While it might appear an oversimplification of the problem, many might raise the question that if Acheson is relying on Russia's U. N. pledge to keep the peace, why should there be any official U. S. concern over the entire Russian relations puzzle?

The fact there is grave concern over the puzzle indicates Mr. Acheson may have been talking when he should have been thinking.

NORWAY: Standing Pat

Norway was drawing no cards. Standing pat, she would play the

IN OTHER WORDS, the Norwegians wanted nothing but friendship with the Soviets, but if it were all the same, they would rather depend upon security in regional pacts such as the proposed north Atlantic alliance, than upon an alignment with the Soviet union. The position stated by Norway was in answer to a Soviet note asking the nation's clarification of its view on the proposed north Atlantic setup.

Norway said the United Nations had failed to provide the world with peace and security, and her own people's "serious concern" for their liberty had convinced the government that it was necessary to seek increased security through regional cooperation in the defense field.

BUT THE NORWEGIAN government assured the Russians that it would never agree to foreign bases on its soil "as long as Norway is not attacked or the subject of threats of attack." And the government pledged itself to support a policy of non-aggression.

The decision could be interpreted no other way than as a definite for only the fraction of time when setback for Soviet expansion-by-intimidation policies. Norway is a small country and vulnerable to Soviet attack. Nevertheless, it has new way of slowing the action.

MORE CLOTHES: British Ration Eased

Great Britain has ended eight years of clothes rationing-practically, that is. Effective now, any Briton with the money may go into any store and buy a suit of clothes, his wife a dress. And for the first time since January 1, 1940, he won't have to give 29 clothing coupons for the suit, 18 for his wife's dress, coupons, however, will still be required for many articles of clothing.

PENSION BILL:

Vets Must Wait

Little possibility was seen by congressional leaders for enactment of a veterans' pension bill during the current session.

The administration is openly opposed to any such measure, being quoted as saying a program already offered "could not be considered in accord with the program of the

It is estimated this would cost almost two billion dollars the first year, with later outlavs reaching multi-billion dollar levels.

Under this measure, sponsored by Mississippi's Rankin, a veteran need only to have served 90 days in either world war to qualify for a pension. The extra disability pay would range from $20 to $120 a month, with no proviso that the disability must have been incurred in

Veterans administrator Cary R. Grav. Jr., said that while he was neither opposing nor favoring the legislation in his capacity as veterans' administrator, its magnitude must be weighed closely now to prevent unwarranted financial outlays in the future. He pointed out the cost burden might be so great as to endanger the entire veterancompensation program.

PRESIDENT TRUMAN was on record with this statement: necessity for new or extended benefor veterans without service disabilities should be judged not solely from the standpoint of service in our armed forces, but in the light of existing social welfare programs available to all veterans and non-veterans alike.

Mr. Truman also said in his budget message: "The program of vetcrans' services and benefits should reflect the fundamental fact that our primary long-run obligation is to dependents of veterans deceased from service causes, and to veterans disabled in service. At the same time, we should preserve and stress our basic objective of assisting the recipitents of these penef ts to be as nearly as e-sible selfreliant and self-supporting members of our society."

All of which indicates that veterans of both world wars expecting pensions and disability allowances had best be prepared to wait

Washington Digest

Army, Navy, Marines Join In Big Caribbean Mansuver

By BAUKHAGE

News Analyst and Commentator. WASHINGTON .- About the time these lines are in print, 35,000 American soldiers, sailors, fliers and marines and a hundred ships will be shoving off for the greatest peacetime maneuvers in our history. Providence permitting your correspondent will be on

A strange and sinister "aggressive force" which will have seized and fortified the island of Vieques in the Caribbean will be bombarded by sea and air, attacked and (we trust) captured by a joint marine corps and army expeditionary force landed by navy ships and planes which have fought their way past enemy planes, and submarines.

The purpose of this undertaking is officially described as "to advance and insure combat readiness for Fleet Marine Force Atlantic units, and to provide amphibious training for Army and Marine Corps units."

Admiral W. H. P. Blandy, commander-in-cheief of the Atlantic fleet will be in over-all com-mand. Lieut. Gen. Keller E. Rockey, BAUKHAGE USMC, will command the joint marine corps and army expeditionary troops which will be composed of the second marine division and the 65th infantry, Caribbean command.

Many of these men are yeterans of Pacific landings and the North African operations, but, the experts tell me, there are many things to be learned for great progress has been made in amphibious training since the war.

This is the first operation of its kind since the merger of the armed services has been in effect, and nothing approaching it in size has ever been attempted in peacetime.

Of course the marine corps was virtually born amphibious and for the past 28 years has perfected the methods which were used in the late war. Now they serve as the instructors in this particular field of activity for the other branches of the service.

Maneuvers which get comparative'y little notice in the press are largely regarded by laymen as a spectacle or as a series of highly technical military problems which are too complicated to follow. As a matter of fact, the actual maneuvers are a small part of the operation compared to the planning which dates back to the days when Caesar took his famous tenth legion from small boats onto the soil of ancient Britain, or before.

Perhaps the earliest important invasion from the sea in modern times was one of the most unsuccessful - - - the ill-fated Gallipoli battle when the British troops were almost annihilated in their first attempt to invade Turkey in World

Intensive study of this debacle was made in this country, and the marines had made great strides long before World War II made such training necessary. Very few peop'e realized this. In fact, many people probably think that the Japs had a special patent on amphibious tactics.

As one officer expressed it to me. there is nothing secret about this niethod of fighting. It is simply a question of "know-how." A vast conglomeration of minute detail which is not used at all in ordinary land fighting. For example, an infantryman takes for granted that he and his rifle are more or less one piece. But the first time he has to go over the side of a ship and into a small craft, he suddenly finds he is faced with a major problem in assuring not only his own arrival on the beach but, what is equally important, the simultaneous arriva. or nis gun. If you have ever tried to crawl down a net with no equipment whatever, you realize it requires all the hands you have.

But long before D-day, thousands of details have been worked out hundreds of miles from the scene of action. As one officer put it, the stack of charts that have to be drawn are a mile high. Beans, bullets, shoelaces-all are part of the picture quite as much as radar and range-finders.

The little island of Viegues will be pounded with tons of shells, hauled, mauled, captured, and deserted, and then go back to a subtropical siesta. But what happens there on and before March 2 and 3, 1949, may be of vital importance a decade hence.

A New Truman Going to Work

As the Ides of March approach. the new administration swings into its stride with a good deal of honeymoon fervor still in the air. From the day of the first White House press and radio conference after the inauguration, it was clear that we had a new President.

Washington reporters had become used to several Harry Trumans. There was the very grave called in 1945 to a job which he rent.

dian't want and never expected to have with the shadow of tragedy over him. A man who was at first so anxious to reassure the country that there would be no break in the continuity of leadership that he sometimes rushed in where a more experienced man might have feared to tread. There were many "off-thecuff" remarks with some disastrous results. Then came a period when he leaned over backward with caution; after that, the period when his own party seemed to be falling apart and it was no secret that the man in the White House was disappointed and unhappy.

Then came a gradual change which even many of his intimates did not realize, a change that gradually culminated in the combative confidence which most of his supporters failed to share. Washington watched his election campaign with considerable admiration for his fighting spirit but without being convinced that even he, himself actually had the confidence he dis-

Then came the election upset and two months later, the tremendous turnout at the inauguration. There was evidence for those who could recognize it, in the manner of delivery of his inauguration speech. that here was still another Truman. At that first press and radio conference, it was plain enough. At last he was his own man. He felt he had earned his office. He probably had felt all along that he was fully competent to carry on its responsibilities. But now something had been added: a controlled selfassurance.

I think Mr. Truman was sincere when he told a luncheon meeting of the Democratic party's finance committee that there were a million men in the United States who would make a better President, but it was his job and he would earry it He was simply saying that he realized there were men in the country with greater ability than be had. He didn't say, nor did he think, that he didn't have enough ability. If events prove that he hasn't, he probably will be the first to admit it.

That is my own interpretation and is offered for what it is worth, It is an expression based not on's on what Harry Truman has said and done, but largely on the way he has said and done it. If he continues to handle himself in the way he has since the election, the men in government and out, in his own party and out of it, will find him a lot easier to deal with. Likewise, he is going to be proportionately more successful with those with whom he has to deal.

Press Conferences

Have Changed, Tco At a recent White House news conference, an old timer came up to me and remarked that the last few times he had attended these gatherings, all of which had been especially well attended (well over 100 reporters) he couldn't helm thinking back to the days of Taft when, as he put it, Robert Small of the Associated Press and perhaps one or two others who used to be sneaked into the back door of the White House for con'idential talks with the President, but no other newsmen or women had any access whatever to the Chief Executive. I was not in Washington then but later I came to know Small very well and I know he was known as 'the fair haired boy" of the Taft administration. It was the first time I had ever heard the expressicn. Small was a brilliant newsman and Taft was very fond of I well recall the ex-President (Taft was then chief justice) comforting Small's father at Bob's funeral. The former White House reporter was comparatively young when he died.

I do not know how the press corns felt about Small's infimate relationship with the White House-or the other fortunate ones who were given these exclusive privileges but I doubt if it occurred to anyone to suggest the possibility of having regular open press conferences. Teddy Rocsevelt, however, did call in press association men on occasion.

And yet such a situation (no regplar conference) seems incredible today. No President would dare refuse to see newsfolk and stand up to questions which sometimes and not very certain man who was are more impertinent than perli-

A is for Andy, simian star of the Bronx 200, who made his film debut recently when the 200 decided to produce a motion picture based on an "animal alphabet." Since then, with all the precocity of a human being five times his age, Andy has become victim of the grand delusion that he is the favorite firstborn of Thespis herself.

In the zoo's original casting of the film, the chimp was chosen to represent one letter-O for orangutan. But that didn't stop the little genius from ranging uninhibitedly through the whole alphabet, starting with A for Andy, naturally.

Although Andy was mostly cooperative, te staged tempera mental flare-ups, just like any other starlet (left). Then it would take all the coaxing of his keeper, Mickey Quinn, plus a little something in the way of a bribe to get him back to work. One of Andy's assignments was to pose for the zoo staff artist. This he did

That glow in Andy's eyes is from vest-busting pride. Imagine! A simian starlet with his name in colored blocks. It isn't on Broadway yet, of course, but that's only a short leap for an orang-utan. Andy probably is thinking that if they only would let him out of the cage and give him the name of a good agent he'd make it in no time.

Woman's World

Frost Windows, Add Color To Give Bathroom Decoration

By Ertta Haley

"MY HOUSE is nicely furnished, but I have no idea what I can do to the bathroom to make it a decorative asset," wails a homemaker who is seriously concerned with keepin; an attractive home. Bathrooms are neglected decorativaly in many homes for the same reason as this woman gave. People simply don't know the possibilities for making them as attractive to look at as a bedroom, kitchen or

While time and thought has been spent on other rooms, the baths have been ignored exept to see that they had towels, soap and running water. After a time, they become an eyesore because the rest of the house has been furnished tastefully. What can be done?

First of all, consider the bathoom as a possible decorative unit. If it adjoins a bedroom, possibly it can be carried out with a color scheme modified after the bedroom. If it's dowrstairs, you may want to use some of the colors in the other rooms so it's part and parcel of the

It's wise, also, to consider what you have in the way of towels and wash cloths. If your taste runs the gamut of colors, it's best to keep the bathroom white so that you may use any set of towels in it that you happen to have.

If your towel colors run to rose, green, yellow and blue as well as white, the best choice would be

Let windows sparkle . . . green as any of these colors can be combined with it.

Paint or Tile? You Decide.

A bathroom which uses enamel paint on its walls is easy to clean as well as to repaint. It can be washed often, in fact as often as necessary without harming a good quality paint. The wall color can be changed frequently.

If you have a tile bathroom, it will look more luxurious and modern but you'll have to stick to the original color once it's there. If, of course, you have white tile, then you may use a wide range of colors

If you are modernizing your home, you may want to have some simulated tile put on the lower half of the walls, or perhaps even the whole wall. This works out well and gives a nice effect.

Tile is easy to keep clean. The best way to keep it sparkling is to run the shower or hot water until the room is full of steam. Then go over the walls with a dry cloth. As soon as the cloth becomes soiled, take a clean one or rinse out the one which you are using.

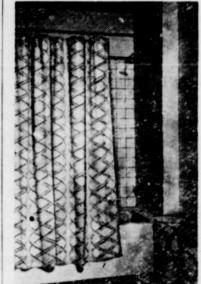

Be Smart!

Many clever ideas feature Victorian whimsies in colorful costume jewelry, such as the pearls in the gilded cage sketched here. They belong to the pendant and necklace school which is just about tops in popularity. Among the other intriguing ideas is the return of the locket. The heart-shaped locket promises to be one of the most often used, with the theme repeated in bracelets as well.

A THE RESIDENCE OF THE PROPERTY AND ASSESSMENT OF THE PARTY OF THE PAR

Matched Ensemble

Ribbons of different colors are entwined to make the spiral plaid in a new vinyl film shower curtain pattern. Drapes may also be had in the same pattern. The matching tole hamper and wastebasket are made to go with the curtain and drape set. They are sturdily constructed to withstand wear and are both alcohol-proof and flame-proof.

The advantage to having a dry clean cloth is that it leaves the tile in a nice glossy condition, much nicer than if you had gone over the walls with a scrub brush and soap.

To do the best cleaning on the bathroom, remove everything movable before cleaning. This will give you more room in which to do the best work. Wash the shower curtains as well as the regular curtains weekly as you do the cleaning. Select Furnishings Tastefully

Since the bath is usually a small room, it's wise to furnish it carefully so there is little clutter in it. All the colors should harmonize well to give a unity of impression.

Get everything that is not a part of the furniture, out of the way completely so there is an absence of clutter. You can put creams, jars and bottles in a cabinet or arrange them attractively on the new glass shelves that are becoming so popu-

Shower curtains and drapes look best when they are mate fact, now there are even hampers made to match the shower and curtain sets. Chip-resistant laquer is used on the background of the hamper and the hand-painted designs are sealed with a coat of plastic paint. This makes it easy to wipe smudges with a damp cloth.

Hampers and wastebaskets will stand up under wear best if they have heavy steel bases. Since they are moved around a lot, they must be durable. The more expensive shower and curtain sets are really economical in the long run. The best ones are made of natural rubber and have a dull finish that looks beautiful and wears well. Other sets in plastic materials, such as opaque vinyl film, are very attractive and come in an attractive array of designs and colors. Be sure to choose shower curtains long enough so there will be little water escaping when they're in use. The standard sizes of six by six feet are sufficient for most bathrooms.

Good Decorating Hints Given

For those of you who want to 'frost' bathroom windows, there are two easy ways. One method is to mix some epsom salts with a little varnish and apply to the glass. Another way is to cover the glass with a sheet of tissue paper and apply spar varnish which has been thinned with 1/4 turpentine. This mixture will make the paper adhere to the window.

If fixtures have become dull and rusted-looking, rub them thoroughly with steel wool and then apply a metal polish to them and rub until they shine. Keep soft paper around to wipe the fixtures dry to prevent them from rusting.

Peacock blue with white is a good color combination to use for a bathroom if you're in a warm climate. It's cool looking, and you may use white, blue, yellow or rose or maroon towels and accessories with this combination.

A yellow bathroom is very cheerful and warm for cooler climates. With this you may use blue, green, black or black and white towels, etc.

If you want to use a combination of colors in the bathroom, have the background gray. Gray tile with touches of white at the borders is very effective. With this you may use a combination of flamingo, yellow, dark green and dark gray.

A large bathroom is best held together with a large, shaggy rug in the same color that predominates the bathroom

Improvement of Land Cuts Production Cost Margin Between Return, Expenses Is Narrowing

Higher production costs now biting deeper into farm profits emphasize the need for farmers to get their land in shape to produce more bushels at lower unit costs per acre, the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee points out.

The margin between what a farmer gets for his crops and what it costs him to produce them is narrowing steadily. Commodities

Wire Recorder Check

When a pure-bred white leghorn climbs into a nest on the Heisdorf and Nelson breeding farm at Kirkland, Wash., it is, in its own way, making poultry history.

Unknown to the approximately 10,000 fowls on the farm, the most modern wire recorders candidly keep track of their every deed. As far as the four partners in the business know, it is the first time so many chickens have become subjects of a wire recorder.

Use of the recorder has resulted in huge savings of time and money, and records have never been so

Bert Nelson, partner in Kirkland, Washington's famous Heisdorf and Nelson chicken breeding farm, reads the number on the leg band on a chicken and speaks it into the microphone of a wire accurate, according to Art Heisdorf, who with his wife, Mary, and the Nelson brothers, Bert and Clifford, operate the farm.

It was Art's brainchild to use the recorder in "running traps"checking up on the hens to find out which ones are laying and which ones are "lying."

It's done this way: Four days a week the trap is set. When the hen crawls in a nest a trap door closes behind her. She can't get out until one of the partners lets her out. Each hen then is given a number which is on a metal tab placed around her leg. When anyone "runs the traps," he wears a small microphone, presses the small mike button and states the number of the bird's tag, and then gives the number of eggs laid and any other pertinent information about the

New Farm Bath Unit Comes All 'Packaged' Setup May Be Attached To Existing Dwelling

An Indiana manufacturing firm has announced the introduction of a novel, factory-built bathroom to be known as Ad-a-Bath. Representing an entirely new approach to home modernization, the bath is constructed in one complete "package" for attachment to existing dwellings.

Built as a self-contained unit, the bath utilizes conventional materials and equipments, and includes all necessary fixtures and fittings for immediate installation and immediate use. It is shipped fully equipped for addition to a farm, lake cottage or suburban home. Since it is added to the exterior, there is no sacrifice of space or change of interior arrangement of the house to which it is attached.

The setup is complete in every respect with tub, lavatory stool and tank, electric heater and built-in medicine and linen cabinets. It is of frame construction with plywood interior. Walls and floors are heavily insulated and the floor is linoleum covered.

The interior, according to the manufacturer, has been designed for maximum comfort, utility and attractiveness. Such items as towel bar, soap dish, tub grab bar, tooth brush and tumbler holder are included.

Since the unit qualifies for FHA financing, a home owner is required only to make a 10 per cent down payment, paying the balance in convenient monthly installments through his local bank.

There are several conditions which can affect the fertility of a breeding poultry flock. Experts say it is a good plan to wait for a week or 10 days after males have been put with the flock before starting to save eggs that are to be used for hatching.

Small Circus Wagon Will Please Children

HERE is a gift idea that appeals to everyone. It's a circus wagon plant holder that makes a delightful center piece for the table. Ivy and other small potted plants thrive in this gaily decorated circus wagon. If there is a child in the family, forget its use as a center piece and make several wagons to form a circus. Youngsters love to cage their wild animals and move them about.

The full size pattern offered betow offers a quick and easy method of building. No special tools or skill are required. User merely traces the pattern on the wood pattern specifies, saws and assembles. To insure painting with a professional touch, full size decorating outlines are provided. These are traced on the wood and painted the colors pattern suggests. Pattern specifies using small pieces of wood that can be purchased at any lumber yard.

Send 25c for Circus Wagon Pattern No. 46 to Easi-Bild Pattern Company Dept. W. Pleasantville, N. Y.

of Harmful Body Waste
Your kidneys are constantly filterleg waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent beadache, attacks of dizziness,
getting up nights, swelling, puffiness
under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.
Other signs of kidney or biadder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or

Eleven Immortals

Lesson for February 20, 1949

JESUS BELIEVED in prayer, but he did not usually spend all night at it. When he did, we may be sure he had something of the greatest importance on his mind. One of these occasions was the night before he selected the twelve men he called Apostles. He had thousands of disciples, crowds followed him wherever he went. But it was important to have a few with whom he Dr. Foreman could live as an intimate friend. So from the immense number of followers, Jesus selected twelve closest friends. Before that fateful morning no one outside their villages had ever heard of them. But now their names are known-and eleven of them are honored-around the world.

Jesus Multiplies Himself

GOOD executive, Jesus multi-A plied his own personality. A recent book has shown how Harry Hopkins during World War II lived in the White House as Roosevelt's personal companion, having given up his own ambitions and living only to carry out the ideas of his chief. Without Roosevelt, Hopkins would have been little more than an inferior politician; and without Hopkins, many of Roosevelt's plans could not have been carried out. He enabled the president to be in two places at once. So it was with Jesus as Mark tells us. Jesus wanted those twelve to be with him, and then to send them out.

He wanted these friends to know him as the crowds, and his enemies, never could know him. He wanted these men to absorb his ideas and ideals.

By continual contact, day by day and month by month, they would inevitably become more like him. Because of that, he could (and later did) send them out to do his work in places he could not reach. The word Jesus used for them was not his own invention; "apostle" was the word used all over the civilized world in those days for an ambassador, a personal representative of royalty. All Christians are in the "apostolic succession." If a Christian can truly say, "I live, yet not I, but Christ liveth in me," then he is, as these men were, Christ's personal representative.

Raw Material

THE ASTONISHING thing about Jesus' choice of these twelve is his faith in them. Of course they had faith in him-who would not? But who would have faith in them? There was not a single "outstanding" man in the lot. Not one had what we would call a college education, not a man of them had held public office or was rich or famous for anything at all. The officers of any modern church might shake their heads over them.

There was Peter, an ordinary fisherman, much given to profanity: there was Matthew, a crooked business man if ever there was one. for no publican could be honest and keep from starving; there was Philip, as stupid a man as ever asked a foolish question; there were James and John, loud-mouthed (Jesus nicknamed them the Thunder Boys-"Sons of Thunder"). greedy fellows who could not be satisfied till they had elbowed their way ahead of everybody else; there was Thomas the born pessimist, the defeatist . . . What could have got into Jesus' mind to select such men?

-And Judas Iscariot

THE SECRET of Jesus' choice was this: He selected his men not for what they were or had been, but for what they could become, filled with his spirit, transformed by his friendship. It is so today, as always, The Kingdom of God needs men and women, but the raw human material found in or out of the churches is too shabby and weak to build anything like the kingdom of God. "Twelve Immortals"-? Nay, but one is the immortal betrayer and suicide. Why? The reason was in Judas, not in Jesus.

The truth is that Christ will not force himself on any one, not even on an Apostle. Christ needs men, now, as he needed men then, to carry on his work in this world.

But he wants volunteers, never forced labor. The Christ of Glory can be served by the humble; but the free Christ can be served only by free men with open hearts. Judas may keep his heart shut if he will; Christ never forces his way into our apartment, we purchased from the previous tenant the inlaid linoleum on the kitchen floor. The quality is excellent, but the color is a dirty gray-green in a marbleized pattern. Is there any product which will stain or dye the linoleum (not paint) so that we can get a deep blue tone and still retain the marbleized effect?"

SEWING CIRCLE PATTERN DEPT. 530 South Wells St. Chicago 7, Ill. FIRST AID to the AILING HOUSE by Roger C. Whitman QUESTION: "When we moved

ANSWER: I do not know of any stain or dye for that purpose. But you may be able to get the effect that you want by stippling in "spatter-dash" finish. For the stippling, first cut a large sponge in half. Apply an oil floor paint of the background color that you wish on the floor. When this has dried, paint a section of clean board with a second color that you will use for stippling, press the flat, cut side of the sponge on this fresh paint, and then press this on the linoleum. The pattern of the cut sponge thus will be transferred to the floor. For a spatter-dash effect, use a stick and a brush with a rather long bristle. Dip the brush into the paint and wipe off the excess. Strike the brush ferrule against the stick so that the paint will come off in drops on the floor. (The floor should already be painted with the background color.) Try these methods first on pieces of boards to get the knack. See that the linoleum is absolutely clean and dry before you start to paint, no grease or wax.
