services at the First Methodist church here Sunday morning.

Aluminum Drive Proves Success

TAHOCA, August 6 (Special)—
One thousand pounds of scrap aluminum was gathered by people of Lynn county in the recent drive to collect this vital Defense metal.
County Judge Chester Connolly told
The News this week.

"From what I can learn," Judge Connolly stated, "this places Lynn county right up near the top, population considered."

Judge Connolly states that he had excellent co-operation in staging the drive in the county, and he wishes
The News to express his thanks to everyone who donated old aluminum of any kind and anyone who helped in the gathering of the same. The metal is badly needed in the manufacture of war materials.

Aluminum gathered here was carried to the district headquarters at Lubbock Saturday morning.

Lynn Is First With USO Quota In 19th District

The "Over The Top" cry for completion of the USA quota was first heard from Lynn County in the 19th Congressional district, with Howard county following in line quickly, so announces Charles C.
Thompson, Colorado City, district
chairman.

Lynn's quota of $850.00 was $15
oversubscribed.

Harmony School Is Scene Tonight Of Musical Concert

Featuring a wide variety of entertainment in the way of songs, musical numbers and comedy, the Pickering Family, radio entertainers, will give a concert tonight at the school house in the Harmony community.

An admission price of 15c and 25c will be made for the concert which is being held under the sponsorship of the home demonstration club.

Church of Christ To Start Revival Here August 22

Revival services will be started at the Church of Christ Friday night, August 22, with James W. Adams of San Benito conducting. Claud Cheairs will be song director.

Services will be held both morning and night, at 10 a. m. and 8:15
p. m.

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Carson of Eagle Pass and Mr. and Mrs. Chas.
Carson and family of near Uvalde are visiting Mr. and Mrs. H. L.
Hohn.

Mr. and Mrs. John Ellis were called to Hamilton Tuesday by the serious illness of Mr. Ellis' sister.

Baptist Revival Gains Interest

Strong interest is being manifested in the revival services now being conducted at the First Baptist church, and attendance has been good at all morning and night sessions, so church leaders announce.

Preaching is being done by the pastor, the Rev. E. C. McDonald, while the song services are under the direction on Dorman Kinard of Lammesa.

Other branches of the church organization, made of men, women and children, are doing good work to further the cause of the revival.
Services will continue at the 11
a. m. and 8:30 p. m. hours until August 17.

Four Boys Will Leave For Camp

TAHOCA, August 6 (Special)—
Mrs. Lois McMahon, clerk of the local draft board, reports that D.
O. Huddleston of Fort Worth, who registered with the Board here while a resident of O'Donnell and who was given Order No. 183, has volunteered for service and will be inducted on the next call, which is to be filled on Wednesday of next week, August 13.

Others answering this call, who will be inducted Wednesday include Jack Boren, now at Odessa, who registered from Grassland and bears order No. 328; Garland Henson Gilmore of Wilson, whose order
No. is 410; and Joseph Everett Kolodziejczyk of Wilson, who registered at Los Angeles, California, and was later transferred to Lynn county.

George Claud Wells, son of Mr.
and Mrs. Claud Wells of Tahoka, has volunteered for service in the Aviation Corps of the regular Army and left Lubbock Monday night for San Antonio.

Mrs. McMahon states that questionnaires have been mailed out to all of the new registrants in this county, of whom there were sixtyone.

ACE-HI MET WITH MRS. HOWARD

Two tables of bridge were in play
Wednesday when Mrs. Earl Howard was hostess to her Club and additional guests.

A salad course was served at the conclusion of games.

Mrs. George Oates won high score prize. Mrs. James Applewhite bingo, and Miss Margaret Garner low.

Others playing were Mesdames Campbell, Bearden, Thompson, Kenneth Golightly, and Walls.
Mrs. Oates will be hostess next week.

E. Stone and his daughter, Miss Goldie, of Odessa were here Monday on business.

Mrs. B. M. Haynes has been ill
at her home this week.

Baptist Leaders

Baptist Pastor

DORMAN KINARD
Song Leader

Leaders in the revival now being conducted at the First Baptist church.

New Minister For Church of Christ

Alvis Bryan of Rochester has been called as minister of the Church of Christ here by church members and with his wife, will accept his new duties the first Sunday in September.

Action toward the calling of Bryan was made last Sunday. He has preached here the last three Sundays, and members expressed themselves as pleased with his manner of preaching the Scriptures.

Minister Bryan has been at Rochester for about three years.

ELDON CARROLL HOME

Following an appendectomy in a Lubbock hospital last Tuesday, Eldon Carroll was returned to his home this week.

He was "feeling fine" was the report Thursday.

N. H. Kline and T. R. Clark of El Paso, who are connected with the dispensing of natural gas, were here Monday on business connected with the E. Stone Butane company.

Cal Farley Here For Rotary Ann Program Tuesday

With Cal Farley district governor, furnishing the program. Rotary Ann's were honored and entertained
Tuesday night at the O'Donnell Hotel.

Appearing on the program in addition to Farley, were his daughter, Miss Gene and two other attractive misses, Vesta O'Dell and Marilyn Cornelius. All were of Amarillo.

President Fletcher Johnson acted as master of ceremonies.

That the Rotarians and their wives (or guests) were pleased with the program was indicated by the manner in which they again called upon the young ladies for entertainment after the program proper had been finished, and, as they have responded from O'Donnell to
New York City, the girls cheerfully responded to encore numbers and requests.

The Rotary Ann's are entertained twice yearly.

Farley, mixing humor with serious notes in his usual dynamic style, stressed the sponsoring of some project for the community by the club, and as an illustration pointed to the grand work being done for boys in Amarillo and other places.

"You may not be able to do such similar work, but there are things you can do, and in which every member can take part," he said.
"The more you do, the more pleasure you get out of doing for others —and if you want to answer those persons who ask 'what's the club
good for,' you'll be able to show them."

The city park project and work done by the club in having a road west of O'Donnell designated as a state highway was praised by the Amarillo man who has a national reputation for "getting things done."

TAKEN TO HOSPITAL

Willie White, employee of Singleton Hdw., was taken to a Slaton hospital this week.

It was thought that he had typhoid fever.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Henderson visited in Big Spring Sunday.

NUTRITION INFORMATION

A little after five one afternoon, on our picnic grounds at Hyde Park, representatives of various organizations in the county gathered to discuss with state representatives what had been accomplished in spreading nutrition information. Miss Ruth Wheeler of Vassar college, who had been made chairman by the Cornell university group, which is in charge of this work in the state, has been ill, and so the work is not completely organized.

I felt a good deal was accomplished for they named a radio and publicity chairman and talked over methods of getting information to the people of our county. A home demonstration agent is being sent by the Emergency Home Demonstration committee to a group of counties, including Dutchess, and our county agent, Mr. Shepherd, called a meeting at which women were named to take charge of the arrangements for the agent's work. This seems to me very important, because she can help us to accomplish things which are now being asked of the women of the United States of America. First we may see that our schools are used as demonstration centers for child feeding. That means that every available source of supply must be tapped for food to be used daily.

BACK IN WASHINGTON

We reached Washington, D. C., from Hyde Park in time for lunch the next day and the visitors began to arrive at once. I did have a little time to talk over one or two important family things with the President before he was again engulfed in government affairs.

At 4:40, I went to the airport with Jimmie and Rommie, who were starting for the West coast and waited to meet my daughter, who was coming in from Seattle, Wash., to attend Mayor LaGuardia's meeting on civilian volunteer participation in defense.

Anna was about twenty minutes late, which meant that a gentleman who was waiting to hand me a gift for the President sent by the mayor of an English city, had to wait for nearly twenty minutes. However, he was very kind about it. Afterwards, Dr. Frederick Douglas Patterson, the president of Tuskegee institute, came to tell me how well the training of the flying cadets is progressing there, and that Tuskegee is being named as a recreational area for Negro men on leave from Fort Benning.

PRESIDENT'S MEMORY

Four of us sat on the south portico of the White House one night having dinner; the President, our daughter, Anna; our cousin, Monroe D. Robinson; and I. Mr. Robinson had just returned from Peru and was telling the President of his impressions. He thinks Peru is one of the most interesting countries he has ever visited and cannot wait to return. Mr. Robinson has made some real friends and feels that they like him just as much as he likes them.

In the midst of his talk, my husband, in a very quiet way, said: "Have you ever happened to see an old book which has an illustration of a Peruvian Indian playing golf? They played golf in Peru years before they played it in Scotland. To all intents and purposes it was the same game except that instead of having to end up in a little tin cup, they had to hit a very small stick."

Monroe's face was a study. He had hardly expected to be told something about Peru, especially something which he felt might even be news to some of his Peruvian friends! Then my husband went on to explain that in college, he had bought the books every year for the Fly Club and Pudding Club libraries. For the Fly club, he had concentrated on books of old travel, and among them had found this particular book, which he considered the most interesting and which furnished the basis of some of his knowledge of Peru.

What wouldn't I give to have as retentive a memory as the President has, and at the same time always to be able to reach back into my mind and pick out the particular thing applicable to the conversation of the moment. Hours afterwards I can sometimes remember something which would have been very valuable, if it had only come to me when I was actually talking.

LA GUARDIA GROUP

The next day was given up entirely to the meeting held in the White House by Mayor LaGuardia's committee. Five members have been named from every corps area and represent all the different interests in our national life.

After lunch, the details were taken up and I hope that every member of the committee will go home knowing what the first steps in this program actually mean in the way of work. The future alone can tell how it will develop.

Hopkins' Arrival in Moscow

Harry Hopkins, President Roosevelt's personal representative, is shown (left) being greeted on his arrival in the Soviet capital after a secret airplane flight from Britain. Shaking hands with Hopkins is Lieutenant General MacFarlane, head of the British military mission to Moscow. Between the two men is Laurence Steinhardt, U. S. ambassador to Moscow, and (right) Sir Stafford Cripps, British ambassador to Moscow.

U. S. Gunboat Bombed by Japs

Photo of the 370-ton U. S. gunboat "Tutuila," which was struck by bombs during a Japanese raid on Chungking, China. It is reported the boat was in the so-called "safety zone" when she was hit. There were no casualties. Japan has promised the U. S. government a complete investigation and full indemnities. The "Tutuila" was built in 1927.

Blimp Helps Patrol Atlantic

A U. S. navy airship from the naval base at Lakehurst, N. J., hovers over an American freighter while on patrol over the Atlantic. Airships are coming back into their own and the base at Lakehurst is another of our defense posts which is feeling growing pains. Officers and crews are being trained for the new blimps ordered by the navy.

Safe After 12 Days Adrift in Atlantic

Their ship torpedoed about 400 miles off Greenland while en route to Britain, four Red Cross nurses (shown seated) were landed at Norfolk, Va., after spending 12 days adrift in an open boat in the North Atlantic. Picked up by an American destroyer, they were taken to Iceland for treatment before being returned to the States.

Flies to Canada

"Not in the least. She feels she's still in the profession."
"How is that?"
"One scene after another."

Lockless Suez Canal

The Suez canal is a sea-level "ditch," requiring no locks. The narrow ditch in the sand runs for 104.5 miles through desert and marshy land from Port Said on the Mediterranean to Port Taufiq on the Gulf of Suez. Its channel depth is now 45 feet, and its narrowest width is 70 yards. Although it has been concreted at some places to halt erosion, the banks are chiefly sand or gravel. The northern half of the canal cuts straight through the desert; the southern half leads through a chain of small lakes which act as "expansion chambers" to help take up the flow of the four-foot tide from the Red sea.

YOU BUY INOCULATION ON FAITH

Field tests have shown a big difference in the quality of inoculator brands on the market. You cannot see the legume bacteria you purchase. Immediate demonstration is impossible. What is the reputation and experience behind the inoculation you buy?
● NITRAGIN is the ORIGINAL LEGUME INOCULATOR, having served the farmers for over forty years. It won a GOLD MEDAL at the World's Fair, St. Louis, 1904.
● NITRAGIN is made in the most complete and modern laboratory of its kind in the world.
● NITRAGIN is the leader in its field by a big margin. NITRAGIN demand in the South has rapidly increased year after year. During the fall of 1940 the Southern shipments of NITRAGIN were for more than 40 million pounds of VETCH and WINTER PEAS. This large demand is due to many field tests carried on year after year. We prove by these tests that NITRAGIN is a good product. Send for our booklet "Plant Legumes Prosper," showing pictures of field tests and how NITRAGIN is made. The booklet also gives you valuable information regarding the inoculation of legume. If your dealer does not have NITRAGIN in stock, he will get it for you. Insist on NITRAGIN inoculation.

Exquisite Decorative Doilies are Crocheted

THE final, exquisite touch to any decorative scheme, and one that you can contribute yourself, is found in dainty needlework. Hand crocheted doilies are part of our American tradition, and here is a set of three which will enhance the beauty of your buffet or lend charm to an occasional table. These gossamer, web-like doilies crocheted in mercerized crochet cotton will look crisp and fresh after repeated tubbings—and will cost you just 20¢ to make. Doilies may also be entered in a special class in this year's Nation-Wide Crochet Contest and will be judged for national honors and cash prizes. Directions for making these doilies and details of the Contest may be obtained by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Needlework Department of this paper, specifying design No. 734.

MRS. LIDDELL WAS SEWING CLUB HOSTESS

Mrs. Frank Liddell entertained Sew and Chatter Club members at her home on East Eighth street last week.
Marigolds decorated the rooms. Members cut garments for the Red Cross and this week they will continue the work.
A delectable plate holding open face sandwiches, pickles, ice tea, and devil's food cake was served at the tea hour.
Members present were: Mesdames Johnson, Fritz, Miles, Frazier, Treadway, Line, and the hostess.
Mrs. Harvey Line will be hostess this week.
Mrs. Roy D. Smith and Dorothy were in Snyder Sunday to accompany Mrs. Smith's grandson home.

MRS. WELLS WAS CLUB HOSTESS

Palming Group Medical Program

More than five thousand low-income farm families comprising 27,281 persons, working with the Farm Security Administration, U. S. Department of Agriculture, in New Mexico and parts of Texas, Kansas, Colorado and Oklahoma, are participating in a Group Medical Care program.

This information was received here this week by Wyman J. Welch, rural rehabilitation supervisor for the Farm Security Administration in Lynn county, from Wilson Cowan, regional director of this Federal agency at Amarillo.

The information, Mr. Welch said, was taken from a report for the fiscal year ending June 30.

The Group Medical Care program, sponsored by the FSA in co-operation with local physicians, makes medical attention more readily available to low-income rural people at a cost they can afford. The plan operates on a voluntary basis.

The Group Medical Care program is operating in 79 of the 120 counties served by the regional FSA office at Amarillo.

Participating physicians in the 79 counties received an average of $10,000 a month in 12 months covered in the report at an average cost to participating families of slightly less than $2 per month.

The Group Medical Care program makes it possible for physicians, particularly in rural areas, to give essential medical care to needy families at the time it is needed. It also enables the participating families to safeguard their health and receive attention at a cost they can afford to pay.

This plan, according to Mr. Welch, has been in operation in some counties in this region for four years. It is now operating in about 800 counties throughout the United States, serving approximately 800,000 farm families.

Mr. Welch said that leading authorities generally believe that this program is aiding materially in the present National Defense Program by protecting the health of many persons who usually are least able to take advantage of medical assistance.

THE TRUTH SIMPLY TOLD

Today's popularity of Doan's Pills, after many years of world-wide use, surely must be accepted as evidence of satisfactory use. And favorable public opinion supports that of the able physicians who test the value of Doan's under exacting laboratory conditions. If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove waste that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole body suffers when kidneys lag, and diuretic medication would be more often employed. Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warns of disturbed kidney function. You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out. Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won world-wide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Ask your neighbor!

THE STORY SO FAR:

Dusty King and Lew Gordon had built up a vast string of ranches. King was killed by the powerful and unscrupulous competitor, Ben Thorpe. Bill Roper, King's adopted son, was determined to avenge his death in spite of the opposition of his sweetheart.

CHAPTER XXII

"We're making a big mistake, not to hang him and be done with it," Red Kane said.

They were two days from Fork Creek now. This long and narrow stream, which Jim Leathers paced so restlessly, was the kitchen of the main house at Walk Lasham's southwest camp—a convenient stop-over on the way to Sundance, where Roper was to be turned over to Ben Thorpe.

"The quicker we hang him, the better we'll be off," Red Kane said again.

Wearily, doggedly, Jim Leathers pulled a cigarette. He took his time about replying. "Seems like you already said that once before."

"I'm liable to keep on saying it," Red Kane told him. "Things is different now."

In the doorway, behind the two men who watched Bill Roper, a girl now appeared, a slim, full-breasted girl, whose dark, slanting eyes had sometimes troubled Bill Roper before now.

He had not been surprised to find Marquita here in Walk Lasham's southwest camp, to which his captors had brought him. He had guessed, when he had last talked to her in Miles City, that she was Walk Lasham's girl; and in spite of her expressed eagerness to leave Lasham and ride with Roper, he realized that Marquita still had to live to some way.

Girls of her stamp could not afford to throw down such a man as Lasham, until more interesting opportunities offered.

Her face was impassive now, but the slanting dark eyes narrowed in a definite signal to Roper. The combination of Spanish and Indian blood in this girl from the Texas border gave her a lithe, lazy grace, and a haunting depth of dark eyes; and the same blood made her unaccountable—sometimes stoic and unyielding, sometimes livened by the lightning flashes of an inner fire.

Undoubtedly she was capable of a passionate devotion, and an equally passionate cruelty. Anything could happen in a situation which included Marquita—with Marquita in love.

For a moment Bill Roper resented the fact that he couldn't be interested in any girl except Jody Gordon—a girl who didn't want him or need him. All the worst aspects of his own situation were apparent to him, then. He was an outlaw wanted the length of the Trail; probably would be an outlaw all the rest of his life, which gave every promise of being a short one. That even Marquita wanted him, or had any use for him, was a gift which he should have been glad to accept.

What he had to think of now, though, was that Marquita was extremely likely to precipitate a lot of immediate disturbance.

Troubled, he wished to shake his head, or in some other way caution her that she must make no attempt to interfere. Roper had no intention of ever coming into the hands of Ben Thorpe alive. Somewhere between this place and Sundance, where Thorpe waited, he would make his play, however slim the chance.

Yet he would rather take his chances with some unforeseen opportunity later, when they were again on the trail, than to be plunged into some helpfully intended situation which the girl might devise—with danger to herself and questionable advantage to him. She had never brought him any luck.

He was unable, however, with the eyes of his two enemies upon him, to signal her in any way.

"Ben wanted him alive, if I could get him," Jim Leathers said stubbornly. "Well, I got him alive, and I aim to keep him that way. You bums ain't going to talk me into anything different just because you figure a dead man is easier to pack."

Bill Roper listened sardonically. In the two days spent in traveling from Fork Creek rendezvous, the scalp wound which had brought him down had nearly healed; but when he laced his fingers behind his head he winced and dropped his hands again.

It was typical of the quality of his captors that his hands were not tied or manacled. They told him where to sit and they made him stay put, and they were careful that no opportunity was given him to snatch a gun from an unwary holster; but these were merely the routine precautions of sensible men. For these riders were the picked gunfighters of Ben Thorpe's scores of outfits. They did not fear Roper, would not have feared him had he been armed.

Bill Roper had no doubt that Red Kane and perhaps one or two of the others would kill a doomed prisoner for no more reason than Jim Leathers had suggested.

The Lasham camp had been boiling with news as Jim Leathers' men had ridden in at dusk with their prisoner. Much had happened on the range while Leathers had waited out Bill Roper at the Fork Creek camp. The news that had reached

Jody Gordon, and her father. After breaking Thorpe in Texas, Roper conducted a great raid upon Thorpe's vast herds in Montana. Jody was captured by seven of Thorpe's men. Roper and Shoshone Wilce rescued her in a surprise attack. Shoshone

Lasham's southwest camp was broken, and seemed to have been little understood by the men who had brought it; but Roper, with his inside knowledge of the force he had turned loose against Lasham, could piece together its meaning well enough. Lasham's southwest outpost, with its big herds of picked cattle wintering in this deepest and richest of the Montana grass, had been more powerfully manned than any other Lasham camp. But twice in the past week frantic calls for reinforcements from the outfits to the east had drained most of this man power away—first five picked gunfighters, then a dozen cowboys more, until only five men had been left.

The messengers who had killed their ponies to come for help had brought the camp a fragmentary story which gave Roper the deepest satisfaction.

In their tales of incredible losses, of raiders who struck night after night at far separated points, driving cattle unheard-of distances to disappear weirdly in the northern wastes, Roper read the success of his Great Raid.

Dry Camp Pierce was sweeping westward across Montana like a destroying wind; by unexpected daring, by speed of movement, by wild riding relays which punished themselves no less than the cattle they drove, Dry Camp was feeding an increasing stream of Lasham beef into the hands of Iron Dog's bands, who spirited the beef forever from the face of Montana. By the very boldness of its conception and the wild savagery of its execution the unbelievable Great Raid was meeting with success.

And now Dry Camp had struck even deeper than Roper had planned, lifting the best of Lasham's beeves from almost within gun-shot of Lasham's strongest camp. So well had Dry Camp planned, and so steadily did the luck hold, that a full day had passed before the loss inflicted by the raiders was discovered. The five remaining cowboys at the southwest camp were only tightening their cinches as Jim Leathers rode in.

Most of the Leathers party had joined the Lasham men in pursuit of Dry Camp's raiders. Only Jim Leathers himself and the unwilling Red Kane remained to convoy Roper to Ben Thorpe at Sundance.

Because of the confusion involved in the organization of the pursuit, the night was now far gone; already it was long past midnight.

"There's still another reason," Red Kane said, "why it would be better to hang him now. Suppose that wild bunch of his knows he's here?"

"How the devil would they know that?" Leathers said with disgust. "Maybe they was scouting us with spy glasses as we come over the trail today."

"If they was, they would have landed on us right then, in place of waiting till we got into camp."

"Maybe the girl run to them—"

"The girl? You make me sick."

"Have it your own way."

"You're darned right I'll have it my own way. I don't want to hear no more about it. And I'll tell you this: if your trigger finger gets itchy while you're on watch tonight, you better soak it in a pan of water, and leave the gun be. Because if anything comes up while you're on watch such that you got to shoot him, by God, next thing you got to shoot me—you understand?"

and Jody rode to a prearranged spot, but Roper was captured while fighting a rear guard action to assure their escape. While waiting for Roper to meet them at their secret hiding place, Jody saw Shoshone fall down, dead.

"I guess it could be done," Red Kane said nastily.

Leathers ignored this, and Red Kane disappeared. This time the door shut after him.

Leathers said, "Get me a drink." Marquita unhurriedly set out a bottle and a glass on the table beside Jim Leathers' elbow.

"A deck of cards," Leathers said. She produced this, too.

Marquita strolled over to Leathers, the high heels of her slippers clicking lazily on the puncheon floor. "Why are you so cross with me?" she asked reproachfully. She moved behind Jim Leathers, and slowly ran her fingers through his hair.

"Ain't going to get you a thing," Jim Leathers said sourly.

"No?" said Marquita. For a moment one hand was lost in the folds of her skirt; then, deftly, unhurriedly, she planted the muzzle of a .38 against the back of Jim Leathers' neck.

There was a moment of absolute silence, absolute immobility. Jim Leathers' eyes were perfectly still upon Bill Roper's face, as still as his hands, in one of which a playing card hung suspended. But though his face did not notably change, Marquita, with her .38 pressed hard against the back of the gunman's neck, had turned white; her mouth worked as she tried to speak, and her wide eyes were upon Bill Roper in terrified appeal. Perhaps no more than a second could have passed in that way, but to them all it seemed as if time had stopped, so that that little fraction of eternity held them motionless forever.

Bill Roper, moving up and forward, exploded into action smoothly, like a cat. It was the length of the room between them that saved Jim Leathers then.

Leathers twisted, lightning fast. Marquita's gun blazed into the floor as her wrist swept down in the grip of Leathers' left hand; and Bill Roper checked a yard from the table as Leathers' gun flashed into sight, becoming instantly steady. Marquita sagged away from Leathers, and her gun clattered upon the puncheons; but although Leathers' whole attention was concentrated upon Roper, Marquita's wrist remained locked in his grasp.

The gunfighter's voice was more hard and cold than the steel of his gun; it was as hard and cold as his eyes.

"Get back there where you was," Bill Roper shrugged and moved back.

Leathers flung Marquita away from him and with his left hand picked up her gun as the door of the storeroom was torn open and Red Kane bulged in.

"What the—"

"This thing come behind me and stuck a gun in my neck," Leathers told him.

"The devil! You hurt?"

"Hell, no! I took it away from her."

Gently, tentatively, his long fingers ran over his wounded leg. That bullet wound in his thigh must have tortured him unspeakably through the two days in the saddle; and it must have been jerking at his nerves now with red-hot hooks, roused by the swift action that had preserved his command.

His face had turned gray so that the black circles under his eyes made them seem to burn from death's-head hollows, and his face, which had changed so little in this moment of action was relaxed into an ugly contortion. Slowly the gray color was turning to the purple of a dark and terrible anger.

"By God," said Red Kane, "I told you we should have hung him!"

"You told me right," Jim Leathers said. The burn of his eyes never for a moment left Bill Roper's face. "You was right and I was wrong. I should have hung him at the start."

A pleasurable hope came into Red Kane's face. "Well—it ain't too late!"

"No, it ain't too late. Tie his hands."

Keeping Roper between himself and Leathers, so that his partner's gun bore steadily upon Roper's belt buckle, Kane lashed Roper's hands behind him. The frost-stiff rope bit deep.

"Tie up this girl," Leathers ordered when Kane had finished. "I want her to see this show."

Marquita said, "I'm sorry, Bill." Her voice was broken by hard, jerking sobs, and tears were running down her face; yet somehow her words sounded dull and dead. "I did the best I could."

"You did fine," Roper said. "That was a game try." Hobbling on his stiff leg, Leathers moved to the outer door, flung it open; coatless, he stopped and signaled Red Kane back with one hand.

"Red, get back! Get out of line!" With the quick instinct of a man who has always been in trouble, Red Kane jumped back into the room, carrying Bill Roper with him. They all could hear now the sound of running horses.

Notes of a New Yorker:

Movie Actor James Stewart is supposed to have had one side of his forehead sunburned one day at camp because of the overseas cap he wore. Next day he wore the cap on the other side.

The Top Sarge asked him what's the idea? . . . Without thinking, Stewart replied: "I did it to even up my sun tan."

"Stewart," was the reply, "we do not expect photographers."

One night John Edgar Hoover, the G-Whizzer, was telling some of us something off the record about a Nazi agent, who is posing as a decent American business man.

"Gosh," one of us said, "How did you find THAT out?"

"We've got a louse in his clothes," was the retort.

Orchestra Leader Ray Block overheard it the other night . . . A kibitzer-communist was trying to give his opinions in a war argument. "Well," he said after he thought he scored a point, "how would you like to have me on your side now?"

"I'd rather," was the snapper, "have appendicitis."

A radio smallie tired of playing anonymous stogee to a famed comic and wanted his own show. The writer he consulted advised him he wasn't big enough to carry a show, that nobody ever heard of him . . . "That's his fault," mourned the ham, referring to the star, "he's not satisfied to get most of the money. He takes the best laughs and all the publicity. All I get is obscurity."

The writer mowed him down . . . "Obscurity is right," he said, "and now you want to invest your time and money in it."

If Goering is actually in the clink-eroo it's what a lot of insiders expected. Hitler had no love for Fats. He needed him, because Goering had a big drag in certain quarters . . . But being a sissy, Adolf hated Goering's Tarzan manner. He burned when Fats showed up for meeting, medals rattling and his uniform glittering like Lucius Beebe's Sunday overalls . . . Also, Hitler was tickled when Dimitrov let Goering have it at the Reichstag fire trials . . . Dimitrov, one of the accused, turned on Goering in court and accused him of being the firebug . . . Goering's sputtering convicted him in the minds of the reporters present. And they say Hitler laughed fit to kill.

Once a girl reporter from the U.S. gave Goering a sharp pain in the neck . . . She was Mildred Gilman, once of the Journal . . . When Goering granted her an interview, he fixed up his office with props to show her how he lived on raw meat and such. He even included a leopard which would prove he was so tough he needed wild animals for pets . . . But Miss Gilman did not, as expected, scream for help and try to get away from the leopard. She upset Goering's tough-boy pitch by fondling the ferocious thing.

PATTERNS

SEWING CIRCLE

HERE'S one of those very satisfying everyday dresses that's decidedly out of the ordinary in charm and practicality. The lines are really as good as those of your favorite afternoon dress. The skirt sweeps, from a high, small waistline, to a flare that ensures working comfort and looks pretty besides. You can draw the waistline in as slim as you please, by means of the back-tied sash belt—and adjust it to give yourself plenty of leeway for reaching, stretching, sweeping, dusting and so on. This design (No. 1360-B) is simple to make and it really is necessary to a busy day.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1360-B is designed in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20 and 40. Corresponding bust measurements 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, and 40. Size 14 (32) requires 3 1/2 yards edging. Send your order to:

THE TRUTH SIMPLY TOLD

Today's popularity of Doan's Pills, after many years of world-wide use, surely must be accepted as evidence of satisfactory use. And favorable public opinion supports that of the able physicians who test the value of Doan's under exacting laboratory conditions. These physicians, too, approve every word of advertising you read, the objective of which is only to recommend Doan's Pills as a good diuretic treatment for disorder of the kidney function, and for relief of the pain and worry it causes.

If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove waste from the blood, the objective of which is to keep the blood pure and healthy, there would be better understanding of why the whole body suffers when kidneys fail, and diuretic medicine would be more often employed.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warn of disturbed kidney function. You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up at night, swelling, nervousness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out.

Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won world-wide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Ask your neighbor!

INSTALLMENT 16 THE STORY SO FAR:

Dusty King and Lew Gordon had built up a vast string of ranches. King was killed by a powerful and unscrupulous competitor, Ben Thorpe. Bill Roper, King's adopted son, was determined to avenge his death in spite of the opposition of his sweetheart.

CHAPTER XXII

"We're making a big mistake, not to hang him and be done with it," Red Kane said.

They were two days from Fork Creek now. This long and narrow room, which Jim Leathers paced so restlessly, was the kitchen of the main house at Walk Lasham's southwest camp—a convenient stop-over on the way to Sundance, where Roper was to be turned over to Ben Thorpe.

"The quicker we hang him, the better we'll be off," Red Kane said again.

Wearily, doggedly, Jim Leathers pulled a cigarette. He took his time about replying. "Seems like you already said that once before."

"I'm liable to keep on saying it," Red Kane told him. "Things is different now."

In the doorway, behind the two men who watched Bill Roper, a girl now appeared, a slim, full-breasted girl, whose dark, slanting eyes had sometimes troubled Bill Roper before now.

He had not been surprised to find Marquita here in Walk Lasham's southwest camp, to which his captors had brought him. He had guessed, when he had last talked to her in Miles City, that she was Walk Lasham's girl; and in spite of her expressed eagerness to leave Lasham and ride with Roper, he realized that Marquita still had to live in some way.

Girls of her stamp could not afford to throw down such a man as Lasham, until more interesting opportunities offered.

Her face was impassive now, but one of the slanting dark eyes narrowed in a definite signal to Roper. The combination of Spanish and Indian blood in this girl from the Texas border gave her a lithe, lazy grace, and a haunting depth of dark eyes; and the same blood made her unaccountable—sometimes stoic and smouldering, sometimes livened by the lightning flashes of an inner fire.

Undoubtedly she was capable of a passionate devotion, and an equally passionate cruelty. Anything could happen in a situation which included Marquita—with Marquita in love.

For a moment Bill Roper resented the fact that he couldn't be interested in any girl except Jody Gordon—a girl who didn't want him or need him. All the worst aspects of his own situation were apparent to him, then. He was an outlaw wanted the length of the Trail; probably would be an outlaw all the rest of his life, which gave every promise of being a short one. That even Marquita wanted him, or had any use for him, was a gift which he should have been glad to accept. What he had to think of now, though, was that Marquita was extremely likely to precipitate a lot of immediate disturbance.

Troubled, he wished to shake his head, or in some other way caution her that she must make no attempt to interfere. Roper had no intention of ever coming into the hands of Ben Thorpe alive. Somewhere between this place and Sundance, where Thorpe waited, he would make his play, however slim the chance. Yet he would rather take his chances with some unforeseen opportunity later, when they were again on the trail, than to be plunged into some helpfully intended situation which the girl might devise—with danger to herself and questionable advantage to him. She had never brought him any luck.

He was unable, however, with the eyes of his two enemies upon him, to signal her in any way.

"Ben wanted him alive, if I could get him," Jim Leathers said stubbornly. "Well, I got him alive, and I aim to keep him that way. You boys ain't going to talk me into anything different just because you figure a dead man is easier to pack."

Bill Roper listened sardonically. In the two days spent in traveling from Fork Creek rendezvous, the scalp wound which had brought him down had nearly healed; but when he laced his fingers behind his head he winced and dropped his hands again.

It was typical of the quality of his captors that his hands were not tied or manacled. They told him where to sit and they made him stay put, and they were careful that no opportunity was given him to snatch a gun from an unwary holster; but these were merely the routine precautions of sensible men. For these riders were the picked gunfighters of Ben Thorpe's scores of outfits. They did not fear Roper, would not have feared him had he been armed.

Bill Roper had no doubt that Red Kane and perhaps one or two of the others would kill a doomed prisoner for no more reason than Jim Leathers had suggested.

The Lasham camp had been boiling with news as Jim Leathers' men had ridden in at dusk with their prisoner. Much had happened on the range while Leathers had waited out Bill Roper at the Fork Creek camp. The news that had reached

Jody Gordon, and her father. After breaking Thorpe in Texas, Roper conducted a great raid upon Thorpe's vast herds in Montana. Jody was captured by seven of Thorpe's men. Roper and Shoshone Wilce rescued her in a surprise attack. Shoshone

Lasham's southwest camp was broken, and seemed to have been little understood by the men who had brought it; but Roper, with his inside knowledge of the force he had turned loose against Lasham, could piece together its meaning well enough. Lasham's southwest outfit, with its big herds of picked cattle wintering in this deepest and richest of the Montana grass, had been more powerfully manned than any other Lasham camp. But twice in the past week frantic calls for reinforcements from the outfits to the east had drained most of this man power away—first five picked gunfighters, then a dozen cowboys more, until only five men had been left.

The messengers who had killed their ponies to come for help had brought the camp a fragmentary story which gave Roper the deepest satisfaction.

In their tales of incredible losses, of raiders who struck night after night at far separated points, driving cattle unheard-of distances to disappear weirdly in the northern wastes, Roper read the success of his Great Raid.

Dry Camp Pierce was sweeping westward across Montana like a destroying wind; by unexpected daring, by speed of movement, by wild riding relays which punished themselves no less than the cattle they drove, Dry Camp was feeding an increasing stream of Lasham beef into the hands of Iron Dog's bands, who spirited the beef forever from the face of Montana. By the very boldness of its conception and the wild savagery of its execution the unbelievable Great Raid was meeting with success.

And now Dry Camp had struck even deeper than Roper had planned, lifting the best of Lasham's beeves from almost within gunshot of Lasham's strongest camp. So well had Dry Camp planned, and so steadily did the luck hold, that a full day had passed before the loss inflicted by the raiders was discovered. The five remaining cowboys at the southwest camp were only tightening their cinches as Jim Leathers rode in.

Most of the Leathers party had joined the Lasham men in pursuit of Dry Camp's raiders. Only Jim Leathers himself and the unwilling Red Kane remained to convoy Roper to Ben Thorpe at Sundance.

Because of the confusion involved in the organization of the pursuit, the night was now far gone; already it was long past midnight.

"There's still another reason," Red Kane said, "why it would be better to hang him now. Suppose that wild bunch of his knows he's here?"

"How the devil would they know that?" Leathers said with disgust. "Maybe they was scouting us with spy glasses as we come over the trail today."

"If they was, they would have landed on us right then, in place of waiting till we got into camp."

"Maybe the girl run to them—"

"The girl! You make me sick."

"Have it your own way."

"You're darned right I'll have it my own way. I don't want to hear no more about it. And I'll tell you this: if your trigger finger gets itchy while you're on watch tonight, you better soak it in a pan of water, and leave the gun be. Because if anything comes up while you're on watch such that you got to shoot him, by God, next thing you got to shoot me—you understand?"

and Jody rode to a prearranged spot, but Roper was captured while fighting a rear guard action to assure their escape. While waiting for Roper to meet them at their secret hiding place, Jody saw Shoshone fall down, dead.

"I guess it could be done," Red Kane said nastily.

Leathers ignored this, and Red Kane disappeared. This time the door shut after him.

Leathers said, "Get me a drink." Marquita unhurriedly set out a bottle and a glass on the table beside Jim Leathers' elbow.

"A deck of cards," Leathers said. She produced this, too.

Marquita strolled over to Leathers, the high heels of her slippers clicking lazily on the puncheon floor. "Why are you so cross with me?" she asked reproachfully. She moved behind Jim Leathers, and slowly ran her fingers through his hair.

"Ain't going to get you a thing," Jim Leathers said sourly.

"No?" said Marquita. For a moment one hand was lost in the folds of her skirt; then deftly, unhurriedly, she planted the muzzle of a .38 against the back of Jim Leathers' neck.

There was a moment of absolute silence, absolute immobility. Jim Leathers' eyes were perfectly still upon Bill Roper's face, as still as his hands, in one of which a playing card hung suspended. But though his face did not notably change, Marquita, with her .38 pressed hard against the back of the gunman's neck, had turned white; her mouth worked as she tried to speak, and her wide eyes were upon Bill Roper in terrified appeal. Perhaps no more than a second could have passed in that way, but to them all it seemed as if time had stopped, so that that little fraction of eternity held them motionless forever.

Bill Roper, moving up and forward, exploded into action smoothly, like a cat. It was the length of the room between them that saved Jim Leathers then.

Leathers twisted, lightning fast. Marquita's gun blazed into the floor as her wrist swept down in the grip of Leathers' left hand; and Bill Roper checked a yard from the table as Leathers' gun flashed into sight, becoming instantly steady. Marquita sagged away from Leathers, and her gun clattered upon the puncheons; but although Leathers' whole attention was concentrated upon Roper, Marquita's wrist remained locked in his grasp.

The gunfighter's voice was more hard and cold than the steel of his gun; it was as hard and cold as his eyes.

"Get back there where you was," Bill Roper shrugged and moved back.

Leathers flung Marquita away from him and with his left hand picked up her gun as the door of the storeroom was torn open and Red Kane bulged in.

"What the—"

"This thing come behind me and stuck a gun in my neck," Leathers told him.

"The devil! You hurt?"

"Hell, no! I took it away from her."

Gently, tentatively, his long fingers ran over his wounded leg. That bullet wound in his thigh must have tortured him unspeakably through the two days in the saddle; and it must have been jerking at his nerves now with red-hot hooks, roused by the swift action that had preserved his command.

His face had turned gray so that the black circles under his eyes made them seem to burn from death's-head hollows, and his face, which had changed so little in this moment of action was relaxed into an ugly contortion. Slowly the gray color was turning to the purple of a dark and terrible anger.

"By God," said Red Kane, "I told you we should have hung him!"

"You told me right," Jim Leathers said. The burn of his eyes never for a moment left Bill Roper's face. "You was right and I was wrong. I should have hung him at the start."

A pleasurable hope came into Red Kane's face. "Well — it ain't too late!"

"No, it ain't too late. Tie his hands."

Keeping Roper between himself and Leathers, so that his partner's gun bore steadily upon Roper's belt buckle, Kane lashed Roper's hands behind him. The frost-stiff rope bit deep.

"Tie up this girl," Leathers ordered when Kane had finished. "I want her to see this show."

Marquita said, "I'm sorry, Bill." Her voice was broken by hard, jerking sobs, and tears were running down her face; yet somehow her words sounded dull and dead. "I did the best I could."

"You did fine," Roper said. "That was a game try." Hobbling on his stiff leg, Leathers moved to the outer door, flung it open; coatless, he stopped and signaled Red Kane back with one hand.

"Red, get back! Get out of line!"

With the quick instinct of a man who has always been in trouble, Red Kane jumped back into the room, carrying Bill Roper with him. They all could hear now the sound of running horses.

New York Heartbeat:

The Big Parade: Ted Lewis, who makes $5,000 a week, still asking audiences if THEY are happy . . . James J. Walker, the town's former mayor—looking healthier, ruddier and gayer than most of the citizens . . . Lee Shubert, the theater-owner, being teased by a dramatic critic he barred for four years, and Shubert retorting: "Gwan, I made you famous!" . . . The critic made him five million praising Hellzapoppin. . . Charlie Butterworth, who came from Hollywood just to kill some time appearing in summer stock—and winding up with $1,300 a week doing it . . . Larry Clinton, the orchestra, who will drop his baton to resume arranging—more do-rame in it.

Main Stenemoranda: Howz about a "U" campaign? U—as in Unity? . . . Jimmy Gleason plays the role of a fight manager for the sixteenth time in "Here Comes Mr. Jordan" . . . What's his contract written on—a towel? . . . Many Wall Street houses are shuttering their uptown branches. Bum ticker trouble, no doubt . . . F.D.R. will see "Sgt. York," the film and the hero, in person at the White House on the thirty-first . . . J. T. Evans invites Wheeler and Lindbergh to speak in Nashville and suggests they bring along Lord Haw Haw as their announcer . . . When Victor Emanuel's race-horses run—certain White Housers always bet a tenner across the board. One horse is "Omission"—another "Lustrous."

Manhattan Murals: The Vs on walls and places in Yorkville, and the three husky Broadway guys who invaded that Nazi-infested sector shouting: "Three dots and a dash!" . . . Military cops stopping soldiers on Broadway with an open tie or unbuttoned shirt—and making them look snazzy . . . The Times Square street salesman who peddles "gold" watches "in excellent running order"—for ten cents each.

Notes of a New Yorker:

Movie Actor James Stewart is supposed to have had one side of his forehead unburned one day at camp because of the overseas cap he wore. Next day he wore the cap on the other side.

The Top Sarge asked him what's the idea? . . . Without thinking, Stewart replied: "I did it to even up my sun tan."

"Stewart," was the reply, "we do not expect photographers."

One night John Edgar Hoover, the G-Whizzer, was telling some of us something off the record about a Nazi agent, who is posing as a decent American business man.

"Gosh," one of us said, "How did you find THAT out?"

"We've got a louse in his clothes," was the retort.

Orchestra Leader Ray Block overheard it the other night . . . A kibitzer-communist was trying to give his opinions in a war argument. "Well," he said after he thought he scored a point, "how would you like to have me on your side now?"

"I'd rather," was the snapper, "have appendicitis."

A radio smallie tired of playing anonymous stooge to a famed comic and wanted his own show. The writer he consulted advised him he wasn't big enough to carry a show, that nobody ever heard of him . . . "That's his fault," mourned the ham, referring to the star, "he's not satisfied to get most of the money. He takes the best laughs and all the publicity. All I get is obscurity."

The writer mowed him down . . . "Obscurity is right," he said, "and now you want to invest your time and money in it."

If Goering is actually in the clink-eroo it's what a lot of insiders expected. Hitler had no love for Fatso. He needed him, because Goering had a big drag in certain quarters . . . But being a sissy, Adolf hated Goering's Tarzan manner. He burned when Fatso showed up for meeting, medals rattling and his uniform glittering like Lucius Beebe's Sunday overalls . . . Also, Hitler was tickled when Dimitrov let Goering have it at the Reichstag fire trials . . . Dimitrov, one of the accused, turned on Goering in the court and accused him of being the firebug . . . Goering's sputtering convicted him in the minds of the reporters present. And they say Hitler laughed fit to kill.

Once a girl reporter from the U.S. gave Goering a sharp pain in the neck . . . She was Mildred Gilman, once of the Journal . . . When Goering granted her an interview, he fixed up his office with props to show her how he lived on raw meat and such. He even included a leopard which would prove he was so tough he needed wild animals for pets . . . But Miss Gilman did not, as expected, scream for help and try to get away from the leopard. She upset Goering's tough-boy pitch by fondling the ferocious thing.

PATTERNS

SEWING CIRCLE

HERE'S one of those very satisfying everyday dresses that's decidedly out of the ordinary in charm and practicality. The lines are really as good as those of your favorite afternoon dress. The skirt sweeps, from a high, small waistline, to a flare that ensures working comfort and looks pretty besides. You can draw the waistline in as slim as you please, by means of the back-tied sash belt—and adjust it to give yourself plenty of leeway for reaching, stretching, sweeping, dusting and so on. This design (No. 1360-B) is simple to make and it really is necessary to a busy day.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1360-B is designed in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20 and 40. Corresponding bust measurements 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, and 40. Size 14 (32) requires 3 1/2 yards edging. Send your order to:

Household Hints

A pressing cloth should be just damp enough to give good steam.

Use glycerine for greasing the meat-chopper and egg-beater.

Fresh, sticky chewing gum can be removed with white of an egg.

Sliced apples, sweetened and browned in bacon fat, make a delicious topping for browned slices of ham.

When postage stamps stick together, lay a thin paper over them and run a hot iron over the paper. The heat does not remove mucilage.

Pioneer Passes on Here Monday

By E. I. HILL
(Lynn County News)

After having borne the toils and experienced the joys of life for more than ninety years, Mrs. Laura C. Harrison came to her death at about 4 o'clock Monday afternoon at the home of a relative in O'Donnell as the result of an accidental fall at the Sunshine Inn here on Saturday, July 19, in which she sustained a fracture of one of the thigh bones.

After the fractured bone was set and the limb placed in a cast in a Lubbock hospital, she was taken to her recent boarding place in O'Donnell to be cared for by relatives. Pneumonia which later developed was the immediate cause of her death.

Funeral services were conducted at the Harris Funeral Chapel at 10:30 o'clock Tuesday morning, Rev. George A. Dale of the Baptist Church officiating. Banked about the casket was a great profusion of flowers, attesting the esteem in which the good woman was held, and many relatives and friends were present to pay their tribute of respect to the virile life and character of the departed.

The remains were interred in the Tahoka cemetery.

The mother of twelve children, eight of whom lived to maturity, only three of them survive the aged mother. These are H. H. Harrison of Bridger, Montana; J. H. Harrison of Winchester, California; and Mrs. E. J. Dean of Lamesa. Surviving also are 19 grandchildren, 28 great-grandchildren, and three great-great-grandchildren. One daughter, Mrs. A. R. McGonagill, who lived here for many years, died here in 1933. Another daughter, who had lived here, Mrs. Lillie Carrington, died at Clovis, New Mexico, in 1923.

Laura C. Harrison was born in Franklin county, Tennessee, on February 21, 1851, ten years before the Civil War broke out. Her father was a teacher, and when she was but three years old he and family removed to Alabama, where for six years he followed his profession. Then in 1860, when she was only nine years of age, the family took passage on a steamer bound for New Orleans. There they boarded a river boat and came up the Mississippi and the Red Rivers to Shreveport. The voyage from Shreveport to Van Zandt county, Texas, was made by ox wagon. To the day of her death Mrs. Harrison vividly remembered many of the incidents of this journey by ocean steamer, by river boat, and by ox wagon from the Alabama seaport to the then virgin land of Van Zandt county, Texas.

In Van Zandt county she grew to womanhood, and there she met and was married to G. W. Harrison, but the marriage did not change her name, for her maiden name was Harrison. The wedding occurred on November 8, 1866, before she was yet sixteen years of age and just a little more than a year and a half following the close of the Civil War.

In 1870 both she and her husband united with the Baptist Church, and the same minister who had officiated at their marriage baptized them.

Most of her life has been spent on the frontier, for in an early day she and her husband and their little family moved west; they settled in Coleman county, near where the fine little city of Coleman now stands. Her husband was serving as one of the commissioners of Coleman county when the first courthouse was built there. Those were the stirring days when the fear of Indian raids still cast a shadow over the land, and Mrs. Harrison could graphically recall at least one sensational visit that the Comanches made in that section.

Later, the family removed to Lehigh, Oklahoma, and from Lehigh they came to Lynn county in 1906 to make their home. Mr. Harrison died here in 1919, and following his death Mrs. Harrison went to reside with a daughter, Mrs. Lillie Carrington, at Clovis, New Mexico. When Mrs. Carrington died in 1923 she came back to Lynn county to reside, and she had made her home in this county ever since, except while visiting with children residing in other parts of the country.

Mrs. Harrison had undergone the hardships of frontier life with great fortitude and had thoroughly enjoyed the wonderful panorama of life as it had passed before her over a span of almost a century. She was possessed of those womanly virtues and fine Christian character that endeared her to all who came into the sphere of her influence, and many are they for whom she has done a kindly deed. Her remains lie buried beside those of her long-time companion, who preceded her in death by more than twenty years.

General Page said that local boards have also been instructed to postpone the induction of men who were or will be discharged from the Regular Army or the Coast Guard for the convenience of the Government within six months prior to the completion of their regular three year period of enlistment, inasmuch as the age deferment legislation in its present form includes a provision which would relieve such men from training and service.

Plenty of good old pre-streamline cars with OIL-PLATED engines still pass your house quietly . . . pass newer cars on the road . . . pass oil-inspection many a time without needing a quart. That's because inner engine parts have been kept OIL-PLATED by the strong magnet-like action that won't let OIL-PLATING quickly drain down. Even all night, OIL-PLATING stays up to its topmost point—on guard against wear in advance! WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Soviet Claims Strong Counter-Attacks Stall German Drive in Three Sectors; Japan Feels Weight of 'Crack Down'; British Get Invasion Threat Warning

EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.

SOMEWHERE-IN-ENGLAND—A four-motored Consolidated "Liberator," just received from the United States, is shown in flight over England. It was flown across the Atlantic by a crew composed of Americans, Canadians and English, and made the crossing in just over eight hours, according to the British. These ships have a wonderful record of service with the R. A. F.

NAZIS: Real Trouble

Claims by the Russians that they had not only stopped the Nazis along the entire 1,000-mile front, but that they had taken the offensive at points, asserting penetrations as deep as 100 miles had been made, featured the Russo-German war news.

There were many observers who believed the Russian claims to be fairly accurate, pointing at many admissions from Berlin tending to show that the high command was dissatisfied with the progress being made.

This dissatisfaction was expressed in complaints against the difficulty of the terrain, the bad character of the Russian roads, and the strong resistance of the Russian troops.

Using these statements as at least an explanation and a background for belief in the general failure of the German offensive, observers sought to find the answer in Russian tactics and Russian preparedness.

They pointed out that in the last war, Russia had an army of about 800,000, poorly mobilized, well-led but not enthusiastic for fighting. This force was hurled into the eastern battlefield without good preparation, ran into highly trained opposition and was defeated bit by bit.

This time, apparently, the general Russian plan was to place a good-sized portion of the huge army on the long front, fight a series of rearguard and testing actions to discover where the main Nazi punch would be directed, and to keep the most excellent forces in reserve.

The German drive apparently was hitting in three general directions, Leningrad, Kiev, and Moscow, with the heaviest attack in the center, with Smolensk the focal point.

It was around Smolensk that the severest fighting occurred, and it was there that the German effort bogged down most seriously. For better than two weeks there was no real report of advance, and finally came the Moscow claims that the Germans had been hurled out of their trenches and were gradually giving way.

BRITISH: View of Scene

Churchill, expressing the British viewpoint of the Russian scene of action, saw in a German failure to execute a complete blitzkrieg, but warned that Britain was dealing with a dangerous maniac and claimed that the Nazis, failing against Russia, were thinking of turning to a British invasion attempt.

Demanding that the defenders of the islands get themselves "into concert pitch" by September 1, the British leader seemed to attach especial import to that date, a war anniversary for Hitler.

Churchill did not boldly announce that the British had definite information of a planned invasion attempt, but the British viewpoint evidently was that the Russian defeat or victory would not necessarily settle the war.

The final scene of the war, it was plain the British thought, would be fought in the west, either on British soil in repelling the invader, or in a British reinvansion of the continent.

GASOLINE: Curtailment

Gasoline consumption under mandatory control, with a view to reducing the volume of eastern states' demand to meet the oil transportation shortage moved a step nearer when Secretary of the Interior Ickes recommended that more than 100,000 service stations in eastern states close from 7 p. m. to 7 a. m. every night in the week.

This was the first direct move on the part of the government to limit sales of gasoline. Rationing may follow, it was indicated by some sources.

Ickes said he was continuing his appeal for a voluntary one-third cut in consumption, hoping that the station-closing recommendation, "plus the voluntary curtailment will be enough to put us across."

JAPAN: A Winner?

The Japanese situation was highly confusing to the lay mind, for the invasion of French Indo-China, even with the consent of Vichy, seemed plainly an overt act, and one which should merit the strongest possible punishment from Britain and the United States.

Indeed, this was the way it all started out, with concerted action by the U. S., Britain, Australia, Canada and the Dutch East Indies. However, as the days went on and as the Japanese continued to land military forces in Indo-China, there began to be dispatches indicating that the adverse action would be much milder than had been anticipated.

In fact, British sources said that oil shipments to Japan might continue; the Dutch said they had not "yet" abrogated their agreement with Japan for 1,800,000 tons of oil a year; Washington hinted that the "appeasement oil" might continue to go to Japan as long as she did nothing more than invade Indo-China.

Yet there were some things on the other side of the picture, because other British high authorities said "wait and see what happens" on Japanese reprisals; the Dutch announced that if the break came, Japan need never expect to get East Indian oil, for the Dutch had made preparations to destroy all wells and refineries instantly.

The question was whether Japan was the winner or the loser by her move into Indo China, and there was evidence on both sides.

NIPPON: Behavior

If future action against Japan was to depend on the behavior of the Nipponese, there was little immediate evidence that this behavior would be mild.

Almost immediately there was a serious "incident" when Japanese bombers attacking Chungking paused directly over the U. S. gunboat Tutuila, part of the Yangtze river patrol, and dropped some bombs, which damaged the vessel, though there were no casualties.

The ship was anchored in the so-called safety zone across the river from the Chinese capital. One bomb, according to a report from Shanghai, fell only eight yards from the gunboat, caving in a part of the ship's stern and blowing some equipment off the dock.

Also in the Shanghai dispatches came word that the Japanese army had authorized the seizure of American property in North China. Actual seizure of some properties had been made, the consulate reported to Washington.

Some of them were the oil properties at Swatow, Chefoo and Tsingtao and a tobacco plant at the latter town. There were reports of other seizures at Tsinan and Mukden. Some occurred in Manchukuo, Japanese puppet state, but some were in occupied territories of North China proper.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D., Dean of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for August 10

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

JAMES TEACHES CONSISTENT CHRISTIAN LIVING

LESSON TEXT—James 1:17-22; 2:14-17; 4:13-17; 5:12. GOLDEN TEXT—Pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father is this. To visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction, and to keep himself unspotted from the world.—James 1:27.

Spiritually minded but very practical was James, an outstanding leader in the Church (Gal. 2:9; Acts 15) and the brother of our Lord. His epistle speaks little about Christ, but it reflects more of His teachings than any of the other epistles. It parallels the sermon on the mount and in that way, as well as other ways, greatly resembles the teachings of Jesus. It is a straightforward discussion of practical Christian living.

There is so much inconsistency among Christians in their daily walk that nothing could be more needed than a careful study of the exhortations of James.

I. Be Doers of the Word—Not Hearers Only (1:17-22).

Knowing God's will is important, but it amounts to little except to bring condemnation upon us, unless we do it. It is good to hear with swift apprehension, but there is no point in talking about what we have heard unless we practice it.

God is the "giver of every good and perfect gift" (that's literally and wonderfully true). He has not withheld one blessing, even to the giving of His Son, who was sent down from heaven to redeem us.

His very goodness should prompt us to lay aside everything which dishonors His name. Wrath (v. 20), all uncleanness of speech or thought, pride (v. 21)—all these must go, and will go, as we permit the Word to take root (be "engrafted") in our hearts and lives. Note that it is not enough to read the Word, or even to memorize it. It must take root and grow in our life.

II. Believe—But Do Not Forget to Work (2:14-17).

Saved by faith? Yes, we are, and in no other way; but the man who says he has faith in Christ will inevitably show the results of that faith in his life.

James is not in any way contradicting the teaching of Paul's epistles regarding justification by faith, but is clearly stating what must be true, "that a faith which does not result in works, i. e., in a manifestation of a true Christian life, externally and visibly, is not the kind of faith commanded by God, and constantly revealed in the New Testament as the only instrument for the appropriation of the redemption that is in Jesus Christ our Lord. There is no such thing as real, genuine, vital, living, Christian faith, except it has its fruits in the works of faith" (Wilbur M. Smith).

How that faith will show itself in the practical dealings of daily life is graphically presented in verses 15 and 16. Pious talk has always been very cheap, and it certainly accomplishes nothing. Real Christianity works.

III. Trust—But Do Not Boast of Tomorrow (4:13-17).

There is a strange religious attitude which talks about faith as though it were something of which to boast, which encourages people not only to believe, but actually to presume. There is a radical difference between faith and presumption.

All Christians are subject to the temptation of talking about being "strangers and pilgrims" (Heb. 11:13) in this earth, and then planning their lives and their business as though everything will continue as it is through all eternity. It is right to plan, but every day we should plan subject to God's will, always realizing that this may be the day when we shall be called into His presence to give an account of the deeds done in the flesh.

Every hour of life should find us ready to meet the Lord, and with all in readiness, so that our going may leave behind a clear testimony of faith in God, and of consistent Christian living.

IV. Be Honest—Without the Need of an Oath (5:12).

A Christian should never need to give an oath in the ordinary affairs of daily life. His life should be so transparently honest and consistently aboveboard that his word ("yea, yea, or nay, nay") will be "as good as his bond."

The Jews were accustomed to use formulas for oaths such as those mentioned in Matthew 5:33-37. They would have felt much at home in our day when there is so much dishonesty that people are constantly calling on God to witness to their truthfulness. Those who have least to do with Him and the worst records for dishonesty are most prone to thus seek to bolster their word.

What a striking contrast is the simple "yes" or "no" of the true Christian. Let us make our word always good, because it is the expression of the integrity of our lives.

HEALTH

How to Get It and How to Keep It

If the reading of this article teaches you only this one lesson about your own body it may be worth more than millions of dollars to you; for of what use is money without health, or after you are dead? The lesson is this:—Keep your system pure and you may have health and strength to gain and enjoy happiness, success and length of years. But you may ask:—

How Can I Keep My System Pure?

That is not a hard question to answer, for Science plainly teaches you that your liver, which is larger than all of the other glands of the body combined, has the special work of purifying your blood and thereby your entire system and of keeping it pure.

How Does the Liver Purify?

Physicians tell us that the liver destroys, or renders harmless, poisons such as uric acid and other toxic waste matter that is normally formed in the tissues, and also prevents the formation of poisons in the bowels by manufacturing a greenish-yellow, bitter fluid called bile, which, between meals, is stored up in the gall-bladder, but after each meal is poured out into the intestines. The bile is purgative and indirectly antiseptic or prophylactic. In health it is your bile that makes your bowels act regularly and freely every day. It is your bile that keeps your bowels pure, clean and free from excessive fermentation (gas) and putrefaction. Remember that putrefactive germs do not thrive where there is fresh bile and there can therefore be no fermentation to cause gas, nor putrefaction to produce poisons, or toxins. Also, as bile is Nature's purgative, there can be no constipation if the bile is flowing naturally and freely from the gall-bladder into the bowels after each meal.

But when the bile becomes stagnant your bowels stop acting regularly and the contents become a breeding bed for the germs of fermentation (gas) and putrefaction. These poisons, (called toxins), are gradually absorbed into your blood and if the quantity be more than the liver can destroy, may circulate all over your body, poisoning, irritating, or inflaming your brain and nerves, your muscles and joints, your heart, skin, kidneys, and every vital organ of your body. Your doctor calls this "intestinal toxemia," and tells you that your system is "toxic," or, if mild, "bilious."

Functions of Gall-Bladder

In 24 hours your liver manufactures about 3 to 4 teaspoonfuls of bile, which flows through millions of minute canals, or ducts, uniting to make a large tube which empties into the gall-bladder, as creosote and rivulets unite to form a river that flows into a lake. Your gall-bladder is a hollow muscle that serves the double purpose of a reservoir and a pump. Its functions are similar to those of the urinary bladder. About three hours after eating, when the food is passing from the stomach into the intestines, your gall-bladder should begin its contractions, thus pumping the bile into the small intestine where it is mixed with your food. Bile is also an essential digestive fluid, aiding in the digestion and absorption of fats and oils. Its absence inevitably causes bilious indigestion, so common in hot climates.

Nature's Danger Signals

When the bile becomes stagnant in your gall-bladder and is dammed back into your liver instead of flowing freely into your bowels, you, sooner or later, begin to feel some of the following symptoms:—Your breath may become unpleasant (halitosis), your tongue coated, a bad taste in your mouth, your coffee (and tobacco) lose their natural flavor, your food does not agree with you; you may have heart burn, gas, or fluttering around the heart, dizziness and bile ducts into the small intestine and thence through and out of the bowels. When you take Calotabs you know that you have taken what the doctors call a cholagogue or bile expelling medicine. It cleans you out thoroughly. Every inch of your twenty-five foot canal, including your stomach, small intestine and large intestine or colon is thoroughly cleared and washed clean and pure, and you can see and feel the bile in the stools. (Bile causes a slight burning sensation and a bright, yellow or greenish yellow color.) Next morning your system feels purified and refreshed and you are feeling fine, with a hearty appetite for breakfast. Eat what you wish and go about your work, or pleasure.

Study the above drawing for a few minutes. Notice particularly how the bile flows from the liver into and out of the gall-bladder and thence into the small intestine which it enters at a point just below the stomach. A cut-off valve prevents the return of the bile from the intestine into the gall-bladder. The gall-bladder is the pump for the bile, acting like the bulb of an atomizer.

*NOTE—If the stagnation of bile is caused by the pressure of a tumor upon the gall-duct, or by a permanently impacted gall-stone, only a surgical operation can remove the cause. But the common cause of stagnation of bile is the accumulation of catarrhal mucus in the gall-bladder or gall-duct. This mucus may be expelled by Calotabs. The mucus is caused by engorgement of the liver, usually the result of over-indulgence in highly seasoned foods, or stimulating drinks. Calotabs help to relieve this engorgement.

Formula and Action of Calotabs

The formula of Calotabs is designed to make calomel-taking a pleasure, to obviate the necessity of following it with a dose of Epsom Salts, and thus make it just as pleasant and safe as any other purgative. Calotabs are composed of a thoroughly purified and refined calomel combined with assistants and correctives. The calomel acts as a "cholagogue" or bile-expeller; is diuretic to the kidneys; and antiseptic (prophylactic) to the bowels, discouraging the growth of putrefactive bacteria and gas formation. The assistants act like salts, washing the calomel out of the system, preventing its accumulation and any danger of salivation. The correctives settle the stomach and bowels, preventing nausea, sickening and griping effects. Calotabs (and water) therefore, give you the combined effects of calomel and salts without the nausea, sickening and griping effects.

When You Need Calotabs

Unwholesome foods and drinks, or over-indulgence in good foods and beverages, especially meats, alcohol, coffee, tea and tobacco, cause engorgement of the liver with stagnation of bile, and intestinal toxemia. Colds with their toxins, bring about a similar toxic condition. Hot summer weather, overwork, mental strain, irregular habits, and lack of sleep tend to make the system toxic. Whenever you need a thorough cleansing of the food canal, as in colds, constipation, bilious indigestion, sick headache, engorgement of the liver and its allied organs, the stomach and kidneys, you will find Calotabs a most dependable and effective eliminant. Millions of Calotabs have been used annually for twenty years. You need have no fear of using them as directed. Calotabs are quite economical—only 25 cents for the family package; 10 cents for the trial package, at your druggist's. (Advertisement.)

Up 25,661 Feet Afoot

Nanda Devi, a 25,661-foot summit of the Himalayas, is the highest mountain ever climbed by man, says Collier's. Although encircled by almost insurmountable peaks which have frustrated the best mountaineers for 50 years, it was reached by an expedition consisting of four Americans and four Englishmen on August 29, 1936. No oxygen was used, despite the fact that unconsciousness usually occurs at 22,000 feet.

Stevenson Takes Oath Of Office

Although becoming acting governor of this state the moment Governor W. Lee O'Daniel crossed the state line on his way to Washington Saturday night, or early Sunday morning soon after midnight, and automatically becoming governor in his own right when O'Daniel took the oath of office as U. S. Senator at noon Monday, Coke R. Stevenson will be formally inaugurated as governor of Texas about noon today (Friday). The inauguration services will be broadcast over the radio.

After having broken a long precedent by serving a second term as speaker of the House of Representatives, Stevenson was elected last November to a second term as lieutenant governor.

SEWING CLUB MET WITH MRS. BURNS

Mrs. Con Burns entertained members of the Jolly Dozen Sewing Club at her home Tuesday.

Mrs. F. G. Wheeler was presented with an array of beautiful gifts for her birthday.

At the conclusion of the hour of needlework, a dainty salad course was served.

Those present were Mesdames

Howard, Edwards, Carroll, Wheeler, Yandell, Blocker, Earles, Koeninger, and the hostess.
 Mrs. Ben Moore will be hostess August 19.

O'Daniel Slaps At Roosevelt

TAHOKA, August 6 (Special)—Breaking a precedent of long standing which forbids any new member of the United States Senate from speaking from the floor during the first several weeks and even months of his term, Senator W. Lee O'Daniel arose at his desk and proceeded to make his maiden speech Tuesday afternoon, castigating the Administration at Washington for attempting to elect one of his opponents to the Senate, declaring his intention to support generally the President but never to be a mere "yes" man, and criticising the bill which would extend the term of service of draftees beyond the time originally provided, one year.

There was no applause at the close of his address, but it was apparent that many of the Republican members and a few of the Democratic members were pleased with his remarks. Administration Democrats as a rule gave it a cold reception.

Mrs. Irvin Jones was in Tahoka Tuesday to attend the funeral of Grandmother Harrison.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Thompson of Tahoka were visiting here Tuesday evening.

RETURNED HOME

Mrs. Belle Knight and her daughter, Miss Christine Millwee, returned Tuesday from Farwell and Texico.

They were guests of Mrs. Knight's sister-in-law, Mrs. W. W. Vineyard, and other friends and relatives.

Miss Winnie Ruth Drummond has returned to her home in Abilene following a visit with Miss Christine Millwee.

EASTERN STAR WILL MEET

O'Donnell Eastern Star will hold initiation services at the Hall Monday night August 11th.

All members are urged to be present.

LEAVE FOR TRIP

Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Robnson and Miss Lometa and L. E., Jr., left last weekend for a vacation trip of several weeks.

They will visit the western states and probably Canada.

Miss Alpha Lee Shook has gone to Crosson to join her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carey Shook, in their new home.

FORMER PASTOR HERE

The Rev. and Mrs. J. H. Crawford and sons of Seminole were visiting friends here Saturday.

The pastor, formerly of this city, has been holding a meeting in Grassland.

Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Street have been vacationing in Galveston and other coastal cities this week.

McLAURINS HAVE REUNION

Members of the McLaurin families from here were in Lueders last week for the annual reunion.

Over one hundred attended.

YOUR ELECTRIC SERVICE Makes Summer More Livable

To avoid the worst discomforts of hot weather, let your economical electric service make summer more livable. Electric cooling equipment to bring cool breezes into your home . . . electric refrigeration to provide chilled salads, cooling drinks and frozen desserts . . . electric cookers to make cooking an appetizing meal so easy that you don't have to stay in the kitchen . . . and other electric appliances that save time and save work will add to your enjoyment in spite of the heat.

The amount you pay for electricity to bring cooling breezes, electric refrigeration and labor-saving conveniences is small in comparison with the comforts they bring. Texas Electric Service rates for electricity are so low that electric service is one of the smallest items of expense in the average home.
