DESCRIBES FARM ADJUSTMENT PLAN

Agricultural College President Says Federal Program Seeks to Coordinate Production with Reduced Exports

The Federal farm adjustment program is partly guided by the belief that export of agricultural commodities will not soon recover its volume of five or ten years ago, in the opinion of F. D. Farrell, President Kansas Agricultural College, writing in the August issue of the American Bankers Association Journal.

"Nobody knows whether the farm adjustment program will succeed," writes Mr. Farrell. "Its sponsors describe it frankly as an experiment. It seeks to socialize agriculture at least to the extent that farmers, in what is believed to be the public interest, will restrain their production activities and that processors, distributors and consumers will contribute something toward paying farmers for exercising this restraint. The adjustment programs definitely are based on the fact that prices are determined primarily by supply and demand. They also are based on the assumption that the export business in agricultural commodities will not soon return to its volume of five or ten years ago.

Dependence on Public Support
"The plan offers wheat price insurance for 1933, 1934 and 1935, for the domestically consumed portion of the wheat crop. The insured price is to be sufficiently high to give the domestically consumed portion of the wheat crop pre-war purchasing power. If the plan is as effective as its sponsors hope it will be, the reduction in supply may influence wheat prices so that the entire wheat crop will have pre-war purchasing power.

"If the adjustment program succeeds, its launching probably will mark the end of an era of extreme individualism in agriculture in the United States," says Mr. Farrell.

"Recent fundamental changes led Secretary Wallace to say, 'What we really have to do is to change the whole psychology of the people of the United States.' This is a large order. It involves the whole program of farm adjustment as well as the larger national economic program, of which farm adjustment is a part. If the people decline to participate in the program to the extent necessary to give the experiment a fair trial, we shall never know whether farm adjustment as now proposed would have succeeded or not if it had been given a fair trial."

BANKERS PREPARE FARM FINANCE BOOK

Tells Bankers and Farmers What to Consider in Making Sound Loans

A book on "Making Farm Investments Safe" has been prepared by the Agricultural Commission of the American Bankers Association, summarizing material published by it during the past ten years. It presents a compendium of scientific facts, practice and experience in farming, with timely and helpful suggestions to serve as a reference and guide in the daily routine of banking and farming. From it practical workers in these fields can obtain an idea as to what extent and in what manner farm loans should be limited by soil erosion, weeds, plant diseases, rodents and fire hazards, etc. The book also indicates how much is added to the security of a farm loan by the farmer who keeps accounts and practices good business methods, as well as the extent to which loans are safeguarded by crop rotation, production of legumes, judicious use of commercial fertilizers, the use of quality feed and the providing of home grown feeds.

Another section sets forth the precautions that should be exercised by both the banker and farmer when negotiating loans to increase or improve dairy production, or beef, sheep, swine or poultry production, as well as what factors should be considered in the economic marketing of products and the way efficiency in production affects efficiency in marketing. Many other everyday details of farm life that have a practical financial significance are treated in the book. A particular important section deals with experience with farm leases and another with directed farm credit.

Banks Make Best Record in R. F. C. Loans Repayments.

Among the loans of $2,519,000,000 made by the Federal Government through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the highest percentage of repayments, official reports show, has been made by the banks, indicating the return of stability as the chief unsettling element of public fear has been lifted from them.

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation has authorized cash advances, fully secured by sound collateral, of 6,278 banks since it began operations in February, 1932, and made actual disbursements to them in the amount of $1,213,875,000. Of this amount, however, $245,073,000, or over 20 per cent, has been repaid by the banks. All other classes of borrowers combined have repaid about 16 per cent of their loans.

WHEELS MYSTERY OF BANK BUSINESS

Country Banker Gives Simplified Picture of How a Bank Works to Help Other People's Business

COUNTRY banker recently prepared the following simplified picture for his neighbors on just about helping them:

"The most important part of a bank goes to the reserve to meet the business to lend money. Of all the money deposited in a bank, the reserve requires that a certain percentage be kept on hand as a reserve to meet the demands of depositors. It is the business of its officers to lend the balance conservatively and safely.

"The loans of a properly managed bank are invariably made to those it believes are able to repay, and put upon condition that they be repaid at a stipulated time.

"The promise of an individual to repay a loan to a bank on a certain date is as sacredly inviolable as the promise of a bank to repay its depositors on demand, or in the case of a certificate of deposit, on the date it falls due. When it comes to be known of an individual that he 'always pays,' his credit is established and his bank is always glad to extend him needed accommodations.

"A well managed bank never capitalizes industries. That is, it does not place its loans in that form, but puts them where they are to be used for temporary requirements, and where they will be taken up at the time specified.

How a Bank Lends

"It is not the function of a bank to become a partner in industries, nor could it be legitimately done with the money of depositors. Its loans must be kept in 'liquid' form—that is, repayable at any time at stated intervals.

"A bank must use the greatest discrimination in making loans. A stranger cannot expect accommodations to be made in that form, but it is customary for his financial affairs, which is kept in the bank's records. It is a punishable offense to make a false statement for the purpose of borrowing funds.

"Naturally, in their dealing with the regular depositors of the bank, its officers become well acquainted with their characters and their resources and are thus in a position to determine how large a line of credit each one is entitled to. That is one of the great advantages of being a bank depositor.

"The man who knows how to get into debt wisely, that is, who borrows money which to make more money through legitimate enterprise, is the borrower whom the bank is looking for. By the frank interchange of opinion and the discussion of various projects, the borrower is often aided and helped by his banker.

"In order to procure a line of credit a bank three things are important:

1. A statement of the amount of assets of credit in the way of invested capital, or collateral of sufficient value to cover amount of loan, or
2. An endorser whose credit is established at the bank; and
3. Average deposits of a sufficient amount to justify the extension of the desired accommodation."

AS WILL ROGERS SEES IT

Will Rogers recently told why the banks had got into trouble. "Don't blame it all on the bankers," he said. "When we all needed money they loaned it to us—but when they needed it we couldn't pay it back."

Advertising Aids Business Revival

NEW YORK.—Aggressive concerns are expanding business by effective advertising despite depressed business conditions, declared A. W. Diller, advertising counsel, at a bankers' conference here recently.

"In 1933 a good year in which to advertise," Mr. Diller asked. "Yes, if 1932 is a good year to stay in business, to reinforce the public's confidence in you, to put more business on the books. There is new business to be had today and aggressive companies are getting it. But business will come in only if you go out for it. Advertising certainly goes out for it.

"Will people read newspaper advertisements these days? They will read anything that interests them. There are plenty of present-day arguments for business."

Advertising Mistakes

A QUESTION before many of us is what change of advertising policy, if any, should be made in view of present financial and business conditions. It is perfectly natural for us to give consideration to some degree of retrenchment, but it is dangerous to let reduction in expenditure be such as to bring about a real gap in the continuity of the advertising. It is a common mistake for some advertisers to think that they can turn advertising on and off, like water from a faucet, and expect it to become immediately effective whenever they are prepared to resume operations. Advertising does not work that way. Temporary conditions should not influence us to make too serious inroads on the program of advertising, which can be wisely conceived only on a long term basis.—Francis H. Sison, President American Bankers Association.

Texans Celebrate Day At World's Fair

With a parade and music and oratory, native Texans celebrated their day at A Century of Progress—the Chicago World's Fair, last Wednesday.

Several thousand residents of the state journeyed to the Exposition for the occasion, including the official representatives of Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson. They were met in Court of Honor by army troops from Camp Ruffin, Daves, president of the Exposition, the entire group paraded to the Court of States for the official program.

There Porter A. Whaley of Houston, secretary of the Texas World's Fair commission, presided. Mayor Edward J. Kelly of Chicago welcomed Texans to the Fair, and Col. Joe Edd Winfree, personal representative of Gov. Ferguson, delivered the principal address.

Col. Winfree went to some length to paint the merits of Texas.

"Nothing But the Best"

UNDULANT FEVER BEING REPORTED OVER TEXAS

Austin, Aug. 30.—Undulant fever or Malta Fever, a disease contracted from cattle, hogs or sheep which are infected with contagious abortion, is being reported fairly regular throughout Texas and is being similarly reported throughout the United States. This indicates that it constitutes a public health problem and also the necessity of its more general recognition.

Undulant fever is so called because of the wave-like variations in temperature. The symptoms include rise in temperature, loss of weight, and strength, chills, sweats, and joint pains. The disease has rather a low mortality rate, but important because symptoms may persist for a number of weeks and even months before normal health and strength are restored.

In Texas, the goat, horse, and cow are the usual spreaders of this disease. The germs of undulant fever enter the body through the mouth or skin.

Therefore, care should be used in handling animals likely to be infected and dairy products from the same sources should be pasteurized if used. More men acquire this disease than women and adults seem more likely to have it than children. More cases are found in the rural areas than in the cities.

The true prevention of undulant fever is based upon the detection of the disease in live stock and the elimination of infected stock from the herds. Dairy herds should be tested for Bacillus abortus. This is a task that cannot be accomplished in a short time. Pasteurization of milk will prevent the spread from this source. Frequently the recognition of undulant fever in a community causes much alarm. However, there is no cause for apprehension, as many people are not susceptible to the infection. The disease will probably never appear in Texas as an epidemic; however, to those unfortunate enough to contract it, it is a most discouraging experience both from the standpoint of the patient's well being and the family economies.

Teacher: "What do you mean by this sentence—"Beendict Arnold was a janitor?"

Jimmy: "My history says that after his exile, he spent the balance of his life in abasement."

Mildred: "Charley fell a little short what your father expected, didn't he?"

Gertrude: "Uh-huh, he figured he could kick him down stairs to the second landing anyway."

She: "If a man wants to keep young, he'll sure have to live with young people."

He: "Yes, and you want to age quickly, let him try to keep up with them."

WHAT BANKING WENT THROUGH

By JOHN H. PUELICHER
American Bankers Association

BANKING in its long career has been compelled to withstand many serious shocks, but it ran into the most perplexing entanglement of its whole history since the general breakdown of values in 1929. The commercial structure of the entire world seemed to have been shaken from its foundations and the marvel is that the banker, with everything breaking down all around him, was able to come through as he has.

General business failures, agricultural stagnation, income losses, capital losses, inability to meet debts and therefore inability of bankers to pay back depositors when loans were not paid, were the reasons, in most instances, for the bank failures.

No profession, no department of life is without its weaker elements, but had proper consideration been given to the relatively few instances in banking, had exaggerated and startling headlines been kept in true proportion, had banking not been used as a target for political self-seeking and with vote-seeking motives, had unfounded rumors not been spread the people's confidence might have been retained and financial losses, for many bank failures were caused that need not have happened.

There were factors in our banking experience which every earnest banker regrets—factors which many had worked years to eliminate, which it was fearfully recognized would aggravate any difficult days which might arise. One of the worst of these was due to political regulation which chartered many banks that should never have been chartered.

That there have been incompetence and dishonesty in banking is admitted.
That the instances that did occur were used grossly to increase fear in the public mind, we affirm. We shall continue to strive for higher attainments in our profession and strive for laws that require competence and ability in management. That we cannot legislate honesty and unselfishness into either a banker or a borrower must be conceded, but dirt which, wherever found, should be punished, it is as true in banking as elsewhere that no matter how good the law, dishonest and incompetent men can make it ineffective. Good laws are essential. We must strive for ever better ones, but their enforcement will come only as the public recognizes that it is a matter not of laws or codes alone but of the men who administer them.

The Public's Part
Our people must be brought to realize that the welfare of our country depends upon its banking system, that the strength of the banking system depends upon the public's faith and understanding and the vast majority of banks, because of faithful service rendered, even through the whole of the general breakdown, had the right to expect the trust and confidence of the people.

In every great catastrophe, no matter what its nature, no matter what its cause, someone must be crucified. The banker was this time selected. In the late 90's, political agitation started a fight against the railroads. Some railroads may have done reprehensible things, but the agitation became so general and so violent as almost to destroy one of the fundamental factors in the progress of a country. Today the same thing has been done to the banker. In spite of all that has happened, the fact remains that even most of the banks which failed are paying out infinitely better than are investments in almost anything else.

Bankers Aiding Agriculture

State associations of bankers in many agricultural states are giving time and financial support to encourage practices among their farmers that will bring about better farm results.
The major activities reported from one state to the Agricultural Commission of the American Bankers Association which is nationally active in promoting this line of cooperation are as follows:

1. Drought relief work: Local banks have played a vital part in this work, being representatives of the county committees for passing on all seed loans.
These committees met practically every day during the spring to pass on the loans in order to get as quick action as possible. A total of 914 applications were received and handled by one committee, 823 being granted.
2. Four-H Club work: Bankers helped stimulate this club work, financing many members who otherwise could not have enrolled. They also helped finance fifteen 4-H Club delegates to the state club convention.
3. Livestock feeding: The banks co-operated with the Extension Service in the state and the railroads in increasing the amount of livestock feeding. Assistance was given the feeders in securing finances for their feeding operations.
4. Crop improvement: The bankers took part in the crop standardization program of the Extension Service and encouraged the farmers to use pure seed and in many cases made loans for this purpose.

Local Physicians Report Tick Fever

Local physicians have within the past few weeks come in contact with a few scattering cases of tick fever or goat fever, one reporting some two or three cases. For this reason, the following report from the Texas State Department of Health is of unusual interest. Here is the report:

Austin, Texas.—Relapsing fever tick fever is sometimes confused with malaria, due to the similarity in the attacks of these two diseases. Relapsing fever is caused by a cork-screw shaped organism that is introduced into the blood by the bite of infected ticks, lice or bedbugs. The State Laboratory is at present doing some research work to determine with more exactness the life cycle of insects and ground animals in connection with the organism causing this disease. One hundred and six cases have been reported in Texas.

Relapsing fever is characterized by sudden onset, intense headache radiating in the front of the head and pains in the back and limbs. The fever lasts from three to five days, then slowly declines. The temperature remains normal for about a week, when the fever repeats itself. There may be three, four or more relapses. One attack protects against later attacks.

The prevention of relapsing fever is based upon sanitation of living quarters, personal and domestic cleanliness and the avoidance of tick and other insect bites. Suitable clothing, worn so as to prevent ticks from settling in underneath, is of vast importance in the prevention of tick bites. High boots, leggings and puttees that are worn outside the trouser leg are effective, but in spite of their use ticks will crawl up the outside of clothing. What they are found upon the neck they can generally be removed before biting.

The insects may be removed with the fingers, but a pair of small forceps or tweezers is better. With these instruments the tick can be seized by the head, close to the skin, and removed without danger of leaving the head imbedded in the skin. Care should be exercised against crushing the tick as the contents of the infected tick are dangerous. After removing or handling the insects the hands should be carefully washed with soap and water.

The Effect of A Sales Tax in Texas

By Julian Capers, Jr.
Austin, Texas, August 29.—What effect would the passage of a sales tax measure in Texas have upon the President's national recovery program?

Rep. Sarah Hughes, outstanding tax expert of the Texas Legislature, has made an interesting analysis of the probable effect of such legislation which she summarizes in the following language:

"The only way prosperity can return is for the people to have money to spend for goods; that is, to increase the purchasing power of domestic people. Everyone recognizes this, and it is the basis of the President's National Recovery Act—the people must be put to work, wages must be raised, purchasing power must be increased. This is the driving force behind the president's whole program. The people must have money to buy goods. If they have money, it will be spent. This will increase the demand for goods in the stores, which will in turn start the wheels in the factories.

"But a sales tax, in place of being in accord with this program would be exactly contrary to it. In place of increasing the purchasing power, it would take money out of the consumers market. Money which would otherwise go for the purchase of goods is used to pay a tax and whatever amount is raised in taxes is taken away from the purchasing power. For instance, if thirty-million dollars is raised in taxes, it means that thirty million dollars is taken from the purchase of goods. It is only by increasing the purchases that business can improve and men will be employed.

"The sales tax, on the other hand restricts business to just the extent of the tax raised. At a time when business needs to be increased and encouraged, certainly a tax would not be imposed which will take the money directly away from the people who would otherwise spend it on consumable goods. By further hampering productive business, the number of jobs needed would increase, rather than diminish."

"Solomon oppressed the people of Israel with a sales tax to buy the temple and it was the cause of the division of that kingdom under Rehoboam and Jeroboam. Rome tried it. A sales tax was one of the chief causes of the French Revolution, and was abolished by the Republic. England tried it, and had the Boston Tea Party to show for it."

Declaring that the sales tax, tried recently by several American states, has been a disappointing failure, Mrs. Hughes points to New York, where, she asserts the revenue expected has not been returned, and the Legislature has been called into extra session to increase the sales tax in an effort to bolster its failure.

"California," she says, "has passed a sales tax, and merchants and patrons alike are complaining. There is so much dissatisfaction the people are openly discussing a referendum to cause its repeal."

Mississippi, the first state to pass a sales tax, has been disappointed in the revenue received. Mrs. Hughes declared and business there has been demoralized by it.

"It is to be expected that in Texas the results would be just as disastrous," she concludes.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Bowlin and daughter, Miss Alice Joy, and James Jr., spent a few days in El Paso last week.

● Prices are marching up. But if you act in time you can still buy Goodyears at prices shown here—and most of them are lower than they were last fall... Look at this new 1933 Goodyear Pathfinder. With FULL CENTER TRACTION, 20% thicker non-skid tread, and stouter Super-twin Cord body, it turns in more miles, more blowout protection, more safety, than you could get from any tire costing four times as much a few years ago... Now is certainly the time to replace worn, dangerous tires with Pathfinders all around. No one can guarantee how long today's still low prices can last. We have your case. Be sure to get Goodyear quality tubes, too.
