Winners in each of these contests will draw $100 for first, $60 for second, $40 for third and $20 for fourth best time. The contestant with the best go-round average in each event will receive $75 first and $50 second.

In the three riding contests, bareback bronc, saddle bronc and steer riding, go-round monies total $160 in each event, with $70 first, $40 second, $30 third and $20 fourth. The contestant with best two go-round's average in saddle bronc and steer riding will receive $40, second $30 and third $10.

The cowgirl sponsor who has the best show average will receive $100.

Contestants must enter both go-rounds before 1 p. m. Wednesday, May 23 in order to compete for the average prize money in all events. Entrance fee may be sent to Homer McCrary, Stampede secretary, anytime before the deadline.

The booklets will be mailed to several hundred rodeo contestants who take part in the rodeo each year.

NEW PUBLIC OFFICIALS . . . LOAD LIMIT LAW . . .

Post has a new city commission, elected in a record vote Tuesday. We believe that capable men were elected but we also feel that the unsuccessful candidate for mayor, Pat Walker, did the people of Post a great service. His candidacy provided an opposition ticket brought out 300 more voters than the last election. We agree with Walker that opposition is more democratic and healthful, even if it is unsuccessful. In totalitarian systems, the voters overwhelmingly elect the party candidate. In a republican system, such as we have, they can exercise a choice. That is why we feel that giving the voters a choice is a public service. Too many regard voting as a privilege instead of a duty. Too many fail to realize that local government is the foundation of our national government. A strong local government provides a strong foundation. Non-voters are undermining the foundation and letting the bureaucrats build up a top-heavy structure in Washington. If we lose control of the local foundation, we can only expect them to take over since they realize their structure badly needs a base. Legitimate ways to stir up more interest in local elections are blood transfusions to democracy in its efforts to stave off socialization and dictatorship.

We have been quite interested in the trucker's campaign to raise the load limit in Texas. A large per cent of the highway violations that pass through Justice of the Peace J. D. King's court are overloads. King has made a study of the trucker's charges that the Texas limit is too low. It just is not true, he says. King points out the expansion made by a local boy, Arno Dalby, who has quite a trucking fleet. Dalby never overloads his trucks, King says, yet he has been able to grow from a very small operator to head a firm which runs from Oklahoma City to Los Angeles. King's research effectively scotches the idea that truckers cannot make a profit with a legal load. He also points out that excessive loads DO ruin our highways. Since the pressure is uneven while a heavy truck is moving, great holes are eaten out of the road. This happens all the more quickly on farm-to-market roads which do not have an expensive base. King says, and we agree, that raising the load limit in Texas, will not only harm the little trucker, it will take a big bite out of the taxpayer's pocket as well. The taxpayer is the one who paves the roads. Trucking firms are subsidized in that they are granted free use of the roads. The taxpayer is making their business profitable.

Texans In WASHINGTON

By TEX EASLEY, Associated Press Washington Service

WASHINGTON — Events such as "Texas chili night" at the National Press club are the kind of affairs which officials here welcome as relief from serious problems.

The Press club provides some outstanding events of this kind, for its functions are planned without an axe to grind or cause to espouse.

Texas chili night (March 31) was a colorful affair. The Lone Star flag and cow-country trimmings—cactus, bear grass, high-heeled boots, sombreros and plain old dungarees were much in evidence. Chili, tamales, and beverages, all shipped from Texas, were featured on the menu.

Some semi-social affairs, sponsored annually by trade organizations also are enjoyed by weary congressmen and their wives.

In this category is the National Cotton Council's annual style and fashion show-cocktail party, where the leading model is a pretty girl from a cotton-growing state.

"Miss Maid of Cotton for 1951," to be presented to Washington is Miss Jeannine

Holland of Houston. Miss Holland, 21, is a senior at Texas State College for Women at Denton.

Another group which holds an annual meeting in Washington, and stages an above-average dinner without business talk, is the Gulf Ports association.

In charge of this affair is the local representative of the Galveston chamber of commerce, Robert A. Nesbitt, a former Galveston newspaperman.

Port officials in Florida, Alabama, Louisiana and Texas comprise the association. The dinners are good will gestures for the congressmen from Gulf-coast states, who would do what ever they could to stimulate commerce through their respective states, regardless of such social affairs.

If a congressman went to all the dinners to which he is invited, he would have few nights at home, so he turns down many invitations.

ROGER W. BABSON WRITES THIS WEEK

A Home in the Country Is a Must For Safety in Case of Atom Bombing

WASHINGTON, D. C. — For some time, I have been advising my readers who live in large cities to have—as insurance—a small house with enough land to feed one's family and far enough away from the large city to be safe in case of World War III.

I am not recommending farming as a small business, as it is fast becoming a "big business" operation. It is very difficult for an inexperienced person, without much capital, to compete with big farmers. As insurance, however, I believe such a small place in the country is the cheapest, safest and most sensible insurance a family can buy, after being insured against fire.

I am now getting letters from readers saying:—"We already have a house to which we can flee in an emergency. Hence, we are okay whatever happens." This week I wish to remind such readers that they have forgotten the "refugee problem." It is very possible that when you reach your "hide-away," you will find it already occupied by others who have fled from a large city and—by permission of the Red Cross or some state official—have already taken possession. The rifle may be that the first refugees who reach an unoccupied house—or an occupied house with empty rooms—can take possession, whoever the owner may be.

Hence, it is important that we (who think we are well provided with a safe refuge) should wake up and do something now, to prepare for an abrupt surprise! This applies not only to those who are planning to flee to a summer place in the country, but also to those who now live snugly in the quiet suburbs of some city which may be bombed. Such houses will be occupied by strangers if we leave them vacant—while we must share them with strangers if we remain in them. In case of enemy bombing, refugees will be given any empty beds whenever needed.

"What shall we home owners do?" you ask. Let me reply that our future safety depends upon getting interested now in helping the other fellow. If a city within 75 miles is bombed, only those who are truly unselfishly interested in helping the refugees will save their own homes, whether in a city suburb or in a little farm or village.

This means we should now become an active Red-Cross or refugee worker. We should now study first-aid nursing and emergency diet. We should now definitely plan to take strange people into our homes either in entirety or in part, in case of need. If we have a barn or garage or empty building, we should now fix it up for refugees.

Our personal safety will then depend not upon how much money we have, but how much we are doing for other people who have lost everything. Only our generosity will save us. Sincerity and the feeling that we will get preferential treatment because of our homes, our money, our social standing or our political skill could lead us in a concentration camp.

It is very important that we at once quit being an "anti" and now train ourselves and our children to care and share with others. It seems as if everyone with whom I talk is "anti-something." Some families are anti-Jewish, others anti-Negroes, others anti-Catholics and others anti-Protestants, or anti-Labor or anti-Capital! Then, I find one family is anti-Truman and the family next door is anti-Taft, or anti-something else.

Some are for World Federation, in which I believe, and other laugh at me. To save our own necks we must forget this "anti-stuff" and remember Jesus' profound statement: "If we are to save our lives we must be willing to lose our lives."

All of us are more or less "anti" on our Foreign policy—whether to follow Hoover or Dewey, or Acheson. I especially wish the United Nations could quit its childish debating about "who cast the first stone." It should unite on some constructive policy of providing all countries with their just peace needs of oil, food and other necessary raw materials. This is the only way World War III can be prevented.

Our hopes and safety lies not with more bombers, more ships and more ground troops but in assuring the world of the four freedoms which we offered them nearly ten years ago. But, in the meantime, let all of us plan something for the refugees in case some city near us is bombed.

TRAFFIC DEATHS . . .

Almost 2000 more people were killed in 1950 than in the year before in accidents involving collisions with automobiles. Collisions with automobiles and with pedestrians resulted in 61.5 per cent of the total deaths from accidents during the past year. The sum of the 1950 traffic dead was 30 times greater than the total of our dead, wounded or missing men in Korea, early this year. More persons died as a result of the driver's exceeding the speed limit, than any other of a driver's actions. Driving on wrong side of road was the next highest percentage of death-dealing driver-caused accidents. Almost 40 per cent of the pedestrians who died as a result of traffic accidents were struck when crossing streets between intersections. Sixty-eight per cent of drivers involved in fatal accidents are between the ages of 25 and 68. Only 24 per cent are between the ages 18 to 24. Ninety-eight per cent of the fatal accidents involved drivers with more than one year's driving experience. Only seven per cent of the drivers involved in fatal accidents last year were women. Ninety-two per cent were men. If you drive a car or walk on the streets, you, too, can become a statistic.

Getting Out On the LIMB . . .

by EDDIE the editor

I have always wondered what market researchers and consumer's surveyors were until I read an article in a national magazine.

I just figured they are to Dagwood what Lower Slobbovians are to Lil Abner, a figment of a cartoonist's imagination. Nobody ever calls me up and asks me what radio program I listen to, or if I am the one man in seven who shaves daily.

The Little Woman tries out every new thing and we don't have time to get attached to any one product. But anyway, I found out how other people's peculiar notions govern the law of supply and demand even more than Truman's efforts to cause inflation.

For instance, people won't buy fog lights unless they are amber colored. This is in spite of the fact that a big company brought out some more powerful lights with clear lenses and now amber lenses cost more than the others. People just believe that amber lenses are better and so they won't buy clear ones.

Another interesting fact was, according to this article, people will not buy superior butyl rubber tubes because they are gray and natural rubber tubes are red. The butyl tubes are supposed to last 10 times longer and be more resistant to tearing than those made of natural rubber.

When fresh peach ice cream was put on the market, the public wouldn't buy it because it did not taste peachy enough. Manufacturers had to mix up some kind of synthetic that tasted more like peaches than peaches and add it to the ice cream.

One lady who served as a guinea pig for a big company did not like foot pedal door openers on her refrigerator. Her cat thought he was people and sat on the pedal all the time, opening the door so he could cool off. My Cat Clemlintine prefers to sit more on the dining table than anything that has any remote connection with feet. But then we are not, as I have said, consumer's advisors.

I was very glad to find out what the labels on champagne mean. In our family, we make it a habit to keep champagne about, to cook with, to water the ivy, etc. The Little Woman uses beer to roll up her hair, but any day now, she is likely to graduate to champagne.

"Brut" on a champagne bottle means absolutely dry. I judge dry means not sweet. When the vintner had added just a little sweetening, the champagne is labeled "dry," the very sweetest is labeled "Extra Dry." I have a sneaking suspicion that the man who figured all this out is the same fellow who elected Dewey in 1948.

Synthetic detergents, which means ersatz cleansing agents, were not popular at first, this writer claims, because they did not make suds. Everyone demanded suds before they could believe tattle-tale gray was really gone. So, the manufacturers had to figure out a way to make detergents suds and at the same time deterger and not lose all their cleansing properties.

Foam rubber pillows have not been too popular, except with allergies, because those who liked soft pillows thought them all hard and vice versa. So one company puts out a firm Papa Bear pillow, a medium Mama Bear pillow and an extra soft Baby Bear pillow.

Of course, they don't realize that they're all mixed up on the story and Goldilocks never has bothered to drop in and straighten them out. It is true that the Father Bear's chair and bed were hard, but it was the Mama Bear whose bed and chair were soft, and the Little Wee Baby Bear's little wee baby bed and chair were Just Right. At least that is the way it was when I was going to school, a few years back.

I also read in this same article about a device which I would like to buy my mother. It would save her many trips to Slaton. It is a hot dog cooker that is automatic. You insert the coin and in one minute, out comes a cooked hot dog. This didn't go over at first because nobody could see anything happening.

They added a light that went off when the cooking was completed and the machine started to sell like hot cakes. As long as my Mother can see that light working, she will know that her hot dog is being cooked and will be satisfied.

Anyway, a staff of experts and a multimillion dollar business is maintained trying to find out what people will buy and trying not to manufacture what they don't want.

One company tried to pull a fast one on some breakfast food and lost $200,000 while another spent $20,000 and perfected the same breakfast food. The first company went broke and the second is rich and powerful today. So there.

When I go to the picture show

THE AMERICAN WAY

Close Those Valves

Our Contemporaries Are Saying:

It Sez Here
People in Crosbyton, too, are getting themselves exercised over the Lubbock advertising sheet that blasts through the county every few days to litter up the premises with scarce (?) newsprint. The Review last week reported the matter is being considered by the City Commission, and steps may be taken to halt the company from continuing the present practice. Some ire is being directed toward Lubbock merchants who patronize this medium of advertising. Evidently there are two reasons why merchants buy such space — because it's cheap and because an entirely unsupported claim of 50,000 circulation is claimed. Wal, now,

I am always seeing a short on the reaction of the preview audience to some fine picture I'm supposed to go see. I would like to see the preview or the picture and just dispense with all this consumer's research on it. I like to be entertained but I am not interested in Trigger's opinion of Lassie as a great dramatic actress or either as a comedienne of talent.

I am still waiting for Mr. Babson's chocolate-coated fish. Just for curiosity, I will volunteer to be a consumer researcher or whatever you call it and see if I like chocolate-covered fish and get extra added energy from eating same.

If the treasury department would like to test out the public reaction to the new money they are printing, I will be willing to act as a guinea pig. I think I can spend bills in any denomination from $2 to $20. I would even try the larger denominations if necessary. However, I get all my change from Jim (Grandpa) Hundley and I wouldn't want to embarrass him.

I would not mind doing a little market research for the Bureau of Internal Revenue. I would be glad to conduct an experiment in my business to find out if people had just soon pay lower income taxes and put the government to less trouble collecting them.

I don't smoke cigarettes but I am willing to work on a consumer's advisory project with any cigar company whose product sells for over 20 cents each. I could give them the opinion of an expert, say, for four or five boxes.

If the Cadillac people ever decide to make a road test of their automobile under West Texas conditions, I will be happy to offer my services. In fact, if I ever get tired of the newspaper business, I think I will just take up research.

If the Banner could be left stuffed in every prairie dog hole, four or five copies left at every church and vacant house, and the rest dumped in the city refuse, it could claim a mighty powerful circulation, too. Legitimate newspapers are some different—people pay to read 'em, and the paid circulation is sworn to at the post office before it can be entered as second class matter. Yessir, these ad sheets have a wide circulation, but prairie dogs don't read, no customers live at the city dump, and people who attend church prefer to use more inspirational material during services. We're not complaining because the shopping guide is a competitor — it certainly isn't. If it were, we'd keep mighty quiet. People are quick to grasp the differences between paid circulation and handbills scattered promiscuously over a freshly tidied lawn.

Buzz And The Off-Key Baritones

Reverend Lester of the church out on Hillsboro Road coaches his Young Peoples' Choir late Thursday afternoons—after high school basketball practice lets out.

Buzz Ellis pastures cows next to that church. Around 5 o'clock they used to make a lot of racket about wanting to go home. That made it kind of rough on the choir.

When Buzz learned what was going on he said to Reverend Lester: "I never yet heard of a cow that could moo on key. So, I'll just move 'em in a little earlier..." This started me to thinking. Buzz doesn't go to that church. And he's so tone-deaf he couldn't carry a tune in a bucket!

From where I sit, you might say that Buzz didn't have much in common with those singers. But he doesn't divide folks into groups he's "with" or "agin." Your politics, your personal preferences—or the fact that you like a moderate glass of beer—mean nothing either way to Buzz. He's a real neighbor to everybody!

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cox Build Ranch Style White and Brown Frame House on North Polk

The new ranch style frame house built by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cox on North Polk seems to express their personalities.

It is of white siding, with the front porch faced in brown, horizontal siding. The Coxes made their own house plans, adapting them from a plan they saw in a book. They moved in about Dec. 10, last year. The house faces east.

Slab doors are used throughout the house. They are of Philippine mahogany. The house is heated with a floor furnace in the living room and one in the master bedroom. Floors throughout the house are hardwood.

The front door has three narrow, horizontal glass panes. The living room is papered on three sides with green, gray and white horizontal stripes. Wall paper on the north is a floral pattern, dark green foliage with accents of brown and other shades of green. A modern style desk in a chocolate colored wood, with matching chair, is on this wall.

Three wide, short windows are on the front. They each have four horizontal panes. Dark green nylon draw curtains are on the windows, over light green venetian blinds with darker tapes.

Chartreuse Emphasis
A chartreuse lamp with shade, trimmed in gray emphasizes the color scheme on a delicate corner table. The gray sectional sofa is separated with a section by the front door and the other section in the southwest corner of the room.

An occasional chair is upholstered in a green floral print on a light background. Mrs. Cox is upholstering another chair in bright red. The radio-record player combination is on another tier table. End tables are beside the chairs and there is another tall table in the room.

The hall, 4 by 10 feet in dimensions, is papered in the same stripe as the living room. These stripes are vertical. The telephone is in the hall and a linen closet is also here.

Lin Allyn, the Cox's 5-year-old daughter, has the front bedroom. She chose the paper for it, stripes in pink, white and gray. The stripes run horizontally. Her double closets hold her clothing, on racks she can reach, and toys. The room is 12 by 15 feet in size.

Light green organdy priscilla curtains are at the double windows on the east and the single window on the south. Furnishings include white single beds with light green spreads, trimmed with rose, and a white chest. It is child-size, with a chair covered in a green floral print for Lin Allyn to grow to.

Master Bedroom

The master bedroom is the southwest room. Corner windows are on both the outside corners. Dimensions of this room are 13 by 16 feet. Wall paper is chocolate brown with white flowers and light and dark green leaves.

Furnishings include a double bed, chest of drawers, and dresser. Mrs. Cox uses her sewing machine as a night stand. The bedroom closet is 4½ by 3 feet in dimension. Racks on either side hold their clothes and a wide storage space is in the middle. Cox plans to build in drawers and shelves when he has time. It is cedar-papered.

The bathroom is opposite Lin Allyn's room. It is wainscoted in platinum gray sheetrock. Inlaid linoleum is on the floor. Paper over the wainscoting is large red roses with light and dark green leaves on a light background. The hotwater heater closet, the dirty clothes hamper and a linen closet hide the recessed bath tub and shower.

The bathroom measures 9 by 9½ feet. Fixtures are white. The floor is also platinum gray.

Long, Narrow Kitchen
The kitchen and dining room is long and narrow, 19 by 9 feet. On two walls are ideal kitchen cabinets. On the east wall, they go over the gas range and refrigerator, coming down into a broom closet on the side. The cabinets also run around the south wall. A green inlaid top is on the work counter beneath the south cabinets and on each side of the double sink. The sink is beneath a window on the west wall. The work counter ends in a small service bar with open storage shelves.

An automatic washer is stationed between the stove and the refrigerator, serving also as added counter space. The dining area is in the north end of the room. Walls are painted palest green. Pale yellow venetian blinds with green tapes are at the window over the sink and beside the dining table.

The floor is identical to that in the bathroom. Dining chairs are gray plastic and chrome and the table is dark green. A small, uncovered concrete terrace runs from the back door to the door in the attached garage.

The back yard is huge. After it is leveled the Coxes plan to plant grass and flowers. They intend to run a ledge down the alley. When they need more room, they have plans to build the house toward the back. Mr. and Mrs. Cox are also working on the front lawn. A wide concrete drive leads to the garage.

National SCS Head Is Retained

Retention of Dr. Hugh H. Bennett, chief of the Soil Conservation service, past his retirement date has been announced by Secretary of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan.

Dr. Bennett has been with the U. S. Department of Agriculture since 1903, as soil chemist and soil surveyor, and as chief of the Soil Conservation service since its establishment in 1935. He was on loan to the Department of Interior from September 1933 until March 1935, where he organized and headed the Soil Erosion service before its transfer to the Department of Agriculture as the renamed Soil Conservation service.

The veteran of nearly 48 years' service in the Department will be 70 years old April 15. In announcing Dr. Bennett's extension, Secretary Brannan said: "Particularly today, when agricultural production is so important in our mobilization program, Dr. Bennett's long experience is invaluable. His continued services will contribute greatly to the further advancement of soil and water conservation, which is so important in the mobilization of our agricultural resources."

Dr. Bennett has been a soil conservation advocate and leader since shortly after he graduated from the University of North Carolina in 1903 and entered the old Bureau of Chemistry and Soil as a soil chemist. He turned a temporary assignment to field duty into permanent field work. It took him eventually into most of the agricultural counties in the United States and on special assignments to Cuba, Alaska and Central and South American countries.

His specific interest in soil conservation dates back to 1904, when he concluded, during a soil survey of Appomattox County, that accelerated, or man-made, soil erosion had been an important farm problem since the days before the Civil War. He built up a supporting background of information through subsequent surveys and observations over the country, which he presented at every opportunity in publications, before Congressional committees and otherwise.

Largely on the basis of Dr. Bennett's recommendations, Congress in 1929 authorized setting up 10 erosion control experiment stations in cooperation with the states in representative agricultural areas. They carried on studies of the causes and effects of water and wind erosion, and methods for its control. When the Soil Erosion service was created in 1933 to demonstrate soil and water conservation methods on actual farms and watersheds in erosion control projects, Bennett was named to head the program.

Dr. Bennett has traveled into various parts of the world since that time, to consult and advise on soil conservation problems. He is the author of various books and other publications on the subject of his life-long work, and holds many awards for distinguished service in the conservation and related fields.

SCRIPTURE

Beloved, let us love one another: for love is of God; and every one that loveth is born of God. He that loveth not knoweth not God; for God is love. In this was manifested the love of God toward us, because that God sent his only begotten Son into the world, that we might live through him, herein is love, not that we loved God, but that he loved us, and sent his Son to be the propitiation for our sins. Beloved, if God so loved us, we ought also to love one another. No man hath seen God at any time. If we love one another, God dwelleth in us, and his love is perfected in us. Hereby know we that we dwell in him, and he in us, because he hath given us of his Spirit. And we have seen and do testify that the Father sent the Son to be the Saviour of the world. Whosoever shall confess that Jesus is the Son of God, God dwelleth in him, and he in God. 1 John 4:7-15.

Letters to the Editor—

Cost of Fighting Cancer Goes Up

The cost of fighting cancer, along with everything else, is going up while funds for cancer control are not keeping pace with mounting prices.

This comment was made today by James Minor, county Cancer Crusade chairman, in explaining American Cancer Society, during April.

"We need larger amounts of money every year just to maintain the same level of attack against cancer," he said. "The use of American Cancer Society funds ranges from such widely divergent items as a penny pamphlet to a $250,000 research grant—and both might save lives."

He explained that there are cases on record of a person reading about cancer's danger signals in a pamphlet that was produced by the Cancer Society at a cost of less than half a cent. The reader had one of the symptoms, rushed to his doctor and was treated in time to save his life.

"We hope everyone will realize that his or her gift is worthwhile," the chairman explained. "A single dollar will buy ten test tubes that are a necessary tool in cancer research. That same dollar might feed one mouse used for work in the laboratory, for more than eight months. There are countless other uses for dollars given to the Cancer Crusade."

Mr. E. A. Warren, Editor, The Post Dispatch, Post, Texas.

Dear Mr. Warren:

I am interested and pleased in seeing in your issue of March 29 that D. C. Arthur has been elected superintendent of schools for the Post Independent School District. I knew him and his excellent wife intimately when he was a student in Texas Technological College. I was head of the History department in which he worked. Granting the Master's degree was something of an innovation in that institution, and I am sure that he was one of the first to receive it. He did his work under my direction, and I remember well his very creditable final oral examination. Ever since that time I have followed him with special interest, and congratulate the good people of Garza county on having the educational services of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur.

In the old days I was in Post often, just under the Cap Rock, but did not think of it as large enough to maintain such a large and fine paper as you are publishing. I congratulate you!

Cordially yours,
John C. Granberry.

W. C. W. Morris Comes to Garza In 1916; Build Grassland Area Houses

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. W. Morris came to Garza county in September, 1916, and "lived in every barn in the Grassland community," Mrs. Morris reveals.

In the 35 years they have been here, Morris and his sons have been recognized as outstanding farmers. Both Mr. and Mrs. Morris have taken an interest in promoting everything they felt would help the farmer and help the community.

The couple was married in Abilene. She is the former Miss Molly Oden. When they came to Garza, they had four children. He was a carpenter. Morris worked on a number of the farmhouses in the Grassland area.

"First, he built the barn and we moved in," Mrs. Morris relates, "then he built the house. The houses were built to specifications, all just alike. He and my brother, Arthur, worked together."

Their children were not then old enough to go to school, Mrs. Morris says. She recalls that she preferred the houses built for O. H. Hoover and a Mr. Inklebarber best of all.

"Possibly it is because they were the first ones we got acquainted with," she says. "The Hoovers lived in one end of the barn and we lived in the other."

Two Year Job

It was two years before Morris finished the job of building those houses, his wife says. Then he started breaking the land for fields. He used a walking plow and a span of mules. He rented some land from Hoovers before moving north of Post and renting a farm owned by N. J. Lanotte.

Next, they bought a quarter section two miles south of Graham from the Slaughters interests.

After two years of drouth, they let it go back because it was too small to make them a living.

Next they rented 469 acres west of Graham from the Slaughters and lived there 23 years. Their youngest son, Harlan, is farming that place at present. All their children went to Graham school except the two oldest, Wilburn and Alvin. They attended school near Dallas. The family lived there two years while he helped build the Proctor and Gambie soap factory there. He was the boss of the excavating crew and built the big deoderizer, the first of its kind, Mrs. Morris says.

Their youngest daughter, Juanita attended high school in Post.

Introduced Tractor

Morris introduced the John Deere tractor in this area. In fact, says his wife, they were the first farmers to use a tractor. They demonstrated John Deeres all over the country. "We got to be a regular John Deere family when the boys grew up and started buying tractors for themselves," Mrs. Morris says.

The hardest thing to do when they changed over to tractors was to get rid of their stock, Mrs. Morris said. To farm a place the size of the one they were on required 20 head of stock and they really had to part with their horses.

The Farm Bureau sent her husband as a cotton delegate to Dallas and he became interested in tractors. "He always looked for something to better the farmer's lot," Mrs. Morris says.

She recalls that a Leonard Spoons, tractor manager at the Dallas office, came out and spent the day when they got their first tractor. She fixed a chicken dinner and when the Morrises went back to Dallas to see the tractor people on business, they found that the fame of that chicken dinner had preceded them.

"Our first tractor was just a little Model A," Mrs. Morris says, "but it really looked big to us."

Farm Bureau Members

The Morrises are charter members in the Farm Bureau. They helped organize it when it was a state organization. It is now national in scope.

"If we had a hobby," Mrs. Morris reports, "I would say it was to work with the cooperatives. My husband is a member of the cooperative oil mill in Lubbock. I am on the finance board of the

James Minor Says Each Cancer Death Costs $10,000

"The debit side of the cancer ledger exceeds the credit by more than 150-fold."

This observation by James Minor, county Cancer Crusade chairman, means that although cancer costs the family and society on an average, $10,000 for each cancer death, only $66 was given to the American Cancer Society last year for every cancer fatality.

Minor issued the statement in connection with the Cancer Crusade which is seeking its share here of the national goal of $14,565,000, which is needed to maintain the American Cancer Society's programs of research, education and service.

"I believe that the amount given to fight cancer is unrealistic compared to the needs of cancer control," he said. "I think people will give a great deal more when they realize the extent of the cancer problem."

"Last year the public spent $404,000,000 for restaurant tips, while they gave $13,900,000 to the American Cancer society. Americans spent $8,550,000 for intoxicants. Even the cost of nail polish, $15,825,000 exceeded the investment in cancer research, education and service through the American Cancer society."

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. King and son, Rex, Mrs. Charles King and Mrs. Jimmy Smith visited with Charles King and Jimmy Smith at Fort Sill, Okla., over the weekend. They were guests in the home of Mrs. King's sister, Mrs. Jack Case, at Rocky, Okla.

The Rev. and Mrs. Almon Martin and daughter, Sandra, and Mrs. F. I. Bailey were in Lubbock Saturday.

Here's where You come into your own

Once in a while, any man is entitled to let himself go.

He's entitled to that glow of pride that comes from feeling like the very important person that he really is.

He's entitled to take practical steps to make his dreams come true.

In short, he's entitled to own a ROADMASTER, and particularly a ROADMASTER as it is custom built for '51.

For this great automobile is more than big and roomy and distinguished in its styling.

It's more than sweetly willing in performance, and superbly poised in stride.

It does things to you, when you let yourself sink deep down in the subtle softness of its cushions, and run a caressing hand over the fine texture of its fabrics.

This is everything a fine car should be!

Of course, this brilliant performer is Fireball powered. It is cushioned by coil springs on every wheel. It provides, at no extra cost, the complete relaxation of Dynaflo Drive. It has durable and dependable sturdiness engineered into every mechanical part.

But the best is yet to be told. When you check the ROADMASTER price list, you'll find that the car of your choice can be yours for hundreds of dollars less than you'll pay for others with comparable reputation.

Come in soon and see this buy of buys in the fine-car field.

Equipment, accessories, trim and models are subject to change without notice.

No Roads

"My husband's nephew, Vinson Morris, was among those who settled up the shirly land near what is now called Cross Roads when the Double U company opened it up. There were no roads over there, you just had to pick your way through."

"All the women in the country who could nurse the sick had a full-time job. I seemed to be the one who was always called on. Vinson's wife's old aunt lived with them and she got sick. They sent for me. I lived in Graham at the time."

Mrs. Morris went over to his house at once, down in the deep sand in a Model T. The next morning, the aunt died. She came to town with her nephew to make the arrangements and rode back with Marshall Mason in the ambulance.

"There was no bridge on the river," she recalls. "We got right out in the middle of the river and there we stuck. We decided that I would stay there and he would go to the nearest farm house for help. It seemed a long time to me and it was getting dark when he came back with the farmer and a team of mules."

"The man pulled us out and we still had six miles of sand to go. However, we made it. Mr. Mason told me later that the farmer waited at the river for him and pulled him across, coming back."

Among the other people the Morrises knew in their early days here were the late R. W. Babb and Mrs. Babb. They knew them before moving to Garza and rented the Babb place near Grassland for three years.

"The first business people we became acquainted with were Davis and Mason," Mrs. Morris says.

She related an incident that happened in connection with that firm.

Her grandchildren are also ardent 4-H workers. Mrs. Morris reveals. Some of her daughters-in-law participate in home demonstration work, too. Mrs. Morris is also head of the local chapter of the Texas Rural Roads association which works constantly for better farm roads.

Their children include Wilburn, Alvin, Mrs. R. B. Dodson, Chester Leonard, Harlan, and Mrs. Juanita Downs. They have 29 grandchildren.

All of the Morrises' sons are farmers—at least at heart, their mother reveals. Wilburn and Chester own their own places. The others live on farms except one, Leonard, who is with a trucking firm at Slaton.

Directed by Dr. Richard C. von Ende, the mixed chorus will open their spring tour here. Performances have been arranged by Gordon Bennett, McMurry president. Sunday night the group will sing in Amarillo at the Polk Street Methodist church; Monday at the Muleshoe Methodist church; Tuesday at the Hobbs, N. NEWS AROUND . . .

Postex Cotton Mill

Whom do you support? The following, we are pleased to report, have recovered from their illness and have returned to work:

Finishing plant: Susie Hayes, Katie Mae Martin, Juan Garza, Montee Adams and Wanda Holbert.

Weaving department: Maudine Scott, Della Hawkins, Wilburn Warren and Thomas Ammons.

Spinning department: E. T. Meeks, James Cox, Virgie Earhman, Bernice Hays, Bobby Blacklock and Oleain Seals.

Carding department: Bob Russell and John McAfee.

The supervisors at Postex are continually striving to solve the problems of production, quality and human welfare. The following tells you something about the head supervisors at Postex:

Vachel Anderson, known as "Doctor Good Nature", is building a new home and realizes a home is not a home till it is landscaped. Attacks the problem of beautifying in the same painstaking way he attacks the problem of sheets and pillow cases.

Vachel's hobby is flowers and anything that grows. Roses are his first choice, then gladioli and dahlias. They say at one time he was quite a hunter. What he hunted remains a secret.

George Tillman, nicknamed "Smiles." This happy, good looking Texan has always a ready smile and is considered among men an efficient friendly, capable individual of determination. Why George resorted to the use of the camera in recording proof of his recent trip through the Carolinas. Some of those recordings will soon be put into effect at Postex. He, too, is a lover of flowers and in the not too distant past won many prizes with his ability in making beautiful things grow. George, too, has a secret, some claim in his youth he was known as being quite an explorer.

Walter Watt, nicknamed "The Hunter." Watt is the champion of weavers and fixers and only asks for a square deal and no quitting. His hobby is hunting and fishing. It is supposed to be a secret, but ask Lee Ward if he was ever taken for a coyote or was the shooting accidental. Lee, when asked to go hunting with Watt a second time, checks to see if he has an insurance policy. This man of Pelzer prefers to talk about his son, a Master Sergeant at Clemson, who is also an Eagle Scout, rather than talk about his fishing. It was by accident he heard the story of how he rescued a man from drowning at the risk of his own life while on a fishing expedition. But not too long ago Watt almost lost his wife, was Watt's face red.

Jim Westmoreland, the "Pelzer Song Bird." Jim takes a lot of kidding when the serious aspects of carding, spinning, spooling and warping problems aren't taking up his waking moments. Not only does Jim sing a good voice, but he also plays with equal credit the trombone. We find that Jim was in his youth, which we understand was many years ago, a good baseball player and also a basketball player. Don't be surprised if Jim should sing lead in a Barber Shop Quartet of Postex.

What wonderful men, these men of Pelzer are. Victor O. B. Slater, nicknamed and called "Vic" for short. Although he sang in an Episcopal Church Boys Choir in New Bedford, Mass., and is a lover of flowers and interested in athletics and civic work, would rather be serious and tell the readers of the Postex Column that these men of Postex are God - fearing fine Christian men who believe in the future of Postex, and because Postex has men of their caliber, Postex is the Best Mill

FROM THE... GRANDSTAND

by WILBUR MARTIN
Associated Press Staff

Cleaning the bases before baseball opens in Texas:
There won't be any super-duper league openings like the Texas league had last year, when more than 50,000 turned out to see Dallas begin its Texas league season against Tulsa... A team of nine former stars playing the first half inning and plenty of sideline entertainment lured the crowd to the Cotton Bowl, where the game was played on a makeshift diamond.

The experiment of Jay Haney, Lamesa manager, to try Negro players on his Class C West Texas... New Mexico league apparently has been dropped. Reaction to the idea was only lukewarm in many league cities and hostile in at least one.

Baseball league officials are hopeful attendance will increase this year, or at least keep pace with last year's total, down for most leagues... The Gulf Coast thinks its new lineup will make it one of the strongest Class B circuits in the country... A good Port Arthur club could affect attendance at Beaumont Texas league games when the two clubs are home at the same time... Many Port Arthur fans were in the habit of driving over to see Beaumont tilts.

Tyler may be a question mark in the Big State league... The team didn't draw very well as a Class C club in the East Texas league... Artesia, N. M., also may be a weak link in the strong Longhorn league... but you can't tell, some little towns have a better average after the season in attendance than many larger ones.

Every club in organized baseball has picked its manager for the season, but what do you want to bet there will be some changes before the season is half over... Always happens.

The manpower problem the Texas leagues expected because of Selective Service hasn't developed... Probably won't be noticed too much this season... but rookies may become scarce before September.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cato and sons, Bob and John, visited Sunday at Lorenzo with Cato's aunt, Mrs. Floyd Pearson, and her husband, Mrs. Pearson recently underwent surgery. The Catos visited in the Robert E. Lee home in Slaton en route home.

I wish to take this opportunity to thank the people of Garza county for their contributions and efforts the past month in regards to the Red Cross.

It seems to me a wonderful thing that people can, and will, pitch in and help in these collection activities. I think they are all worthy causes, and I realize that with present taxes and the high cost of living, it is a strain for many people to try to make ends meet in this respect. However, in spite of these difficulties, we have exceeded our goal with the help of both the large and small contributors.

I feel a serious responsibility for the money entrusted to me by the Red Cross and the people of the county. I feel that it is not always possible for me to keep within the policies of the Red Cross whose obligation is not to charity cases nor to aid non-veteran transients but whose policy is to aid servicemen, help rehabilitate veterans and their families and give assistance in disaster areas. However, I will add that it is to the advantage of the folks to whom I offer help that I do not stick a hundred per cent within these policies, as I do not believe it possible nor practical to do so in a small town.

I have seen some things in my capacity as chairman of Garza county Red Cross that many people would scarcely believe—poor living conditions, kids with not enough proper food, people with sickness, and just plain down and out. Many are transients—their conditions may be due to various causes but they need help to get them to their destination, and I feel thankful that I can be of assistance in cooperation with the city and county.

I do not like facts, figures or statistics—I do not understand them but I would like to add that your Red Cross contributions are helping many service men in this rotten place called Korea, with the Red Cross blood program. It is also helping many of their families at home as well as discharged veterans. This runs into tens of thousands of service men's families since World War II. I have the statistics on the accurate number involved.

On the local scene for Post and the surrounding county communities, I would like to say that the Post VFW members and the Post Volunteer Fire department have promised full cooperation in the event of disaster in this area, and also to replace or give blood as needed by the citizens of Garza county. I wish to thank these men and I know their offer is appreciated by the people also.

You as an individual may not agree with me on various things, but I will still shake your hand in appreciation of the help given during the Red Cross drive.
