The present price outlook for hogs does not warrant the dispersal of commercial breeding herds as has been done in the past by many Texas producers when similar price situations have been faced. But, it does mean, say extension specialists at Texas A & M College, that every practice wher will increase efficiency of production must be put to use.

WHY DO WITHOUT A LITTLE LUXURY LIKE THIS... LET ALONE

THESE BIG CHEVY VIRTUES!

Chevy's the only car of the leading low-priced three that gives you the convenience of crank-operated vent windows. No awkward latches to fumble with . . . your knuckles and fingernails will appreciate it.

greater roominess

Automobile Manufacturers Association records carry the facts on this. In a Chevy sedan, for example, you've got more front seat head room than all but one of the high-priced cars! And Chevy's front seat hip room spreads up to 5.9 inches wider than comparable cars.

bigger savings

Here's solid proof that Chevrolet squeezes more miles out of a gallon: In the famous Mobilgas Economy Run, two Chevrolet sixes with Powerglide took the first two places in their class. Winning mileage: 22.38 m.p.g. And that, friends, took top honors for Chevy from every full-sized car!

higher trade-in

N.A.D.A.* Guide Books prove that your Chevrolet will keep its value. Chevy used car prices last year, for example, averaged up to $128 higher than comparable models of the other two cars in Chevrolet's field.

*National Automobile Dealers Association.

bigger brakes

Bigger, yes, and built with bonded linings for as much as 66% longer life. And how's this for proof that Chevy's a real stopper: in a NASCAR*-conducted test of repeated stops from highway speeds, Chevrolet outstopped both of the "other two" time after time.

*National Association for Stock Car Advancement and Research.

The NASCAR Outstanding Achievement award goes to Chevrolet! Chevy wins for "the creation and continuing development of America's most efficient V-type engines . . . for the establishment of new levels of V8 compactness combined with outstanding smoothness." And you can choose among eight V8's and the Six that won the Mobilgas Economy Run for its class.

fresh styling

POPULAR SCIENCE magazine gave Chevy's styling a thoughtful look, then said it this way: "In its price class, Chevy establishes a new high in daring styling . . ." You'll find your own happy way of saying that Chevy's the only unmistakably modern car in its class.

See how much more Chevy has to offer—visit your local authorized Chevrolet dealer!

Story Of Rabies

by Grant H. Burton
The word "rabies" is derived from the word "rabere" meaning to rage. Obviously the modern word is a descriptive of a horrible disease of both man and beast, a disease which drives its victims into wild and uncontrollable fits of rage before merciful death overtakes them.

A few years ago, as a health education effort, I wrote a piece for Farm and Ranch magazine called "East Texas Nightmare." It was the story of a consuming epizootic of wildlife rabies which had swept like a brush fire across 27 counties in the eastern part of the state, and of the effort to contain it. Unnatural recklessness entering town and attacking citizens in their yards, of thousands of dollars in livestock losses, and — more important — of human life placed in jeopardy of a vicious disease killer. That article ended with this admonition: "Remember, East Texas is not a nightmare. There's no sen- sation in the rest of the State having the same bad dream."

Assuming the piece was read at all, the admonition has obviously gone unheeded, for today at least 14 counties stretched from east to west across the southern half of Texas are standing on the brink of full-blown epizootics which could equal or surpass that of a few years ago. If the truth were known — and it cannot be unless someone is willing to foot the bill for a wildlife census — there probably isn't a section of Texas which isn't being actively threatened.

Prior to 1954, counties along the Mexican border had never known a case of fox rabies. But they have them regularly today. Counties of West Texas in which rabies was a rarity just a few years ago are now being forced to take emergency action against their rabies problems. The reason for fox rabies inva-ions into areas previously free of the disease makes interesting speculation. Some authorities hold that it is due to the thinning out of larger cat species, such as jaguars, which used to keep West Texas' fox populations in bounds. But the widest held theory is that foxes formerly could not successfully compete with West Texas coyotes. Both are carnivores, but coyotes have the upper hand because of size. In recent years, though, farmers and ranchers have diligently pruned the sheep-killing coyotes until today they are as scarce as purple cows. Result: foxes have moved in from rabies regions of Central and East Texas.

The simple rabies transmission pattern of dog-bite-dog and dog-bite-man has been a familiar one at least since the days of the Roman Empire. Even today, whenever rabies is mentioned, the vision most readily conjured up is one of a huge dog with dripping jaws running amuck through the streets. The truth is that the host range of rabies is one of the broadest claimed by any disease. All mammals are liable to the infection. It may even extend to poultry. The wildlife reservoir, however, does today and apparently will continue to loom as the most serious menace.

Skunk rabies is nothing new in Texas. More than one cowboy on cattle drives along the old Chisholm Trail a hundred years ago fell victim to attacks of so-called "hydrophobia cats," which in reality are civet cats, or "skunks of the genus Spilogale" as the mammalogists would say.

Dogs are man's most constant four legged companion, his dearest and most devoted animal friend. Yet this very fidelity makes dogs the principal source of human exposure to deadly rabies. Dr. Ernest Tierkel, the government rabies expert who heads the research program at the U. S. Public Health Service communicable disease center at Atlanta, Georgia, has been quoted as saying "the bite of infected dogs causes 90 percent of the human cases of rabies in the U. S." Conservation estimates place the number of persons bitten by mad dogs each year in this country at 600,000.

Rabies kills a reported average of 12,000 dogs and 1000 head of cattle annually. Since January 1 a known total of 63 head of cattle have been lost by Texas farmers and ranchers and that's only a small part of the real loss. It is no small chore to sever the head of fallen stock, pack it in ice and ship it to the Austin laboratory. Consequently the number of heads submitted for diagnosis reflects only a fraction of the total number of animals which die of rabies. New York state gets a truer index of their cattle rabies by the simple but expensive expedient of paying an indemnity to farmers for cattle lost to the disease.

Careless hauling and handling of livestock can cost livestock producers a lot of money, says U. D. Thompson, extension animal husbandman. A recent U S D A study shows the loss amounts to about $100 million annually for the nation.

Fresh fruits and summer vegetables dominate the list of more than a dozen plentiful foods for August in Texas, reports the Agricultural Marketing Service of Dallas. Pears and plums top the list with peaches, lemons and limes also expected to be plentiful.

The third conference for Texas livestock auction market operators will be held at Texas A & M College on August 9. The program will feature discussions of interest to every auction market operator, says Dr. Jarvis Miller, conference chairman.

It is too late in the year to expect effective results from fertilizing and controlling weeds in farm ponds, says Ed Cooper, extension wildlife specialist. Either practice, if carried out during late summer, will likely result in oxygen depletion and the loss of fish in the treated pond.

The production of watermelons per acre may soon be doubled by planting bush types which have most of the desirable characteristics of the present vine types. Dr. H. C. Mohr, Department of Horticulture at Texas A & M College, who has played a leading role in developing the bush types says about twice as many plants can be grown on an acre and that production from tests has about doubled that of vines on a 12 X 12 foot spacing. Home gardeners may also get some bush types for their limited space. No seed of the types being developed are available.
