WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Soviets Break Nazi Lines at Kharkov To Relieve Pressure on Kerch Front; U. S. Army Takes Over All Air Lines; Lower Wage Brackets Face Income Tax

Pierre Laval's position grew more difficult as the United States in practical effect ceased to recognize Vichy control over Martinique and other French possessions in the Western hemisphere. Immobilization of French warships at Martinique followed conferences between American representatives and the resident French high commissioner. Above (center) is shown Laval with M. Cathala, (left) his minister of finance and M. Paul Marion, secretary of state.

RUSSIAN FRONT:

Nazis Seek Oil

With the rich oil fields of the Caucasus as the prize, Nazi and Russian Red army fighters locked forces in a combat which before the summer's end may determine the war's outcome.

Principal theater of the Nazis' newest conquest effort was the Kerch peninsula, gateway to the Soviet's farflung oil possessions.

While the Russians admitted that a German break into the Kerch defenses had caused a withdrawal to new positions, the Soviet communiques reported that the new line was being held in good order and that a heavy toll was being taken of the attackers.

Balancing this news was a report that Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's armies further north had broken through the first German defense lines around the industrial city of Kharkov and were preparing for an invasion of the city itself. Success of the Kharkov offense would mean that the German move toward the Caucasus would be forestalled.

AIRLINERS: Will Fly for U.S.

The war department's action in taking over the $100,000,000 commercial aviation industry emphasized again the United Nations' conviction that air power will be the determining factor in winning the war.

In a drastic order authorized by President Roosevelt, the army curtailed private aviation, requisitioned 55 of the nation's 250 palatial airliners for immediate military service and directed that 70 more be converted by the 17 airlines themselves into cargo carriers.

Virtual elimination of night flying was forecast in the new order. A change in air routes and the closing of many commercial airports for the war's duration was indicated. Employees of the airlines including 2,200 pilots and 18,984 other personnel were given their choice of joining up with the air corps or the ferry command or remaining with war department-operated lines.

INCOME TAXES: More Will Pay

Prospects that a single person making as little as $9.62 weekly and a childless married couple whose income is $23.08 a week or more will have to file income tax returns were seen in the action of the house ways and means committee in voting to lower the exemptions for married persons to $1,200 a year from the present $1,500 and for single persons to $500 from $750. Allowances for children and other dependents would be left at $400. More than 8,000,000 persons, it was estimated, would be added to the present fold of 17,000,000 Americans who file income tax returns.

Taxpayers could take comfort from the fact that the committee voted to retain the present 10 per cent earned income credit for earned income up to $14,000 a year. For example, a person earning $1,200 a year is permitted to deduct $120 from the amount which would otherwise be subject to the normal tax provision, provided his income is derived from wages or salaries.

MARTINIQUE: Warships Immobilized

As French warships at Martinique were being immobilized, the United States came closer to its goal of completely neutralizing French possessions in the Caribbean sea.

While Vichy France had issued a note covering the situation, American representatives indicated they were "doing business" with Adm Georges Robert, high commissioner of the French West Indies.

SHIP BUILDING:

Good News Ahead

"All around the clock, seven days a week" is the rate at which Uncle Sam's ship production machine is being utilized, it was disclosed by War Shipping Administrator Emory S. Land.

Good news for the future was held forth in the admiral's statement that the nation's shipyards will turn out 15,000,000 tons of new vessels annually after 1943 and will continue that pace "as long as necessary."

AXIS SUBS: Inland Attacks

When an Axis submarine slipped through the net of Canada's coastal defenses to torpedo and sink two ships in the St. Lawrence river, it marked the first time in history an enemy underseas craft had penetrated North America's inland waterways.

Increasing boldness of U-boat warfare all along the Atlantic seaboard was indicated by the sinking of seven additional United Nations' merchantmen in American waters. At the same time an enemy mine was discovered near the Florida coast. Exact location of the U-boat at-tack in the St. Lawrence was not disclosed in the Canadian communique, nor were the names of the freighters sunk. That the same submarine was responsible for both sinkings was indicated by the fact that they both occurred "in the same general locality and at the same general time."

The St. Lawrence river is navigable to ocean-going vessels between its mouth and the city of Quebec, 500 miles upstream. The communique noted that both ships were sunk in the river and not in the gulf outside

TIRES:

U.S. Wants Them

Jesse Jones, secretary of com-merce, revealed that the Reconstruction Finance corporation had made available $150,000,000 for the purchase by the government of new and used tires and tubes now in the hands of consumers.

County tire ration boards of the Office of Price Administration and RFC agencies will be responsible for administering the plan, Mr. Jones declared. A voluntary system of tire purchasing will be tried out first. Should this fail, commandeering of civilian tires looked like the next step.

Coincident with the Jones announcement came a pessimistic report on the nation's rubber situa-tion issued by the Office of Emergency Management. This report entitled "The Truth About Rubber" stated that U. S. production of synthetic rubber this year "may reach 28,000 tons," and "cannot be expected to be much more than 350,000 tons" in 1943.

Only by "slapping the Japs back in their islands" will the American people regain all the rubber they need, and return to prewar use, the report concludes.

Here is the 107th cavalry regiment, which has now been converted to mechanized mounts. The regiment is shown in a mass column speedily moving toward position from Fort Ord, Calif. The "steeds" range from motorcycles to jeeps and scout cars. So passed the 107th cavalry regiment, which had its origin in 1877 as the First City Troop of Cleveland, Ohio.

In this picture pilots are shown looking over a Douglas dive-bomber which had its tail sheared off when a Jap bomber crashed on the deck of an aircraft carrier. CHAPTER I

From the high edge of Mogul to the floor of Powder Desert was a sheer drop of foutteen hundred and sixty feet; and even on the quietest day a stream of warm air from the desert boiled up the face of the rim, so that if a man stood at the breakoff and tossed his hat outward it invariably sailed back to him. Clay Morgan had shown this to his daughter Janet long ago. It was a part of their ritual on the trip to town, and as soon as they reached the rim this afternoon, she remindec him of it again; whereupon he sailed his hat across the rim, caught it on the rebound, and witnessed her delighted smile. Afterwards they turned downgrade on a road steeply and narrowly cut against the face of the mountain.

recite lines of "Hiawatha," in preparation for a school play. Riding slightly back of her, Clay Morgan watched her small arms gesture and her naturally sober face lighten and grow faintly dramatic. To him it was a matter of never-ending astonishment that one nine-year-old girl's head could hold so much.

The silence and the slow way she had of judging people came from him. The vivid imagination and the growing beauty came from her mother. It was something Clay Morgan had watched for, through the years-and yet, much as he had expected it, it still was strange to see in this girl the image of a woman nine years dead, to know that the tempestuous Lila who had been his wife now reached out of the grave to remind him of the one brief and violent and miserable and beautiful year of their marriage. In the beginning she had said she loved him; she had died hating him.

brush hummocks, built by the east wind, lay before them; around these lumpy barriers, high as a man's shoulders, meandered the deep twin ruts of the road. This September day's sun was half-down in the west and heat lay heavy on the flat; and in the near distance, on the benchland at the head of the desert, the houses of War Pass made an irregular outline. Toward this cattle town they traveled, Janet dreaming her nine-year-old dreams in sober stillness, Clay Morgan holding his clear intimations of trouble

Lesson for May 24 THURSDAY: THE LAST DAY

WITH THE DISCIPLES

LESSON TEXT-Luke 22:14-30. GOLDEN TEXT-This do in remembrance of me.-Luke 22:19.

The last day! How quickly it comes, and how fleeting yet meaningful its moments.

We do not know what our Lord did on Wednesday of Passion Week. In all probability He remained in Bethany to rest in fellowship with His friends. Surely He needed that day of quiet, for that which had gone before, difficult and strenuous as it had been, was as nothing to that which lay before Him.

Late on Thursday He and His disciples came to the upper room where Peter and John had already made preparation for the observance of the Passover (Luke 22:8). This feast had (since that great and awful night of Israel's redemption out of Egypt's bondage) pointed forward to the Christ and to His cross as the fulfillment of the type of redemption by the shedding of blood. But now the hour had come for Him to give Himself in that death, and so He set aside the Passover (because it has been fulfilled) to establish the great Christian feast of remembrance-the Lord's table, which now shows forth His death till He come.

I. The Final Passover (vv. 14-18).

Our Lord looked forward with intense desire to the Passover which He now observed with His disciples, for it was the last celebration of that feast recognized by God. All that it had foreshadowed of deliverance and hope was fulfilled in Him who now sat at the table. He had moved forward with resolute purpose to this day when His mission on earth was to be accomplished. and He was to become the Christian's Passover lamb (I Cor. 5:7).

The fact that He had looked forward to it with desire does not minimize the deep darkness of either Gethsemane or Calvary. Remember that, when in the garden He faced that hour and thought of the possibility of the cup being taken from Him, He said to the Father. "Not what I will, but what thou wilt." Praying concerning the same matter (in John 12:27), He said, 'Now is my soul troubled; and what shall I say? Father, save me from this hour: but for this cause came I unto this hour."

II. The First Communion (vv. 19,

"They been arguing about it since noon. I don't see nothin' to argue about. We caught Ollie dead in his tracks, bendin' over a Three Pines calf with his iron. But there's a couple townsmen on the jury. They're the ones hanging this thing up.

Hack Breathitt grinned: "Ben Herendeen's sore enough to shoot the jury." He gave Charley Hillhouse a slanting, skeptic glance. "Your boss is gettin' pretty large for his pants, Charley. But then he always was that way.'

Ben Herendeen owned Three Pines, and Charley Hillhouse was Herendeen's foreman, loyal to the core. Hillhouse said in a mild voice: "If they don't throw Ollie Jacks

"Don't talk like that," said Charley Hillhouse.

But both of them were watching Clay Morgan, who sat silent all the while, buried in his own thinking. He had always been the silent one, the last one to speak. He said, very quiet with his words, "I want you to know this, Hack. If you ever get in trouble, come to me. I'll stand behind you."

Charley Hillhouse shook his head, bothered by Morgan's words. knew you'd say that, Clay, but I wish you hadn't. Makes it tough on me. Long as I work for Three Pines, I'll let nothing get between me and the ranch. Nothing at all." He met Hack Breathitt's glance and quietly added: "Don't come to me, Hack." That was all. These three rose and crossed the room, pushing through the doors. Ben Herendeen remained under the locust trees, with Lige White and Gurd Grant and a group of Three Pines riders. Sheriff Nickum was also there, coat hung loosely to his gaunt frame. Jesse Rusey, farther down the street, watched this crowd; and on him Clay Morgan put his glance for a moment. Charley Hillhouse went across the dust to join Herendeen. Janet turned out of McGarcorral. Clay Morgan faced the length of Main Street, with its double row of angular wooden buildings and its deep golden dust. Under the courthouse locusts at the corner of Main and Stage, a large group of men idly waited; and he knew then that the trial of the rustler, Ollie Jacks, was still unfinished.

He dismounted by the stable and permitted both horses to nose into the water trough before tying them to the rack. Janet said: "I am going to Ann McGarrah's, Daddy." She always had a quick smile for him when she mentioned Ann Mc-Garrah's name, as though there might be some secret involved. "I think," she added, "we will eat supper there"-and watched him a moment with her observant eyes.

"You seem pretty sure of that." Morgan remained near the stable's hitching-rack to roll up a quick smoke. But he was never a man to let his eyes be idle; thus now, while his fingers tapered off the cigarette his glance ran down the street, past the courthouse and post office and the Long Grade saloon, past the Mountain House hotel and beyond that to the little cluster of brick and dobe buildings of Old Town. Two cross-streets dropped from a higher level of the hillside. Up there sat the high, square, ironornamented houses owned by the wealthier merchants and the big cattlemen who liked to winter their families in town. This was four o'clock and already the street was in shadow, though the far desert burned up its brown-gray glitter. Jesse Rusey, the town's marshal, cruised the walk-short, broad body swinging a little. He had the shoulders of a wrestler; above the sweep of his mustaches was a glance as cool as flint. This man had a kind of rocky solidness, a kind of formidable courtesy. He said, "How are you, Clay?" and passed by. Charley Hillhouse and Hack Breathitt broke from the courthouse group and walked toward him, their boots puffing up the street's dust; but for a moment he remained slackly by the hitching-rack, his mind picking away at the mystery of Jesse Rusey. This town marshal had been in War Pass for twenty years, yet nobody knew him, or knew what he thought, or knew where his sympathies actually lay. Hillhouse and Breathitt came cheerfully forward and for a moment these three fast friends stood by the hitching-rack and swapped gossip, pleased to be together again. All of them had grown up in the country, they had gone to school together and had worked and hunted and had their fun together, and ""You know what I'm thinkin', boys?

They moved toward the Long Grade saloon, three abreast. Directly opposite, under the locust trees. Clay noticed the crowd grouped around Ben Herendeen-Gurd Grant and Lige White, both big cattlemen. and Sheriff Ed Nickum, and a few smaller ranchers like Hamp Brigham and Vance Ketchell. Herendeen's riders, with a few townsmen, made up the rest of the crowd. Hack Breathitt got a bottle, two glasses, and a bunch of cigars. They went to a corner table and sat down. Hack Breathitt passed the cigars to Morgan, poured a drink for Hillhouse and for himself and settled deep in the chair. For that little interval he was as relaxed as he could ever be, still smiling a little, still with the sparkle of secret amusement in his eyes. He said, "To law and order," and downed the drink.

"You," said Hillhouse tolerantly, 'are an ornery son-of-a-gun."

"The country ain't the same," murmured Hack. "There's one hell of a beautiful ruckus comin'. The sheep and the goats. That's it. The sheep and the goats. Accordin' to Ben Herendeen I'm one of the goats. Ben's about ready to work on the goats.

Charley Hillhouse, who was a quiet workhorse of a man, slowly nodded

Breathitt started to speak but was stopped by quick-rising talk on the street. A man struck the swinging doors of the saloon with both fists and rushed in. He said, in a half shout, "They let Ollie Jacks free," and ran out. The conversation in the saloon rose at once to a noisy pitch Hack Breathitt grinned. "I'd like to see Ben Herendeen's face right now.

Charley Hillhouse answered irritably. "If it was your beef, Hack, you wouldn't make a joke of it." Hack Breathitt had his moments of wisdom: he had his far thoughts. "There's two kinds of people in this world, Charley. Those that have got beef-and those that have got none. People that stick and people that drift. The Lord made you and me different. It ain't my fault and it ain't your fault. But I like my way-and no man can make me change."

"Ben's got nothing against you," said Charley Hillhouse.

Hack Breathitt showed Hillhouse a smart, dark expression. "When folks get heated up, Charley, there ain't no halfway. It's one thing or the other. The sheep or the goats." He poured himself a second drink.

rah's store, advancing toward Morgan. Her little shoulders showed straight in the sunless light, her small feet made a quick tapping on the sidewalk boards. She said:

"We are having supper with Ann McGarrah, Daddy." Her soft smile held its secret again, her eyes showed it. "Didn't I tell you?'

Hack said: "Come along with a gentleman."

Janet put her hand in Hack Breathitt's fist and walked away with him

Morgan laid his shoulders against the wall of the saloon and freshened his cigar with a match. The group remained beneath the locust trees, Herendeen and Lige White now talking together while the rest remained silent. A good many people had come to the street, scattered under the board awnings. All of them, he noticed, were watching the court-Tension crawled up the house. street, strong enough to touch Morgan's nerves. Jesse Rusey never moved from his position as he, too, watched the courthouse door. stage stood by the Mountain House hotel, ready to go. At the stable, Parr Gentry sat on a capsized barrel, lumped over and apparently disinterested, but Morgan saw the way the man's eyes traveled around, Hack Breathitt and Janet were crossing the dust to Tanner's drugstore and at this moment Ollie Jacks, freed by the jury's verdict, stepped from the courthouse, looked to either end of the street, and halted.

He was a wiry man with the drawn, blank face of a gambler; he was a man who had been caught stealing beef and now, by the act of the jury, was free to ride out. His horse was in Gentry's stable, fifty feet from where he stood, yet this was as far as he got, this rooted position before the courthouse with Jesse Rusey on one side of him and Herendeen's group watching him from the other, and with all the town looking on. At that mo-ment he knew what Clay Morgan and every soul in town knew: he knew he was a dead man.

Taking the unleavened bread and the unfermented wine of the Passover which had just been observed, Jesus established a new feast, the Christian feast of remembrance, which we call communion or the Lord's table.

His words are significant, "For as often as ye eat this bread, and drink this cup, ye do show the Lord's death till he come" (I Cor. 11:26). At the Lord's table His followers find spiritual strength in recalling His death for them, but they also find joy as they remember that He is to come again. They thus testify to the world that they believe and cherish these truths.

This feast is rightly called "communion," for down through the ages and until He does come the saints of God have at His table sweet communion with Him and with one another. Let us not neglect it!

Our Lord also spoke of the cup as "my blood of the new testa-ment." The word "testament" means covenant. The Lord's table therefore speaks of our allegiance to Him, of our loyalty to our Lord, and our devotion to His service. That is why the Christian Church speaks of communion as a sacrament, a word from the Latin sacramentum, meaning oath, and essentially an oath of allegiance.

III. The Folly of the Disciples (vv. 21-30).

Someone may say, "That point does not belong with the other two. Both the Passover and the Lord's Supper are for the joyful remembrance of deliverance and redemption." The objection is well taken except for one thing-we are dealing with human beings as they are, not as they should be and could be by the grace of God.

Here in the inner circle of the twelve there was one traitor. It seems impossible, but apparently Judas had maintained such outward conduct as to turn no suspicion in his direction, even though all along he had in his heart the blackest of treachery against his Lord. A sad and soul-searching fact is here revealed, that it is possible for one to make a high profession of faith in Christ and even so to live as to give no cause for criticism, and yet to be unregenerate and in fact the enemy of Christ.

What about the strife regarding position? Shameful as we agree that it was, it still goes on in the church. Not even the remembrance of our Lord's death and the reminder that He is coming again is enough to keep men from wanting to be greatall kinds of yeast-raised breads and cakes. It's absolutely free. U. S. Wheat Bins Are Full

World War II finds the United States well supplied with wheat, says the U. S. Department of Agriculture. As the chart indicates, the supply is double that of 1917 when America entered the first World War. It is estimated that on July 1, the Nation's supply will be nearly 11/2 billion bushels, enough for two years of domestic use. Instead of plowing up new land and expanding wheat acreage, farmers are able to use land, labor, and equipment in turning out other war commodities more vitally needed-such as dairy, poultry, and meat products, vegetables, and oil crops.

Bread 'n Butter

Bread is one of our oldest and best-liked foods. But bread, like many of our other foods, has changed considerably during the last two years. You haven't noticed? Well, it's been enriched and fortified with the B-vitamins, often called morale builders because of the fine things they do for your system, digestion and disposition.

Iron, the magic helper that peps up your system by making hardworking red blood cells, has also been added to bread along with vitamin B.

But not just bread has these new essential elements. Flour that you use for your own ordinary bread or flour, except in some cases where the color is slightly creamy. But the nutritive value is so much greater that it's to your advantage to use it.

Although Saturday baking and the resultant shelves and pantries filled with crusty, sweet-smelling loaves of bread are becoming things of the past, perhaps you still feel the occasional desire to turn out a silky textured, moist, delicious loaf of good bread.

Rhythmical kneading is the secret of good bread. Rock the dough under the palms of the hands in threequarter time until it gets the satinlike sheen.

Good things come in little packages. This little saying applies perfectly to the concentrated foods like dried fruits-prunes, apricots, figs, apples, pears, raisins and peaches.

Now more than ever before you'll want to use more of them because they can solve your sweet tooth problem, in addition to acting as important blood builders and keeping your body in good working condition because of their important vitamin and mineral values.

You can appreciate why they do all this for you when you realize that to make one pound of the dried fruit it takes several pounds of fresh fruit. For example, prunes require three pounds of fresh fruit to make one pound dried; raisins, four pounds fresh fruit, apples, six to nine pounds fresh fruit, pears and figs both require three pounds of fresh fruit, while apricots and peaches five and one-half pounds of the fresh to make the dried product.
