THE DRAFTEES' DREAM

By Pvt. Coll Wilson
My wife she went away and left me,
She left me all alone
I was left in this wide world to wander
And the Army called me from home.

I wrote her a letter last Tuesday,
And sealed it with a kiss,
I got her letter this morning,
And the answer she gave me was this.

Chorus:
When the Army is run by BUCK PRIVATES,
And you can get a thirty day leave,
When the Army is run by BUCK PRIVATES
Sweet heart, you can come home to me.

When the Army is run by BUCK PRIVATES
And the boss of them all will be me,
You will stand no retreats in the evening,
And there will be no reveille.

When the MAJOR forgets to give orders,
And the CAPTAIN forgets how to talk,
And the LIEUTENANT will do all extra duties,
And the SERGEANTS forget how to walk.

You can sleep until ten every morning,
Then you can get a thirty day leave—
When the Army is run by BUCK PRIVATES,
Sweet heart, you can come to me.

Water Spring Pours 700 Gallons A Minute 4 Miles South Here

A water spring which is getting stronger instead of decreasing, and is flowing at a rate of about 700 gallons a minute, is located just four miles south of town, according to W. T. Huff, upon whose farm the water is flowing.

The spring proper is on the land belonging to Tom Vestal, Huff says. Few persons knew of the spring even though Huff has known of it since last April and has watched it closely to determine whether or not it would play out. It was started flowing before the heavy rains began last year.

Bowlers Resume Play Next Monday

Games in the bowling league were all postponed last week, but will start play again next Monday night with the All-Stars, composed of Brock, Hancock, Howard and Cook playing the Cicero Smith keglers.

On Wednesday night the Whitsett team will tangle with the leading Corner Drug four. This team, made up of Hunt, Williams, Allen and Scholer, is one of the toughest ever assembled here. Or so it appears at this time.

Remember, ladies may bowl on Tuesday afternoons for only 10 cents per line when bowling with other ladies.

Four-Star Bull Is Purchased By E. W. Hester; Shipped Here

Purchase of Lilac Remus Warren, one of the highest rated Hereford bulls in the United States, has been made by E. W. Hester.

The bull is ten months old, weighs 700 pounds and was shipped from Massachusetts. A compilation of Warren's credits by the national association shows he has 24 points, four over the required 20 to secure a four-star rating. And they go no higher than four stars.

Hester spares no effort when trying to purchase high grade stuff, and has been known to return bulls which were rated highly, but later failed to meet the association's tests.

Mrs. A. H. Koeninger and Mrs. Burl Koeninger were in Lamesa Monday.

Registration Of Citizens For Defense Tuesday

Registration of all persons in the O'Donnell area desiring to assist in any way they can in defense work will be made here Tuesday afternoon from 4 o'clock until 8 o'clock, according to Miss Claire Ruth Nichols, registrar.

Registration will take place in the office of E. M. Haymes. This type of registration is being made throughout the state, so says Mayor Stansell Jones, and the work is behind schedule here owing to the fact that special cards had to be printed.

Treasury Asks 7 1/2 Billion Tax Boost To Carry Out U. S. 'Victory Program'; Sweeping Soviet Advances Continue As New Assaults Puncture Nazi Lines

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.) (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau as he presented a new 7 billion 610 million dollar tax program to congress. If approved by congress, the new taxes proposed by the treasury, added to the present total, would yield approximately 23 billion 487 million dollars in 1942. This would be an average of slightly more than $175 for every man, woman and child in the nation.

TAXES: War Not Cheap

The job of digging $23,000,000,000 in tax money out of the pockets of the people of the United States had been placed squarely before Secretary Morgenthau of the treasury, and he had placed a plan before the congress to accomplish this.

He had prefaced his announcement of the plan with the statement that it was a "victory program" and that "war was not cheap, but a million times cheaper to win than to lose."

The plan had called for a general doubling of income taxes between the bottom limit and $10,000, increases of corporate taxes, increase of excise taxes, and a raising of the social security payment rates.

One innovation was the secretary's suggestion that at least a portion of the tax be raised at the source, employers withholding weekly amounts from their workers' pay and turning it over to the treasury monthly.

Secretary Morgenthau admitted this might mean paying on two years' taxes at the same time after about July 1, but pointed out that it would reduce the burden of the following March, and also would prevent taxpayers from spending in inflationary avenues to purchase goods that could not be produced, in sufficient quantity to meet the demand.

The first reactions of congressmen in general had been favorable. It was doubtful if the eventual tax bill would emerge in exactly the form as presented by Secretary Morgenthau, but that something substantially like it would be adopted was considered certain.

Samples of the Morgenthau schedules called for single persons making a net of $2,000, now paying $117, to pay $230; for married persons making $2,200 with no dependents, now paying $61, to pay $118; for married persons with two dependents (average family) making a net of $2,700, to pay $64 instead of the present $29.

RUSSIANS: Increase Pace

It had been expected that as the spring thaws began to set in the Russians would find the going more difficult, especially as Hitler made ready for his "spring offensive."

Some wonder had been caused when the Germans began issuing bulletins telling of enormous numbers of Red troops being shoved up toward the front, reports which were more or less confirmed from Red sources.

There were two possible solutions to this—either the Germans were preparing their people for the expected report of the loss of the Sixteenth field army, which had been trapped in the Staraya Russa district, or they were trying to convince the United States and Britain that Russia did not need and could not use additional lease-lend aid.

However this might be, observers had considered it more likely that Stalin, having placed a large group of generals in the background posts of training new armies, was putting these into the fight in order to halt the "spring offensive" before it could get going. To the westward the Russian army has captured large quantities of war materials.

It recalled statements of Napoleon and of the Germans themselves during the last war, that conquering the Russians was impossible because of their tremendous manpower, for countless thousands of new troops always appeared on all fronts, just when one thought them well beaten.

JAVA: New Psychology

The word "offensive" had become increasingly important in the dictionary of the Allied Nations.

In Washington Chief of Staff General Marshall had struck the keynote, and when the Japs came into Java, and General Wavell was shunted off to India, leaving Dutch Gen. Ter Poorten in charge, almost the first order to the men was to make an offensive out of the defense of the island.

The troops, which included some Americans, British and Australians, but which largely were Dutch and natives, had hurled themselves at the enemy with considerably more force than had been evidenced by the British in either Malaya or Burma, and early successes were reported. However, the estimated 85,000 Japanese troops were able to turn the tide of battle against approximately 50,000 Allied soldiers.

The Japs had landed at three points, the estimate being that 140 warships and transports had been used. One landing was on the Sumatra point of the island, another in the north central portion, and the third just west of Sourabaya.

Though most observers felt from the first that the battle for Java could have only one end, and though the Dutch, at the outset, were bitter against the United Nations for not having sent sufficient aid, the battle was the first test of the new psychology, to be "on the offensive" instead of the defensive at all times.

The battle for Java marked the closing phase of the beginning of the Southwest Pacific war. Japanese successes in that area, won at a huge cost of man power, were largely the result of overwhelming air superiority.

RIOM: 'Inside Story'

More of the "inside story" of the fall of France and the reasons for it had been aired by outspoken Eduard Daladier, ex-premier who had been placed on trial.

At the same time ex-Generalissimo Maurice Gamelin had stood stiffly at attention, refusing to answer a single question hurled at him by Pierre Causis, the prosecutor.

But Daladier, giving still more importance to the reports of dissension and lack of co-operation within the nation, charged that the entire war effort of France had been "sabotaged" by the lack of interest of several large steel industries.

He told of two concerns which had been approached by the government long before the war to take part in a government-private industry combine which would have set up huge armament works in northern Africa.

There, Daladier had testified, the government would have been able to have strengthened her armed forces. But the industrialists approached refused to consider the plan until France was at war with Germany, when it was too late, he had said.

NELSON: How to Spend

Donald Nelson, WPB head, charged with the job of spending an apparently unending succession of billions of dollars, had issued a document called Directive No. 2 which outlined to the world his theories of how it should be done.

In the first place, he has ended competitive bidding on war work. He is trying, he had announced, to get the small plant, not now engaged in war work, into the war picture.

War Bonnet for 'Big Joe' Stalin

The head of the Russian Reds has been named honorary chief of the Red Indians, as an outstanding warrior for 1941, although the Indians associated with the Indian Confederation admit that Gen. Douglas MacArthur is a sure candidate for honors in 1942. A fine war bonnet, which will go to Stalin, is being presented to Edward Carter, president of the Russian war relief, by Chief Falling Trees at the Indian Confederation pow wow in New York.

Paraski Troops Ready for Action

After a hard training grind, ski troopers of the 503rd parachute battalion are prepared for action. A group of the jumping snowbirds are lined up inside their transport plane en route to their jump-off place near Salt Lake City, Utah. Their skis and other equipment will be dropped to them by large parachutes after they have leaped.

America Can Be Licked:

That's not a slogan thought up by this hysterical alarmist. It's a quote from Adm. William M. Standley, new ambassador to Russia. Standley makes him an hysterical alarmist, too, which ought to make him a useful man to the gov't. New York had to have the war dumped on the doorstep before it realized the shooting had started. The burning of the Normandie woke the New Yorkers up. They let out the usual yell for scalps, but that was better than yelling at all. They began to wonder what was going on. Well, what was? Lethargy's another of our crimes, Admiral Standley warns. Have a look at the country away from the coasts and you'll agree. The big idea there is, "The bombers can't reach us." To them, the only part of the U.S.A. at war is the part in danger of invasion. What makes those ostriches think the Nazis or Japs will hug the beaches? They love to travel.

The fault-finders who keep hollering that we don't know enough about Pearl Harbor don't even listen when you mention what the navy did later at the Gilbert and Marshall islands, Macassar strait and Java. That isn't the kind of news they like to monger.

Man About New York: The United States did not create the pioneer spirit; the pioneer spirit created the United States. That spirit has never failed our people. It was in the gun-pits at Gettysburg, it was in the trenches in France, and it is in the foxholes of the Philippines. —Buy Defense Bonds—

The world picture is black today, but it was black in 1776, when Philadelphia and New York were in the hands of an enemy. It was blacker still when the capital was burned in 1814.

There were only 5,000,000 Americans then. But they taught Europe that though it could invade American territory it could never invade the American Spirit; that their artillery could crack an American fort, but never the unity of the Republic. The American people have won every war because they have continued to fight the enemy, not to question their own leadership. Five million Americans stood off the world because deep defeat could not divide them.

That tradition is worth more than all the gold in Fort Knox. Our schools can truthfully teach that there were no hoarders at Valley Forge—and the captain of the U. S. S. Constitution never had to ration Loyalty.

Today the tides of Manila Bay are ebbing and flowing, but not the patriotism of the surrounded Americans. Tokyo hopes they will soon run out of ammunition. Because even Tokyo admits that MacArthur's men will never run out of courage. —Buy Defense Bonds—

The siletto mob didn't waste a second hopping on the R.A.F. when the Nazi ships slid through Dover Strait. All right, it was a blow that hurt. Hitler got his ships home. But who tied them up for months? The R.A.F. . . . Who fought off the invasion of England, and changed Germany's whole plan of the war? The Hunns are on the Russian front today, taking a bloody beating, because the R.A.F. sent them there. But one setback is supposed to rub out all their glories. The toughest outfit of the war, with a record full of glory, is being crucified for losing one skirmish. The idea is not being promoted here, however, that everybody has to shut up. Blunders must not be excused, or inefficiency and plundering concealed. The chief thing is to notice who's doing the loudest yelling, and check back on his record. Lots of the mouthpieces aren't speaking in America's interest. You don't have to be slant-eyed to be a good Jap, or to have an accent to deliver a message from Berlin. Sure, America can be licked. But favevnsakes, don't let's lick ourselves.

This little anecdote about a prime minister and a reporter tells more about the stupid, short-sighted thinking that was almost fatal to democracies than all the intellectual essays ever written. . . . Stanley Baldwin told a reporter: "I want it to be said of me that I never sent a single Englishman to die on a foreign battlefield." "But, Prime Minister," he was reminded, "don't you see you are piling up trouble that will kill a million Englishmen in the next war?" . . . "That," said Baldwin calmly, "is a problem for my successor."

—Buy Defense Bonds— Book publishers are cutting one-eighth of an inch on tomes already to conserve paper. . . . The best book publishers (five) are standardizing the jackets on non-fiction. . . . A Los Angeles lawyer has complained to authorities that Japs are using "spot" announcements on West coast high-powered stations to relay code messages to Tokyo. . . . The N. Y. Times is prepared for an air raid. In its annex lobby (where the paper is printed) there's a Disaster Wagon equipped with helmets, first aid kits, etc.

TO THOSE who are troubled about Farm Equipment . . .

HERE ARE THE FACTS About The Supply and Distribution of New Farm Machines and Repair Parts has been so much public concern concerning the supply of farm equipment and repair parts for the year's food production that a word of explanation is needed. While it is obvious that the country cannot be uniformly satisfied with all concerned, inquiries from farmers and dealers indicate a widespread feeling of dissatisfaction. The subject of farm equipment industry sin- gularly regrets the hardships that circumstances work on farmers and the embarrassing financial loss that is visited on the dealers. . . . Perhaps a word of explanation will give everybody a better understanding of the unavoidable situation. Last year the government, faced with a vast program of armament production, was forced to reduce the production of new farm equipment. The steps were taken in plan- ning the volume of 1942 production:

Step No. 1: In September the gov- ernment asked manufacturers to estimate the 1942 demand for farm equipment. The manufacturers estimated that farmers would de- mand a 38% increase over the 1940 production, or substantially the same as the actual demand and output in 1941.

Step No. 2: At the same time the Department of Agriculture asked county agents to estimate, not the demand (what farmers would like to buy), but the minimum essen- tial needs of farmers throughout the country. The county agents reported a minimum need for 1942 of 7% increase over the 1940 pro- duction.

Step No. 3: Late in December the government issued its order to manufacturers limiting the pro- duction for 1942 to an average of 17% less than the 1940 production of new equipment. As to repair parts, the order provided for an average of 50% increase over 1940 production, which was somewhat larger than 1941 output. In fixing these limitations on equip- ment and parts, the government in no way guaranteed that the manu- facturers would be able to produce up to these limits. It was saying, in effect, that the manufacturers could build these amounts if they could get the materials.

The Material Picture Changes
To assist the manufacturers in ob- taining the required materials, the OPM assigned a priority rating of A-3 to new farm equipment and re- pair parts. At the time of the as- signment this was a relatively high rating and showed reasonable prom- ise of providing all or most of the materials needed.

Since then, however, the produc- tion picture of the United States has changed swiftly and radically. Vast new undertakings in war equipment require additional vast amounts of raw materials. These have naturally been given very high priority ratings, so that the ability of the A-3 rating to get materials for new machines and repair parts has steadily de- clined.

Because of all these things there is not, and in the visible future there will not be, sufficient new equipment or repair parts to satisfy either the known demands or the reported minimum needs of the farmers of America.

This situation is not the fault of the builders and distributors of farm equipment. Neither is it the fault of the government officials who were concerned with the matter. Nothing that we have said in this statement is in any sense a criticism of the government men who had the thank- less task of apportioning among many industries and for many pur- poses a supply of raw materials which was certain to be inadequate. The true blame lies in Tokio, Berlin, and Rome. The truth is that you are feeling the impact of the world enemy on the American farm.

We wish it clearly understood that nothing in this statement is intend- ed as a complaint, as a demand for a higher priority rating or for larger allocation of materials. We do not know how much of the nation's stock of raw materials can be allot- ted to farm equipment. Only the government knows how large and how urgent are other demands. We do know this one fundamental fact —there are not enough materials to meet all of the needs brought about by war.

Our Level Best In Wartime Service
There is nothing to be gained by wishful thinking about the farm equipment situation "as it ought to be." It seems to us to be the clear duty of us all to keep our chins up and do the best jobs we can with what we have. All of us acknowledge that the needs of the fighting forces come first.

As a manufacturer, Harvester has been building, and will continue to build, all the farm equipment pos- sible under wartime conditions.

As a distributor, Harvester is using 110 years of experience and know- ledge of farm conditions and farm practices to do the fairest job we know how to do. In distributing our machines, we take into consideration in each of our sales areas: (1) the shipments we made to that area in 1940 and 1941; (2) the local effect of the Department of Agriculture 1942 food-production program; (3) the inventory of machines in the hands of dealers; and (4) the local crop conditions. We believe that these are the factors vital to the 1942 distribution of our products.

These things we know the Ameri- can farmer will understand. We have a deep and abiding faith that noth- ing — no shortage, no handicap — will keep him from successfully handling his essential job and carry- ing the nation to eventual victory.

Serial Numbers For New Registrants
At a meeting of the County Draft Board Monday, the names of Lynn County registrants were drawn and given serial numbers.

There had been about 794 registra- tions in the county, but a little more than a hundred of these were trans- ferred to other counties. At the same time about thirty registrants had been transferred from other places into Lynn County. Many of the transfers from this county went to Dawson County, many persons living in Dawson County in the vicinity of O'Donnell having registered at that place. The number given serial num- bers here Monday was 720, according to Mrs. McMahan.

Registrants should bear in mind, however, that the order numbers will be given out from Washington later and will be quite different from the serial numbers.

SHE LOVED A SPY

by SYLVIA TAYLOR

THE STORY SO FAR: Joan Leland accepts a secretarial position in a night club and falls in love with the handsome proprietor, Karl Miller. Her sister, Sybil, suspects Karl's motives and is not mollified when he also gets her a new position. Paul Sherman, club manager, warns Joan about Karl but she defends him to both Paul and Sybil. Delivering a mysterious message for Karl to a tramp steamer, she finds Paul secretly following her. He rescues her from Eric Strom, Karl's partner, when Eric tries to kiss her. Karl shoots and kills Eric in Joan's presence, and threatens to blame her if she calls the police. He admits he is German, and part of a spy ring. To her surprise, Paul backs him up. At her home that night, Paul enters through the window and reveals himself as Paul O'Malley of the FBI. Knowing her fingerprints were on the gun Karl made her pick up, he had to side with him temporarily, he explained, as this work was more important than their lives. Joan is sickened by the revelation that Karl also has a wife in Germany. Sybil disappears. Now continue with the story.

CHAPTER X

One-thirty and still Sybil had not come home. What had she meant by that note saying "something terrible had happened?"
 "She never trusted Karl." Joan spoke fearfully.
 Paul was looking out of the window. "He's not there now. Whatever happened to Sybil had nothing to do with Karl personally. He hasn't been out of sight all evening. Of course there are plenty of others working with him."
 "Karl said that everyone at the Club Elite was involved. Is that true?"
 "I'm afraid so. Karl is too clever to take any chances."
 "But what does he actually do?"
 Paul thrust his hands into his pockets and stared at the fire. "I'm not sure of all his activities and I have no proof, but he is suspected of transferring plans of bombing planes and munition plants to other foreign agents. He's working with someone else, of course."
 "Remember that freighter Karl took me to and later sent me to with a package?"
 "Maybe establishing refueling bases for submarines."
 "Not here!" Joan cried.
 "No. Probably in the South Atlantic. I don't know yet."
 Joan sighed. "I always wanted adventure but I certainly didn't expect it to take this form."
 "I'm sorry you got in so deep," Paul told her very seriously.
 "It's my own fault. You tried to warn me, so did Sybil . . ."
 Their eyes met. Two o'clock and Sybil was still out.
 "I'm going," Paul said, rising, "and you'd better get some sleep. I'll be by for you at one-thirty. Karl's orders, you know." He smiled grimly. "It's fortunate for both of us."
 "I'm not going to bed until Sybil comes," Joan insisted.
 "Oh, yes you are! You need your sleep. Tomorrow is going to be a tough day. You've got to be clicking on all cylinders. Both our lives are at stake. You can't afford to make a slip. If Karl ever finds out, we'll end up just like Eric."
 "Don't say that! Oh Paul, I've been such a fool. I loved him . . ."
 He patted her shoulder. "We all make mistakes," he said comfortingly.
 When he had gone she tried to obey his instructions. She went to bed and tried to sleep. But the grandfather's clock had chimed three, then three-thirty before she slept, a fitful doze. It was a little after six when she awoke.
 "Sybil!" she called hysterically, but there was no reply. Her sister's bed was untouched.
 Joan got up, shivering in the cold of the December morning. She went into the kitchen and made a pot of coffee. What had happened to Sybil?
 "I've got to keep my head," she thought desperately, pouring the coffee with shaking hands. "But I feel so helpless."
 At one-thirty Paul arrived and took Joan to the Club Elite.
 "Now remember," he said as he parked the car, "we're not friends. Ignore me. And watch your step."
 "I'll do my best," Joan said grimly.
 But it was not easy to walk into this office, to see Karl sitting at his desk with the familiar red carnation in his buttonhole, the same smile that had once endeared him to her. With shaking hands she removed her hat and coat and sat down at her desk.
 "Paul tells me you have decided to be sensible," Karl commented.
 "What else can I do?" She paused for a moment, then burst out, "What have you done to my sister?"
 Karl regarded her with apparent surprise. "Sister? What do you mean?"
 "She didn't come home all night."
 Karl Miller shrugged and smiled. "What makes you think I had anything to do with it? I have no interest in your sister."
 "You know what I mean . . ."
 "Let us get on with our work," Karl said. Joan managed to control her resentment, and obeyed.
 The afternoon finally dragged to a conclusion. At six Paul Sherman appeared and he and Karl had a short conversation in German, after which Karl left.
 "I'm taking you to dinner," Paul said, "Karl's orders."

Joan laid the dazzling emerald before Karl without speaking and Karl put it in his pocket as if it had been a slip of paper.

Without a word Joan got her coat and they left the club.
 Safe in a small restaurant, she asked, "What about Sybil? Have you heard anything?"
 "Not a word. And I can't ask Karl. It's too much of a chance."
 "But we have to do something," Joan pleaded.
 "Wait until tomorrow and see what happens."
 Paul smiled grimly. "It amuses me the way Karl trusts me. Even the most clever criminals make one fatal mistake. This is his."
 "You really think he trusts you now?"
 "Yes. And since he does, he is sure to reveal something."
 "And all this trouble started because I wouldn't take Sybil's advice."
 As Joan picked up her purse she remembered the ring Karl had given her. It was in its velvet box in her purse where she had placed it this morning. She had completely forgotten to return it. Karl did not seem to care particularly whether she did or not.
 "It's probably stolen anyway," Joan thought bitterly as Paul took her back to the club.
 Joan laid the dazzling emerald before Karl without speaking and Karl put it in his pocket as if it had been a slip of paper.
 Joan wanted to scream, to pour out her anger. But she suspected that it would only amuse him.
 Karl actually seemed to think that she would return to their former relationship. "You loved me yesterday," he reminded her. "What is so different?"
 "You can force me to work for you—that's all!" Joan told him, her green eyes blazing. Had she ever loved this cruel, conceited man?
 An hour later Paul Sherman appeared again and said something to Karl in his own language. Joan noticed that Paul did not look at her, but she felt a personal importance in those guttural words even though she could not understand them.
 Karl smiled as he turned to her but there was warning in his eyes.
 "There are two officers here to see you, Joan. I believe they have news of your sister."
 "The police!" In an instant Joan was on her feet.
 "Something about Sybil," Karl repeated calmly, but his eyes warned her not to make a false move.
 Joan risked a glance at Paul. It seemed to her that he shook his head ever so slightly. He was trying to tell her not to take any chances.
 "All right," Karl snapped. "Show them in."
 Paul disappeared.
 When the door opened as he left, Joan could hear the music and laughter from the front of the club. Christmas gayer! How could these people laugh and be merry? How could they be so unaware of the drama that went on in that back office?
 "Watch your step," Karl advised. "If you say anything, you will be the loser, I warn you. I will not hesitate to use all the cards I hold. Shall we put it that way?"
 Her green eyes filled with tears. "Don't worry! Sybil is all I'm thinking about now."
 Paul returned with two officers.
 "Sorry to bother you, Mr. Miller."
 "Not at all," Karl replied graciously.
 "Tell me," Joan cried, "is it something about my sister? What's happened to her?"
 "We're not sure it's your sister, Miss Leland. We want you to come down to headquarters and identify the clothes."
 "Clothes? You mean . . . oh, no!" Her voice rose to a scream.
 "Take it easy now," the officer advised. "We're not sure."
 "Tell me," Joan begged. "Where did you find them?"
 "A woman's garments were found on the Golden Gate Bridge—a coat, shoes and a handbag with a letter addressed to your sister. Apparently it was suicide."
 "Suicide? Sybil would never do a thing like that!"
 "Maybe she didn't. Maybe she just wants you to think so. But we called up her employer, Mrs.

Murdock, and she said she hadn't shown up for work."
 Joan's eyes were upon Karl. "You had something to do with this," her eyes accused.
 For one moment she was tempted to pour out the whole story of the spy ring, to scream her accusations, but Paul was at her side now, grasping her firmly by the arm, and the pressure told her to be silent.
 Karl was saying, "I'm terribly sorry, Joan. You may go with the officers. Paul will go with you and see that you get home safely."
 "Thanks!" Joan flung the word into his expressionless face.
 All the way to headquarters Joan prayed that all this might be a mistake—that those clothes found on the Golden Gate Bridge were not Sybil's. It could not be Sybil! Her sister had said she would "be back soon." Was that indicative of suicide? But when she was faced with the coat, shoes and handbag she knew there was no mistake.
 "Yes. These are my sister's," she told them tonelessly.
 There was a sympathetic silence as an officer removed the clothes and letter.
 "Do you know of any reason why your sister should have done this?"
 "No." Joan wanted to cry but the tears would not come. A great pain welled up inside her. Sybil! Sybil was all she had in the world! She felt the floor swaying beneath her. She clung to the table.
 "Poor kid!" Paul was saying as he helped her into a chair. Someone else brought a glass of water.
 "It's almost impossible to recover a body from that part of the bay," one of the men was saying. "Of course we'll do all we can but the tide is so strong . . ."
 "Stop it!" Joan screamed. "I tell you my sister didn't kill herself! I know she didn't!" She was speaking incoherently now.
 The officers leaned closer. "Just what do you mean, Miss Leland?"
 Paul came to the rescue. "Miss Leland is hysterical. It's only natural. This has been a terrible shock, of course. Probably a good night's sleep will fix her up. Why not let me take her home? She's had me enough for one night."
 "Sure," the officer said sympathetically. "Go ahead."
 Paul led the trembling figure down the cold marble hall and into the street. Joan could not have stood without his support.
 "Why didn't you let me tell them?" She asked over and over. "Paul, you know Karl had something to do with this."
 "We can't prove it," he reminded her kindly. "Our only chance to convict Karl of this, or anything else, is to be seemingly unsuspecting."
 They were driving home now, through the wet streets of San Francisco. Wreaths shone from the windows of homes and apartments. Small Christmas trees sparkled. Next week—Christmas.
 "Oh, Paul, I can't stand it!"
 "Listen, honey," he said tenderly. "I don't think Sybil committed suicide."
 "Then you think Karl is behind it?"
 "I wouldn't be surprised."
 "But where is Sybil? Has he . . .?"
 "As a matter of fact," Paul said thoughtfully, "I think Sybil is alive. Now this is pure theory, understand, but I think Karl is trying to put a scare into you. He's probably taken Sybil away somewhere, but I don't think he's really harmed her. He doesn't want to take that much of a chance. He wants her as a hostage."
 "You mean," Joan said slowly, "that Karl will someday tell me that Sybil is alive and threaten her life if I don't do as he asks?"
 "That's the way I have it figured."
 "As long as Sybil is alive, that's all that matters. Surely we can find out if we go on with Karl and he isn't suspicious."
 "Good girl," Paul approved as they drove up before her apartment. "If we work together, I think we can beat Karl Miller at his own game. He's bound to make a slip and when he does we'll have all the evidence, not only about Sybil but his other activities. You'll stick it out, Joan?"

Getting Your Money's Worth

With food prices soaring from week to week Lynn County people who can't produce and conserve most of their food at home need more than ever to get full value for their money when they buy canned foods.

Miss Maurine McNatt, C. H. D. A., thinks that whether the consumer's pocketbook is plump or lean, it pays to buy canned foods wisely.

Since there are thousands of brands available in retail stores neither the homemaker nor the retailer can be sure of the quality each brand is supposed to represent. That's where the Department of Agricultural Marketing Service has come to the rescue.

Regardless of the brand name, the quality classes for canned fruits and vegetables established by the Department of Agriculture provide a reliable means of identifying quality. Only products packed in plants under the "continuous inspection" of the Agricultural Marketing Service can be labeled as a "U. S. grade."

Here are the four grades, guideposts to consumers:

Grade A—(Fancy) — the finest canned fruits and vegetables are in this grade. They are carefully selected as to size, color, degree of maturity and freedom from blemishes.

Grade B—(Choice) — products in grade B are of excellent quality but not so carefully selected or so tender and succulent as those in grade A.

Grade C—(Standard) — products in grade C are of good quality but not uniform in color, size and maturity as B.

Below Grade C — Some canned fruits and vegetables which fail to meet the requirements of Grade C in certain respects may be wholesome, nutritious and acceptable in flavor. If labeled to meet regulations under the Federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act they may be wholesome, nutritious and acceptable in flavor. If labeled to meet the regulations under the Federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act they may be sold on the retail market.

4. In boiling foods, raise the temperature to the boiling point as rapidly as possible.
5. Use as little water as possible.
6. Don't use long cooking processes such as stewing when shorter methods are feasible.
7. Don't throw away the water in which vegetables have been cooked.
8. Use it in making gravies, sauces and soups.
9. Prepare chopped fruit and vegetable salad just before serving.
10. Start cooking frozen fruits and vegetables while they are still frozen.
11. Serve raw frozen fruits immediately after thawing.
12. After food is cooked serve it at once.

Farm Bureau Will Meet In Lubbock

Members of the South Plains district of the Texas Farm Bureau Federation will meet in the Lubbock Hotel a 10:00 a. m. Saturday, March 14, according to word received by Don Turner, County Agent.

Problems of vital interest to every farmer will be discussed and it is expected that a large delegation of Lynn County farmers will attend. Lynn County ranks second in the district in membership and is in the top twenty counties of the state.

Texas Asked To Increase Castor Bean Production

COLLEGE STATION, March 5 — Twenty-four Texas counties are being asked to plant 3,000 acres of castor beans this year, according to B. F. Vance, administrative officer in charge of the AAA in Texas.

Primary motive of increased acreage is to produce sufficient seed for planting in 1943 if further decreases in imports are experienced, Vance said. Shipment of tung oil and perilla from the Far East have been cut off by war with Japan, but a sufficient supply of castor beans is being imported from Brazil to take care of present needs, he added.

"It's just another precaution we're taking in plenty of time to ward off any probable shortage," he explained.

Under the plan, AAA will furnish seed free provided one per cent of the crop is returned this fall. Farmers must also agree to carry out approved cultural practices, provide proper storage facilities, and deliver castor beans to designated places or the thresher.

Commodity Credit Corporation will purchase castor beans in the hull with prices contingent upon shelling percentage. Prices will range from $4.29 per 100 pounds for beans shelling 75 per cent, to $3.71 per 100 pounds for 65 per cent shelling.

CCC also will provide three threshing machines to be located at strategic places in the state, the AAA official pointed out.

Counties asked to cooperate in the plan were selected by the State AAA committee in conference with Texas

A. and M. College Extension Service and Experiment Station representatives. The Bureau of Plant Industry also assisted in the plan by recommending varieties of castor bean seed for various parts of the state.

Seven states expect to increase their acreage to 7,000 acres this year and Texas, as the largest agricultural state in the nation, is being asked to produce nearly one-half of the increase. Other states cooperating are Oklahoma, Arkansas, Kansas, Missouri, Tennessee and Kentucky.

Texas counties asked to cooperate in the castor bean program are San Patricio, Nueces, Jim Wells, Lubbock, Hale, Lamb, Howard, Floyd, Crosby, Wilbarger, Hardeman, Hunt, Coleman, Van Zandt, Denton, Lamar, Bell, McLennan, Coryell

'INSIDE LONDON'
 This is a particularly good time, I think, to read the article in Liberty magazine by John Gunther, and is entitled "Lessons From Inside London." Much that he tells us points the way to the spirit which we must develop here. He was back from six weeks in London when he wrote this article. It is all the more vivid because what he saw is still fresh in his mind.

He advises us to take bombings calmly, and I suggest that we underscore one sentence on that subject. "A greater enemy than bombs—I speak quite seriously—is boredom."

He suggests that we go about blackouts—real blackouts—with caution. I think all of us will agree with him, that once having learned how to put on a blackout, we should not live in an atmosphere of constant darkness at night.

We should take to heart his observations on the acceptance of Russia as an ally by the British. We should remember the following thought: "The lesson from England is nevertheless clear, striking and obvious—that sacrifice is necessary to wage war, that the need of sacrifice becomes more urgent as the war goes on. One striking phenomenon in England is what might be called equality of sacrifice."

I went to the civilian defense rally one night at Greenbelt, Md., the housing community which Mr. Rex Tugwell had the vision to promote. The meeting was in the schoolhouse, for they have there a real conception of community activity and work. Their Greenbelt Community band gave a very good concert. They had good reports on the work they have done for civilian defense. Better than anything else, I had a sense of community spirit, which is what we must develop now everywhere in our country.

—Buy Defense Bonds—
'PRIVATE LIFE'
 I had my first press conference back in the White House one day during the week and, quite obviously, the girls asked me how I liked my return to private life! It made me add up what really has been different in the past few days. I discovered: 1, I have really spent several hours reading; 2, I walked for an hour Sunday morning; 3, I spent an hour in the National Art gallery Sunday afternoon.

If you are in Washington, don't fail to go to this gallery. You can't possibly see the 90 galleries all at once, but a little at a time refreshes the spirit. Most inspiring is the fact that on a Sunday the place was crowded with men in uniform, young people, old people and children.

I took my cousin, Mrs. Joseph Alsop, to see the exhibits of drawings and paintings on defense subjects, and then we went through some of the Early Italian rooms. I found that she enjoyed the carving in wood of the Madonna kneeling before the Child, as much as I did.

We saw a few of the Early Dutch paintings also, and had a glimpse of the different courts with their display of flowers and fountains. I came away feeling a real gratitude that such a collection has been given to the nation, and that so many people seem to be enjoying it.

REFRESHING OPERA
 This is a young opera company and the orchestra and the singers are a most refreshing group. Their performance, given in English, was full of life. I discovered for the first time that Mozart's "Cosi Fan Tutte" is really a comic opera, perhaps not quite Gilbert and Sullivan, but certainly full of amusing by-play.

The audience, as well as the actors, seemed to me remarkably young. Service men and students were all about us. Many of them, of course, probably grew to love music through the youth concerts which Dr. Stowkowski gave, and which were always popular.

The young manager of the opera company, Mr. David Hocker, and all the people who work on the mechanics of this performance, are so enthusiastic, that I feel it must eventually be a real financial as well as an artistic success.

THE MIGHTY WORKS OF JESUS

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 8:23-34.
 GOLDEN TEXT—What manner of man is this, that even the winds and the sea obey him?—Matthew 8:27.

The mighty works of Jesus declared Him to be the Son of God—yes, very God Himself. Unbelieving men who would discredit the Word of God and deny the Godhood of the Son are at much labor and trouble to explain away the miracles, but without any success.

In our lesson for today we have Christ showing His divine power over the forces of nature, and over the demons of the evil spirit world. We find the disciples in the storm—

I. Fearful—but Not in Danger (vv. 23-27).
 The Son of God—who had become Son of man—showed His true humanity by that weariness which made Him sleep through a tempestuous storm such as often came upon Lake Galilee. "Like a general in time of war Jesus slept when He could."

As He calmly slept, fear of destruction laid its deadly grip upon the hearts of the disciples. For the moment they saw only the angry waves, the smallness of their craft, the hopelessness of their situation, apparently forgetting that with Christ in the boat they were in no danger, in spite of the fearfulness of their surroundings and circumstances.

Is this not clearly a lesson for us in this day so full of alarms and fears? If we think of circumstances and conditions round about us we shall be overcome with fear—and well we may, if we do not have Christ with us in the boat of life. But if He is there—if we are His in the kinship of regenerating grace—we are in no danger. Shall we not accept the tender rebuke, "Why are ye fearful, O ye of little faith?" (v. 26).

The majestic scene of Christ stilling the tempest, reminds us not only that He can control any force of nature, but also that there is no storm of heart or mind or life to which He cannot authoritatively say, "Peace, be still" (Mark 4:39). Will you trust Him with your problem?

On the other side of the lake Christ met another kind of need—and cared for it. He there delivered two men who were—

II. Demon-dominated, but Not Hopeless (vv. 28-34).
 There is only one devil, but he has many demons who do his bidding. The evidence is clear that these demons were able to enter into the personality of a human being and take control of the life. This was not insanity or a sickness of the body, but devil domination.

These two men (Mark and Luke speak only of one—perhaps the more violent of the two) were so strong and wicked because of the demon in them, that their relatives and friends had given them up as hopeless and had sent them out to live in the wilderness.

How horrible is the power of the devil in the life of any man or woman. But let us never forget that while no man can control such a situation (Mark 5:4), God is able. "With God all things are possible" (Matt. 19:26). We have not done all we can for our devil dominated friends and relatives until we have brought them to Jesus.

Notice that the demons recognized Christ as the Son of God (v. 29). They knew that He had the power to control them and that the day was to come when He would judge them.

The men were completely cured (Mark 5:15) as the demons were permitted to enter the herd of swine. Those poor beasts, apparently not content to harbor the evil spirits, cast themselves into the sea.

When the people of the land heard what had taken place they asked Jesus to leave. They evidently weighed the relative value of two men in their right mind over against a herd of swine and decided that they could not afford to have men delivered from the devil at such expense.

Unfortunately the "descendants" of those people seem to be in some of our churches today. They can afford anything in the way of luxury for themselves, but they are sure it costs too much to keep the church open—or to provide a preacher—or suitable equipment for the Lord's work. How unspeakably sad!

Perseverance
 Soldiers must break step in marching over a bridge, for the vibration caused by their marching in step would shake down the most solid structure. And so it is with the spiritual obstacle you may meet: steady tramping, the plodding doing of your duty day after day, will in time tumble it over. In any task to which God sets you perseverance is all the power you need.
