Force of Habit

After finding a vacant seat in the train the little man with the meek demeanor slumped into it and soon fell asleep. He evidently hadn't noticed the parrot perched on the shoulder of the man next to him but the latter eyed the newcomer with mixed emotions. After considerable deliberation and frequent shiftings of weight from foot to foot the parrot decided on attack. Balancing himself precariously on his owner's shoulder he leaned over and nipped the little man's ear. It was just enough to wake him up. "Yes, .dear," he said softiy "I'm coming."

Teen-Agers' Breakfast

IN THE HUSTLE and bustle of school work and social activities, teen-agers are apt to short-change themselves on the food they eat. Their stomachs aren't going emp-:y; but, considering between-meal snacks of candy bars and soft frinks, the kind of food they eat is apt to be off the track as far as good nutrition is concerned.

At this age, the phrase "You are what you eat" is all-important, for personality de-measure on good nutrition. Also, this is the time when boys and girls are forming food habits that will follow them through life. Let's consider the first meal of the day-breakfast.

By studying teen-age habits in this country, we have turned up the interesting fact that two-thirds of our teen-agers feel that everyone should have a good solid breakfast. But, in this same survey, it was discovered that thirty per cent of the boys and girls in this age group were skimping on breakfast. What causes the gap?

vention in Formosa grows, many Americans will have a sharp flashback of memory to the days when Anthony Eden and others were urging boycotts against Mussolini and the Japs as campaigns of conquest were getting underway. Now, there are many important U. S. officials and ex-leaders who argue that the United States must step in to keep Communist China from swallowing up Formosa. Use of armed force, if necessary, is recommended to stop that movement.

LATEST TO JOIN with those advocating intervention in Formosa was Herbert Hoover, former president of the United States. He contended that such a policy was necessary to safeguard this country's own security.

Hoover argued the U.S. should use its naval power to protect not only the big island stronghold of Formosa but also lesser islands which Chiang Kai-shek's forces were seeking to defend along the south China coast.

He declared such a step would "erect a wall against communism in the Pacific" and offer a "continued hope of some time turning China into the paths of freedom again.

HOWEVER, the decision was further complicated by a British stand that American China policy would strain Anglo-American relations. Indications were that Britain was just about ready to recognize the Chinese Communist regime.

Always the practical realist, Britain moves wherever her own best interests dictate, or where she thinks they dictate. Hence, for the U. S. to lash out at the Chinese Reds just when the British were trying to woo the Communist business apparently wasn't going to sit well with Great Britain.

BUDGET: Drive for Balance

According to house Republican Leader Martin of Massachusetts, the United States government should be able to live within its income without raising taxes. That of course meant that the U.S. ought to be able to balance its budget. MARTIN joined forces with Sen. Robert Taft, of Ohio, who is on record as saying he believes the federal budget could be balanced in fiscal 1951. The two lawmakers are united in a drive to attempt to force the government to live with-

There had been plenty warning and admonitions from men in government qualified to talk about the situation, but for the most part their authority wasn't sufficient to permit their interfering. However, with Senator Connally on the side of a reduction in the program, the servers who felt that unless the United States took a determined stand in insisting that Europe begin now to do something to rehabitate itself, the drain on American funds would not only continue indefinitely, but might even increase.

The Texas senator might have had some such idea in mind when he talked ERP fund reductions.

It was a little more difficult, however, to understand his position with regard to Spain. Connally urged that the United States exchange ambassadors with Spain immediately and to call off its diplomatic boycott of Generalissimo Francisco Franco. He wanted "strategic" Spain in the North Atlantic pact,

ECONOMICS: Stability Urged

In the field of U.S. economics, there was pulling and hauling that would hold some measure of amusement were it not for its basic grimness. With President Truman previously committed to a tax increase, and some of his cabinet members advising against it, the no-tax-hike group found im-portant support in the President's council of economic advisers. THIS GROUP, reporting to the President on the general economic situation, steered clear of any definite tax stand, but did not hold olive branch to business. And it hinted that some changes in the present tax structure should be made in order to meet what it called a "need for more stability" in government actions affecting the nation's economic well-being.

That word "stability" was the tip-off. It meant, anyone could rea-sonably assume, that the council felt U. S. business must have some

First to Fall

Lesson for January 22, 1950

TROUBLE IN THE CHURCH can start anywhere. Sometimes it starts with the women. That was the way the early church found it. The experiment in fellowship which they tried ran into snags, for not even the first Christians were perfect. The church in Jerusalem was in a sense inter -racial. Some were born and bred in Palesand there tine. were others from the outside, with Greek names, speaking Greek as Dr. Foreman their native tongue -Hellenists they were called. There was argument: Were the Hellenist widows getting their share of the church's help?

Committee Chairman

THE APOSTLES, being called on, refused to straighten the tangle themselves. Let the church elect a committee, they said. First on the list was a man named Stephen. He turned out to be most famous for being the first Christian martyr, but when he fell unconscious be neath that shower of stones, there died no ordinary man.

To begin with, he filled the bill as chairman of that Committee on Grievances. Not many men, then or now, could fill all three qualifications the Apostles required: reputation, spirituality, and wisdom.

It takes a very tactful man to settle a difficulty in which women are concerned; it takes tact to handle any committee; it takes tact to manage an inter-racial situation; it calls for wisdom to handle funds. . . .

Debater

SOME MEN THINK themselves bigger than their jobs. Some men really are bigger, and Stephen was one of these. He spilled over, so to speak; he had even more en ergy and ability than the job called for. We hear of him debating around the synagogue circuit particularly in the synagogues which were used by Jews from other parts of the world.

We have no details of those debates, but we know how they always came out; Stephen got

EDUCATION:

Money & Health

The needs of education in the nation apparently were to be well looked after in Washington, as far as interest and stressing of necessity were concerned.

The American Parents' Committee announced a nine-point program in the child welfare field for consideration at the current congress session.

THIS COMMITTEE was organized three years ago to work for a national program to benefit children.

Legislation the committee will press for will be:

The national school-health-services bill for an annual 35 million dollars grants-in-aid for school health examinations and treatment for all school children. This measure has been passed by the senate

The public - school - construction bill, asking five billion to match state funds for a nation-wide survey of needs, and other sums for emergency school construction, which have been approved by the senate

THE federal aid - for - education bill, which would provide 300 million for grants-in-aid to the states under a formula which gives a larger proportion of funds to the needier states. This bill passed the senate but was blocked in the house because of the controversy "services" to parochial over schools.

The national child-research bill,

The most rabid supporter of the aid-to-Europe program would have to concede that there has been no little visionary treatment of the problem, with the top-drawer dogooders finding it hard to restrain themselves when it came to giving away the American taxpayers' money.

situation took on a new aspect. THERE WERE PLENTY ob-

in its income

The project obviously had more merit than chance for success, for with congress predominantly Democratic, there would be little probability of any great tax changes in the matter of reduced operating expenses.

All indications were that while there might not be any tax increases, there certainly would be little of tax reductions, despite administration claims that the government couldn't operate without more tax revenue. Where the balancing-up will come is problematical as vet.

Now at last. TAFT and Martin outlined their views as congress reconvened. Both declared they would oppose vigorously any administration request for increases either in corporation or high-bracket income taxes. Taft said he would not object to a deficit of about two billion dollars in 1951 if he were sure the government would get back into the black in fiscal 1952. The deficit this year is expected to run about 5.5 billion dollars.

BRITISH: No, Thanks

Miffed because the world bank wanted to know too much about its operations, Great Britain's colonial development corporation withdrew its application to the international bank for a loan of five million dollars.

The 280-million-dollar government corporation, set up in 1948 to foster colonial development, said it wanted the loan to buy "indispensable" American-built land-clearing machinery

THE CORPORATION would have been required to submit its de-tailed budget to the bank for some years ahead and would have had to make quarterly statements showing total assets, liabilities and expenditures of each of its multiple operations.

Chairman Lord Trefargne told newsmen the corporation would buy the "second-best" machinery constructed in Britain and Italy He declared the bank's terms were 'too onerous.'

which asks 7.5 million annual for research in child life and developments

The bill on social security revisions, asking increased benefits for dependent children.

The local public-health units bill, which would increase health safeguards for children. AN INCREASE in funds for the Children's Bureau.

Increased school lunch appropriations.

COFFEE: S11 More

The recent zoom in coffee prices, which jammed food stores with excited crowds of economy-conscious shoppers, will add a little over $11 to the average American house-hold's coffee bill for 1950 unless fewer or thinner cups are drunk this year, says the family economics bureau of Northwestern National Life Insurance company. The retail rise in the United States, averaging around 22 cents a pound from mid-summer to mid-December, parallels an almost equal climb of approximately 21 cents a pound in Latin-American prices on green coffee, according to the bureau.

AMOUNTING to over 38 times the cost of the coffee price rise, or approximately $425 per year, is the average U.S. family's share of the 20-billion-dollar increase since 1939 in our government's annual non-military expenditures, the bureau points out.

A yearly saving of $86, directly and indirectly, would be the average family's share in the four billion dollars which it is estimated can be saved each year merely by modernizing and streamlining government operations; this saving would pay for the average house hold's entire annual supply of 51 pounds of store-bought coffee. even if the price went to $1 a pound, and still leave $35 for sugar and cream, the bureau calculates.

Sleep Habits Revealing

Since practically a third of one's entire lifetime is spent sleeping. this phenomenon properly engages the attention of scientists.

As witness the conclusions by Prof. Alfred Adler, psychologist, that the person who sleeps on his back, stretched out like a soldier up like a hedgehog, he says, probably lacks courage.

economic trends in 1949 may make it necessary to alter the tax structure somewhat before a basis of stability in future years will have been laid.'

This new course laurched the council on a course its former chairman, Edwin G. Nourse, repudiated-that of making recommendations directly to congress on matters of the administration's economic policy.

SECURITY:

A Plea to Wait

Bernard Baruch, elder statesman an over-sufficiency of this with world's goods, didn't think social security benefits should be paid when the recipient becomes 65 years of age. Himself a vigorous 79, Baruch said the retirement age should be raised beyond 65.

He suggested revision of social security laws to permit persons over 65 to go on working and aclaws to permit persons cumulating larger payments.

the decision. We can guess, from his great speech in the hour of his death, what his general line must have been.

Many Christians in Jerusalem at that time had little or no idea that Christianity was actually a new religion; even the name "Christian' had not been thought of. They considered it a form of the Jewish religion. . . .

Scholar

STEPHEN'S SPEECH at his trial (Acts 7) may sound dull to some now, but it was not dull to the audience. No man makes a dull speech on the brink of death. Further, it was that speech that got him killed. His listeners may not have liked it, but they certainly did not think it dull! The beauty of the speech is that it reveals Stephen's keen insight into the religious history of his people.

Speaking without notes, he reviews the history of close to 2,000 years in a 10-minute talk, and yet brings out the main points. Only a real scholar can do that, a man who is both historian and prophet. The most important peaks in Israel's history were God's revelations to them; and Stephen shows that these revelations had never been tied to a house or a book.

No institutions and no place is indispensable to God. The same God who had wrought new things in the past had now wrought a new thing in Christ.

Martyr

STEPHEN'S AUDIENCE was not convinced. Seeing murder in their eyes, Stephen knew his time was short. In a few stinging last words he reminded them that murder was an old story in that Temple. They had killed prophets, they had killed Jesus the "Just One." And now-. Now they dragged Stephen out and stoned him till he died.

Well, you can stop a voice but you cannot stop an idea, Stephen was first to fall, but not the last. To this very year Christ has his martyrs, men and women who will die rather than deny him.

You can silence a man but you cannot silence truth. When the world goes against her, the Church should remember that now as then, 'the blood of the martyrs is the seed of the Church."

Besides-" There was desperation in Guy's tone, because Mr. Moore had begun shuffling papers on his desk. "When I wrote inquiring about a job you said you'd be glad to talk to me."

He had driven all the way up from Denver-1,000 miles-because Mr. Moore had said he'd talk to him. It had taken nearly his last dollar to buy enough gas to make the trip. Now he had nothing left but the 5-year-old car. Just about enough to get him back home, from which he'd started out six months ago, bound and determined to land a job on a newspaper.

Year's day. Bill started in pictures as an extra, in 1919, in C. B. De-Mille's "Why Change Your Wife;" in 1934 he really hit his stride, starring in the "Hopalong Cassidy" series, and has never played any. thing else since. "I fell in love with the part," he says; the part has piled up a fortune for him. And the way the public almost mobs him personal appearances is proof at of his popularity.

Back in the days of silent films Jane Novack was a star; in many a William S. Hart movie she was the gal who gazed into the sunset at the end, with Bill and his horse. In Paramount's "The Furies" she is again linked with the West; she plays a frontier mother. Walter Huston, Barbara Stanwyck and Wendell Corey are co-starred in this dramatization of Niven Busch's book

As you probably know, Rainh Sigwald won the finals on the "Horace Heidt" show, and was awarded the $5,000 prize, a gold championship belt that wasn't big enough-and the dubious honor of having a full-size statue of himself erected in his home town, Charleston, S.C. It does seem as if that lovely city could put the statue's cost to better use, if permitted.

Jerry Ambler, world's champion bronc rider of 1946 and '47, who makes his living staying on a horse, is getting paid to be thrown off one in Columbia's "Beyond the Purple Hills." He'll do special falls in the Gene Autry starrer.

Chester Conklin, of the walrus mustache and rimless spectacles. made his screen debut in 1912 and won fame in Mack Sennett's comedies. He tackles his first straight role in RKO's "Come Share My Love," as caretaker of a ramshackle ranch.

Radio editors in Motion Picture Daily's annual Fame poll named Gordon MacRae "most promising star of tomorrow," and his program, NBC's "The Railroad Hour," of equal rank with Fred Waring's as a musical show. The leading newspaper of Caracas, Venezuela, voted Ruth Roman "the most strik-ing new screen personality of 1949," in a poll of its readers.
