GOOD-BYE, KING COTTON

(Abilene Reporter-News)

As long as the Southern cotton grower heard of competition in far away Brazil, Egypt and Russia, he could take it. The tale lacked reality and that painful certainty which comes of close contact. But when he learns that his own domestic market is being undermined by cotton produced just across the Rio Grande on Mexican soil by Mexican peon labor, financed and bessed by Americans, the thing begins to get under his skin.

One million five hundred thousand bales produced, thus will have an important bearing on the domestic market this fall, you may be sure. Already 15,000 bales have come across the border into Brownsville, where in all 35,000 bales are concentrated ready to move out to New Orleans, in Matamoros, just across the line, fourteen gins are running day and night unable to keep up with the jam.

And what burns the Texas grower right down to the ground is the fact that this cotton comes into his own back yard duty-free.

The fact that he has only himself to blame does not ease matters much. A long-continued policy of producing low-grade cotton, much of it unmarketable and unsalable, plus unwise restrictions on production, brought about this unhappy state of affairs.

Fifteen million dollars worth of cotton is imported, mainly from Egypt, every year because there is an insurmountable, in the long staple, varieties produced in this country. The Mexican production will end the imports from Egypt, but it won't help the American grower any. He is being steadily pushed out of the picture entirely.

To regain the markets will entail a long and painful policy of careful seed selection, improved market and growing methods, and rebuilding of depleted soil. But it is a process that must be endured, if the American grower hopes to save his principal money crop from complete extinction.

ARE YOU A HYPOCRITE?

The average motorist is an unscrupulous hypocrite. That's a strong characterization—but a little impersonal analysis will substantiate it.

How often have you roundly criticized some driver for an offense which you commit periodically yourself? How often have you taken comfort in the thought that accidents are caused by some reckless breed of motorists with whom you have nothing in common, thus dodging the fact that nifty pure fool's luck has saved you from a crash on a dozen occasions? Have you ever attempted to get a ticket "fixed"—even though you pay lip service to the cause of aggressive, impartial law enforcement?

It is fact that a large proportion of accidents are caused by the reckless ten per cent and the other ninety per cent periodically take chances and are responsible for many of our annual auto deaths.

Who, for example, doesn't sometimes pass a car when the stretch of empty road that can be seen is too short for safety? Who doesn't occasionally succumb to the lure of excessive speed—even though he has little or nothing to do when the destination is reached? Who doesn't periodically neglect necessary repairs to brakes, lights or steering mechanisms, on the theory that he will get around to it when more convenient?

We'll go a good way toward reducing accidents when the average driver begins asking himself such questions and returning honest answers. Accident prevention, so far as it concerns the human element, is personal, individual matter—and each individual has to rely to want to drive safely at all times before he can analyze his driving errors and correct them.

ECONOMIC HEADLIGHTS

For a time it seemed that the Russo-Japanese "incident" on the Siberian-Manchukuo border might mark the beginning of the long- feared "second World War." That could have easily happened as every European would be almost certain to invade the Ukraine if the Soviet became engaged in major hostilities on its far Eastern frontier. As a result, the truce came as a welcome surprise to war-frightened Europeans.

Thus, on the face of it, the "incident" was of little significance. All it involved was a territorial dispute, concerning whether Japan or Russia was the rightful owner of a small area of little populated and practically barren land. The Russians claimed the area, using as evidence old Tsarist maps. Japan disputed the accuracy of these maps, and hostilities followed. Claiming military phase of the month-long engagement, which claimed about five hundred of the Japanese, positioned which observers characterized as the most severe seen in the world since 1918.

If you go beyond the surface however, the incident takes on considerably more importance. It demonstrated two things of great significance. First, the USSR is ready and willing to fight, when no other solution seems present, and at the same time is eager to conclude its disputes peacefully if it can. Second, it demonstrated the great military and economic weaknesses of the great European little Empire.

As one economic commentator said, the upshot of the "incident" was a sweeping military and diplomatic defeat for Nippon. It is reported that high Japanese officers reported to their Emperor that they lacked supplies and men for waging even a brief war in the Manchukuo-Siberian territory. The Chinese aggression—which is dragging on month after month, has made a mockery of Japanese expectations of a quick and easy victory—and has drained the empire dry. As a consequence, the Japanese had the humiliating experience of submitting almost in their entirety to Soviet Foreign Commissar Litvinov's terms of settlement. The Japanese government—for the time being at least—has accepted the Russian terms of the dividing lines. Official Japanese government statements attempt to cover this up—but it is a fact, as reference to your ally, will demonstrate.

What does all this mean, so far as the possibilities of peace and war are concerned? It means that one of Germany's two allies, upon whom Hitler must depend if his expansion policies are to bear fruit, has her hands so full of trouble now that she is unwilling and unable to take on any more. It means that Russia, with her gigantic military machine and her insatiable hatred of the Nazis and Fascists, still holds the balance of power in Europe and Western Asia. It means that at least one of the great anti-Fascist powers is prepared to meet force with more force.

Looking elsewhere, there are other wars to indicate that the designs of the Fascists are far from materializing. A few months ago it seemed that the fall of the Spanish government was imminent. Franco, with his Italian troops and his German planes and munitions, was advancing almost unchecked. Today the government has rallied, has repulsed the last territory, and is again on the offensive. In spite of incredible borrowings, the spirit of the population in government territory seems to have gained rather than lost in vigor. Franco still has the upper hand, but the experts are saying that he cannot possibly win this year, and that, if the recently signed pact whereby Mussolini pledged himself to withdraw Italian troops from Spain is observed, his chances of ultimate victory will be immeasurably lessened.

Germany is rattling the saber again at Czechoslovakia—but there has been a notable stiffening of spirit in France, which leads to the view that actual German aggression of Czech territory is unlikely, and would be extremely foolhardy.

Summing up, the Fascists and the Nazis are still making the most noise—but they aren't showing results. Big question mark remains England—where the tottery Chamberlain government continues to play both ends against the middle. Recent surveys indicate that England has lost a colossal amount of prestige in this country.

SAFETY SLOGANS

Every thirteen minutes of every day in the year, one person is killed in a traffic accident in the United States. Drive carefully. 40,000 persons lost their lives in traffic accidents last year. Drive carefully.

If you are a pedestrian try and remember that the traffic light is there for your protection. Observe them. Don't walk against them and expect car drivers to look out for your safety.

The most foolhardy thing one can do these days is to walk on the left side of the highway at night with the back to the approaching traffic. The car driver doesn't have a chance. Neither do the pedestrians.

LAMESA, TEXAS

To The Voters of Lynn County:

With only a few days remaining before you vote in Second Primary, I wish to place my candidacy for Judge again before you, and to solicit your vote for my term in that important office.

I have tried to review the work that has been done during the time that I have served you, and to let you know the job has been given my full attention.

I have tried to co-operate with the commissioner's carrying out a progressive program, yet keeping in mind expense. MUST be kept down, and within the ability of people to pay. I have been censured, but you elected two years ago upon my promise to do my best; to conduct your affairs in an economical manner and that is what I tried to do.

The taxpayers have not been called upon to pay additional dime in taxes, yet a large amount of road machinery has been purchased and paid for; a heavier burden has been placed upon this county during the last two years because Texas Relief Commission, Works Progress Administration, State Highway department have shifted a vast amount of expense in the form of relief upon the county. We have taken care of all that, too, without asking for additional money.

We have started a road program throughout the county which should be finished within the next two years, and my wish that I be allowed to help finish that program—push it to the highest limit at the very lowest possible cost.

I invite your consideration of my record, and if you should see fit to honor me with a second term, I shall endeavor to continue to do everything in my power for the best interests of your county and my country.

Respectfully,

P. W. GOAD

For County Judge.

THE POPULAR PEANUT

There's no doubt about it—children love peanuts. And since their love is well placed. For peanuts rank high in the food world. They're endowed with vitamins and important minerals as iron and phosphorus. They're rich in body-building protein for another thing. Best of all, they're cheap and popular. You can buy them anywhere in shell or out of it—salted or unsalted—or concentrate that most universally popular of all spreads—Peanut Butter.

Butter, however, is by no means limited to a spread for the after-school snack. It's used in a wide variety of different foods. But, its most popular use—filling for sandwiches. I've never seen a child who doesn't love that nutty butter. I've never seen a child who doesn't love those rich, flavory Peanut Butter Cookies.

Peanut Butter Cookies
1/2 cup butter
1/2 cup granulated sugar
1/2 cup brown sugar
1 egg
1/2 cup all-purpose flour
1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. soda
3 tbsp. milk
2 cups shelled peanuts
Cream sugar and add sugar, gradually. Add egg, beat well. Sift flour, salt and soda together and add alternately with the milk. Add finely chopped peanuts. Roll out to 1/8 inch thickness and cut with round cookie cutter (3 inches in diameter). Bake 8 minutes on greased cookie sheet in a hot oven, 450° F. Amount: 5 dozen cookies.

FOR THE SAKE OF VARIETY

There are all sorts of ways that you can use these fruit and nut breads. They add interest and variety to the bread tray at any meal. They also add interest and variety to the children's school lunch boxes. They don't require a filling. Just spread them with softened butter and jam together. They are ideal, too, for party sandwiches. Moreover, they're so quickly and easily made that they are the classification of "Quick Breads" which has been bestowed upon them. You'll find the recipes to fall in on many an emergency given below—

Blue and Nut Bread
1/2 cup butter
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup dates (2 cups)
1/2 cup milk
1/2 cup molasses
1/2 cup all-purpose flour
1/2 cup soda
1/2 cup salt

Apple and Raisin Bread
1/2 cup butter
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup raisins
1/2 cup applesauce
1/2 cup all-purpose flour
1/2 cup soda
1/2 cup salt

Orange and Raisin Bread
1/2 cup butter
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup raisins
1/2 cup orange juice
1/2 cup all-purpose flour
1/2 cup soda
1/2 cup salt

Apple and Raisin Bread
1/2 cup butter
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup raisins
1/2 cup applesauce
1/2 cup all-purpose flour
1/2 cup soda
1/2 cup salt

HEALTH DEPARTMENT SEEKS PREVENTION OF FOOD POISONING

"Recent outbreaks of food poisoning show very strikingly the need for special care in handling and refrigerating any food that must be prepared some time in advance of serving," states Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer.

"Prevention of food poisoning requires clean food handled as little as possible and consumed while it is fresh. Foods prepared hours before serving and allowed to stand at warm temperatures become good culture media for bacteria. Cooked products of a perishable nature are readily subject to decomposition and must be kept well refrigerated."

"Most food poisoning is caused by infection by certain types of bacteria which grow rapidly under favorable conditions, such as high temperatures and high humidity. The infection may come from contaminated water, infected food materials and in some cases, from the hands, utensils, etc. which are rapidly spread and not necessarily associated with filthy conditions. "Picnic food is particularly susceptible to transmitting food poisoning to the members of the picnic party. Be sure you have fresh foods, clean, free from stagnant odors, slime, etc. Require all who prepare the food for use to wash their hands thoroughly before handling it. Avoid excessive hand contacts with the food. See that clean containers are used and that special care is taken in wrapping foods and in protecting them from contamination."

"If food must be prepared much in advance of use, cook thoroughly, keep it refrigerated and otherwise protected at a temperature under 50 degrees F. until you are ready to use it. Avoid serving foods that are readily infected, such as certain salads and cranberry pastries. Any foods that are not to be served immediately should be kept in a cool place, such as a refrigerator. Products in general should be kept in approved sources."

"Diseases usually contracted in ways by blame on the food served or eaten at an eating. Sometimes excessive heat and humidity are rapidly spread and not necessarily associated with filthy condi-overheating, as well as over-eating, help to bring them about. Remember this and don't indulge in too strenuous exercise when the days are hot and muggy. Don't over-indulge either, in unwise combinations of foods."

Sitting On Tracks, Man Loses Leg Under Boxcar, Dies
Denver, Colo.—D. V. Bradford and John Greag sat on a siding in the Colorado & Southern Railroad yards, waiting to catch a freight. "I wonder what would happen if a train bumped those cars," Bradford said. A switch engine did. Greag tried to pull Bradford from the tracks, but not in time. Bradford's right leg was severed. He died later in a hospital.

A THRILLING TREAT FOR EVERY WOMAN

at the

Rex Theatre

AUGUST 12-13-14

"Star in My Kitchen" was produced in one of the major motion picture studios in Hollywood and has a large cast of well-known actors and actresses. It combines in a feature-length picture the romance and glamour of Hollywood with the everyday problems of home-making. You will laugh at and with Auntie Bella, the large, jolly, colored maid, and be thrilled by the love scenes between Mike (the movie star) and Dede, the lovely heroine. And, most important of all, you will see in complete detail demonstrations of many recipes developed by several of America's leading home economists.

Priced at only 10¢ for a package of 4 double-edge blades, Probak Jr. is today's outstanding value.

In West Texas
 Dickens County Times: Spurr: The people were so well pleased with the program for the first Monday that the business men of Spurr decided to give another first Monday program Monday, September 5. The committee held a meeting Tuesday afternoon and made up the program.
 Colorado Record: The first crop of maize ever done in Mitchell county took place this week on 18 acres of land fenced under the direction of C. V. Cox, vocational agriculture teacher at Westbrook. The work was done by H. M. Moore of Spade. Moore had heard of the coaling of maize on the Plains, he said, and he decided to try it out in Mitchell county. He made several necessary adjustments in his machinery before beginning the work. Moore estimates that around 30 acres of maize can be combined in a day's time. The combine cuts the heads from the maize stalks and threshes them in the same operation. The sight of a combine working in a maize field attracted considerable attention among farmers of the county.

Stephenville Empire - Tribune:
 Unless there is some change in the system of marketing cotton the time will soon be here when something else to take the place of cotton must be found. That condition is already in existence in Erath county. Within the past few years the average yearly production has been approximately only six or seven thousand bales. Of course, that is a sizeable sum, but since it seems to be getting lower each year it appears the part of wisdom and good judgment to find something else. The same problem is facing virtually every other county in Texas.
 Ballinger Ledger: What at first appeared to be a splendid cotton crop in Runnels county has deteriorated because of boll worm damage and the failure of the large plants to make bolls. Inspections in some of the best farms of the county reveal only a few bolls on the stalks and while squares and blooms are plentiful, many of these are falling off because of insects.
 The Santa Anna News issued its second annual rodeo edition last week, 24 pages. The rodeo dates are August 25 through 27. Roscoe Times: Most unpleasant reading to people in a cotton producing country such as this was the news carried in the Tuesday morning issue of the Star-Telegram. Beneath a picture of trucks loaded with cotton grown in Mexico, blocking the streets of Matamoros awaiting their turn to cross into the United States, was the news that, despite the cotton reduction campaign being promoted at great expense by the United States government, Mexican cotton is allowed to enter Texas at the Rio Grande, proving a boon to the Mexican grower and supplying American cotton mills with the staple just when the Texas crop needs a market. There's something screwy, and we mean really something screwy, when we force, by tax penalty our farmers to cut cotton acreage year after year in an effort to boost prices—then let cotton grown in a foreign country, by cheap labor, glut our market, just our market just as the principal money crop of Texas matures.

 Jim Nod Valley Reporter, Tuscola: Rogers community, known as Old Jim Nod, will have a home coming September 3rd and 4th. Invitations have been mailed out to old-timers who have moved away in past years. A brush arbor has been erected, and a basket picnic will feature each day. Old time Methodist preachers will supply pulpit under the brush arbor. Provision has been made for visitors to camp out on the night of September 3.

HOW LONG Should A Man's LEGS BE?

... And Abraham Lincoln replied: "Just long enough to reach the ground." By the same common sense kind of reasoning, if he had been asked, "How big should a newspaper's circulation be?" he would no doubt have said, "Just big enough to reach the MARKET."

Business is retrieving its losses through the elimination of waste. The process is well under way. Nothing is exempt from the hard, sharp pencil of the cost expert.

And nothing is being more intently studied than advertising costs!

The new theory, or rather the old theory newly called back into service, assumes complete co-ordination of sales and advertising effort, looking toward the progressive consolidation of markets ONE AT A TIME. And to accomplish this each market is treated as a separate and distinct unit and receives undivided attention, independent of other markets perhaps quite as important.

This means that there will be no overlapping—no dabbling with other tasks while O'Donnell and its immediate territory happens to be the market objective.

Under this new order the advertiser must differentiate between trading area circulation and far flung outside circulation which has no bearing on the task of winning a specific market.

The PRESS concentrates over 92 per cent of its circulation inside the O'Donnell trading area. It is big enough to reach, specifically, the O'Donnell market and no bigger. Meaning that when you buy space in the PRESS you pay for what you get and you really get what you pay for. It dominates because it makes advertisers dominant in the O'Donnell Market.

TO INDUSTRY MAKING NEW CARS SPECTACULAR

etroit, Mich.—The 1938 models are scarcely more than two weeks away, and already the Christmas has begun to what the individual dealer will bring forth for a fall sales season.

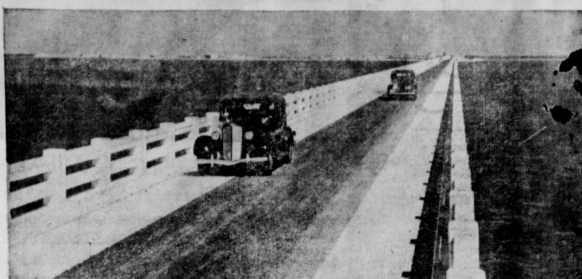

avoiding any sign of extravagance in expenditures, each company has its eye on the spotlight. And the spotlight is shining unusual. Shall it shine color, new body design, new transmission performer, brightness of interior trim, or arrangements of lamps?

1938 cars are not going to be advertised in terms of advertising terminology. They will show that both engineers and the engineers re-examined some of the problems of wind resistance, in second gear, interior, and low-slung carriage, pending previews for dealers expected, therefore, to be a series of drab sales.

There is reasonable basis for the belief that the models for next year will carry brighter hues than have been shown for several years. This effort is likely to be psychological, of course, manufacturers are seeking an edge in their products. There are, however, tats, blues, maroons, and effectiveness of well-balanced colors for interior trim, will be emphasized. Several of the companies for 1938 are a popular effect in blend-ology and instrument with the color use of along the instrument interior hardware invites a change of color.

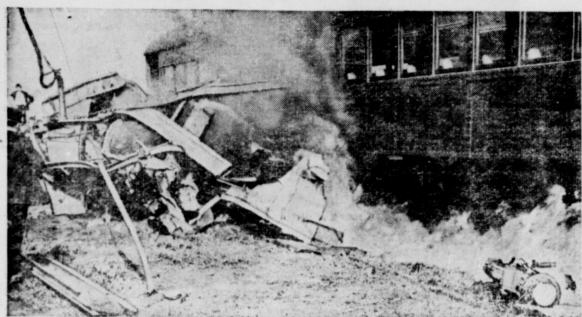

Headlamps, headlamps, headlamps, again have received attention from the engineer. The tendency of last year was the prominence of the headlight, but an integral part of the scheme of design by setting them in the fenders, will be emphasized this year. Automobile designers hold that the

$7,400,000 Ocean Bridge Open to Traffic

Florida's new overseas highway bridge which cost $7,400,000 and has a capacity of 3,000 cars a day was opened to traffic recently at Miami. This gigantic engineering feat connects many coral islands south of Miami that separate the Atlantic ocean on the east and the Gulf of Mexico on the west. The longest of the overwater spans is seven miles.

What Happens When Train Meets Truck

This unusual picture was made a few minutes after a Rock Island train had struck a trailer truck near Chicago and tore it to pieces. Picture shows flames from the exploded gas tank licking the sides of the railroad car. The driver of the truck was seriously injured.

position of the headlamps in the total effect should be consistent with their importance. They are an adjunct of night driving, a small part of a single day in a car's life, and consequently should not be over-prominent.

The designers are striving also for sleekness, and obtrusive details are being ruled out. The effective appeal that such a car as the Lincoln Zephyr has made to the public will be apparent in some of the other lines. Prospective buyers will see the sleek appearance of the great, round translated into automotive lines—slender curves, suggestive of straightway speed.

Heavy, bulging lines must be avoided if the smartness to be found in bringing the whole car close to the ground is to be strengthened. Easing exit and entrance will be obvious. The running board will show further signs of shrinking, a step in the elimination of sharp, exterior details from the automobile as a whole. Quite a few models will rely less this year on the radiator grille to furnish distinctive personality.

Hand Lever Disappearing. From the standpoint of mechanical progress, farther developments is expected in the elimination of the gear shift lever. Finger devices within easy reach of the steering wheel are being brought within the range of the low-priced buyer. The hand lever protruding from the floor appears to be definitely on the way out, and, in the next three years probably will disappear.

In the way of riding comfort, additional improvement is on the way in coil spring suspensions. These are here to stay, so, extra, pneumatic have owners been over the cars that have adopted them since 1936.

Not to be overlooked again this year will be the overdrive and the supercharger. They have done their share in adding extra economy and power to motor performance.

Opportunity Is Offered Farmers In Feeding Lambs. College Station.—The approaching season offers an opportunity to Texas farmers and ranchmen in feeding out lambs, according to W. R. Nisbet, animal husbandman of the Texas A. and M. College Extension Service, who bases his belief on U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics figures.

"The last lamb season was unprofitable for most feeders," Nisbet declared, "a year ago they were busy contracting lambs on the range but this year they are largely absent. Experience shows that the time to make profit through feeding operations is to buy feeder lambs on a depressed market."

The largest lamb crop since 1931 has been reported and range conditions have been well average throughout the 13 western states, while the volume of fat lambs through the spring and summer has been sufficient to make mention about the cheapest meat on the market, Nisbet said. Wool, which plays a big role in determining lamb prices, reached the lowest price this summer since 1933.

Though the 1938 lamb crop is large the rate of slaughter has and will continue to be above normal. The fed lamb season of 1938-39 will likely involve as many lambs as the size of the crop would indicate. The outlook for an improvement in the wool market is good, the reports are.

"The spread between the cost of feeder lambs and the market for fat lambs should be good, and feed, suitable for fattening lambs will be produced in abundance in Texas this year," the animal husbandman pointed out. "Alfalfa hay and grain, such as milo or corn, is the standard lamb fattening ration. High quality silage plus grain and cottonseed meal can be marketed successfully through lambs," he said. "Fattening a lamb means the sale of approximately 300 pounds of feed. Practical suggestions on all phases of lamb feeding can be obtained from county agricultural agents."

CAMPAIGN AFTERMATH The extraordinary campaign waged by W. Lee O'Daniel and its outstanding success with the voters, has upset some traditional belief of candidates and campaign managers generally. The fact that O'Daniel, rated as one of the nation's premier radio personalities, used the medium extensively, has influenced heavy purchases of radio time in both primaries by virtually all candidates. Newspaper advertising has suffered considerable loss of prestige, as a result. But as one advertising expert pointed out, they overlooked the fact that it was the continuity of advertising effort kept up for eight years by O'Daniel before he got into the Governor's race, that won success for him, instead of the medium he used—"It's too hard to maintain," remarked the negro cook employed by one candidate's wife, when she read the election returns and found her employer in a runoff race. "I was hopin' to beas man would win, but he's done got himself in one of these 'run-arounds'—New State Senator from Fort Worth, to occupy the seat formerly held by Frank Rawlings, the upper body's ablest parliamentarian will be Jesse Martin, whose runoff opponent, Rep. Louise Smith, withdrew Martin is a former assistant Federal district attorney—It is Lindsey, of Beaumont, door-keeper of the House of Representatives has announced he will be a candidate for post of chief clerk of the new Legislature, and Mrs. Louise Snow Phinney, of Dallas, chief clerk for the past 12 years, has also announced she will seek re-election, denying an earlier report that she would not run again.

Grass Makes An Excellent Silage

College Station.—Excellent silage can be made from the legumes and grasses, and the trench silo offers a fine "reservoir" as a means of saving these crops when the weather is unfavorable for curing, according to E. J. Eudaly, chairman of the Texas A. & M. College Extension Service.

"Alfalfa has been stored in silos at the Luling Foundation farm for years, and the practice has been adopted by farmers in various parts of the State. Experimental work by the U. S. Bureau of Dairy Industry proved the worth of this system. Eudaly said "Not only alfalfa, but soybeans, cowpeas, the small grains, and sudan, Johnson, and rhodes grass, have been successfully stored as silage."

The odor can be prevented and lessened by adding molasses to induce fermentation. If the moisture content of the crop is reduced by allowing it to wilt from 2 to 4 hours on good drying days and longer on cloudy days, less molasses is necessary. Information as to the amount of molasses to use can be obtained from county agricultural agents.

Thorough packing as the silo is filled is necessary. This is much more important with hay crops than with corn or sorghum, Eudaly pointed out. Fine chopping, to one-fourth inch if possible, will make packing easier, but the dairyman reported seeing fine alfalfa silage in the Lower Rio Grande Valley and excellent bermud grass silage in East Texas that had not been chopped.

Increase In List Of Premiums At Lubbock Fair Made. Lubbock, August 24.—Announcement this week by the directors of the Panhandle South Plains Fair, which begins September 26 and continues through October 1, stated that there has been an increase in premiums for this year's Fair in excess of $1,000.00. Premiums in the Hereford Division have been raised approximately $400.00; in the Dual Purpose Cattle Division—$300.00; in the two departments of the Swine Division, $100.00; and additional increases in the Boy Scouts, Agriculture, and Women's Departments. In general, there have been several new divisions added to the various departments. This year's catalog, it was stated, will be in the mail during the coming week. A great truth, long known to gridiron scribes, dawned gradually on the Japanese brother, viz.: That first downs don't count in a final score. —Senator Soaper, NANA.
