Misses Ted and Betty Lamb, junior girl trick riders, of Dallas, will provide specialty acts for the local performances. The girls are 16 and 17 years old and have performed in shows in several states. They recently closed a show in Temple, Okla., where they worked with Nat Fleming, who will announce at the local show.

Verbena-Post Schools Will Sign Contract

The Garza County Board of School Trustees met last Thursday afternoon at the court house and made plans for the year under the new Gilmer-Aiken requirements. The board ordered the consolidation of the Hartford school district with the Southland rural school district, as required by residents of the Hartford community.

This week, the Verbena trustees voted to contract with Post under the new law, because of the low daily attendance in their school last year.

Additional Work For Committeemen On Farm Program

The work of the elected farmer Agriculture Conservation Program committeemen, both county and community, has taken on a new importance in preparation for the possible establishment of acreage allotments and conducting marketing quota referendums it was stated Tuesday by the local P. M. A. office. Final decisions by the Secretary still await current crop prospects but the committeemen have to be ready.

Business, Education, Religion Must Face Problems Together

New York City—Seventy-eight out of one hundred of our workers are employed in some phase of business or industry. Fifty out of one hundred of our college graduates become "career business men". Yet, various surveys reveal that management is dissatisfied with the training eighty out of one hundred of its recruits get from schools and colleges. What's wrong?

From the time of the Civil War to the era which developed such captains of industry as the Vanderbilts, the Carnegies, and the Rockefellers, business was a private, although perhaps ruthless, development of our resources. These were masters of all they surveyed. They were supplanted by a different breed of business managers at the turn of the century. These were the corporate speculators.

Recently a still newer type of businessman has emerged. He is the professional businessman. He may not hope to own the large enterprise of which he is a part. He inherited his business system from his rugged predecessors. They know how to overcome the obstacles of their day, but they left today's inheritors with myriad social, economic, and government problems because their system ignored human rights.

Today's Need

If our business system is to remain great, we must hold to the ideals of private enterprise. "Any company's incentive to make more goods, thus creating more jobs and to invest in research to find new products is limited only by the ability to do so at a profit." We must cherish freedom of opportunity. We must also broaden our democratic conception to include those human rights so sought today through legislation. But we need more than legislation, because in a sense one never legislates tolerance or freedom or human rights. These are things of the spirit.

What we need most is a spiritual awakening made possible through the cooperative efforts of business, education and the churches. Give us businessmen, educators and preachers who have vision and the will to learn how to work together and to discharge the responsibilities of the great system which we all have inherited.

Business, Education

Poor management and poor preparation for business are the fault of us all. On the one hand, education too often takes place in a vacuum. Often the economics professor is one who dangles a Phi Beta Kappa key from one end of his watch chain and nothing from the other end! Educators talk glibly about preparing youth for life on the one hand, and earning a living on the other hand, just as if earning a living was something quite apart from life. One college administrator recently wrote that he does not consider that helping a graduate to find a job any more the business of the college than helping him find a wife! Of course, he was wrong.

Businessmen are just as much to blame for ineffective management as is education. Business has been too busy either making money, fighting depressions, or winning wars to take stock of its own problems, and make long-range plans. Self-made businessmen have developed an especial technique for looking down their noses at college professors. This also is a mistake. In short, business has not given education a chance. Let's begin to swap a few ideas.

Conclusion

Any kind of education or business will be a mockery if it does not prepare men for responsible citizenship and effective participation in our great Republic of Free Men. Effectiveness, however, implies more than an acquaintance with principles. It means an on-the-job application of principles. Business can have better management—churches can have better recruits—and education can become better related to life if business, education, and religion will make the effort to work out their problems together.

Garza and the World

By EVELYN BOYD

As promised, this is the first of a series of articles attempting to interpret and advise regarding the proposed amendments to the constitution of the State of Texas:

Senate Joint Resolution No. 1—Proposing an amendment repealing the provision making the payment of a poll tax a qualification of an elector; requiring the legislature to pass a general registration law for voters.

This is highly controversial, and it probably will be defeated. I personally am against the poll tax, as I think voting is the duty of all citizens, regardless of race, color or creed and it is a privilege which should be free of charge.

Those in favor of the poll tax says the money goes for a good cause (the schools used to get quite a bit of it but the Gilmer-Aikin law now provides otherwise for the schools) and the tax prevents crooked politicians from buying votes at the last minute. I'd say the proposed law requiring registration of voters well ahead of every election would offset this fear.

Let's get rid of the undemocratic poll tax.

Senate Joint Resolution No. 4—Proposing an amendment to provide that the qualification of no person to serve as a juror on grand juries and on petit juries shall be denied and abridged on account of sex; providing that existing provisions of the constitution shall be construed in conformity herewith.

This proposal, if it carries, will be a lifetime victory of the Business and Professional Women's Clubs of Texas. I'm no B. and P. W. member, but I agree with these earnest, hard-working women that women should be allowed to serve on juries.

I see no reason whatsoever why women should not serve on grand and petit juries and I have one VERY EXCELLENT reason for putting women on the juries: The average housewife, in these days of mechanical labor savers, has more time to serve on a jury than the average business man—and it goes without saying that the average woman of today is just as well-informed and intelligent as the average man.

Let's put some women on the grand and petit juries.

Senate Joint Resolution No. 5—Proposing an amendment authorizing the legislature to provide for the creation and establishment of rural fire prevention districts.

Let's vote for this without even discussing it. Anything the state of Texas can do to prevent fires in the rural areas—where there are no fire departments—will be a blessing. It will be worth what ever it costs in lives and property saved.

House Joint Resolution No. 19—Proposing an amendment authorizing the legislature to provide for Civil Service in certain counties upon a vote of the people therein.

The above applies only to counties having a population of 75,000 or more people, and so it does not directly concern us here. A study of the proposal reveals that it applies only to appointive officers.

Offhand, I would say I'm against it. Why should my tax money go to pay a Civil Service salary for a Lubbock County official? It seems to me that a county with 75,000 or more people should be able to pay the salaries of its own officials and such a county should definitely be in a better position than the State of Texas to determine which citizens should have the honor which goes with an appointive office. Under Civil Service, the county would have no such sayso.

Let's leave Civil Service to the state, rather than county, officials.

House Joint Resolution No. 5—Proposing an amendment relating to sessions of the legislature and what may be considered thereat and an amendment relating to compensation of members of the legislature.

This proposal calls for a $3600 salary for each legislator and pays for his travel to and from home (by the nearest and most direct route of travel). It also proposes that appropriations for monthly recurring expenses and salaries paid by the state shall be made for a period of not more than 12 months.

I devoted half a column to this proposed amendment several weeks ago, emphasizing the part about making

THE POST DISPATCH

ESTABLISHED IN JUNE, 1926

Published Every Thursday at the Dispatch Publishing Company Building in Post, Garza County, Texas.

E. A. WARREN, Publisher-Editor

Entered at the Post Office at Post, Texas, for transmission through the mails as second class matter, according to an Act of Congress, March 3, 1879.

Any erroneous reflection upon the character of any person or firm appearing in these columns will be gladly and promptly corrected upon being brought to the attention of the management.

Minute Editorial

The man who has done more than any other person to bring national recognition to Garza County in matters of agriculture, ranching and 4-H progress will be embarrassed next month over some official recognition of his accomplishments. He will be embarrassed because he is the rare type of civic worker who has plodded along somewhat anonymously for 42 years in an effort to do something for the county that welcomed him so hospitably upon his arrival here with his family from his native Scotland in 1907. The early day residents of Garza County did much for him, and he has—in return—given everybody in the county plenty to be proud of in the form of agricultural exhibits which have won first place in state and regional fairs, in the form of goodwill all the way from here to Washington, D. C., in the form of 4-H Club boys who year after year are outstanding in the nation, and in other ways too numerous to list here. That he has, without any ulterior motive or desire for publicity or recognition, done more for Garza County than any other West Texan has done for his own county over a period of 42 years will be brought out in the news events of the next month or more. George Samson's reaction will be: "I don't see what the fuss is all about, I haven't done anything that wasn't the duty of every citizen of the county."

What Our Contemporaries Are Saying:

LAW IS VIOLATED—Two years ago Crosbyton spent $25,000 to extend its sewer line in order that home owners not being served could have the advantages of sewer connections. When the lines were completed, however, it was discovered that materials and labor were scarce, and for this reason no concerted effort was made to enforce the state law requiring that homes on these new lines be tied the state budget every year instead of every other year. This is a good thing. Vote for it.

Yes, and vote for the part giving the legislators a livable salary and expense for necessary travel. It will result in more capable men running for office. Sure, it will cost—but what is more important in state affairs than having capable men as our legislators?

Trends checked this week, however, and found that between 75 and 100 homes in the city which have access to the sewer lines still use unsanitary outdoor toilets. We sympathize, of course, with those who feel that they are unable to connect with the sewer because of the cost, which is high. But we sympathize more with those children who might contract polio this summer because of unsanitary conditions brought on by outdoor toilets. Trends personally thinks it is time that the state law requiring sewer connections be enforced in Crosbyton. —The Crosbyton Review.

That's My House—Painted with COOK'S PAINTS

COOK'S Famous 2-Coat HOUSE PAINTING SYSTEM
Saves You Money—Gives Longer Wear

"ONE COAT FOR THE WOOD"
Cook's amazing new primer discovery, SUPER-WHITE PRIMER, gives you the paint value of primer and undercoats. One coat does the work. It adheres and it seals. It doesn't soak in. Superwhite Primer provides a base that makes the finish coat last much, much longer.

"ONE COAT FOR THE WEATHER"
Cook's HOUSE PAINT, used over Superwhite Primer, gives you a self-cleaning surface that lasts and lasts. It spreads farther because only the finest modern pigments and specially refined linseed oils are used to make it. Thousands of home owners agree that Cook's 2-Coat House Painting System saves them money and gives them extra wear.

Controlled Penetration Makes This Difference
Equal amounts of ordinary paint and Cook's Superwhite Primer were dropped on a test panel. Look at the results!

Ordinary House Paint—Excessive Penetration
Note the large amount of oil that is absorbed by the surface. Where this happens, there is not enough oil to bind the pigment of the paint.

Cook's Superwhite Primer—Controlled Penetration
Here the oil remains in the paint film to bind the pigment particles tightly together. You get paint value of 2 coats—a primer and undercoat—in one coat of Superwhite Primer.

Herron Warns To Take Precaution Against Insects

Since a few fleahoppers have been showing up in Garza County and it is considered the most destructive insect on cotton in this area, Lewis Herron, county agricultural agent, asked the Post Dispatch to publish some Texas Extension Service notes on chemical dusts.

The use of chemical dusts, he said, is the most effective way to reduce insect infestation on cotton, once they are present. The only way to tell whether or not dusting is needed is to learn to recognize the insects and to make infestation counts.

The agent said: Examine 100 terminal buds and count the fleahoppers found. If the count is 25 on the 100 terminal buds, it will pay to dust. This count should be made in several sections of the field to determine whether or not all of the field needs dusting.

The count should be made every seven days from the time the cotton begins to square until it has finished its growth. There is no use dusting sooner than 40 or 50 days until frost.

For bollworms, the agent said. Examine 100 terminal buds for bollworm eggs and small worms. It is not necessary to count the eggs, as their presence will indicate the number of worms that might appear within a few days. If four or five worms per 100 terminal buds are found, dusting should be done immediately and repeated every five days until the worms are under control. Dusting formulas follow:

Fleahoppers—Five per cent DDT and 75 per cent sulphur or 10 per cent Toxaphene and 40 per cent sulphur, 10 lb. per acre.

Bollworms—Ten per cent DDT and 75 per cent sulphur, or 20 per cent Toxaphene and 40 per cent sulphur, or 3-4-5 mixture, 10 to 15 lb. per acre.

Leafworm—Begin spraying when worms first appear—Calcium Arsenate, or 20 per cent Toxaphene and 40 per cent sulphur or 3-4-5 mixture, 10 lb. per acre.

McQuien Harvesting Rye and Vetch Now

Pete Ottinger of the Soil Conservation office said that J. W. McQuien of the Verberna community is combining his vetch and rye crop this week and that he is getting approximately eight bushels per acre and about five per cent is vetch. At least half of the vetch seed has shattered out on the ground. McQuien thinks he will put sweeps on a hoeme and run over the stubble field deep enough to kill the weeds. He believes by planting back with the same seed next fall and with the vetch that volunteers, he will get a stand of vetch and rye mixture.

Rye Proving Valuable Soil Conservation Crop On Witt Farm

C. P. Witt's farm, at Kalgary, a 55 acre field, has had a thorough soil conservation treatment, as rye and vetch were planted on the land last fall. The vetch was almost a complete failure but the rye made an excellent crop. Witt has 750 bushels of rye in his grainery harvested from this field, and an abundance of organic matter in the soil obtained from the rye straw, he told Pete Ottinger, local Conservation Service office, this week.

Witt said he first tried to hoeme the land but the straw balled up between the hoeme teeth. He took a mold board plow and put a man on the plow to keep it cleared and turned under about two-thirds of the straw, leaving enough straw for a soil cover.

The straw turned under will keep the soil open and as it rots will improve the fertility. The straw on the surface will protect the soil from the force of raindrop erosion and crusting. It will insulate the surface from high and low temperature and will protect it from wind evaporation.

Witt thinks this land will make a good cotton crop next year. He said he recalled one other year when the only cotton he made in a dry year was on land where he managed a heavy crop of feed stalks.

Witt is one of the five Duck Creek Soil Conservation District Supervisors. He is saving the 750 bushels of rye for his own planting and for sale to his neighbors whom he believes will be encouraged to plant it.

Letters From The Readers

Editor of the Garza and Column:
I thought for several weeks that you were not writing for having so much interest in the state but I find something in your column that is the praise of its read-state of Texas, if not the best. The merchants certainly should appreciate their editor for the generous write-ups he gives them in his front page column and, judging from their ads, they do.

Even the paper the Post Dispatch is printed on is above that of the average weekly or even some of the large daily papers. Sincerely your friend,
Maybelle Foster Hopkins,

Post Millers Pound Out 9-1 Victory Over Brownfield Bears Last Sunday

The Post Millers put a decisive halt to their losing streak Sunday by pounding out a 9-1 win over the Brownfield Bears at Millers' Park. Doug Simpson's hitting sparked the Millers. He slammed out a pair of triples and a single on four trips to the plate. Curley Barnett gave up only five hits during the game. Barnett gave up a run in the first inning, then blanked the Bears the rest of the way. He struck out six while walking one, received errorless backing from the Post crew. Bob Beal, twirling for the visitors, blanked the locals for three innings, but the Millers broke loose for three runs in the fourth and four more in the fifth to sew up the win. Beal fanned nine and gave up five bases on balls.

In the other five games of the Oil Belt loop, Sundown unleashed a 20-hit barrage to swamp the Levelland Refiners, 14-4 at Levelland. The victory was Sundown's 11th against eight defeats. Lefty Faulkner pitched the Seagraves crew to a 5-0 triumph at Tahoka. In addition to hurling the Indians to an easy win, Faulkner polled out three triples to drive in four runs. Denver City swamped Slaton 9-5 behind the pitching of Hook Epperson.

Sunday's win for the Millers placed them in fourth place in the loop, it was unofficially announced here Tuesday.

Millers Have Four Home Games On Oil Belt League Card

With only five games remaining on the Miller's Oil Belt League schedule, Post fans will have the opportunity of seeing four of the games without having to motor farther than Millers' Park, it was pointed out this week by Jim Hundley, local baseball official.

Tonight at 8:30 o'clock the Denver City crew will cross bats with the Millers on the home diamond and next Sunday Levelland will invade Millers Park. The Millers will hit the road July 21 for Sundown and their final away-from-home game of the season. The following Sunday Slaton comes here and on Thursday night, July 28, the season closes with Brownfield furnishing the opposition.

The Millers have won ten and lost nine.
