For the Best Interests of O'Donnell and Lynn County

Old-Timers Plan Annual Meeting

TAHOKA, June 12. (Special)—Tuesday, June 24 is the date of the annual Pioneers Reunion in Tahoka, the time when all old timers came to this county 30 or more years ago get together for a yearly festival and barbecue.

The officers and directors of the Lynn County Pioneer association, sponsors of the celebration, have requested to meet this morning (Friday) at 10:00 o'clock in the city courtroom for the purpose of completing plans for the program of the annual affair. The meeting called by W. H. May of Wilson, president, and E. T. Wells of O'Donnell, secretary of the association, were Tahoka visitors Monday. All officers are urged to be present at the business meeting this morning.

Four More Men Entering Service

TAHOKA, June 12. (Special)—The Dodson principal of the Tahoka High School, and Harris Frazzation of Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Frazzation, a graduate of the T. H. S., are scheduled to leave here Monday morning for Fort Bliss for training for the Selective Service Act.

Two other young men who registered here but who have transferred to other places are expected to fill the county's quota of four men to this call. These are Willie Eugene Scroggins, who has been transferred to Delta county and will be listed at Cooper, and Willard Ed, who has been transferred to Kinley county, New Mexico, for training.

On Wednesday noon, questionnaires had been mailed to all registrars up to and including order No. 1. Mrs. Lois McMahon, clerk for the draft board, stated that she had mailed 200 additional questionnaires mailed Thursday.

Woodrow Brewer and Edgar Simmons of the Joe Bailey community left for San Antonio, where they will be inducted into service in U. S. Air Corps and will likely be sent to California.

The two young men were to be picked up by the Selective Service next week for possible service in the army, but they elected to sign up three years through the Lubbock recruiting office.

Woodrow is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Brewer and was raised in this county. Edgar Simmons was raised in this county and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Simmons, who last year moved from the Midway community to Littlefield.

Beautification Of City Cemetery Almost Completed

After hours of labor and money expended, those responsible are proud of the city's cemetery grounds. Gone are the weeds, and in their place have appeared shrubbery, trees and well-conditioned driveways and walkways.

A word description of the cemetery grounds would consume columns, and should not be necessary if those that can will take a few moments in a day and drive out to see how well the job has been done by those in charge of the work.

City's Streets In Good Condition

Commendation as to the appearance of the city's dirt streets is being made by townspeople this week, and A. B. Yarbrough, in charge of the grader, given the credit.

"Best condition they've ever been in," said one home owner who has lived here many years.

The favorable comment stopped at the condition of the dirt streets, however, and a number of car owners gingerly traversed the pavement on the east side of the "square," which will soon become worse than any oil field road unless repairs are made.

FROM MIDLAND

Dr. and Mrs. Kenneth Campbell and young son, John Frank were visitors in the home of Dr. and Mrs. J. F. Campbell Sunday.

John Frank remained over Monday for a visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Vaughn and children of near Plains visited with Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Vermillion Sunday.

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE O'DONNELL PRESS

Mr. Editor:—Being vitally concerned in the spiritual advancement of the people of O'Donnell and surrounding territory, and realizing that there is nothing more conducive to real development of good business men, and likewise reliable customers, than to attend Sunday school and church each Sunday; therefore permits me to congratulate you on the unique way in which you gave of your valuable space to call attention of our business men, to the importance of studying God's Holy Word, and worshipping Him in the public congregation.

Furthermore, these same businessmen, whose names appeared in your columns last week, owe it to themselves of the opportunities afforded them through the Sunday schools and churches of the country, for without these stabilizing forces in this land of ours, both they and their business would be in jeopardy every hour.

Then too, they owe you a debt of gratitude for calling their attention to this important matter, through the gratuitous "Plug" you gave them in your paper. And in all justice to them, Mr. Editor, this writer feels that you owe it to them, to send the way in this movement.—Yours truly, O. M. Addison.

The Druggist's and Shorty's Volunteers, both undefeated, will settle their grudge next Monday night, and battle to find out which team should stay on the top rung. Both teams are "hot" and fans may expect "blood on the moon."

After countless maneuvering moves, the girl's league finally got underway this week with Shorty's Volunteers taking a high scoring battle from the Corner Drug Wednesday night. It marked the first appearance for the Corner team, and lack of practice and playing under lights obviously handicapped the team. The Oates team takes on the Red & White team tonight.

No Murders, No Wars, But Press Does Print "News"

Just to save you the trouble of counting, over 300 different persons, names are mentioned in some way in news articles in the Press this week.

And if it be true, as good newspapermen have said, that "names make news," then the Press does give you the news. Wars and whatnot do not capture the main news in the Press, but, (what is more in keeping with what the readers of O'Donnell's area demand in their home paper) there's news about O'Donnell people.

The count of names in this issue was not made for any reason except to see for our own purposes the paper's coverage.

The Press does not print ALL the news—no paper can. A newspaper's news coverage is based on the amount of business received. The more advertising a town's business firms do, the better the newspaper can become. The better the newspaper becomes, the more people who desire to read it. And the more people that read what the merchants have in the way of values of groceries, drugs, dry goods, etc., the more they go to that town to do their trading.

It is a circle—your town is just as good as you make it, your newspaper is just as good as the town can support, your trade area is just as wide as the effort made to hold it.

"Buying At Home" is right and proper, but it takes more than a few people and a few statements to put it into effect. Before any "Buy At Home" move can be really effective, merchants and their families must buy at home, from each other, and then others of the trade area can be persuaded that their own town comes FIRST.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

By Edward C. Wayne

Current War Front Shifts to Syria With Oil Fields of Iraq as Prize; 'Draft Everything' Legislation Aims To Break Strikes in Defense Plants

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.) (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

'WAR' IN U. S. Citizens of Bear Mountain, N. Y., received a taste of what actual war attack might mean when the coast artillery and West Point cadets put on a dive-bombing attack and anti-aircraft defense of a big bridge near that point. Guns and equipment used were in same positions they would actually occupy in an actual battle for defense of the bridge.

DEFENSE: Production

Returning foreign correspondents, making a junket of the defense production industries as guests of the war department, found that airplane motors, considered one of the potential bottlenecks, are being rushed into production at one plant in Connecticut to the tune of 1,400,000 horsepower monthly.

One official of this concern, reviewing what he knew of the potential production of this industry, predicted that between 70,000 and 100,000 airplane engines will be turned out during 1941-42.

The total airplane industry, from a motor standpoint, should eventually be turning out 10,000,000 horsepower a month.

While these producers had no accurate figures on Axis production, it was figured that it might be between 3,000,000 and 5,000,000 a month at the present time, with future capabilities unfigured.

In addition to the three great American aviation motor concerns' output, the automotive industry has been asked for some, and while not in production yet, they will eventually contribute a large percentage of the total.

This turned the pages back to World War I, when America's most important fighting airplane motor, the Liberty, was turned out in quantity in a leading automotive factory.

This factory also, by the way, was making the recoil mechanism for the 75-millimeter gun—then a war bottleneck.

DRAFT: 'Everything'

A stiff fight against President Roosevelt's "draft everything" measure sent to the congress closely following his "freedom speech" appeared likely, though the administration forces seemed willing enough to modify the measure from its first draft.

The President softened the shock of the measure, which at first sight looked like an effort toward a complete economic dictatorship, by a later announcement that its major purpose was to permit the administration to break strikes in defense industries, which were still a knotty problem all over the nation.

Both Senator Byrd of Virginia and Senator Tydings of Maryland had taken the floor to demand that the President himself take the leadership in halting strikes, Byrd saying:

"There are 60 to 70 strikes in defense industries, and new ones are occurring every day. I don't assume the government would want to take over and operate all these plants.

"A prohibition against strikes and compulsory arbitration would be a better method."

The bill, which in its original form would give the President, under his proclamation of a state of unlimited emergency, power to seize and sell anything in the nation's long list of private property, found its first compromise offer coming from administration leaders in the form of a time limit on the President's powers, together with a proviso that congress must first itself declare a national emergency before they could be used.

Labor-minded members of both houses, wildly suspicious of the measure, started their own investigation to try to determine its origin.

U-BOATS: Bigger Range

Sinkings of eight British ships by torpedoes fired from U-boats revealed that the German submarine, instead of being a smaller vessel with a shorter range operating in greater quantity, is becoming a bigger boat with a bigger range.

Some of these reported sinkings took place within 700 miles of the United States, well within the supposed neutrality patrol area.

WAR: On New Front

The collapse of the Greco-British defense of Crete was followed by a good deal of backing and filling as the forces of Great Britain wondered where the axe was going to fall next.

The preponderance of British belief was that it would be in Syria, and two things happened at once: The British started mobilizing toward Syria and began air attacks on Syrian points, and the French started propaganda efforts to prove that they needed German aid to repel British attack.

The British countered by announcing, via their Turkish friends, that Germany already had landed 20,000 men in civilian dress, who would doff their tourist garb and take up arms just as soon as sea-borne transports landed them.

Also the British asserted that 400 German planes were already at Syrian airdromes, ready for an attack on Iraq's British army from bases supplied, in defiance of Franco-British friendship, by agreement with the Petain government headed by Darlan.

The observers in this country were not fooled by this sort of diplomatic bluff, and were able to recognize the same maneuvers, with some variations, that had preceded the German occupation of the Balkans and the subsequent blitz attack upon Greece.

Britain's plan was not only a delaying action, but because of the peculiar location of the immensely valuable Mosul oil field, to try to get into Syria first, while the German "tourists" were still unarmed, and to destroy the landing fields there if possible.

Home Front

Churchill's government, taking a great deal of criticism because of the Crete disaster, because many British people thought the Crete battle might have been won if better handled, now found itself with an intensely serious problem on its hands.

There were signs that "authorized sources" in Britain were preparing the public as gently as might be for a practical abandonment of the Mediterranean as a naval control area since the loss of Crete, and one announcement flatly said that American aid must hurry if it was to get to the Red sea and Suez in time to get to the British forces in North Africa.

The British were expecting airborne attacks on Malta, Cyprus, Alexandria and Suez, but whether the Germans would attempt parachute troop operations after their huge losses in Crete was doubtful.

In fact, the Turkish slant on the attempt to land in Syria was that sea-borne invasion would be carried out. A dozen or more large ships were to carry supplies to Syria via the Dodecanese islands, and from these it would be possible, Turkey said, to land in Syria by an overnight sailing under cover of darkness.

Five hundred motorized troops had made such a trip, Turkey said, though France vigorously denied it. Harking back to the days when Weygand's Near-East army was estimated at 750,000 men, figures were now being given out in allied circles that De Gaullet had an army of 250,000 men at the present time.

Loyal to Vichy?

The stories about the first Nazis landing in Syria, in fact, stated that they were being sent in to "straighten out" the French forces in Syria, whose loyalty to the Vichy government was in question.

There had been many reports of disaffected troops leaving Syria before the German infiltration to flee into Palestine, there to join the Free French, but just how much of this had occurred was largely a matter of conjecture.

My Week by Eleanor Roosevelt

RESPONSIBILITY

The flags of all the Americas decorated one end of the East Room of the White House and were draped over the room's main door. It gave me a curious feeling to sit there and watch the President at his desk, faced by all the microphones.

I felt as though all the newspaper photographers in the world were grinding and clicking in front of him. The atmosphere in the room was one of suppressed and intense excitement. Diplomats are trained to observe the amenities, no matter what they feel, but everybody's face showed some emotion as the evening progressed.

I felt strangely detached, as though I were outside, a part of the general public. I represented no nation, I carried no responsibility, except the responsibility of being a citizen of the United States of America. Then I looked at the President, facing representatives of all the Central and South American countries, Mexico and Canada. Like an incoming wave, the thought rolled over me:

"What a weight of responsibility this one man at the desk facing the rest of the people, has to carry. Not just for this hemisphere alone, but for the world as a whole! Great Britain can be gallant beyond belief, China can suffer and defend herself in equally heroic fashion, but in the end, the decisive factor in this whole business may perhaps be the solidarity of the hemisphere and, of necessity, the President of the United States must give that solidarity its leadership!"

If we all preserve our freedom, it must be accomplished because we believe in each other, because we want to go forward with the democratic processes, no matter how far short we may be today of perfection. We can only do this if we trip to Washington, D. C.

Then the President began to speak. For three-quarters of an hour he told us what conditions existed, what obligations lay before us and, finally, what his present step to meet those obligations was to be. More must follow, and day by day each one of us is going to realize that his life is changing, that he has an obligation to perform.

In my capacity of objective citizen, sitting in the gathering, I felt that I wanted to accept my responsibility and do my particular job, whatever it might be, to the extent of my ability. I think that will be the answer of every individual citizen of the United States, for whom all is said and done, it is our freedom to progress that makes us all want to live and to go on.

NUTRITION CONFERENCE

The closing session of the National Nutrition Conference for Defense was most interesting to me. I heard Dr. Thomas Parran, of the United States public health service, speak, and Mr. M. L. Wilson, director of extension work in the department of agriculture, present the recommendations which came as a result of the various group meetings and from the conference as a whole.

This seems to me to have been a very valuable meeting. It brought together not only the people, like the home economic experts who have studied nutrition for years, but the educators, doctors, parent-teacher groups, business and professional women etcetera. All possible groups must be interested if a program of education is really to be carried on throughout the country.

I returned to the White House to see a number of people at tea, and to shake hands with the little Girl Scout, Beatrice Viach, and another very charming young girl, Dorothy Bock, both of them winners in contests which provided as a prize a trip to Washington, D. C.

In the evening, I went to my local Newspaper guild meeting. Then I found a basket of mail awaiting me, but even with this to do, I did not have to sit up very late. It is becoming easier to get through the work, though I must say the days seem to be filled. I don't believe that the time will ever come in Washington when we can sit down and say: "There is nothing left which we ought to do."

We arrived in Hyde Park the next night just 15 minutes after my husband reached home, which shows that there are some advantages to flying, for I left Washington three hours later than he did! He insists, however, that he accomplished a great deal more work on the way, and I haven't a doubt that is true. Miss Thompson and I motored up from LaGuardia field, and it was quite evident that a holiday crowd was wending its way up the Park way. We passed one accident, but no one seemed to be seriously hurt.

GASLESS SUNDAYS

I see that Secretary Ickes is suggesting that we have gasless Sunday days and universal daylight saving thereby saving power. The gasless Sundays and less rapid driving might not only save gas and rubber, but a considerable number of human lives. The power, however, if it means fewer lights, will be hard on me, because I have acquired the bad habit of working late at night. When I don't do that, the temptation to read is hard to resist.

Notes of an Innocent Bystander:

In Case You Didn't Know: A pet newspaper man legend is this one. "A newspaper man is a guy who sits at his window looking down at the passing parade. Sooner or later everybody he knows passes by. And he can drop a flower—or a flower pot!"

It Really Happened! A small time actor walked into a bookshop and asked to see some books on the theater for his wife. The clerk brought out the memoirs of Daniel Frohman, Stanislawski's "An Actor Prepares" and others.

Sweet and Lovely: Tito Guizar tells about Mrs. Mefoofsky who was saying ta-ta to her drafted darling. "Be a good boy, Sam," she cautioned, "and when you get to camp—try to be punctual in the mornings, so you don't keep breakfast waiting."

Last Laugh: In the Spanish American war days the Hearst papers were putting out a dozen extras daily—many of them scoops. But as quickly as they came out the old Morning World, the legend goes, would copy them.

This got Mr. Hearst sore, but how to trap them in the act? One day the following appeared in the Hearst papers: "Colonel Reflippe W. Thenuz, a prominent Austrian military strategist, has reached Cuba and will advise and direct Spanish militarists on the war."

The copy-cats on the World swallowed the bait and had it on their front page the next edition. The next afternoon the Hearst papers ran a facsimile of the swine and then added: "Reflipe W. Thenuz, if you read it as an anagram, says: 'We pilfer the news!'"

Add Silles: Vic Mature sends the one about the horse in a maiden race at Belmont. He asked the steed in the next stall: "Have you ever run here before?" When the other nag nodded "yop," the newcomer replied happily: "Good! I'll follow you around. It's my first time here and I'd hate to get lost."

In Fewer Words: "The Hollywood smoothie," grieves Hedy Lamarr, "takes back the car he's given the girl when the romance is over. He also quarrels with her—so she will throw his diamond baubles in his face—with which he quietly slinks away." In short, he slinks.

The Story Tellers: Fortune lists the problems America is confronted with, and describes the situation as "the most desperate emergency that the democratic world ever faced." Senator Wheeler, who has a phrase to answer every fact, probably would call that "preaching fear" . . . Take a look at the most poisonous of the theatergoers in the late Scott Fitzgerald's Esquire piece. You've been annoyed often by the same type of noisy stew bum, whom the author called "The Woman from Twenty-One" . . . "The woman who greets her man at the door," advises the mag, You, "should be glad to see him not only as a human being—but as a man." Mark the distinction, Men! Liberty's expose on Lindbergh was sold out in 36 hours.

Alley-Oop: Tommy Tucker hopes you haven't read it before, which you probably did, if you read the old Graphic. Anyway, it's the one about the two acrobats who never played in New York and were booked into the city's "biggest theater." They decided to look at the place on their layoff period and went to the Met Opera House by mistake. They were awed by the size of the Met and the enormous orchestra. Then, when the musicians played the first strains, one beamed: "How do you like that? They swiped our music!"

THE SMOKY YEARS

THE STORY SO FAR:

Dusty King and Lew Gordon had built up a vast string of ranches which stretched from Texas to Montana. King was killed by his powerful and unscrupulous competitor, Ben Thorpe. Bill Roper, King's adoptive son, undertook to break Thorpe's power.

CHAPTER X—Continued

Dry Camp Pierce still loafed at the Pot Hook, dejected, hopeless. No one knew what he was waiting for. Roper never heard from the rest of them now. In spite of everything that Maxim could do, the Rangers were on the loose. The wild bunch that had threatened to dominate Texas was broken and split, scattered far and wide, every man for himself. Day and night, a saddle pony waited beside the door of the bunkhouse in which Roper slept.

Now, unexpectedly, came Shoshone Wilce.

Nothing could tell more of Roper's present position than this:—as Shoshone Wilce rode up, Bill Roper already had his gun in his hand, and the other hand upon the bridle rein of his pony.

Shoshone Wilce almost tumbled into Bill Roper's arms. He grabbed Bill by both lapels of the black, town-going coat that Roper always wore when he was about to travel a long way. Shoshone's bottle-nose gleamed and quivered, and his eyes were like shoe buttons.

"It's done! He's bust—he's split—he's cracked—"

"What are you talking about?"

"Cleve Tanner! I tell you, he's gone to hell!"

Suddenly Bill Roper turned into the unaccountable kid that his years justified. Like a man suddenly coming alive, he took Shoshone by the throat, shook him as if he had weighed no more than a cat. His teeth showed bare and set.

He said, "Shoshone—you fool with me—"

Shoshone cried out through the grip on his throat, "I tell you, Cleve Tanner—"

He couldn't say any more. Bill Roper was cool again, now.

"What makes you think so?"

"He failed his delivery at the Red. Where he was supposed to bring up fifteen thousand head, a little handful of punchers showed up with a few hundred. He can't round his cattle—he's got any cattle—and he can't make delivery at the Red!"

"We didn't believe you," Shoshone Wilce babbled on. "We all said it couldn't be done. But by gosh, we've done it! All over Texas, Tanner's notes are being called, as the word spreads. Wells Fargo refuses to honor his signature for a dime. They say now that Ben Thorpe won't back Tanner—Thorpe denies him, and the Tanner holdings are being closed up and sold out—"

"You sure?" Roper asked, looking up from the ground again.

"Am I sure? You think I'd risk my damn throat coming here to tell you something like this, if I didn't know for sure?"

"No," Roper admitted, "I guess not."

"It's all over," Shoshone tried to tell him. "Can't you realize it, man?"

"No," Roper said.

CHAPTER XII

It was well into the summer as Bill Roper once more rode south out of Ogallala toward the pile of stones that marked the grave of Dusty King. Jody Gordon rode with him. In the few days he had stopped over in Ogallala he had hardly seen her at all. At first she had refused to ride with him today; but at the last moment, as if on an impulse, she had changed her mind.

Roper, studying her sidelong, thought that Jody seemed to have aged several years in one. Impossible now to find any trace of the irrepensible, up-welling laughter that had been so characteristic of her a year before. Her eyes were unlighted, and a little tired-looking; her mouth was expressionless except for a faint droop at the corners, which suggested—perhaps resignation, perhaps a hidden bitterness.

She didn't have much to say; but finally she asked him, "What did my father decide?"

"He says now that I'll never have another penny out of Dusty King's share until—until he's able to dictate to me what I'm going to do with it; or, that's what it amounts to."

"Did you quarrel with my father?"

"No. He said some kind of bitter things, but I didn't say anything. I asked for certain things—five camps in Montana, mainly. Of course, that was a waste of breath."

His first step was to start a cattle war in Texas. He made this decision against the opposition of Lew Gordon and the tearful pleading of his sweetheart, Jody Gordon. The raids upon Thorpe's herds were successful at first, but resistance was soon put you'll get him, all right," he added hastily.

Half a block ahead another man stepped into the street, and walked toward Bill. Before his face could be seen in the black shadow under his hat, Bill Roper knew by the set of the broad shoulders, by the rolling swing of his stride, that it was Cleve.

The moments during which the two men walked toward each other drew out interminably. Their eyes were upon each other's faces now; Bill could see that Cleve Tanner looked happy, almost gay, as if this was the first good thing that had happened to him for a long time.

At twelve paces Cleve Tanner drew; to observers the men seemed so close together that it was impossible that either of them should live. Tanner's gun spoke five times, fast, faster than most men could slip the hammer. Nobody knew where the first four shots went; but the fifth shot was easy to place, for it blew a hole in the street as Tanner's gun stubbed into the dust.

Bill Roper holstered his own smoking forty-four. He had fired twice.

Dry Camp Pierce was at his elbow again. "Here's the horses. It's time to ride. By God, I knew you could take him, kid."

Roper was feeling deathly sick.

"But you'll go on, and throw yourself against Walk Lasham in Montana?"

"Yes; I have to go on."

They were silent after that; and presently they sat, almost stirrup to stirrup, but somehow infinitely far apart, looking down at the stacked boulders from which rose the wooden cross that Bill Roper had made, nearly a year and a half ago.

For a little while he stood looking at the cross which he had made of railroad ties. He said, half aloud—

"One down. Dusty . . ."

"I suppose," Jody said, "you'll be cutting a notch on the handle of your gun, now."

In the few days he had stopped over in Ogallala he had hardly seen her at all. At first she had refused to ride with him today; but at the last moment, as if on an impulse, she had changed her mind.

up which caused Roper's men to leave him. one by one. Cleve Tanner, manager of Thorpe's Texas holdings, appeared not to feel the losses inflicted upon him. Roper's resources were dwindling low, and he seemed doomed to failure.

He was surprised to hear her say that. He had no way of knowing how much she had heard, or what she had heard, about his shoot-out with Cleve Tanner.

"A notch? I hadn't thought anything about it."

All her bitter contempt of the lonely-riding men of violence came into her voice. "Isn't that what the gunmen and the cow thieves always do?"

He was motionless a long time. Then he drew the skinning knife that always swung at the back of his belt in a worn sheath. Its blade was lean and hollowed, worn almost out of existence by a thousand honings. He stood looking at the knife; he tossed it in the air, and caught it by the handle again.

"I wouldn't go cutting marks on the handle of a gun," he said at last. His voice was thick. "Nobody cares what anybody does to the handle of a gun."

Roper stepped forward, and with the keen blade cut a notch clean and deep in the left arm of Dusty's cross.

When he looked at Jody she was staring at him strangely, almost as if she were afraid.

All through the afternoon Jody Gordon had ridden the barren trails above Ogallala, on a pony that forever tried to turn home. Thaw was on the prairie again, and the South Platte was brimming with melted snow; in the air was something of the damp, clean smell which had marked another spring, in this same place. But it was now more than six months since Jody had seen Bill Roper; and she found it no help that she was forever hearing his name.

It was with reluctance that she at last rode up the rise upon which it stood, unlighted, in the dusk.

She unsaddled her own pony, booted it into the muddy corral, and threw the forty pound kak onto the saddle-pole with the easy, one-handed swing of the western rider. As she turned toward the house she was trying not to cry.

Then, as she walked through the stable, a figure rose up from the shadows beside the door and barred her way.

Jody Gordon's breath caught in her throat. She said, evenly, "Looking for someone, Bud?"

The spare-framed visitor took off his hat and held it uneasily in his two hands. "Well, I tell you, Miss Gordon—could I speak to you for just a minute? I'll tell you the fact of the matter. I'm a Bill Roper man."

Jody Gordon's heart jumped like a struck pony "Billy sent you to me?"

"I haven't seen Bill Roper. But I've seen Ben Thorpe. Miss Gordon, tell me one thing: Is your father backing Bill Roper? I mean, is he backing this plowing into Ben Thorpe?"

"My father," Jody Gordon said, "has quit Bill Roper in every way he possibly could."

"That's what I thought," Shoshone Wilce said. "Only trouble is, people that don't know the difference, they don't none of them believe that any more."

Jody Gordon interrupted him sharply. "What's happened?"

"Miss Gordon, your father is in a terrible bad fix. I'm afraid—I'm afraid he's going to die before this thing is through."

"What do you mean?"

"Most people think Lew Gordon is backing Bill Roper—maybe you know that? Well, now there's a feller rode to Ben Thorpe from Miles City—a feller that was a foreman with Thorpe's Montana outfits under Walk Lasham. Maybe this feller had some kind of fight with Lasham—I don't know nothing about that. But this feller swears to Thorpe that Lasham is letting the Montana herds drain away to the Indians, and to the construction camps, and Ben Thorpe never seeing a penny of the money from beef or hide."

"Is Bill Roper gutting the Thorpe outfits in Montana?"

"Don't know, myself. They say he's swarming all over Montana, with a bunch of kid renegades behind him, riding like crazy men, and raiding night after night. Some say nobody knows how hard Lasham is hurt, Lasham least of any; and some say Lasham has sold out to Bill Roper, or your father—or both."

"What does Thorpe himself think?"

"Thorpe thinks your father has bought Walk Lasham. Just the same as he thought your father bought Cleve Tanner in Texas, until Bill Roper gunned Cleve down. And Thorpe is fit to be tied. A man like him—he's terrible dangerous always, Miss Gordon; but now he's ten times more dangerous than he ever was in his life."

"You mean you think Ben Thorpe will—"

"Miss Gordon, I know. Ben Thorpe is going to kill Lew Gordon, just as sure as—"

MILITARY HIGHWAY, MEXICO TO PANAMA

THE PRESIDENT has asked congress for $20,000,000 for the purpose of building a military highway from the southern boundary of Mexico to the Panama canal. Of course it is intended as a defense measure.

A year ago, a young man called on me, saying he and his wife were planning an automobile trip from the northern border of Mexico through to Colombia. For the past three months they have been attempting that trip and have progressed as far as southern Nicaragua. Following such trails, and an occasional short piece of road, as can be found, they report progress ranging from one-half to seven miles a day for the days they attempt to travel through the Central American jungles.

They may be able to get through to the Canal after another three or four months, but it is doubtful if they can go from there to the Colombian border.

That is the country of the San Blas Indians and few white men have ever penetrated it for any distance. The Indians do not take kindly to the whites.

An acquaintance of some years ago, Captain Fitzmorris, an English soldier of fortune, was one of the few white men acceptable to the San Blas Indians. He had been made a blood member of the tribe and lived with them for a number of years following the close of the last World war.

Fitzmorris fought for England when his native country was at war, big or little, in any part of the world. If it was not at war, he hunted up wars in other countries if possible. When he could not find one in which he could participate, he would go to the San Blas country and live with the Indians. He wore the Victoria cross, with two bars, earned, of course, in the service of England.

It is what I learned from Captain Fitzmorris of the San Blas country that causes me to question the ability of the intrepid young couple to make their way through it to the Colombian border.

LONG REACH OF MAD MAN TOUCHES FISHING VILLAGE

SOME 25 YEARS AGO I spent a few pleasant days in the little Newfoundland fishing village of Placentia, located at the head of Placentia bay on the southeast coast of the fog enshrouded island. In its modest way, it was an attractive place, consisting of some 12 to 15 snow-white cottages, with the bluest of blue trimmings, a Methodist church and a small store specializing in ship chandler's supplies. To the north and west of the village there was but the unbroken wilderness of stunted timber, valuable only as pulp wood.

Today the little village of Placentia is gone. Its white and blue cottages and its little church have fallen victims to the war preparations of the United States. Where it stood, this nation is today erecting buildings that will house, not a simple fisher folk, but the officers and men of an American naval station to aid in the protection of the world against the Mad Man of Europe.

GOVERNMENT ALSO DUBIOUS IF BY 'EXECUTIVE ORDER'

WE FEEL a bit sorry for the people of any nation from which comes an announcement of "government by decree." We think of it as another country moving toward a dictatorship, another people losing their liberties. We thank God we are not in that boat.

There is not much difference between "government by decree" and "government by executive order." A violation of an executive order can send one to jail as quickly and certainly as a violation of a decree, and to a considerable extent, we Americans are governed by "executive orders."

President Roosevelt or, with his authority, the heads of well over 100 departments or bureaus, have issued "executive orders" on an average of much more than one each day for more than the past eight years. The vast majority of American citizens know nothing of what these orders are. They are seldom reported in the newspapers. Lawyers cannot keep up with them. They are laws that cannot be found in the law books. They cover as many subjects as there are "executive orders."

For example: Should any retail grocery man sell as much as 100 pounds of sugar to any one customer and fail to report that sale, with the name of the customer, to the secretary of the treasury, he can be sent to jail and heavily fined for violation of an executive order. Grocery men, entirely ignorant of such a law, have paid fines and served terms in jail for violation of that order.

If "government by decree" is a stepping stone to dictatorship, what is "government by executive order"?

TRUTH

Today's popularity of Doan's Pills gives many years of worldwide use, surely must be accepted as evidence of satisfactory use. And favorable public opinion supports that of the able physicians who test the value of Doan's under constant laboratory conditions. These physicians, too, approve every word of advertising you read, the objective of which is only to recommend Doan's Pills as a good diuretic treatment for diarrhea of the kidney function and for relief of the pain and worry it causes. If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove waste that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole body suffers when kidneys lag, and diuretic medication would be more often employed. Burning, stinging or too frequent urination sometimes warn of disturbed kidney function. You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up at night, swelling, painness under the eyes—feet weak, nervous, all played out. Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won worldwide acclaim than on something less thoroughly known. Ask your neighbor!

MANY NEW BOOKS IN COUNTY SCHOOL LIBRARY

The County School Library, starting early last year, has grown rapidly under the supervision of County Superintendent Lenore M. Tunnell, and unlike many libraries all the books are approved by the State Department of Education with just a few exceptions.

Written for school children of all grades and ages, they cover a multitude of subjects and many types of literature. There are now nearly four hundred volumes in this library. Mrs. Tunnell received a consignment of thirty-three books just this week.

"Most of these books", she said to a representative of the News Tuesday, "were bought for the eighth and ninth grade levels.

"About seventy-five children in the Dixie, Gordon, Edith, New Lynn, Redwine, Draw, West Point, Newmoore, and Grassland districts have received county reading certificates for having read fifteen books on the state approved reading list", she continued. "About thirty of these students will be issued state reading certificates for having read thirty books on the state approved lists.

"This program is sponsored for two purposes: The hope of cultivating in the minds of the children a love of reading, for to be able to read well is the first prerequisite to an education; and to furnish to the children of small rural schools ample library books to meet this need.

"Since the library was begun about a year ago, we have bought about four hundred volumes of new books, 90 percent of which are on the state approved reading lists for elementary grades."

These books are purchased with state funds allocated for the purpose. Each school receiving state aid is required to set aside a small portion thereof as a library fund. These schools are permitted to pool these funds for the purpose of building a county library, available to all the children of all the state aid schools paying in their quota.

Books received this week include the following: "Down the Fairway", Robert Jones; "Beggars' Revolt", Dekker; "Green Light" and "Forgive Us Our Tresspasses", Lloyd C. Douglas; "My Heart and My Flesh", Elizabeth Roberts; "The Old Curiosity Shop", and "Barnaby Rudge", Dickens; "Mitch Miller", Edgar Lee Masters; "We Are Not Alone", James Hilton.

"Quentin Durwood", Walter Scott; "American Agent", Melvin Purvis; "The Border Captain", Marquis James; "Goodbye, Mr. Chips", James Hilton; "Christmas Holiday", W. Somerset Maugham; "Baker's Dozen", Kathleen Norris; "The Travels of Marco Polo"; "The Buccaneer", Mitchell Charnley; "Memoirs of a Midget", Walter de la More; "Singing in the Rain", Anne S. 5 other well known oils got the same chance as new Conoco Nth oil. 6 identical new cars were used. Tune-ups, tire pressures, speeds, and all other factors were the same for all—impartially. Engines were under lock. Qualified authorities eyed everything.

The test was simple and stern... Each car got its 5-quart fill of some one competing oil and was run at a 57-mile speed, without added oil, till the engine smashed up. New Conoco Nth motor oil went 13,398 miles. Certified. Not another oil came within 5,683 miles of that and one was outlasted 8,268 miles by new Conoco Nth oil. Certified.

The reasons are straight and simple... New, patented Conoco Nth motor oil contains Thialkene inhibitor, a new synthetic... man-made by Conoco.

Now an inhibition is something that restrains you—checks you. And Thialkene inhibitor checks the effect of poisons always formed in normal engine operation. Instead of "festering," weakening, and passing out, this oil is scientifically prepared to keep its health, so that the engine can do the same—a good way to keep up the oil-level.

OIL-PLATING, too!...Long the keystone of Conoco success, OIL-PLATING comes from another Conoco synthetic... (U. S. Patent 1,944,941). Magnet-like action bonds OIL-PLATING to engine parts, so it can't all drain down—not even overnight.

While you use Conoco Nth, this oil-PLATING stays on guard against wear in advance! By OIL-PLATING the engine and inhibiting the worst effect of oil pollution, one fill of new Conoco Nth lasted 13,398 miles. Certified.

You'll not put your car through such a third-degree—any more than you keep starting in high gear just because you could. You'll certainly never want to exceed the recommended distance between crankcase drains. But knowing that new Conoco Nth oil lasted 74% to 161% longer than other oils tested, see how seldom you add a quart. At Your Mileage Merchant's Conoco station today change to your correct Summer grade of popular-priced new Conoco Nth oil. Continental Oil Company—Pioneers in Bettering America's oil with Synthetics

CERTIFIED I hereby certify that the Death Valley Test and related work were thoroughly and fairly conducted. Engine Destruction occurred in each case at the mileage stated.

YOUR SUNDAY DINNER

(See Recipes Below)

ESPECIALLY FOR DAD

Sunday, June the fifteenth, is the day you want to especially prepare DAD's favorite foods—for it's Father's day—and don't forget it. The favorite of all men is a good tasty meat pie—so the suggestion for the main course is a delicious individual meat pie. Dad doesn't like to bother much with side dishes of salad, so place his salad right on the plate with the rest of the meal. He likes a cole slaw stuffed tomato. Buttered carrots and peas are the vegetables. Because he is so fond of blueberries, it's blueberry muffins to go with the meal, and blueberry ice cream cake for dessert.

This week's menu is properly balanced for nutritional value. It supplies:

The appetizer: Carbohydrates, minerals, Vitamins A, B, C, and G.
The Meat: Proteins, phosphorus, Vitamins B, B-1; fats, carbohydrates in crust.
The Vegetables: Minerals, Carbohydrates, Vitamins A, B, C, and G. Muffins and butter: Vitamins A, B, C, and G, minerals, carbohydrates.

Salad: Minerals, Vitamins A, B, C, and G, carbohydrates and fats.

Dessert: Carbohydrates, minerals, fats, Vitamins A, B, C, D, and G.

To Serve 6 You Need:

- 1 can apricot nectar
- 1 can pineapple juice
- 2 lbs. lamb shoulder
- 2 bunches carrots
- 1 No. 2 can peas
- 6 tomatoes
- 1 small head cabbage
- 2 pints blueberries
- 1 pint ice cream

(Balance of materials among staples)

- *Individual Lamb Pies.
- 2 lbs. shoulder of lamb
 - 2 small onions
 - 3 tablespoons flour
 - 1 1/2 teaspoons salt
 - 2 1/2 cups milk

Trim the lamb, cut in small cubes and brown in a hot frying pan. Add the chopped onion and cook until light brown, stirring constantly. Add the flour and salt and mix well. Stir in the milk gradually. Cover and cook over low heat for about 45 minutes or until the lamb is tender. Roll out pastry and place in individual pie tins or cut in six five-inch rounds and place in large cupcake pans. Fill with the lamb mixture and brush the rims of the pastry with milk. Top each pie with another round of pastry. Crimp the edges and cut slits in the top for the steam to escape through. Brush each pie with milk or cream. Bake in a 425-degree F. oven for 25 to 30 minutes or until the crust is evenly browned. Lift gently from the pan and serve.

LYNN SAYS:

Dad's day might be the one day when Dad would really like to try his hand in the kitchen. How about some feathery light biscuits to go with dinner? They're an easy trick if you just put out the ingredients for Dad, along with one of those big bowls and a spoon. Now sift 2 cups of flour, 2 teaspoons of baking powder, and 1/2 teaspoon of salt. Cut in 4 tablespoons of shortening, and then add about 3/4 of a cup of milk gradually. Stir until a soft dough is formed, not too long, though, or the biscuits will be tough. Turn the dough on a slightly floured board, pat to a 1/2-inch thickness, and cut with a floured biscuit cutter. Pop them into a hot oven (450 degrees) on an ungreased baking sheet for 10-15 minutes. Dad will probably like the large biscuits, so better give him the large cutter. The recipe will make about 12 biscuits of that size, or 16 of the smaller ones. Can't you just see him beaming over a plate of hot, flaky biscuits he made all by himself?

THIS WEEK'S MENU

- Chilled Mixed Fruit Juices
 - *Individual Lamb Pies
 - Buttered Carrots and Peas
 - *Blueberry Muffins Butter
 - Tomato and Cole Slaw Salad
 - French Dressing
 - *Blueberry Ice Cream Cake
- *Recipes given.

Butter Pastry.

- 1 1/2 cups flour
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon baking powder
- 3/4 cup butter
- 3 to 5 tablespoons milk

Mix and sift the flour, salt and baking powder. Cut in the butter with two knives or rub in with the fingertips. Add milk slowly, tossing the mixture together lightly and use only enough milk to hold the ingredients together.

- *Blueberry Muffins.
- 2 cups sifted flour
 - 4 teaspoons baking powder
 - 2 tablespoons sugar
 - 1/2 teaspoon salt
 - 2 eggs, beaten
 - 1 1/2 cups milk
 - 3 tablespoons melted butter
 - 1 cup blueberries.

Sift dry ingredients together. Combine eggs, milk and shortening and add to dry ingredients, stirring only until moistened. Fold in blueberries. Pour into greased muffin pans and bake in moderately hot oven (425 degrees F.) for 25 minutes. Makes 18 muffins.

- *Blueberry Ice Cream Cake.
- 1/4 cup butter
 - 1/4 cup sugar
 - 1 egg
 - 1 cup flour
 - 1/8 teaspoon salt
 - 1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
 - 1/4 cup milk
 - 1/4 teaspoon vanilla
 - 1 1/2 cups blueberries
 - Vanilla ice cream

Cream the butter, add the sugar gradually and cream thoroughly. Add the egg and beat well. Mix and sift the flour, salt and baking powder and add to the first mixture alternately with the milk. Add the vanilla and pour into a buttered cake pan about 8 inches square. Sprinkle blueberries over the batter and bake in 375 degree F. oven for 30 minutes. Cut in squares and serve warm with ice cream and warm blueberry sauce.

Blueberry Sauce.

- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1 1/2 tablespoons flour
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 3/4 cup water
- 1 cup blueberries
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 2 teaspoons butter

Mix the sugar, flour and salt in a saucepan, and add water and blueberries. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly until thickened. Stir in lemon juice and butter.

SERVING HINTS:
Place individual pies right on the serving plate. The tomato cole slaw salads may be arranged on lettuce leaves on a platter and each person can serve himself from this platter. Peas and carrots always offer a good color combination. Arrange them in a bowl tossed together or separately arranged with carrots in the center and peas surrounding the carrots.
The dessert had better be served in a rather deep dessert dish. Place a square of cake in each dish, then top with a ball of ice cream. Over all pour the rich looking blueberry sauce. Prepare this dessert just before it is to be served. The whole family will love it.

USE OF LEFTOVERS:
Here's what to do with that bowl of leftover vegetables. Say you have peas, carrots and mashed potatoes. This a fine combination for Vegetable Puffs. Mix 1 cup leftover mashed potatoes with 2 eggs, 3 tablespoons milk, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1 1/2 cups peas, carrots, mashed, 1/2 cup flour and 1 tablespoon chopped parsley. Mix thoroughly together and drop by teaspoons into hot deep fat—350 degrees F. Cook until brown. Drain on absorbent paper. Makes 8 to 10 puffs.

PROGRESS IN WORLD MISSIONS

LESSON TEXT—Acts 13:44-52; Galatians 3:23-25.
GOLDEN TEXT—For ye are all the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus.—Galatians 3:25.

"All people" are included in God's plan of redemption. When the angel of the Lord announced the birth of Christ to the shepherds he said, "Fear not: for behold I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people" (Luke 2:10). The invitation is: "Let him that is athirst come. And whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely" (Rev. 22:17). The disciples naturally and properly first preached the gospel to the Jews, but the time came when God was ready to send them to the Gentiles, that they too might hear the message of redemption. That historic turning point is found in our lesson. As Paul and his fellow workers proceeded from Paphos on the isle of Cyprus to the mainland with their message of Christ's redemption, they met both

I. Popularity and Persecution (Acts 13:44, 45).

In the synagogue of Antioch of Pisidia they were invited to preach, and Paul was blessed in the presentation of a powerful gospel message. Read it in Acts 13:16-41. It met with such a response that the people "brought these words might be preached to them the next Sabbath" (v. 42). So great was the popularity of Paul's message that the whole city came the next Sabbath "to hear the Word of God." What a wonderful sight that must have been and how the disciples must have rejoiced as they preached the Word.

But wait—there's a worm in that red apple of popularity, and its name is jealousy (v. 45). It caused the Jews to blaspheme as they contradicted Paul's preaching. Jealousy always makes a fool out of the one who yields to it. Yet this green-eyed monster is permitted to go right on destroying, hindering, hurting. In the church and the home, as well as in the social order, we let jealousy come in and wreck friendship, break down reputations, yes, even block the work of God. May someone learn the lesson of our text and turn away from that evil way—right now!

II. Rejection and Acceptance (Acts 13:46-52).

All through the record of Scripture and the history of man to this day we find some rejecting the grace of God—others accepting. Those who reject only prove themselves "unworthy of eternal life" (v. 46) and are themselves rejected of God.

The disciples now turn from the Jews to minister to the Gentiles, even as had been prophesied (Isa. 42:6; 49:6; Luke 2:31, 32). They accepted the word of truth and "were glad, and glorified the word of God." Rejection brought eternal death, but acceptance brought eternal life and joy.

They could not keep the good news to themselves, but had to spread it abroad. A lighted candle begins at once to shine. A redeemed soul longs to bring others to Christ. Persecution continued; in fact, was intensified to the point of physical rejection of the disciples. Were they downhearted? No! For the joy of the Lord filled their Holy Spirit-filled lives. Being filled with the Spirit means being filled with joy, even in the midst of persecution.

It really works! Have you given God a chance to prove it in your life?

III. Neither Jew nor Greek (Gal. 3:26, 27).

This selection from the letter which Paul wrote some ten years later to the people of the area in which he had now preached reveals the same truth, that faith in Christ is primary—and essential—in Christian experience.

In this early life we recognize distinctions based on nationality, sex, social position, and many other grounds. While these are over-emphasized by most people, they are legitimate and necessary distinctions. But in Christ—ah! there the differences disappear. We are all one in Him (v. 28). This is a lesson which we have not learned even yet, but our slowness of heart and mind does not alter God's truth.

The church is talking much these days about ecumenicity, which in plain words means the unity of the people of the various branches of the church all over the world. All too often, however, the proposed basis of unity rests on a surrender or a partial surrender of what Paul declares to be the essential (the sine qua non if you wish), which is faith in the Lord Jesus Christ. No other unity but that which centers in Him, and a personal relationship to Him, is sufficient either for this life or for the life to come.

Household Hints

To avoid smudges on freshly washed clothes, give clothes-lines and clothes-pins periodic washings.

Lining the basement walls with insulating board will help to eliminate the dampness usually found there.

Putty will not adhere to wood surfaces that are not prepared for it. They must be cleaned of all old putty and thoroughly soaked with linseed oil so that they will not absorb oil from the new putty.

To broil bacon place the strips close together on a wire rack over a drip pan. Use medium heat. Turn bacon over and drain on unglazed paper or on paper towels.

Cider sauce makes something just a little different to serve with pancakes or waffles. Boil one cup of sugar and half a cup of cider for four minutes. Serve either warm or cold.

Fighting Bird
One of the most powerful of all birds, and able to fly long distances, the great skua is seldom caught, but a dead specimen has been presented to the museum at the Smithsonian Institute in Washington. It was brought down in the Atlantic. The skua lives on penguins' eggs and chicks, and scores of half-eaten birds may be seen near the sites of penguin colonies during the hatching season. A famous British aircraft is named after the fierce, killing skua.

Texas Almanac Valuable Book

A book of 576 pages, The Texas Almanac for 1941-42, just off the press, is the largest volume in the long history of this biennial publication of the Dallas Morning News. A number of new features are included in addition to the usual chapters and statistical tables on such topics as agriculture, industry, population, history, soil and water resources, weather, minerals, manufacturing, transportation, wholesaling and retailing, government, education and civic affairs.

Has Texas really had more than six flags? How has the relationship of rural and urban population changed since 1930? When were the tapir, sabre-toothed tiger and camel found in Texas? Who was Governor in 1893? What facilities has MacKenzie State Park at Lubbock? Who won the Dixie Series in 1931? What are the total retail sales of Brady, Texas? These are typical of the wide variety of questions that can be answered from the page of the new book.

New census figures on population, manufacturing, agriculture, wholesale and retail trade and service businesses are included. The historical chapter has been supplemented by a number of supplementary topics including a long list of Texas historical landmarks. There are especially complete chapters on highways and parks in anticipation of increased tourist trade in Texas during the next two years. The usual large folded maps, showing railroads and highways respectively, have been brought up to date, and there is an individual map of each of the 254 counties of Texas accompanying the county articles. New developments in Texas, including the defense industries, chemistry, conservation programs, changes in farm and farm tenantry, aviation, new army and navy camps and posts, and political activities are covered. There are more than 50,000 separate and distinct facts about Texas in this "Encyclopedia of Texas."
