

DONNELL SCHOOLS OPEN WEDNESDAY WITH SPECIAL PROGRAM

With all teachers and students met after the vacation months, O'Donnell Public Schools opened at nine o'clock Wednesday morning. The auditorium was crowded with students and patrons at the opening exercises.

The program was opened by singing. M. Garner leading and Mrs. Rice at the piano. Rev. W. O. Farr offered an eloquent prayer, saying that this is the best school in the history of O'Donnell.

In a short address directed to the student body and the patrons, Rev. Farr likened school life to a football game, each student with a goal in mind, and a pep squad composed of parents and teachers boosting the team.

The Parent-Teachers Association was highly praised for the work and co-operation which has been of so much help to the school. The teachers were urged to affiliate with that organization.

GEORGE GARDENHIRE DIES AT STANTON SUNDAY

George Gardenhire, more familiarly to O'Donnell people as Rastus, died at three o'clock Sunday morning at his home in Stanton of injuries received in a car wreck a week before.

Funeral services were conducted in the First Christian church of Stanton, the pastor being in charge of the rites. Interment took place in the cemetery there. Several carloads of friends from O'Donnell went to pay their last respects to the boy.

He was born in Moro, Taylor county, Texas, and was twenty-two years of age at the time of his tragic death. He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Gardenhire of Stanton, by eight brothers and two sisters. They are: W. L. Gardenhire of O'Donnell, Mrs. G. B. Pollock of Stanton, G. and N. J. of Austin, Mrs. Ella Burleson, of Ft. Worth, Grady, Clarence and Lawrence of Stanton, Gene Gardenhire of Menard, and Thad Gardenhire of Sulphur, Okla. All of the relatives were present at the funeral.

The young man was well known to O'Donnell people, among whom he had a host of friends who mourn his untimely end. Those who joined with them in extending sympathy to the bereaved family.

FIRST BALE OF COTTON SHIPPED IN O'DONNELL

The first bale of cotton to be shipped in O'Donnell this year was brought in by A. L. Barnes and ginmed by the J. P. Bowlin Gin on Monday afternoon.

Mr. Barnes raised the cotton on his farm about 1 1/2 miles northwest of O'Donnell in the Wells community. The bale was graded "strict middle" and stapled 7-8 and weighed 133 pounds. It was sold at auction Tuesday afternoon to J. P. Bowlin at $1.35 per hundred, bringing a total of $48.28.

THE FATE OF THE SMALL TOWN. What is going to be the fate of the small town? That is the question everybody is discussing now. The new census figures are being watched for evidence of trends, and it is clear that some of them are being drawn. The problem is: Are order houses, and chain stores in larger centers, sucking the life out of the smaller community? They are in some cases and they are not in others.

Effective advertising. If the merchant of any community who carries adequate stocks will see to it that the people of their trade territory are provided with all of the modern conveniences of retail trade, then will tell their little world about it, clearly and persistently, their community will not fail and flourish.

W. T. Brown called our attention to the fact that the Index gave him credit for only 42 votes in his home box, O'Donnell. The correct tabulation should have placed Mr. Brown's name at the top of the total in the race to read Brown, 1234 instead of 928 as reported by the Index last week.

FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH LAUNCHES EVANGELISTIC CAMPAIGN WEDNESDAY

The First Christian Church, under the leadership of Rev. Thomas A. Broadfoot, pastor of the Snyder church, started a series of meetings in O'Donnell on Wednesday of this week.

Rev. Broadfoot, known as Texas' "Log Cabin" Evangelist will hold the services at the Baptist Tabernacle each evening at 8:00. The public is cordially invited to attend and hear.

CURRY COUNTY GETS GOOD PRODUCER

Shooting of the Harmon-Seifert No. 1 Murphy well was consummated yesterday with 150 quarts of oil, and a depth of 3100-40. A time fuse was used and at 6:15 the explosion came but nothing but a great amount of gas was blown out of the well.

There is no room for debate. A town with a group of merchants co-operating in the lines carried, as good to overlap and giving good goods and good service, risks nothing to make a real local newspaper and how to write advertising that will sell goods, is not going to slump. It is going to grow.

WEST TEXAS CHAMBER OF COMMERCE TO FILE DAMAGE SUIT SOON

Stamford, Sept. 1.—Publishers of geographies used in the public schools of Texas and several other states will shortly be made joint defendants in a million dollar-damage suit if a majority of the directors of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce endorse a recommendation of the organization's publicity committee. At a recent meeting of the committee, the West Texas Chamber of Commerce was asked to institute suit for "at least $1,000,000," against certain publishers, for "scandalously and damagingly untrue descriptions of West Texas territory." Facts to back up the request were set out in a 3,800 word report, and for circulation from public schools, some were published as late as 1929, in which West Texas is described as a semi-arid region, and for agriculture subjected to severe snowstorms and sudden and marked temperature changes and average production of cotton, wheat, oil or other minerals.

All directors of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce have been supplied, during the past week with a referendum ballot on the suit, and if a majority of them favor the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, it is to start legal machinery in operation to get the litigation underway, officials of the Regional Body say. "We have just six textbooks, some grounds for the suit," says Max Bentley of Abilene Chairman of the Publicity Committee, and we have been advised by competent attorneys, that we have an excellent chance to get judgment if we prove our contentions in court, and we are prepared to do so.

"The eastern part of the state (Texas) with heavy rainfall has thick forest and swamps, the western part has few streams, thorn cactus plants, scattered bunches of grass and low bushes. One section of the state has so much rain it is in the cotton belt. The other so little rain it is in the wheat and few farms and few people."

BUY-A-BALE CAMPAIGN

In regard to the buy a bale movement as suggested by Governor Dan Moody we can see no reason why the people of the south should encourage the farmers to produce two acres of cotton next year where they have but one this year. It is not good logic to believe that the farmers themselves would expect to bear their burden that they should expect them to continue? In place of a buy-a-bale we would suggest a move to sign the people of the south to an agreement to support a "raise-a-bale-less" movement. If they are superior in their attempt, to continue it until each cotton farmer of the south is raising only about one-third the amount that will be harvested this year. Then the cotton situation and the "Help the Farmer" idea will be getting somewhere.

Following is an editorial taken from the Dallas Morning News of August 29 that sums up the "Buy-a-Bale" movement being urged by the "thing would lead us. The "buy-a-bale" movement launched by Governor Dan Moody in which he has asked Southern growers to join him, doubtless is actuated by the highest motives as a plan to relieve the cotton country growers suffering from a price of 10c a pound, or in some sections even lower. A similar movement in 1914 resulted in practical failure at a time when the Nation was more prosperous than at present. The North and East then were busy supplying the warring Nations of Europe with manufactured goods at rising prices. Subsequently the whole country was benefited by sending its surplus feed and food abroad. Money was plentiful and people spent it freely.

"Conditions in 1930 are vastly different from 1914 throughout the United States, and the cotton-producing persons may not be financially able to buy a bale, though they might be prompted to do so. Besides, an aptly chosen term to "buy a bale" somehow suggests that the South is nearly "broke." Such a confession may hurt business generally. It gave the cotton a black mark in 1914. Neither Texas nor the South is in such distress as to take such a risk. Cotton is nearly over, and when fall rains revive pastures and add to late feed crops and gardens, nature will come to the rescue wherever man gives her a chance.

"Cotton prices now are a bargain, and, once the spinner makes up their minds that the time has come to stock up, prices will rise, although no such phenomenal advance can be looked for as took place in the spring of 1927 when European Nations bought American cotton in record quantities. "It is a hard lesson, but the farmer must learn not to overproduce cotton. He had plenty of warning early this season that the Federal Farm Board, and the net result was a reduction in acreage of less than 10 per cent. There is no substitute for efficient crop production, raising more per acre on a reduced acreage thus lowering the cost of raising the crop. It is also true that the farmer must first of all provide a living for those engaged in farming."

HELPING TO BULD TEXAS

Texas cement production set a new high record for the first half of 1930, the University Bureau of Business Research reports. Total output for 690 barrels against 3,223,000 in the same period last year. . . McAllen is to have a nine-story hotel costing $300,000. It is building a new record for the first half of the year is $400,000 ahead of last year's, with $2,250,000 so far constructed. . . West Texas Utilities is building a 181-mile high line connecting its power plant at Dalhart with nine nearby towns. It is building a new plant at Texline where it recently acquired the municipal plant. . . Fort Arthur's $2,000,000 hotel record for the first six months this year is equal almost to seven months record last year.

Since last August Graham has put down more than five miles of street paving. . . Hughes Tool Co. is to build a $150,000 plant at Midland. . . Two Texas towns, heretofore without railroad transportation facilities, are now served by rail lines—Sonora by the Santa Fe and Van, East Texas oil town, by the Texas & Pacific. . . Twelve hundred and thirty-one corporations were chartered or issued Texas permits during the first half of 1930, 176 of them in June.

Four hundred and four producing oil wells were brought in during June in the several Texas fields, bringing the total for the first half of the year to 2,295. Gas wells to the number of 242 were brought in during the same period. . . Texas has 50,146 motor tractors, 1,864 threshers and 5,421 combines, according to a recent estimate.

More Texas towns are getting new hotels. . . The McKinney is a new 125-room hotel projected at Brownwood. Grand Saline is to have a $150,000 hotel and several tourist cottages operated in connection with it. Spearman is to have a 40-room hotel. Work is under way on a $28,000 hotel at Baytown.

Labor Day

WEST TEXAS

According to the Federal Census, which can never be accurate in a new and rapidly developing country, West Texas has increased from a population of 4,142 in 1850 to 755,260 in 1930.

In 1920 the population of the entire State was 4,662,288. The west Texas territory comprises two-thirds of the total area of the state of 142,000 square miles. New York, Pennsylvania and Illinois contain one-fourth the population of the United States, approximately 175 people to the square mile, while West Texas, which is as large as the entire State, according to the 1920 census had a population of 18 persons to the square mile.

The census population for the entire State for 1930 is 5,810,683, an increase of approximately 24 per cent for the last decade.

West Texas is just beginning its growth and development. The last ten years has seen a turning from the one crop idea to diversified farming with its consequent benefit to the section and the next ten years will see a continuation of this policy.

Perhaps the greatest percentage of increase anywhere in the country was found in the seventeen counties comprising the Pacific Plains section. These seventeen counties, which comprise the seventh census district, are Borden, Fritchman, Crosby, Dawson, Dickens, Fisher, Gates, Garza, Haskell, Hockley, Kent, Lubbock, Lynn, Scurry, Stonewall, Terry and Yoakum.

These were the only counties in West Texas, however, to show remarkable growth in population during the last ten years. The gain was widespread and rather evenly distributed. This includes Fort Worth and the area to the west. The total population of these 114 counties is 1,520,919, an increase of 32 per cent on an average in the past ten years. Of the 114 counties reported in West Texas only 16 showed a decrease in population. This decrease was thought to be due to the rapid development of oil in other sections as most counties showing decreases were among the first in which oil was discovered.

In Ward County, which is among this group of 14 counties, the census bureau showed a population of 3,996 in 1920 as compared with 2,615 in 1930—an increase of 50.16 per cent.

Young County is in 1930 as compared with 22,026 in 1930—an increase of approximately 9,000 people. The city of Young shows a gain of 2,990 persons since 1920. This county is the scene of new oil development and consequent growth. The following towns taken at random shows the phenomenal increase in population in West Texas and is an illustration of its growth.—West Texas Today.

Texas Power & Light is planning expansion plans to be developed to increase demand from its area, including transmission lines and substation construction, with 100 miles of 132-kv line from the Trinidad plant to Rockdale and Cameron and a 60-kv line from Waco to McGregor.

CARE IN PRE-SCHOOL AGE MEANS GOOD HEALTH LATER

By Anna B. Towse Another year and Baby will be trotting off to school, too! Then there won't be a baby in the family anymore.

But the mother, who faces this regretful realism, can console herself by doing the many things that will make her pre-school child better fitted physically and mentally to cope with the big burden that the little folks have to bear later on. The child's achievement in school days and in later life depends much upon how you build him today. These are the days that count. Days of right food, plenty of sleep, long hours in the sunshine and fresh air, and play that will make the little legs grow stronger. They should be days, too, that reflect the calm atmosphere of a well ordered and harmonious family life—a household free from friction, irritability and the ill too common "family disorder."

The child's meal time should be happy. Time of gay, bright chatter instead of the time selected to settle disputes. You will rarely find any digestive troubles in a family where conversation is bright and gay at meal time. Food cannot function unless it is eaten under conditions favorable to proper and adequate digestion.

Psychologists and physicians have traced many ailments among school children to adults to malnutrition during the pre-school age. Malnutrition may be due to a series of ailments—poor posture, some organic disturbance, lack of the right quantity of food, lack of the right kind of food. Only your family physician or a trained nutritionist can determine the causes of your child's malnutrition.

If it is due to lack of quantity of food, your doctor may prescribe five meals a day, instead of three. One of the extra meals may be a glass of milk and a Graham cracker or milk biscuit in the morning. Milk is the one almost perfect food. Whether it is market milk or evaporated milk, it is equally nutritious. If your child has tired of milk, you can easily coax back his taste for it by giving him a chocolate milk shake. This is simply made by adding one cup of evaporated milk, one cup of water and one-quarter cup of cocoa syrup. Shake well and add a little ice.

Baked Custard with Prunes. 1 Egg, 1/2 cup sugar, 1/2 cup sugar, Pinch salt, 2 Cup evaporated milk, 2 Cups boiling water, 1-3 tsp. vanilla, 1/2 Prunes, soaked until tender, Nutmeg.

Beat eggs slightly. Add sugar, salt, milk diluted with water and vanilla. Line buttered custard dish with shredded prunes, strain custard mixture into cups and sprinkle with nutmeg. Set in a pan containing sufficient hot water to come almost to top of cups. Bake in a slow oven (300° F.) until a knife inserted comes out clean. Yield: 6 servings.

Cream of Carrot Soup 1 Medium onion, 2 tsp. butter, 1/2 Cup fine bread crumbs, 1 Quart chicken or meat broth, 1 tsp. salt, Dash pepper, 1 tsp. butter, 2 Cup minced onion, 2 cups carrots.

1 Cup evaporated milk, Cook chopped onion slowly in butter five minutes, then brown. Add crumbs, broth, salt, pepper and sugar. Simmer 20 minutes. Add milk and evaporated milk. Reheat and serve. Note: Carrots may be put through food chopper and cooked with the onion in a moderate oven (350° F.) until brown, about 15 minutes. Yield: 6 servings.

Scalloped Spinach 2 Cups freshly cooked or canned spinach, 2 tbs. minced onion, 1/2 tsp. salt, 1 Egg, slightly beaten, 1/2 Cup evaporated milk, 1/2 Cup water, 1/2 Cup buttered bread crumbs.

Heat spinach and press through a coarse strainer. Add all ingredients except crumbs. Turn into a buttered baking dish. Cover with crumbs. Bake in a moderate oven (350° F.) until brown, about 15 minutes. Yield: 6 servings.

RADICAL CHANGES TRANSFORM BANKING

National Commission Sees Changing Opinion on Branch Banking Issue—Studies Group and Chain Banks.

NEW YORK.—Modification of the attitude of bankers on the long disputed branch banking question is forecast in a review and report covering rapid changes going on in banking issued here by the Economic Policy Commission of the American Bankers Association. The report, however, referring to recent proposals that national banks be given branch banking powers within the business territory surrounding their location, declares that "we do not believe that the 'trade-area' branch banking is likely to gain the support of any large percentage of the banking fraternity."

The commission says that the "most important developments that are so-called" in years involves the rapid growth of multiple banking organizations in the form of group, chain and branch banking systems, and adds that "we present this report as an unprejudiced economic study and have no theories or policies to urge at this time." The statement says that the commission's information indicates that the so-called "trade-area" chain bank systems, which control 122 banks and $15,235,000,000 in aggregate resources, and that there are only six states and the District of Columbia in which they do not find any group organizations.

The Commission's Investigation "We have been in touch with the managers of many important bank groups," the report says. "Aside from the obvious economies of professional management of a number of these organization heads very frankly tell us that they do not feel that the system has been in operation and tested long enough to justify them in making positive or sweeping statements as to its advantages or disadvantages compared to unit banking."

"The Banking and Currency Commission, which is conducting an investigation into banking developments, has called a number of operating heads of some of the great group systems. These men declared that the foundation of certain conditions, definite operating and economic advantage in both group and branch banking over independent unit banking. Some thought group banking was the better, others that unit banking was preferable and if it were permitted on an extensive enough scale they would change their groups over to branch systems. Others held the ground that unit banking was better. "Some held that the ideal plan was a combination of the two with group bank units for localities strong enough to support complete banking institutions, with branch offices extending further into the smaller places requiring banking services but not large enough to support complete banks. Several of these who advocated multiple banking declared that nevertheless they believed there would always be room for vigorous independent unit bank competitors.

Government Officials Express Views "The Commission on Banking recommended that national banks be given branch banking powers within 'trade-areas.' The Governor of the Federal Reserve Board appeared to be generally in accord with the controller. He said there were 24,645 banks and 3,547 branches, that in total, 6,855 offices were either branches or offices of group banks. He said leaving 21,339 banking institutions that might be definitely termed independent unit banks, having no branches and no way connected with group affiliation. He said that the banks had total loans and investments of $58,500,000,000, of which the group and branch systems held $30,000,000,000, or more than half.

"He opposed a nation-wide branch banking at present but said that ultimately if bankers became trained and experienced in the larger technique of 'trade-area' banking he thought it would in time evolve a nation-wide branch banking under control of relatively few banks, but he did not believe this would mean monopoly or lack of competition. He said that the branch over group banking which, however, he said represented an economic development along 'trade-area' lines and would spread unless some check came. He said that the 'trade-area' branch banking would serve this purpose. "It is the intention of the Commission to develop its own studies in these questions, with careful every move that is made and every bit of information that may develop in this connection and keep itself prepared to give an unbiased and accurate statement of the facts of the case whenever that is desired," the report concludes.

Federal Reserve Pays Government In the fifteen years since its establishment in 1913, the earnings of the Federal Reserve System's twelve regional banks have amounted to $515,216,000, of which $90,672,000 has been paid to the member banks as dividends, representing 6 per cent annually on their contributions of capital to the reserve banks, while $277,454,900 has been added to the surplus of the reserve banks to the Federal Government as a franchise tax.

"NO MEDICINE EVER HELPED AS DID KONJOLA

Stubborn And Painful Stomach Ailment Readily Yields To Power of Famous Compound

MRS. EDNA BARNETT "Each day for a year I was in misery," said Mrs. Edna Barnett, 713 North Pearl street, Dallas. "My system had become weak and run down from indigestion. Food failed of indigestion and I had a constant burning sensation in my throat and stomach. Gas formed and I often belched violently. My nerves were upset and little things upset terribly. I did not sleep well at night."

"The number of local people getting results attracted my attention to Konjola. I noticed a change for the better in my condition after I had taken the first bottle. I have taken four bottles to date and my health is again normal. I eat what I wish without a trace of indigestion or bloating. My nervous condition is much relieved and I sleep well at night. No medicine ever helped as did Konjola. The files of Konjola contain thousands of such statements. It is recommended by the best medical circles be given a thorough trial, in an average case over a six to eight week period. Konjola is sold in O'Donnell at the Whitsett Drug Store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

The New York state authorities have upheld the contention of a mother that the date of a child's birth should be recorded by standard time. Her baby was born and recorded at the hospital as occurring at 12:30 a. m. May 1, by daylight saving time. She insisted that its birthday was April 30, because it was born at 11:30 p. m. standard time on that date. The authorities agreed with her.

NEW MEXICO

Eastern New Mexico, because problems are similar to those of West Texas is affiliated with the West Texas Chamber of Commerce. New Mexico has grown during the last ten years from 38,573 in population to 418,923 in 1930 an increase of 16.2 per cent. The state rank 44th in 1920.

The increase is almost half a per cent for the 122,631 square miles that this the fourth largest state in area. At the present time New Mexico alone has three times as much land per square mile. Nineteen counties gained, ten in population and two new counties were created since the 1920 census. Of the 78,402,000 acre comprising the state of New Mexico, 4,297 per cent are in private ownership, according to figures released by the land commission. United States national parks and game lands total 22,235 acres and the United States national monuments 23,692 acres. Indian reservation and Indian grants cover 6,554 acres.

A definite trend toward growth in New Mexico is established in the fact that 19,119 of the 573 increase is found in thirty principal towns of the state. The opening up of agricultural lands by irrigation and development of shallow water resources, together with oil development account much of the increase. The state now has three towns with more than 10,000 population. Albuquerque 26,526; Roswell with 12,240 and Santa Fe with 11,167—a gain of three per cent. Clovis showed a gain of 3.18 per cent and Las Cruces 2.18 per cent. The population of the United States national monuments and Indian grants cover 6,554 acres.

ARTICLE XII If Your Cows Could Look Over A Menu

Animals Have Their Likes and Dislikes. Be in Food the Same as Human Beings. Editor's Note—This is another story in a series of articles on dairying written by the well known national dairy and poultry authority...

Every mother who has prepared meals for her children knows how difficult it is to please the little ones. It takes plenty of coaxing and sometimes constant threatening to get children to eat what is good up there.

The owner of a dairy herd should realize that cows, too, have different tastes and appetites the same as people. Feeds that will be gobbled up freely by some cows will not be touched by others.

I have stressed in previous articles the necessity of proper combinations of food and the quantities necessary for the maximum production of milk. Therefore, every attempt should be made to tempt the cow's appetite so that she may eat all that is put before her.

Frequently, molasses is mixed with feeds to induce the cows to eat. It is quite desirable to have in the diet a feed that contains juices similar to the juices of pasture grass.

When One is Old We are repeatedly told that youth and age are not measured by years alone. Some are old fogies at 30; others have the spirit of youth at 80. How is this?

An article in a recent issue of an editorial journal expresses the idea of youth and age better than we could express it, so we quote it in part: "Youth is not a time of life; it is a state of mind. It is a temper of the will, a quality of the imagination, a vigor of the emotions."

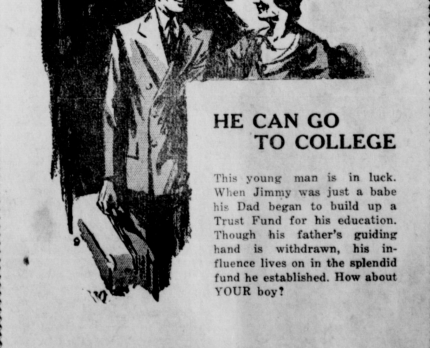

In the United States industry spends about $200,000,000 annually in research work. An increase of 75 per cent has been made in the customs duties on tobacco in the new Vatican City in Rome.

About one-fourth of the total population of the United States are over 65 years of age. Youth means a predominance of courage over timidity, of the appetite of adventure over the love of ease.

These and hundreds of others are extremely old in years, but young in spirit. Thus setting a good example for the rest of us.

John D. Rockefeller, for example, plays golf with zest at the age of 91. Thomas A. Edison is inventing and planning at the age of 83. John R. Voorhis is active as president of the board of elections of New York City at the age of 101.

HE CAN GO TO COLLEGE This young man is in luck. When Jimmy was just a babe his Dad began to build up a Trust Fund for his education. Though his father's guiding hand is withdrawn, his influence lives on in the splendid fund he established. How about YOUR boy?

Rome, Italy, is to be transformed into a modern city with up-to-date accommodations without destroying or disfiguring its ancient monuments. As a part of a campaign to promote better health in Yokohama, Japan, free baths are provided for children under four years of age.

Minerals are very important. Dairy cows and all animals, except those which eat meal, require a large amount of salt. It should be available at all times to dairy cattle. The grinding of grain may help to digest it especially where there are seeds. Sometimes as high as 30 per cent of the grain seeds will pass through the digestive tract of the cow untouched, unless it is ground.

An interesting two-year experiment is being conducted at Cornell University for the purpose of finding the protein content of various grain mixtures. There are lots of cows being used in this test. The hay fed rations of 16 per cent, 20 per cent and 24 per cent protein, respectively. It might be interesting to know the proportions of feed that are being used in this test.

But having determined the proper quantities of food each cow should have, be sure she eats all you give her. If she does not clean up her food it may not be a sign of over-feeding but an indication that the feed is not palatable. You will, therefore, have to do as mothers do for their children, mix flavors that will tickle the appetite.

MRS. J. W. CAMPBELL, Reporter

G. A. HAS LOVELY PARTY MONDAY EVENING

Mrs. Homer St. Clair entertained members of the Junior G. A. at her home Monday evening with an informal party.

Group games were played on the lawn, and dainty refreshments were served.

Those present were Veda Shumate, Lorene Beach, Norma Ruth Vermillion, Majorie Musick, Marie Greenwood, Beatrice James, Juanita Frazier, Kitty May Garner, Wynelle Scott, J. Verna Stead, Iona May Gaddell, Anna Mae Frost and Mary St. Clair.

LAWN PARTY LOVELY OCCASION TUESDAY

One of the prettiest and most enjoyable social occasions of the late summer was the lawn party Tuesday evening at which Misses M. B. Hood and Harvey Jordan were joint hostesses to members of the Thursday Club and a number of guests entertaining at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Bowlin. Elegantly decorated lights were strung across the lawn, and the flower beds and roses furnished a lovely setting.

Thirteen tables of forty-two were in play. Mrs. Harvey Line and W. H. Ritzenthaler were champions of the evening, staying at board table through ten games.

At the close of the games, the hostesses, assisted by Mrs. Bowlin and Miss Alice Joy, served delicious appetizer ice and angel food squares.

The guest list included Messrs, and Misses, Glen Allen, John Earles, Naymon Everett, J. P. Bowlin, D. A. Edwards, Vernon Martin, H. B. Scott, Irvin Street, Harvey Line, T. M. Garner, A. H. Koeninger, Bill Jones, Paul Welch, H. E. Gillispie of Lovelland, Hal Singleton, Jr., E. L. Sorrels, Boss Johnson, E. T. Wells, L. E. Robinson, W. H. Ritzenthaler, C. A. Rayburn, Guy Bradley, Guy McGill.

Misses, J. W. Campbell, Ethel Singleton Williams; Messrs, Ralph Branch, W. S. Cathey, Harvey Jordan, M. B. Hood.

CHICKEN BARBECUE STAGED BY LEGION AND AUXILIARY

Members of the Fern Allen post of the American Legion and the Ladies' Auxiliary were hosts to more than a hundred guests Thursday evening when tubsful of chickens were barbecued.

The admittedly hot cooks and several helpers went to the chosen spot east of town earlier than the others, and when the crowd gathered the tantalizing aroma of sizzling chickens whetted appetites already on tip-toe.

Each family represented in the host organizations had invited guests, and each of them hoping that another such occasion is on the program for the near future.

Added to the barbecued chickens were delicious salads, pickles, and as someone expressed it, ice cream galore.

Among those present were Messrs, and Misses, Guy Bardley, M. B. Hood, Drew Hobdy, John Stokes, Irvin Street, J. M. Farmer, J. L. Shoemaker, Jr., Jones Pierce, R. C. Willis, Roy Wilkes, A. L. Everett, C. R. Brock, Henry Warren, B. L. Parker, L. E. Robinson, E. E. Curtis, A. C. Lambert, R. O. Miles, R. O. Minton, W. C. Sauts; Mr. Sid Cathey, Mrs. H. C. Gantt and children, Mack Noble, and Miss Lavinette Smith.

MUSIC CLASS HAS PICNIC WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON

Pupils of Miss Kathryn Veazey's beginners class in piano spent a few pleasant hours last Wednesday when they held a picnic just west of town.

Each member brought just what her fancy dictated, and the menu had the saving grace of variety, to say the least. After the lunch, games of all sorts were played.

Those present were Margaret and Ruth Vermillion, Majorie Musick, Wynelle Scott, Mary Hamilton, Wilma Gene and Jo Anne Campbell, and the teacher.

MMES. MARTIN, EDWARDS ENTERTAIN WITH PARTY

Misses, D. A. Edwards and Vernon Martin were joint hostesses Friday afternoon when they entertained with five tables of forty-two at the home of Mrs. Martin.

Bowls of cut flowers were decorative notes in the reception rooms where several spirited games of forty-two were played.

The end of the games delicious ice cream and angel food squares were served to the following: Misses, Gannett, Campbell, Roy Everett, Johnson, Gibson, Rayburn, Ray, Line, Bradley, Sorrels, Singleton, Street, James, Jordan, Bowlin, Naymon, Everett, Musick, H. E. Gillispie of Lovelland, and Miss Jessie Gary.

MRS. SORRELS ENTERTAINS FOR GUESTS MONDAY

Honoring her daughter, Miss Tommie Sorrels, who is soon to return to her work at Baylor University, Mrs. Terrel Taylor of Dallas, and Rodney Latta, Jr., of Amarillo, Mrs. E. L. Sorrels was the charming hostess Monday evening to a small number of friends.

Forty-two was the diversion of the evening, and several interesting games were played.

Dainty refreshments of ice cream, wafers were served to the following guests: Messrs, and Misses, W. H. Ritzenthaler, Harvey Jordan, Harvey Line, Misses, Morene Huff and Angelle Clem of Dallas, and Margarete Vermillion, Laynette Smith, Mrs. Phil Singleton Williams; Messrs, Samuel Cathey, Mack Noble, and the honor guests.

S. S. CLASS HAS PARTY TUESDAY EVENING

Celebrating the end of the vacation season, members of Mrs. Boss Johnson's Sunday school class entertained a number of guests with a combination party and picnic Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Dovie Kirkland.

Punch and sandwiches were served after a number of games had been played. More than thirty guests were present.

MISS HUFF HOSTESS TO SCHOOL FRIENDS SUNDAY

A party of school friends from Texas Tech were guests Sunday of Miss Jewel Huff, who is spending a short vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Huff. Those in the party were Miss Lottie Crislin, a junior in the college of Liberal Arts, her brother, Lloyd Crosslin, who recently received his A. B. degree from Tech and will be affiliated with the public schools at Post, and F. W. Clarke, a senior in the Civil Engineering department of the college.

During the course of the visit the guests and their hostess called on another of their friends, Gordon Treadway, who will teach in the high school at Lamesa this year.

After a drive and a kodaking expedition, the hostess served sandwiches, deviled eggs and iced tea to the visitors and other members of the family.

Lamesa, August 27.—Over 1,000 new textbooks for Dawson county's rural schools were received this week by W. T. Webb, county school superintendent. The increase is to take care of the additional 230 pupils enrolled in schools in Dawson county this term.

Six Years Ago

News items taken from files of The O'Donnell Index published here six years ago.

ISSUE OF SEPT. 4, 1924

The first electric light poles were set in front of the Index office and the citizens had the promise of electric lights by the fifteenth of the month.

The old town pump, located about where the Sanders building now is, was put in working order for the benefit of the towns and saddle horses who came to town on Saturdays.

School was scheduled to open on the fifteenth. Among the teachers we find such names as Mrs. C. E. Ray, Miss Leta Rodgers, Miss Winnie Fairley and Miss Christine Millwee.

Four bales of cotton had been ginned to date.

Need for another rural route had been recognized by the post office department, and a rural route "A" was expected to begin serving one hundred and thirty-five families three times a week. Hal Singleton was appointed. (There are those in O'Donnell who are of the opinion that the post office couldn't function without him. And it wouldn't seem natural, would it?)

Hart Mercantile company store was closed for a day of about a few ties, and several cartons of cigarettes. The same night someone stole the harness off the watch dog at the hotel.

Cicero-Smith Lumber company was constructing a large coal house.

The Ford Motor company reported the sale of thirty cars in a period of thirty days.

CUMBERLAND PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH NEWS

Last Sunday was a great day for us, a good Sunday school, with each teacher in their places. The Sunday school is a great place to spend a part of our time on Sunday morning, and we hope to have one of the most interesting Sunday schools in town, one that will mean more than just go to class and then say we have been, but one that will really be constructive in its work, and that will give each person, both young and old some thing to think about in the week days.

If you are not in Sunday school anywhere, we give you a hearty welcome to come and be with us, and we believe we will be able to convince you that you are welcome, and that you will really feel that you received something worth while.

We have four fine teachers, and is doing her part to make the school go. She is progressive in her work, and also constructive in her work. We have four fine teachers, and a place for each one to work. Of course we are handicapped by not having room for each class, but we are looking forward to having a new church with at least 8 Sunday school rooms, so come on and get in with us to the new church.

We plan to take all the Sunday school to Lubbock Sunday morning, leaving the church at 8:30 a. m. So we went each one to be there on time, and we will have a car for you if you don't have one yourself, so register than 8:30 as the cars will leave at that time.

There will be no preaching services Sunday morning as the pastor will be in Lubbock attending Presbyterian. The session is going to be held here in our city next spring and if we are lucky enough to get it, you will have an opportunity to learn more about the work of the Cumberland Church.

Don't forget to be at the church on time.

U. S. Boys To Model This Coach With "U" Scholarships as Goal

Newly formed Fisher Body Craftsmen's Guild offers $50,000 in awards to youths

Department of $50,000. Four university students of $50,000 each are offered by the U. S. Government today the formation of the Fisher Body Craftsmen's Guild, an organization dedicated to the promotion of education in manual arts and to perpetuate the ideals of the American craft guild.

The guild, which has more than 900 other workers having a total value in excess of $50,000, will be given to the boys who build the best model of a Napoleonic coach. The contest is to be held in every city of 12 and 15 inclusive. (owing to the fact that there are only 12 cities in the United States having 15 to 19 years of age.)

The Fisher Body Craftsmen's Guild and its educational projects are sponsored by the Fisher Body Corporation, Detroit, Mich. The corporation is a member of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce and is a member of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America.

The guild is a voluntary organization, active in promoting the educational and social welfare of the youth of the nation. It is a national organization, with chapters in every state.

Thomas S. Baker, president, Carnegie Institute of Technology, Pittsburgh, Pa., is the national chairman. Other members of the national committee are: J. E. Conroy, dean, College of Engineering and Architecture, University of Michigan; G. J. Davis, Jr., dean, College of Engineering, Ohio State University; W. S. Kimball, dean, College of Engineering, Cornell University; P. H. Rouse, dean, Massachusetts Institute of Technology; Robert A. Millikan, California Institute of Technology; R. L. Sackett, dean of engineering, Pennsylvania State College; Newell A. Steiner, C. S. C. dean, College of Engineering, University of Illinois; and S. W. Stratton, president, Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The Fisher Body Craftsmen's Guild has been organized for the purpose of encouraging and stimulating the development and the development of manual skill among the boys and girls of the country. It is felt that with the present trend toward highly developed machinery, there was danger that the next generation would grow to manual unskilled, and that the extinction of real artisans might result.

It is our endeavor to foster, inspire and encourage the spirit of the workmanship which permeated the craft guilds of former times. We believe that the boys and girls of the country will be glad to become members of the guild and to compete in the contest. We believe that they will be glad to be equipped

Model of Napoleonic coach boys of education will make in educational contest fostered by the Fisher Body Craftsmen's Guild. Local, State, National and International contests will be held. The national contest will be held in Detroit, Mich. The national contest will be held in Detroit, Mich. The national contest will be held in Detroit, Mich.

of money to invest in a swell night club, where you can tango and watch the coin flow in, or, if there should be any fumbling, there will be a nice little bit of real estate, just six feet long, in some quiet cemetery—it is yours—who fumble."

There was utter silence about the table for a second—then they all breathed again as Jack pushed his chair back and said with a catlike grace:

"Make the Hole Six Feet Three—for the Englishman, if He Gets in Our Way," grins: "Make the hole six feet three—for the Englishman, if he gets in on any day."

The leader went on. "The New York branch will watch the office. Paul, your men will take the country bank, and Jack the house and the Englishman."

"It is not to be finished. It would make too much talk just now. But he can be confined to the house and out of our way if it is cleverly done." He paused and looked warily at Jack. "You have one chance at him—more. The girl is his most important. She must not be made suspicious."

After luncheon Roberta, in her car, came to the door of the terrace and called to Sir George: "Ready?" She could see now pleased Aunt Aggy looked at the thought of their going off together. "Tiresome old Scotch hen!" She was heartless, despite all her denials, building a castle in the air in which the beautiful Britisher carried off the rich American heiress.

"Are you driving?" Roberta permitted him the merest nod. "Well, very cushy this," he declared and slumped down in the comfortable seat.

Without looking at him Roberta sent the car flying. Sir George stole a look at her and felt himself rewarded. She made a picture worth looking at again and again. He devoutly hoped she would let him look at her and keep her mouth shut. It seemed to him that when her mouth opened he got more gall and wormwood than was rightly one man's share.

"We go straight along the river road until we come to the bend in front of us. That's Green Bend, where the artists live," said Roberta, after a silence.

Masten. He is acting as my father's private secretary, and father told me to introduce him to you, and to say that Sir George would be commissioned to transact most of father's banking business here."

Mr. Masten's eyes had opened wide at the mention of Sir George's title. "What—that was the name again?" he asked.

Roberta did not smile, though Sir George was tempted to. She realized, though she did not, that this would be an event in the village. Anyway that long Scot should not be made any more conceited than he was.

"Sir George Sandison," she said distinctly. "He will write it for you now, so that you may have it—for reference. I'll leave you to make each other's acquaintance, while I cash this check."

Evidently Mr. MacBeth's name was an "Open Sesame" in that town, and having assured Mr. Masten that he did not yet wish to open an account himself—for the very good reason, which Mr. Masten did not state, he began to guess that he had nothing to begin to account with—Sir George rejoined Roberta MacBeth.

He found her outside the bank building, chatting with a very good-looking young man. He was formally introduced as Ted Granger, from up the river. He was a cordial youth, almost as tall as Sir George, but Roberta allowed them their very little time together.

"Come on, Ted, if you're coming. Don't let the grass grow under your feet. Pile in."

Ted contrived by some curious contrivance to introduce himself into the car which was built for two only. "We're set," he informed Roberta, his mouth somewhere on the level of her red gold curls. "I see no use of waiting. Let's go!"

They got off and Sir George felt a warm glow, both physical and mental, go through him. The physical came, he knew, from the fact that Ted's form and his were as those of the same breed, and occupied the same space. The mental glow came from the fact that he was relieved from a lonely drive with Roberta and her sniffs.

As they approached a bend in the road, Roberta swerved the car slightly to the right and stopped it in an open space before a low stone wall.

"She was surprised as she reached them, prepared to advise him that it was time to be on their way to the island, to hear him say: "Sorry, I can't promise you. You see I'm Mr. MacBeth's secretary and my time is his from ten to four and sometimes later. Oh, undoubtedly I'll have Saturdays off to play golf some time."

"Undoubtedly," Roberta echoed with a little bitterness, which she tried to disguise from his companion with a smile and a light pat on her arm. "Undoubtedly, Nell, he'll have no time at all for us, judging from the way he hangs about Father. Try to get my influence with Father and we'll try him out at golf or tennis, whether he likes it or not."

"Well," reluctantly ordered the unconvinced Nell, "telephone me on your car, if you have a chance to say a thing like that, you jealous little cat," he murmured to the astonished girl.

Roberta's answer was to send the car racing across a dangerous curve at sixty miles an hour, with Sir George clutching at his hat.

The next morning found them in her car again, making their way across the island bridge, Roberta driving and her companion leaning lazily back, surveying the road before them. They had not spoken directly to each other, since their return yesterday.

As they approached the curve of the rocky creek nearest him. He had made the discovery that the rose color was natural and did not come off. His impatient kick had not done it, and he had tried to find out, but his lips, he meant to find out later, if Roberta made it possible.

Sir George was looking at Roberta hard, despite the lovely scenery they were passing through. Confound it! The girl hadn't spoken to him yet. But he would not apologize. It would do no good anyway. The little spite-fire would only use it against him. He wondered what she was thinking and would have been surprised if he had known that Roberta did not think when she was with him. Her intellectual faculties, as yet undeveloped, were rendered completely inoperative by his mere physical presence.

Roberta looked back and gazed at the road ahead of him, until finally the girl spoke: "Straight ahead until you reach this point in the road. Memorize it because you turn here to your left. I won't be with you next time."

He settled down and prepared to memorize the road. The next day he was on his way toward a large town or a small city. He could not quite tell what it was. On its outskirts Roberta MacBeth was constructing a tremendous viaduct, which would him to two great routes together.

Presently they came within sight of the construction camp. Great sheds, which sheltered the supplies, bank behind the tents which housed some of the workers, and everywhere sounds of activity, and of building. The pleasure was as old as the pyramids of Egypt and as fast as the wind.

"Absolutely finished!" He went toward the door of the shack and stood for a moment, his hand on the latch of the door, looking about him, drinking in the scene, with a certain feeling of homesickness. It suggested to him the activities of a war camp, and later still, the camp in Yucatan.

"Are you hanging on to that latch for moral or physical support? Won't those long legs support your heavy head?"

A rather short, sturdy young man was gently pushing the door from the other side and had called this to him through the crack. "Oh, I say, stupid of me!" Sir George exclaimed, stepping aside. "But the whole thing's so—d—interesting I forgot myself. I'm looking for Mr. Raymond T. Browne, construction engineer. Will you kindly direct me?"

"Best your eyes do me," Browne begged him softly. "This is Raymond T. What can I do for you?"

"Mr. MacBeth sent me," Sir George explained carefully. "In his private secretary."

"What happened to old Morrison?" "Oh, still at the office," Sir George reassured him. "Maybe I ought to have called myself Mr. MacBeth's secretary. I'll be fello' at this end."

Browne took a good look at him and pulled him into the shack. "Come in and sit down. This is too good to be true. I heard there was one titled Scotch guy over here, but I never hoped to lay eyes on such."

He held out his hand. "Glad to see you here. Had a long distance call from the boss saying that you would be up here today, so I'm all set."

"Yes?" Sir George looked at him a trifle hazily. "I don't know what you mean. Would you mind going rather slowly with the great American slang, Mr. Browne, until I'm thoroughly acclimated?"

Browne frowned a little. "What's the everlasting hurry? Somebody's got to explain this to the Old Man, and why not you?"

slang she's a lemon to me—or is it she hands me a lemon to me—the old man was pushing him toward the doorway. "Let's tell Miss Bobbie how long it will take us, and see if she will wait. Gee, is it possible that after the Old Man's sending for an imported article of large size and imposing presence like yourself, she still sticks to smaller but home-grown products? It is too good to be true!"

"By George, that's the engineer at a building job," he puzzled to see Roberta MacBeth greet Ray Browne with a cordiality in marked contrast to the unfriendly and cold shouter who had shown him. More over, she appeared to ride further up the river and then come back for both young men, giving Ray Browne time to explain himself to MacBeth's secretary. She promised to take both to the next town, where they enthusiastically assured her he would dig up a tea place where they could dance.

"Marveling at this friendliness, from the modern heat of unapproachable Roberta, Sir George watched her drive away. If she were always like that no wonder Browne adored her. He noticed, however, that after a brief but thorough tribute to the lady's beauty and sense, Browne settled down to business and, even to Sir George's critical eyes and ears, proved himself a good choice of workmate, with equal cordiality, to take both men to the next town, where they enthusiastically assured her he would dig up a tea place where they could dance.

When Sir George in his turn began asking questions about the camp, however, Browne looked twice at this man who he had decided, at first glance, was one of those who made his way in the world by looks and influence, and had left gray matter out of the count. This fellow had gray matter. How much Browne could not yet say, but he had it, if he chose to use it; and beside it those looks and that height! Browne mentally shrugged his shoulders, as he put MacBeth's private and special report in a large and official envelope.

He dusted himself and his hat carefully, threw his working coat across the small room and landed it squarely on the hook he had selected, washed his hands, smoothed down his hair and declared himself ready.

Roberta not being in sight yet, Sir George detained Ray Browne as the latter prepared to go forth and search for the car. "I say, Browne, stay where you are. Miss MacBeth will be here just as soon as if you don't run to meet her. I'd like a bit of information about the payroll trouble the MacBeth Construction company has had, either here or at the New York end."

THREE LAKES

Our community is grieved over the sudden death of little Keet Johnson. He was not feeling well Friday, but was not seriously ill until Sunday evening. They took him to Lubbock Sunday night. Dr. Kreyger said he had never seen anyone like him. His little tongue filled up with fluid. He died some where about four o'clock Monday morning and was buried at four o'clock Monday evening. The entire family have the community's sympathy. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wash Johnson.

Mr. and Mrs. John Anderson and Mr. and Mrs. Wright Edwards of O'Donnell visited Carroll Edwards and family Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Sikes visited Lubbock Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Moore of Grand Prairie visited in the W. E. Sikes home. They formerly lived at New Moore.

Mrs. H. T. Ellis was taken to the Lubbock sanitarium last Friday, was operated on and is doing as well as could be expected.

Mr. and Mrs. Jake Ellis of Lamesa spent Sunday in the G. W. Hickerson home.

Ed Dorsey has returned home from the oil fields.

Bro. Vinson preached to a small crowd Saturday night at the school house.

EAST SIDE NEWS

Mr. A. F. Honsick and Mr. F. G. Wheller made a trip to Lorenzo last Tuesday. Mr. Honsick was looking after his farm, 2 miles north of Lorenzo. He said it was still dry up there all they have had is a light rain.

Mr. and Mrs. Mac Thorp and Mrs. Bill Hopper come up last Wednesday night to visit their father and mother Mr. and Mrs. Lee Brewer. Mr. Thorp brought 3 large catfish that he had caught out of the Pecora River. Mr. Brewer said he sure did feed on them. They were fine for Mr. Brewer brought the writer and his wife a fine mess. Mr. Brewer said that the 3 fish would weigh about 25 or 30 lbs.

Mr. Cecil Sweat and family spent Wednesday night with Mr. and Mrs. Lee Brewer. Mrs. Sweat's father and mother, returning home Thursday morning.

J. R. and Ernest Romies left the first of last week for Munday, Knox county to pick cotton. They are the grandsons of Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Farberough.

Well the health of the East Side is good. Some folks are suffering from the dry, hot days. We would be awfully thankful for a good rain. Cotton is opening some but it is no god for anything.

WITH THE CHURCH ORGANIZATIONS

Cumberland Presbyterian Sunday school attendance, 34. The Missionary Society had an unusually interesting meeting Monday afternoon. Mrs. Hal Singleton led the lesson in the first chapter of Ephesians. Others commented and offered suggestions.

The blessing boxes were opened, and plans for attending presbytery at Lubbock this week-end were discussed. Mrs. E. L. Sorrels has been elected delegate and all others are being urged to attend on Sunday, at least.

Bro. Parr delivered a beautiful sermon on Christian Fidelity, was the morning service, and also had charge of the evening service at the Methodist church with the dispensation of the wonders of God as the theme of his message. This joint meeting was much appreciated, especially by the Methodists who were sheep without a shepherd that day.

Baptist

Sunday school attendance, 110. The W. M. U. met at the church at three o'clock, at which time Mrs. J. T. Middleton taught the lesson in the mission study, "In Royal Service." A splendid attendance and interest was reported.

The B. Y. P. U. organization are all doing good work. Every young person not already affiliated with a similar organization has a hearty invitation to attend these meetings.

Methodist

Sunday school attendance, 128. Special music by Miss Esther Davis and her brother, Arnel, was a new and much enjoyed feature of the opening services. They were kind enough to promise to come again, a promise of which they will receive at the Missionary Society had an interesting meeting.

We are sorry that we were unable to get a report from this church this week.

DAWSON COUNTY WILL NOT HOLD COUNTY FAIR THIS YEAR

Instead of a county fair in September, a group of farmers and businessmen meeting at Lamesa Friday decided to hold community exhibits of one and two day duration over the county up until January when the winning products at each exhibit are to be shown at a mid-winter agricultural meet sometime during the first of 1937. The decision was made on the motion of W. W. Evans, Dawson county agent.

The Mid-Winter meeting will be more of a stock show and dairy short course than a fair, although farm products will be exhibited at that time," Evans said. "Since it is customary for the farmers to hold their community meetings and judge their products, we feel that it would be more satisfactory to center more attention on these farm showings instead of a fair."

O'DONNELL WINS PRIZE AT ZONE MEET THURSDAY

Having the highest percentage of attendance, the local W. M. S. of the Methodist church was awarded a loving cup at the zone meeting held at Draw last Thursday.

The Draw society was hostess to some six of the Lubbock district on that date. Mrs. M. B. Hood, O'Donnell, presided as leader. Mrs. Adair of Tahoka, who has been a member of the missionary society fifty-two years, conducted a brief devotional which opened the meeting.

In behalf of the Draw auxiliary, Mrs. D. G. Cook gave a most cordial welcome. Mrs. Hood responded for the zone.

A chorus by members of the Lochie Rankin society, Lamesa, was much enjoyed. Mrs. R. B. Smith gave a few interesting suggestions to publicity superintendents.

Mrs. Phil Yonge of Lamesa gave an enthralling review of the current mission study, "Trailing the Conquistadores."

At the noon hour a delightful luncheon and social hour was furnished by the hostess organization.

At 1:30 the group assembled for the afternoon session. Rev. E. T. Breedlove, Tahoka, conducted the devotional, using the fourth chapter of Ephesians as his scripture lesson, stressing unity in the church. Mrs. T. M. Garner and Belle Knight, O'Donnell, favored the group with a duet, "Living for Jesus." Mrs. R. A. Metcalf, Slaton, Conference superintendent of children's work, made an inspiring talk on the importance of this phase of church development, urging each auxiliary to co-operate with their junior superintendent.

Miss Mary Jo Gates, O'Donnell, made an enthusiastic and appealing talk on the Northwest Texas Girls' camp at Cota Canyon, after which Mrs. W. H. Kitzenthaler, O'Donnell, gave a lovely piano number.

A short business session was held. Mrs. W. K. Crawley, district secretary, gave her famous "District Note," and told some of the plans for the rest of the year's work.

Mrs. Breedlove invited the zone to meet at Tahoka next time which invitation was accepted. Mrs. Crawley thanked the Draw auxiliary for their splendid hospitality. She all showed the following organizations to be represented: Tahoka, Lamesa and Lochie Rankin, Lamesa O'Donnell and Draw.

Closing the day, Mrs. Randall, Lamesa, conducted a beautiful consecration service, using the hymn "They were kind enough to promise to come again, a promise of which they will receive at the Missionary Society had an interesting meeting."

B. Y. P. U. REVIVAL TO BE HELD AT BAPTIST CHURCH

The B. Y. P. U. revival will be held at the Baptist church Monday night, September 8, commencing at 8:00 o'clock.

Rev. L. S. Jenkins asks that all members of the church Monday night, September 8, be present and extend cordial invitation to the public.

Rev. W. J. Albritton of Munday will conduct the morning and evening services at the Baptist church Sunday. The local pastor invites the people of O'Donnell to be present at these services and hear some "real" preaching by one of the leading pastors of the state.

Rev. Jenkins reports a fine meeting held at New Home where he has just closed his campaign. There were 25 adoptions to New Home church during the revival.

TO THE VOTERS OF LYNN COUNTY

To the votes of Lynn County I want to say "Thank You." I cannot express myself for the liberal support given me in the run-off. I appreciate every vote and all the influence that you have given to me in both campaigns. It is my earnest endeavor to carry out the laws of the county, state and nation to the best of my ability and at any time that I can serve you call me. I am at your service. THANKS again for the fine support. I wish I could thank each individually. B. L. PARKER 50-tc.

TO THE CITIZENS OF LYNN COUNTY

I desire to express my appreciation for the nomination for Tax Assessor of Lynn County. I shall strive at all time to make you a good officer. A. I. THOMAS 1t.

CARD OF THANKS

I desire by this method to thank each and every business man and person in O'Donnell that contributed to the fine premium raised and presented me for the first bale of cotton. Especially do I desire to thank J. P. Bowlin and Harvey Jordan for the ginning and their efforts in raising the premium and for the liberal price paid for the cotton. Also Mr. Aylor for auctioning off the bale. A. L. BARNES 50-tc.

WEST TEXANS IN PARTY TO WELCOME FRENCH FLYERS AT DALLAS

When Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte, flying their famous trans-Atlantic plane Question Mark, land at Love Field in Dallas, Thursday afternoon they will be received by two West Texans, George F. (Jimmy) Smith, of Snyder, and Tom A. Witte, of Lubbock.

Jimmy Smith has been appointed personal representative of Wm. E. Easterwood, Jr., Dallas chewing gum manufacturer, who will pay the French flyers $25,000 for their flight from Paris to Dallas. Mr. White will represent the aviation committee of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. White left Lubbock early Wednesday morning for Snyder where he and Smith boarded a Southern Air Transport plane at 1:30 for Dallas. The plane was sent to Snyder for the two men by the Dallas Chamber of Commerce.

Two new flyers are expected to leave New York early Thursday morning and land at Love field at 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon.

COACH SAYS FOOTBALL ATTRACTING INTEREST

With six games scheduled and several other dates now pending, football is the major interest of the high school boys, according to Coach B. H. Coett.
