Prospects Over State Promise Good Year

Dallas, May 21—Texas has much to hope for in the way of crop conditions, according to reports compiled by the Department of Public Relations of the Southland Life Insurance Company.

Practically all sections report cotton planting completed. Little, of course, can be predicted about the crop except that the torrential rains of the past two weeks have made replanting necessary in some sections.

The cotton crop will naturally depend very greatly upon conditions during the next few weeks and it is likely that a clear idea may be obtained as to prospects at the end of this month.

The three bright spots on the map this month are the Rio Grande Valley, Gray and Palmer Counties in the Panhandle, and Goliad County in Southeast Texas where all conditions are reported excellent.

ELMO BURRETT SHOULD HAVE MUNICIPAL BAND

Elmo Burrett of the Randall community, a wide-awake booster and correspondent for the Index, writes some pertinent facts regarding the work of the O'Donnell Chamber of Commerce and urges that this town organize and maintain a municipal band. Read his letter:

I have read with interest the article that appeared in last week's issue of the Index relative to the work that has been accomplished by the Community Chamber of Commerce and to the projects that it expects to carry out in the near future.

In regard to the work of the C. of C. I am sure that it has accomplished so much that no one has a right to kick, and furthermore that I believe the town is behind every project that it has undertaken to carry out in the next few months.

It will be remembered that some three or four years back O'Donnell had one of the best bands in the best, in the State of Texas for a town of its size.

That's a fine suggestion. How many more in this town and surrounding territory think as Mr. Burrett does? Do you have an instrument? Do you know of anyone who would become a member of the band? If so, stand up and say so.

Rev. J. T. Weems, former pastor of the O'Donnell Methodist Church, died at his home in Lubbock Tuesday night after a long illness from a complication of diseases. He was about fifty-five years of age, and after serving the church here for one year retired as a supernannate due to failing health.

The body was shipped to Goldthwaite yesterday, and funeral services will be held there today.

Decased is survived by his wife, one son, J. D. Weems of Crosbyton; one daughter, Mrs. E. Claude Montgomery, of Shamrock; two sisters, Mrs. Chas. Henderson and Mrs. Dee Henderson, both of the T-Bar community, and a cousin, Jim Weems, of this city.

O'DONNELL PRODUCE CO. HAS UNIQUE EGG SHOW

The O'Donnell Produce Co. is exhibiting what is claimed to be the best egg show on the South Plains. There are 22 eggs in the show, ranging in size from the smallest to the largest ever seen here.

The smallest egg weighs 7.5 grams and measures less than two inches around lengthwise. It was laid by a hen and brought to the show by Mrs. C. H. Mansell. The largest hen egg measures eight inches in circumference in size from the smallest to the largest ever seen here.

The largest egg is a goose egg and measures nine and one-half inches around lengthwise. It was laid by a turkey and brought to the show by Mrs. C. H. Mansell. The largest hen egg measures eight inches in circumference in size from the smallest to the largest ever seen here.

J. R. Mayo is manager of the show and will pay a nice premium for any egg larger than seven inches or smaller than his hen egg.

HOW DOES TAHOKA STAND ON FAIR PARK TAX?

From the Lynn County News: There has been little discussion here of the proposed tax of 5 cents on the $100 property valuation to enable the county commissioners' court to buy and equip a fair park.

From the lack of discussion, it would seem that the people of Tahoka are utterly indifferent about the matter. At O'Donnell, on the other hand, there has been some newspaper discussion of the matter. One prominent citizen of that little city wrote an article for the O'Donnell Index opposing the tax. He contended that it was strictly a Tahoka move, solely for the benefit of Tahoka, a prominent farmer of the Wells community who is a member of the fair board here in Lubbock, replied to him stating that it was a move by the farmers in behalf of the farmers. The discussion was good-natured but that this election is to be held on Saturday, May 31.

Our columns are open to any citizen who wishes to discuss the proposed pro or con. The people should be thinking about it and be prepared to vote intelligently when election day comes.

The O'Donnell Index

Published every Thursday at O'Donnell, Texas. RITZENTHALER & CARTER Publishers. Editor O. D. CARTER. Business Manager W. H. RITZENTHALER. $1.50 PER YEAR—IN ADVANCE. Advertising Rates on Application.

Entered as second class matter September 28, 1923, at the post office at O'Donnell, Texas, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

As the summer approaches, with its increased tourist and other automobile traffic, death prepares to reap its richest harvest. From the homes of the United States must come 30,000 or more to die and a million others to be injured, some crippled for life, during the year, if last year's record is to be equalled.

This senseless slaughter goes on in spite of all the warnings given, and in the face of the appalling waste of life held daily before our eyes. The pitiful part of this continuous tragedy is that most of these casualties are entirely unnecessary and might be prevented by the exercise of ordinary common sense.

CAMPAIGN EXPENDITURES

It appears that the Senate committee appointed to investigate campaign expenses of senatorial candidates will have plenty of work to do this year, with Illinois and Pennsylvania holding the limelight as in recent former years.

In her campaign for the Republican nomination in Illinois, Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick has reported expenses amounting to $252,572. The Pennsylvania contest between Joseph Grundy and James J. Davis is also expected to be attended by large expenditures.

A NEW KIND OF CANDIDATE

In a recent issue of The Texas Weekly, Editor Peter Moynaux headed an article on the candidacy of Clint C. Small for governor like the above caption. While Senator Small may be a new kind of candidate in an industrial sense, Frank Putnam of Houston, self-styled "prohibition repeal candidate for governor of Texas," is what we call the new kind of candidate.

For many years it has taken a brave man to make such a stand in Texas politics. When prohibition was known to be the will of the majority, all the politicians, regardless of former ideas on the question, began seeking the votes of the prohibitionists. The old "wet" candidate disappeared from Texas politics.

Although we admire Mr. Putnam for his frankness, we are unable to see in him any promise of constructive administration of the state's affairs. He hopes to get the "wet" vote solid and expects to reap the benefit of all the prohibition discussion now dominating the public.

SMALL TOWN NOT DOOMED

If the small town really were doomed it would be a most deplorable fact. Despite some talk to that effect, the small town is not doomed. Pessimists may have inferred as much from early census reports, but Texas editors see quite a different picture in the figures.

Some Texas towns have shown a slight decrease in population, but others have shown increases which vary from slight to surprising percentages. The decrease reflected in census reports, in most cases, were the result of a process of adjustment between the industrial and agricultural fields. The encouraging aspect of the picture, on the other hand, is that the same economic adjustments which subtracted a little from small town population in the past ten years in the next will reverse its process.

In other words, the industrial trend in smaller communities, High tension transmission lines have brought to the small town the same cheap electrical power which formerly constituted a decisive factor in favor of big-city industrial location. Proximity to raw material sources, mainly, is an advantage peculiar to the small town which the great city can never possess.

TRUTHFUL ADVERTISING

Usually the argument is made that every business concern should advertise. Generally speaking, this is true, but there are exceptions. In fact some concerns hardly dare to advertise, because they cannot make good according to the requirements of modern business practices.

TO POLE UNDER ICE

Men have reached both poles by land and air. One more means of reaching them remains to be tried by submarine. Sir Hubert Wilkins, noted British aviator and explorer, proposes to try it.

BUYING PIGS IN A POKE

There is an old-time warning to the effect that one should never buy "a pig in a poke." But a lot of French people have been doing something like that, or worse, according to a press dispatch.

DEATH'S BUSY SEASON

As the summer approaches, with its increased tourist and other automobile traffic, death prepares to reap its richest harvest. From the homes of the United States must come 30,000 or more to die and a million others to be injured, some crippled for life, during the year, if last year's record is to be equalled.

The Gas Stream

HAVE YOU ANSWERED THE QUESTIONNAIRE?

"What is wrong with O'Donnell?" "Plenty of things!" "Right you are, but what, for instance?" "What O'Donnell most needs is plenty of water at a low rate, says one questionnaire sent in. O'Donnell needs paved streets, says another. We need a live-wire Chamber of Commerce, with a full-time secretary another reply says. O'Donnell needs a tri-county fair, yet another asserts. We need more street lights—white way, if you please—says still another. All of which are things no one will gainsay. Sit down with your pencil and answer the questions in full, and get an extra piece of paper and write an article setting forth ways and means of getting the things you think O'Donnell needs. The Index is going to publish a series of articles on the needs of O'Donnell when all the questionnaires are sent in, and we need your suggestions and plans. The chamber of commerce is anxious to get suggestions from the people to help formulate plans and policies. All the business men in O'Donnell will welcome constructive criticisms. Let's all get our heads to thinking for the betterment of our home town.

- 1. How do you feel about O'Donnell as a place to trade?
2. What do you think about the stores here in general?
3. Why?
4. How could these stores be improved?
5. Which are the best stores, in your opinion, in O'Donnell?
6. What criticisms or complaints have you of O'Donnell stores?
7. Which ones?

9. What difficulties do you find in trading in O'Donnell?
10. What articles do you buy elsewhere because you can't get them in O'Donnell?
11. How often do you shop in Lubbock, Tahoka or Lamesa?
12. Do you prefer to buy on credit or for cash?
13. Have you been refused credit by any of the stores or the bank here?
14. Which ones?
15. Has no you trade in O'Donnell if offered more credit?
16. In what way can the local paper be improved?
17. What advertisements do you read in the Index?
18. Are they reliable or unreliable?
19. What improvements would you like to see made in the community?

Edison 120 Years Old

ARE YOU HONEST? BANDITS FAIL, TRY AGAIN

Thomas A. Edison, who sleeps little, admits that if his age were figured by the hours he has worked, he would be about 120 years old. He says he has worked two shifts a day most of his life, and adds: "Lots of other men work two shifts, too, but devote one to playing poker."

Bandits in Detroit recently showed determination worthy of a better calling. They attempted to hold up one bank, but were routed with a spray of tear gas when the cashier pressed a button. They proceeded to another six block away, where they had better luck, securing $3,000 and making good their escape.

Another time-honored belief goes by the board, if a declaration by Dr. Wilkinson, noted Australian orthodontist, may be given credence. He says that the old idea that a heavy jaw and prominent chin denotes strength of character is not necessarily true, but it does indicate that the individual did not suck his thumb when he was a baby.

C. F. Sessinger, a bonding company official, declares that "90 per cent of the people of this country are potential crooks." Meaning, it is assumed, that one out of ten people would steal if the reward were large enough and the chances sufficiently favorable for getting away with it. Of course, most of us like to think that we belong among the trustworthy 10 per cent.

Editors are not the only ones who receive well-earned declarations. The Toronto Telegram records the following note received by a druggist: "My baby has eat his father's parish plaster." Send an anecdote quick by the enclosed girl; also send a bottle of O' Dick alone, as I am a little historical.

Further limitation of the size of trucks and trailers used on public highways is sought by Maryland authorities, which is no doubt well and good, as far as it goes. Even now, a desirable road would be some means of limiting the haughty arrogance of drivers of the same.

Then after you have washed your body with muscle oil. This will stimulate your skin, and help to prevent it from becoming too dry. M. S. C. asks: "How can I prevent a shiny nose?" Reply: Shiny noses often occur because the skin is inclined to be oily. After cleansing your skin thoroughly with cleansing cream, wash your face with warm water and a pure, mild soap. Then tighten your pores with a mild astringent before applying foundation cream, powder and lipstick. A good astringent will tighten your skin and prevent too much oil coming out on your face. It will also remove any excess oil that you are striving. Besides this external treatment, oily skins usually require a definite treatment from the inside. An incorrect diet has much to do with oily skins, and as a rule cutting down on sweets and starches will help to cure this condition. You would not advise you to begin a strenuous diet without first consulting your physician. Every day eat a little less care in selecting your food.

MAKES MONEY FEEDING CATTLE FOR MARKET

Lamesa, May 15—Raising beef cattle at home and finishing them instead of shipping them to other markets for fattening is the new source of income for farmers in this section, as was revealed this week by W. W. Evans, county agricultural agent of Evans County.

Williams has a square mile of land on 400 acres of which is in mesquite grass and cotton in cultivation. He charges the mother cows with $1.00 per acre on the 400 acres of pasture grass and $8.00 per acre on the 400 acres of cotton.

Four years ago Williams purchased 21 Hereford heifers at $20 each and one purebred cow at $100. He increased his herd to 320 head of mother cows or an initial investment of $740.

LYNN COUNTY FAIR PRESIDENT WRITES URGING CITIZENS TO VOTE 5 CENT TAX

The Index: On Saturday, May 31, the people of Lynn County are to have the privilege of determining whether or not they will in a material way help their assistance and encouragement to the agricultural and livestock interests of the county, when they vote at the Lynn County Fair election.

We all know that this is an agricultural and livestock county. It is the duty of every citizen to see to it that there is no measure by which these interests may be promoted better than through friendly competition of agricultural and livestock exhibitors at the fairs which have been held for many years, and which will continue to be popular as long as this is an agricultural country.

Some two hundred and fifty enterprising citizens of Lynn County have asked that the people of the county vote a small tax of .05 on the $100 valuation of the county for the purpose of buying and equipping a Lynn County Fair Ground, which is authorized by the statutes of this state.

According to the statutes under which this election has been called the Honorable Commissioners Court has absolute control of the grounds and improvements. It has been the plan of the Lynn County Fair Association that the Honorable Commissioners Court lease this ground and improvements to the Lynn County Fair Association, and of course the Honorable Court may do this under whatever circumstances and agreements which they may see fit.

ANCIENT CROSS, SOLE MARK, WHERE CAPT. JOHN SMITH LANDED IN 1607

VIRGINIA BEACH, VA.—A gap of three centuries in travel was bridged recently here when an airplane landed on the spot where Capt. John Smith and his British Cavaliers first touched American soil in April, 1607, and held their first religious service in America. The occasion for the airplane's appearance was a recent celebration held under the auspices of the Association of Tidewater Virginia Women commemorating the occasion. With his companions from the intrepid little ships "Sarah Constant," "Godspeed" and "Delivery" Captain Smith opened a sealed box containing "Orders for Government" which directed them to proceed inland and establish a colony. This they did on May 13, 1607, naming it Jamestown in honor of King James. Today Virginia Beach is a thriving resort colony boasting the luxurious Cavalier Hotel, beach club, golf courses and a score of amusement places. The James River, which Capt. Smith and his followers named and sailed North upon to establish Jamestown has now been traversed by the 4 1/2 mile long James River Bridge, world's largest highway structure which carries motorists direct over the Atlantic Coastal Highway without a swan.

GIRLS' AUXILIARY SHOWERS MRS. VAUGHN

Mrs. Lee Vaughn, who before her recent marriage was Miss Mary Dell Vermillion, was honored Tuesday afternoon at a surprise shower sponsored by members of the Girls Auxiliary of the Baptist Church.

In the church they found a large number of ladies, but the real purpose of the meeting did not dawn on the honoree until a special delivery letter was brought to her. The contents, in the form of a poem, directed her to the vestibule where she found a huge box decorated in G. A. colors and filled with an assortment of lovely and useful gifts.

R. F. HESTER, PIONEER OF THIS SECTION, MAKES REFLECTIONS AND GIVES SOME VERY TIMELY ADVICE

Having been asked to give some of my experiences and observations as an old settler in this country, I am glad to have the use of the columns of our valuable paper for that purpose.

For twenty years I have lived within three and one half miles or near the place we now call O'Donnell, having put in the first farm in Dawson County north of Lamesa.

Real Frontier

At the time I came here there were perhaps not more than twenty homes within a radius of twenty miles of the present site of O'Donnell, and these were nearly all either shacks or dugouts. Coyotes and antelopes roamed almost unmolested over the open prairie.

About this time, though, settlers began coming in and taking up claims; and as they did so, they established some kind of shelter and began the cultivation of small crops of grain sorghums, consisting of kafir, milo maize, and sorghum, together with a little cotton, every thing yielded abundantly. Cotton ordinarily yielded from one half to one bale per acre, but although it was so prolific, still there was not much encouragement to grow it here, for the nearest gin and cotton market was Big Spring. However, we usually made a few bales and hauled them in mule wagons to Big Spring, returning with groceries and other necessary commodities.

Crops Were Abundant

The lumber for all the old buildings that one sees around here now came either from Big Spring or Colorado City. There was a good deal of freighting done from Colorado City.

We had more rain and snow then than we have now; and there were no insect pests, or at least few insects to molest crops. Naturally, our farming efforts were very successful, and as a result settlers soon began pouring in.

Towns Organized

Tahoka was organized about twenty-seven years ago, and Lamesa about twenty-five years ago; while our own O'Donnell began its existence twenty years ago. The railroad was put through here in June, 1910, and found the old Rochelle Hotel (then O'Donnell Hotel) owned and operated by C. H. Doan, a general merchant house owned and operated by L. G. Phillips, and two residences occupied by Dr. A. W. Thompson and G. Phillips, respectively. These were the only residence or business houses here at the time.

Sees Bright Future

During these twenty-eight years the country has grown and developed as only a fine country can, and if farmers are wise in their management, there certainly is a bright future in store for us.

Deplores Tractors

Being old and experienced in farming, I should like to make a few suggestions as to the method of farming which, in my opinion, seems best suited for this country.

In the first place I regret to see the favor that the tractor has received. I think farmers will see that it is a failure. We are sending an immense amount of money out of this country with which to purchase the tractors; also the money with which we buy the fuel that runs them is sent away, and then besides this, it permits a monopoly on cultivation of the soil which impoverishes many and greatly discourages home-making. If tractors were to prove a success, their success would be deplorable, for it would prove a blessing to the few and a curse to the many.

Urges Diversification

All right then, away with the tractor! Let us use mules and horses together with improved machinery, I allude to the double row plows and cultivators. Let us plant at least half of our crops to feed stuffs and not more than half of it to cotton in any case. Let us cultivate

EAST SIDE NEWS

(Accidentally omitted last week.)

Well, we certainly had a fine time last week. Sand storm daily, had a bout half inch of rain Friday night; sand storm Saturday with water standing in the fields.

H. L. Brewer stated if the sand kept blowing like it did last Saturday he will have to postpone going to town. Now that would be too bad, for business men would have to come out and see about Uncle Lee, if he were not there.

Mr. and Mrs. Yarbrough and Mr. Isabell and family spent Sunday evening with H. L. Brewer and wife.

Mrs. P. G. Galneau and children of Big Spring are visiting relatives at O'Donnell, Berry Flat and Draw this week.

Nice crowd at the dance Friday night at Treadway. Part of the cars got stuck after the rain and spent the rest of the night in the mud hole.

Bass finished the well on Mrs. Cox's place and said he sure did get a good well of water. That is fine, as water is hard to get on some farms.

Quite a few from out this way attended church at O'Donnell Sunday. Our mail carrier, Charlie Mintog, doesn't know whether to spend his money for rubber boots or eye goggles.

COP

PRIDE LOCALS

(Too Late For Last Week)

We have had several showers but not enough to plant on. J. D. Day was in Lamesa this week attending court.

R. D. Martin was in Lamesa Monday on business.

Ed Moore hauled a trailer load of hogs to the O'Donnell market on Tuesday.

Morris Thomas is visiting home folks this week after a year's absence in Canada and North Dakota and other points.

Mr. Bartlet our commissioner is having our roads put in good shape using the graders and blades too.

We hear that the trustees have employed the same teachers for another term. Seems you can never tell how things will go.

We guess Mr. Devore thought people were talking too much so he reeled up part of the Pride phone line and hung it up on a post.

E. A. Roberts is shipping a car load of hogs this week.

Several are talking of transferring to other schools next term on account of the dissatisfaction with the teachers here.

Mr. Golden of Seury county was up looking over his farm at Pride this week.

right and she is Radway's sole heiress. She will be one of the richest women in a world of rich women. I can get a million from Radway. If I could get it just as easily from her." Bettington shook his head obstinately. "The cases are not parallel. Mrs. Radway is not money mad. Her fortunes are not dependent on her personal exertions."

Girl Was Dressing Hurriedly; She Feared She Was Late.

After all these years Evelyn found herself free. No more the fear all those subtle cruelties which he had so often inflicted on her, or look forward to six years with dread. She must send your parents a wire she said when she was more moderate. "But I can't spare you. You must not leave me when I am ashore. I have had very few friends in my life and I need you."

"What do you want me to do?" he demanded. "This is my plan," said Clements. "I want her assurance that the money will be paid. If she agrees to do this without consulting lawyers or friends, I shall let that fool of a captain run the Albatross into the East river and rant and delude as he chooses. I shall attend to him. She learns. She will refuse at first; she will certainly want to consult some one. Women always do. I shall forbid her to tell Hallett. He would never know it on a ship he commands. He couldn't. He's the obstinate, honest sort, who would meet death for a prejudice and think he was dying for principle. She will talk to you."

"What a damnable situation to be in! Bettington was a man who detested deceit and now he was committed to the practice of it in order to save the life of the woman for whom he cared. He wondered if he could explain that his actions were dictated solely in the interests of Mrs. Radway and his friend's daughter. He wasn't an ordinary wireless operator and Bob, would make any effort to explain the real situation impossible. Hallett would scent a plot, should loudly enough for some of the crew to hear of his opinions, and Bettington would lose his usefulness."

Captain Hallett read the burial services for those who die at sea and Mrs. Radway would attend that was mortal of her went sink into the green water. All hands were mustered to the last rites and she saw, for the first time, to what men the Albatross was entrusted. There wasn't a crew member about those creatures gathered together by the steward; they reminded her of the crews she had read of as gathered by crimps for service in the merchant vessels of another day. She was relieved when the captain dismissed them to their stations. "Mary," she said kindly, "run away and talk to your wireless boy; I want to be alone."

Her train of thought was broken by Clements. "I want a few minutes' talk with you, madam," he began. She hesitated a little. She was in no mood for business. She supposed it was something to do with the catering. This was a department over which her late husband had exercised his own supervision. "Tomorrow morning," she told him. "I am not feeling very well today."

"Out of what?" Bettington cried sharply. "Difficulties. I shall not specify them. One is named Sam and the other is known as Metzger."

"What about Hallett and the others?" "You have heard the death rattle in his throat. As to the others, what are they but boys? There will be no trouble at all. I think I can prevail upon Mrs. Radway to see what is best to be done. I count on your influence with her. Naturally Hallett has tried to influence her and most likely something of what he has said has made her uneasy. She will realize that her position aboard is different now. Radway was the conventional protection and now he is removed. Inevitably, she will become more reserved, but that will not mean she has ceased to have confidence in you."

"And if I decline?" He reflected a moment. "I am going to rely on your intelligence when you have heard my news to do as I wish. Mrs. Radway, you must know that I am not a steward at all. I assumed this grotesque and braided jacket for special reasons. The death of your husband upset my plans."

"Then what are you?" she demanded. Clements was glad she did not show fear, although he was sure she experienced it. He knew there was no creature so difficult to deal with as an hysterical woman. "A collector of coins. You might call my hobby by a harder name. At considerable cost I induced Mr. Radway to buy the boat. Getting the crew together was another item. It was my intention to hold your husband to ransom for a million dollars."

"He outlined his plan and the result for which he believed success would have been certain. But he made no mention of the forger's name. "You horrify me," she cried, "and I am glad, your plans have come to naught."

"But have they?" he returned. "That's just the point. I admit I feared they had at first. You are his heir, Mrs. Radway, and shall take his place. If you agree to pay me the money and swear not to take any legal steps against me, I will engage that the trip back to New York will be swift and free from any unpleasantness. Hallett will never need to know anything."

"I shall not pay you. I will not lend myself to such an infamous thing." "Then you will put yourself in a great deal of trouble," he said in an even tone. "Much more trouble than you can imagine. Let us take the thing in detail. You inform Hallett. Very well. He will try to intimidate the crew. He will find himself, if I can save him in time, in Irons. Leary, one of my men, assumes command and we turn again south. We shall call at the Bahamas. "You will have to give in some time or another. The authorities will look for us."

"Oh, no. Miss Urwin will have written to her parents, stating that you are remaining away for an indefinite period. The same hand which was to have forged your husband's letters will forge hers. Letters from you will be received by your attorneys in New York to the same effect. I have left nothing to chance."

"But after a time you will have to give in. You cannot keep us away for ever." "After a time, my dear lady—that is, if you wear out my patience—you will not want to return to your native land; nor will the girl Mary. Come now, you are a woman of the world. Consider the situation; consider the type of men there are aboard. . . . I observed that during the service just over, you could not help looking at the chief engineer. He is the man who crooked nose and the eyes like polished jet. There is a man who is hard to handle. And you may have seen the man called Sam. He is the broad speckle creased with the roll- ing walk and enormous face. In his less angry moods he likes the solace of youth."

Evelyn Radway put her hands over her burning face. "Stop a stop!" she cried. Most vividly the horrors presented themselves to her which he had hinted at. They were ravaging wolves. She wondered how many more of them were hidden in the secret places of this terrible vessel to come out like jungle animals in the darkness. Little Mary Urwin, who had been allowed to come off the trip because she had promised to take care of her! "I am glad you see what lies in store if you are foolish enough to force my hand. You are helpless. It is fortunate a man of my temperament is in command."

He wondered what subtle thought changed her face. She was looking at him with almost a pleading way. "Is— is Doctor Waite one of your men?" "No. What makes you think that?" He could see that her relief was enormous. "Captain Hallett told me you and he were so much together." She felt ashamed that she had doubted him. She ought to have known that he was one of the dependable loyal men of the stuff true friends are made of. There was one man aboard on whom she could rely for guidance. Clements made the surgeon's position even more reasonable.

"My health is indifferent and I have needed his care. I suppose you wish to talk this over with him. Warn him that a word to Hallett, his nephew or the Unwins, and there will be bloodshed instantly. If once fighting begins even I can't say when it will cease."

He did not try to emphasize matters. He could see that she had made up her mind. She would not let Hallett know. The matter of the payment would be taken up when she was in a more composed frame of mind. The coming interview with Andrew Orme would be of great service to him. A million dollars! With his lion's share of it, what might not his next carefully planned coup realize?

Most criminals have longed to be able to start anew with the knowledge the years have brought them and freed from those marks of identification which the police record so well. Perhaps in all the history of crime there had been no such case as that of the man who called himself by the name of Clements. Not again would he run the risks that he had once taken. With money, he could always hire men for the rougher work. He roused himself from these pleasing reflections when Mrs. Radway rose

"It's robbery!" He declared. "It's to her feet. She was a beautiful woman. There was little to marvel at in the doctor's surrender to her charms. He rather liked the man he thought of as Andrew Orme, and he hoped Andrew Orme liked him. The minor operation of which he had spoken was in reality one of extreme delicacy; no bungler must attempt it. He intended to keep 'em with him permanently. Facial surgery was not old enough for anyone to state with certainty how well it would last."

"I think I should like to see Doctor Waite," Mrs. Radway said. "I will send him in, but caution you not to let him try any violence with me or endeavor to make Hallett an ally. If he disobeys your warning he may be dooming you to a worse danger than he knows."

Bettington was in his room. "Mrs. Radway wants you. Everything has turned out as I wished. She will warn you not to be violent to me; she thinks you are her only friend. It will be no difficult; already she believes in you. You have no prejudices to overcome."

"She'll pay?" Bettington thought it would seem odd if he made no comment on a decision which meant a great deal of money to him. He started on his career of deception by smiling at the man he would gladly have strangled. "It was Mary Urwin who really decided her. I played those two trump cards, Sam and Metzger. Metzger was watching her like a hawk all through the burial service, and she noticed him. Metzger has been less fortunate than I; he cannot conceal his emotions. I shall seem to avoid you, but will come to your room when dinner is over."

Never had Bettington experienced the sense of shame so keenly as when he left Clements and entered the library. Evelyn Radway was walking up and down. She crossed quickly to him as he entered and looked into his eyes without speaking. Then with a little sudden, spontaneous gesture she put out her hands to him. "I believe you are really my friend," she said. (Continued next week)

RALLS WOMAN COULD HARDLY LIVE; NOW WELL

Was in Bad Health For 21 Years, But Chiropactic Renewals Former Strength

To Whom It May Concern: I just want to tell every woman suffering from female troubles as I was, what Chiropactic Adjustments have done for me. Now I was in a very run-down condition, wasn't able to do my house work, and was so nervous I could hardly live; I suffered something terrible every month, was so dispondent I feared my own sanity; I would have dizzy spells un- til I could hardly stand—I could neither look up or down without staggering. Just to make a long story short, I had been in bad health for 21 years; I had all but given up hope of ever feeling better. I had spent hundreds of dollars on medicine and doctor bills, and undergone two very serious operations without much relief. So a friend of mine advised me to give chiropactic a trial. I was then seated in a car ready to come home, so I decided I'd go and see this chiropactor, and so I did. I had much faith in chiropactors. I couldn't have walked up the stairs by myself, but thanks to the Lord and the chiropactor I can run up them now if I want to. I can wash, scrub and cook without any trouble at all; I can sit at the machine and sew for a half-day and it doesn't hurt me on bit—something I hadn't been able to do for years. I used to wonder how anyone could be so well minded as to believe a chiropactor could do a sick person any good when they didn't give medicine, but since taking chiropactic treatment I am thoroughly convinced it is the only way to health, and I just wish all who are in bad health could be benefited as I have been.—Mrs. Edgar Owen. DRILLING CONTINUES IN NEW ANDREWS OIL FIELD

Drilling activity in Andrews county this week had reached one of the busiest points since the discovery well came in last year. King No. 1, an offset of Deep Rock's No. 1, the discovery well, had reached a depth of 4,265 feet during the latter part of this week. Drilling has been delayed to allow the placing of cement pipe casing in the well, which was ordered by the Railway Commission for safety. Gas was found in the King well at a depth of 4,206 feet recently. Two wells are expected to spud in this week while five others are drilling in Andrews county.

Calgary's Big Stampede and Indian Days at Banff

STAMPEDE PARADE, CALGARY

PRINCE OF WALES TROPHY FOR CALGARY STAMPEDE

DONOR OF WALES AND MAJOR WEBSTER, CALGARY

FIELD MARSHAL DUCK-HUNG AS INDIAN CHIEF, CALGARY

Two of the outstanding spectacles in the Canadian West this year are the Calgary Exhibition and Stampede, July 7-12 at Calgary and Indian Days at Banff in the Canadian Rockies later in July. Guy Weadick, who knows every cowboy and cowgirl in the United States and Canada declares that the Stampede this year will be the greatest event, and he should know because he started it away back before the Great War and has seen it grow in attendance from a very small standing race of the Last Great West Stampede, which consists among many other things of a series of steer-roping and steer-decorating contests, wild cow milking competitions, chuck wagon races, square dance, Indian chief races, calf roping, wild steer riding with surcingle only, and bucking horse contest in which hard-boiled cowboys match wits and skill with wild horses. During the first Stampede, Tom Threepersons, a half-breed, was "taken from a county jail" like Kake in "The Mikado" rode a demon horse for Canada after all competitors were thrown, and then went back to the jail to serve the remainder of his sentence, with his prize money in his pocket and his horse on his back. Tom's offense was a very small one, possibly 30 days but he was one grand cowboy!

Each year the Stoney Indians go to Banff for their annual pow-wow, and have sports in the Elk Pasture, and each year the visitors to Banff see these Indians parade through the streets of Banff in all the glory of eagle feathers, ermine tails and beaded buckskin, and do their old tribal sports including bow and arrow contests, wrestling on horseback, etc., as well as showing a lot of visitors to Banff the real old Indian stuff. A papoose draped around her neck and saddle rode 125 miles to win a prize of $3.00 for the best-dressed squaw with babies. Indian Days at Banff appeal always to visitors from Eastern Canada and the United States.

RANDALL NEWS

Elmo Burkett, Co. All of the farmers are very busy taking advantage of the fine rains we have been having in this section. If the weather is favorable, the planting will more than likely be completed in this community by June 1. The season is the best we have had in this section for several years, and we are all confidently expecting to make a bumper crop. Our school came to an end Friday, May 9, and everyone was surely glad for vacation time to roll around. We are to have the same teachers again next year, and as everyone was so well pleased with the work accomplished by them this year, we are very fortunate in securing them for another term. We are very sorry to report that our Sunday school has been discontinued because we have no place to meet since our school building was wrecked. We surely hated to have it stopped at this time, because the interest was gradually increasing. However, we expect to start it again as soon as we can get a meeting place.

The Home Brew Boys went over to O. K. this week and carried off the big end of a hotly contested baseball game, the score being 13 to 12. It will be remembered that the Home Brew team is composed chiefly of Randall boys. Mr. and Mrs. Claude Tomlinson and son, C. L., and Mr. and Mrs. Maston Pemberton and family all of O'Donnell, were visitors in our community Sunday afternoon. Arnel and Miss Esther Davis were in Lamesa Saturday taking their music lessons from Mrs. Hazel Gary. Jim Ables got "kinda sore" during one of our regular sand storms last week, and as soon as the sand let up enough for him to open his mouth, he went so far as to say, "All this country is good for is prairie dogs, and now that the people are killing the prairie dogs, they are ruining the country." The opinion of Mr. Ables is probably the average at this time of the year, but we will all be proclaiming it one of the best countries in the world when we have our other successful year. MILK PLANT MANAGER HAS BEEN EMPLOYED. Lamesa, May 14.—Clay C. Dyer of Maryville, Mo., has been employed as manager of the $200,000 prepared milk plant at Lamesa by the first part of next week. The plant is owned by the West Texas Products Company, according to G. J. Norman, president. Davis has been engaged in dairy manufacturing practically all of his life and is signing from the position of manager of the Nodaway Milk Products Company at Maryville to accept the new place. According to word from him he has accepted the position and is expected to arrive in Lamesa about the first part of next week. Milk Plant will probably begin operation during the first part of next year. On higher education—university and state-supported colleges—spent in 1929 $9,093,243.
