Game Reserves Are Being Set

AUSTIN.—Game restoration in Texas was given added impetus this week with the announcement that the fourth Pittman-Robertson project has been approved by the U. S. Bureau of Fish and Wildlife. The State Game Department will proceed immediately with the building of five large areas upon which tur¬key and deer will be raised. Acknowledged to the new project totals 115,000.

Five game areas will be set in as many localities in the state as the executive secretary of the Game Department announced, and under the supervision of the director of the res¬truction turkey and deer will be raised. Hereinafter Curtiss will patrol at least three of the areas. Two are being set up for turkey restoration, a pair for turkey and deer and one for deer only.

The areas: 18,000 acres in Angelina and Polk counties for turkey restoration only; 20,000 acres in Crockett county; 14,000 acres in Colorado county for turkey only; 20,000 acres in Calhoun county for deer and tur¬key and 20,000 acres in East Texas county for deer only.

The caretakers on each of the a rea will not only patrol them to pre¬vent hunting of the seed stock, but will also improve the cover and food supply for both deer and turkey. Hunting will not be allowed on any of the areas for several years while the seed stock is populating the areas. The caretakers on each of the areas will be hea¬ded by the Game Department. From 20 to 75 turkeys will be released in each of the areas set up for them, and from 45 to 100 deer will be plac¬ed on each of the sections set aside for the restoration of white tails. LUBBOCK — An Indian grave typical of the Plains region has been reproduced at West Texas Museum, thanks to CCC boys. Associated with the burial were two children, scrapings with metal cutting edges, ten bone bracelets, a handful of trade beads, a metal spoon, two brass rings and an iron pipe that may have been used as a pistol barrel. A few fragments of rotting leather, which it was round, metal objects placed with their faces to the east, and some kind, candy, nuts, and fruit. And don't forget my little sister, Bette Lucille.
