O'DONNELL, TEXAS, FRIDAY, JULY 26, 1941.

For the Best Interests of O'Donnell and Lynn County

School Transfer Now Explained

Every child lawfully enrolled in any district or independent district may, under the order of the county school superintendent, be transferred to the enrollment of any other district in the county, upon a written application of the parent or guardian or person having lawful control of the child, filed with the county superintendent; provided, that any district being dissatisfied with any transfer made by the county superintendent may appeal from such transfer to the county board of trustees of said county, who shall have the right to annul or cancel the transfer allowed by the county superintendent.

By order of the county school superintendent transferring a child from one district to another shall be in writing.

Persons over eighteen years of age may not be transferred.

When application is made to the county superintendent in the time and manner explained above, it is the duty of the county superintendent to make the transfer. He may, at his discretion, refer the matter to local boards to prepare reports to be heard by the county board of school trustees.

Transfers may not be made from one district to another unless the districts are contiguous, if it is shown to the satisfaction of the county superintendent that the transfer is in the best interest of the child.

Transfers may not be made from one county to another unless the counties join.

Parents of common school districts may pay tuition for a child in the district for his attendance in the district of another district.

The State will pay the tuition and transportation of a transferred pupil if the home district is a school district.

Because of the many requests for information about transfers, I have asked that the general information so all may read and study it. If there are still questions about transfers, this office will try to solve the problem satisfactorily.—Mrs. Lenore M. Tunnell, county school superintendent.

B. W. Taylor of the Church of the Nazarene, officiating. Buchanan passed on Friday morning at 8:30 a. m.

Widely known for his ability to make friends, Buchanan was also admired for his fortitude and uncompromising attitude through adversity. Both ministers paid tribute to his character, but his friends were already well aware of his virtues through their association with him through the years. His love for his family was also a source of comment by his friends.

People of wealth and those who were poor were present at his last services Saturday, and this fact again demonstrated to the living that Fred Buchanan was indeed loved by all, was a friend to everyone.

Lawrence Asks Farmers' Patience

It is requested that farmers wait for their notices of acreage measurements before they come to the county AAA office to find out about how their farms measured out. We are working at top speed to get the measurements out to the farmers as fast as possible. Requests from farmers to look up the measurements on their farms before notices are sent out seriously hinder the work in the county office and are proving costly to the farmer.

We are very anxious to get all farms checked as early as possible but a number of things may interfere to hinder the progress of the measurements through the regular channels. Your farm might be on two maps and one of the maps may still be out in the field. It is possible that the County Supervisor may need the map on which your farm is shown for recheck purposes. It may be that some small item has escaped the attention of the reporter and everything must be held in the suspense file until the reporter comes to the office. Reporters turn in work and maps once each week and it may be that the report of your farm has not been checked in.

We are very anxious that the work of checking performance be finished as early as possible and we will appreciate the very best cooperation from farmers to get the work done. He can best cooperate by waiting patiently until we can send out his measurements. Any hindrance in the regular work costs the farmer.—C. A. Lawrence.

Russian Army Plan for Slowing Blitz Follows China's 'Retreating' Technique; Churchill Hails Soviet as 'Real Ally'; Extension of Draftee Service Sought

EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper. (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Deeper into Russia than their companions—but unarmed—these invading Nazi soldiers are marched off to a Red prison camp after capture "Somewhere on the eastern front." That bald-headed, shirt-clad panzer trooper, fourth from left, in the front line, looks out of place among his companions, who seem to be shock-headed boys.

BEAR: On Defense

The Russian Bear, no matter what the communiques might say, was obviously putting up a hard fight before the advancing German mechanized forces, and the British, who had taken the quick defeat of Russia as a foregone conclusion were beginning to cheer.

Churchill, who had been through three previous milder stages of hailing Russia as a companion in arms, finally and very bluntly told the house of commons "of course Russia is an ally of Britain."

One of the signs that the Reds' defense of their homeland was vigorous and not without military merit came from an official admission on the part of Germany's high command that the Nazi armies had hurled back a considerable counter-attack.

Communicate "solvers" naturally saw in this admission proof that the Russian armies were actually fighting, and battling to some purpose in their gradual withdrawal to the Stalin line and perhaps further to the interior.

Washington observers cautioned against too much faith in an eventual Russian victory, however, unless the defenders would be able to withdraw their armies with much of their equipment intact, into that hinterland broadly described as "the Urals."

As in the Battle of France, it was conceded that the French would have had a chance of immobilizing the war only if they were willing to give up Paris and other cherished cities, and move backward with the assault, harassing the advancing Nazis and softening their blows, "riding with the punches" as the boxing phrase has it.

This was the technique which enabled to make a four-year-old war of position out of the Japanese blitz of 1937 in China. It was the same technique which observers in this country were recommending for Russia.

There was nothing in dispatches to show that the Reds were not doing just that, save that no city of vital importance like Leningrad, Moscow or Kiev had yet fallen, though Germans claimed they had passed the latter.

It was impossible, in view of conflicting claims, to determine with even probable accuracy and allowing for a wide margin of error to figure the price being paid by either side in the Russo-German war.

If German claims were to be believed, Russia had left only a fragmentary part of her motorized equipment and her air force. If Russia were to be believed Germany was reduced to using "canvas" tanks and mere boys to operate them.

But even the German communiques admitted Russia still had hundreds of tanks in action, and hundreds of planes, and the Reds' bombing activities were reported from neutral points to be hitting targets far within Rumania and far within Finland.

The actual facts of the war, however, remained continually clouded in mystery, despite the fact that correspondents finally were admitted to Moscow, which also installed a short-wave radio to give out war news to the United States and other countries.

HOPKINS: To London Harry Hopkins, President Roosevelt's "trouble shooter" and confidant, was being sent to London again. While there was little definite information readily available as to the reason for Hopkins' second trip to England, it was recalled that only the other day in the house of commons there had been some bitter statement over the handling of American plane purchases.

MARSHALL: His Plan

Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff of the U. S. army, urged two major points before congress' senate military affairs committee, and apparently the President was willing to go along with one, but not with the other.

Point No. 1 was that the selectees should be kept in uniform longer than a calendar year from the time of their induction. He wanted this restriction removed by congress from the selective service law.

Point No. 2 was that he wanted the restrictions removed ordering that selectees could serve only in the Western hemisphere. The President apparently was willing to exert some White House pressure on congress to get the second provision passed.

However, early polls of senatorial reactions to both points were unfavorable, though a majority of those questioned reported themselves "undecided" and "preferring to hear the debate."

The question had broadly resolved itself into how large an army the U. S. should have, and how long it takes to train a soldier.

General Marshall also made the point that the selectees had been poured into all army units, with the result that if they were sent home after a year, these units would suffer dismemberment.

JAPAN: On the Verge

The sudden resignation of the Japanese cabinet, together with many dispatches quoting the indefinite "diplomatic sources," seemed to indicate that Nippon might be on the verge of some important step in world affairs.

What this might be remained hidden, though British statements seemed to hint that Japan might be contemplating a move into Indo-China.

A secondary guess was that Japan might be planning a "token" assault on Russia's east coast—Siberia, perhaps to attempt to close the port of Vladivostok—name famous in the Japanese-Russian war at the turn of the century.

The quitting cabinet is the one which put Soviet Russia into the Rome-Berlin axis, and also, strangely enough, into a neutrality accord with Russia.

The government was almost exactly a year in office, so it could not be charged with the stalemate in China, in fact it was not organized to do anything about the Chinese war.

There was little that could be said surely about the situation, some holding that the cabinet resignation meant that Japan's whole foreign policy would be reoriented in view of the German-Russian war.

Whether this would mean that the next government would be more pro-German, or whether Japan was getting ready to withdraw from all European commitments could hardly be told.

Certain it was that in Tokyo was a little group of Nazis who were said to have dominated the last cabinet, and to have been urging the strongest possible intimidation of America in the Pacific, in order to occupy the United States so strongly with the West coast that aid to Britain might be minimized.

ROOSEVELT: Nazi Names

The German press, in its previous references to this country, had been relatively mild. On the contrary, the papers were now vying with each other to use strong language about President Roosevelt.

The President, said one paper, "is circling like a vulture over the Azores and the Cape Verde islands." Another said: "Roosevelt has raised gangsterism to be a symbol in politics."

That 'Goldfish' Bowl Again

Staff Sergeant Robert W. Shackleton of New York, who was drafted last fall and has already earned his sergeant's stripes, picks the first capsule, No. 196, in the second peacetime national lottery at Washington, D. C. Lieut. Col. R. Morris, who also officiated at 1917 lottery, is at right.

Spanish 'Crusade' Against Reds?

With banners and bands, enthusiasm is whipped up in Spain for crusade against the Reds—this was part of the Nazi campaign for a Spanish legion to fight against Russia on the eastern front. A drive which ended in "fiasco," according to London. Spaniards, says London, have had war enough.

Strategic Outposts for U. S. Defense

Placing U. S. troops in Iceland in occupation of strategic Atlantic outposts were taken "in order to forestall any pincers movement undertaken by Germany against the Western hemisphere," according to a statement by President Roosevelt. Above map indicates how this works. (1) Iceland occupation nullifies any Nazi threat from the north and occupation of Trinidad, and British Guiana (2 and 3) take care of the southern jaw of the pincer hinged on Vichy-French Dakar in Africa. Some sources contend taking over of Azores and Cape Verde Islands (shown in large type) would further greatly strengthen hemisphere defense.

'Good Neighbors'—Junior Style

End of a Record

Joe DiMaggio's batting streak of hitting safely in 56 consecutive games was ended as he banged out the blow shown above. Next game he failed to get a hit and his record stands for the baseball world to shoot at.

Strike Warning

Harry Bridges (arrow), West coast maritime union leader, is shown as he warned of "a big strike" since he is not satisfied with longshoremen's wages.

Exit Lawes

For 21 years Lewis E. Lawes was boss of Sing Sing and now he is leaving to be a writer and lecturer. He is shown taking a last look at his old domain, where as warden he became internationally famous as penologist. In background are buildings of the well-known prison.

New Air Chief

This is Brig. Gen. Carl Spaatz, newly appointed chief of army air force, now operating as an independent division within the department of war.

My Week by Eleanor Roosevelt

I was a little late at City hall in New York city one morning because we encountered some pretty heavy showers, which always slow up driving. As soon as I reached City hall, the mayor appeared and we went at once to the council room, where there was a large gathering. I was happy to see my friend, Mr. David Dubinsky, amid a number of familiar faces. The girls who modeled the clothes and the girls who sewed in the labels were all as pretty as could be. These labels have a real significance. They guarantee that labor conditions are good and tell every woman in the United States that she is wearing a dress designed and manufactured in New York city, which today claims to be the fashion center of the world. Mrs. Dorothy Anderson will be the executive director of the New York Dress Institute and I am sure that she will successfully promote the wearing of these dresses. Those shown ranged in price from $1.95 to $295. I was interested in the speed with which the girls sewed in the labels and could see that this day was one of real excitement for them. May it also be a day which inaugurates a program providing more work for many people under better working conditions.

SOLDIERS AND SAILORS I joined the mayor and drove up to the opening of the Soldiers and Sailors club at 99 Park avenue. This is to be a central bureau of information where any soldier, sailor, marine or aviator can find out what is planned and available in recreation along the lines of his particular interests. The lucky boys, 50 strong who faced us, were all turned over to very pretty girls, who drew the names of their partners out of the mayor's hat. They then went off to show their escorts the town. After lunch, I went to the Hotel Astor to see a collection of women's clothes, which a group of English manufacturers have brought over for sale to our big shops. They certainly have some perfectly delightful materials, which I am sure were made in Scotland. It is extraordinary that, in spite of all they have been through, they can still turn out clothes carefully made and showing no sign of being made under unusual conditions. They presented me with a dress they had made for me and brought over. It is very charming and I know I shall enjoy wearing it.

One of the "lucky boys" of whom Mrs. Roosevelt speaks in this week's column is introduced by the nation's First Lady to one of the pretty Power's models—his blind date for a day in New York.

LETTER FROM ENGLAND I keep receiving letters from people who head the Women's Institutes in England, an organization which is comparable to our Home Bureaus, and which is affiliated with them internationally. The letters tell me what the seeds we send have meant to them.

I received a letter from a woman with whom I went to school in England and who lives on the coast there. I quote part of her letter: "It is splendid to feel that your great country realizes so fully what we are up against and there is a lovely feeling of kinship with all the peoples who are banded together to overcome this embodiment of evil. Indeed this is a righteous war and a crusade to save those who are oppressed. We are all sacrificing everything gladly for the sake of freedom and to save goodness, kindness and self-respect. Life here is curious, such an odd sense and realization of the impermanence of all material things and possessions. One sows seeds, one plants and cultivates with a detached feeling, wondering subconsciously whether one will be there to reap the crops or whether their progress will be hastened by a bomb."

I can hardly realize that the little girl I remember could have written this letter, but it is one worth our considering.

REACTION ON ICELAND Everyone that I have seen so far is relieved that the United States is taking over in Iceland, and there by making sure that no enemy will gain a foothold at the northern end of this hemisphere. I am sure we are going to know more about Iceland than we ever have known in the past. I didn't know that it was the oldest democracy in existence nor did I realize that many of her sons and daughters have come to settle in the United States.

"My Servel Electrolux Refrigerator was installed in my kitchen March 1, 1929, and has been on the job ever since. It has not cost a cent for repairs in more than twelve years continuous operation. Its tiny flame is scarcely larger than the pilot light on range or water heater so we have figured that the cost of operation has never exceeded 2c per day even during the hottest months when so many ice cubes are needed.

Not only do we have plenty of cubes and space for ice cream, but vegetables are kept crisp and fresh; and there is steady, constant refrigeration at a temperature under 40° for milk, butter, and meat—foods that must have just that to be safe for human consumption."

YOU BUY INOCULATION ON FAITH

Field tests have shown a big difference in the quality of inoculator brands on the market. You cannot see the legume bacteria you purchase. Immediate demonstration is impossible. What is the reputation and experience behind the inoculation you buy?

● NITRAGIN is the ORIGINAL LEGUME INOCULATOR, having served the farmers for over forty years. It won a GOLD MEDAL at the World's Fair, St. Louis, 1904.

● NITRAGIN is made in the most complete and modern laboratory of its kind in the world.

● NITRAGIN is the leader in its field by a big margin. NITRAGIN demand in the South has rapidly increased year after year. During the fall of 1940 the Southern shipments of NITRAGIN were for more than 45 million pounds of VEITCH and WINTER PEAS. This large demand is due to many field tests carried on year after year. We prove by these tests that NITRAGIN is a good product.

Send for our booklet "Plant Legumes to Prosper," showing pictures of field tests and how NITRAGIN is made. The booklet also gives you valuable information regarding the inoculation of legumes. If your dealer does not have NITRAGIN in stock, have him get it for you. Insist on NITRAGIN inoculation.

LYNN SAYS:

When you think the thermometer's going to burst, then think cool, eat cool, act cool, and you'll be cool.

Be gay and have your meals casually out on the shady porch on a bright table cloth.

No one may feel much like eating, and people, generally eat less during summer months, but they must still have the proper diet.

Man About Town:

Secretary of State Cordell Hull has recovered sufficiently from a threatened collapse. He will resume the burden of his office and the world soon . . . Mrs. FDR's new radio sponsor may be Brazil at $2,000 a broadcast . . . Hitler's squawk that an American ship is arriving daily in Alexandria is a lie.

Carol and Lupescu are concerned about their reception here. Why? They got a most cordial press on their arrival to this hemisphere . . . Hess is supposed to have said that he fled because the stars by which Hitler lives "deserted him after May 12th" . . . Our submarine detectors have been perfected to the point where surface craft can now signal: "Come up for identification or be sunk!" . . . There are models of cargo vessels being tried out in Long Island sound, which are Mr. Hitler's newest headache.

Exclusive! Jap subs, manned by German crews, are waiting in the narrow straits of Vladivostok to sink American supplies to Russia . . . A great number of German-American Bunders will have their citizenship revoked shortly—thanks to the splendid work of the Immigration Service via Sylvester Pinduck's office.

The Democratic brain trust figures that either Farley or O'Dwyer can lick any G.O.P. candidate for Mayor of New York. Some believe Farley will race against Dewey for Governor, but it may be Farley vs. Willkie.

Notes of an Innocent Bystander:

Magic Carpet: Ralph Ingersoll, the publisher, now on his way to Russia (to interview Stalin) was complaining to Steve Early at the White House the other day. "Steve," Ingersoll intoned, "those Russians are holding my passport."

Eyebrow Lifter: Mr. Ingersoll was saying before he left that he had just learned the hardest thing to find in Russia was a Communist. "How's that?" he was asked.

Despite the rigid censorship in Germany, the underground manages to circulate the latest news picked up via short-wave from England and America. When they want to discuss in public what they heard on BBC, the favorite method is to say, "Do you know what I dreamed?"

By Way of Report: They are going to film the life of Lou Gehrig, which certainly was a life to admire. There is plenty of drama in the career of another baseball player.

Add Picturesque Reporting: The best description of the Russian Nazi tangle, with both sides out-bragging the other in their communiques, is the New York Times' Edwin L. James' phrase: "The war of the typewriters."

Cartoon Material: A Nazi spy overhears a conversation between two of Secretary Hull's aides and gleefully sends the punchline to his decoding office, to wit: "Awful news, but awful! I just drew the Washington Senators in the $10 pool!"

You've Met 'Em: It's Paul Hartman's tale of the three efficiency experts who were waiting impatiently in front of a hotel for a friend—so they could make it a foursome going through the revolving door.

Queer Marriages

People have been married in submarines, on mountain peaks, with handcuffs on, in jail, and one man even married his housekeeper in his first wife's tomb.

An invitation to "stew in your own juice" was contained in an advertisement that appeared recently in a Chicago newspaper. It read: "Wanted: couple to get married in 26,000 gallons of diluted cherry juice at Cherry Festival. Marriage license, ring, and wedding present."
