United Nations Rout Japanese Forces To Score Major Milne Bay Victory; Soviet Bombers Blast German Cities; Offensive Nets Air Bases for Chinese

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.) Released by Western Newspaper Union.

These Italian prisoners were captured on the North African front by New Zealand and Indian forces. Almost all prisoners taken were from Pavia and Brescia footslogger divisions. Reports from the front indicate a mutual feeling of dislike between the Italian and German troops and officers. German troops are said to have refused to salute Italian officers.

TRAPPED JAPS: Outguessed, Outfought

"Milne bay area is rapidly being cleared of the enemy... His losses have been heavy... All his heavy supplies and equipment, including tanks, were lost."

This happy communique from General MacArthur's headquarters in Australia made it clear that the Japanese were smashed in their Milne bay thrust and that Port Moresby was saved for the fourth time. The Japs were outguessed and were caught in a carefully prepared trap.

The communique said, in part: "The operation represents another phase in the pattern of the enemy's plans to capture Port Moresby... His latest effort was to turn the right flank by a surprise attack at Milne bay. The move was anticipated, however, and prepared for with great care. With complete secrecy the position was occupied by our forces and converted into a strong point."

Solomons

American forces in the Solomons continued to consolidate their positions in the newly won outpost in preparation for their next move, which may be a blow at Jap bases in the northwest Solomons, or, if the enemy renews land and sea attacks, defensive action.

Two waves of Jap planes attacked U. S. troops and installations on Guadalcanal island, where a large enemy airport fell to invading American marines. The position of the marines has grown strong enough for the navy to announce that only "mopping up" operations were in progress. The navy also announced further strengthening of positions on six Solomon islands in American hands—Guadalcanal, Tulagi, Florida, Tananabogo, Makambo, and Gavutu.

THE GOOD EARTH: Recaptured by China

The recapture of Chihshien and Lishui, the two most important airport cities in eastern China, marked one of the greatest victories of the war for Chinese soldiers. In a few weeks of fighting the Chinese counterattack virtually wiped out Japanese gains of the May and June campaign in the Chekiang and Kiangsi sectors.

Best news to America is the fact that both towns are within 700 miles of the Japanese mainland, and may soon base United States bombers for attacks on the enemy at home.

Among Chinese officials there was little tendency to look upon recent gains as a clear cut victory resulting from superior offensive power. Belief was expressed that the Japs had overextended themselves.

HIGHLIGHTS . . . in the week's news

TRAINING: Lieut. Gen. Brehon Somervell, commanding general of the Services of Supply, U. S. army, called upon schools and colleges to become pre-induction training centers for the armed services. His prediction was that some colleges may be required to devote all facilities for such purpose.

OBDURATE: Despite British broadcasts to the contrary, the German high command in a recent communique claimed that an Allied operational order seized during the raid on Dieppe showed the raid was intended to be the opening of a second front in Europe.

ACTION: Back to Washington came Brig. Gen. Patrick J. Hurley, former secretary of war. He had been wounded three times in Pacific naval action. He had been assigned to get supplies through the Jap blockade when Gen. Douglas MacArthur was in the Philippines.

WARNING: Attention, Nazis

Something new had been added to Moscow's reports of the war with Nazi Germany. It was the story of increasing air raids by the Red bombers on German cities. Even Berlin was the victim of these attacks. And Berlin admitted it, too. But the Nazis claimed that the Russians had come in high and scattered their bombs at random with little regard for military objectives. This was old stuff from the Nazis, and the world wondered.

In addition to Berlin, the Moscow radio announced that Koenigsberg, Danzig, Stettin, plus many other cities had been bombed in the stepped-up air program. German citizens were warned that as the nights grew longer, the bombings would increase.

See-Saw

All this helped to divert attention from the bitter land fighting along the eastern front. Around Stalingrad the battle had see-sawed for days. German forces had admitted that Soviet troops had pushed through counter-attacks with terrific pressure but claimed at the same time that these had been crushed after heavy battling.

In the fighting northwest of Moscow, Marshal Gregory Zhukov's Soviet forces were reported to be continuing their large scale counter-offensive by hurling the Nazis across a "strategic water barrier" at one point, recapturing several villages and following the foe westward.

MEATLESS DAYS: And Shipping Space

When President Roosevelt issued his statement on "meatless days" he brought the effect of war on the home front closer than it had ever been to the nation's dining table. For while sugar rationing had come, coffee was scarce, food prices were up, there was really no actual shortage of any food commodity for the housewife to worry about. But "meatless days" were something else again.

It wasn't about a meat shortage though that the President talked about in his statement on the subject. He said that conservation of meat through a meatless day each week would be calculated to save shipping space in overseas hauls rather than to alleviate any U. S. shortage.

In such a system U. S. meat would largely replace Argentine, Australian and New Zealand beef and mutton as food for fighters and civilians in Great Britain and on other fighting fronts. Ships now hauling supplies from Buenos Aires, Wellington and Sydney would be replaced by ones traveling the shorter route.

ESCAPE: Of the more than 1,000 officers and men interned when the German pocket battleship Graf Spee was scuttled in Montevideo, more than 100 have escaped internment in Argentina, Juan Antonio Solari, chairman of a senate committee investigating anti-Argentine activities, said.

DEATH: Dr. Belisario Porras, 85, three times president of the Republic of Panama, is dead of a chronic respiratory ailment. He was one-time minister to the United States and represented his country at The Hague conference and in the League of Nations.

POTATOES: Germany's 1942 potato crop, according to Nazi spokesmen, is a record one. Admitting that there were no potatoes to be had in Berlin last winter, authorities are promising the population nine pounds of potatoes per person, per week.

'The Better 'Ole'

A war correspondent who is covering the scrap in North Africa sits at his "desk" in a slit trench in the desert battling out his "piece." There is no city editor to bawl him out, no clatter of teletypes, and life would be just grand if it weren't for the shells, dive bombers and strafing planes, not to mention the heat in the daytime, the cold at night and the continuous water famine.

To Be Produced on Canadian Assembly Lines

An excellent view of the Lancaster, first of England's mighty four-engine bombers, as it arrives at Dorval airport in Montreal, Canada. It will be demonstrated and then produced on Canada's assembly lines. This bomber can carry eight tons of bombs, has a top speed of 300 miles per hour and a range of 3,000 miles. It has ten machine guns.

New Zealand's Prime Minister in U. S.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull greets Prime Minister Peter Fraser of New Zealand, upon the latter's arrival in Washington, where he conferred with war officials in the capital. A little later Fraser sat down at a White House table for a stag dinner and a Pacific war strategy session with President Roosevelt and a group of officials representing the United Nations. Fraser warmly praised U. S. fighting men in the Southwest Pacific. Picture shows, from left to right: Ralph W. Close, minister from South Africa; Lord Halifax, British ambassador to the U. S.; Brig. Gen. Patrick Hurley, former secretary of war; Walter Nash, minister to the U. S. from New Zealand; Peter Fraser and Cordell Hull.

Hopes His Bells Toll Hitler's Death

This hard-working gentleman is Carl Stoermer who makes most of the bells for the vessels built in Canada's shipyards. He is German-born, known to only a few. In the above photo Carl is working on a ship's nameplate. Before he dies Stoermer would like to hear his bells toll Hitler's death-knell.

Eyes on Solomons

This soundphoto, approved by the U. S. navy, shows Rear Admiral R. K. Turner, who commanded the U. S. transport forces during the offensive in the Solomons, aboard his flagship during an early phase of the successful operations.

On Job in Alaska

Saluting here are Commander A. J. Isbell, USN, commanding officer of the naval air station at Sitka, Alaska, and Maj. B. M. Coffenberg, U. S. marine corps, who commands the marine corps at Sitka. Navy and leathernecks work side by side.

U. S. High Jump

'Must Crush Japs'

A crushing defeat for the Japanese militarists is our only assurance of peace in the Pacific, according to Joseph C. Grew, former American ambassador to Japan, shown upon his arrival from his post in Tokyo.

CAPITOL HILL

By LEON HENDERSON
Head of Office of Price Administration.
Senator Barkley and Speaker Rayburn both came as congressmen with the Wilson administration in 1912—Recently they jovially debated rank. Barkley, because "B" is alphabetically higher than "R," was named to committee membership ahead of Rayburn. But Sam claims precedence now because if he should die the President would attend his funeral, but would not be obligated to do so if Alben passed on...
Senator Barkley, as perpetual keynote, claims to be an authority on key words—At the 1932 Chicago Democratic convention he says it was "beer"—In Philadelphia, 1936, it was "New Deal"—At Chicago again in 1940 it was "Roosevelt"...
Our tomorrows look brighter because of a growing group of young Southern congressmen, such as Hale Boggs, Al Gore, Wilbur Mills, and Mike Monroney, to mention only a handful...
I wonder if the American public will ever realize the debt they owe to Senator Prentiss Brown of Michigan.

WASHINGTON VIGNETTE

Recently Don Nelson and I acknowledged tribute to Scotch grandmothers for their training in discipline—Sidney Weinberg thought we overdid it—In a bridge game later, when Sidney set me two tricks, he gleed, "Your Scotch grandmother is no help in bridge against a Brooklyn ward leader like my dad was..."
I interview my share of rubber substitute inventors, as do all WPB members, because I believe in miracles—I ought to, I married one. But one long haired scientist took the cake: "These other fellows make synthetic, Mr. Henderson, my process makes REAL rubber"...
One of my rationing staff heard complaints daily for two weeks from traveling business men—"Two weeks with the traveling salesman," he reported, "and not a single new risque joke"...
The solution of our transportation problem requires a miracle-worker, and Joe Eastman is the guy who can do it.

THINGS I NEVER KNEW TILL NOW

That according to the squaws there are more landlords than tenants—it couldn't be... That there really are a high percentage of statesmen in congress... That it's amazing what you can get for nothing nowadays—it would cost us millions to get the services that our rationing boards are giving us for nothing and it wouldn't be as good...
That a staff of 30,000 can get one into disproportionately more trouble than a staff of ten... That Claude Wickard is really a top-notch corn-hog producer... That the average height of three of my deputies is 6 feet 5 inches—if they were laid end to end the lawyers say a lot of people would cheer—and the deputies say that if all the lawyers were laid end to end they'd reach no conclusion...
How fast a $1 a year man can become a temporary bureaucrat... That Maria Alencastro at the Brazilian embassy would be a star on any radio program... That Senate Sec. Ed Halsey was such a peacemaker, pacemaker, and life saver...
That 16 per cent of the people had no Gallup opinion on OPA—since it sometimes seems like everyone has written to me—and the mail was 77 per cent favorable like Gallup indicates either, some days.

THOUGHTS WHILE STROLLING ON CONN. AVE. AT MIDNIGHT

What this country needs is a good five-cent nickel... I wonder where I can get a good second-hand tire for Lube... I wonder whether our rent division can keep me from being dispossessed... It's good to see Marvin McIntyre with so much zing again... I expect Sidney Hillman to zing again. Wouldn't it be fun if Harold Ickes was in the senate... If OPA can only get by the canning season and the elections... Wait till our new pursuit job ties in with the Zero... Sure was funny about the male tenant from Pittsburgh who reported on Form CCD-4 that he "shared a bathtub with his landlady"... I wonder what ever became of the NRA visitors who wanted a floor under prices... It isn't true that Don Nelson and General Somervell phift—they've phifted, phift—and always made up... Big men... I wonder if the Mayos will check up on Charlie Michaelson's no-trump play while he's there... I miss Pat Boland... Dick Lansburgh... General Johnson... What some of these wage debates need is Jerry Frank and Sumner Pike... I wonder where the Peoria Chamber of Commerce found my Australian hat—I gave it to Sir Clive Baillieu and I dared him to wear it... Who trained victory-gardener Leon, Junior, age four, to ask me not to ration seeds... My candidate for the United Nations beauty contest, Mrs. Soong...

SADDLE and RIDE

By ERNEST HAYCOX

W-N-U Release

THE STORY SO FAR: Clay Morgan has decided to play a lone hand against Ben Herendeen, a rancher bent on running the cattle country his own way. The two men have been enemies for years, having first fought over Clay's wife, Lila, who died being hit and beheaded. Morgan is a solitary figure, devoted to his nine-year-old daughter, Janey. Although two women, Catherine Grant and Ann McGarrab, are in love with him, they know he cannot forget Lila. Of his former friends, only Hack Breathitt had not gone over to Herendeen's side. Now Hack is dead, shot by Herendeen's foreman, Charley Hillhouse. Gurd Grant, Catherine's brother, joined Herendeen when he discovered that Catherine had been to Morgan's ranch, but the cold bloodedness of Hack's murder has made him break with Herendeen. Warned by Fox Willing, a "nester" he once befriended, Clay discovers that Herendeen is stealing his cattle. He goes to Herendeen's ranch for a showdown, but Herendeen is ready. He hasn't a chance of getting out alive, when Lige White, one of Herendeen's friends, rides up. Like Gurd Grant, he is fed up with Herendeen's high handed methods. Raising his life to save Clay, he persuades him to take a chance on riding off. He doesn't think Herendeen will dare to shoot. The bluff works, and they escape. Now Clay and his men are driving the cattle back into Government Valley, his range. Herendeen has followed, and there is certain to be a fight.

Now continue with the story.

Bullets squashed into the 'dobe wall beside Morgan, causing him to shift slowly.

Charley Hillhouse brought up Breathitt's horse and lashed the dead man to the saddle and took him back to Three Pines. When he came to describe the affair to Herendeen the words seemed to stick in his dry throat. It puzzled him, that it should be so hard to make a simple story of it. Too, there was an odd look in Herendeen's eyes and something queer in his voice. Herendeen said slowly: "All right, Charley." Nothing more.

Hillhouse said: "I'm takin' him into War Pass. That's where his people are buried."

He drove through War Pass. When he backed against the office door of Doctor Padden, who was also coroner, Jesse Rusey came by. Hillhouse said: "Give me a hand, Jesse," and the two of them carried Breathitt into Padden's office. Padden wasn't around but there was a side room with a long table in it; they left Breathitt here. Rusey said: "A little trouble?"

Rusey said, "Too bad," and went out. The marshal's province was War Pass, not anything beyond; and he had seen too much death to show much curiosity about one more dead man. Hillhouse delayed his departure, both hands lying on the table beside Breathitt. Breathitt's face was gray and dirty, but it was still the face of a man who had looked on life as a game to be taken as lightly as possible.

Hillhouse suddenly removed his own hat, placed it over Hack's face and turned from the room.

He drove the wagon as far as the Long Grade, here stopping for a drink. The barkeep made some casual remark about the weather which Hillhouse accepted in dour silence; thereafter the barkeep held his own council. Hillhouse paid for the drink, went out and climbed into the wagon.

There was no travel on the road. It wound through the foothills, it looped beside a creek, passed over a small divide and entered a scattered belt of timber. By the Dell Lake trail, he observed that three or four horsemen had recently come off Mogul; far up near Mogul's rim he caught the transitory motion of a rider. All these things he automatically noted, missing nothing of the signs or shapes or color of the land. Four miles from town he broke the neck of the bottle of rye over the brake-handle and took a long drink.

A mile beyond this point Cache River cut nearer the road and a small grove of cottonwood lay hard by the stream. Charley turned through the grove and let his horse water at the margin of the river. He wrapped the reins around the brake-handle and got down, holding the whisky bottle.

Charley Hillhouse spoke aloud: "I wish you'd seen it my way, Hack. I wish you'd had." He walked steadily forward until he faced a cottonwood. He drew his gun, holding it only a foot from the tree, and fired at it. Afterwards, stooping a little he studied the hole made by the bullet with a strange care. He held the bottle of rye in his left hand and now, knowing it would do him no good ever, he gave it a long overhead heave into the river. As long as he was alive, nothing would cover up his thinking.

Excitement whetted Morgan's nerves to a sharp edge as he stood there and heard Ben Herendeen say: "Come on, b's!"

A man yelled, "To hell with this!" Morgan, waiting a more definite target, saw one rider swing wide and rush in. Suddenly all of Herendeen's men were wheeling around the beef, running for the dobe building near by, as though to circle it. Vance Ketchell called to announce himself: "It's me, Ketchell — and Lige White." They raced down on Morgan. He had to step aside, barely avoiding a collision. Vance was out of the saddle, beside him and grumbling, "Damned near too late!"

Lige White, still mounted, turned away. He called: "Herendeen—cut this out!" One of Herendeen's riders plunged straight on and fired once at Lige White's high-placed shape. Morgan and Ketchell laid their shots on this man. They caught his horse and watched it sink, they saw the rider free himself and seem to flatten against the earth.

Jump murmured: "They're going to try something."

Powder smell settled around Morgan. A small, definitely cold thread of wind hit his face and there was a telltale smearing of the shadows in the open area by the far building. They were running wide, Herendeen's men, and now they were on foot, firing as they moved away from the dobe. Jump said: "I'm goin' after those horses," and scurried forward.

Bullets squashed into the 'dobe wall beside Morgan, causing him to shift slowly.

Horses plunged around him, knocking him backward; somebody's shoulder hit him and then he saw Herendeen's men rise out of the earth's massed darkness, into their saddles.

The ruffle of Herendeen's horses diminished on the desert and, standing slack and tired in the open, Morgan knew this night's fight was done. He knew something else, as well. It was Herendeen's crew which had given way, not Herendeen.

Vance Ketchell called: "Lige's been hit."

Morgan went over at once. Ketchell knelt on the ground, his knee propping Lige at the shoulders.

Morgan drew back from the party, quietly calling Fox Willing. "Fox," he said, "I wish you'd ride over and bring Mrs. White to the ranch."

Fox cut away at once. The rest turned north, reaching Long Seven an hour later. Coming into the yard Morgan saw Catherine in the doorway. When he got down to help Lige White from the saddle he turned to look at her again, framed as she was in the light, tall and still and straight-shouldered; and he felt the tug of strange, old excitement. Lige could use one leg only and had to brace himself between Ketchell and Morgan. Catherine stepped aside to let them pass, saying: "Put him on a bed, Clay," and followed the men upstairs into an extra bedroom.

The room was dark and they had a moment's trouble getting Lige or the bed. Morgan heard Lige grit his teeth together as they laid him down. Catherine found a lamp and lighted it and by this yellow glow all of them saw the whiteness of Lige's face. His hair came down on his forehead and sweat oiled his skin; his lips crawled back, forming a smile. "I'm sure as hell broke something. You know, Clay, if it wasn't too much trouble, I wish you'd send for Grace."

"Already have. I'm going into town for Padden. Vance, you better get his clothes off."

Lige White said: "I guess you don't know the whole story yet, Clay. Hillhouse cornered Hack and killed him. The man's a fanatic. I'm warning you about that, if you should see him in town."

Morgan's eyes dropped. He stood like this, quiet and cold and too weary to feel the full shock of the news. He said, after a while, "I'll meet him, sooner or later," and left the room.

He turned to Janet's room. When he came beside the bed and looked down through the shadows he found she wasn't asleep. She reached for his hand, saying: "Who's hurt, Daddy?"

"We had a fight with Herendeen's ranch, Janey. Lige White was hurt. I'm going after a doctor."

She murmured: "It is too bad. But I'm glad it isn't you." The pressure of her hand was warm and confident. She was pleased to have him sit here and talk with her; it made her expand and grow confidential. "I wish I had been here, Daddy, when you were young and danced with Catherine. I bet you were the best dancer of all. She is pretty."

"Wait till you get old enough to dance. I'll stand by and remember when you were so small you walked under the table."

She was silent, seeing the picture of herself dancing—and pleased by it; her lips softened and there was a glow in her eyes. Afterwards, in a faintly reserved tone, she said: "She isn't like I thought she was, Daddy."

"What did you think?"

"She likes me, Daddy. I didn't think she would."

My Week

by Eleanor Roosevelt

PLANNING IN WARTIME

WASHINGTON. — We have now completely canvassed the Christmas lists and are now well on our way toward preparations for this annual event.

I imagine many people will do as I am planning to do this year—namely—try to give such things as people need and must have, and to supplement with as many defense bonds and stamps as possible.

CHURCHES AID ARMED FORCES

I also have a letter from the Service Men's council of the Federation of Churches, working with the YMCA of New York, Brooklyn and Queens. They enclose a report of the work which the churches are doing. Near the big camps, different denominations are helping the army chaplains by providing music. These same churches often provide hospitality for parents, wives and friends of the men, who come long distances to visit them.

In many communities, Catholic, Protestant and Jewish churches are working together, and sometimes the auxiliaries send home town newspapers to the boys far from home. Often they get together and send Christmas boxes. When she can not reach her own boys, many a mother gets great satisfaction by cooking extra food and having boys who are on leave, or boys from the camps, come to her for Sunday dinner. The churches are one of the many organizations in every community working along these lines.

THOUGHTS OF WAR

Reading the galley proof of a book which is soon to come out by Herbert Agar, gave me the courage to think through some vague thoughts which have been floating through my mind these past days.

For long months past, people have written many things which were not particularly pleasant reading about various of our children. That has never troubled me very much, because so far as I am concerned, if you are satisfied within yourself that you have done, as far as you could, what you believed was right, the world's opinion mattered little.

Now, suddenly, over the radio and in the press, they say something good has been done by one of our sons. It was evident that about this time, his marine corps unit under Lieutenant-Colonel Carlson, would be making use of its training. But we knew no more than any other people knew, whose children are "somewhere" at war.

I am glad, of course, that our son acquitted himself well. It would never have occurred to me that anything else would happen. I am sure that everyone of the men whom I saw in that California camp, which I visited before they left, acquitted themselves equally well. I am deeply grateful that our son came through alive, but some men did not, and in the performance of the job they had to do, and which must be done to free the world, other young people of the enemy nations were killed.

Somehow, I cannot free myself of a heavy heart, which must keep companionship with the hearts of other men and women in our own country and in other countries all over the world. With it goes a tremendous sense of the responsibility which must be carried by the older generations for the world we now face.

As things are, the war must be fought to a victorious end. It will not have been worth the courage and the suffering which come to young and old, unless we face now our fundamental failures of the past 25 years. We must want peace, but not be afraid of war because our fear of war made us compromise during these past few years with our principles and our standards. We must bring about economic security, but first we will have to bring about a change in our own moral fiber.

I am not a sentimentalist just using fine phrases, the future requires action and not mere conversation. However, the action must be based on a very clear understanding of what our failures have been in the past years, not only in material things. Perhaps the real failures have been more of character and moral fiber.

If the democracies are to be successful, and the future world is to be built on a firmer foundation, it is important to examine for the moment what kind of people we really are and what are the standards we live by, before we even try to solve the necessary economic questions of the future. Only thus can we justify the sacrifices of youth.

PRESIDENT SEES A MOVIE

One night we had a few guests at dinner and afterwards the President firmly told us that he had to go to work, but someone had provided what they prophesied would be an exciting film called "The Big Shot," so he agreed to stay with us for a little while.

It was not as much of a mystery story as he had hoped, and when it was over he sighed and said: "Well, now I shall have to work a little later than I intended to do," and went off into his study.

Negative 'Maiden'

The word "maiden" is applied to many subjects besides an unmarried woman, points out Collier's. The adjective is used to designate a city that has never been taken, a plant that has never been pruned, a field that has never been plowed, a sword that has never been used, a male or female race horse that has never won an event and, in England, a session of a criminal court at which there are no prisoners for trial.

Constipation! Why Not Get and Keep "Regular"?

One of the commonest causes of constipation is simply the Modern diet, superfluous, often give us too little "bulk" food. In such cases, dosing with cathartics and purges gives only temporary relief — the trouble comes back again and again. The way to more lasting relief is to get at the underlying cause and correct it.

You can do this by eating KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN daily. This delicious, toasty cereal supplies the needed "bulk." It acts pleasantly, works principally on the contents of the colon, helping you to have easy and normal elimination. In many cases, eating ALL-BRAN regularly and drinking plenty of water brings lasting freedom from constipation. Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is not benefited by this simple treatment, see your doctor.

Economy Accent . . . Delicious Chicken Croquettes (See Recipes Below.)

Budget Stretchers

What can I serve as a main course that won't take too many dishes? What can I give my large family that isn't too expensive? These are the two queries often asked by my readers. The answer to both questions is simple—a casserole. Easy to make, easy to serve, economical too, casseroles solve the main dish problem almost perfectly. Almost? Yes, I say almost advisedly, because if the family ever becomes aware of your ulterior motives in serving casseroles, their interest in them becomes less, less and finally non-existent. Make your casserole so delectable and so distinctive in flavor and no one will ever realize that it's packed with economy and you have a one-dish meal that's perfection plus. Never overwork the casserole by trying to use up all the leftovers lining refrigerator and pantry shelves. Never swamp the flavors of the food so you strike a false note and confuse the sense of taste. Use good food and season with discrimination. Your result will be a real success. Here are some new ideas I've compiled for you. Most of them of the food you have used often enough so they're old favorites, but in new dress! You'll like:

Rice and Chicken Casserole. (Serves 6 to 8)
2 cups rice
2 cups milk
1 1/2 tablespoons butter
2 eggs
2 1/2 cups diced, cooked chicken
Boil rice in salted water until tender. Stir in butter, milk and eggs. Put a layer of this into a casserole, then chicken, more rice, etc. Bake in a moderate (350-degree) oven until well browned. Every now and then you've heard me talk about food affinities. Here's another I'd like to add to the list:

Lamb and Lima Bean Pie. (Serves 6)
2 pounds lamb neck, shanks or shoulder
1 pound dry lima beans
Salt, pepper
Celery salt
Soak lima beans overnight. Drain and place in a heavy kettle. Have lamb cut in 2-inch pieces. Add to beans, season and cover with water. Transfer to casserole and top with pimiento biscuit rings and bake in a moderately hot oven 20 to 25 minutes. To make pimiento biscuit rings: add 1/2 cup coarsely chopped pimiento to baking powder biscuit recipe. You'll get your carbohydrates, proteins along with vitamins and minerals in this economical, hunger-satisfying dish good for family dinner or informal buffet entertaining:

American Goulash. (Serves 6)
1/2-pound package macaroni
1 1/2 pounds hamburger
1 large onion, chopped
1 tablespoon fat

Lynn Says:
Store Food Wisely: There are no "Finders Keepers" but you may be the "Loser Weeper" if you do not store those vegetables properly. Scientific experiments show that lettuce may lose 40 per cent of its vitamin C if kept at room temperature. Refrigerator recommended! Spinach, left standing on pantry shelf, will be drained of its vitamin C by about one-third. Creamed string beans lose about one-third of their vitamin C if they stand in a bowl at room temperature for six hours. Short cooking time is recommended, too. Cabbage, for instance, loses 69 per cent of its calcium and 50 per cent of its other minerals when these valuable nutrients go up in steam.

This Week's Menu
Tomato Juice Saltines
*Rice and Chicken Casserole
*Grapefruit-Cranberry Salad
Popovers Strawberry Jam
Sliced Melon
Beverage
*Recipe Given.

2 teaspoons salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
3 cups tomatoes
1 can tomato soup
Buttered crumbs
Cook macaroni in boiling, salted water, about 20 minutes, or until tender. Drain. Brown meat and onions in fat. Add macaroni, seasonings, tomatoes and soup. Pour into greased baking dish and sprinkle with buttered crumbs. Bake 30 minutes in a moderate (350-degree) oven.

An economy meat cut that is getting itself talked about plenty because of its simply wonderful flavor is this:

Ribs of Beef With Vegetables. (Serves 6)
3 1/2 pounds of short ribs
1 large onion, sliced
2 cups tomatoes
Salt, pepper
6 onions
6 potatoes
3 parsnips
Season short ribs with salt and pepper. Put in skillet with fat and brown quickly. Place in an iron skillet or roasting pan and add onions and tomatoes. Let bake in a moderate oven for 1 1/2 hours, tightly covered. Add whole carrots which have been scraped, parsnips, peeled, and potatoes peeled but left whole. Cook another hour or until vegetables are tender. Add boiling water if necessary during the last hour of cooking.

Second day service of chicken is beautifully simplified if you do up the bird in crusty cylindrical croquettes, and dish them up together with golden carrot strips and either canned or frozen asparagus and you have a one-plate meal that is bound to inspire the family's appetite:

Chicken Croquettes. (Makes 10 croquettes)
2 cups cooked, ground chicken
1 cup thick white sauce
2 teaspoons chopped parsley
Flour
1 egg, slightly beaten
1 tablespoon milk
3 cups oven-popped rice cereal
Salt, pepper
Prepare white sauce using 1/2 cup chicken stock and 1/2 cup milk. Add to chicken and parsley and chill thoroughly. Shape into pyramids or cylinders. Roll cereal to fine crumbs. Dip croquettes first in the flour, then in egg (to which milk has been added) and in rolled crumbs. Fry in deep, hot fat (365 degrees) for 2 to 5 minutes or until golden brown.

A crispy, citrus salad goes well with casserole dishes. Suggestion of the week which will take top honors in the hall of fame is this one made with grapefruit, oranges and cranberries for color. Its dressing is unusual in that it combines honey with mayonnaise, and cranberries.

Grapefruit and Cranberry Salad. (Serves 4)
1 large grapefruit
2 large oranges
Lettuce
1/2 cup ground, raw cranberries
2 tablespoons honey
1/2 cup mayonnaise
Peel and section oranges and grapefruit. Arrange alternately on lettuce. Mix cranberries with honey. Let stand 1/2 hour. Combine with mayonnaise. Serve over salad.

JOSEPH SOLD INTO SLAVERY

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 37:23-26. GOLDEN TEXT—Love envieth not.—I Corinthians 13:4, R.V.

Does it pay to trust God? Is He really concerned about the affairs of men? Does He know the trials and the heartaches of His children? These are the crying questions of today, and they find their answer in God's dealings with men of the past. The story of Joseph has many interesting and instructive phases, but perhaps the most important just now is the truth of our lesson, "The Lord saith . . . them that honor me I will honor."

We first find Joseph as he learns that

I. Jealousy Bears Bitter Fruit (vv. 23-30). Joseph was his father's favorite and was shown that favoritism in many ways, but it was perhaps most fully expressed in the coat of many colors. This was a luxurious long robe with sleeves, indicating that he was a gentleman and not to do ordinary work of one who wore the sleeveless, knee-length tunic. His brothers deeply resented this evidence of the father's favor.

The dreams which Joseph rather innocently yet perhaps unwisely told to his brothers and his honest report of their wicked behavior fanned the flame of jealousy into a consuming fire which threatened his life. But God, through Joseph's brother Judah and through the opportunity they had to make money out of selling him into slavery, kept him for His own purposes.

May we not learn that the darkest hour may be the time of God's deep interest and directing power. The only way strong men can be developed is by suffering hardness and trial. "God wants iron saints, and since there is no way of imparting iron to the moral nature than by letting His people suffer, He lets them suffer (Heb. 12:11)" (Meyer).

Parents should also learn here the dangers of favoritism among children. It is one of the most destructive of evil influences that can enter a home. It hurts the child who is favored, alienates the other children, and it destroys confidence in parents and respect for their authority. Let's have none of it!

II. Deceit Attempts to Conceal Sin (vv. 31-35). One of the tragic things about sin is that a wicked act does not stand alone but leads into another sin to cover the first. In the case of Joseph's brethren, their sin against him was covered by deceit. They lied to the father and maintained that lie for years, even though they saw that their aged father was brokenhearted. How callous sin makes the heart of a man!

Yet the very fact that they lied to cover their sin indicates that they were ashamed to admit that they had fallen so low. James Strahan well says: "Evil never dares to be sincere. It always borrows the colors and wears the garb of innocence. It has a whole lifetime of hard labor in keeping up appearances. Hypocrisy is the tribute which all bad men have to pay to the ideal of goodness."

III. God Overrules Evil for Good (v. 36). It was God's plan that Joseph should come to his greatest usefulness in his place of authority in Egypt, so He directed the sale of the young slave into the home of Potiphar, a leading officer of Pharaoh.

The story of Joseph's life in Potiphar's house is one of unusual interest. Faithfulness to duty, loyalty to God and truth led to shifting experiences of imprisonment and of favor, but ultimately he came out into the place of leadership in the government of Egypt. In this place God marvelously blessed and used him.

Since the matter of the relation of men to government is so much before us these days, it will be well to note that Scripture holds a very exalted view of the public servant. Paul says we are to "be subject unto the higher powers. For there is no power but of God: the powers that be are ordained of God" (Rom. 13:1). The Bible clearly teaches that every governmental agency and every public servant, from the policeman on the beat to the President in the White House, is only permitted to exercise authority over his fellowmen because God has ordained that there should be such government. Clear it is that every right-thinking official of state and nation should be humble, teachable, discreet, and wise in the exercise of his power, and God-fearing in the discharge of his responsibility.

Our lesson provides unusual opportunity for the teaching of proper family relationships, the right attitude toward government, as well as the blessed assurance and confidence which we may have who have entrusted our lives into the hands of God.

MISS MAURINE McNATT
County Home Demonstration Agent

One of the season's most versatile foods, the tomato, is lending a bright color to gardens, markets, and tables these days. Aside from being pleasing in appearance and refreshing in taste, the tomato has another advantage — that of being an easy vegetable to can.

And the tomato is nutritious, too. Well known as a valuable source of vitamin C, this vegetable also gets honorable mention for its vitamin A, some vitamin B1, and iron as well as small amounts of other minerals.

Since it is low in caloric value, attractive in color, delicate in acidity, tasty in flavor, juicy and refreshing, it lends itself to a variety of uses in the menu. Because tomatoes can be prepared in so many ways and so easily they should be used morning, noon and night. Why not try them in cocktails, soups, main dishes, salads and in desserts? Serve them in a different way every day. Write or call at the agent's office for the bulletin C-147, Starring Tomatoes.

Civilians will have difficulty in buying processed tomatoes over the grocery counters this fall and winter.

They are easy to can at home, compared with non-acid vegetables such as corn and peas. Because tomatoes are acid, as are fruits, they should be processed in the water bath instead of the pressure cooker required for practically all other vegetables.

To save space — important now when there is a shortage of canning equipment — can tomatoes by the hot pack method. By canning this way, more can be put in a given amount of container space than by packing them raw. Instructions on canning tomatoes and making are found in the bulletin Fruits and Vegetables available at the agent's office.
