

Sgt. Blocker Writes . . .

Korea, Jan. 3rd. Dearest Mom and Dad, Today is just another day along the front lines. Very routine in every way. It's warmer today. So we are all enjoying and absorbing a little sunshine.

Had quite a bit of excitement last nite. 8 chinks infiltrated thru Co. G's lines over to our left about a quarter mile. They got behind us and harassed us most of the nite. Barked like dogs, growled like cats. . . caused quite a bit of excitement. But . . . they will never see China again. I guess I smell as badly as I ever did in my life. What water we have is to drink. A five gallon can for 65 men each day. We melt snow and shave, once in awhile.

Platoon Wins Award As a result of our skirmish last Sunday my platoon has been awarded the Combat Infantryman's Badge. We were the first of the 45th Division men to make contact with the enemy and we are the only ones to hold the C. I. B. in the division. I'd trade mine any time on a minute's notice for a discharge. I have another change . . . from Sgt. to First Class Sgt.

It will probably be some months before I make Master Sgt. That doesn't mean much to me anyway. I have been listening intensely to the least rumors of peace in Korea. If they would offer me just one chance to help straighten this thing out at Pan Munjan, I believe I could get the job done. They just don't want peace as much as I do.

I got a letter and fruit cake today from Levin and Sara; surely enjoyed both of them. Sara says Levin and Uncle Jake have several hunting and fishing trips cooked up. I do not have the slightest idea where Bob Clark could be along the front. According to his address he must be in a postal unit some where. I figure he has been sent back to Pusan or Sauei.

Well, this is about all my time and paper. Don't worry about me; I'll be home safe and sound one of these days. May God bless you both. Love, Dan.

Moore Adds Strength To Eagles

The Eagle basketball team was strengthened considerably when Derry Moore, last year's starter, moved back here from Slaton during the holidays. He will not be eligible for the varsity before early February, however. Friday at Stanton the Eagles opened conference play. Having much the same team from last year, Coach Robertson boys have looked pretty good at times during early season games but must show much improvement to be a contender for district honors. It should be a fight between the powerful Sundown team and Denver City for the flag with O'Donnell and Whiteface battling for 3rd place.

RED HOWARD IS PUMP HEAD FOR STANDARD OIL HERE

Rochell Howard, water superintendent here for past 7 years, has resigned to be pump gauger for the Standard Oil Smith field just west of town. Red has been a faithful and highly efficient city employee and one of our more popular young men. John Earles, a council member, said that as of Tuesday noon, no superintendent had been appointed but that the job would probably go to Bert Fritz who has been working for the city for the past few months.

Car Mishap Here

Deputy Sheriff Loyd Bolin and Judge Brunette reported a very slow docket for the first days of this month with only nine arrests for being drunk and reckless driving.

Saturday nite there was a minor car mishap at the South Y with a car occupied by three latins and a pickup from Clayton ranch occupied by two men being in the mishap. The three latins were treated briefly at a Lamesa hospital for minor injuries.

A 25 year old man from here on parole from the state pen since Dec. 22nd is held in Lamesa on suspicion of attempted robbery of a Lamesa filling station there Sunday. He was said to have scooped up some cash and ran being overtaken by a station attendant. He broke loose and was arrested 20 minutes later.

Chevrolet's Smart New 'Face'

Marked changes from previous years give the 1952 Chevrolets a freshness that assures their continued popularity in the low-price automotive field. Apparent in this front-end view is the redesigned grille which features five distinctive "air foil" fins mounted on the center bar. Parking lamps have been broadened to eliminate the former slotted grillework and the hood emblem carries the name, Chevrolet.

Household Hints

Save Steps

A towel rack, nailed to the wide end of your ironing board or near it, will save you steps when you're ironing small pieces.

Ironing Pockets

Fancy, gathered pockets, like those on little girls' party dresses, are a cinch to iron if you stuff them with soft tissue paper.

Frying Eggplant

To keep eggplant from absorbing too much grease while frying, peel, slice into one-half inch wedges, and soak in salted ice water.

Keep Scissors Handy

Always keep a pair of scissors handy in your kitchen. Good for trimming bread for sandwiches, cutting dates, nuts, lettuce, etc.

GOOD LUCK

Lake Superior
Herring Brings
New Prosperity

BAYFIELD, Wis.—Bayfield's long period of general bad luck has come to an end bringing smiles and ready cash to the community's 1,200 population.

A silvery horde of Lake Superior herring invaded the waters among and around the Apostle islands to spawn and Bayfield residents harvested one of the biggest herring runs in history.

Last year's herring run was far below normal and the trout and whitefish harvest was a relatively small. Extremely wet weather damaged the berry, apple and bean crops. Even the pulpwood business suffered because the rains made the woods too wet for work. And finally, the business district was hit by one of the flash floods that have done considerable damage in recent years.

600 Employed

So this year's herring run was a cheering event for the whole community. Between 50 and 60 boats were engaged in the harvest. Each boat had a crew of from three to eight. To pick the herring out of the gill nets, each boat required a crew of "chokers" on shore. Each crew was about the same size as that on the boat.

In addition, there were about 300 workers dressing, salting and freezing the fish and doing other work on the docks. This made a total of more than 600 employed directly in the fishing at Bayfield.

Although machines have been used in dressing herring, many hand dressers are still employed in Bayfield. Women and high school girls and boys also were employed to pick herring from the nets and in the salting and freezing operations.

Mink Food

Most of the fish were salted or frozen for human consumption, while some was smoked and others shipped fresh to markets during the season. In recent years, a growing percentage of the harvest has been sold "round" or undressed to fur farms for mink food.

About 65 per cent of the harvest was salted and 35 per cent went for animal food this year. The market was termed good, with demand greater than the supply. Prices were about 15 per cent higher than last year and wages about 12 per cent higher, village workers reported.

Most of the salted herring was shipped to the south and southeastern part of the county where they are a favorite food for workers, especially miners.

Over 40,000 Letters Received at Santa Claus

SANTA CLAUS, Ind.—The town of Santa Claus, famous for its name, received more than 40,000 letters this year.

A Tennessee mountain boy wrote and asked Santa to send his father an ax and his mother a bucksaw so they could cut wood for their cabin stove.

"Dear Santa," the boy wrote. "We are nearly out of firewood for our stove. Would you please send daddy a sharp ax and please send mom a bucksaw."

The letter was passed on to the town's American Legion post by the post office. It was answered, as are all the letters that have a return address.

One of the most touching came from a mother of four youngsters living behind the iron curtain in Budapest, Hungary. She wrote in hopes that somehow Santa might visit her children.

"We are not allowed to have Santa Claus in Budapest," she wrote. "We would like to be remembered in some way but doubt if it can be done."

"Perhaps you will not even get this letter."
Lillian Butler of Hastings, Neb., a bedfast invalid of 80, sent a big box of doll clothes she made. She asked the legion to pass the clothing on to needy children in Santa's name.

Most of the letters were written in childish scrawls from wistful children asking for toys. The legionnaires found that most Texas boys asked for saddles and spurs. California and Florida children wanted swimming and sailing playthings. Kids in northern states wanted sleds, skis and skates.

Farmers Act to Catch
'Tractor Rustlers'

CHICAGO, Ill.—Rustlers are active again in the midwest, but this time it is "tractor rustlers."

Farm organizations reported recently thefts of farm tractors were on the increase. They reported the thefts were due to equipment shortages and that the stolen tractors were being "bootlegged" in other states.

Twenty-six tractors have been stolen recently in eastern Nebraska. Iowa and Kansas farmers reported similar conditions. Tractors left in fields are loaded on flat-bed trucks in the night and hauled away.

One farmer suggested that perhaps old-time posses would have to deal with the problem. "But what would we do with the critters when we catch 'em?" he asked. "Hang 'em to the nearest grease rack?"

A Record

1040 Sundays Straight

CARTHAGE, Mo.—The people of Carthage are proud of John Wheat, an employee of the Central National Bank for 25 years, who has attended Sunday-school 1040 Sundays without a miss.

At the age of 10, he joined the church. Since that time he has served as a deacon, an elder and as Sunday-school superintendent and department superintendent. And in the past 20 years he has not missed a Sunday.

The people of Carthage, located on the fringe of the Ozarks, believe John Wheat's record is one of the most unusual in the nation.

Startling Mazers
Wake Florida Town
From a Long Sleep

PALATKA, Fla.—Thanks to the "Amazing Mazers," this little town, which lapsed into somnolence some 40 years ago, is wide awake now and 'rarin' to go.

Palatka was a resort town for the extremely wealthy until the Clyde Line steamers quit running up the St. Johns river in 1910. Then it went to sleep.

But when the "Amazing Mazers" hit town in 1946, Palatka awoke running and has been operating at a fast clip ever since.

Some hint of the Mazers' capacities may be gained by the fact that their father, Abraham Mazer, started with virtually nothing in 1896, and now is the head of a largely-family-owned enterprise that sold more than $22,000,000 worth of paper products in 1950 and expects to sell about $45,000,000 worth in 1952.

From Mazer's little paper jobbing business has emerged the Hudson Pulp & Paper Corporation, one of the nation's largest manufacturers of household napkins, roll towels, and tissues and a major factor in the production of gummed sealing tape, wrapping paper, grocery bags and heavy, multi-walled industrial sacks.

So, when he and his three sons decided to build a new $10,000,000 paper plant in Palatka, things were bound to happen. They did.

Four years later Palatka has been virtually revamped. Its population has gone up an estimated 25 per cent. Its Main Street has been almost entirely done over. Its merchants have become more prosperous than ever in the town's history. And, thanks to the influx of a new $2,500,000 payroll, new houses, new restaurants, new business enterprises of every kind have brought the city to a new high ranking among the state's communities.

Now, Hudson and the Mazers are about to open another $10,000,000 addition to the present mill, which will double production, double payrolls and, Palatkans hope, double prosperity.

As they say in Palatka, "It's A'mazerin'!"

Waste Turns Village
Into a Ghost Town

ARKADELPHIA, Ark. — Graysonia, recently in the news out of Washington as one of five former towns in the U.S. with population zero, is a ghost town on the west side of Clark county, some 25 miles west of this community.

In its hey-day, Graysonia boasted one of the largest lumber mills in the south, at least 200 buildings, and several hundred population. Now there is not a building there and pine trees are growing over the site of the former settlement.

When the Graysonia Lumber Company was established there in 1907, virgin forest stretched for miles in all directions. The mill ate up the woods at the rate of 150,000 board feet a day. The larger mills in those days did not bother with second growth but pulled up "lock, stock and barrel" and left for other virgin tracts of timber. When this happens, a bustling settlement suddenly becomes dormant. The bulk of the population follows the mill or goes to some other mill. A few families always remain behind. If there is good soil and a chance at agriculture a small village remains. In this case, the soil was too thin. One by one the few families left for other towns. Finally the last family gets lonesome and also departs. This is what happened at Graysonia after the mill quit in 1933.

The editor of the Arkadelphia Southern Standard visited Graysonia in April of 1909 and some of his remarks about the place are as follows:

"Here is one of the largest and most up-to-date mills in South Arkansas. It has a capacity of 150,000 feet of lumber per day.

"The company has electric cars running to move the lumber from the mill to the railroad cars for shipment.

"The company has one of the largest and best arranged commissaries we ever saw. The building is 150 by 200 feet and they carry a complete stock of all kinds of merchandise. The commissary is presided over by C. C. Jackson. They carry $30,000 stock and their sales for March were $10,500.

"The mill employs and has on its payroll over 500 men.

"The town has three hotels, the Riverside owned by A. S. Goodall, the East Side owned by Dave Sturdevant, and the Mountainview conducted by Mr. Brookerson."

WOMAN'S WORLD

Choose Your Household Linens
For Durability, Fit to Needs

By Ertta Haley

IS there a greater homemaking thrill than opening the door of a well-appointed linen closet? Most women will agree there isn't, and this holds true even though women do not spend their time from doll to marriage days spinning and weaving linens for their dowry.

Linens are not always linens in the pure sense of the word, but we have become accustomed to designate them as such, as long as they are woven goods for bedroom, bath, dining room or kitchen. They may be linen, but they may be made of cotton, rayon or even the synthetics like nylon or plastics.

No wise homemaker will let her linen supply get too low for comfort. She should take stock at regular times, and replenish the closet when she can get the types, quality and quantity at a reasonably fair price.

The best rule to follow is to get the best quality one can afford. Check for wearing qualities, and also choose the most suitable linens for your purposes.

You may find it economical to have several different qualities of linens on hand such as inexpensive utility towels for trips and school, a nicer quality for family use and some very luxurious sets when you want to put on your best airs.

Quantity depends a great deal on personal considerations. However, as a guide for a family of four with laundry done once a week, you'll need these in towels; 2 dozen each of bath towels, wash cloths and hand towels; 1 dozen guest towels and 2 or 3 bath mats.

A minimum requirement in bed linen is that each bed have four sheets, and more is better. Three or four cases per pillow is minimum. Replace a pair of sheets a year for each bed.

Look for Absorbency, Durability in Towels

When you check absorbency in bath towels, look carefully at the loops. They are on both sides of the towel or in ribs or patterns. They should be close and thickly packed. The closer the loops, the more absorbent the towel and the sooner it dries out after using.

Long loops make the towels soft as well as more absorbent. If you like towels for friction rub-downs, choose the shorter loop and tight weave so that you get the harsh feel.

Check durability by looking at the underweave of the towel. This is the towel's backbone that will bear the strain to which it is put. The back side should be firm, close and tight, which shows that the loops are held securely.

Hold the towel up to the light. If it does not show light coming through even in pinpoints, the quality is poor. Underweave can also be checked in the plain portion near the hem or border where there are no loops.

Feel towels in the hands to compare grades and weights. It's easy if you want to be proud of them.

to tell the difference between sturdy towels and light, loose ones.

Hems should be stitched with small, close, uniform stitches. They should also be backstitched or turned and stitched back across the hem. The hems should be turned up so they won't ravel.

Selvages should be firm and closely woven, about 1/4 inch wide and strong enough to withstand the rubbing that so often causes the towel to fray. As long as it is well made, any type of selvage, woven, lockstitched or hemmed type, is satisfactory.

Here's How to Judge
Good Bed Linens

Though you may not read labels on very many things you buy, you should do it as an absolute necessity in buying bed linens. They give you real information as to what kind of material is used as well as a clue to its wearing qualities.

Percalé is used in fine quality sheets. It has a smooth feeling, it's firm but not bulky. Woven of fine yarn, it has a high thread count. Usually percalé sheeting comes in two types: utility or carded or combed yarns with a thread count of 180, which means the number of threads per square inch. Fine percalé is made of combed yarns with a count of 200 or more.

Muslin is used for utility sheeting. It is woven of heavy, carded yarn with a thread count of 140, 128 or 112. Lengthwise (warp) threads should equal the crosswise (woof) threads in number, quality and size of yarn for best wearing quality as this means the material is well balanced.

Always check for a label telling torn size. This means that the material used for the sheet was torn from the length of the cloth before hemming. When torn is given on the label, it means the sheet will have straight hems. If cloth is cut, the hem will probably not be straight after laundering.

Judge Workmanship On Bed Linens

Check the hems on sheets, just as you do on towels. These should follow the direction of a single silling thread at the fold or at the line of stitching.

Stitching should be neat and even, about 14 stitches to the inch. Ends of hems should be fastened securely and selvages must be firm, neat and strong. Best selvages are used on best sheets, and these have extra yarn to give extra strength.

Pure finish on a sheet means a minimum of sizing, a special kind of starch that's added to the warp yarns in all sheets to protect the thread while it's being loomed. If too much sizing is used, the result is a starchy sheet that shows up when laundered.

When you see a "no weighting" label or such information about a sheet, it means that no heavy materials such as china clay have been used in the sizing.

Tensile strength on a sheet is the measurement of the pull of the fabric which it will take before breaking. A type 180 sheet may have a tensile strength of 60 or 70, for example, while a 112 type will have a strength of 45.

Tensile strength, then, is the index of the wearing qualities of sheets or pillowcases.

Remember that the torn size is the size before hemming. To get the correct size for the bed, deduct 5 inches for making the hem, and another 5 inches for shrinkage. Allow at least 6 inches for tucking in at the sides, for both width and length.

Give Consideration To Pillow Covers

Pillow cases are made of the same material as sheets, so the same considerations and standards apply to selecting them, as do for the sheets. For comfort and appearance have a case that fits the pillow nicely, but one which is not too roomy, or the pillow will slip continually.

Cases will wear much better if you get them six to ten inches longer than the pillow and two to three inches wider.

Five-Grass Mixture Popular in Indiana
Pays Off in Higher Quality Hay, Pasture

Farmers in 12 northeastern Indiana counties swear by a 5-grass mixture that pays off in extra tons of high quality hay and pasture. The combination includes timothy, brome, red clover, Ladino clover and alfalfa, reports Walter Rusk, county agent of Huntington county. This legume-grass combination, he said, could profitably be used by farmers in other states.

When plenty of fertilizer carrying nitrogen, phosphate and potash is used at seeding time and plant nutrients are top-dressed each year, this 5-grass mixture has yielded as much as 3 tons of hay at the first cutting on many farms. One farmer in the area insists that 5 acres of the mixture provides more forage than he previously got from about 60 acres of pasture.

Norman Thompson, who farms near Huntington, Indiana, reports that he grazed 27 head of cattle, including 16 milk cows and 11 calves, as well as 100 small pigs and 16 sows for 5 weeks on a 5-acre pasture seeded to the 5-grass mixture.

Rusk points out that the well fertilized legume-grass mixture is doing an important soil building job, besides giving farmers a preferred position in forage supplies. The tap-roots of the legumes drill down deep to keep the soil open and well ventilated. They add organic matter to improve the soil's tilth and drainage. Large quantities of organic matter in the soil mean increased water-holding capacity. They also make it possible to get the best possible efficiency out of every ton of fertilizer used.

Time of Plowing Should Depend on Type of Soil

Ohio State University farm experts report type of soil should determine whether a farmer plows his land in fall or spring. Tests over a 14-year period indicate spring plowing is preferable on light soils. If plowed in the fall the ground has a tendency to become compacted by spring. On heavier soils tests show late fall plowing gives as good or better granulation of the soil than spring plowing.

Svalbard Coal

coldest crossroads of the war are Norway's jagged Svalbard islands, where polar nose inquisitively into the mining settlements operated by Russia on the free side from Curtian.

ard — "land of the cold" is the ancient Norse name for the Arctic archipelago which is part of the Kingdom of Norway. Once an international no-man's land, Svalbard has recently become a strategic question mark.

It straddles potential polar air routes between Europe and North America. But under a 1920 treaty, the islands cannot be fortified, and mining nations (United States, Great Britain and its Dominions, France, Italy, Japan, the Netherlands, Denmark, Sweden, and Norway) are guaranteed continued access to any economic interests that hold there.

Both Norway and Russia are Svalbard coal. Norway is a member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization; Russia is Svalbard's status is somewhere between.

Some Promotion Ideas Could Be Fun for the Patient Housewife

The National Association of Retail Grocers has come up with a promotion that should be a lot of fun for the housewife, especially if hubby is the kind of fellow who belittles his wife's kitchen activities. Even if he is one of those men who does not stand in awe of the frying pan, it still should be good fun.

With the idea of transforming the kitchen-helpless man of the house into an efficient emergency cook, the National Association of Retail Grocers has designated Sunday, January 27, as "National Husband in the Kitchen Day."

On this last Sunday in January, NARGUS is suggesting, that the husband take over the cooking duties in order to gain experience and confidence in the culinary department. NARGUS plans to make this an annual event, with the objective that local merchants tie in with the promotion.

"We shouldn't assume that the housewife can be in the kitchen for three sure meals a day, 52 weeks a year," said Mrs. R. M. Kiefer, secretary-manager of NARGUS. "The man who can sling a handy skillet is never at a disadvantage when his wife makes a trip home to mother, takes to her bed with an attack of migraine or has a night out with her bridge club."

A pamphlet entitled "What Every Man Should Know About Cooking," published by NARGUS, is being distributed free of charge by the association's headquarters office at 360 N. Michigan Avenue, Chicago 1, Illinois.

Mrs. Kiefer proposes that the housewife take time out to help her husband learn some simple, tasty dishes. Among the things she suggests he learn about cooking are how to broil a chop, fix a juicy, well-browned hamburger, or add a little flourish to canned stew.

On "National Husband in the Kitchen Day," NARGUS suggests that the husband be given full charge of the kitchen, even to the cleaning up job. Bo, how he is going to like that!

However, it is emphasized, that when his wife is in control of the situation, the husband should keep out of the kitchen. "No woman wants a 'straw boss' standing around while she's preparing meals," Mrs. Kiefer said.

National Thrift Week Set for January 17-23

The National Thrift Committee, the sponsor of National Thrift Week (January 17-23), has been working for 35 years in the field of thrift education. Their program has reached thousands of individuals with specific help in budgeting, specific materials for school and youth organizations, industrial and other civic groups.

But the committee's main objective is to teach thrift to the nation as a whole, to get the nation living within its means. This can be accomplished only with thrift in the home and local community.

"Thrift in the minds of most people means merely saving money," W. W. Townsend, national economist, said recently. "However, the word carries an infinitely broader connotation. Thrift is living within our means, consuming less than we produce, building character by self-discipline, making provision for our own declining years and the continuing comfort of those we leave behind when we pass on. Money is a means to all these

The Future Depends on Thrift Today

Oliver S. Powell of the voluntary credit restraint committee of the Federal Reserve Board said recently that National Thrift Week is especially important to all of us at this particular time—as this celebration begins upon the birthdate of Benjamin Franklin.

"The Franklinian theory of spending less than you earn is sound and a practice to which all Americans should adhere," he said. "Thrift Week will act as a reminder to all

INDUSTRY

Town Votes $26 Million For Industry

ELIZABETHTON, Tenn. — The people of the small East Tennessee town of Elizabethton are determined to attract new industry into the community.

Capitalizing on a 1951 state legislative act, Elizabethton voters have approved bond issues totaling $26,000,000 in three separate referendums. The money will go for construction of industrial plants for lease to private business.

By a vote of 2,087 to 17, the community authorized a $4,000,000 issue for a nylon plant to be leased to Textron, Inc. Later they approved another $2,000,000 for the same plant. The vote for 1,457 to 16.

The latest vote was 1,262 to 6 in favor of a $20,000,000 plant to be occupied by Monadnock Paper Mills, Inc., of Bennington, N.H.

And the community indicates it is not through yet. Proposals for at least three additional plants representing a total of $25,000,000 are being studied and still other industries have applied for consideration.

Idea Mushrooming

The idea of building plants and leasing them is mushrooming. City officials have the full backing of Elizabethton's residents, but R. C. Turrentine, bank president, summed up local sentiment this way: "We want to be careful not to get any fly-by-night operators."

The first steps in the series of events turning Elizabethton into a boom town came early in 1951 when the state legislature passed an act authorizing cities to issue revenue bonds for industrial buildings.

Such issues must be approved by three-fourths of the voters and the bonds must be retired with rental from the buildings. No tax-supported bonds can be used for the purpose.

Elizabethton has been existing on the strength of a single industry—rayon. Five thousand persons are employed at the two plants in operation in the community.

To Rent Plan's

In addition to the fact that Elizabethton is preparing to rent plants to industries, there are other advantages attractive to businessmen: The community, in a mountainous area, has an ample supply of manpower. Electricity is plentiful and cheap. Timber resources are lavish. The water supply is abundant. The climate is desirable.

The future looks bright for Elizabethton, but some of its residents fear they may hit a snag. B. E. Wooten, president of the Chamber of Commerce, says congress may revise the law to prohibit private industry from benefiting from the tax exemptions of cities.

"We want to get all the industries we can before this sort of financing is halted," he said. "We don't believe congress will seek to collect the taxes on these factories already established under this arrangement."

Texas Town Turns Out For Antipolio Cleanup

ODESSA, Texas. — The city of Odessa recently conducted a cleanup campaign that could be a model for hundreds of home towns across the nation.

Residents armed with rakes and disinfectants undertook the campaign in an effort to wipe out an epidemic of polio that had reached a total of 62 cases, nine of them fatal.

Bankers, lawyers, clergymen, and doctors were among the thousands who put on work clothes. Both banks and many business houses closed. Other firms operated with skeleton crews of women.

A clothier gave away 840 pairs of work gloves. A grocery donated a barrel of rakes and shovels. Neighboring towns sent 120 trucks and drivers. Oil companies provided mobile units, used in cleaning oil wells, to spray alleys with live steam.

Debris from yards, vacant lots, and streets was piled high and burned in a special dump established north of the city. Five hundred truckloads of trash were hauled to the dump. Housewives served hot coffee and food to the workers.

The city was divided into four zones, with 25 sectors in each. Workers were directed by 10 radio cars and three radio stations.

Minnesota Town Has Fire Prevention Day

SHAKOPEE, Minn. — The small community of Shakopee recently held one of the most successful Fire Prevention Days in the history of a Minnesota community. Before the day was over 20 trained fire inspectors had visited every business establishment in the town and informed each of conditions that could be a fire hazard.

Fire Chief H. J. Pass said the program was designed to let each merchant know just what fire hazards there might be on his premises. The inspectors were aided by the local Boy Scout troop.

As a part of the program, the school in the community held fire drills and showed fire prevention movies. The day was climaxed with a banquet during which speakers summarized the days events and the lesson learned by the entire community.

Vandalism
Halloween Continues

CEDAR SPRINGS, Mich.—The Cedar Spring Clipper reports a peculiar brand of vandalism has struck that community—peculiar because there has been so little of it in recent years.

It started with Halloween when there was destruction of property far beyond the limits of pranks. Windows in home and rural school were smashed, street barricades caused damage to cars, and could have resulted in serious injury to people.

There was no apprehension of the guilty ones at the time, the weekly reports. Since Halloween it has continued. There has been an orgy of window breaking in business buildings.

Parents might well turn the spotlight of investigation on themselves, the newspaper suggests. "Such lawlessness as has been evident here recently calls for an inventory," the paper said.

Ghost Town's Last Citizen Is Buried On Canadian Hillside

PHOENIX, B.C.—The town of Phoenix, once Canada's highest city—a bustling mining town of five churches, 17 saloons, two railways, an opera house, three schools and 3,500 people—is deserted. The last citizen, William Henry Bambrury, died recently.

Phoenix boomed in 1899 and busted in 1919. Only two people stayed in the community.

One was a Belgian caretaker named Adolf Sercu who signed himself 4 Paw. For years 4 Paw paraded the town's rotting streets with a 30-30 rifle under his arm and a homemade badge on his chest. He died in 1942.

The other was Bambrury who came to British Columbia from Portsmouth, England, to work on the Canadian Pacific. He never left except for a few months in hard winters when he made his way to the hotel in the near-by mining town of Greenwood.

At his request he was buried in the cemetery on the hillside near the old copper mine.

Granby Consolidated Mining & Smelting Co. took 13,500,000 tons of copper ore out of Phoenix's mountains, which rise 25 miles north of the United States border and 300 miles east of Vancouver, B.C.

At 4,300 feet, Phoenix was the highest incorporated city in Canada. It was incorporated in 1919. The world's ski championships were once held there.

After 1919, when the copper ore ran out, Phoenix emptied. One by one, the houses fell down until there is only one left standing. When everybody else left Brambrury moved it.

It is crammed with newspapers and magazines, old tintypes, salvaged lumber and buckets of rusty nails. On the porch, Bambrury nailed a printed card which said simply: "Phoenix, B.C."

Country Ingenuity Brings Television to Mountains

HAZARD, Ky. — A little bit of country ingenuity is bringing television 'round the mountain to the good people of Hazard and other small mountain towns of eastern Kentucky.

Despite the community's location in a natural bowl, a situation which normally hinders TV reception, local ingenuity found the answer to the knotty problem in a combination of hill-top antennae and house-to-house coaxial lead-ins. This gave Hazard reception of two stations in Cincinnati and one in Huntington, West Virginia.

The nearest of these beams is programs from a distance of 90 air-line miles.

Ordinarily, a receiver has its own indoor or outdoor aerial. But, because TV signals, like light rays, won't travel through mountains, the people of Hazard built one large tower, which will do the work of many small aerials, on top of a 1000-foot mountain. They carved a road to within two hundred feet of the peak.

From the roadway, materials for the tower and antennae were toted the rest of way by hand. The TV cables were run down the mountain-side from the tower, strung along poles of the local power and light company, and fed into the houses of set owners.

The success of the project caused other towns of the area to try it. TV has come to the mountains.

Weekly Paper Conducts Kohler-McCarthy Poll

MONTELO, Wis. — Marquette county voters would like to see Gov. Kohler replace Senator McCarthy as United States senator from Wisconsin, it was indicated in a straw poll taken by the Montello Tribune, a weekly newspaper.

The Tribune received a total of 119 votes in the Kohler-McCarthy contest. This represents about 12% of the county vote in the last gubernatorial primary election. Kohler received 69 votes to McCarthy's 50.

Senator Robert Taft (Rep., Ohio) was the choice for the next president of the United States. He received 43 votes and Gen. Dwight Eisenhower was second with 32. Others who received votes for president were Gen. Douglas MacArthur, 24; President Truman, 12.

It's Wonderful the Way Chewing-Gum Laxative Acts Chiefly to REMOVE WASTE -NOT GOOD FOOD

Here's the secret millions of folks have discovered about FEEN-A-MINT, the modern chewing-gum laxative. Yes, here is why FEEN-A-MINT's action is so wonderfully different!

Doctors say that many other laxatives start their "flushing" action too soon... right in the stomach where food is being digested. Large doses of such laxatives upset digestion, flush away nourishing food you need for health and energy. You feel weak, worn out.

But gentle FEEN-A-MINT, taken as recommended, works chiefly in the lower bowel where it removes mostly waste, not good food! You avoid that typical weak, tired, run-down feeling. Use FEEN-A-MINT and feel your "bumpy" energetic self—full of life! Get FEEN-A-MINT! No increase in price—still 25¢, 50¢ or only 15¢.
