance when we have been hurt by others, asking for divine wrath to descend upon the heads of our enemies.

Perhaps we ask that the laws be applied to others and not to us; that others observe law and order while we are free of the consequences of law and order; that we have the privileges of friends in high places with none of the responsibilities.

Perhaps we can understand a Godfather in Heaven better than a Heavenly Father, for the Godfather is so much smarter, so much quicker to act in his own interest and our behalf, is so much more approachable and understands and approves our wishes and desires so much better.

Yes, perhaps we want a Godfather in Heaven. We want to speak that kind of language better than the language of Christ who calls us to obedience and suffering and death on a cross.

But Godfathers finally die, don't they? Then who do you pray to?

 them. To the point of passion they like them. As a former honorary librarian, and within spitting distance of librarians all my life, I can assure you that librarians feel a certain something for books that is strange and wonderful to behold.
 Watch the librarian check a book out, watch the way her hands hold onto the volume just a fraction of a second longer than is absolutely necessary. It's the caress of a lov-

 is a leavetaking, a little goodbye.
 Will the two ever be reunited? That is the painful thought.

There have been times when I have looked you — the patron — in mind. Can I trust you with my dar-treat her, return her dogeared and las, some of my dears have come back with pages smeared with mud, crayon, ballpoint ink, one even was returned with a half-eaten sucker thrust between its pages like a bookmark. I grieved for two days over that indignity.

Yes, each time a book is checked out, the librarian utters a silent prayer that it will be well-treated and will find its way back home.
 This anxiety gets worse with the years. There are some books that I have wanted to hide from the public, lest they get lost. One I grieve over now I didn't hide, and it has gotten lost. It is irreplaceable, a book of children's stories so delightfully illustrated with color photographs on every page, that it was one of my children's very most favorite library books. It's gone now, no trace left behind.

 is as important as our library service. The world is well lost if the library but wins the game.

Ask the poor county commissioners and they will tell you, librarians (and library board trustees) are a persistent and nagging lot.
 Roads and bridges and sewer lines and all that sort of thing pale to insignificance when the librarian begins her campaign for support of her books. The truly happy librarian is the one who sees her library filled with books and people mutually enjoying one another.
 (Didn't you know a book needs loving, just like people?)

Yes, I've about decided I must write that book, if for no other reason, for the sake of our librarian in Post. Those who know her know she's tops, and we sure want to treat her right. So remember, she loves those books — don't mistreat them. When you check them out, treat them like children; be kind and return them to their home. We librarians worry about our chicks when they're missing from the nest.

And, just as important, drop in often. We mustn't let her feel neglected or act as if her children are unwanted. If you'll remember those two simple rules, your librarian will be so much happier and healthier. She should be good for years of active service!

Four voting boxes in special election

The county's 12 voting boxes have been consolidated into four — all in Post — for the special state senatorial district election June 6 to select a successor to David Ratliff, who has resigned following charges of nepotism.

Bill Tippen is the only announced candidate for the election.

Voters for boxes 1, 2, 5 and 7 in Precinct 1 will vote at Teeton with Faye Cockrell as judge, boxes 8 and 6 voters in Precinct 2 will vote in the high school library with Elizabeth Hart as judge, voters of boxes 3, 9 and 10 of Precinct 3 will vote in the Alexander Community Center with Billie Cross as judge, and voters of boxes 4, 11 and 12 in Precinct 4 will vote in city hall with Nell Warren as judge.

Garza County will remain in this senatorial district until next Jan. 1 and during the upcoming special legislative session to vote a new one-year budget for the state.

Methodist pastor reassigned here

The Rev. Robert D. (Bob) Ford was reappointed as pastor of the First United Methodist Church of Post when assignments were read at the Tuesday night session of the 63rd annual conference of the United Methodist Church being held in Lubbock.

The Rev. Mr. Ford has been reappointed to the Post church for his third year. He came here from Rotan, succeeding the Rev. O. Curtis Lee as pastor.

Other appointments of interest here are Joseph Yeats, Graham Chapel; C. R. Hastings, Southland; Charles Gates, Spur-Dickens, and Hugh B. Daniel, Tahoka-Grassland. Jack Lott is the local church's official delegate to the conference.

But don't call until 8 p.m. because there won't be much in before then, and remember when "the phone doesn't ring for five minutes" we'll lock up and go home. That probably will be about 9:30.

Our granddaughter, Andrea, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Koerselman of Houston, paid us a welcome Memorial Day weekend visit and for the first time since Christmas we took "two whole days away from the grind."

That included a visit to the city-county park Sunday afternoon to "feed the ducks" and "play on the swings". And we, of course, were amazed at the amount of playground equipment down there and how much use it is getting. The park looks simply great.

Tahoka woman gives Americanism address

Mrs. Jerry Brown of Tahoka talked about "the blessings of my country" before Post Rotarians at their weekly luncheon Tuesday in City Hall.

She pointed out that the very things listed in the Communist Manifesto are steadily chipping away at "the freedoms we have." Seeing what is happening in this country and then reading the manifesto "made me fearful," she said, "for this nation's future."

She emphasized that Americans must stand up for what they believe and not lose their precious freedoms.

NEW CHAIRS AS SCHOOL ENDS

Student council busy making improvements

Something new has been added at Post Junior High School through the efforts of past and present members of the Junior High Student Council.

Last Thursday, 350 colorful new stack chairs were placed in the school auditorium to replace chairs that had been in use here for 44 years.

The new chairs is only one of the projects completed this year. An eight-faucet water fountain has also been installed on the outside of the building.

The 1971-72 student council has also:

1. Purchased materials for a large storage cabinet and 12 book-cases for use in classrooms. These were built by Bud Davis' 7th and 8th grade shop classes.

2. Purchased playground sports equipment.

3. Gave $64 toward cost of the junior high yearbook publication.

4. Gave $25 to the Ella Mae Hudman Memorial Scholarship Fund.

5. Held a "hold-up" for the March of Dimes, raising $192 and giving $8 from their own funds to make an even $200 for the MOD.

Funds for these accomplishments were raised from concession stands at basketball and football games.

The 1971-72 student council was composed of Kim Mitchell, president; Mark Kirkpatrick, vice president; Ronda Criswell, secretary-treasurer; Johnnie McCowen, Patricia Bilberry, Jennifer Miller and Joni Hays, 8th grade representatives; Tracy McAllister, Vickie Gannon and Tiana Shiver, 7th grade representatives, and Nancy McCowen, Brad Davis, Cindy Kirkpatrick, Bobby Macy and Ronald Bratcher, 6th grade representatives.

Those elected to the 1972-73 student council are Dan Sawyers, president; Kelly Mitchell, vice president; Kathy Manuel, secretary-treasurer; Cheryl DeBord, Carolyn Cruse, Jimmy Dorland and Patricia Raymundo, 8th grade representatives; Kohen Josey, Debbie Wyatt and Cindy Kirkpatrick, 7th grade representatives. The 6th grade representatives will be elected in the fall.

MEMORIAL DAY SERVICE

'Renewal of patriotism needed,' speaker says

"Religious people must take the lead in reviving patriotism," Syd B. Wyatt, minister of the Post Church of Christ, told a large crowd Monday morning at the annual Memorial Day service conducted at Terrace Cemetery by Veterans of Foreign Wars Post No. 6797.

"Contrary to what many theologians say, there is nothing in the Bible that says we are not to be strong supporters of the government," the speaker said.

"Jesus said, 'Give unto Caesar what is Caesar's.' Peter admonished to 'honor the king,' and Paul warned us to be 'subject to the highest powers.' In the beginning of our nation it was the religious people who did the most to keep us free."

More than anything in the world, Wyatt told his listeners, America needs a revival of patriotism. "I am glad to see so many young people in the audience," he said.

Friday hailstorm ruins 600 acres of cotton

The first hail storm of the season to slash Garza's just-planted 1972 cotton crop struck with fury over almost three sections southeast of Graham Friday night.

An estimated 600 or more acres of cotton will have to be replanted.

There wasn't much moisture, just hail stones, one farmer reported. He said moisture measured a half inch or less.

Some sheds and barns in the Graham area were reported damaged or blown down in the strong winds which accompanied the hail. Northeast of Post, about the same time Friday night, a good thunderstorm dumped a two-inch rain on the Verbena area, washing the dirt over some tender cotton, some of which have to be replanted farmers in that area reported.

At David Tyler's place, a cotton trailer was blown over and another one torn up.

In between the hail and the hard shower, Post received only a lot of thunder, some lightning and .02 moisture. The town did receive .17 of an inch in a Thursday night shower.

County Agent Syd Conner estimates Garza's cotton crop is now 90 to 95 per cent planted.

Yankees win two to climb in Little League standings

The Little League Yankees have moved up into a second place tie with the Cardinals by outlasting the Red Sox, 18 to 13, Saturday night, after having nosed out the Cardinals, 3 to 2, Saturday night. Little League play was resumed Saturday after having been suspended seven days because of extension week at the schools, and continued uninterrupted from the end of the regular season on June 19.

The oddity of league play this year is that the Tigers have played five games as compared to the other teams' eight or nine. The Tigers' heavy interruptions cut heavily into the Tigers' season.

Each team came up with 14 hits in the Yankees' 18-13 win over the Cardinals Monday night. The Yankees had an 11-run first inning, which was six runs better than the Cardinals did in their half of the game. The Yanks tallied two more runs in the second to make it 13-6, but the Red Sox scored six in the bottom of the third to pull within two, 13-11. Two more Red Sox runs in the bottom of the fourth pulled the game at 13-13, but the Yankees pulled it out with one in the fifth and four in the sixth.

Barley was the winning pitcher and Gary Seals the loser. Compton and Barley each had three hits for the Yankees. Walker and Seals had three hits apiece for the Red Sox. Bill Bratcher's two hits for the Cardinals included a home run and a double.

The Wildcats, still looking for their first league win, lost to the Cardinals, 10 to 6, in Monday's second game. The losers' only two hits came from Billy Smith and Charley Hill were singles by Rod Neely and Timmie Greathouse. The winning pitcher was Smith, the starter.

Neely Odum went all the way on Monday for the losers, giving up eight hits, with Jackie Reiter getting two of them.

Neely pitched a one-hitter in the Yankees' 3-2 triumph over the Cardinals Saturday night, the Cards' only hit being a single by pitcher Brad Davis. The Yankees' five hits off Davis included a solo home run by catcher Randy Baker. Bud Jones got two of the winners' other four safeties.

Doug Hall pitched a one-hitter for the Dodgers against the Red Sox Saturday night, but lost, 4 to 2. The Sox scored two runs in the fourth on walks and errors, and two more in the fifth on Mark Williams' single, an outfield error and an infield out.

The losers got five hits off winning pitcher Larry Harper, but could come up with only two runs. Both came in the third inning on a walk to Jackie Reiter, a double by Tim Morris and an error at third base.

Indians go ahead of Braves in Babe Ruth

The Indians beat the Braves, 12 to 3, Saturday night to take over the lead in the Babe Ruth League, which is having an off-week this week because of end-of-school activities. Play will be resumed on Tuesday night, June 6.

Only the first of last Thursday and Saturday's games were played, rain knocking out the other two.

Randy Josey's five-hitter stopped the Braves in the Indians' 12-3 win Saturday night. Garland Dudley got two of the losers' five safeties, with Buddy Britton, Nathan King and Dan Sawyers getting one each.

The Indians, meanwhile, were combining three Brave pitchers for a total of 10 hits, with Josey getting three-for-five, and Grayling Johnson, Kyle Duren and Ricky Sanchez getting two hits each. Mark Terry was the starting and losing pitcher, with Bryan Davis and Charles Clanton coming on in relief.

In the night's second game, the White Sox were leading the Cubs back doubles by Garland Dudley and Mark Terry, but Tony Conner, who went the distance for the winners, pitched his way out of the jam to preserve the victory.

Besides the doubles by Dudley and Terry, Conner allowed only three hits, the other one — also a double — coming off the bat of third baseman Pete Moraes. Dudley, who also went the route, yielded only four hits to the winners, two of them by Conner and one each by Lee Saldivar and David McBride.

The Indians were blanking the White Sox, 9-0, through two innings when rain put a stop to Thursday's second game.

Two tied for top in Minor League

The Astros bombed the Harvesters, 17 to 5, Monday night as Minor League play was resumed after an 11-day shutdown because of school activities.

Going into this Friday night's games, the Blue Jays and the Colts are tied for the lead, each with two wins and no losses.

In Friday night's games, the Mets and Harvesters clash in the first contest, each team seeking its first win. In the second game, the Astros will get the opportunity of knocking the Colts from the ranks of the undefeated.

Swim pool here set for opening

The swimming pool in City County Park was scheduled to open for the summer at 1:30 pm Friday with Randy Hudman and Neff Walker again the operators.

The pool will be open six afternoons each week, from 1:30 to 5:30 p.m., being closed Mondays. It will also be open two nights each week to be announced.

Pool prices will remain the same as last year — 75 cents for adult single admissions and 50 cents for students, including college age. Pre-schoolers will be admitted for 25 cents.

Student season tickets also will be sold, 20 swims for $8.

Hudman, who has the job as place kicker on the University of Wyoming football team, came home with six footballs and other items to practice his place kicking when not busy with the pool.

He predicts a good 1972 season for the Wyoming Cowboys.

"We have our whole offensive line back, two starters out of the backfield, and most of the defense, with one tackle being named for Playboy's pre-season All-America," Hudman told The Dispatch.

Hudman got to play some at linebacker in the spring, but says he probably won't see any action at that defensive position when the fall schedule rolls around because the coaches won't want to risk an injury which will sideline him from kicking.

Neff Walker, who was injured in early fall practice in 1971 at Princeton University and underwent knee surgery during the Thanksgiving holidays, told The Dispatch he will wait and see "how the knee feels."

JOE TAYLOR SUPPORTS VERNON ADCOCK for District Attorney

As a former candidate in the race for District Attorney, I feel that I am in a very good position to judge the qualifications of the remaining candidates for that office.

The determining factor in my decision between the remaining candidates is the record that Mr. Adcock has established. I would strongly urge those 477 fine Garza County folks who voted for him in the first primary to return on June 3rd to do so again, and further, I would like to recommend to those 578 good local folks who cast their votes for me on May 6th to support and vote for Vernon Adcock on June 3rd.

'That Woman' for Governor

no is That Lady

Sissy' Farenthold?

Frances Tarlton "Sissy" Farenthold, born October 2, 1926 in Corpus Christi, Texas, comes from a family long active in Texas public affairs. Her father, Dudley Tarlton, was a prominent lawyer in South Texas. Her grandfather, B. D. Tarlton, was a distinguished jurist who served in the Texas Legislature from 1881 to 1886 and was later appointed to the Commission of Appeals by reform Governor James Hogg. The elder Tarlton also taught at the University of Texas Law School, where the Law Library is named for him.

Nicknamed "Sissy" by a brother, Frances Farenthold was educated in public and parochial schools in Corpus Christi. She later received a Bachelor of Arts degree from Vas-sar College at the age of 19, and went on to study law at the University of Texas, where she received her Doctor of Jurisprudence degree in 1949.

In 1950, Sissy Tarlton married George Farenthold, a Belgian by birth. Farenthold became an American citizen in 1940 and served in the U.S. Air Force during World War II, finishing his military career as a Captain and being awarded the Bronze Star. Currently, he is in the steel business with the Crispin Company of Houston. The Farentholds have four children, Dudley Tarlton, 20, George Junior, 19, Emilie, 17, and James Dougherty, 16. A fifth son, Vincent, died in 1959.

First I had my children . . .

"For the first 12 years I had my children," she says, "I stayed home and was nothing but a mother. Some of the Women's Lib people don't want to think of me this way, but it's the truth."

Sissy Farenthold is more than a mother, though. She practiced law with her father before she was married and again off and on until her father's death. Her husband George remembers how grieved she was after Vincent's death, and he encouraged her to pursue civic interests as an outlet for her energies. So, she turned to the problems her neighbors faced in Corpus Christi and became an officer of the Cor-

One of her sons summed up Sissy this way: "If I had to characterize Mom, I'd say she's 'over-protective.' If she takes as good care of the State as she does of her kids, Texas will be in great shape."

Farenthold strength surprise

Dolph Briscoe walked away with the Dallas Cowboy County vote in Saturday's Democratic primary, but the big surprise was the strength shown by Rep. Frances "Sissy" Farenthold in many high income precincts.

In precinct after precinct in North Dallas and the well-to-do neighborhoods of far East Dallas and Oak Cliff she ripped at Briscoe's heels, leaving Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes a poor third.

more votes than Briscoe did here in the 1968 first primary.

Briscoe, organizing early and campaigning frequently here, turned the tables this year. He swamped his opposition in heavy-voting Northwest Dallas County where most of the conservative vote is lodged.

Briscoe carried 65 of the 83 precincts in that section with

She said the insurance companies should be run by consumers.

We Like Sissy, Too

We like Frances (Sissy) Farenthold for governor of Texas. There's a certain "something" about this woman from Corpus Christi that has even staid Democrats enthusiastic over her chances Saturday of getting into at least a runoff. She is fast capturing the political fancy of many Texans.

The Herald Banner Briscoe should accept Farenthold's challenge

Before the first Democratic primary election, The Herald Banner commended the reluctance of the three supposed major candidates—Dolph Briscoe, Ron Barnes and Preston Smith—to engage in debate with the giant-killer from Corpus Christi, Frances Farenthold.

AUSTIN (UPI)—The "people's uprising" Rep. Frances Farenthold warned her opponents about when she won her spot in the June runoff.

pus Christi Art Foundation, Goodwill Industries, the Corpus Christi Deanery of the National Council of Catholic Women, the Corpus Christi Human Relations Commission, the Citizens Committee for Community Improvement and the Pan American Round Table.

She began practicing law again full-time in 1964 and used her legal expertise as a member of the Texas Advisory Committee to the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights.

But the big change in her life came when she was made director of Legal Aid in Nueces County (Corpus Christi). Being director of Legal Aid indirectly led her into politics.

Programs aren't working . . .

"It was a soul-searing experience," she recalls. "I don't think I'd have ever gone into politics except for that. I'd lived in Corpus Christi all my life but I saw and became aware of things I just hadn't known about until I got that job. From the outside, we tend to think, 'Well, we've got institutions to take care of all these problems — there's a hospital and a welfare program and all these programs to help people solve their problems.' But, until you get on the inside, you don't realize that it just isn't enough. These programs aren't working."

She entered politics a novice. In 1968, a friend called her the night before the filing deadline and asked her to run for the State Legislature. She talked about it with her husband and her family, called a few friends, and decided to run.

We've Won!

"It was an amateur's campaign — all the way," she remembers. "I did have some good professional advice, but I didn't follow it. They kept telling me, 'You can't do this' and 'You've got to do that.' For instance, I refused to have billboards — and I still refuse — because they visually pollute the countryside and the urban areas with slick slogans. My advisers almost died, but I thought, 'Well, if I'm going to come down on business for using them, I can't do it myself.' All my advisers were male, but most of my campaign workers were women, bless them, and we won."

Conventional politicians said at the time that a woman couldn't be elected to the Legislature from South Texas. Frances Farenthold proved them wrong. In the Democratic primary, she faced two opponents. She beat one the first time around and the other in the run-off, then went on to defeat an incumbent Republican in the general election. In 1970, she ran for re-election and was the only member of the Corpus Christi delegation to face opposition. Again, the political experts didn't give her a chance, but she easily defeated one opponent in the primary and another in the general election, proving again that the political odds-makers have a lot to learn about "That Lady."

But when Mrs. Farenthold got to Austin, she found that she had a lot to learn about Texas government.

For all the people . . .

"When I first went to Austin as a member of the Texas House of Representatives," she has said, "I knew that most chicanos weren't represented. And I knew that most blacks weren't represented. But what I found out was that most Texans weren't represented."

In Austin, Mrs. Farenthold found a State government more concerned about passing legislation for the Big Business lobbies than the everyday people who work on the land and in Texas' factories and office buildings. They are the people who send their children to public schools, and the people who pay most of the taxes.

These are the people Frances Farenthold has represented in the Legislature — not just those in Nueces County but people all across Texas. She has consistently voted for the people . . . and against the powerful special interests that have dominated state government for so long.

Sissy Farenthold voted against increases in the State sales tax. She voted against a two-cent increase in the State gasoline excise tax, an increase proposed by the House and Senate leadership. And when there weren't enough reformers to defeat the gasoline tax increase, Sissy Farenthold and others interested in preventing raises in consumer taxes pressured the Governor into threatening a veto of the tax bill if the gasoline levy was included. She voted for a tax on Big Business profits, to ease the tax burden on Texas consumers and make the big corporations pay their fair share of the State's taxes.

She's worked for the people in other areas, too: for higher education, against pollution of the environment, for lower utility rates, welfare reform, and minority rights.

But Frances Farenthold has come to be regarded by the people of Texas for one thing above all others: Ethics!

She worked hard to expose former Land Commissioner Jerry Sadler and his questionable handling of the recovery of sunken treasure off the Texas Gulf Coast and his efforts to avoid investigation by the House Governmental Affairs and Efficiency Committee.

Mrs. Farenthold herded a motion to censure Sadler through the House and he was defeated in his next election.

Reform began . . .

In the 62nd session, during her second term in the Texas House, Frances Farenthold was the leader of the reform movement, trying to weed out the corruption that infested the Legislature.

"The special interests have long been well-represented in Austin. It's time just plain folks had a friend in the Governor's Mansion."

Sissy Speaks on Today's Issues

Culture

is deeply disturbed by the declining economic position of Texas' family farmers.

"A man and his family cannot live on a farm and make a decent living, something is wrong with our society. Due to big government and big businesses that control our state government, the farmer and rancher have to struggle along with other Texans who must foot the bill for big government."

The United States is now losing 123 farms a year and includes many Texas farmers.

To help small farmers and ranchers, Mrs. Farenthold has suggested that the government reduce the sales tax, maintain agricultural programs and never consider extending the tax to food and services. If new revenues are needed, she advocates passage of a corporate tax to balance taxes between consumers and business.

"We must institute a study of agri-business revenues to see how much control these corporations have over Texas agriculture. Evidence is shown for controls, then such studies should be undertaken for the protection of the small farmer and rancher."

Mrs. Farenthold has proposed a program of economic development to stop the drain of population to our over-crowded cities. She has worked to correct the inequities of the current tax system and the institution of a land use management program for Texas as recommended by state farm and ranch organizations and other friends of agriculture.

"Rather than running every state program from Austin we should work to return political power to local communities — especially rural areas. And we need more of them. We must do research to aid rural areas and develop housing and health services or watch the lives of rural areas in Texas continue. This must not happen."

"Propose programs returning political power to rural communities and areas instead of getting everything from agencies in Austin."

"Texas needs to promote research to help rural areas, make sure that there is ample health services in rural areas and provide for better rural schools through a fairer tax system."

"As Governor I will continue to fight against over control of rural business as I did when I voted against the trailer brake bill."

The Environment

"I believe that the Governor should be a lobbyist in the Legislature for environmental responsibility. Every major state building project should require an environmental impact statement detailing the effect of that project on the ecology of the area."

Mrs. Farenthold has co-authored every major piece of environmental legislation offered during her tenure in the House of Representatives and has been an active and outspoken advocate of environmental protection.

She has suggested the creation of a state Environmental Protection Agency to coordinate and consolidate authority over environmental disputes and has urged development of carefully balanced land and water use programs for the state of Texas.

Jobs for Texans

"There should be no welfare if the society and the economy function properly. The causes of poverty are many, but one thing remains clear: there should be a job for any Texan who is willing to work. As Governor, I would lobby actively with the federal government to promote job opportunities in Texas and to provide an economic situation conducive to full employment of the manpower resources of the country."

"In Texas, I will work toward increased efficiency in the Employment Commission, more information programs on available jobs and job training, strengthen the jobs for veterans programs, and improve the social and governmental services (schools, for example) to provide an attractive climate for new industry."

"Texans have a right to know where the two candidates stand. Yet, my opponent refuses an open, honest debate on the vital issues."

Taxes

Frances Farenthold has proposed a reduction in the state sales tax and reform in franchise and state property taxes.

"Average working people pay too much of the tax bill in Texas. I am in favor of a tax on big business — a corporation profits tax. Big business should start paying its fair share of taxes in this state. A tax on the profits of big business would allow us to cut the franchise tax that is unfair to small businessmen, and it would allow a reduction on the state sales tax that straps average working people. Forty-six other states already tax the profits of big business. It's time Texas made them pay their share."

Governmental Reform

"Reform consists of honest men and women serving in office; of people who do not enrich themselves while holding public office by merging the public with private interest; of people who . . . do not use offices of trust as collateral nor conceal their business enterprises through the use of partnerships."

Frances Farenthold filed a complete financial disclosure for both herself and her husband, including her federal income tax return. Her opponent has refused to do either and has steadfastly ignored demands from the public for a true statement of his worth and the source of his income.

This is the core of any reform in state government: honest men and women not bound more tightly to their business interests than to the interests of the people. The most important way that the governor's office can bring reform to state government is through the caliber of the appointments he or she makes. The governor makes over 1,100 appointments during a two-year term and Frances Farenthold has publicly committed herself to a program of "no political appointments."

In the legislative process, Mrs. Farenthold suggests a reform of House and Senate rules including a one-term speakership in the house and removal of the Lt. Governor from the actual legislative process (he is supposed to be the executive officer of the legislative body). These measures would help curb the kind of power politics that resulted in the Sharpstown banking scandal.

"We really need to open up the entire legislative process and appoint more consumer-oriented people to the state boards. A stronger "open-meetings" law and stricter control on the activities of lobbyists would help us rid the state of the kind of corruption we've seen exposed these past few years. The state should really require complete financial statements from all lobbyists and their partners in business — including, if necessary, a daily disclosure of their dealings involving members of the Legislature."

Insurance Rates

In the past three years, Texans have been saddled with more than a 25% increase in the cost of automobile insurance, and the insurance companies are petitioning at this moment for another raise in the rates.

"Auto insurance rates have gone out of control. I will freeze the rates and appoint a blue-ribbon committee of public-minded citizens to find out just why these rates have skyrocketed to the point where the average wage-earner cannot afford needed auto insurance."

"The present rate-setting agency, the Texas Insurance Board, is dominated by insurance industry lobbyists. No wonder the rates continue to rise."

"I want to see consumer-oriented representatives of the people appointed to the Texas Insurance Board."

Public Utilities

"All of us are hit monthly by a big bill for electricity, gas, and telephone service. In many instances, this bill is much higher than it should be because the average consumer has little or no protection from the giant utility corporations that monopolize these vital services. A public utilities commission with members interested ONLY in helping the people is one thing I would immediately push for Texas."

Texas is one of the few states in the nation which does not have a commission to regulate the rates and practices of utility companies. Rural Texas is often subject to sub-standard service and rising rates without any real recourse. A public utilities commission could act as an intermediary between the people and the corporate utility giants. I favor territorial integrity for rural electric cooperatives to preserve their tradition of sound service.

"Today's issues demand real change. This I can and will bring to Texas."

Crime and Drugs

"Texas needs desperately to update its judicial system and law enforcement agencies. In addition, we must find some way to aid rural and small community police forces with state funds for equipment and training. We need to provide better working conditions and better pay for our policemen and incentive programs to enable them to continue their education."

Texas needs a new criminal code that will give us reasonable and enforceable laws — and help to clear up the backlog of cases that have snarled our courts and denied swift justice to many. Drug laws must be rewritten to get at the hard-drug pusher — not the college student who tries a marijuana cigarette. We need effective drug education programs in the schools — not just for students, but for parents as well.

"Above all, our law enforcement agencies should strive for professionalism. Our state has no coordinated action against organized crime — how can we expect to curb it without a systematic attack by highly trained professionals?"

A People's Lobbyist

"The people of this state need a representative in any grievance against a state agency. The bureaucracy has grown so large that the individual citizen is almost helpless when confronted with the maze of state agencies. A state ombudsman's office, with investigatory powers, could act as a people's lobbyist with the state government and work towards finding and correcting abuses of public power."

Public Schools

"Texas must solve the public school financing problem. Average homeowners and small landowners pay more than their share. We need tax equalization to make sure that big businesses pay their part of the expense of education."

Federal courts have ordered major changes in the present system of financing public schools. Frances Farenthold suggests that the financing of public school education be made a function of the state government without centralizing all of the allocation decisions. Local control must be maintained.

"We must equalize up to comply with the federal ruling. All of our schools must be as good as the very best of them — the rural schools can't be left out in the cold when we go to improve our school system."

Mrs. Farenthold also suggests state programs for the intellectually gifted, kindergarten and pre-school programs, programs for parents and adults, experimental or 'lighthouse' programs, and special programs for special learning situations.

"This is an area where we cannot afford to cut corners. The children of Texas need and deserve the best possible education that money can buy."

"When a man and his family cannot live on their land and make a decent living something is very wrong with our society."
