Rodeo, Parade, Queen Event Set Expect Crowd of 3500

WHO WILL BE OUR RODEO QUEEN ?

Pictured above are last year's Rodeo Queen's Court. Thursday afternoon in the parade the beautiful candidates but the throne will be vacant until the Queen is announced and crowned at the rodeo Thursday night.

3-Day Fun Fiesta This Week end; 25 Floats Are To Be In Parade

With the Declaration of West ern Week Monday morning by Mayor Jimmy Hash, the stage was set for the big 7th Annual O'Donnell Rodeo and Home coming Monday and Tuesday rodeo boos ters visited neighboring towns to advertise the event.

The rodeo proper will open Thursday evening at 6 p. m. with what promises to be the best and biggest parade in the town's his tory. All stores will be asked to close by 6 p. m. There are about 25 floats entered in the parade with novelty acts and surprise stunts. The Lynn County Sheriff posse will be in the parade with their guest posse for Thursday be ing from Lubbock. At 8 p. m. sharp the G and Entry will be made at the Rodeo park and from then on events will click off rapidly. Dee Reese, formerly a professional rodeo director, will announce. A $2,000 pot of award will go to the cow hands who turn in the best record.

Guard Unit In Parade

Instead of the local Legion en tering a float, J C Harris said the Legion would sponsor the appearance of the Lamesa Nation al Guard unit which includes sev eral trucks, jeeps, weapon carriers and a TANK. This unit will be a star attraction. Parade judges will be from Tahoka.

Rodeo directors advised the Index that the rodeo plant is nearing fine shape for the 3 day show of next Thursday, Friday and Saturday, July 26 thru 28th. New grandstand seats have been erected which will seat 3,000 fans.

Daily Parade Is Big Event

As has been the past experience the daily parade causes almost as much excitement as the nightly rodeo at 8 p. m. This year's parade promises to by far surpass any thing held in the past. To date 15 float entries will vie for $500 in prizes. The Lynn County Sher iff's posse will ride each of the three days with guest posses in cluding Lubbock, Brownfield and Post. The local high school band will furnish the parade music and the music at the rodeo. An order of march of the parade will appear next week.

Queen Contest Draws Interest

Seven of O'Donnell's most charming young ladies sponsored by various civic groups here are in a hot contest to win title as Miss Rodeo Queen of 1951. Stand ings of the girls in the contest will not be made known until the opening nite of the Rodeo next Thursday at which time the Queen will be crowned. Candidates are Misses Fern Bairrington, Dorothy Locke, Pat Etter, Shirley Gass, Virginia Sanders, Ann Singleton and Carol Lambert. Votes are by number of advanced rodeo tickets sold.

Wild Mare Race Each Nite

Added to the standard rodeo events will be the thrilling and funny wild mare race using the wild rodeo stock of Goat Mayo. This is an attraction not held here in some years.

Judge Roy Bean Court Is Set

To enforce all the rules of Western Week a Court will be in session here with Judge Tom Brewer handing down his famous rulings. High Sheriff of the Baldies will be C R. Burleson, jr who will make it hot on East Texas that aint one western.

The 7th annual rodeo is the community's annual fiesta time and hundreds of former residents and visitors are expected.

Parade Route Given

The line of march of the parade each afternoon of Thursday, Fri day, and Saturday is: marshalling area at high school, thence down the pavement by Methodist church south on highway to bank to Ellis Chevrolet west to Farmers co-op station north to junction of Flats east to Corner drug to Rex theat re, south to Mansell Bros west to Forbes Motor and thence to Rodeo grounds except for the floats. Miss Helen Jones, our 1950 queen, will lead the parade all three days.

NEW WILD CAT SET

Announcement was made this week of the location of a new wild cat test to be 12 miles west of town and to be the Cities Service No. 1 Gregory. The test will drill to 12,500 feet. The site is 6 miles northeast of the Corrigan pool in Terry county. The test is in Lynn county.

The Country Editor

The Ed. must put in his two bits worth of welcoming all of this area to our annual community fun week, THE RODEO. As John Ellis said recently, the annual rodeo is the most successful of O'Donnell's community projects. This, if for no other reason, has our support.

A great deal of hard work has gone into this year's show. Work by the Roping Club men, the Booster trippers, the parade lad ies and the girls selling tickets in the queen contest as well as those entering the parade.

Up to the last minute every thing seems hay-wire and then when the curtain goes up, the show clicks smoothly and well. That's show business; and that is also rodeo business.

Have fun, visit a lot and know that O'Donnell is your town while you are here and come to see us another year.

SO, let 'er buck, Cowboy.

Latins Are Cut In Fight

Dr Joe Lehman treated three latins Saturday nite for injuries received in a free for all fight in a cafe in the Flats. Two men were cut and he had a bashed head. Our good doctor should make a good member of a sewing club.

FIRE CALL IS MADE

The Fire Department answered a call to the telephone office Mon day nite. Little damage other than to phone wires was reported. A power line fell across the phone line at the north Y bringing high voltage into the phone office.

Sky Juice

A late evening thunder storm netted about 3 - 10ths of an inch of rain here with a fall of 1 inch near Mesquite according to J E Nance and Homer Davis in the Berry Flat Community. Homer Hancock estimated the fall at half an inch and the fall was about the same at Harmony and at Draw. West of town to Grandview, Wells and New Moore the fall was half an inch. The Wells area received another good rain a week ago. Farmers agree that the fall was a lease on life and will tide the crops over for ano th er two weeks or so. August, on the Baldies, is usually a fair month for rainfall. The cooler nites expected from here on will also tide the crops over. An aver age crop is a possibility if rain falls in early August, farmers say here. Cotton chopping is well in progress with a good flux of hoe hands.

Mahon Writes Of War Outlook

For the past 11 weeks I have been conducting committee hear ings in Washington on the appo in g bill for the Army, Navy and Air Force for the current fiscal year. I expect to Repre sent the bill to the House of Repre sentatives for passage during the second week in August. I think some facts about the com mittee interest. Because of the com mitial nature of the hearings were not open to the press. However about 200 of the testimony has been printed and is available to mem bers of Congress, the press and public. Four volumes containing 3,500 pages totaling nearly 3 million words, were required to print the testimony of the 500 witnesses who testified.

A lot of words and witnesses were involved in the hearings. The issue before us, however, was the $6 billion dollar appropriation bill for the Army, Navy, and Air Force, one of the largest appro priation bills to be submitted to Congress in the history of the nation. Generally speaking, on ly 10th of the money would be re quired to pay, feed and clothe the men in service. An additional one fifth would be required to main tain the installations, aircraft and ships, etc. One half of the sum would be used to pay for tanks, airplanes, ships, and weapons of war. Remaining funds would be used for research and develop ment and many other purposes. We will make savings and reduc tions wherever reasonably possi ble. It appears that a minimum reduction of at least one billion dollars can be made safely.

Our civilian and military ex perts are by no means infallible, but it was interesting to note that most of them who appeared be fore the committee were of the opinion that there would not be a global war involving the United States and Russia in 1951. Some of them expressed the idea that the danger of war with Russia would be greater in 1952 and 1953 as the Russian atomic stockpile increases. Many of our military people feel that war between the United States and Russia is inevit able, but our top military leaders do not agree with this conclusion. The world situation is confusing and explosive. My own view is that some incident or un expected development might pre cipitate a shooting war between the United States and Russia at any time. I think the best hope for peace lies in our military pre paredness effort and in the over all strengthening of our nation and the other free nations of the world. We do not know the Rus sian timetable but we know they seem to understand the language of strength.

What may happen in the Korean war is still not clear but in my opinion it would be dangerous and incalculable for us to let down our guard or disband our military forces by reason of the cea e fire in Korea. The truth is we are not now prepared for war. Our milit ary build up is just getting in high gear. We must be strong over a long period of years if there is to be any real hope for stability and peace. On the other hand we must not afford to bankrupt our selves in reckless and wasteful spending.

During the progress of the hear ings I was invited to go to the Pacific for the atomic bomb tests and also to Europe to confer with Eisenhower but my work here was such that I could not leave Washington at the time. Suffice it to say that we have made re markable strides in the field of atomic warfare, and other highly significant developments are in the offing. Of course, Russia is making progress in weapons development, too. For example, the Russian made jet fighters which has been used against us in Korea is comparable to our best fighter aircraft.

I am supporting the request of our military people for large sums of money to expand our guided missile program. Guided mis siles would play a major part in any future war. Of course, the hope of every thoughtful Amer ican is that our military prepared ness program will be instrumental in preventing the outbreak of a general war.

Sunday guests in the home of Mrs Betty Terry and Raymond were Ted Terry of Tahoka, Miss Mary Lou McKeynolds of Hereford, Cpl Rex Marshall Jr, recent ly of Korea, Mrs Rex Marshall, Samyere, Peggy and Terry of Petersburg. Terry received a broken arm last Sunday while riding a horse.

FELLOWSHIP HELD

Sunday afternoon a wonderful fellowship and prayer service was had by a number of friends in the home of Mrs W C Oats hono ring her mother on her 86th birthday. Those present were Bro. and Mrs Rains, Bro. and Mrs Ford, Mr and Mrs Wiley Phillips, Mrs Reynolds and Lillian, Mr and Mrs Crauson and children of Edou, Mrs Roy D. Smith Mrs Eddie Smith.

We wish to express our thanks to the Good Neighbor Club for the beautiful flowers to our moth er, Mrs W C Oats and Mrs Martha Akard.

Mr and Mrs Dan Burkett and family of Lamesa spent Sunday with Mr and Mrs H L Cathey.

Mr and Mrs Louie Bradshaw and family of Seminole were here Sunday getting acquainted with their new grandson, the son of Mr and Mrs Wayne Bradshaw.

Mr and Mrs Charlie Barnes of Grants, N. M. visited his sister Mr and Mrs Bart Burk last week.

Mrs W. T. Burk has returned from a visit to her sister at Sea graves.

"Cease-Fire" Talks Should Follow Unusual Pattern of Korean Events

PEACE—LIKE THE WAR—PUZZLING—With the confusing Korean conflict little more than a year old, the prospects for peace suddenly became brighter than ever. For the average citizen on the Main streets of America, however, the promise and the possibilities of an end to hostilities seemed just about as puzzling as ever.

American government and military leaders at first took a dim view of the "feelers" for cease-fire negotiations. With understandable caution, they mistrusted the sincerity and purpose of Red China and those pulling the strings of the puppet from behind. But UN and American leaders would not miss a chance for a just peace. Truman sounded the keynote: "We are ready (to negotiate), as we have always been."

As America, and then the world, watched with abated breath, the peace campaign followed the pattern of war—aggressiveness and then reticence on both sides. Appropriately enough, thin-lipped Jacob Malik made the first overture—suggesting a cease-fire and withdrawal behind the famed 38th parallel as the "first step." After some half-silent political parrying, negotiations began through normal diplomatic channels in Washington and Moscow. Then wires hummed between Tokyo, Peiping and Pyongyang.

Anxious to save lives, Ridgway declared himself ready to talk to the Reds as early as July 5th. They, however, wanted a preliminary meeting on the 8th and a meeting of the top brass later. Ridgway concurred, and the first meeting was held in a once-rich home in the "no-man's-land" of Kaesong. The UN sent three colonels, one a South Korean. The Reds dispatched a like number, but included "receptive personnel."

The first meeting, merely a preparing for the real negotiations, was tense, and held in utmost secrecy. American officers returned tight-lipped to their stations, but said the meeting had been "harmonious."

Tuesday the top brass began to get at the core of things. As they did, American officials pointed out to the folks at home that a cease-fire order would not be an assurance of peace, and that the approach to this one seemed fraught with trickery. The statement, intended, no doubt, to ward off optimism, was not necessary.

Generally, the American belief was that the Communists wanted to quieten the Korean scene in advance of a new outbreak somewhere else. The only optimists were those who thought the quest for a cease-fire meant the Russians were desirous of shifting main efforts to the diplomatic fronts in view of the disastrous failures in Korea. Some so-called "reliable" sources also said that Stalin was ailing, that there was a general internal struggle in Moscow to get in line for his job, and so the Reds needed more time to devote to the home front. One of the most logical ideas was that Red China wanted out while it still could "save face" and say it had not lost the war. Factually there was less truth than speculation everywhere. Only the Reds knew why the peace movement originated.

Keener U.S. observers marked the week the beginning of peace in Korea. Yet, they were quick to point out that, if peace comes, the hypochondriac world would be rid of one headache, and then could turn attention to many other ailments. A peace in Korea might be fuel for a colder war.

Joy That Is Real, If Premature

Patients at a hospital in Korea let their spirits rise after word of the possible "cease-fire" negotiations reached them, hoist nurse upon their shoulders. For most of them, the war is already over—their joy is for comrades on the front lines.

SHIFT INTO REVERSE—As the anxious world watched the move for peace in Korea, the business world reluctantly checked reverse gears to see if it was in working order.

Business analysts knew that cessation of hostilities would lessen the feeling of urgency and military spending would fall short of projected plans. Once the last shot had echoed in Korea, business could expect two things. First, the government would drastically cut down on quantities ordered. World War II stockpiles taught Washington a lesson. Second, delivery dates would be struck out over longer periods, with a few "rush" orders.

Future policy of business: to cease producing all-out and still remain ready for all-out production.

INFLATION PROFILE—During the year of war in Korea, wholesale prices increased 20 per cent; retail prices about 10 per cent. Although restrictive measures had curbed the rise, and even dropped a few items down, defense spending, unless strong controls are applied.

Price director Michael Di Salle faced newsmen with these words, "We will need every bit of price control we have had" to combat inflation. He pledged to keep up the fight for more and stronger controls, said the public was beginning to get on the controls bandwagon.

IN THIS CORNER—While Di Salle spoke to the newsmen, congressmen on the hill were getting squared away for their own battle royal over prices and controls.

The administration was fighting gamely uphill, with two major sore spots: (1) An amendment sponsored by the agriculture committee to prohibit all price rollbacks on farm products, rescinding even the live beef cut of 10 per cent already in effect. (2) A proposal by the labor committee to revise the makeup of the wage stabilization board so as to give public members control and to take away WSB's authority to handle labor disputes.

UNDAUNTED DEFENSE—The President's trouble-shooter, W. Averell Harriman, spoke in support of the President's 8.5 billion dollar foreign aid program, warned congress that any relaxation now in the defense program "can lead to disaster."

THE OTHER WAR—As the world watched for peace in Korea, President Truman called on congress to end the state of war with Germany, now nine-and-one-half years old. As he made the request, Britain, Australia and New Zealand ended their state of war with the Germans, and Canada and France were expected to follow suit shortly. India had done so on the first day of the year.

The moves were a definite attempt to bring the German people back into membership among the nations of the free world. Coming at such a time, however, the action seemed part of the jig saw puzzle that is our world of today. Wars, peace, and rumors of both.

LEST WE FORGET—And still another sign of the times came from Washington with the announcement that the U.S., Australia, and New Zealand had worked out a defense treaty. Uncle Sam is not forgetting the Pacific area.

The treaty, which will go unsigned until the Japanese peace treaty in San Francisco two months hence, is expected to state that the United States will consider an attack on Australia and New Zealand from any quarter dangerous to the peace and security of this country. The treaty might well be the nucleus of a future pact embracing all of the Pacific area.

DOWN ON THE FARM

Belief That Truce Not a Cure-All

Speaking at Louisville, Allan B. Kline, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, said that truce in Korea would not be an immediate cure for all problems.

Kline told a general session of the Southern Farm Bureau Training School that the country had two main objectives—to avoid a third world war and preserve the American way of life.

The farm chief said that the American way is based on "individual initiative with appropriate rewards."

"Inflation has yet to be controlled," he said, "if our way is to be preserved. Even if there is a third world war, we might lose it if we devise a program we can't pay for." He said the Bureau favors pay-as-go taxation.

GOLDEN AGE OF MUSIC

United States Is Most Musical Nation in History of the World

America is beginning a Golden Age of Music.

This is now the most musical nation in the history of the world; and the trend is typically American, growing out of the people themselves instead of patronage by an upper class.

Some of the signs of our musical renaissance are obvious and pervading. More than 96 per cent of our families own radios that pour forth music of various sorts at the flick of a switch. More than 15,000,000 homes have phonographs and records. Every motion picture has music as a backdrop, with the musical film the most popular of all types. In the theater, plays like "Oklahoma," "South Pacific" and "Guys and Dolls" are the record-breakers. In restaurants, offices and hotel lobbies music is piped in to entertain and to relieve monotony.

But the more significant signs that music is coming to have a basic place in our way of life are in the private lives of the people. There are today more adults learning to play instruments, taking part in community orchestras and choruses, joining in music festivals and events than there have been for many years. The number of children who are learning to play instruments in our schools is at an all-time high. Musical colleges report that the number of students preparing to teach music surpasses the proportionate increase in enrollment in other subjects.

Attendance at concerts and other musical performances is breaking all records, particularly in the smaller cities and the small towns where such fare was scarce indeed just a few years ago. According to the American Music Conference, there are more than 700 community symphony orchestras in cities of all sizes, including one in Mountain Lakes, N.J.—population 2,500.

In adult recreation, music is playing an ever-increasing part. YMCA's and YWCA's in many cities are offering class instruction on various instruments, and service clubs and other groups put on periodic sings, musical events and concert series. Music appreciation is rising toward the top of the list of things many adult organizations are offering their memberships.

The bright fact is that the American people are making music for themselves—a bright fact because throughout history music has been one of the greatest forces for happiness, stability, and harmony among men.

This trend is putting the piano, the organ and the harp back into the home, and the instrument case back into the hands of our children.

THE MUSIC CLUBS and their unifying organization, the National Federation of Music Clubs, have brought music into the lives of thousands of committees and have encouraged young musicians to follow the art seriously. Service clubs like Kiwanis International, Rotary and Lions have helped bands and orchestras, provided scholarships, put on music festivals, added singing to their own programs and otherwise helped make us music conscious. The National Congress of Parents and Teachers' music committees have been behind much of the sharp increase in opportunity for music offered in the schools and for growth of music in community affairs.

In rural areas, the 4-H, extension departments of state universities and other groups have been influential, and in the adult field the YMCA and YWCA have made music prominent in their activities and offered classes on various instruments.

Though it is less than four years old, the American Music Conference has had an important part in the current boom. Financed by various branches of the music industry as a public service, AMC is devoted entirely to helping more people get the benefits of music. Much of the tremendous increase in material about music appearing in newspapers, magazines and radio is AMC inspired. Its films and literature are helping to keep the trend moving. Its small field staff is carrying know-how on organization, techniques and materials to cities and towns in all parts of the country. Contributing its services to organizations, school systems and anyone else who wants help to advance music, AMC has increased the effectiveness of many other agencies and has given the total movement a new spark and acceleration.

Much of the credit, too, must go to the music industry. It has found that in this country the way to progress is through service. Both through their contributions to AMC and music educators and by introducing improved products, the manufacturers, distributors and merchants have been instrumental in making music more at home in millions of homes.

With such a financial condition facing us, with a debt burden and taxes higher than at any time in our national history, congress continues to spend money "like a drunken sailor." Only recently, the senate voted an authorization for an Arizona irrigation project, the total cost of which will amount to considerably more than two billion dollars. That irrigation will benefit less than 30,000 farmers, for which all the people of all states will be taxed to an extent of nearly $3,000, to be added to the $6,786 each family is now slated to pay.

That is not the kind of economy candidates for both the senate and house promised the voters before the last election, when economy was an issue in the campaign, but it represents the kind we are getting. The senators who voted for authorization for such a project should not be allowed to go back to Washington. A two-billion-dollar project that would benefit 30,000 Arizona farmers, but would seriously endanger the water supply of close to 5,000,000 people in southern California, who have at tremendous expense to themselves carried the water of the Colorado river through the mountains and over the deserts that they might live, should be voted down. Now the senate proposes to give away that water to 30,000 Arizona farmers at a cost to the families of all states of $3,000 per family.

That is spending on a scale that neither the New Deal or the Fair Deal have suggested, and it came directly from the senate without a recommendation from the President. It was voted for by both Democrats and Republicans.

Fortunately that was only an authorization. The Senate cannot inaugurate appropriation legislation as that must start in the house. And it is not believed that such an appropriation has any chance of passage in the house. Such an incident, futile though it may be, demonstrates that the spending prodigies cannot all be laid to the President. Some of it must be attributed to congress, and there both parties must assume a portion of the blame.

That would-be Arizona expenditure is but a large sized sample of

Congress As Prodigal With Tax Money As Truman

By Wright A. Patterson

FOLLOWING the close of four years of civil war our national debt amounted to two billion, two hundred million. That had been reduced to one billion at the start of World War I. At the close of World War I, our debt was 25 billion, 200 million. We had reduced that to 19 billion, 600 million by 1929. That total of 1929 represented $571 for each American family. By 1939, with no war, but the New Deal to finance, our national debt had increased to where it represented $1,165 for each family. In 1950, our national debt amounted to 257 billion, 400 million, a total for each family of $6,786.

With such a financial condition facing us, with a debt burden and taxes higher than at any time in our national history, congress continues to spend money "like a drunken sailor." Only recently, the senate voted an authorization for an Arizona irrigation project, the total cost of which will amount to considerably more than two billion dollars. That irrigation will benefit less than 30,000 farmers, for which all the people of all states will be taxed to an extent of nearly $3,000, to be added to the $6,786 each family is now slated to pay.

That is not the kind of economy candidates for both the senate and house promised the voters before the last election, when economy was an issue in the campaign, but it represents the kind we are getting. The senators who voted for authorization for such a project should not be allowed to go back to Washington. A two-billion-dollar project that would benefit 30,000 Arizona farmers, but would seriously endanger the water supply of close to 5,000,000 people in southern California, who have at tremendous expense to themselves carried the water of the Colorado river through the mountains and over the deserts that they might live, should be voted down. Now the senate proposes to give away that water to 30,000 Arizona farmers at a cost to the families of all states of $3,000 per family.

That is spending on a scale that neither the New Deal or the Fair Deal have suggested, and it came directly from the senate without a recommendation from the President. It was voted for by both Democrats and Republicans.

Fortunately that was only an authorization. The Senate cannot inaugurate appropriation legislation as that must start in the house. And it is not believed that such an appropriation has any chance of passage in the house. Such an incident, futile though it may be, demonstrates that the spending prodigies cannot all be laid to the President. Some of it must be attributed to congress, and there both parties must assume a portion of the blame.

That would-be Arizona expenditure is but a large sized sample of

BENNY'S COW

By Eunice Thomas

If you ever saw Mama look at Benny you might know why she wanted a cow so bad. Benny was our second brother, twelve years old, and he looked like he might have been cut out of a scarecrow pattern. Mama blamed it on not having milk.

But Daddy was always getting mad because Benny was afraid or wouldn't fight like the other boys. He said you couldn't blame it on milk. Then Mama's face got sort of tight and she said Benny needed it more than the others.

So, at last we got a cow. Uncle Hal brought her home in his truck.

Uncle Hal maneuvered his bay window from under the steering wheel and waddled to the back of the truck. Daddy stalked around from the other side. Next to Uncle Hal he looked nearly as underfed as Benny.

"We gotta be careful," Daddy said. "She ain't taking to us strangers too well."

"She looks crazy in her eyes," Uncle Hal poked a finger through a crack and the cow let out a low bellow. "She's scared silly. No telling what she'll do when we turn her loose. Might as well find out, though."

He let down the tail gate and untied the rope from her horns.

"You young'uns get out of the lot!" Daddy yelled at us. "She's upset enough to try to fight."

She came out snorting and pawing and went over the fence to the peanut patch just like it hadn't been there. Uncle Hal climbed the fence with considerable speed, considering his blubber, and took off to drive her back. Daddy ran to head her off the other way. They circled around her, intending to drive her back to the lot. But she was too upset and scared. She lowered her head and pointed her long sharp horns straight toward Uncle Hal.

Despite his bulk, Uncle Hal ran. With his head back and his elbows punishing the spare tire around his middle, he plowed a path straight to the back field fence. He beat the cow there by several yards, but he didn't bother to climb. He fell over, leaving a good sized patch of his overalls on the barbed wire.

Old Bessie turned her attention to Daddy. He made it to the fence and grabbed a post and swung for safety just as Bessie's horns tangled in the wire below him.

THE COW was tangled in the wire and bucking. Uncle Hal was peeping from behind a nearby oak. The rest of us were atop fence posts.

Daddy was mad enough to shoot Bessie then and there, but she was a summer's profit. He couldn't afford to harm her or let her hurt herself. He hollered for Mama to send the wire pliers.

Before she could speak to one of the other boys Benny was half way to the house. And he took the pliers to Daddy.

"Watch that cow!" Daddy yelled at him. "She could make hash of you in no time!"

Benny went on. The cow had calmed down some and he got pretty close to her.

"Get back!" Uncle Hal yelled. "When a cow is that crazy—"

"She ain't skeered o' me, Daddy!" Benny reached out a hand and caressed the cow's quivering side. You could see her relaxing. He rubbed her back a minute and worked up to her shoulders. The restless hoof quit pawing and she stood there trembling while Benny tied a rope around her horns. Daddy started to cut the wire and she reared up again. So he went and leaned on Uncle Hal's oak and tossed the pliers back to Benny.

"All right, son. Cut her loose. She's all yours."

Benny roped her—by himself—and led her into the lot.

"Sure. Now can you stop thinking of your son as a coward and admit he has—ah—" Mama stopped and started turning pink. She was always mighty careful of what she said.

Daddy laughed at her. "Okat, Suzie. We'll call it intestinal fortitude."

Give Rooms Well-Furnished Look with Proper Curtains

By Erita Haley

DOES the sunlight need softening in our rooms? Does a particularly lovely scene outside require a proper frame? Or, would you rather close out an ugly view?

All this and more can be accomplished in any home with properly selected and styled curtains and draperies. The style of the furniture can be accented with carefully selected style and material, and rooms can take their cue for furnishing from draperies or curtains.

There's great freedom of choice in the style to select as well as in lengths and widths, but there are certain rules to observe for propriety. For example, if sheer curtains are your choice, you may have them sill or floor length, but not in-between floor and window. If they're to be used with draperies, sheer curtains should be of the same length as the drapes.

When sheer curtains are to be hung straight, you'll want them full and luxurious looking, no matter how inexpensive the material. Make the curtains two and one-half or three times the window width.

Let drapes and curtains...

Glass or sheer curtains always make a heading so they will look properly finished. Give them shirring, pleating or gathering, which ever you like for the room type.

Be a Fact About Tiebacks

Should sheer curtains be tied back or hung back? This depends upon the style of the room. If Colonial, Early American, formal Victorian, or Eighteenth Century English, sheer curtains may be tied back to be most effective. If the room is done in Modern, let the curtains hang straight.

The best height for the tieback is right below center of the window. If the curtains are tied back above the center, the window will look long and narrow. Tied too far below center they make the window look too wide.

With small-paneled windows, the tieback should be horizontal with one of the bars of the panel, so the panels are not cut down in size.

Large ruffled tiebacks need to have a slit cut behind the heading of the ruffling so they can be tied properly without bunching the ruffling.

Traditionally tiebacks are made of the same material as the curtain but this is not a hard and fast rule if you want to try for different effects. If, for example, you are using a chintz with sheer material, the tiebacks can be made of the chintz, or at least the heading or ruffle teamed with sheer material.

How to Use Curtains Without Draperies

When you want a light, airy feeling in a room, plan to use sheer curtains without the side drapes.

Summer Suit

White silk linen plus brightly colored thin silk satin is featured in this smart, casual suit for summer. The double-breasted jacket is fastened with pearl knob buttons and shows a little of the décolleté camisole strapped top beneath. Tucked into one pocket is a kerchief of the same vivid red and black printed silk.

This may be a room that is quite dark, and you want to bring in as much light as possible.

Then again, if you have a room with an abundance of the rich materials, you may want the relief from such material that sheer curtains can give. Many modern rooms, full of rich color and textured effects, are good, too, with plain glass curtains, made full and hung in a straight, tailored effect.

Those who are worried about giving their rooms the finished look

with curtains without the benefit of draperies, have several solutions: painted or fabric-covered cornices, gathered valances of the same material as the curtain or a contrasting material used elsewhere in the room, and brackets at the side of the window.

For glass curtains, use sheer materials that reflect tones of white, peach, yellow or pink. Net and scrim are always appropriate, but others to use include ninon, batiste, dimity, organdy, marquise, sheer percale, theatrical gauze or coarse net.

More expensive, but very effective are the nylons, nylon laces, fine organdy, silks, rayons, point d'esprit and spun glass sheers.

Use Draperies For Color, Accent

Certain rooms require drapery treatment for the windows rather than sheer curtains. When furnishings are simple and need the accent of color, your best choice is drapery of some kind. Then, too, if you have an attractive setting outside the window, it may better be framed with drapes than with plain sheer material.

Skimpy draperies are worse than no drapery material of any kind, so make certain that the draperies are at least twice as wide as the windows. If the drapes hang on ring or traverse rods and are pulled across the window at night, they should be at least two and one-half times window width.

Draperies may be lined or unlined, depending upon the amount you have to spend, and also the material used. If the room is too sunny and you want to shut out some of the light for decorative or fading purposes, then it's smart to use the lined draperies.

Lightweight cream or saffron material is customarily used for drapery lining. Colored linings may be used also, but the color of the lining should not confuse the color of the drapery. Hold up to light to check. If the colors do confuse, use an interlining of cotton flannel.

KATHLEEN NORRIS

Children Are Precious Harvest

"WHEN LIL and I were first married we had a lot of fun," writes a 34-year-old husband from Wichita. "We danced, we had a gang of pals, we had wedding presents to fix us up in a nice place, and, darn it," Carter Neill goes on youthfully, "Lil wore pretty things, and we went off for summer week-ends, well—we had fun! It makes me mad to look at the old snapshots in her books. Swimming, tennis, weeny roasts, beaches, and the rest.

"Now it's nine years since we've had any of that. I make twice as much money, but we never have a cent. Do you want to know the reason? I'll tell you. It's Babby, 9, Tom, 8, Patricia and Penelope, 5, Gary 3 and Kittens, 1. Yesir, we have six of 'em. Twenty-four meals a day, how's that? And enough cookies and chocolate bars and potato chips in between meals to set up a grocery.

"Last winter we had, whooping cough in November, and the coughs stopped at Easter. We thought we were going to lose Penny. Lil has a washing machine, bought with some of the thousand her father left her, and Babby's a swell help. But my kick is that there is never a moment of peace in this house. If it isn't yelling from Kittens, it's Patsy and Pen tearing things to pieces, Tom crying because he doesn't like his teacher, everyone asking if he or she mayn't have a pal overnight or go somewhere overnight. The big ones think we spoil the little ones, and the little ones raise the roof if the big ones are going to a Saturday movie without them.

By the Book

"I bought a book," this harassed parent continues, "about how to raise children the modern way.

"... we had fun ..."

Well, Lil and I simply can't handle that. We don't go in for inhibitions and complexes. When Tom brought a $3 bill from school and said he found it, I took it back, and Tom got whaled. When Babby set up a party to a party in her old dress, Lil told her that was all right, she needn't go. She went, by the way; I took her. And she was the prettiest kid there.

"We have a good-sized place, fruit trees, and a shed I'm going to turn into a theater for them someday. They're good kids, too. But sometimes I think I'd just like a few weeks of the old freedom and the old fun, and to see Lil when she isn't possessed by anxiety for one or the other of the kids. What's life worth if you have to spend every cent you make for shoes, pancakes, cough medicine and didy dolls?"

The writer of this letter, Carter Neill, is a hypocrite, and I think I would love him. He is bursting with pride in his four adorable little girls and his two sons, as what sane man wouldn't be? But maybe

Relate Draperies To Room Styles

Draperies are an important part of the room in which they're to be used, so it's a good idea to select them with care. They should be related in style and materials to the room type in which they're used.

Most draperies are full-length, that is to the floor of the room, but if you desire an informal casual look, they may be sill-length.

Choose an informal material for the draperies that are to be used in informally styled rooms: chintz, cretonne, percale or toile de Jouey. More formal rooms require the traditional fabrics: rich satin, brocade, damask or moire.

Modern rooms may have in them taffeta, linen, plastic materials, raw silk, novelty cotton, satin, mohair, chintz and textured fabrics. Quaint patterns in calico, chintz or voile are good in Early American settings.

If budget worries you, then consider paper or inexpensive plastic materials in appropriate patterns and textures.

How to Select Fixtures, Trim

With plain draperies, you might consider the decorative value of fringe and other similar trimmings. This may be used at the edge of the heading. Avoid trimmings of this type on draperies with texture and pattern interest as it will only draw attention away from it.

Weights at the corners of draperies help them to hang straight and even and give them a professional appearance. They are bought by the yard and may be basted.

MIRROR Of Your MIND

Child May Play Parents' Role

By Lawrence Gould

May your children become "parent substitutes."

Answer: Certainly. What makes a parent substitute to you is the demands you make upon him or her. A mother who looks to her grown son for support, or for advice on her business dealings is in these respects making a "father" of him, just as a man who requires unwavering devotion and unqualified approval from his daughter is making a "mother" of her. No one is ever too old in years to look for parent substitutes if his emotions are still childish, and this is particularly true of older people as they approach "second childhood."

Whichever is your prevailing pattern, you should take care not to let yourself become one-sided. If you are an extravert, stop and ask yourself occasionally just what you are getting out of all your strenuous activity; if you are an introvert, try to acquire a hobby that will "get you out of yourself."

Does fear of death cause claustrophobia?

Answer: No. If anything, it is the other way around. I have known people whose fear of death proved really to be fear of being buried, because that meant being shut in. Like all phobias, morbid terror of being in a place which you cannot get out of goes back long before you knew there was any such thing as death. It may represent a small child's fear of being held back by his parents from trying to satisfy his instinctive wishes, which turns in adult life into fear of the conscious and unconscious inhibitions that still keep him "cooped up." Nothing creates more anxiety than an intense, unsatisfied desire.

Are extraverts saner than introverts?

Answer: No. As regards sanity, there is no difference between them. Both the tendency to be primarily interested in things outside yourself (extraversion) and absorption with your own ideas and feelings (introversion) are normal in moderation and both can become neurotic escape if exaggerated.

KEEPING HEALTHY

Some Boils Caused by Nose Infections

By Dr. James W. Barton

MOST INDIVIDUALS during their lifetime have had a boil. This infection is taken to mean that they have been eating too much food for the amount of work or exercise taken, have allowed themselves to become constipated or have not been as careful about bathing regularly as they should have been. We are told that the greatest preventative for boils is constant cleanliness of the back of the neck, the armpits and the anus and genital organs. The back of the neck is the most frequent place, in men, for boils to occur.

A boil is an inflammation of the deeper layers of the skin, usually around a hair root or an oil gland. The commonest organism found in boils is the pyogenes (pus forming) aureus, a staphylococcus organism. A boil gives us a vivid picture of how nature sends its white corpuscles (disease fighters) immediately to the scene of an infection. They surround the spot where infection starts by a hard white wall which we can see as we look closely at a boil. This wall is to wall off the infection so that it will not spread to other parts. The soft dark center finally breaks down and thin pus comes out. Finally, the center or dead part, the core, comes out and the boil heals.

The treatment to hasten the cure of the boil is application of equal parts of laundry soap and brown sugar or an ordinary bread poultice. When "ripe," a toothpick dipped in carbolic acid punctures the central spot and the boil opens up and discharges its contents. At no time is the boil squeezed, but drawing the skin away with thumb and fingers will help to empty the boil.

It may come as a surprise to many of us to learn that many boils are started because of the hands carrying infections from the nose to various parts of the skin. Doctors verify this statement.

★ HEALTH NOTES ★

The causes of asthma were unknown until recently.

Tonsils should not be removed if causing no symptoms.

Focal infection is an important cause of arthritis and other diseases.

The tonsils act as filters in the throat, removing harmful organisms that try to enter.

In Leningrad, during World War II, the number of cases of high blood pressure fell due to semi-starvation.

Colds beginning with a sneeze, water discharge from nose, coughing, no fever are generally due to allergy.

Supreme Court Bans Bell Ringing

By H. I. Phillips

NOW we know why the United States supreme court has been acting so erratically lately. It used to be steady-going and dependable. But for some years it has been irascible, disputative and unreliable. The cause seems clear. It has been bothered by brush salesmen. This was revealed the other day in a sharp decision declaring, to all effects, that no salesman has any right to ring a doorbell without permission of the housewife. And written permission, too. The court held constitutional the right of any community to pass such a law. It showed less disagreement than in any case in years. (There were a couple of dissents, but these were from justices who never answer a doorbell anyhow, and just yell down "scram.")

T. Aristotle Winch, of Winch, Winch, Smathers, Winch and Winch, this department's favorite attorney (who worked his way through college selling magazine subscriptions) declares the court off base, however. He cites Hubble versus Flatfoot (506, Mass. 84) which held that a doorbell is a doorbell and is put there to be rung. "Indeed," reads this decision, "if there is a doorbell on a house and it does not work, a salesman may even be within his rights in having a rock thrown an upper window."

Mr. Winch also cited Bottlefly versus Mrs. Potts (86, Conn. 325). In this case Mrs. Potts was forced to chop the foot off a book salesman after he had stuck it in the doorway. Bottle-fly sued for a new foot. The court suspended Mrs. Potts' habeat licentia saying, "Even if she had been summoned downstairs for the fourth time that has been irascible, disputative and unreliable. The cause seems clear. It has been bothered by brush salesmen. This was revealed the other day in a sharp decision declaring, to all effects, that no salesman has any right to ring a doorbell without permission of the housewife. And written permission, too. The court held constitutional the right of any community to pass such a law. It showed less disagreement than in any case in years. (There were a couple of dissents, but these were from justices who never answer a doorbell anyhow, and just yell down "scram.")"

Then there is the ruling in the case of Haddock versus Crumps (46, Illinois, 76). Here Haddock, a young man, called to sell Hector Crumps subscriptions to seven periodicals, saying he was working his way through college. Crumps threw him off the porch, holding that Haddock was at least 37 years of age and that this was his sixteenth season of working his way through college. The court held that for every doorbell ringer 37 years of age seeking an education there are hundreds much younger, and their right to operate must be protected.

The most novel ruling, however, came in Stuffle versus Wimpus (33, R.I. 8197). A young man rang the bell and proposed that the tenant go to college while he moved in, subscribed to all the magazines and did the housework. Wimpus, the defendant, hit him with a chair.

Chicken-of-Tomorrow Contests Concluded
Program Increased Fowl Production in Country

The economics of chickens may offer a quick solution to the problem of the current quest of most Americans to keep their dinner plates well filled. No matter what happens to other foods, there will still be plenty of chickens coming to market, according to estimates of production possibilities of the nation's top breeders at the windup of the national chicken-of-tomorrow finals. Charles Vantress, Live Oak, Calif., twice winner of the contest, has estimated that his flocks alone will be responsible for production of more than 100,000,000 meat-type chickens in 1951.

The whole chicken industry—breeders, growers, scientists and others—cooperated in the chicken-of-tomorrow program. Above a group interested in the industry examine products of the program.

This kind of production is due in great part to the six year chicken-of-tomorrow program when breeders and producers set out to improve the meat qualities of chickens. The program was also responsible to some degree in development of great "broiler areas" in Georgia, Delaware, Texas, Maine, Kansas, Indiana, Arkansas and other states.

Newer feeding efficiencies, better growing facilities, more knowledge of genetics developed on the farms of the nation were tested in the state, regional, and nation chicken-of-tomorrow contests.

The program was financed by A. & P. grocery chain.

GOOD WILL EXPERIMENT

Cincinnati Citizens Sponsor Summer Village for 54 Children

If there is a universal language, other than the love that poets muse about, it certainly is the laughter of children. No better demonstration of that can be found than in the story of the first Children's International Summer Village, an experimental four-week's duration this summer in the hills near Cincinnati. Perhaps it will not be the last.

The village was inhabited by 54 children—six each from Vienna, Oslo, Stockholm, Newcastle-on-Tyne, Mexico City, Paris, Copenhagen and Cincinnati. They ranged in age from 10 to 12 years and they came from various income groups.

Mail call is a language all its own. Henry Roskan, an exchange student at the University of Cincinnati and a counselor at the summer village near Cincinnati, is the center of all eyes as he distributes letters from home.

Yet, for four weeks, they lived in harmony—and laughter, learning the language, quirks, games, delights and angers of strangers, and they emerged friends. They returned to their native lands with a better understanding of international relations and harmonies.

It is hoped that this experiment, financed solely by public support from the citizens of Cincinnati, will snowball all over the world, and already similar villages are being discussed for next summer in Germany, Sweden, England and other countries.

How did it come about? Dr. Doris Twitchell Allen, a psychologist and member of the faculty at the University of Cincinnati, started thinking in terms of such a village shortly after World War II. Her own enthusiasm fired others. Finally, the camp site, a former children's summer camp, was acquired in 1950. The children arrived June 3 of this year.

The children to attend were selected by committees from their own cities. While scholarship was not a deciding factor, it turned out to be important. Actually, qualities of leadership and the ability to mix as extroverts with others were primary elements in final choices.

IN ADDITION to the children, two adults accompanied each group. The entire assembly from Europe gathered in London and was flown to this country. Those from Mexico City came separately. The adults lived in another camp and learned how to set up villages in their own countries.

While the program included outdoor sports of every kind, there were additional activities, such as trips around Cincinnati. For stay-at-home times in the evenings there was television. The Crosley Division, Avco manufacturing corporation, installed sets in the dormitories and lounge.

Television proved to be another fascinating facet in this strange new world of America. Only one or two of the children from the foreign countries had seen it before.

And in this study of harmony, it was soon learned that Hopalong Cassidy and the Lone Ranger provide a meeting ground in any language.

Visitors at the village were quick to pick up one sound—laughter. It is possible that this sound, brought on by understanding fostered in future generations by such villages as that one in Cincinnati this summer and those being planned in the future in other countries, can offer a realistic approach to curing some of the world's ills.

JOHNNY OLSEN, looking back recently when he celebrated his 25th anniversary in radio, said "I like the looks of tomorrow"; to be able to say that is a fine reward for genial Johnny, who began at the age of 14 by singing over a homemade transmitter in Windom, Minn. Now the host of the "Lunch-club Club," heard daily at noon over the ABC network, he has set a record by appearing at more county fairs than any other actor—more than 2000. In his time he has interviewed three Presidents—Coolidge, Hoover and Roosevelt. And he originated his "Rumpus Room" show on radio, now has successfully switched it to television.

"We, the People's" Dan Seymour was named by the Boys Clubs of America as one of their seven favorite American fathers. Dan got votes from his son Steve and three daughters, rates with Bob Hope and General Ridgway.

Margaret O'Brien, slated to appear in "Junior Miss," on the summer theater circuit, suddenly changed her mind at almost the last moment, alienating the affections of a lot of managers who had booked her. They're stuck with the rest of the cast. Her attorney canceled her contracts on the ground that she is a minor and therefore they are void.

Ever since comic Josh Shelley joined the regular cast of ABC-TV's "Holiday Hotel" he's had Don Ameche wondering what the next gag will be. The other day Josh, at the piano, was warbling "I'll be Don Ameche in a taxi, honey."

Dollar Less Elastic; Yet Farmer's Fare Improved

By Wright A. Patterson

THE figures used in this column were provided by the Home Economics Bureau of the Northwestern Life Insurance Company. That is an assurance of authenticity.

The individual incomes of the American people have doubled and tripled during the last fifty years, since 1900. But in 1950 were we better off than in 1900? Did we live better?

In 1900 the cash income of the American farms averaged $350. The farmers of that time had in addition to that amount of cash, the greater part of the family food, produced on the farm, and the family fuel from the wood lot of the farm. The cash income of the average farm today is fully three times that of 1900, and the farm still provides the greater portion of the family food, and much of the family fuel.

In the matter of clothes, and home furnishings and farm equipment, the cash receipts of today will buy but little, if any more, than did the cash receipts of 1900. The farmer, while he receives more cash, is not much better off than in 1900. More of them own more automobiles, more farm equipment but farm life and farm living is much as it was half a century ago.

In 1900 the hourly wage of the average industrial worker was 16 cents per hour, with an average working week of 53 hours in 1900, and only 41.5 each week in 1950.

Despite the high prices for everything he buys the industrial worker is better off today than he was half a century ago. The money he receives now buys more at today's prices than did his wages of 1900 buy at the prices of that day, and in addition he enjoys more of today's conveniences or luxuries. Far more worker's families have automobiles, electric or other forms of refrigeration, more telephones, radios, an in sections where it is available, more television.

In addition to greater wages, most factory employees are paid for annual vacations of from one to three weeks, are allowed for sick time, have group life insurance, and several millions are assured of industrial pensions after reaching 65 years of age.

Both workers and farmers are living better, the homes of both are equipped with more conveniences and what in 1900 were considered luxuries, despite the high prices they must pay for commodities. Electricity has done much to modernize the homes of both classes. There is another class of Americans who are not as well off as in 1900; whose living standards have been lowered. That class is composed of those who must live on a fixed income, the thrifty ones who saved for their old age, and whose savings were invested in securities. There are many millions of such people, especially women, whose expenses, because of the constantly increasing costs, go up, but who have no corresponding increase in income.

For industrial workers the average earnings have increased from $8.75 in 1900 to $64.15 in 1950. While the cost of living index has grown from .55 in 1900 to 178.4 in 1950, food prices have risen from .59 in 1900 to 215.4 in 1950; pork chops from 119 in 1900 to 715 in 1950. Every item on the food index list has shown a heavy increase.

Much of the increase has been the result of political action. Technological improvements in production in industry has offset much of the increased wages and taxes, and prevented what, would have otherwise been much greater increase in prices. But because of the increasing costs, caused by increased wages and taxes, federal, state, county and municipal, manufacturers have had to add to the prices of commodities, and all consumers, including both workers and farmers, have suffered from inflationary prices. When the new federal tax legislation is enacted it will mean another increase in taxes to be paid by consumers.

While our dollars do not buy as much, by approximately 50 per cent, as they did in 1900, increased income for both farmers and workers have kept pace with inflationary prices, and both are better off now, enjoy a higher standard of living, more conveniences and luxuries than they knew at the beginning of this century.

THE FICTION CORNER

THE DOCTOR

By Helen Janney

LINDDALE had two doctors . . . two doctors about as different in every way as any two men could be. Doc Boggs was old, in his eighties, and he shouldn't have been practicing at all. He was cross and ill tempered and he often got his patients and their prescriptions all mixed up.

3-Minute Fiction

Doctor Willis, on the other hand was just pushing thirty. He was alert, dependable and pleasant to deal with. The women, especially, were most enthusiastic about him.

"Why," Mrs. Preston said, "when I called him for my Willie when he had the measles, he worked like a trooper. When Willie didn't do so well at first he actually cried. A doctor. What do you think of that?"

"I know," Mrs. Scott agreed. "He cried over my Martha, too. We both cried. He's sweet. I just love him."

You see, at first Doc Boggs was the only physician in town. People called him just because he was there. If they wanted somebody else they'd have to get a man in Bloomdale, thirty miles away. So everybody was mighty glad when young Doctor Willis came to Linddale to see about locating there.

The business men and the farmers gave him a lot of encouragement. The young married women who were expecting babies welcomed him. In fact, the only person who opposed him in any way was old Doc Boggs.

"It's a one doctor town," he said when young Doc went to call on him. "We don't need or want another one here."

For a while he dated this one and that, playing no favorite.

Doctor Willis came just the same and set up his practice on Elm Street. He was single so he fixed himself bachelor's quarters in the upstairs over his house. Old Mrs. South who used to do for Dr. Boggs, went over to the young doc's now, which made old doc madder than ever.

IT SEEMED strange the way young doc took on. When Doc Boggs finally passed on. Not many even shed a tear at the funeral.

But young doctor Willis sat there crying openly. It made everybody think even more of him than they did before, for they knew that the old man had absolutely refused to cooperate with the younger one and that he lost no opportunity to run him down to his patients.

"What a wonderful husband Doctor Willis would make," was the thought in the minds of more than one mother of a marriageable aged daughter.

The girls themselves busied about inviting him to parties and dances. There was open rivalry for his attention.

For a while he dated this one and that, playing no favorites. One summer after he'd been away on his vacation he came back with a wife, a girl from his old home town in Ohio.

Jean, that was her name, had such a nice way with her that she soon made friends. When people kept saying over and over that her husband was the sweetest, most tender hearted man in the whole world, she sometimes looked a bit surprised. Sure, she thought he was great. That was one reason she married him, but nevertheless she felt a bit puzzled at times.

And then she found out something that nobody else knew. She kept still and just smiled when they began to rave about her husband. She smiled and went about her business of picking up after him, keeping him well fed and mended and not really minding the times when he was thoughtless and inconsiderate as all husbands are at times.

The way she found out was that one night he came home to dinner quite late and dog tired, too. When she looked at him she saw that his eyes were red.

"Don't tell me you've been crying?" she said.

"Crying? Me?" he laughed. "What ever gave you that idea?"

"Your eyes. They look like it."

"It's those flowers . . . roses. Why is it people always send roses to the sick? Every place I've been today has had a bouquet of 'em. I hate roses. I'm allergic to 'em. I have to take shots all the time. Roses roses roses!"

Rubber heel marks and the like can be removed from wooden floors easily by rubbing them with a cloth dipped in kerosene, benzine, gasoline or cleaning fluid. None of these liquids will damage the finish on the floor, but all will remove any wax that's present; so be sure to re-wax the spot after removing the marks.

If you take the blinds down, and washing is unavoidable, the easiest way to clean the tapes is to spread them out in the bathtub, scrub them with soapy water and a brush, and rinse them right where they are.

If possible, avoid using water on venetian blinds because, on wooden ones, it may cause warping and cracking of the paint; with metal ones, rust is always a hazard when the paint gets thin.

New Type Tires

Latest in the line of farm equipment is a strange-looking pneumatic rubber tire (above) that will improve the farmer's efficiency in planting corn. The new tire, which has a smooth-V-shaped tread and is constructed with shoulders and a low center, was designed to replace conventional steel wheels that come as original equipment on farm implements. It was developed by B. F. Goodrich engineers.

Company Seeds 800 Mile Pipe Line Right-of-Way

How to maintain a farm that is 50 feet wide and over 800 miles long?

That problem recently faced one of the nation's largest natural gas companies when it wanted to provide every care for the soil bordering its long, thin, pipeline stretching from Texas to Ohio.

To carry out its program, the company set up a soil conservation department and endowed it with nearly a quarter-million dollars for labor, seed, fertilizer and equipment.

Eight crews went into the field and seeded an average of a mile a day. The crews used carefully prepared seed mixtures to provide temporary covercrops according to the individual farmer's wishes. Plants chosen for seeding were selected to suit each locality, after consultation with local and national agricultural authorities on the best methods of soil conservation.

Radio Telephone Tests Set for Rural Areas

Use of radio instead of poles and wires for some parts of rural telephone systems is soon to be tested on an experimental basis by the rural electrification administration, it was announced.

This test, the U.S. department of agriculture says, is being made to find out whether radio is more economic and efficient than wire installations in certain circumstances.

Sponsors Urge Safety Practices on U.S. Farms

National Farm Safety Week will be observed throughout the United States July 22-28. Its one purpose is to encourage all residents of the farmlands of America to adopt safe practices on their farms and in all phases of everyday farm life—in the farm home, at work in the fields and barns, in traffic and at play.

Farm accidents are serious not only from the standpoint of the 17,000 deaths and 1,650,000 injuries they cause each year, nor alone for the broken bodies and broken families or the suffering and sorrow they bring about.

Start tractors smoothly and turn corners slowly. Avoid ditch banks and soft ground. This farmer didn't—and his tractor could have tipped! Another safe practice when operating your tractor: Always hitch to the draw bar.

Accidents to farmers and their families are a major obstacle in our country's food production program which is so vital in view of the present national emergency.

As if this were not reason enough for farm people to adopt safe practices to hold down accidents, the bureau of agricultural economics reports 1,200,000 fewer farm workers today than 10 years ago—during which time farm mechanization has more than doubled. It is likely that unskilled workers and women will be added to the farm labor force during the present national crisis. They will have to operate more tractors, farm trucks and other machines than ever before.

All this adds up to a double-barreled reason why it is especially important for farm people to adopt safe practices in everything they do. It makes it more important than ever for National Farm Safety Week to become a significant highlight of year-round activities that will make farm safety a 52-weeks-a-year undertaking.

Farmers and their families can help the safety program by adopting safe practices to eliminate individual carelessness or thoughtlessness, which is one of the greatest causes of accidents. They can make their farms and homes safer by learning and observing rules for safe farm living. They can do things the right way, which means the commonsense safe way.

The National Safety Council believes that mental alertness, safety consciousness, efficiency in all farm operations, ability to recognize hazards and determination to eliminate them by adopting safe practices are more essential to safety in agricultural living than any specific rules or regulations.

Women are not allowed to serve on juries in 13 states of the Union.

Strange Disease Strikes Henderson Swine Herds

Farmers in the area around Henderson, Kentucky, have lost more than 1,000 hogs from a disease which veterinarians so far have been unable to identify definitely. The disease has been found in the Henderson area during the summer for the past several years, and each year the number of swine affected has increased. Over 150 herds have been treated so far this summer, vets reported.

Kansas Farmers Get $2 Million for Wheat Damage

Kansas farmers whose 1951 wheat acreage is insured with the federal crop insurance corporation are expected to receive more than $2,000,000 in total indemnities for losses sustained during the current crop year.

More than 300,000 acres of damaged wheat has been released in the state by the corporation. Release depends upon the extent of damage to insured land.

Nearby Woodlands Offer Stock for Landscaping

Nearby woodlands offer a variety of nursery stock for rural families who may be planning to landscape their grounds to improve the view through their picture windows.

Many of these plantings can be fitted into an overall landscaping plan so they bring out a sizable saving to the rural homemaker.

A number of plantings are common to woodlands in many sections. Some examples are rhododendron, dogwood, scotch pine, holly, pine and laurel, all of which are used extensively in landscaping plans.

In addition, there are a variety of trees which may be used for shade. The American elm, which affords excellent shade, is found in many sections. There are also several varieties of oak trees whose autumn brilliant scarlet. The hard maple tann colors vary from muted rose also makes an excellent shade tree.

For screening and boundary plantings, most woodlands offer an assortment of evergreens which will fit well into the landscaping plan of most rural homemakers.

Goose Pelts

The modern goose may not be able to lay a golden egg, but there seems to be gold in her skin. The model above displays two sample goose pelts. Through a recently-developed process, goose skins are tanned, then the down is dyed. The result is an incredibly soft, warm pelt which has captured the interest of the fashion world and promises to bring gold to goose raisers. Possible uses include deluxe powder puffs (already being made), trim for negligees, dresses, baby shoes, hats, and bathing suits.

Layers of rotted leaves, grass clippings or straw make excellent mulches for preventing the loss of moisture from around your shrubs during the dry summer months.

Ranch owner George Stephens proved for himself, in the big Economy Run, just how little it costs to run his Ford Truck!

"The Lazy J's Ford Express did itself proud in the Ford Truck Economy Run," says Stephens. "Daily records kept during the entire six months show that our Ford Truck ran up a total of 5,109 miles. My out-of-pocket expense for gas, oil, maintenance and repairs was exactly $123.51... about a $20 bill each month... only 2 1/2 cents a mile!"

The Ford Truck POWER PILOT carburetion-ignition system is one reason why Ford Trucks cost so little to run, in ranch work or any work. The POWER PILOT gives you the most power from the least gas. In the low-price field, only Ford has it!

U.S. Wheat Crop Makes Strong Comeback, Report

The latest agriculture department report on wheat prospects indicates a crop of about 1,054,000,000 bushels this year, or nearly 72,000,000 more than forecast a month earlier.

Such a production would exceed last year's crop of 1,026,000,000 bushels and would be only about 96,000,000 short of the government's production goal—a goal which would exceed prospective needs and add some grain to reserves for future emergencies.

Unfavorable weather, particularly drought in the southwestern great plains, and insects in the same area, coupled with cool, wet spring weather, had put the crop prospects under a cloud.

The indicated production—plus reserves from past crops—would supply plenty of wheat to meet any needs seen now.

The department made no estimate on corn production, but said producers were optimistic.

Portable Hog House

An example of a good portable hog house, which is large enough for four sows and can double as a farrowing house, is illustrated above. Any lumber dealer can furnish the lumber for the flooring and framework and the Masonite quarter-inch hardboard used for siding and roof. Note the double, full-length doors, divided midway horizontally, which provide easy access for both farmer and animal. Contrasting Flavors, Textures Will Keep Menus Interesting

A MEAL THAT'S LIVELY with color, exciting because of some soft foods, some crisp and crunchy, some tart and spicy while others have a subtle sweetness can keep appetite interest high.

Homemakers who want to keep their families looking forward to mealtime no matter what the weather plan menus with such rules in mind. Consequently menus never become dull, and it's easy to have nutritionally adequate foods not only served but eaten also.

It's fun to see what ingenuity can be used in combining foods for interesting menus. Here's a broiled cheese and rice combination that is proud to appear at any dinner table after a quick trip to the broiler. Dessert and salad courses are combined in one with a watermelon salad bowl, which offers fresh fruit with its crisp texture, an excellent contrast to the soft-textured foods of the main dish.

Broiled Cheese-Rice Platter (Serves 4)

- 1 1/2 cups cooked rice
- 1 cup chopped, cooked, drained spinach
- 1 1/2 cups cheese sauce
- 4 slices tomato

Arrange rice on 10-inch oven platter. Pour half of cheese sauce over rice. Cover with spinach. Pour remaining cheese sauce over spinach. Place slices of tomato on top. Bake in a hot (450°F.) oven, about 10 minutes or until heated. Broil, 4 inches from heat, until cheese is lightly browned, about 2 minutes.

Watermelon Bowl Salad

- 1/2 watermelon
- 2 cups cantaloupe balls
- 1 cup pineapple wedges
- 1 cup blueberries
- Cream cheese
- French or other salad dressing.

With a ball cutter, remove the center from half of a short, thick watermelon. Toss the watermelon balls together with the cantaloupe balls, pineapple wedges and blueberries. Place the watermelon bowl on green leaves on a round chop plate and fill it with mixed fruit. Around the base of the melon, arrange groups of cream cheese cubes. Serve with French or other dressing.

A MENU THAT MATCHES the season and is full of contrast in texture and color is a broiled crabmeat and tomato sandwich. Pair this with green cabbage salad put together with sour cream dressing. A tangy lemon dessert completes the menu:

Broiled Crabmeat-Tomato Sandwich (Serves 4)

- 8 buttered slices of bread (crusts removed)
- 1 6-ounce can crabmeat
- 2 medium tomatoes
- Cheese sauce

Place one slice of bread in the bottom of each individual casserole dish. Spread with flaked crabmeat. Top with tomato slice and another slice of bread. Pour hot cheese sauce over each sandwich. Place under broil and broil for 7 to 10 minutes or until bread is heated through and nicely browned. Serve immediately.

Liver Loaf slices nicely and has an interesting texture, as well as color contrast when teamed with tiny pickled beets. Any type of liver may be used for this richly nutritious and appetite-satisfying main dish.

LYNN SAYS: Here are Foods For Out-of-Doors

When you're eating out, fix kabobs, those tempting tidbits on skewers. Cook them over coals, or broil them in the oven before bringing out to eat. Sausage makes a tasty kabob when you form the meat into balls and alternate with chunks of apples and cubes of onion. Oysters rolled in bacon make an excellent first or main course when they're broiled on skewers.

LYNN CHAMBERS' MENU

- *Liver Loaf
- Tiny Pickled Beets
- Peanut Muffins
- Fresh Pineapple-Banana Salad
- *Lemon Crumb Crunch Beverage
- *Recipes Given

You may serve a half watermelon filled with pineapple, blueberries and melon balls as a salad-dessert for dinner, or as a main course salad for a luncheon. Fresh fruit flavors and colors in this type of salad offer cool satisfaction for warm day meals.

LIVER LOAF is a nutritious menu brightener made of ground liver seasoned with a sly hint of onion and blended with egg and milk to come out of the oven a smoothly-satisfying meat loaf. Serve with pickled baby beets and peanut muffins for a menu that's thrifty and properly contrasted.

*Liver Loaf (Serves 6)

- 1 pound liver
- 3 cups enriched bread cubes
- 1 cup milk
- 1 1/2 teaspoons salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 2 tablespoons minced onion
- 2 eggs
- 4 tablespoons melted shortening

Pour enough boiling water to cover over liver and let stand for 10 minutes. Remove from hot water and put through meat grinder, or cut into small cubes with scissors. Pour milk over bread cubes and let stand for 5 minutes. Add salt, pepper, onion, beaten eggs, shortening and liver. Mix thoroughly. Pour into greased, paper-lined pan. Bake in a moderate (350°F.) oven for 1 hour. Peanut muffins can be made by adding 1 cup chopped peanuts to your favorite recipe or muffin mix.

Sour Cream Dressing (Makes 2 cups)

- 1 egg yolk
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 1 tablespoon flour
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard
- 1/4 teaspoon paprika
- 1/4 cup water
- 1/4 cup vinegar
- 1 tablespoon butter
- 1 cup soured cream

Beat egg yolk with spoon in top part of double boiler. Mix dry ingredients and add to egg yolk. Mix well. Add water, then vinegar and cook over hot water until thick, stirring constantly. Add butter. Chill. Fold in soured cream just before serving. This is excellent for shredded green cabbage.

*Lemon Crumb Crunch (Serves 9)

- 1/2 cup sugar
 - 2 tablespoons enriched flour
 - 1/4 teaspoon salt
 - 1 cup hot water
 - 2 eggs, well beaten
 - 1/2 cup lemon juice
 - 1 1/2 teaspoons grated lemon rind
- Combine sugar, flour and salt. Add water and mix well. Cook over hot water until thick, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Stir in a small amount of hot mixture into eggs. Add to remaining hot mixture. Cook over hot water 2 minutes, stirring constantly. Add lemon juice and rind and continue cooking for 1 minute. Remove from heat. Cool. Pour over layers of Crumb Crunch: Mix 1/2 cup shortening and 1 cup brown sugar. Add 1 cup enriched flour, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1 cup wheat cereal flakes and 1/2 cup shredded coconut. Place 2/3 of crumb mixture in greased 8-inch square pan. Pour over filling. Top with remaining crumb mixture. Bake in a moderate (350°F.) oven for 40 minutes. Serve cold with whipped cream.

Ham kabobs may be alternated with apple chunks and tomatoes. If you prefer, alternate ham cubes with tomatoes, mushrooms and pineapple chunks.

For the he-man, try beef cubes, alternated with mushroom caps and potato chunks. Beef or lamb cubes may also be alternated with onions and tomatoes.

Barbecue sauce may be brushed over kabobs before broiling. A simple sauce includes 1/2 cup chili sauce, 1/4 cup lemon juice, 2 teaspoons each grated onion and prepared mustard.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

International Union Sundry School Lessons

BY DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

SCRIPTURE: Luke 7:32; Romans 12:1, 2; 1 Corinthians 8:1; John 2:15-17. DEVOTIONAL READING: Psalm 1.

Think of Brother

Lesson for July 29, 1951

THE Christians in the city of Corinth were bothered about a number of things. One of them never bothers anybody any more, and yet, strange as it seems, it throws a light on some of the hottest problems a Christian meets.

The Corinthian problem was beef-steak. We have a problem with that too, — that is, how are we going to pay for it? That wasn't the Corinthian problem.

This was away back in Roman times. Every city had its temple where sacrifices were made to the gods. Sacrifices were of all kinds, from flowers to cattle. It was considered rather wasteful, after killing a big bull, to throw the carcass away; so after the ceremonies at the temple, the rose-garlands would be taken off the beast's neck, and the animal would be hauled away to some butcher's shop, where it would be cut up into roasts, steaks and what not, and sold over the counter just like any other meat.

Now some of the Christians began to worry over their meat supply. Suppose I buy a steak in the market (one would ask) and suppose that steak came from a bull or a cow that has been killed as a sacrifice to one of these heathen gods? Won't that make me guilty of idolatry?

Your Conscience May be Clear, but—

SO they wrote to the best man they knew, their old evangelist and pastor, the man who had converted them to Christ and organized their church, the Apostle Paul. They asked him about this and other things; and what we call "I Corinthians" is his answer.

You might think this beef-steak problem trivial, but Paul never handled a trivial problem in a trivial way. He approached the problem in this way: Meat is only meat, he said; it certainly wasn't the bull's fault that he was part of a heathen ceremony. As for the butcher, he paid good money for the animal, in a perfectly respectable business transaction. Then where was the sin in eating such meat?

But wait a minute. Suppose you are dining out, and you happen to know where the meat came from, and everybody at the table knows, and somebody at the table isn't very clear-headed, and when he sees you eating the meat, thinks you must be approving of heathen sacrifices; then what? Or perhaps, some one else is less enlightened than you; eating such meat seems quite wrong to him, but when he sees you eating it, he may (just to be polite) follow suit, and yet his conscience, not being an educated conscience like yours, will hurt him all the same. So what you do quite freely and rightly, causes another man to go against his conscience.

Think of Your Brother!

NOW, then, Paul says: "If what I eat makes my brother fall, I will never eat meat again, rather than make my brother fall." (American translation.) There you have the Christian principle.

The important question is not, "Is it any harm?" but, "What effect is this going to have on other people?"

We have seen that the basic Christian principle in all human relationships is the importance of personality. If an act, even a harmless and blameless act, hurts persons—makes them sin, makes them go against their own conscience, then the Christian's rule is at once: Don't.

The rightness or wrongness of a thing is not all in the thing itself; it comes from its effects on persons. Now apply this to some of our own problems of social living. Is drinking alcoholic liquor a sin? Is the use of tobacco sinful? Is dancing wrong? (—to name a few.)

Let us suppose, for the sake of the argument, that you are not harmed by such things yourself. It is a fact, however, that some people are harmed by them. Now suppose your act, which is quite harmless to you and done with a clear conscience, influences another and perhaps weaker person to indulge in something harmful to him? Then a Christian will say, as Paul said: If this thing makes my brother fall, I will never do it again. Which, after all, is more important to me, my own freedom or my brother's character?

Plastics Ancient

Plastics are generally considered rather new, but their use goes back well over 100 years. First there was the use of natural resins, gums, shellac, and ceiling-wax. In 1846 cellulose nitrate began to be produced. Progress has been steady in the past century until now, if this were not known as the Atomic Age, it might well be called the Plastics Age. Today's plastic spectacle frames, with their rich variety of styles and colors, are a good example of why plastics are popular.

Moss Menace

Lack of fertility, poor drainage or both cause moss in some lawns. Fertility deficiency is corrected by raking away the moss and fertilizing the bare spots liberally with a special lawn food. Where water gathers because of faulty drainage, this moss-causing factor can be ended by changing the grade. If surface drainage is good but seepage water saturates the subsoil it may be necessary to install tile to end the difficulty.

Cleaning Brushes

The painter who neglects to clean his brushes after they've been used doesn't deserve much sympathy; but at least he deserves a tip on how to recondition his brushes the next time they have to be used. Fill up an old can with vinegar, stick the brushes in it, and put it on the stove until it boils for ten or fifteen minutes. This may cause falling bristles in inferior quality brushes; but it will soften them up considerably, and a good washing should complete the reconditioning.

Contrasting Flavors, Textures Will Keep Menus Interesting

A MEAL THAT'S LIVELY with color, exciting because of some soft foods, some crisp and crunchy, some tart and spicy while others have a subtle sweetness can keep appetite interest high.

Homemakers who want to keep their families looking forward to mealtime no matter what the weather plan menus with such rules in mind. Consequently menus never become dull, and it's easy to have nutritionally adequate foods not only served but eaten also.

It's fun to see what ingenuity can be used in combining foods for interesting menus. Here's a broiled cheese and rice combination that is proud to appear at any dinner table after a quick trip to the broiler. Dessert and salad courses are combined in one with a watermelon salad bowl, which offers fresh fruit with its crisp texture, an excellent contrast to the soft-textured foods of the main dish.

Broiled Cheese-Rice Platter (Serves 4)

- 1 1/2 cups cooked rice
 - 1 cup chopped, cooked, drained spinach
 - 1 1/2 cups cheese sauce
 - 4 slices tomato
- Arrange rice on 10-inch oven platter. Pour half of cheese sauce over rice. Cover with spinach. Pour remaining cheese sauce over spinach. Place slices of tomato on top. Bake in a hot (450°F.) oven, about 10 minutes or until heated. Broil, 4 inches from heat, until cheese is lightly browned, about 2 minutes.

Watermelon Bowl Salad

- 1/2 watermelon
- 2 cups cantaloupe balls
- 1 cup pineapple wedges
- 1 cup blueberries
- Cream cheese
- French or other salad dressing.

With a ball cutter, remove the center from half of a short, thick watermelon. Toss the watermelon balls together with the cantaloupe balls, pineapple wedges and blueberries. Place the watermelon bowl on green leaves on a round chop plate and fill it with mixed fruit. Around the base of the melon, arrange groups of cream cheese cubes. Serve with French or other dressing.

A MENU THAT MATCHES the season and is full of contrast in texture and color is a broiled crabmeat and tomato sandwich. Pair this with green cabbage salad put together with sour cream dressing. A tangy lemon dessert completes the menu:

Broiled Crabmeat-Tomato Sandwich (Serves 4)

- 8 buttered slices of bread (crusts removed)
- 1 6-ounce can crabmeat
- 2 medium tomatoes
- Cheese sauce

Place one slice of bread in the bottom of each individual casserole dish. Spread with flaked crabmeat. Top with tomato slice and another slice of bread. Pour hot cheese sauce over each sandwich. Place under broil and broil for 7 to 10 minutes or until bread is heated through and nicely browned. Serve immediately.

Liver Loaf slices nicely and has an interesting texture, as well as good color contrast when teamed with tiny pickled beets. Any type of liver may be used for this richly nutritious and appetite-satisfying main dish.

Liver Loaf slices nicely and has an interesting texture, as well as good color contrast when teamed with tiny pickled beets. Any type of liver may be used for this richly nutritious and appetite-satisfying main dish.

LYNN SAYS: Here are Foods For Out-of-Doors

When you're eating out, fix kabobs, those tempting tidbits on skewers. Cook them over coals, or broil them in the oven before bringing out to eat. Sausage makes a tasty kabob when you form the meat into balls and alternate with chunks of apples and cubes of onion. Oysters rolled in bacon make an excellent first or main course when they're broiled on skewers.

LYNN CHAMBERS' MENU

- *Liver Loaf
- Tiny Pickled Beets
- Peanut Muffins
- Fresh Pineapple-Banana Salad
- *Lemon Crumb Crunch
- Beverage
- *Recipes Given

You may serve a half watermelon filled with pineapple, blueberries and melon balls as a salad-dessert for dinner, or as a main course salad for a luncheon. Fresh fruit flavors and colors in this type of salad offer cool satisfaction for warm day meals.

LIVER LOAF is a nutritious menu brightener made of ground liver seasoned with a sly hint of onion and blended with egg and milk to come out of the oven a smoothly-satisfying meat loaf. Serve with pickled baby beets and peanut muffins for a menu that's thrifty and properly contrasted.

*Liver Loaf (Serves 6)

- 1 pound liver
- 3 cups enriched bread cubes
- 1 cup milk
- 1 1/2 teaspoons salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 2 tablespoons minced onion
- 2 eggs
- 4 tablespoons melted shortening

Pour enough boiling water to cover over liver and let stand for 10 minutes. Remove from hot water and put through meat grinder, or cut into small cubes with scissors. Pour milk over bread cubes and let stand for 5 minutes. Add salt, pepper, onion, beaten eggs, shortening and liver. Mix thoroughly. Pour into greased, paper-lined pan. Bake in a moderate (350°F.) oven for 1 hour.

Peanut muffins can be made by adding 1 cup chopped peanuts to your favorite recipe or muffin mix.

Sour Cream Dressing (Makes 2 cups)

- 1 egg yolk
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 1 tablespoon flour
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard
- 1/4 teaspoon paprika
- 1/4 cup water
- 1/4 cup vinegar
- 1 tablespoon butter
- 1 cup soured cream

Beat egg yolk with spoon in top part of double boiler. Mix dry ingredients and add to egg yolk. Mix well. Add water, then vinegar and cook over hot water until thick, stirring constantly. Add butter. Chill. Fold in soured cream just before serving. This is excellent for shredded green cabbage.

*Lemon Crumb Crunch (Serves 9)

- 1/2 cup sugar
- 2 tablespoons enriched flour
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1 cup hot water
- 2 eggs, well beaten
- 1/2 cup lemon juice
- 1 1/2 teaspoons grated lemon rind

Combine sugar, flour and salt. Add water and mix well. Cook over hot water until thick, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Stir in a small amount of hot mixture into eggs. Add to remaining hot mixture. Cook over hot water 2 minutes, stirring constantly. Add lemon juice and rind and continue cooking for 1 minute. Remove from heat. Cool. Pour over layers of Crumb Crunch: Mix 1/2 cup shortening and 1 cup brown sugar. Add 1 cup enriched flour, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1 cup wheat cereal flakes and 1/2 cup shredded coconut. Place 3/4 of crumb mixture in greased 8-inch square pan. Pour over filling. Top with remaining crumb mixture. Bake in a moderate (350°F.) oven for 40 minutes. Serve cold with whipped cream.

Ham kabobs may be alternated with apple chunks and tomatoes. If you prefer, alternate ham cubes with tomatoes, mushrooms and pineapple chunks.

For the he-man, try beef cubes, alternated with mushroom caps and potato chunks. Beef or lamb cubes may also be alternated with onions and tomatoes.

Barbecue sauce may be brushed over kabobs before broiling. A simple sauce includes 1/2 cup chili sauce, 1/4 cup lemon juice, 2 teaspoons each grated onion and prepared mustard.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

International Union Sunday School Lessons

BY DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

SCRIPTURE: Luke 7:32; Romans 12:1, 2; 1 Corinthians 3; 1 John 2:15-17.

Think of Brother

Lesson for July 29, 1951

THE Christians in the city of Corinth were bothered about a number of things. One of them never bothers anybody any more, and yet, strange as it seems, it throws a light on some of the hottest problems a Christian meets.

The Corinthian problem was beef-steak. We have a problem with that too, — that is, how are we going to pay for it? That wasn't the Corinthian problem.

This was away back in Roman times. Every city had its temple where sacrifices were made to the gods. Sacrifices were of all kinds, from flowers to cattle. It was considered rather wasteful, after killing a big bull, to throw the carcass away; so after the ceremonies at the temple, the rose-garlands would be taken off the beast's neck, and the animal would be hauled away to some butcher's shop, where it would be cut up into roasts, steaks and what not, and sold over the counter just like any other meat.

Now some of the Christians began to worry over their meat supply. Suppose I buy a steak in the market (one would ask) and suppose that steak came from a bull or a cow that has been killed as a sacrifice to one of these heathen gods? Won't that make me guilty of idolatry?

Your Conscience May Be Clear, but—

SO they wrote to the best man they knew, their old evangelist and pastor, the man who had converted them to Christ and organized their church, the Apostle Paul. They asked him about this and other things; and what we call "1 Corinthians" is his answer.

You might think this beef-steak problem trivial, but Paul never handled a trivial problem in a trivial way. He approached the problem in this way: Meat is only meat, he said; it certainly wasn't the bull's fault that he was part of a heathen ceremony. As for the butcher, he paid good money for the animal, in a perfectly respectable business transaction. Then where was the sin in eating such meat?

But wait a minute. Suppose you are dining out, and you happen to know where the meat came from, and everybody at the table knows, and somebody at the table isn't very clear-headed, and when he sees you eating the meat, thinks you must be approving of heathen sacrifices; then what? Or perhaps, some one else is less enlightened than you; eating such meat seems quite wrong to him, but when he sees you eating it, he may (just to be polite) follow suit, and yet his conscience, not being an educated conscience like yours, will hurt him all the same. So what you do quite freely and rightly, causes another man to go against his conscience.

Think of Your Brother!

NOW, then, Paul says: "If what I eat makes my brother fall, I will never eat meat again, rather than make my brother fall." (American translation.) There you have the Christian principle.

The important question is not, "Is it any harm?" but, "What effect is this going to have on other people?"

We have seen that the basic Christian principle in all human relationships is the importance of personality. If an act, even a harmless and blameless act, hurts persons—makes them sin, makes them go against their own conscience, then the Christian's rule is at once: Don't.

The rightness or wrongness of a thing is not all in the thing itself: it comes from its effects on persons. Now apply this to some of our own problems of social living. Is drinking alcoholic liquor a sin? Is the use of tobacco sinful? Is dancing wrong? (—to name a few.)

Let us suppose, for the sake of the argument, that you are not harmed by such things yourself. It is a fact, however, that some people are harmed by them. Now suppose your act, which is quite harmless to you and done with a clear conscience, influences another and perhaps weaker person to indulge in something harmful to him? Then a Christian will say, as Paul said: If this thing makes my brother fall, I will never do it again. Which, after all, is more important to me, my own freedom or my brother's character?

Plastics Ancient

Plastics are generally considered rather new, but their use goes back well over 100 years. First there was the use of natural resins, gums, shellac, and ceiling-wax. In 1846 cellulose nitrate began to be produced. Progress has been steady in the past century until now, if this were not known as the Atomic Age, it might well be called the Plastics Age. Today's plastic spectacle frames, with their rich variety of styles and colors, are a good example of why plastics are popular.

Moss Menace

Lack of fertility, poor drainage or both cause moss in some lawns. Fertility deficiency is corrected by raking away the moss and fertilizing the bare spots liberally with a special lawn food. Where water gathers because of faulty drainage, this moss-causing factor can be ended by changing the grade. If surface drainage is good but seepage water saturates the soil it may be necessary to install tile to end the difficulty.

Cleaning Brushes

The painter who neglects to clean his brushes after they've been used doesn't deserve much sympathy; but at least he deserves a tip on how to recondition his brushes the next time they have to be used. Fill up an old can with vinegar, stick the brushes in it, and put it on the stove until it boils for ten or fifteen minutes. This may cause falling bristles in inferior quality brushes; but it will soften them up considerably, and a good washing should complete the reconditioning.
