If your boss seems cranky for extended periods of time and appears to be fatigued, don't scream at him. Sympathize instead, because he may be suffering from extremely painful foot ailments.

Dr. Robert Yagoobian, of Taylor, Michigan, member of the research committee of the Academy of Ambulatory Foot Surgery said such painful foot ailments as bunions, hammer toes, ingrown toenails, corns and heel spurs "can turn a placid executive into an old crab, especially if he does not take steps to remedy the ailments."

indicated that the personalities of executives who have had foot problems corrected, without loss of productive time, "are quickly transferred into lovable, indulgent and understanding bosses again."

8,333 furs at Caprock fur sale

The final fur sale of the season was held by the Caprock Trapper's Association Saturday, Feb. 24 in Dickens with 8,333 furs tagged and registered.

Trappers attended from all over Texas from as far away as the Mexican border in south Texas to the panhandle in north Texas. Fur buyers were also well represented with the sale being the largest ever.

Prices on furs went from $185 to $320 on bobcats with an average of $250 to $300; coyotes, $19 to $75 with an average of $48; coons $11 to $40 and averaged $30; skunks sold from $2.50 to $6, averaging $3; ringtail cats $3 to $8; fox, good grays, $30 to $45; and reds selling for $45 to $75. Averages were taken from all three fur sales during the season.

CTA now has a membership of 200 and is still growing.

With the large quantity of furs taken from the area this season and the growing registered trappers in the area, more people are showing a concern for the government's program of killing coyotes from helicopters. Area ranchers have estimated that over 350 coyotes were shot in one afternoon. CTA is trying to work out a program with ranchers if he is having a predator problem he can call CTA and the organization will help him control the problem if he will not sign up with the government helicopter program.

Discussions are now under way with the local game commission and plans include discussion with the county commissioners, county agent and government trapper. Anyone wanting to discuss their feelings on this matter are asked to contact Larry Pate of Idalou, Larry Burke of Afton or Dean Shaw of Dickens, or any other CTA officer or member.

Preparations are being made for the 1979-80 trapping season and fur sales have grown to the point where additional room will be needed.

The organizations regular meeting will be held toward the end of March with dates to be announced in the near future. Plans are also being made for a trapper's camp-in with activities ranging from trap setting and demonstrations to shot gun and rifle competition and trap shooting.

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN—What Virginia Stacey, president of the 125,000-member Texas State Teachers Association, had to say this week after studying Gov. Bill Clements' budget proposal stopped many Texans in their tracks.

If Clements' plan were followed, Stacey predicted Texas "would have poverty and chaos in a school system which is already underfinanced."

Last year, Texas ranked 31st in teacher pay. Texas educators fell $1,713 below the national average in salaries. The Texas Education Agency estimates that teachers in 1978-79 will receive an average salary of $12,975, ranking them even further down the scale, 33rd among the states.

Such numbers alarmed Stacey and the teachers she represents. The TSTA president urged her colleagues to look ahead and see what economic hardships might be in store for them, but Stacey also warned parents to consider what the consequences might be to the future of education in the state if present salary practices continued.

The governor eliminated the 5.1 percent pay increase for teachers recommended by the Legislative Budget Board. All state employees would be the beneficiaries of a 5.1 percent boost in pay, including teachers, if Clements ideas are followed. But teachers would not receive the 5.1 percent hike on top of 3.2-4.9 percent raises they will already get under existing laws.

Sen. Pete Snellson's TSTA-backed school finance bill would give teachers a 15 percent increase in pay over the next two years. Stacey left the impression that teachers would take no prisoners in their struggle over higher wages. "TSTA intends to fight with all its strength," she declared.

School Finance

Inseparable from the issue of teacher pay raises and school financing, is the question of how the Legislature will implement the constitutional amendment on tax relief. The House Ways and Means Committee slaved through the week over legislation to put the amendment into effect. Rep. Bob Davis of Irving, chairing the committee, said there is an "outside possibility" a bill would be agreed on soon. The committee has already missed one self-imposed deadline.

Davis described the committee's complicated and difficult work "as kind of like unraveling string. You think you're getting to the end of the ball and all of a sudden, it gets larger instead of smaller."

Making an about face from earlier in the week, the committee agreed to extend a $10,000 homestead exemption to all disabled and elderly regardless of annual earnings. Earlier, the committee had tentatively agreed to restrict the exemption to the handicapped and elderly with yearly incomes of $7,500 or lower.

The remaining question is how the state will repay local school districts for revenues that will be lost when the homestead write-offs go into effect. Most members of the House Ways and Means Committee appear to favor a program that would reimburse in the first year of the state's two year budget all of a district's lost revenues. The second year, a school district would be penalized 10-15 percent of actual revenue losses if property was not appraised at market value.

The School Tax Assessment Practices Board says at present the average appraisal in the state is approximately 66 percent of market value. Traditionally, Texas has raised taxes by increasing assessment ratios while estimated market values of property were kept low. Under such practices, richer school districts have been able to maintain lower taxing ratios than poorer districts.

The Texas Research League—an organization financed by major corporations in Texas—warned that Clements' plan to refund $900 million to local school districts to make up for lost dollars due to the tax relief amendment, might set off a crisis over state revenues in 1981. "There is rarely such a thing as 'property tax relief,'" the TRL warned. "A better term would be 'property tax replacement.'" With local taxes being reduced because of the tax relief amendment approved by voters last November and inflation running unchecked at 10-12 percent a month, local school districts in need of dollars would have nowhere to turn in the future but to the state pay window. Local taxes might go unchanged, but state taxes would have to be increased to meet the revenue demands of the Texas educational system.

Short Snorts

If you are in the process of trying to figure out the political, personal and party reasons for one presidential primary bill over another, stop for a moment. You may be able to erase one piece of legislation from your reading list. Thirteen senators have written a letter saying they are against Sen. Jack Ogg's bill that would separate the presidential primary and state primaries. Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and speaker of the House Bill Clayton both backed the legislation. In this case, 13 is their unlucky number because senate rules require a two-thirds vote to even consider a bill.

Consumers beware. The siege has begun. In committee hearings this week, bills were considered that would weaken the stiff penalty section of the Consumer Protection Act. And the Senate

Economic Development Committee reviewed seven measures that would make it more difficult for the consumer to sue and sue successfully over faulty products.

In testimony before House and Senate committees, businessmen (represented by car dealers and realtors) characterized themselves as victims of tough consumer laws. But other witnesses pointed out that amendments to the law provided protection for the businessman who knowingly or unknowingly violates a consumer's rights, admits it and is willing to make restitution.

Accent On Health

Texas Department of Health

Small puppies have a playful way about them, and they love to gnaw and chew on almost anything — even fingers and toes.

As the result on these playful — and not so playful — actions of a seven-week-old puppy recently in Matagorda County, 23 persons began a series of rabies shots. The playful pup, given as a present to grandchildren, became rabid and exposed 23 people.

Rabies is no stranger to Texas, says the Texas Department of Health.

Last year, in the biggest year since 1961, rabies was confirmed in 563 animals in Texas. This year, in certain parts of the state, rabies has been twice as bad as last year.

One human death was recorded in Fort Bend

County last year. The victim, a native of Guanajuato, Mexico, is believed to have been exposed to the rabies virus in Mexico.

Wild animals accounted for an overwhelming majority of the 1978 rabies cases, but nine dogs, 17 cats, 11 cows and 13 horses were included in the state-wide total.

Largest number of cases in wildlife was diagnosed in skunks, a normally retiring black and white creature which lives in close proximity to man. Skunks accounted for 449 cases of rabies last year and traditionally will total approximately 80 percent of Texas cases annually, according to Dr. Foy V. McCasland, chief of the Bureau of Veterinary Public Health of the Texas Department of Health.

Since skunks do live close to man — particularly in rural areas and small towns — there is always the chance that a pet and a rabid skunk will make contact. Each year, many pets have to be destroyed because of fights with skunks and other wild animals which have rabies, said Dr. McCasland.

Although skunks and other wild animals — called "exotics" — may be pretty and apparently make interesting pets, the Texas Department of Health is strongly against this practice.

Skunks born in captivity have come down with rabies. The incubation period of rabies in skunks may be from approximately 20 days to as long as 18 months. "This extreme variation of incubation and infectivity makes the skunk an insidious time bomb as a household pet," said Dr. McCasland.

The disease may not be apparent in a skunk until the damage is done, said Dr. McCasland. It has been demonstrated that skunks are capable of excreting virus in their saliva as long as 18 days before death and at least eight days before the onset of clinical signs of rabies infections.

Rabies is endemic in wildlife, and the skunk is the number one target. Since 1960 skunks have become the most frequently reported rabid animal AND the most common source of human rabies in the United States.

Practicing veterinarians often are confronted with clients who have or want wild animals for pets. Dr. McCasland has urged veterinarians to refrain from de-scenting them or otherwise encouraging the keeping of skunks for pets. He said there is no rabies vaccine approved for use in skunks, or other wild animals, and there is little evidence that any vaccine is effective in protecting them from rabies.

Adding to his argument, Dr. McCasland says a skunk owner can expect to be bitten by the pet. In one study, he said, 58 percent of pet skunks had bitten people. In households with pet skunks, he added, 21 percent of all family members were bitten by their pet skunks.
