Valid Reason Given For Your Nose Jutting Out In Middle Of The Face

Life begins with the nose. In a pinch — a pinched nose, that is — life can be diverted to mouth channels, but without nasal breathing there is usually some diversion from good health.
 So the nose obviously has some reason for the jutting out appearance it creates in the middle of your face. When a nose assumes larger than normal proportions, such as that of Jimmy Durante's, it is usually comically referred to as a proboscis, a word which literally means, "a way of providing food." In Jimmy Durante's case, his proboscis may be considered his means of a livelihood, his nose is his fortune.

COTTON BOWL HEAD—Leonard Malcolm Green (above) is president of the Cotton Bowl which presented its 16th annual football classic in Dallas Jan. 1 when Texas Christian University played Kentucky. At 42, Green is one of the youngest men ever to head such an organization. He is also president of the Dr. Pepper Company of Dallas. His alma mater is Baylor.

Everyone's nose might well be considered his fortune, however, and the interpretation that it is a means of getting food might fit in to the picture of health, with the nose in the middle. The original Greek word from which "proboscis" was taken meant leading to pasture, painting a picture of a shepherd taking his flock into fields where they could eat and gain strength.
 The nose can be well considered the shepherd of the body, and a good shepherd it is. The flock could be all those organs inside of you, each part of you that requires food from the air that the nose pulls in to the body. So good is your shepherding nose, however, that your flock stays put, more or less, and the shepherd sees that the food gets where the flock is tethered.
 What does the nose do about the food it picks up in the air? In the first place, it guards against impurities by thousands of little hairs, sticky little hairs which try to catch and cleanse the impurities before they get started to the organs of the body. There are many impurities in the air, of course, and the nose has two scrub teams working hard all the time, one in each nostril, just a scrubbing and a washing to beat the band.
 With so much action going on in the nose, the air is also heated so that the "flock" of organs that will receive nourishment from the air won't get a cold blast from the outside. The good shepherd takes care of everything.
 Some things have no place among the flock that the nose guards. Take pepper, for instance.

to "get" a few more bugs than the normal nasal channel could catch. Maybe they could be considered to do a scalding job after the air has already been washed.

The hard palate, the arched top of your mouth, is the floor of the nasal cavity. From the nose, the air goes through the nasal cavity with all its sinuses, they hit a downward dip called the pharynx, which is the throat.

The pharynx may be pictured as something like a lighthouse. The dome of the pharynx is jammed up against the bottom of the skull, the bone that encloses the brain. The dome is right at the beginning of the downward dip from the nasal cavity, called the nasopharynx, the spot noted for the growth of adenoids. Since that light in the dome of the lighthouse hits the air as it passes but has no connection with the food that goes through the mouth, it may be considered as the electric eye that tells the air food it's supposed to head off for the forward track down the way, going down the windpipe or trachea instead of taking the backward track, the gullet or esophagus, which is the route of food from the mouth.

Anyway, however, it knows what to do, the air swishes past the mouth opening (there by the tonsils) and takes out for the epiglottis, that trapdoor that flaps over the windpipe. This epiglottis does not open for solid foods under normal conditions though it seems that kernels of beans and corn often have a way of getting off the back track and going into the front track, the trachea, where they don't belong and causing much consternation.

From the epiglottis, the air skids down the moistly lined larynx, past the voice box, splitting off into various branches at the bronchial tubes and finally landing up in the lungs.

All of this life-sustaining process started from the nose. Air can certainly get to the lungs from the mouth. But since the nose is known to be a purifier and warmer of air, then the air breathed through the mouth is not as good fodder for the respiratory organs as the air that has been filtered, scrubbed, baked, scalded, and guided by all those gadgets that make up the upper respiratory tract, starting with the nose.

Movie of the Week

Every so often a picture comes out of Hollywood with that special Sunday afternoon appeal. Or the appeal that hits the entire family and carries them to the theater in a group to enjoy the warmth and joy that such a picture can bring them.

Such a picture is "TLL SEE YOU IN MY DREAMS."

"TLL SEE YOU IN MY DREAMS," (showing Sunday and Monday at the TOWER) is Warner Bros.' musical tribute to song-dom's ever-so-gay Gus Kahn. Gus Kahn — a fellow who wrote "I Love You" for millions of sweethearts in America — but didn't know how to say it to his own girl.

"TLL SEE YOU IN MY DREAMS" is also the story of the girl who put the love in the love-songs Kahn wrote. It vividly portrays their jubilant careers in the show-world's golden era. It is a story of American spirit—of real people — and real love.

For the girl of the show, Warner Brothers could not have made a better choice than Doris Day. Danny Thomas plays the life of Kahn. His talented partner in the composing field is played by Frank Lovejoy.

Enjoy a grand time and see "TLL SEE YOU IN MY DREAMS" at the TOWER Sunday and Monday. Remember, it's a treat for the whole family.

Mr. and Mrs. Sid Cross have two tickets to "TLL SEE YOU IN MY DREAMS" waiting for them at the boxoffice. They are good for any performance.

Second billing on this week's movie menu is "BEHAVE YOURSELF" Starring Farley Granger and Shelley Winters. "BEHAVE YOURSELF" gives the audience adventure full of hilarity and thrills through a newlywed couple who blunder into a series of gang killings.

What happens to them shouldn't happen to a dog. And speaking of dogs, "BEHAVE YOURSELF" has a surprise star for you. Yep, you guessed it—a dog. But not an ordinary dog. No, sir-ee. Archie is a special dog around which the plot of the story is based.

Take two newlyweds, a dog, a bunch of thugs and a mother-in-law and what do you have? A package of fun 81 minutes long and titled "BEHAVE YOURSELF." This shows Wednesday and Thursday.

She's back! Bigger, louder, funnier and more lovable than ever. Judy Canova is back on the screen in a new hit, "HONEY-CHILE" hits Post like the echo of an atomic bomb Friday and Saturday. Judy stars as a hill-

Register Car, Get An Official Map

Need an official Texas map? You will have an opportunity to get one when you register your car this year. So says Carl Cederholm, deputy tax assessor-collector.

The Texas Highway department in cooperation with the county tax assessor-collector is once again offering a free official highway map to each registrant through a post card plan inaugurated last year.

This service on the part of the Highway Department and county tax assessor-collector is intended to provide a means by which the Texas car owner can get something extra for his registration fee. These cooperating state and county agencies feel that every motorist who desires one of the colorful official maps is certainly entitled to it.

The Official Highway Map not only shows the 40,000 miles of state highways but many of the Texas scenic highlights for the next vacation or week-end trip. Chock-full of information, the map encourages everyone to "See Texas First."

Here is the way you may take advantage of this opportunity. Every Texas resident who registers his vehicle in the state will be offered a return addressed post card at the same time he purchases the 1952 license plates.

If the car owner so desires, he may affix a two cent stamp to the card along with his name and address and mail it to the Highway Department in Austin. In return, a free copy of the colorful Official Highway Travel Map will be dispatched to the addressee.

A billy gal who writes a best seller song, but decides not to have it published because she is in love with a local yokel (Allan Hale, jr.) But the song publisher wants the song published and the shenanigans that are gone to in getting the song before the public will tear the house down.

Tuesday, the TOWER brings you the Reader's Digest sensation that shocked the nation. "I WAS AN AMERICAN SPY" — the startling story of the American Mata Hari" who gambled her life and her honor against the world's most dangerous men. It rocks the screen with intrigue and treachery — reckless love, cold-blooded revenge.

"That's the Smartest Million Dollars BUICK Ever Spent"

WHEN we tell you that every 1952 Buick rides like a million dollars, we're not just slinging slang—we're talking real money—right-on-the-barrelhead cash.

A million dollars and more were poured into research and testing—design and tools—engineering, production and components—to team up the combination of ride features you'll find on a Buick—and on no other car in the world.

A million dollars and more was the price paid to work out control of end-sway and side-roll on curves—to double-check vertical "throw" with shock absorbers and big soft-acting coil springs for all four wheels—to V-brace the torque-tube keel and X-brace the frame—to cushion body and engine—and to silk out the whole operation with Dynaflo Drive.*

You may not care how the job was done, or what it cost. But we'll lay you this: You're going to say "thanks a million" to Buick engineers once you get this spirited smoothie under your hands and haunches.

Old familiar roads take on a new smoothness. Gone are the weave and wander, the jitter and jounce that you've felt in lesser cars. You ride with road-hugging assurance and level ease.

All of which only begins to tell you what really great cars these 1952 Buicks turned out to be.

Never before have style and stamina—comfort and character—power, performance and price been brought together with such satisfying skill.

The obvious thing for you to do is come in and look them over. How about taking half an hour off to do that—today?

Report Shows The Importance Of The Gilmer-Aiken Laws To Texas

Some early effects of the Gilmer-Aiken laws on rural education in Texas have been reported by Dr. R. L. Skrabanek, rural sociologist with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station. These laws, enacted in 1949, called for a complete revision of the method for financing public schools and guaranteed each child of school age in Texas a school program for nine full months per year.

Dr. Skrabanek recently conducted a study of the effects of the Gilmer - Aiken laws in five rural counties in different parts of the state — Burleson county in East-Central Texas, Castro and Lynn counties on the High Plains, Schleicher county on the Edwards Plateau and Tyler county in East Texas.

Although the five counties had a loss in population of 12.7 percent between 1940 and 1950, the study showed that both school enrollment and attendance of rural children have increased since the Gilmer - Aiken legislation was enacted.

The average length of school term in 1945-49 was 171.8 days. In 1949-51, the average number of days that school was taught had increased to 175.1.

Dr. Skrabanek reported that the number of pupils per teacher in 1945-49 was 24.6. This number had been reduced to 22.5 in 1949-51.

"Special service" teachers provided in the five counties during the 1950-51 school year included four librarians, three school nurses and four itinerant teachers. Dr. Skrabanek points out that schools in these five rural counties had no such personnel on their staffs before the Gilmer-Aiken laws were enacted.

As a result of the minimum wage scale for teachers provided by the Gilmer - Aiken laws, classroom teachers received an annual salary increase of almost $1,000 — an increase from an average of $1,909 for 1945-49 to $2,908 for 1949-51.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

Experienced Hand Wanted

Cappy Miller's back from visiting relatives and tells about a big snow storm that knocked out the electric power for miles around. Naturally, the local power company was doing everything possible to restore service but folks kept calling in and one woman gave them a new twist.

"I don't mind not having lights," she grumbled, "but I've got 20 cows in my barn and they all have to be milked by machine. Nobody around here knows how to milk a cow by hand any more."

From where I sit, it's only too easy to forget how to do something—even as simple as milking a cow—if we don't keep at it. And that goes for practicing tolerance, too. Like forgetting our neighbor has a right to decide for himself whether or not to enjoy a temperate glass of beer. If we don't keep the other fellow's point of view in mind we're all liable to get "snowed under" by intolerance.

State Of Texas Observes 35th Birthday Of Roads With State-Wide Highway Week

Editor's Note: Last Week Was Highway Week in Texas. The state has been observing the 35th birthday of the Highway Department. Many Garza county residents will be vitally interested in learning what the department has accomplished...

The age of a highway is the best gauge of service it is still able to render, with 20 years generally considered to be the average life span of a paved road.

Right now, Texas has 1,800 miles of primary pavement that have borne the pounding of more than two decades. Not only is this mileage in desperate need of replacement, but 56 percent of the primary system has passed the midway mark of its 20-year life expectancy.

A recent study of Texas' arterial highways, used by 71 percent of all traffic, showed that 778 million would be required to modernize them to meet recognized standards for safety and convenience to the traveling public.

During the fiscal year ending in September, 1950, more than $24 million was spent on daily maintenance of Texas' highway system as a whole, while $29 1-2 million went to improvement of primary roads.

If the dollar had been worth as much in 1951 as it was ten years earlier, the Highway Department's purchasing power would have more than doubled.

During these years travel on Texas highways jumped 97 percent while mileage under maintenance increased 55 percent.

Another contributing factor for condition is the increased demand brought on by doubling of the number of automobiles in Texas during the last ten years, along with the sharp rise in population.

More than 40,000 miles of paved state highway constructed with no bonded state indebtedness — that's the record of the 35-year-old Texas Highway Department.

Statewide roadbuilding policy had to conform to that trend, with more and more emphasis being placed on construction within cities. Mileage maintained during the 1940's increased from 23,000 to 40,000 miles with about 4,000 miles being added annually.

Today the state never programs construction until the county involved has shown ability to bear its share of cost, which includes securing right-of-way and clearing it of all obstructions.

Right now concern is deepest over the state's primary road system, truck lines connecting cities. Although 71 percent of all traffic uses these roads, they represent only 41 percent of total mileage.

For state-city construction, the city must not only provide right-of-way, but also must provide whatever utilities and storm sewer work is necessary.

Many sections of this primary network date back to the days of the Model T. Multiplied demands of today's traffic are too much for these roads; yet current funds are insufficient for rebuilding them.

When the Highway Department was created in 1917 it was activated with ten employees; today its personnel numbers more than 9,000, of whom 8,200 work in its 25 districts across the state.

Still another major bottleneck in Texas' transportation system is the narrow bridge. Engineers have pronounced one out of every ten bridges too weak to withstand even the load authorized by law.

Highways in Texas are classified under three types. Primary roads form the arterial link between cities; secondary roads are feeder routes on which traffic is usually lighter than on the primary system, although secondary roads frequently connect cities.

This often creates an awkward situation whereby a trucker finds his cargo well below the weight limitation on one bridge, while with the same load on another bridge he is violating the law.

Each type may be financed by 50-50 state-federal money for construction, but thereafter all expense of upkeep must be borne by the state.

Aside from load limit, it has been found that half the bridges in Texas are inadequate as to width and vertical clearance for traffic forced to use them.

Prior to 1917, all roadbuilding in Texas was done on the county level, which naturally resulted in strips of fair roads over some parts of the state but sorry ones elsewhere.

Engineers estimate that at least $285 million are needed to bring Texas' bridges up to par. Only 300 miles of Texas' highways have divided traffic lanes.

This Act required each state to appoint a body to supervise federal aid to counties, with Uncle Sam providing 25 percent and each county 75 percent of the cost of putting Highway 80 across that county.

Gems of Thought

Individuality
God has endowed man with inalienable rights, among which are self government, reason and conscience.

Mary Baker Eddy
Every human being is intended to have a character of his own; to be what no other is, and to do what no other can do.

William Ellery Channing
We live too much in platoons; we march by sections; we do not live in our individuality enough; we are slaves to fashion in mind and heart if not to our passions and appetites.

Edwin Hubbel Chapin
He who thinks for himself, and rarely imitates, is a free man.

Friedrich G. Klopstock
Individuality is everywhere to be spared and respected as the root of everything good.

John Paul Richter
The worth of a state, in the long run, is the worth of the individuals composing it.

John Stuart Mill
Visiting the Tom Welborns in Ruidoso, N. M., over the weekend were Mr. and Mrs. John Lott and Mrs. Lott's sister and her husband of Fort Worth.

THEY GROW THEM PRETTY IN POST — Irwin Franklyn, public relations man for the Edgar Bergen troupe, got left out of the picture last week until just before show time. Other members of the troupe received plenty of attention, but not Franklyn. However, after Beth Hamilton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. G. Hamilton, straightened his tie before the show, Franklyn said, "That made up for all the lack of attention. All I have to say is they sure grow pretty girls in Post." Now you can judge car value for yourself!

Get the complete facts and figures the "Show Down" Way!

This FREE "Show Down" booklet gives you proof instead of "sell" ... presents the facts about features, arranged for easy comparison. For example, you can quickly compare Dodge head room, seat width and stretch-out room with that of other cars costing hundreds of dollars more. You get actual specifications — not generalizations.

No "Strings" — No Obligation

Come in today and get your own copy of the "Show Down" booklet. It's convincing, it's convenient, it's free. Take it home and make money-saving comparisons at your leisure. You'll learn what thousands of new Dodge owners will testify: "You could pay hundreds of dollars more for a car and still not get all Dodge gives you!"
