Rats Cost Texas Farmers Over $20,000,000 Year

Rats cost Texas people around 20 million dollars a year, according to J. M. Hill, Jr., of the Rodent Control Service of the U. S. Bureau of Biological Survey, who added the farmers alone suffered an annual loss of over 2 million bushels of corn through this source.

County and community wide campaigns are the answer to rat control, Hill believes. The Rodent Control Service in cooperation with the Extension Service of Texas A. and M. College, has outlined a three-way system of control based on rat proofing, poisoning, and trapping.

During the past year, the Service exposed 17,658 pounds of poisoned bait in 33 counties. The work was done through county agricultural agents, commissioners' courts, and civic and farm organizations. County agricultural councils sponsored the campaign in the farm organization leadership several cases. In Caldwell county resulted in the use of 1,350 lbs. Figures of the Rodent Control Service show that a pound of poison bait will kill an average of 14 rats. Red squill, the type of poison used, is not harmful to humans or animals.

Rats can be controlled, Hill said, by systematic, community wide poisoning campaigns which should be launched at least twice a year or as often as the infestation warrants.

Loss can be minimized by rat proofing all new buildings and old ones where possible. Infestations will be held at low ebb if food and feed is kept in rat proof containers and if garbage and other waste is promptly removed.

Trapping is effective after the rat infestation has been reduced by poisoning and other means. A careful and systematic use of traps will keep the premises free from the rodents.

"The Rodent Control Service of the Bureau Survey is ready to assist communities and counties in fighting the rat menace," Hill

PEACE AND CONTENTMENT FOR THE BABY

When your rising indicates an upset stomach, babies naturally will be cross and sleepless, they will cry because they feel miserable. To restore their sunny disposition, give them McGee's Baby Elixir. It is made of mild ingredients that will soothe the stomach, aid digestion, and help to check simple diarrheas. It tastes good and is a big step toward mental sleep and better food assimilation. Price 50c and 50c a bottle.

Re-Election

I would like to again thank my friends in Lynn County who have so loyally supported me in the past, and to assure you of my genuine appreciation for your friendship and the confidence you have shown in me. I am anxious to thank each of you personally, not only for your support in the past, but for the interest you have manifested in my present race.

Having honestly endeavored, at all times, to make Lynn County an efficient and courteous officer, I now place my candidacy in your hands and ask your support for re-election solely on the basis of the services that I have rendered while in office.

If you see fit to re-elect me to the office of assessor-collector, it shall be my utmost and constant endeavor to continue to serve the people of Lynn County to the best of my ability.

Why Newspapers Ask For "Early Copy!"

The Advertiser Is Unfair to Himself When He Sends His Advertisement to the Newspaper Office Just Before The Dead-Line

While a newspaper is a marvel of mechanical efficiency, there are limits on what can be done by a given force of printers, stereotypers and pressmen in a short crowded period of stress.

There is plenty of time to give every advertiser good service when early copy is sent in.

The Press believes that its advertisers desire to be fair to themselves.

Visitors to the mechanical department are invited so that the process of handling advertising may be thoroly understood and the mechanical problems fully realized.

Your co-operation will be greatly appreciated by the entire personnel of The Press.

RAYON'S GROWTH SPURS NEED FOR COTTON RESEARCH

The spectacular growth, continued through 1937, of production and use of rayon in world textile industries is seen in a report of the All-South Development Council as further complicating cotton marketing problems and increasing the urgency for finding new cotton uses and cutting production costs through better seed, better spinning, and more thorough insect control.

Production of continuous filament rayon yarns according to a bulletin of the National City Bank of New York, increased by 66 million pounds in 1937, reaching a peak of 1,187,000 (billion) pounds. The steady but startling growth of this product is shown by Textile Economics Bureau figures for 1913, first year it figured in textile statistics, when the total was a mere 25,000,000 pounds; for 1922, when it had risen only to 77,000,000, and for 1929, by which time it had multiplied six times, for a total of 435,000,000 pounds.

Even more spectacular has been the rise of rayon "staple fiber," which is rayon cut into short lengths—1 1/2 to 2 inches—for spinning into yarns or cotton, woolen or worsted spinning machinery. Starting with 20 million pounds in 1932, production more than doubled by 1934, at 52 million, nearly tripled the next year, to reach 622 million. This 1937 total for staple fiber represented 34 per cent of total production.

As to the actual competition between cotton and rayon, the bulletin says "the development of staple fiber at this phenomenal rate is something to be considered by the sheepmen and cotton growers of this country as well as the silk farmers of Japan." The total production of rayon produced (nearly 2 billion pounds) is not yet impressive in relation to total cotton (more than 18 billion pounds), and as world use of fibers expands there will be room in the industries for both materials without necessarily reducing the consumption of cotton and wool. "Nevertheless, price relations are affected. The higher the price of the old materials, the greater the competition from the new."

It may be significant that Japan, whose silk is popularly thought of as being most "rivaled" by rayon's growth, has in the last few years become the world's leading producer of rayon filament yarn, accounting for 28 per cent of the world total in 1937. The United States produced 26 per cent. Japan, which uses wood pulp as the raw material, also second only to Germany in staple fiber, making 28 per cent to Germany's 35 per cent. In this field the United States produced but 3.2 per cent. Progress of rayon toward a better competitive price status, through technical advances which have also improved its physical properties, is shown in its price history since 1928. Viscose fiber, then 60 cents per pound, has come down to 25 cents; viscose staple rayon filament, over the same period, has been brought down from $1.50 per pound to 45 cents.

The United States has more aliens than any other country. Of the world total of 28,900,000 people living in countries other than their own, the United States has 6,300,000, or 21.8 per cent.

Littlefield — Building permits issued here since Jan. 1 exceed $40,000. Sixteen residences are included and eight business buildings, a church and a Salvation Army hall. A hospital permit is to be issued.

NOTICE TO THE VOTER

It is not our intention to appeal to the sentimental voter, but to the thinking farmer, business men and women to invest your vote as you would your dollar, in doing this you should vote for a politician but a practical business man and one who pledges himself to consolidate the twelve separate tax collecting departments into one.

And the several checking departments into one letting them pay all the bills.

To recommend and fight for a state auditor appointed by the legislature and not by the governor who audits the account of the governor.

To change the truck law that was fostered by special interest. To abolish the liquor board that cost the states one million dollars annually and let the county officials handle it, who are already paid to do so.

To abolish the old age commission and turn it over to the commissioners court, who know the pensioners personally and know their needs, and save another million to give to the old people.

To be against the costly special session of the legislature.

To veto all special taxes. For the last twenty years we have heard the professional politician talk economy in government and still our state taxes jumped from sixteen million in 1917 to one hundred and fifty five million in 1937, and remember the desperate effort made during the last session of the legislature to add an additional sixty-two million dollars annually.

Tom Hester is a successful business man, not a politician who pledges himself to try for all the above.

If we go on with the bunch we now have at Austin we will be taxed out of our farms and businesses.

TO THE VOTERS OF LYNN COUNTY

Two years ago you elected me County Judge of Lynn County, I have been serving you now as such for almost two years. I shall always be grateful to the good people of Lynn County for honoring me with this office of trust.

In asking the people to elect me for a second term as your County Judge I would like to call your attention to some of the things that have been accomplished during my first term in this office.

I have tried to co-operate with the Commissioners in carrying out a progressive and constructive program, keeping in mind at all times that the expenses should and must be kept within the people's ability to pay.

We have in the past two years improved your County Jail, Court House and Court House lawn, which we point to with a great deal of pride, at a cost of about eight thousand dollars, all of which has been paid in full. We have purchased right-of-way on Highway No. 84 East of Tahoka and machinery for construction for the same at a cost of about five thousand dollars, and arrangements have been made to take care of this expense without asking the tax payers of Lynn County for an additional dollar.

I would also call your attention to the fact that during the past two years the Texas Relief Commission, Works Progress Administration and State Highway Department has shifted a lot of additional expense of the relief program on the county and we have also taken care of all that additional expense without asking you for an additional dollar.

I have called your attention to these matters because I thought you would appreciate the fact that we have been successful in holding down the current expenses of the county enough to take care of this additional expense without calling on you for any more tax money.

The duties of this office are such that makes it impossible for me to make a thorough campaign, so I may not get to see all of the voters personally, in fact I am sure that it will not be possible as I feel that I must not neglect the duties of this office which the good people of Lynn County has honored me with.

I invite your careful investigation of my record as your County Judge and if you find that I have served you well I would surely appreciate your vote and influence for a second term.

I promise you the same prompt, courteous, efficient service in the future that I have tried to give you in the past.

Respectfully,

Speaking of the Governor's Job....

TEXAS NEEDS A LEADER

ERNEST THOMPSON

Trained... Talented... Tested

Qualified for the Governor's Job by a Sound Record of Public Service

WHAT HE HAS DONE!

As Mayor of Amarillo, he saved citizens nearly a million dollars a year by cutting every utility rate in the city and lowering the tax levy.

As Texas Railroad Commissioner, he assisted the farmer through lower freight rates and the livestock industry with emergency drought rates; brought many millions of dollars to the school fund by sensible supervision of the Texas oil industry; helped lower the gas rates in scores of Texas towns.

As a man, whose boyhood was spent at hard work, he has achieved a brilliant record of private and public service, fought for his country with high honors during the World War, is chairman of the Oil States Compact Commission, has earned the respect and admiration of straight-thinking people all over the nation.

WHAT HE WILL DO!

Tackle the farm problem with help and help the farmer and rancher with a solution that will take the people owning or working a farm or ranch a fair profit, the same as any other business.

Urge the legislature to change the age assistance law so that no person will be denied a pension because a son or daughter happens to be a job.

Actively encourage industrial steps to relieve unemployment; urge governmental waste and fight against and advocate state control and regulation of all utilities.

Autoists Urged To Study Right-of-Way State Laws

State Police today urged drivers to study laws relating to right of way after analysis of 771 recent accidents showed that one or more vehicles involved in 123, 1 16 per cent of the crashes were not in their rightful positions.

Unless intersections are controlled by local regulations, police pointed out, vehicles approaching from each driver's right, have the intersection first.

Drinking on the part of the driver or pedestrian was listed as the cause of 101 of the 771 accidents, with speed ranking third. Fifty-four collisions were caused by automobiles moving too to the center of the highway or west driving on the wrong side.

Other facts revealed in the study showed that 48 accidents were caused by pedestrians running into paths of vehicles, 40 by improper left turn, 31 by disregard of traffic control signals, 20 because driver did not signal intention of making turns or stops, 27 by improper passing, and 19 by drivers' lack of attention.

State safety officials warned drivers of motor vehicles to use more courtesy at intersections and places where other vehicles or pedestrians may possibly move into their line of travel. Through courtesy, they explained, hundreds of crashes can be prevented each year and many lives may be saved.

Aside from the continued heavy death toll on Texas highways, the safety officials were encouraged by the continued reduction in violent traffic fatalities. A general nine per cent decrease has been reported for the first five months of this year, despite a nine per cent increase in travel.

MANURE OF DAIRY COW VALUED AT $24 PER ACRE

"The manure from a dairy cow averages about $24 a year in value as fertilizer," state Robert E. Lancaster, pasture specialist of the Extension Service of Texas A. and M. A ton of manure is about equal in plant food value to a 100 pound bag of 10-5-10 fertilizer, more than half of the value of stable manure is lost unless all of the solids and the liquids are caught and worked into the soil at once, Lancaster said. With the usual loss of the liquids and the loss of the nitrogen as ammonia, the fertility is reduced to around 5-5-5.

The liquids can be mostly absorbed of 8 or 9 pounds of straw or sawdust bedding is used per day for each cow. This is important because about half of the nitrogen and four-fifths of the potash is in the urine.

Nitrogen escapes as ammonia gas within a day or two, but the use of pound of superphosphate per cow per day, spread in the gutter before the bedding is put down, will greatly reduce this loss.

For sanitary purposes superphosphate will do all this lime can do, and in addition it reacts chemically to prevent the escape of nitrogen, Lancaster pointed out. Since manure is deficient in phosphate and most Texas soils need this element, superphosphate is a valuable addition.

When manure is spread it should be harrowed in to prevent drying losses, but daily spreading and harrowing is not practical on most pastures. The manure should be stored under a roof to prevent leaching and on a tight concrete floor to stop drainage.

SKETCHES
By W. G. FORGY

...ally, when anyone writing a newspaper, be it large or small, makes his own judgments, he can look for a "sketch" from perfectly honest people who, rightly or wrongly, cannot see eye to eye with the writer working for the paper. Be that as it may, we columnist on the Dallas who offended Mr. Crowley, aspirant for the governor's chair, and the Plainsman in subbook Avalanche Journal, would-be writer, stack his neck a week and several hours of words in telling him that didn't like some of the things about W. Lee O'Daniel, our salesman, who has a good chance of being next governor.

If we were dyed-in-the-wool supporters of W. Lee O'Daniel we perhaps would like any sort of criticism about our favorite. However, we happen to be for another man and we have heard plenty of criticism about HIM—he's been called a "double-crosser," a "professional politician" (which is just as honorable as any other profession) and goodness knows what else, but we're not getting mad about it.

In last week's issue of the Press we quoted a local man (name on request, but he refuses publication) on HIS views to the effect that He could not support O'Daniel because the Fort Worth man had not paid his poll tax, paying his part of a lawful tax. Another thing, we remarked that there was one feature we believed could prove dangerous to the state if remarks and belief of many that "things could not get worse." We claim things can get worse. Another thing, who can tell us what O'Daniel really means, specifically, by the use of the Ten Commandments as a platform? We remarked that "they can mean anything or nothing" and that is true. It is also true that the people "if they put O'Daniel in office can only hope for the best" and THAT goes for any candidate that is given the nod.

We may be criticized for making our own remarks about any man in the race for governor, but those remarks are made through this column as our own personal opinion and NOT through our news columns. The "news columns" are used for the facts—not our beliefs!

Still another thing. We do NOT reserve the right to make remarks about any man running for governor that we will not also give ANY reader of this paper. If you, as a reader, want to crack down on any man running for governor, boost any particular candidate or tell us that you think we're wretches than the wretches he, bring, mail, wire, your article in and we'll print it next week JUST BEFORE THE PRIMARY. BUT YOU MUST SIGN YOUR NAME TO IT. We won't print it otherwise. And it will be free of any charge!

We'll continue to print all the news we can get that is NOT DICTATED and which will not be what we think, but facts. O'Daniel, Thompson, McCraw, Hunter et al will be treated the same through our news column—the same way that the dailies and better weeklies conduct their papers. Ours is a small paper, but we know to that line and will not ever use "I we or us" in a news story. Just facts in the news, and "bull" in our column!

In asking you for your vote and influence in my race for a second term as Justice of the Peace, Precinct 4, I also want to take this method of thanking you for the vote you gave me before.

I have tried to make you a good officer, and cannot help but take pride in announcing that the records of the office are up-to-date and every transaction made listed properly for inspection.

I believe that the experience I have gained in my first term will enable me to do my work even better this next term if you see fit to elect me. I will do my very best to be fair to everyone, and I'll really appreciate your vote and influence on July 23.

It escapes detection even with the most powerful microscopes. The first symptoms are usually vomiting, headaches, fever, stiffness of the neck, pain in the legs, irritability and drowsiness. Complete recovery may follow such illness. In the more severe cases, the germ penetrates the nervous system, resulting in paralysis of nerves controlling one or more groups of muscles. Some remarkable recoveries have been noted.

"Piles and other insects have not been demonstrated to play a part in the spread of this disease.

Forty Years Ago He Bid for Fame By Carrying "A Message to Garcia"

But Andrew Summers Rowan Might Still Be a "Forgotten Hero" if Elbert Hubbard Not Needed an Editorial to Put in His Magazine, The Philistine, Which To Go to Press and Wrote One That Has Been Reprinted More Than 80,000 Times

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

FORTY years ago a young American army officer had returned from a perilous mission which had won him the praise of his superiors and resulted in his being summoned to appear before the President of the United States and members of the cabinet where he received the personal congratulations of the Chief Executive. But in the excitement over our entrance into the War with Spain, his exploit caused little public comment and it seemed that the fame which was justly his was about to pass him by.

Nearly a year later the editor of a magazine, which was about to go to press, needed an editorial for that issue. While having dinner with his son, the boy happened to mention the deed of the young army officer and declared that he was the real hero of the Spanish-American war. The father leaped up inspired—here was an idea for the editorial!

So he wrote it, but he thought so little of the result that he ran it in the magazine without a heading. However, that editorial has been reprinted more than 80,000,000 times; after 40 years copies of it still sell at the rate of 150,000 a year; it has been carried to all parts of the world and translated into 20 languages and it is probably the best known piece of English prose ever written.

The young army officer was Lieut. Andrew Summers Rowan, who is still living in California and is of the age of eighty-one. The editor was Elbert Hubbard, who died on the Lusitania when it was sunk by a German submarine in the Atlantic ocean. Hubbard wrote for the March, 1898, issue of his magazine, the Philistine, was "A Message to Garcia."

In 1868 Lieutenant Rowan, a graduate from West Point in the class of 1861, was detailed to duty in Washington. War with Spain was imminent and President McKinley realized the necessity of having reliable information about the Spanish forces in Cuba and whether or not Lieut. Gen. Calixto Garcia, commander of the Cuban insurgent army, would cooperate with the American forces if an army was sent there.

The President summoned Col. Arthur Wagner, head of the bureau of military intelligence, to his home and there he found a man who will carry a message to Garcia? he asked.

"There is a young lieutenant named Rowan here in Washington who will take it," Wagner replied.

The man for the job, probably one reason for his answer was the fact that Rowan had recently published a book, "The Island of Cuba," although he had not yet been to Cuba and his book was based only upon other volumes. But having assured the President that Rowan was the man for the job, Wagner prepared to leave in a few words.

He invited the young lieutenant to lunch at the Army and Navy club. They were scarcely seated when Wagner said, "When does the next boat leave for Jamaica?" Since Wagner was a noted joker, Rowan thought that this was a prelude to another prank of some sort, but he looked up the sailing time and told Wagner, "Can you sail on that boat?" The colonel asked next and Rowan immediately replied "Yes," still believing it was a joke. But Wagner's next words showed him his mistake.

"Then get ready to take it," said Wagner. "You have been selected by President McKinley to carry a message to Garcia. He is somewhere in the eastern part of Cuba. Your duty will be to find him and learn the military situation in Cuba in so far as he knows. Your success and in all probability the outcome of a possible war with Spain will depend upon you. Leave at midnight tonight. Good-by and good luck, but—get that message to Garcia!"

Rowan was on the boat which sailed that night. Upon reaching Jamaica he called word of his arrival to Wagner and on April 23, the day set by the United States as the last date for Spain to withdraw its forces from Cuba, he received cable orders to join Garcia as soon as possible.

Rowan had been in touch with exiled Cuban patriots in Jamaica from the time of his arrival. They immediately set to work to aid him in getting to Cuba. He was taken on a mysterious journey in a closed carriage which brought him eventually to the shores of a small bay where a fishing boat stood off shore a short distance. After an exchange of signals, he was taken aboard this boat which was camouflaged with a false cargo of bundles and operated by a Cuban pilot named Sabo, who had been detailed to take him to Garcia.

A Dangerous Journey. The little party then began the first leg of their dangerous journey. If they were caught within the three-mile limit they could be held and possibly imprisoned for violation of British neutrality. If they were caught outside the three-mile limit by any of the Spanish boats which were patrolling the Caribbean sea, they would probably be treated as spies and that meant their backs to a wall with a firing squad in front.

Early the next morning they saw a Spanish boat approaching. Rowan and the rest of those on board, except Sabo, dropped their hands and hid under the deck. As he dropped the sail, the Spaniards saw only what appeared to be a lone fisherman. After a casual inquiry as to how the fish were biting, they passed on without closer investigation.

At midnight on April 25, the day that the United States declared war on Spain, Rowan and his friends entered Oriente bay and were met by a group of Cuban patriots in a most mysterious manner. The most dangerous part of the trip was over six days during which time the young American made his way through the steamy, insect-infested jungle, drinking insect-infested water and eating only such food as could be found in holes in the ground where the Cuban rebels had buried it.

On May 1 Rowan was escorted to General Garcia's camp and here he learned of an amusing mistake that had been made. He bore letters from the season first in Jamaica. They also sent him a letter from the United States. He explained fully the Cuban situation. First Basen return journey what an outsider more meritorious been had been declared Public and Outside the five-day trip to the south coast was a success. He had a Spanish patrol with him and his companions. He had a Spanish patrol with him and his companions. He had a Spanish patrol with him and his companions.

SYNOPSIS

Barbara Sentry, seeking to sober up her escort Johnny Boyd, on the way from a party, found him, and he arrested him. Professor Bruce of Harvard was the rescue agent for Barbara. On the way she sees Barbara's mother, who is in the office at 12:45, but when he gets home he tells his wife it is 11:15 that he's been playing bridge at the club. Next morning, while Barbara is telling her mother about her adventure, an urgent message calls her to the office. She goes after his departure. Arriving home she finds the late afternoon session of the office has been robbed and a Miss Wines' temporary employee, killed. The evening papers later contain the story, and Sentry takes it hard. Mary, elder daughter, is in love with a very young internist at the hospital where she works.

CHAPTER II—Continued

Barbara was called to the telephone, and Endie arrived and came in to speak to them while Mary made last preparations. Mrs. Loren and Mrs. Sentry, had somehow made a fortune in the last four or five years, owned a blatantly large motor yacht on "Misch scandalous parties were reported to occur, was perfectly sure of his welcome everywhere; and he clapped Mr. Sentry on the shoulder and said: "Well, Sentry, a lot of free advertising, eh? Headlines! Produce House Murder! You and Gus ought to have a flock of shibubers tomorrow. Better lay in a stock of bananas, eh? Sell 'em to people to take home as souvenirs."

Mary, in the hall, called, "I'm ready, Mr. Endie." They departed. Mrs. Sentry said icily, "He and Mrs. Loren are alien, aren't they?" And as Barbara returned from the telephone, "Who was it, Barbara?" "Johnny Boyd!" Barbara was indignant. "He thought last night was a joke, and he thought it was funny! I shan't ever give him a date again!"

"I suppose it will strike a lot of people as a joke," Mrs. Sentry agreed. "I'm glad father isn't alive. He was strong on the dignity of the firm." And he reflected, "I'd better run in and reassure mother. Care to come, Ellen?" Old Mrs. Sentry lived in solitary dignity in one of the Back Bay houses. "I think not," Mrs. Sentry decided, but when Mrs. Furness phoned presently to ask whether she could bring Miss Sentry to the office, she was so anxious to talk to Mr. Sentry about this terrible crime!—Mrs. Sentry said, "I'm sorry. We're going out!" Others would be telephoning. She and Mr. Sentry presently departed in the limousine for work.

Barbara stayed at home. She was reading the story in the paper again when the doorbell rang. Nellie came to say that a young man wished to see her. "He says he's Mr. Sentry," she explained, "and I told him you were the only one at home."

Barbara went into the hall. The young man said, "I'm Sentry." "I'm Miss Barbara." "I'm Dan Fisher," he explained, watching her appreciatively. "I'm a reporter. My editor sent me out to—well, to see if your father had any ideas about this murder. And to get some pictures and so on." He added, "I'm sorry to bother you." And then he grinned and said, "If I were you, I wouldn't even talk to me."

Barbara liked him. "You're a funny reporter," she protested. "I thought they wore their hats in the house." "You're thinking of plain-clothes men, policeman," he suggested, chuckling; and he added, surprising her, "I met you once. You don't remember? You were with Joe Dane in New Haven after the Princeton game two years ago. Joe introduced us."

"Oh! Were you reporting the game?" "No, I'd been helping coach the Princeton ends. Used to play a little myself. That was before I went into the newspaper game." She said courteously, "Why, then, we're really old friends! Will you come in? There's no one at home, but father and mother will be back soon."

He hesitated, shook his head. "Thanks," he said, "don't think I will." And he confessed, a little amused at his own scruples: "Probably a real red-top reporter would get some pictures out of you, and an interview. If your father were here—I'll tell you, I may come back later."

She nodded, understanding his forbearance, grateful. "I shouldn't know what to say," she admitted. "If I were you, I wouldn't say anything to reporters," he advised. "Just refer them to your father. It doesn't mean for any of you to be mysterious about it, of course. That would only make it worse." And he said: "Thanks a lot. Good night."

Barbara was almost sorry he departed. Her thoughts were terrifying company. But when she heard her father and mother return she met them smilingly. "Well, you missed it!" she announced in lively tones. "I've been entertaining a reporter!" "A reporter?" Mrs. Sentry echoed resentfully. "Ridiculous! Barbara, you shouldn't have let him in the house!" "Oh, he was rather nice! His name's Dan Fisher, and he went to Princeton, and knows Joe Dane," Mrs. Sentry said in sardonic reproach. "Weren't you—unnecessarily hospitable?" "Well, he said we shouldn't be mysterious about it," Barbara assured them. "He said that would just make it worse."

Mrs. Sentry spoke to her husband. "Arthur, you'd better call up Carl Bettie, make him stop that sort of thing." Bettie was publisher of one of the morning papers, and an old friend. "I won't be hounded by reporters."

Mr. Sentry shook his head. "We've got to expect that, Ellen."

Mrs. Sentry put on her hat and went to the door. "I'll be back in a minute," she called. "I'll be back in a minute," she called. "I'll be back in a minute," she called.

"Oh, Don't Be So Funny!" Phil Exclaimed.

for a day or two. Barbara's right to know would just make things worse."

He added, "And after all, we've nothing to hide."

CHAPTER III

Miss Wines was found dead in the hall outside Mrs. Sentry's office at about eight o'clock Friday morning, a Friday in October. The afternoon papers cried the news; the morning papers on Saturday spread the tale over three or four pages.

Phil Sentry, a junior at Yale, who had spent late that morning there was to be a football game in the afternoon, and the pre-game celebration the night before had in his mind a somewhat feeble, but very rich, roommate, had; and when Fritz returned to the room in a mid-noon party, he discovered the clothes violently off Phil.

"Wake up, Phil!" he shouted. "You've got your name in the paper!" Phil blinked sleepily. "What's happened? We didn't start anything last night, did we?" "Read 'em and weep!" Fritz insisted. "All about the murder in high life! Pretty stenographer foully slain! Here, have a look at this!" Phil sat up and peered, blinking at the headlines; he turned the pages and saw photographs of the dead girl, of his father, of Mr. Loren, and of Sentry and Loren's old brick building in the market district. The history of the firm, founded by Sentry's grandfather, was related; and his father's clubs were listed, and his mother's charities.

The names of Loren and Sentry, even though the connection was slight, lent a certain importance to this murder of a pretty stenographer; yet an old newspaper man, though the names might have been meaningless to him, would have guessed from the extent of the spread that there was more to come, that there was a whisper of sensation in the air.

Even Phil sensed this faintly as he glanced through the pages; but before he had finished, two or three fellows came in to just at his elbow. Was Agnes Wines one of his conquests, they demanded. What was this power he had over women? Where did he bury his dead? He grinned, and then swore.

"Cut the comedy," he said harshly. "Haven't you guys any sense of decency? Look like a nice kid." "Oh, don't be so funny!" Phil exclaimed. He stalked into the shower, took it hot and cold, but cold till his head cleared, thought how all this would distress his mother, thought of telephoning her reassurances, thought he might send her a wire, thought he might go home over Sunday, and then remembered the football game and did not want to miss it, and in the end did nothing that day at all.

But Phil did read the papers carefully. Police had found the young Italian in Freedom, Maine. He had been able to account for all his recent movements. Other young men, friends of the dead girl, were being questioned. The girl's father, who was a scallop fisherman, had hurried to Boston. His picture appeared; a long-legged, sad, drooping little old man.

The police, Phil read, were investigating the fact that Miss Wines had been mysteriously absent from her lodgings for three days in August last. The twentieth, twenty-first, and twenty-second. She had told her landlady that she was going to visit a girl friend in New Hampshire; but this girl—not named—denied that Agnes Wines had visited her, or had even planned to do so.

Much was made of this fact. One of the papers produced a note that the police were seeking the dead girl's unknown lover, and carried a subsidiary headline:

LOVE CLEW IN PRODUCE HOUSE MURDER

Phil threw the paper aside at last, and finished dressing; but when he went to lunch, more than one comedian asked, "Were you mysteriously absent from your accustomed haunts in August, Phil?" He grinned and took it, as the easiest way to put an end to this rascally but with that secret uneasiness which even the innocent may feel, he tried to recall where he had been on the dates given. He remembered at last that he had returned just then from a cruise on Bill Hoke's schooner, and himself had gone on to York Harbor that afternoon.

He was relieved at being able thus to account for his time, and when he was back in his father's room, he found that Mr. Sentry had gone to New York on business, and himself had gone on to York Harbor that afternoon.

lory, there was not a normal vocal chord in the Bowl.

There was celebrating that must be done, and Phil did it. What had happened in Boston was forgotten for that evening; but it must have stayed disturbingly in the back of his mind, since he was three or four o'clock in the morning before he went to bed, he woke soon after ten, and remembered, and opened his door to get the Sunday morning paper in the hall outside.

He read it, read every line in it that concerned Miss Wines. There were only two things really new in the story of the murder. The autopsy had revealed a probable motive for the crime; and the hour when Agnes Wines was killed had been fixed. A night watchman in a warehouse nearby had heard the shot. He had thought at the time that it was a truck back-firing, probably two or three streets away, because the sound was muffled; but now he was convinced that it was in fact a shot which he had heard. He was sure of the time, having finished his one o'clock rounds just before. Probably five or ten minutes past one, he thought.

Phil was relieved to see that that blaze of publicity which yesterday had focused on his family and on that of Mr. Loren had somewhat abated now. Yet he knew so vividly how they would each react to this ugly experience. His father would be concerned about the effect on the business; his mother would resent the offense to her personal dignity; Mary, like so many persons completely egotistic, would feel personally wronged as though the world had conspired to make her ridiculous and unhappy. Barbara—Phil smiled, thinking of Barbara—would keep her head high, make a joke out of the whole thing, try to make them laugh.

He thought of telephoning them some word of reassurance, but the telephone was unsatisfactory. He felt vaguely that they might be lonely; that there might be something he could do. And also, an intangible uneasiness oppressed him. There was something in the tone of the newspaper stories that suggested the writer knew more than they wrote. Phil was young enough to want to be assured that everything was all right; he was old enough to want to help and comfort if he could.

Task of Protecting Bathers Has Now Been Reduced to Art by Lifesavers

Now the lifeguard starts to the rescue before the victim knows he's in trouble!

That's how scientific the art of preventing drowning has become on the beaches of Los Angeles county, notes a writer in the Los Angeles Times.

And when it works on 40,000,000 persons it must be a good system.

Furthermore, if a swimmer gets into trouble, swallows some water, passes out and is dragged ashore, he doesn't have to worry about the lifeguard sticking a hatpin through or trying a handkerchief around his tongue.

The old method of resuscitation is as passive as skirts on a woman's bathing suit. Resuscitation is painless nowadays.

He was taken on a mysterious journey in a closed carriage which brought him eventually to the shores of a small bay where a fishing boat stood off shore a short distance. After an exchange of signals, he was taken aboard this boat which was camouflaged with a false cargo of bundles and operated by a Cuban pilot named Sabo, who had been detailed to take him to Garcia.

A Dangerous Journey. The little party then began the first leg of their dangerous journey. If they were caught within the three-mile limit they could be held and possibly imprisoned for violation of British neutrality. If they were caught outside the three-mile limit by any of the Spanish boats which were patrolling the Caribbean sea, they would probably be treated as spies and that meant their backs to a wall with a firing squad in front.

Early the next morning they saw a Spanish boat approaching. Rowan and the rest of those on board, except Sabo, dropped their hands and hid under the deck. As he dropped the sail, the Spaniards saw only what appeared to be a lone fisherman. After a casual inquiry as to how the fish were biting, they passed on without closer investigation.

At midnight on April 25, the day that the United States declared war on Spain, Rowan and his friends entered Oriente bay and were met by a group of Cuban patriots in a most mysterious manner. The most dangerous part of the trip was over six days during which time the young American made his way through the steamy, insect-infested jungle, drinking insect-infested water and eating only such food as could be found in holes in the ground where the Cuban rebels had buried it.

On May 1 Rowan was escorted to General Garcia's camp and here he learned of an amusing mistake that had been made. He bore letters from the season first in Jamaica. They also sent him a letter from the United States. He explained fully the Cuban situation. First Basen return journey what an outsider more meritorious been had been declared Public and Outside the five-day trip to the south coast was a success. He had a Spanish patrol with him and his companions. He had a Spanish patrol with him and his companions.

BY SUMMER ROWAN MIGHT STILL BE A "FORGOTTEN HERO" IF ELBERT HUBBARD NOT NEEDED AN EDITORIAL TO PUT IN HIS MAGAZINE, THE PHILISTINE, WHICH TO GO TO PRESS AND WROTE ONE THAT HAS BEEN REPRINTED MORE THAN 80,000 TIMES

BY ELMO SCOTT WATSON

FORTY years ago a young American army officer had returned from a perilous mission which had won him the praise of his superiors and resulted in his being summoned to appear before the President of the United States and members of the cabinet where he received the personal congratulations of the Chief Executive. But in the excitement over our entrance into the War with Spain, his exploit caused little public comment and it seemed that the fame which was justly his was about to pass him by.

Nearly a year later the editor of a magazine, which was about to go to press, needed an editorial for that issue. While having dinner with his son, the boy happened to mention the deed of the young army officer and declared that he was the real hero of the Spanish-American war. The father leaped up inspired—here was an idea for the editorial!

So he wrote it, but he thought so little of the result that he ran it in the magazine without a heading. However, that editorial has been reprinted more than 80,000,000 times; after 40 years copies of it still sell at the rate of 150,000 a year; it has been carried to all parts of the world and translated into 20 languages and it is probably the best known piece of English prose ever written.

The young army officer was Lieut. Andrew Summers Rowan, who is still living in California and is of the age of eighty-one. The editor was Elbert Hubbard, who died on the Lusitania when it was sunk by a German submarine in the Atlantic ocean. Hubbard wrote for the March, 1898, issue of his magazine, the Philistine, was "A Message to Garcia."

In 1868 Lieutenant Rowan, a graduate from West Point in the class of 1861, was detailed to duty in Washington. War with Spain was imminent and President McKinley realized the necessity of having reliable information about the Spanish forces in Cuba and whether or not Lieut. Gen. Calixto Garcia, commander of the Cuban insurgent army, would cooperate with the American forces if an army was sent there.

The President summoned Col. Arthur Wagner, head of the bureau of military intelligence, to his home and there he found a man who will carry a message to Garcia? he asked.

"There is a young lieutenant named Rowan here in Washington who will take it," Wagner replied.

Floya Gibbons' ADVENTURERS' CLUB

HEADLINES FROM THE LIVES OF PEOPLE LIKE YOURSELF!

"The Rolling Stones" By FLOYA GIBBONS Famous Headline Hunter

HELLO EVERYBODY: Here's another yarn from a CCC camp. By golly, it looks to me like those camps are swell places to go adventuring...

It was one cold morning in November, 1934, that John got out of the hay to find a notice on the bulletin board. The notice called for volunteers to carry water pipes to a stub camp...

Long, Hard Trip Around the Mountain. The foreman told them he'd give them two days off for doing the job, but before they got through with it, they wished they'd held out for a week's leave...

It was late afternoon when they started back, and they had gone only five miles when the dusk began to shut down on them. They were afraid they'd lose the trail if they didn't get home before nightfall...

Caught in a Landslide. It only looked like a mile or two across the mountain, so the two lads started to climb. They had only gone a quarter of a mile up the mountain when it started to rain...

It became harder and harder to see where they were going. But at that time it was too late to turn back, for they would never have found the trail again...

"I'm right here at your feet. For God's sake let me get out of that rock and lie down under it. It's a landslide! I let go, wondering if I was going to roll all the way down the mountain, but Bob made me hold on and held the rope...

Seemed Like the End of the World. John says he can't describe what took place after that, but he thought the world was coming to an end. "A couple of boulders," he says, "that must have weighed a ton apiece bounded right off the one side of the mountain again, but they didn't get very far..."

For hours those two lads hung there—or at least it seemed hours to them—and then things began to quiet down again. The slides ceased—the rain stopped. They clambered over their rock and headed for the mountain again, but they didn't get very far...

"It was as high as an ocean liner," says John, "and we couldn't have climbed up it any more than we could fly. We didn't dare go back down the mountain, either, for fear we'd get lost, or caught in another one of those landslides..."

When morning came, they heard shots. They yelled, and a gang of their own CCC pals came to their rescue. The lads had been missed and the whole camp was out looking for them. They were taken back to camp, exhausted, and sick as dogs, as John puts it. "And instead of getting two days leave in town," he says, "we spent a week in bed at camp, nursing colds and getting over our exhaustion..."

Burning of Jewels. The chief of the pyrometry section of the bureau of standards, says that diamonds were used in a stream of oxygen became incandescent (rapid oxidation or burning, but no flame) at 800 degrees C. (1470 F.). Emerald is a gem variety of beryl, which melts at 1410 degrees C. (2570 F.). Sapphire, Oriental ruby and Oriental emerald are gem varieties of corundum. Corundum melts at 2650 degrees C., or 3700 degrees F. Although the gem variety of ruby is the Oriental ruby, the ruby found in the spinel variety, such as almandine, balas and spinel rubies, which forms are not definite minerals.

Wild and Domestic Turkeys. It's not such a far cry from wild to domestic turkey. The conquerors found the first turkeys, closely related to the wild birds, in Mexico. They took turkeys back to Europe in 1492. In 90 years, by the time the Pilgrims came to America, turkeys were common in England. The birds were probably named for their cry of "turk, turk, turk..."

Compelled to Kill Squirrels. The large number of squirrels were such a menace in the early days that the Ohio legislature passed a law compelling each person to kill a certain number of them each year. The number was to be determined by each township board of trustees, and those who failed to fill their quota were subject to a fine.

Quality Silk Weaves Lead Styles

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Quality silk weaves lead styles. A smart ensemble for mother or daughter centers the group. The straight, printed crinkled silk crepe coat with quilting spaced between the large white flowers is new and several counts. Note that the silk print is crinkled, and crinkled fabric is the rage this season.

Crinkled and quilted flower-print coat is of black silk Canton crepe with sleeves continuing the quilted theme. The scalloped Milan hat is something to talk about in that it confirms the report from Paris that designers are "scallopizing everything" this season.

Among the newer silks that are making a definite impression is shirring and down the center front places emphasis on the style message that declares shirred effects to be a leading trimming feature this season. The hat faced with black organdie and trimmed with dark rose grosgrain ribbon is extremely effective with this charming costume.

THREE RULES FOR MARKETING CATTLE

Important Points Cited by University Expert

By R. C. Ashby, Chief in Live Stock Marketing, University of Illinois.

To market fat cattle to advantage cattle feeders can do no better than to follow three fundamental rules. Stated briefly the three rules are to avoid overloading the market, to sell competitively and to fit cattle to the market.

In following the first of these rules, shipments will need to be adjusted to the capacity of the market to absorb them. This will require careful team work between cattle feeders and sales agencies on the markets.

To get the full strength of the market, it is necessary to sell competitively on the open competitive market. To get the best possible sales service it is advisable to follow strong sales agencies.

By fitting cattle to the market, the third rule laid down, the farmer is watching them closely and selling when they become fat enough to sell to advantage.

The margin a feeder needs to carry cattle in summer—cattle that could be sold in June but might be held until September in anticipation of a higher price—depends largely upon the age of the cattle, it is pointed out.

Calves can be held much better than older cattle since they will continue to make fairly economical gains. Older cattle, however, if fat, gain little if anything during the winter. Consequently, their entire feed bill during the holding period must be recovered by a higher selling price.

It is believed that a price increase of about 50 cents a month is needed in holding to get the best return in summer. Less is needed with calves, especially on 90 cent corn.

Use of Roost Poles for Turkeys Recommended

When poultry reach the age of approximately ten weeks, and no longer need artificial heat, they prefer to roost in the open. At this time they may be transferred from their old brooding quarters to a new place where heavy roost poles have been provided, says E. M. Funk, Missouri College of Agriculture.

The use of roost poles of 2 by 4 inch material laid sideways, and spaced from 18 to 24 inches apart on a platform of frame, makes a satisfactory roosting quarters for the turkeys. Posts are generally used to support the roost poles.

Each roost pole is placed on a roost pole or finely woven fencing wire should be used over the roost poles and around the sides of the roosting platform, to keep the turkeys from coming in contact with the droppings.

The same location for roosting quarters may be used throughout the summer and the turkeys driven to and from their roosting quarters by the method of management will prevent the use of range some distance from where the turkeys roost. On many farms it is desirable to have them roost near the farmstead as a protection against theft. Where there is no danger of theft, roosting quarters may be changed at the time a rotation of the range is made.

Scarecrows Modernistic

When wildlife, protected by game laws, becomes injurious to agriculturists, methods developed by the United States biological survey support the old-fashioned scarecrow. Wild ducks and other migratory birds, menacing crops such as fields of ripened grain, are now driven off by flash guns, revolving lights, and especially designed "move-on" noisemakers. Even fireworks, a most effective agent, are brought into play in special situations when the value of the crop warrants the expense. The biological survey desires protection of the field crops without damage to the country's wildlife.

Care in Feeding Horses

Digestive disturbances are among the most common troubles of horses, and a large percentage of these are caused by improper feeding. Says F. H. Overy of the Missouri college of agriculture, while horses may be affected with digestive disturbances at any season of the year, such troubles are more prevalent in the spring and fall. Feed should be of the best quality, and the horse should be given a few exceptions should be made gradually.

Keep Biddy Cool

Here are assistants from flock owners during warm weather. The hens have elaborate sets of air sacs which communicate with the bronchial and extend into many of the bones. These may be regarded as accessory lungs and assist in regulating body temperature. But these are not so effective but what owners should plan to keep the flock cool possible during the summer, says J. M. Beck, poultry husbandry, Kansas State college.

Simplicity for Day

New day and afternoon dresses are straight and simple with plaits for morning wear but draped for afternoon. Hips tightly modeled rather far down, are plain in construction to tucked and shirred waists.

Versatile Silk Jersey

Silk jersey is being worn with equal success in the sports, after noon or evening wardrobe. It may be combined with other materials in particularly effective when it forms the blouse to a wool suit.

Hot-Weather Wear

The lovely cool fabric which fashions this frock is ideal for hot-weather wear. It is a new shadow-and-substance weave of rayon that is lacy, lightweight, washable, highly crease-resistant and comes in the most delectable colors fancy can desire. You'll love it in dusty rose and other choice pastels as well as white. Be sure to take note of the lacy, lightweight, washable, highly crease-resistant and comes in the most delectable colors fancy can desire.

Baby Trims Give That Charm Touch

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

This season's frocks and lingerie blouses are taking on the charm of childhood days when leisure moments were taken up with running ribbons through beading, or hand-running numbers, pin-tucks or edgings, plus countless other enhancements that contribute to the "charm" of baby trims.

TO THE VOTERS OF LYNN COUNTY:

During the last few weeks, I have made a sincere attempt to call at the home of each voter. I am quite sure that I have unavoidably missed numbers of people with whom I wish to discuss the problems confronting the schools and school children of this county.

To those whom I have missed here I take this as a personal appeal and a visit.

I shall appreciate your vote and consideration on July 23.

Sincerely,
