Senator O'Daniel Polls Heavy Vote

Almost complete figures which had been compiled Wednesday indicated that nearly a million votes were cast in the Democratic primary election in Texas last Saturday, and that Senator O'Daniel lacked 15,289 votes of having a majority. Complete figures, it was evident, would not give O'Daniel a majority of the votes; and therefore, under the Texas law, there will be a run-off.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

International Court and Police Force For Postwar World Envisioned by Hull; Nazi Drive Increases Russia's Peril; Rommel Stymied by Allied Air Power

EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper. Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Maj. Gen. Carl Spaatz, chief of the American air forces in the European theater of action (left), pins the Distinguished Service Cross on Maj. Charles C. Kegelman. Taking part in a recent bombing raid on enemy airfields in Holland, Kegelman brought his ship back safely after one motor was wrecked and a wing damaged in fighting with German air forces.

POSTWAR WORLD: Hull Envisions

When silvery-haired Cordell Hull broadcast an appeal for a safe and saner postwar world, it was clear that a majority of Americans agreed with his thesis that the peace as well as the war must be won by the United Nations if future chaos is to be avoided.

In an address heard around the world, the secretary of state made these points:

1. The United Nations' immediate problem is to win the war—decisively.

2. After the war surveillance must be exercised over Germany, Japan, Italy and their satellites by the United Nations until the aggressors prove their willingness and ability to live at peace with other nations.

3. Disputes must be settled by peaceful means. An international court of justice would provide respect for law and obligations.

4. Freedom is to be assured by removal of economic and political shackles. Errors of extreme nationalism that caused the present war must be avoided.

RUSSIAN FRONT: 'Terrible Days'

The gravity of the Russian situation could not be underestimated and no attempt was made to belittle its seriousness. Germany's report of the fall of Rostov emphasized the crisis.

As the sorely pressed Russians guarding the approaches to the Caucasus and the Volga river had fallen back before the million-man German army smashing its way southeast down the Don river valley, the Soviet army organ, Red Star, said frankly: "Terrible days face the country." It called upon the fighting men of Russia to emulate the example of 28 Red soldiers, who in the defense of Moscow last winter, died fighting a tank charge with little more than their bare hands.

The speed of the new Nazi drive against the Reds' celebrated defense-in-depth technique was believed to be due to the Germans' use of a crushing, mass maneuver which employed monster tanks, armored trains, heavy mortars and an unprecedented concentration of air power.

Only comforting note in the bleak picture was the success of Russian soldiers in regaining ground far to the north in their counter-offensive around Voronezh. By turning the Nazis back here, Marshal Timoshenko might be able to take some of the pressure off Red forces in the deep South who had fought with their backs to the wall in defense of Rostov.

U. S. CASUALTIES: Show War's Trend

Casualty figures released by the Office of War Information revealed that the navy's losses since Pearl Harbor were 15 times greater than for the entire span of World War I.

The OWI's statistics disclosed naval casualties thus far totaling 12,143 compared with 871 in the first World war. The current casualties included 3,420 killed; 1,051 wounded and 7,051 missing. Those of World War I included 356 killed in action; 58 died of wounds and 456 lost at sea.

The army's losses in the present war, were placed at 19,767. These included 902 killed; 1,413 wounded and 17,452 missing. That the Philippine Scouts trained under General MacArthur had given a heroic account of themselves was indicated by casualties listing 479 killed; 754 wounded and 11,000 missing.

Casualties for all services were placed at 44,413. "The bulk of the army casualties fall into the category of missing," the OWI said.

FEMINE ARMY: WAAC Trains Hard

Every morning at 5:45 a. m. from now until next November 9, 800 members of the newly organized Women's Auxiliary Army corps will leap from their army cots to begin a crowded day of drills, lectures and training at their camp at Fort Des Moines, Iowa.

By November 9, America's first feminine army of occupation will begin to spread out to 19 forts throughout the country to relieve men in the armed forces for active combat duty.

HIGHLIGHTS . . . in the week's news

LONDON: The British information service said that British women are now nearly 100 per cent mobilized. Of 15,800,000 women between the ages of 18 and 64, the agency said, 7,500,000 are doing full time jobs in war production. About 870,000 others are disabled and 5,500,000 are taking care of families. Many others are serving in the auxiliaries of the army and navy.

WASHINGTON: The importance of the $100,000,000 fish industry to the nation's wartime food supply was stressed by President Roosevelt as he appointed Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes to be fisheries co-ordinator. Acting under his wartime powers, the President created the co-ordination office for the purpose of "developing and assuring sustained production."

With U. S. Troops in Libyan Desert

Feminine 'Chute Packers See Work Tested

Feminine navy league aides, students in the first parachute rigging class for women in the country, at Philadelphia, see the 'chutes which they packed taken aloft for test jump (right) with dummies attached. Pilot Robert Bitner, pilot of the testing ship, receives the 'chutes. Picture at left shows the completion of a successful test jump. The students struggle to deflate the billowing silk so as to pack it again.

Greetings to Leader of 'Fighting French'

Paul Revere Rides Again

Paul Revere, 25, of Braintree, Mass., lineal descendant of the famous patriot of the same name, is now a buck private in Uncle Sam's army, having been sworn in recently in the presence of cheering troops. He then toured the camp on Duffy, 101st cavalry horse, before donning his uniform. Above, Paul bids adieu to Duffy and takes over with a jeep.

'Bluebeard Tower'

A force of U. S. marines at Bourne Field, U. S. marine air station, St. Thomas, Virgin Islands, looks down on the sunny Caribbean from "Bluebeard's Tower." The turret is all that remains of a fortress which legend says was the retreat of the fabled character.

Colombians

Scrambled Eggs:

Harlem is planning a monument up there in honor of Pvt. Joe Louis. The Rockefellers have hired two cops to guard the tomatoes in their Victory Garden. The Dry Dock Savings Bank permits depositors to sign or endorse checks with thumbprints. For those who can't write. Sounds like a Hitler movie, but the lads on a local newspaper claim it happened. A reporter covering a trial three weeks ago walked out of the courtroom and hasn't been seen or heard of since. You get an idea of how taut the war has made everybody's nerves when Lucius Beebe finds fault with Elsa Maxwell's grammar.

Years ago Clark Gable angered knit-wear makers when he stripped to show he wore no undershirt. The movies made it up to the knitters. "The Male Animal." Henry Ford peels down to a gym shirt. Somebody mentioned that Lefty O'Doul, the old major-leaguer, had taught Gary Cooper how to be a left-handed expert in "The Pride of the Yankees" flicker, where he plays the role of Lou Gehrig. Which led one Giant fan to cackle that "outside of Joe Gordon—Gary is the only Yank that's hitting!" Unconscious quip on King Peter at the ball game. The king, said a caption writer, "soon got into the spirit of the game. He left after four innings." Bill Saroyan, who hasn't had a play on Broadway this year, has received more publicity than those who have presented hit attractions.

Things to waste paper about: First-movietown was criticized for making films about the war—war-mongers, etc. Now they are being scooped because they don't make enough war pictures. Perhaps another reason you never heard any more twaddle about stopping "B" pictures is that Bs make almost as much as As. Add little ironies: The cast of soldiers in "This Is the Army" (who get $50 per month) find it swell pay for acting. Most of them appeared in turkeys which rarely allowed them to average that much. Vaudeville probably will never really bloom again. Because new talent aims for the network where salaries are huskier and where there are no one-night stands—or irritable inn-keepers.

Those debating radio shows (not you, Town Hall Meeting) will never be as popular as silk hosiery on shapely legs. Depend too much on tedious statistics for their arguments. We can remember all the way back when Broadwayites were groaning that the dimwit would hurt show business, which has never been healthier in summer-time. Don't get the idea that all soap operas on the radio are corny. A few are well written. "Against the Storm," frixample. The short about the American soldier, directed by Garsen Kanin, with Spencer Tracy doing the commentary, makes thrills walk along your spine. Tin Pan Alley is in a slump. Not one of the song-smiths has thieved a Tschaikowski melody in six months.

Midtown Vignette: A girl ankle into the office of a magazine editor and sobbed a hard luck tale of a coin, no job, no friends. "If I had only one good looking dress," she said, "I'd have a chance of getting a job. Why is it everybody will bet on horses, but nobody will bet on a human being?" Touched by her plight, he asked her what he could do. "Just give me a chance," she told him, "buy me a wardrobe and you'll never regret it." That was three months ago and he paid the bills for a complete layout of apparel for her. Today, she is one of the high-priced models—smiling from newsstands and shop windows at you. The other night she looked at him in the Stork Club—and turned away without even a hello. He sent her a note which read: "I'm back to betting on horses. The other day I bet $3 on Whirlaway. He lost—but after the race—he waved and said 'Hello!'"

Oop: Reader's Digest pats St. Willmott Lewis for saying: "Dorothy Thompson has discovered the secret of perpetual emotion." Well, most of us have said that about Kath Hepburn and Tallulah Bankhead—but wotta short memory the Digest editors have. They ran a piece in May, 1940, by Katharine Best titled: "Perpetual Emotion."

New York Hearbeat: Faces About Town: Fannie Hurd at 7:15 ayem in the park airing her pups. William Holden, of the moonpitches, in his soldier uniform. The Ray Bolgers showing some of the troops from Fort Broadway Theater the Stork cub. The woman with the deer on leash. Jan Struther, author of "Mrs. Miniver," in the Biltmore Fountain Room. Harry Hopkins, with two newspaper men, talking out about his betrothed. Greta Garbo on a bike in Central Park.

To The Voters Of Precinct No. 3:

I want to express my gratitude for your support and all that has been done in the interest of my campaign that has placed me in the run-off.

To the public and to my opponents — I appreciate the courtesy I have received and the high plane on which the campaign has been conducted. We all have our faults and make mistakes, but I am glad none of these things have been resorted to that so often happen that make politics unpleasant.

I want to again solicit your support. I have nothing new to say to the voters. If I am elected, I will give you as economical an administration as I know how, fairly distributing the benefits of the office back to the taxpayers, making a quarterly report of the affairs of this precinct.

JOHN ANDERSON

To The Voters Of Precinct No. 3, Lynn County:

I wish to take this method of thanking you until I can see you personally, for the support you gave me in my race for commissioner during the primary election.

I was lucky enough to be in the run-off, ahead of good men, and I will appreciate the vote of all at the election in August.

It is my intention to see all the voters before that time, but if I should fail, I will not do so intentionally, and hope you will not feel slighted. If I am elected, I intend to do my best and will co-operate for the best interests of our precinct and county.

From poverty to wealth is a troublesome journey, but the way back is easy.

Give Up "Makeshift" Constipation Remedies!

Why fool with constipation? Why try to combat the trouble after it has already made you miserable? It may well be that your constipation is caused by too little "bulk food" in your diet, for medical science warns that lack of "bulk" is one of the commonest causes of constipation. If yours is this kind of constipation, those purges and cathartics can give you, at best, only temporary relief. Eating KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN regularly, on the other hand, corrects the cause by supplying the "bulk food" you lack and must have! Enjoy this crisp, crunchy cereal daily, drink plenty of water, and like so many others, you'll "Join the Regulars!" ALL-BRAN is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is not helped by this simple treatment, see a doctor.

Kidneys Must Work Well - For You To Feel Well

24 hours every day, 7 days every week, never stopping, the kidneys filter waste matter from the blood. If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove surplus fluid, excess acids and other waste matter that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole system is upset when kidneys fail to function properly. Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warns that something is wrong. You may suffer nagging backache, headaches, dizziness, rheumatic pains, getting up at nights, swelling. Why not try Doan's Pills? You will be using a medicine recommended the function of the kidneys and help them to flush out poisonous waste from the blood. They contain nothing harmful. Get Doan's today. Use with confidence. At all drug stores.

SADDLE and RIDE

By ERNEST HAYCOX W-N-U Release

THE STORY SO FAR: Clay Morgan has decided to play a lone hand against Ben Herendeen, a rancher bent on running the cattle country his own way. The two men have been enemies for years, having first fought over Clay's wife, Lila, who died hating him and believing she should have married Herendeen. Morgan is a solitary figure, devoted to his nine-year-old daughter, Janet. Although two women, Catherine Grant and Ann McGarrath, are in love with him, they know he cannot forget Lila. Of his former friends, only Hack Breathitt has not gone over to Herendeen's side. Seen camping with Pete Borders, a rustler, he is a fugitive from Herendeen's men. Gurd Grant, Catherine's brother, hesitated about joining Herendeen, but became Morgan's sworn enemy when he discovered that Catherine had been to his ranch. Learning at the last minute that Government Valley is to be auctioned at Sage City 190 miles away, Clay rides all night and arrives in time to outbid Charley Hillhouse, Herendeen's foreman. When he learns that Herendeen has sent a party out to find Hack Breathitt and kill him, Clay starts out to find him first. He goes to Freerport, to Kern Case's store, where he thinks he will find Hack. As he is talking to Case, Herendeen appears. He shoots out the glass in one of the store windows.

Morgan drove his aimed blows at the huge jaw.

Now continue with the story.

CHAPTER XI

"Case," Ben said, "this is a crooked town full of bums. I can make any of 'em run. There ain't a white man in the place."

Kern Case said: "That window-pane will cost you six bits."

"Charge it on the account."

"What account?"

"My beef account," said Herendeen. "Your friends keep you pretty well supplied, don't they? If I had a couple men to block off this damned joint I'd go through these rattletrap buildings and drag Breathitt out by the back of the neck. He's here!"

Kern Case walked around the counter. He started to speak, but Morgan waved him back. "Maybe," Morgan said to Herendeen.

"By God," shouted Herendeen. "I'm going to drive you out!"

"Ben," said Morgan, "I guess I'd better leave my mark on you as I did once before."

He was still by the stove, glance pinned to the butt of Herendeen's gun. Immediately afterwards, Herendeen's hand came away from it and Herendeen's boots seemed to crush into the floor as he jumped forward.

Bringing up his arms, Morgan realized he had his own chance to draw—and refused the chance. He started to move away from the stove as Herendeen's whole bulk swept at him; and stopped to smother Herendeen's fists as they drove in. He knocked the blows aside, no more. Herendeen's onrushing body caught him and drove him against the stove. He slid along the edge of the stove, falling backward. Herendeen hit the stove. Both of them dropped behind it, Morgan bringing up his knees and beating the wind out of Herendeen's belly. Herendeen sprawled aside. The stove had gone down and the pipe began to fall in disjointed sections, sifting warm soot on them. Rolling half around, Morgan saw Herendeen push himself half erect to come at him. He doubled his legs and shot them out and caught the big man full in the face with the sharp heels of his boots. He rolled again and was up.

Herendeen lifted himself from the floor, dashing a hand across his face to scrub the bright quick blood on his cheeks. Morgan's sharp heels had chopped the flesh of Herendeen's lips; one raw strip hung down, redly swaying over his mouth. The impact momentarily drugged him, it took him off his guard. Morgan moved in. He punched a fist into the wide, hard pit of Herendeen's stomach, watched Herendeen's arms fall, and hit him again in the soft neck flesh. Herendeen's face showed sudden pallor and he swayed a little, windless and shocked.

Morgan drove his aimed blows at the huge jaw, hooking his punches up against the long shelving chin.

Herendeen dropped his head and Morgan, missing his target, smashed his knuckles on that rocky-hard poll and felt pain knife along his left arm; it was a sudden agony that made him suck in his wind. He caught the dulling of Herendeen's eyes; he had this man half knocked out—and the old, violent, savage instinct rushed him in until he was at close quarters, trying for the kill.

It was a mistake. Herendeen's great outswinging arms caught him in a bear's grip and drew him in, crushing his ribs. Morgan's arms, thus held, could reach nothing; he pulled himself backward, seeking to break the grip, but Herendeen held on, weathering through his punishment, tightening his grip until Morgan felt his skin burn and seem to burst.

He lay on his side, pushing his arms against the floor but finding no strength in them. He could move them but he had no feeling in them. All this room was gray-black and Herendeen was a blurred shape across the room, slowly trudging forward. He heard Herendeen say something, though he couldn't make out the words. Herendeen, coming nearer, grew taller and broader above him. Herendeen's foot struck him solidly at the base of the spine —and this brutality was a new stream of pain along his nerves. It moved Morgan around on the floor, loosely as though he were a straw dummy. He rolled completely over, coming against a cracker barrel.

Morgan got behind the cracker barrel. He held to its top rim and pulled himself up as Herendeen walked against the cracker barrel. Herendeen swept one fist out, striking air as Morgan jerked back. Herendeen started around the cracker barrel, flat-footed and patient. Morgan, still on the defensive, still weak from his beating, kept circling. Suddenly Herendeen stepped back from the barrel, took a half-dozen side-steps and seized a chair. He whirled it over his head and flung it at Morgan. Morgan dropped behind the cracker barrel and rose again, seeing Herendeen at once rush forward. Herendeen seized the cracker barrel with his hands and swept it aside, diving at Morgan.

Morgan knew what Herendeen meant to do before Herendeen's mind had recognized the ax-handle; and now Morgan, looking around him, saw a rack of new Winchester on the wall. He seized one by the barrel, kicked his way out of the debris of nails and harness and circled Herendeen slowly, the butt of the rifle lifted like a club. Herendeen moved slowly forward, following Morgan's circle. Somewhere, as from a great distance, Morgan heard the rush of horses along the street and a voice calling.

Morgan backed against a hanging harness. He put his shoulders to this flimsy support; the harness gave way and he sat down, still gripping the Winchester by the barrel. He could not draw wind into his lungs; he was starving for air, his heart beat against his ribs and his head was light. He rolled over, sucking wind through his teeth, with his face to the floor; and heard a voice at the doorway, calling into the blackness.

"Who's here?" It was Bones McGeen's voice.

Kern Case's voice was a lower and lower murmur. "Make a step and I'll blow your chest out."

Bones yelled into the store. "Ben, you there? Hey, Ben!"

A shot broke along the street again, quick and hard, and other men ran rapidly across the dust. Bones McGeen swung from the door, rushing down the porch. The shots came in regular method; and the Three Pines men were beginning to answer, all the racket boiling up the dead echoes of the town.

Kern Case said, "I hope you've killed the—," and his easy voice laid terrible words on the past and present of Herendeen. "If you ain't I'm like to finish the job. You all right, Clay?"

Clay Morgan said: "Who's shootin'?"

"Breathitt started it. He's up in the hotel. That's what I was going to tell you when Herendeen came in."

Morgan pulled himself from the harness and found his legs snarled in it. He sank back to the floor and rolled clear and stood up. Light flashed red before his eyes, though there was no light in the room. His head ached in long, solid surges of pain, from the base of his skull all around to his nose. He tasted his own salty sweat, his own blood. He drew deeper into his lungs for wind, catching the throb of his ribs. His left fist began to send up its steady racket and he knew then he had broken a knuckle. He could not move the middle finger.

Kern Case said: "That you?"

Herendeen's boots scraped the floor. Morgan bent down, catching Herendeen's shadow, on all fours, against the faint light of the doorway. He saw Herendeen come up and weave toward the door. He said to Case: "No."

Kern Case called: "Stop right there, Ben."

Herendeen moved on toward the door. He was out of it before Case got around the counter. He was on the street, calling through the spotty racket of the gunfire. "Bones—come here!"

Kern Case swore in the same, passionless voice. "I should of shot the— Now we're in trouble." He stepped around the floor. He said: "Duck." The front windows clattered down before the sudden veering of gunfire. Slugs struck the store shelves. A can of wet goods, punctured, began to spill out its fluid with a gurgling irregularity. Another slug, striking metal, went Whannng!

Morgan crawled across the floor. He flattened himself near the doorway, catching a slanting view of the street-end. His horse, spooked by the firing, had drifted away from the hitching-rack into the farther shadows. Meanwhile he heard Herendeen calling from the Yellow Front saloon. "Get your horses off the street, Jim—" One more bullet struck the shelves. Kern Case said, so smoothly outraged, "I'll have a little slice of this," and walked back through the store. Rolling over to the opposite edge of the doorway, near the counter, Morgan heard Kern Case's fat weight groan up at a back set of stairs and across the second floor. From his new position Morgan saw a Three Pines head lead four horses into an alley. At the moment there was no firing; but, watching the Yellow Front, Morgan caught a flutter of light on its windows and stared steadily at it, not immediately understanding the source of that flash.

Kern Case had reached an upstairs window and now waited for his chance. Somebody ran along the back of the store and came through a rear door. Morgan rolled against the base of the counter, listening to those quick steps advance. He heard Hack Breathitt's voice murmur: "You there, Kern?"

Morgan said: "How you like our little party, kid?"

"Clay? What the hell you doin' here?"

Kern Case came down the stairs with a fat man's slow haste. He said: "We got to get out of here, Clay."

"Sure," said Hack. "We depart from hence, mighty damned hence." "You all right, Clay?" said Case.

That drew Breathitt's interest. "Why wouldn't he be all right?"

"I tripped on a rug," said Morgan. He followed Case and Breathitt through the back quarters. The three of them paused by the back door while Case scouted the roundabout shadows; afterwards they drifted along the building line and paused halfway between the street and the down-bearing timber of the hillside. Light began to brighten at the other end of town; smoke-smell drifted with the wind. Morgan saw his horse in the shadows ahead of him and went over for it. When he came back he heard Case say in the same even tone:

"My dad built that store. I was born in it—and all my brothers and sisters. But she'll be nothin' but ashes in two hours from now. There ain't a single way to stop this whole town from goin' up." He let out his sigh. "Well, it was a good store. I'm goin' back to get the rocker my mother used."

Light broke the shadows. He saw Hack's face set in its restless half-smile and realized his partner found a malicious satisfaction in this chase. That was Breathitt's way. He had a wild kink in him and he was tough enough to run his luck out to the bitter end. Hack murmured: "Later, maybe."

Morgan said, "Get out of this light. If you bump into trouble, kid, you know where to come."

Hack raised his head. He said, "That's what you came down here to say, wasn't it?" He was no longer smiling. His face was in the shadows, his voice was grave and troubled. "I guess I have brought a hell of a lot of trouble down on my friends. I'll remember it, Clay. If I don't see you again soon I want you to know—" This was as far as he got. He shrugged his shoulders, only adding, "So-long."

Morgan turned up the trail, winding with the steep grade until he had reached the last high point before going into solid timber. From this elevation he looked down on the white-red tangle of high leaping flames. The roof and sides of the hotel were eaten away and what he saw now was the inside skeleton of the building penciled darkly against the swirling fire. One wall of the store had caught. All the surrounding gulch was day-bright and he made out Gale and Gale's family slowly crossing the head of the gulch, toward the Potholes. Herendeen, apparently, had gone. Some of the adjacent trees began to catch fire.

EDUCATIONAL WORKSHOP

HYDE PARK, N. Y.—I went to New York city one day and had an interesting talk in the afternoon with a committee of home economics teachers working in the public schools of New York city. They have a summer workshop in which they are discussing school curricula. The home economics teachers feel that every child should have training in this subject in the seventh and eighth grades and one year in high school. They believe this training is valuable to both boys and girls.

It is important in learning how to run their homes and how to live better, and for many will point the way to a foundation for a type of training which will give them opportunities for a variety of jobs.

In the evening I went over to Brooklyn to a forum in the Girls Commercial high school, where Mr. Agar, vice president of Freedom House, Dr. Clyde Eggleton of New York university, and Mr. Clarence Streit spoke. It was an interesting evening and some of the questions at the very end were valuable.

HOUSING FOR NEWLYWEDS

Next evening was spent going to Saybrook, Conn., to visit my friends, Miss Esther Lape and Miss Elizabeth Read. On my way back on the train, I found myself sitting next to a charming young woman who was on her way to visit her brother in camp.

We passed a number of government housing projects and she suddenly said that one of the great needs of young married couples was for good housing at a cost of from $40 to $45 a month. It seems to me that this could be done by private enterprise when the war is over in greater volume than has ever been done in the past. It is one of the things which will keep up our production of certain basic goods.

Next day the rain came down in sheets and I was inclined to feel that the elements were very unkind, for we had planned an outdoor picnic for the grownups and children. However, in the evening we had the picnic in the playroom and it turned out to be a very pleasant and informal evening.

In the afternoon I spent an hour at the Hudson Shore Labor school, where they had a two-day conference on what trade union women can do in their homes to help the war effort. They covered nutrition and various conservation projects, gas and sugar rationing and price regulation. I think everyone will get a much better conception of the reasons why these things are being asked of civilians. This will be a help, for there is still a certain amount of confusion which should be cleared up.

FARMERS AND WEATHER

HYDE PARK, N. Y.—Growers of fruit say we have had too much rain this summer and it has hurt the crops. Up in Rhinebeck, a project was started to provide pickers by bringing a group of young girls together to be paid by the farmers according to the amount they picked. Great difficulties have arisen because they have not had enough picking to pay for board and lodging.

Many of them, of course, have counted on making a little money on the side. They felt, in addition, that they were performing a job that was useful to the country, since they had been told that labor was needed on the farm and was scarce.

No one can control the elements, however, and the farmer is always subject to the ups and downs brought about by Dame Nature's whimsies. I think it is the occupation above all others that is filled with unknown hazards and requires more wisdom, foresight and hard work than any other occupation in the world. Probably this is why it also carries such great compensations and rewards. Many a man who has made his way in other lines, remembers his boyhood on the farm with gratitude and joy.

WARTIME FAMILY CARE

HYDE PARK, N. Y.—At Vassar college, one morning, it was most interesting to have a glimpse of the large group of children who, with their parents, attend the three weeks session of the Vassar Summer Institute for Family and Child Care Services in War Time. The children were at lunch when the morning meeting closed and we went off to see each group—the two, three and four year olds, and two older groups up to the age of 12.

One very small boy was placed in the corner of the room because, up to this time, he had always been in a high chair. Having walls on either side gave him a greater sense of security.

It has been said that imitation is the sincerest form of flattery. If older children only realized this, they would be in a state of constant pride over the influence which they exert on the smaller ones around them. The more mature person is, of course, the one who serves as a pattern. If the pattern is good, the imitation is helpful.

Hermit Monks

In Tibet, many Buddhist monks spend their entire adult life sealed up in little stone huts with only a small opening for the passing of air and food, says Collier's. A few years ago one of these men was dragged out of his hut after being shut in for 69 years and was found to be blind and shrunk-en to half his former size. Contact with daylight killed him within an hour.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Copper flashing around pipes, dormer windows and the edges of roofs never needs painting. But copper is now on the priority list. If you have or are installing galvanized flashing, remember that it should be examined frequently and kept covered with paint.

A good way to utilize stale bread is to make crisp rusks to eat with butter and cheese. Break up the bread into fairly equal sizes, dip into a little sweetened milk, and bake in a warm oven until dry and crisp.

To increase the amount of frosting for custards, puddings, etc., without increasing the amount of material used, take the whites of the eggs you saved, beat them as usual and drop the mixture into a saucepan of boiling water. It will instantly rise to the top and will make a large amount of very light white frosting. Spread at once and serve.

Chopped ripe olives with the merest dash of garlic make a pungent filling for small white bread sandwiches to be toasted and served with cocktails.

THE POWER OF THE PRESS

Manufacturers and merchants sense the power of the press. Early they began using it to carry their advertising facts and ideas into homes. And they found it a most profitable way in which to tell their story to buyers. And the buyers in turn found it profitable to deal with those who were willing to state in print the values and services they offered.

As this is being written, Sunday, it has not been determined whether a runoff will be necessary in the U. S. Senator's race, and any comment on such a race is beside the point. A lot of the newspapers have taken a rapping, unjustly in most cases, for not having supported the incumbent, W. Lee O'Daniel.

That practically every newspaper in the state did not support O'Daniel is a fact. And it is no coincidence, nor were those papers "bought off" as Mr. O'Daniel hinted.

Newspapers did run many ads for Allred, for which they were paid, and in our case, we would do it again. We know where the money came from — friends of Allred in Lynn County — and that is more than we know of where O'Daniel gets his for radio talks and doesn't list in his campaign expenditures.

A clever crack at our expense was made immediately after the votes came in about "an ad for Allred," but we knew the one making it didn't want any advertising of any kind — O'Daniel didn't need it to have his virtues extolled. He does that handsomely enough.

But newspapermen cannot stand idly by when they are attacked, as they often are. From the humblest country editor to crack writers on the big dailies each writer tries hard to print the facts and the facts only.

And when most newspapers have printed anything about Mr. O'Daniel, they have stuck to facts. That the people paid no attention, did not heed those facts can, in no way, change the fact that they are the true facts.

We've heard much about "mud-slinging." Is it mudslinging for a newspaper to print what a candidate has said or for an opponent to repeat the same?

Whether a voter for O'Daniel believes it or not, W. Lee did make the crack that he "must have run the President out of Washington" when at that very moment, he was in conference with Churchill about the Atlantic Charter. And then it is true that he tried desperately to have those phonograph records destroyed before they could be heard. You may approve of his action, but it is still a fact. And the newspapers DID NOT misprint as some of his supporters charge.

W. Lee O'Daniel may be a fine, Christian gentleman, as his friends say. We hope he is, and hope all his friends are, too. But when such expressions as "he is a fine, Christian gentleman" are made — insinuating that his opponents are not Christians — we can go only on facts. What determines a Christian? James V. Allred has been for years a fine worker in the Christian Church in Houston and a lady who NOW lives in Houston but who lived most of her life in O'DONNELL, attends that same church and can verify that no taint is attached to Allred's church work. Moody is considered an outstanding worker in the Baptist church and has been for many years. But did you hear either of these men bragging about their church with the church, mixing their church with their state affairs? You did not. And whether it is believed or not, cannot change the fact that Mr. O'Daniel did join his Fort Worth church only after entering his first campaign for governor, and his church records in Fort Worth will show that he has never contributed a dime to that church.

Some people may not like to read that nor hear it, but should the newspapers print the facts or cover it all up? If newspapers fail to print those facts, they fail to be NEWS-papers and merely become publications which are similar to those existing in Germany.

It is not a fact that, as O'Daniel charged, you had to read his newspaper to get the facts. The big dailies handled his speeches verbatim. We only ask this, if only facts were printed in O'Daniel's paper: Was ANYTHING ever printed in that paper which did not EXTOLL W. Lee O'Daniel. Were his mistakes or faults ever mentioned or criticized? Were his opponents ever given a break and mentioned in any way that was favorable? If not, why not?

Is any person so naive as to believe that one man can possess all virtues and no faults, and his opponents just the opposite?

But most all newspapers do print the facts about all.

We've heard lots from some people about the fact that THEY wouldn't vote for any man who slung mud! Can some of those same people claim that they have never sat around the street corner TALKING ABOUT their neighbors? Can ANY MAN claim that he has never made slighting remarks about some one?

Can some of the women who attack Allred and Moody, Johnson, Mann, etc. for "slinging mud" be unaware of the fact that W. Lee O'Daniel has shouted to the nethermost parts of Texas, via radio, insinuations that his opponents were the "hired hirelings of the labor racketeers," that they were offered thousands upon thousands of dollars to run against him that they were "professional politicians," etc. without ever having brought forth one single bit of proof to back up his charges and "mud-slinging." If one slung "mud," they all slung it. O'Daniel, as his speeches will testify, is a past master in originating quips that smirk of the mud-slinging theory. Such are facts and not guesswork.

It is also true that O'Daniel did remark that "Washington is the only madhouse run by its own inmates." Did it mean what he said? If not, what can we believe or disbelieve?

It is true that O'Daniel cried out that he had backed Roosevelt in all WAR measures, and wanted to leave everything in his hands—that FDR was our commander-in-chief. Yet, by his statements to his constituents, the voters of Texas, he inveighed and slandered Franklin D. Roosevelt, Cordell Hull, Tom Connolly, George Mahon, Sam Rayburn, because THEY are inmates of Washington and are pretty much running things there. These are facts and not bull via the radio.

Many voters who cast their ballots for W. Lee O'Daniel also claim their wholehearted admiration for Roosevelt, but facts belie Senator O'Daniel's statements of his confidence in Roosevelt. Not once did O'Daniel lift up his voice, via the radio or otherwise, in behalf of Roosevelt when the President was running the race of his life to defeat Willkie. He paired off in the campaign with Hal Collins, who bitterly assailed Roosevelt at Beaumont and who is tied up with the big business interests of the state.

Fates, not lies, show that O'Daniel said via radio that he was NOT in favor of the tax bill that the LEGISLATORS brought out, but would sign it holding his nose. He tried every means to defeat that omnibus tax bill which the big oil companies, the utilities and other big business interests wanted defeated. But, be it to their credit, the legislators forced it through and the old people were, through such means, granted additional funds. But not, as he would have it believed, through the efforts of W. Lee O'Daniel. The true facts are in Austin for all to see who will use their eyes to see, their ears to hear.

The federal government NEVER, NEVER, NEVER told a selectee that he would be released at the end of twelve months. The government has never, and should never, bargain with its citizens in the duty to bear arms.

Roosevelt had told us for years that the world was on fire, and that we should get our house in order. Most Texans knew it. Business man after business man in O'Donnell had discussed the affair and agreed. Yet O'Daniel's first vote was with the isolationists who had blocked and thwarted Roosevelt's administration at every turn — regardless of what the issue was. The record of the votes of Wheeler, Nye, Clark, Capper, etc. are before us as we write and the NOES as they voted are solid.

Wink at it as many may please, the obstructive actions of those isolationists led to causes and events which spilled the blood of American soldiers. Too little, too late.

And another fact, denied by some, is that Allred's children are children and not old enough to serve, yet Allred himself was in service during the other war. Every youngster going to war today is the hero, yet no one soldier deserves the praise for so doing any more than the boy from the humblest family.

What of the future? The newspapers will continue to print the facts and people with axes to grind, regardless of whom they may be, will send up a hue and a cry that they are "unfair."

What of the future? When we win the war, which we are LOSING now, will we also lose the peace? Will the isolationists, the yearling colts, the "independent actor," sabotage the things for which American boys are going to lose their lives to maintain — as they did after the other war?

It is a serious duty every voter faces when he casts his vote in these times. And when he can vote and does not, he should realize that the Revolutionary Fathers worked, died in vain, so far as he is concerned.

The facts are hard to take sometimes, but they still remain facts.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

Lesson for August 2

ABRAM: A PIONEER IN FAITH

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 12:1-9; Hebrews 11:8-12
GOLDEN TEXT—Fear not, Abram: I am thy shield, and thy exceeding great reward.—Genesis 15:1.

Without faith it is impossible to please God (Heb. 11:6). The opposite is also true, namely, that faith always pleases God. As we read the Bible and consider Christian experience, it is evident that God is constantly longing to show Himself strong in behalf of them who believe in Him (II Chron. 16:9).

Abraham was not the first man to walk by faith. Before him came such men as Abel, with his acceptable sacrifice; Enoch, with his walk pleasing to God; Noah, who believed and obeyed; and others.

But Abraham was nonetheless a pioneer of faith. He had many other noble characteristics, and was a man of such distinction that his memory is venerated by Jews and Mohammedans as well as Christians. Yet his real claim to an outstanding place in history is that by faith he responded to God's sovereign act in choosing him to begin a new nation, to be His chosen people.

We note two important points about faith:

I. Faith Makes Demands.

In the very nature of things, faith calls for action consistent with belief. "Faith without works is dead" (James 2:20), that is, not a real faith at all. In Abraham's life (and in our life) faith calls for:

1. Separation (Gen. 12:1). "Get thee out" was God's command to Abraham. To accomplish His divine purpose God had to take him out of the headstrongness of his fathers, and start anew. It is His command to His followers today, "Come out from among them, and be ye separate, saith the Lord" (II Cor. 6:17).

Who will doubt that this is the crying need of the church today, for instead of the church being in the world seeking to win it to Christ, worldliness has come into the church and devalitized its message.

2. Obedience (Gen. 12:4-6; Heb. 11:8, 9). "Abram departed, as the Lord had spoken" (v. 4). He didn't know where he was going, but he did know who had called him, and he went. Faith knows God, and obeys Him without hesitation and without reservation.

Obedience is a virtue that needs to be revived, in the home, in school, in society, and especially in our relation to God, for there surely should be no disobedient children in the family of God. He merits and expects obedience.

3. Trust (Gen. 12:7-9; Heb. 11:10). An assured reliance on the Word of God is a part of faith. God made a promise to Abraham. He accepted it, and worshipped. Here was no questioning, no bargaining, but simple trust in God's word. In fact, there was anticipation of even greater things to come (Heb. 11:10).

We need men of vision and that means we need men who by faith can see the unseen, who can see "a city which hath foundations" even in the midst of destruction and disorder. "In God We Trust" must be more than a motto on our coins if America is to survive.

II. Faith Brings Results.
The world wants to know if a thing works before accepting and approving it. Well, faith really does work! It brings:

1. Blessing (Gen. 12:2, 3). God is always on the giving hand. "I will bless," was His word to Abraham, not only for Abraham himself and for the great nation of which he was to be the father, but to "all the families of the earth" (v. 3). How gloriously that promise was fulfilled in the coming of Christ our Redeemer, who also was a "son of Abraham" (Matt. 1:1).

2. Protection (Gen. 12:3). "I will curse him that curseth thee." That promise to Abraham is still binding and valid. God is not through with Israel. The nations and persons who have vented their hatred upon the children of Abraham need to take notice.

We need to be reminded that God's protecting care is just as sure over us who bear His name. We too are "safe in Jehovah's keeping," even in what is perhaps the darkest hour in the history of the world. Faith in God brings to us the protection of His almighty hand.

3. Fulfillment of Promise (Heb. 11:11, 12). The entire promise to Abraham hinged on the birth of a son, something which was, humanly speaking, beyond all possibility. But because Sara, joining Abraham in believing God, "judged him faithful who had promised," it came to pass.

"With God all things are possible" (Matt. 19:26). He delights in doing the impossible in response to the faith of His children. Apart from that fact we might be fearful, yes despondent, but "with God" we say again, "All things are possible."

Garden—Fresh Vegetables Bring Health to Your Table
(See Recipes Below.)

Summer Salads

Salads with summertime meals form a perfect alliance bringing your family precious pep-giving minerals and vitamins. Vitamins A, B, and C are well represented in crisp celery, golden skinned carrots, rosy cheeked tomatoes, green glowing cucumbers and lettuce. Dress them up with a light liquid salad oil blended with seasonings to bring out the hidden flavoring of the vegetables, and you have a perfect warm weather meal.

 Tossed Garden Salad

Wash and drain dry your favorite salad greens—such as lettuce, romaine, watercress or endive; a combination of two or more may be used. Cut or break into pieces and combine with portions of diced celery, cucumber, green pepper, radishes and minced onion. Chill thoroughly. Then place in a salad bowl; add Basic French Dressing and bits of tomato. Toss lightly until well blended. This type of salad may also be served with just an oil and vinegar combination as a dressing.

Basic French Dressing.

(Makes 3/4 cup)
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon sugar
1/4 teaspoon paprika
Dash white pepper
1/2 teaspoon dry mustard
1/2 cup mild salad oil
1/4 cup cider vinegar

Combine first five ingredients in a jar and blend well. Add vinegar, cover and shake; add oil and shake again thoroughly. Just before using, shake again. Or simply mix ingredients together in a bowl and beat with mixer until well blended.

Leftover meats and vegetables served daintily in lettuce cups make tempting main dishes for lunch or supper. Have a hot soup, potato chips, thin bread and butter sandwiches and fresh fruit to serve with salad. The next three salads are perfect as a main course.

Veal Salad, Summer Style.

(Serves 6)
2 cups cold veal, diced
1 cup string beans or celery or both
6 hard-cooked eggs
Salt and pepper
4 tablespoons salad oil
1 1/2 tablespoons vinegar
3 tomatoes
Mayonnaise
Lettuce and parsley

Chop eggs coarsely, combine with veal, oil, vinegar, salt and pepper. Let stand 30 minutes. Add mayonnaise to moisten. Arrange salad in mound and garnish.

Jellied Green Pea Salad.

(Serves 6)
1 tablespoon gelatin
1/4 cup cold water
3/4 cup pea liquor

Lynn Says:

Save Washing Time: So many new demands are being made on your time these days, it is wise to make the best possible use of each minute. One way is in how you use your washing machine.

For instance, long washing is not necessarily good washing, and it wastes time. Soap undergoes a chemical change after it has been used a little while, suds "break down" and the soil is actually deposited again on the fabric. Then it is practically impossible to get the articles clean.

Only individual experimentation can show how short to keep the washing of each load, and yet be thorough. Tests have revealed one woman taking only half the time of another to wash a practically identical washing, yet doing it better.

Twenty-minute soaking hastens washing by loosening soil. Then remove water by wringing the articles into the first washer full of sudsy water of the right temperature.

Amusement in Work

When men are rightly occupied, their amusement grows out of their work, as the color petals out of a fruitful flower; when they are faithfully helpful and compassionate, all their emotions are steady, deep, perpetual and vivifying to the soul as is the natural pulse to the body.—John Ruskin.

Such a Racket Couldn't Be Kept From Landlord

The landlord was showing a prospective tenant the premises. Everything seemed to be satisfactory, when the landlord spoke up. "You know, we keep it very quiet and orderly here," he said. "Do you have any children?"
