County accepts Texas Forest Service offer of 'dry hydrant'

Unit will assist firemen by drawing water from area tanks

by Wes Burnett

The Garza County Commissioners' Court approved the acceptance of a 'dry hydrant' from the Texas Forest Service, in a proposal explained by Garza Soil and Water Conservation District (GSWCD) conservationist Obie Kelly. The hydrant will be used to augment local fire fighting by using water from an area lake.

Kelly explained that the hydrant would be installed at county expense, which consisted of the use of a backhoe for two to three hours at the yet to be determined site.

When installed, the hydrant will be connected by pipeline to a natural supply of water from a lake or tank which firemen could then augment for fire fighting purposes.

Although no determination was made as to which water source to use, Kelly suggested that South Lake (adjacent to the park) would be good location.

Commissioners also heard from Precinct Two resident Max Haney concerning serious flooding problems in and around the area just south of the Close City gin.

Haney described the flooding caused by plugged ditches and roadways that do not allow the water to flow in its natural southerly direction. Precinct Two commissioner Albert Stone and Precinct One commissioner Sammy Ellis explained that because the problem is on the border of the two precincts, they would be working together to find solutions. "We have already set up a schedule to raise the roadway," Ellis added, "but the weather lately has just made it impossible to get started."

Judge Giles Dalby assured Haney that commissioners would do as much as possible to correct the problem.

City/County Ambulance Service administrator John Redman presented a request to the court for continuation of funding which had been discontinued for this fiscal year.

"Somehow or other the idea that our payments from Medicare would take effect has caused some confusion," Redman explained, "but it might be another year before we begin to see increases from Medicare."

Redman requested that the court provide $500 per month to the EMS through the remainder of this fiscal year to offset losses due to the lower Medicare payments.

"Medicare only allows $40 per run," Redman added, "and only $1.05 per mile for travel. And since 90 percent of our patients are on Medicare, we just can't make ends meet."

The court agreed to a month-to-month payment until treasurer Ruth Ann Young studies the budget to determine the impact of amending to include the additional funding. Redman also informed the court that a new ambulance will be needed by 1993. "Our oldest ambulance has more than 50,000 miles on it," he added.

Steve Sawyers presented a detailed audit for 1991, which showed more than $200,000 in expenses above revenues, bringing the reserves to a four and one-half month operating level.

Judge Dalby said that the court is working to bring the reserve up to a six month level, "which we feel more comfortable with."

Sawyers explained that much of the additional expenses came in the form of one-time only costs, associated with purchasing rights of way, equipment and repairs. Another factor was the dramatic increase in employee benefits, including health insurance. Commissioners approved the audit.

Rex Cash presented a request to the court for an extension to a county road in Precinct Three. The one mile extension of the road would provide access to several land owners in the area approximately 18 miles north just off Texas Highway 651. Precinct Three commissioner John Valdez agreed to meet with Cash to discuss the extension request.

Judge Dalby reported to commissioners that airport improvements through the federal and state grants is progressing on schedule. Dalby said that repairs to the taxiway in front of the hangars might also be included in the work, although funding for that portion would have to come from other sources.

Dalby explained to the court that last week's meeting in Austin with the Texas Water Commission resulted in the approval of the White River Municipal Water District's application to extend its permit to build the Post Lake. The judge reported that this might be the last time the permit is allowed to be extended, "one of the new water commissioners raised a question about the fact that this is the ninth permit extension request," Dalby said.

"We had told the White River board that we would do all we could to support them," Dalby added, "and now we're ready to begin helping formulate the best approach to getting the lake built."

"This will be a big economic impact for Post and Garza County," he added, "and you'll remember that when we ran for office we heard from the voters that they want us to get this project moving. We may find that the voters will have to make a decision down the road, in the form of a referendum, to vote on establishing a county-wide water district, then it'll be up to the voters to decide."

In other matters, Dalby informed the court that the county has formally resubmitted answers to the U.S. Department of Justice concerning the recent communications regarding the proposed redistricting plan. "We have answered all their questions," he said, "and the material is available in my office or the clerk's office for anyone who is interested in reviewing it."

Commissioners requested Dalby to contact the law firm in Austin involved in collecting delinquent taxes to determine if a Sheriff's Sale of property in the Bertram area near Justiceburg could provide additional revenues based on an inquiry from a Midland oil company executive.

The Midland oil company is interested in a drilling project in the area, but is concerned about the deeds and owners of property.

Attending the meeting were Judge Dalby, commissioners Stone, Valdez, Ellis and Herb Walls, clerk Sonny Gossett and treasurer Ruth Ann Young.

Letters to the Editor

Letters to the editor policy:
Letters to the editor are encouraged and invited. Letters may be edited for brevity. Letters which are deemed slanderous or libelous will be rejected. Letters must be signed, but the name may be withheld from publication if requested.

Dear Editor:
I am writing this in behalf of our "senior citizens". I have worked almost fourteen years here for the Garza County Trailblazers. I have learned to love each one of them especially our older seniors, they are just a little bit more special. Our seniors are the past of our future and we should be aware of them. Each young adult has someone they love that are senior citizens of our community. We have a very nice center and we are very proud of it. This is home away from home for a lot of our seniors.

We have lost a great number of our senior citizens so we need to get some more involved in our center.

We are going to have to grow in number somehow or our doors will have to close.

There are people in our community that don't even know where the senior citizen's center is located and it has been in the same place since 1979. So let us be aware of our senior citizen's center and help us keep the doors open.

We have to have donations made for the meals, we serve to help with expenses. Our prices are suggested donations of $1.50 if you eat at the center, home delivery is a suggested donation of $2.00. Also if you take out a lunch the suggested price is also $2.00 due to the price of the supplies we have to use.

We start serving at 12:00 and serve until 12:30. We serve any and everyone. Whatever your race, color or creed. We welcome everyone especially our black and hispanic friends that are seniors. We have games of Skip Bo, 42, 88, snooker pool or whatever you like to play. Put up a quilt if you like to quilt.

This can help our loved one from having to go to a nursing home by having a good, hot nutritious meal each day and the fellowship they enjoy with one another. Thanks for listening.

Thanks again,
Cleao Sappington

An intensive five-year California-based heart disease and stroke prevention campaign has succeeded in lowering the heart disease and stroke risk factors among residents of two communities exposed to media messages, lectures and workshops.

Success was measured by decreases in blood cholesterol (two percent), blood pressure rate (four percent), resting pulse rate (three percent) and the number of cigarette smokers in members of the community (13 percent). Though percentages appear inconsequential, they represent a significant reduction through this broad population group.

Decreases were due to changes made in lifestyle choices as a result of the educational programs presented in the communities. An educational program such as the one in California is planned for Garza County this year.

I hope the nutrition and wellness education program will result in like results for our community. The figures are just figures when we read about the California experimental group. But here in our hometown those numbers have faces. A reduction of 13 percent in the number of cigarette smokers translates to people we know and love reducing their risk of coronary artery disease. Likewise a reduction of cholesterol level and blood pressure rate for people in our community means that we will not be visiting so many of our friends in the hospital who are under treatment for the diseases related to those risk factors.

I hope you will participate in the educational efforts promoting nutrition and wellness this year. Only with your participation in the programs and your adoption of better lifestyle choices can we experience the good results we know are possible through an educational program.

Please attend any group programs which you possibly can and contact me if you are a member of a group which would like to have me present a program on any subject dealing with nutrition and wellness.

Antelopes win two in a row

by Allen Dolberry
The Post Antelope varsity boys' basketball team racked up two wins in a row last Friday night, using a good inside defense in the 49-38 win over the visiting Idalou Wildcats.

It started out to be the Michael Harper show, as just about everything he threw up went in, and the 'Lopes led 11-7 at the end of one period.

Both teams continued to play good defense and the scoring was kept to a minimum in the second quarter. Josh Bush sank a two pointer to give Post a 21-12 advantage 3 with three minutes left in the half. Idalou answered with four consecutive points, but an outstanding pass by Tommy Ammons to Bush who followed with a layup gave the 'Lopes a 23-16 halftime edge.

Post came out a little flat in the third period, as it took them three minutes to score a single basket. David Heaton's two point bucket made it 25-22 and from that point the 'Lopes built a 10 point lead to 35-25.

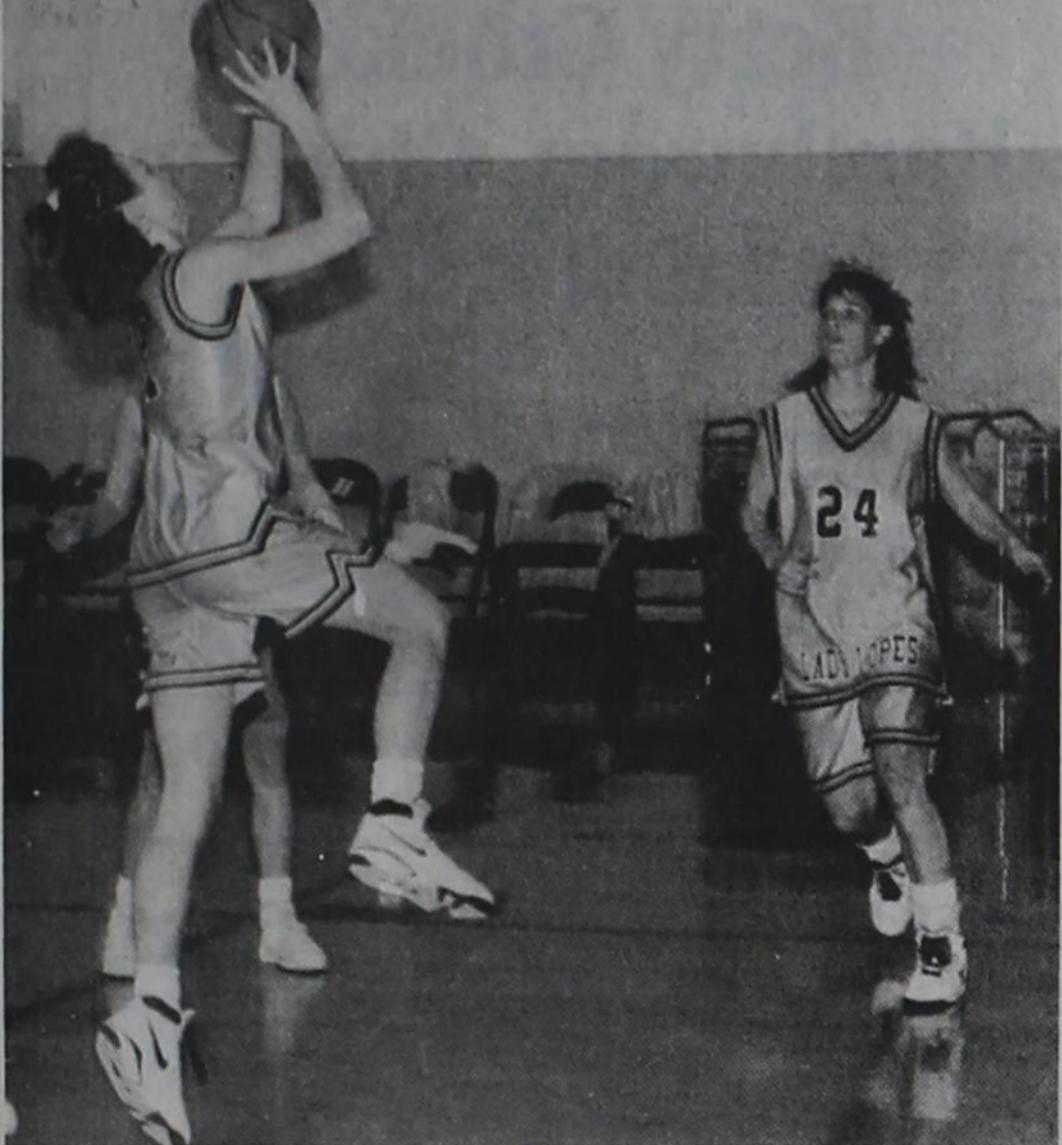

Shane Horton took control of things in the final stanza with several good inside shots that would keep the Wildcats no closer than six points. By the 3:30 mark the 'Lopes had built a 54-33 lead on a jumper by Jay Mitchell.

Idalou showed a little fight in the closing minutes, but it was too little too late as the buzzer sounded the second victory in two outings for the home team.

Harper finished the game with 21 points and Horton got another 12. Bush scored five, Ammons and Heaton got four each and Mitchell was credited with two points.

In other action last week, the 'Lopes swamped Tahoka 61-49 in the Antelope gym, which suffered condensation throughout the game, making for a slippery playing surface.

Harper led the scoring with 18 points followed by Horton with 14, nine by Bush, six by Tray Payne, five by Mitchell, four by Ammons, three by Heaton and two by Terry Curtis.

9th grade boys win two

The Post 9th grade boys' basketball team whipped Sundown 46-26 January 20 and edged All-Saints 42-39 January 25 in the Christ The King tournament before tripping to Idalou in overtime 42-38 at the tournament.

The team took second place in the tournament and Brad Lawson was selected to the All-Tournament team. The freshmen boys sport a seven win, three loss record.

Russ Bird scored 16 points in the final tournament game, followed by Lawson with 11, six by Javier Saldivar, three by Justin Terry and two by Casey Hart.

In the win over All-Saints Lawson hit for 17 points and Saldivar got 10. Bird scored six, Manuel Zubia got three and two each were credited to Hart, Lance Clay and Terry.

8th grade boys win

The Post 8th grade boys' basketball team took charge 28-21 over Sundown January 20 following a January 17 loss to Brownfield 42-34 in the Christ The King tournament.

In the Sundown win, coach Fred Postell says, "everyone played quite a bit. Larry Haynes, Bill Cole, Bryan Justice, David Perez and Saul Martinez came in the third and fourth quarters and played very well."

"B.J. Hart, Jason Wyatt, Blythe Wilson, Alvin Reed, Jeff Redman, Tory Harper and Bodie Simpson played most of the rest of the game," the coach adds.

Harper, Reed and Simpson led the scoring with eight points, followed by Martinez and Wyatt with two points each.

In the January 17 loss to Brownfield the coach says, "we were unable to stay in our offensive pattern for very long."

Simpson led the scoring with 14 points, followed by Harper with 12, Reed with six and two by Redman.

Sundown edges 7th grade boys

Sundown clipped the Post 7th grade boys' basketball team 35-33 in the January 20 contest.

Unable to score in the first period, the Post boys trailed 19-10 at the half, then 27-18 at the end of the third period. A spirited fourth period saw the young 'Lopes put 15 points on the board, but Sundown managed eight to take the game.

Jeremy Josey led the Post team with 12 points, followed with four each by Jerry Crawford, Josh Grisham, Todd Terry and Roy Perez, three by Seth Pennell and two by Sam Zubia.

Lady Lopes move into third place tie

by Allen Dolberry
That feeling of "no place like home" comes to mind when reviewing the Post Lady Lopes in their 51-31 win over Idalou here last Friday evening.

Coming off a win Tuesday night over Tahoka, the Lady Lopes were looking to even out the district record with four wins and four losses.

In the Idalou contest the Lady Lopes sprinted to an 18-2 lead in the first period and by halftime held an impressive 22-12 lead.

Both teams came out cold in the second half. It wasn't until the 6:30 mark of the third period that the score changed when the Lady Cats hit for two points. LouAnn Ammons spurred for a seven point run which gave Post a 30-18 edge. Trudy Woods came back with a spectacular three point shot, increasing the Lady Lope advantage to 15 points.

Ammons took up where she left off with a two pointer, changing the score to 37-21. Idalou then went on a five point run to pull within 38-26. Sara Alexander put a stop to that with a two pointer.

Ammons and Cara Cash combined for a steal and a layup to seal the Lady Lope victory at the four minute mark and cruised to a 51-21 final score.

Ammons led all scorers with 16 points. Woods added 14 points and Cara Cash put in 10 more.

J.V. boys win two, lose two

The Post junior varsity boys' basketball team edged Ralls 33-30, lost to Floydada 36-32, whipped Sundown 60-42 and lost to Tahoka 37-30 in recent action.

The January 14 win over Ralls saw scoring from eight members of the team, led by Radley Nichols with seven points.

Henry Reed scored six, Ricky Jefferson, Russell Baldree and Rynn Sappington each got four and two each went to Clint Melton, Robert Baldree, Tim Bell and Jim Simpson.

At the January 16 Idalou tournament loss to Floydada, Russell Baldree led the team with seven points. Jefferson and Reed picked up six, Robert Baldree got five, Nichols scored four and two each were credited to Simpson and Melton.

Nichols and Simpson were top scorers in the January 17 win over Sundown at the Idalou tournament with 12 points each.

Sappington and Reed got eight, Jefferson scored seven, Melton got five, Russell Baldree collected four, Robert Baldree got two and Bell was credited with one point.

The January 21 loss to Tahoka saw Robert Baldree leading the scoring with 11 points. Sappington and Simpson both got five, Reed got four, two each went to Bell and Melton and Nichols got one point.

Robbery and six arrests reported...

No arrests have been made as of Tuesday concerning a break-in and robbery at George's Drive Inn early Monday morning resulted in the loss of approximately $290 in cash. A suspect has been identified but the investigation is continuing.

According to the Garza County Sheriff's office, two men walking in the alley behind the business at 3 a.m. said they heard a loud noise and saw two men running from George's heading east. The two witnesses then went to Allsup's and asked the clerk to call the sheriff's office.

Entry to the building was gained through a broken window on the south side of the building. The burglars evidently exited through the south back door. The door had several pry marks on the outside.

In other action, deputies arrested a 21 year old woman January 23, revoking of probation and was then transferred to a drug treatment center.

A 43 year old woman was arrested January 25 on a variety of traffic warrants from Terry and Garza County. She is being held on the $1,133 total in fines.

On January 26 a 20 year old woman was charged with criminal trespassing and was released on a $1,500 bond. In the same incident a 21 year old man was also charged for criminal trespassing and was released on a $1,500 bond.

A 28 year old man was arrested January 27, charged with theft. He is still being held in the jail.

THE GEORGE R. BROWN PARTNERSHIP

Visitor praises Post people during travel trials

Dear Editor: I want to publicly thank Sonny Mason and his family and the townspeople of Post, Texas for a most excellent adventure.

Friday, December 20th, Charley and I were on our way to Chattanooga, Tennessee and to Temple, Texas. I to spend Christmas with some friends, and Charley to spend Christmas with relatives. I was driving down Route 84 to get to Dallas and highway 20. As I left New Mexico I was driving through the front of a large storm, and was having problems with the electrical system on my van. I had stalled the engine in Muleshoe by driving through a deep puddle, and was able to restart only after I dried out the inside of the van's distributor. Then the van stalled suddenly just as we crossed the caprock about four miles outside of POST. This time it died so suddenly that we just had time to pull over under some trees off the highway. We tried all the regular things, (checking for fuel flow, and electrical spark,) and were able to determine that we had an electrical short somewhere in the ignition system. Because it was dark and we couldn't work in the rain, we decided that the best thing was to go to sleep. We spent the night sleeping in the van, parked under the trees.

In the morning, we walked over to the nearest house, and the people there took us in to the Mason's (of Mason's Wrecking) to arrange a tow into town. That accomplished, we set about determining what we could do to continue our trip...

We arranged a "hot-wire" rig so we could continue our trip and then we had some coffee and talked with Sonny and Donelle while the van's battery recharged. While we were sitting around Charley and I found out that Sonny had towed in another New Mexican the previous day. It seems that the man had struck a guard rail and crunched the front of his CJ-7 Jeep while traveling to Sarasota, Florida to see a "lady friend". And this particular incident was devastating. The man was a teacher and made almost no money... This seemed to be the end of his trip. But Sonny was fairly certain that he could get the Jeep repaired enough so the teacher could go to Florida. I suggested to the "professor" that he could continue on with me; but, in the end, he decided to wait until Monday and try to cobble the Jeep together enough to continue his trip.

And we had our "hot-wire" and could continue on toward Dallas... Of course it took a while, because Dallas was winning the football game, and Donelle and Sonny and the "professor" were so interesting to listen to, and we really were in no particular hurry. I kept reminding myself to "slow down. You're having an adventure. Enjoy it! The hardest part about an adventure is realizing when you are in one, and we definitely are in one now!" So, along about dark we left Post toward Dallas.

We stopped in Snyder to get fresh coffee, and went on down the road. Sixty-four miles from Post, my front drive shaft separated, and we stopped as fast as we were able. When I crawled under the van, (a Teal Green 1979 Dodge four-wheel drive van), I wished I were back in Sonny's garage. I struggled with what tools I had managed to remember to bring along, and removed the front drive shaft and some of the pieces of bent linkage. This took over two hours, in the cold, inches from the trucks passing in the night. Every time an eighteen-wheeler would pass, the van would shake in the draft, and the heat would seep out of my back into the pavement I was lying on. I managed to remove the pieces, and lock the transfer case into four-wheel drive, (did I forget to mention that this particular van was one of the few "full time" four wheel drive vans ever made, and that I had to get it into locked position to get the power to the rear wheels? Sorry about that). Then Charley and I had to make a decision.

Charley was due in Temple, Texas to assemble tricycles and bicycles and trains and planes for his nieces and nephews; I was expected in Chattanooga, sometime before Christmas. And I didn't trust the van. I left Charley standing under some lights in Snyder, thumb extended toward the south, assuring me that he would be in Temple before first light. I'm sure he made it, he is a Physicist, and they know how the world works... I work with several Physicists and they assure me that they do. And I headed back toward Post, and Sonny's help. I arrived about midnight, and watched a little StarTrek and a Hot game of Uno drawing to a climax on the kitchen table.

The next morning, Monday, I slept in my van until almost noon, or whenever that damned train came by... and then I drove around back and talked awhile with Donelle about the "Professor's" Jeep. I didn't see how they could possibly get the Jeep back on the road before 5pm, but Donelle assured me that everything was "on schedule". So I went downtown to capture a wandering hamburger.

And I found that there are very definite advantages to living in a town around the oil fields. For instance, the Auto Part's Store had real tools! Six point, deep well sockets! Things that nobody around here keeps in stock. Oh, you can order them, wait a week, and pay extra to cover shipping and handling, but you guys in POST can just walk in any time and buy them, at a discounted price! What a heady experience! (I'm only teasing a little, because the parts situation around here is so bad...) I did notice, however, that there seemed to be a lack of computers scattered around the stores. So, to kill a little time, I checked out the stores while looking for an Automatic Teller Machine to get some money.

I went into the hardware store and walked around looking for an inexpensive fly rod, or an old "Atchison, Topeka, & Santa Fe Railway" kerosene lamp, or one of those cylindrical hurricane lamps... You know, just ordinary old things that you'll definitely buy, the next time you ever see one; assuming you ever see one again. And I found a "real" snow shovel for about half the price it sells for where I live, (up at 8000 feet, above the snow line). So I walked through into the china shop and bulled around until it was obvious I wasn't going to find any Corning-ware coffee pots which I could buy to supplement my collection.

So I went down the street and found a sewing store. Obviously owned by someone with connections to a variety store chain. There I finally found, (and purchased!) the glow-in-the-dark "Monster from the Black Lagoon" monster that I hadn't bought my 12-year-old son Matthew, the only other time I'd ever seen one. (Isn't it funny how you can regret "not" doing something like that for years & years?)

Then I met the nicest ladies sitting in a neat little used furniture store. They were sitting there making lascivious comments about the soap opera heroine and her upcoming revelations concerning the too perfect manly-man she was about to seduce. And they had the alternator for my Van if I just "had to" have a new one.

Then I opened the door to the "Post Dispatch" and found some brownies on a tray, just waiting for someone to taste. But I was looking for fudge, so I left. I went on down the street and spent some time looking through some very beautiful kaleidoscopes, and checking for something else, like the "Monster from the Black Lagoon" that I had forgotten to buy the first time I'd seen it. I passed a radio station, but it seemed deserted so I didn't bother to enter, even though I know that "disk jockeys" love to be bothered, especially if you bring pizza. Then I got to the bank and went in to use the Automatic Teller Machine.

They convinced me that the nearest ATM was about 38 miles away in Lubbock, and I knew that my cash was limited to what I had in my pocket. So I walked back up the other side of the street, looking for strips of Elk steaks (so I could make Elk Stroganoff omelette, of course) or some Buffalo Sausage, or something. I looked into "The Spotted Pony", but it was only a clothing store, so I left... Or, rather, I almost left, when this tall lady stopped me and showed me that they had many things other than clothes, and that the clothes that they had were really just "art to be worn". And wouldn't I really like to join her in a cup of flavored coffee?

And that's how I met Zoe Merriman Kirkpatrick, and lost the rest of the day. I think I certainly made a good trade there. She has all the beauty of the AT&SF lamp, and the imperturbability of the hurricane lamp. And she's written and photographed a book on prairie flowers, (never realizing that five of the fairest prairie flowers are to be found there in "The Spotted Pony", year round.) And we talked. We talked about Cocopelli, the Anisazi god of fertility that was used as a design for the ties being sold on one of the displays.

About the mystery surrounding the various Cocopelli designs, and the differences between the various depictions of this particular "flute-playing fertility god". And we talked about Post, and about "The Spotted Pony" and Santa Fe, and about the O.G.'s Green Chili Salsa she has for sale. I had only otherwise seen O.G.'s Chili Salsa at the butcher shop in Bernalillo during Balloon Fiesta on that day that we were barbecuing steak and boiling Johnsonville Brats in beer at "Dr. John's" up in Algodones. (Dr. John isn't his real name, everyone just calls him that because of the "Kickapoo Joy Juice" he "Doctors" up once a year.) So of course I bought her last bottle. How could you possibly remember those two short hours eating steak after chasing 600 hot air balloons at dawn in the crispness of those Autumn mornings, and not want to relive those smells, those tastes, those touches?

And then it was early evening, not quite five o'clock, and things were shutting down. So I started back toward Sonny Mason's garage to see what the situation was. And, out of the corner of my eye, as I passed the Standard station, I spied the "Professor's" Jeep! It was fueling up, getting ready to go to Sarasota so the "Professor" could spend time with his friend. And just past that there was a tiny trailer pulled into a vacant lot and it was really a barbecue place. I thought about it and thought barbecue might be nice, something hot instead of the cold corned beef sandwiches I'd been eating, and besides, this was a vacation, and an adventure... You aren't supposed to put artificial limits on yourself while you're on vacation! So barbecue it is, I'll make a sandwich out of barbecue, and while I'm here, maybe a sausage! Too bad it's not a buffalo sausage, but barbecue might be just about right for this evening, that and that new James Bond book I bought for the trip.

So I took the barbecue and the book and I spent the night camped out in Sonny's garage, wallowing in the feeling of being safe among strangers, listening to the call of the long distance freight as it wailed its cry across the prairie, searching for its "lost" companions. And I gave "killer", (Sonny's chahuahua) some of the barbecue, and the sausage tasted almost as good as buffalo, and "The Man from Barbarossa" is more like Ian Fleming's James Bond than any of the earlier books have been... So, how could this day have been better? I met hundreds of friendly people, I had four or five hours of conversation with Zoe, I bought Matthew his own "unnecessary plastic object", and I had barbecue sausage so good that Jim was "sold out" the next day when I went back for seconds, and half of a new James Bond book. (I suppose that a new Travis Magee or a dozen would have helped, but that won't be, and I suppose that matching glow-in-the-dark "Swamp Thing" and Adrienne Barbeau dolls would be too much to ask for? Then how about a Sigorney Weaver doll complete with flamethrower and portable cannon? It was just a thought.)

And morning came too soon, Christmas Eve. Donelle came in and woke me and I decided to change the alternator and see if that stabilized the van's systems enough so I could trust it to drive somewhere. I put the larger alternator on and added a switch to the ignition system "hot wire". Now I could stop the engine without ripping out wires, just the flip of a switch. And it was done, and it was still morning. If I left now, I could be somewhere else, quickly. So I didn't. Another Charley came by with his lavender colored "fat-fendered" Ford pickup (1939 Ford body, hot rod engine...), and Sonny sold him some wheels to make the hot rod look "just so!". And we fussed around for three or four hours "playing cars", and I finally phoned my friends in Chattanooga and told them I was definitely turning back, going home... And I was free to be irresponsible again. So I finally headed out for New Mexico, (after telling Sonny one last time how beautiful his daughter was, and how lucky he was to live in Post, and how friendly everyone had been... and driving by Jim's to get that second barbecue sausage that the people of Post had managed to get to before I could, and sort of a cursory look up and down the street to see if there might be a glow-in-the-dark statue of "Bill The Cat" (The presidential candidate, the one who ran against Reagan) somewhere, maybe in one of the stores that hadn't opened yet when I went by the day before.

Just imagine! A glow-in-the-dark Bill-the-Cat! After all, Post has everything else that anyone could need. David J. Wade Jemez Springs, NM
