A BREATH OF STALE AIR

As if there weren't enough Hatfields-McCoy feuds going full blast on our little planet, we now have another. Russia is peeved at us because they want East Germany in on the U.N. environmental conference, and we, in our inimitable style, refuse to let them attend because they aren't members.

What a thing to argue about! We laughed at the fuss about the shape of the table at Paris until someone mentioned how much it was costing us each day the talks were delayed. We chuckled about the world chess champions who couldn't agree on a site for their matches. Now this.

I am about to believe we have lost our collective marbles. People seem to be wandering through the night holding up lanterns, not in search of truth or an honest man, but looking for an excuse to quarrel with anyone about anything whatsoever. We are not particular.

Unless my high school science teacher was either an ignoramus or an inveterate liar, air—be it clean or foul—flows about the planet rather freely. Water has similar habits. And unless my various social studies teachers were equally off balance, communist countries are inhabited by creatures vaguely resembling human beings, who are helping us deplete natural resources, eradicate wildlife, and otherwise add to the mess we're in. It just might be that they're a little bit interested in these problems, that may be—just maybe—they have some sane, reasonable suggestions to make about solving those problems.

Oh, I don't know. Maybe air does have political preferences. Maybe water has communistic or democratic tendencies. If so, it doesn't show up on health department pollution analysis reports.

But come to think of it, I was in Washington a couple of years ago, and the air was a bit stagnant. The Potomac wasn't exactly see-through either. I just wonder if it hasn't polluted the minds of everybody up there. No matter. We have an exciting new subject to debate, and if we try real hard, we can drag the game out for years and never bother about all that other silly stuff—like action.

The first wheat of the year in this area was harvested Monday, May 15. Max Goetze, six miles north of Iowa Park delivered a load to Robert Johnson Grain Co. It was cut by O. D. Davenport, custom harvester of Iowa Park.

Bird Lore

by Lafayette Stankewitz

People often think birds build nests only in trees, bushes or vines. A great many do. Yet, many wild birds nest on the ground, and one such bird is the killdeer.

The killdeer lays four large eggs in a shallow place on the ground. It can hardly be called a nest since no nest is made. Only a few pebbles or small rocks are placed together under the eggs.

The eggs are colored with a pattern which looks like the ground and rocks they are lying on and are therefore surprisingly well hidden. It takes four weeks for these eggs to incubate.

The parent birds guard their eggs closely and protest noisily when anyone comes near them. An interesting habit of the killdeer is pretending to be injured when anyone approaches the nest. They kleeek loudly and flutter into the grass acting as though they have broken wing. And if you come near, the birds limp farther away in order to lead you away from the eggs.

As soon as a baby killdeer pecks open the shell it is almost ready to go on its own. It is strong enough to walk a short distance and it already has downy feathers.

The killdeer is called a shorebird although it can be found throughout the USA and not just near the seashore. It does live near water, usually by a pond or a stream. Many folk call this bird "killdeer" because of the sound it makes in talking.

The killdeer is an adaptable bird who has learned to live near man. Wherever you find this plover, it will casually bob its head as it walks along.

Birding has been very exciting this Spring. On a recent field trip to Lake Iowa Park, several of us birders were able to add the male Blue Grosbeak to our life list. The male is a deep purplish-blue with two brown wing-bars, and has a heavy bill. It measures about seven inches.

Other interesting birds seen near our lakes were the painted bunting, eastern bluebird and the dickcissel.

SOIL CONSERVATION DISTRICT NEWS

by K. C. Willis

Due to recent rains the quality of irrigation water has been improved and it may be applied in the necessary amounts for plant growth. Below are statistics comparing this year's water analysis with that of 1971:

April, 1971	April, 1972
Electrical conductivity	6.0 3.8
Parts per million
—total salts	3540 2432
Tons of salt per acre foot	6.14 3.31

Location at which samples were taken: ½ mile south of Iowa Park on the north side of the canal.

It is expected that irrigation water will improve further this month.

A search is going on to find rare and endangered plants and Iowa Park SCS work unit is heading up the effort which involves about 26 state, federal, educational and private organizations. A recent meeting of these persons in Austin marked the first statewide attempt to co-ordinate such a project.

Several committees were formed to work toward four broad objectives:

Prepare a watchlist of rare and endangered species of plants and animals.

Determine the type of habitat required by each species and develop a list of measures important to preservation of each.

Develop and initiate a system of monitoring rare and endangered species and their habitat.

Develop co-operative measures to protect various species found to be in danger of extinction.

The animals include the Attwater prairie chicken, golden-cheeked warbler, whooping crane, American alligator, red wolf, the Houston toad, and others.

Endangered plants consist of trees, grasses, forbs, sedges and even native legumes. Some of the ones which grow in North Texas area include big bluestem, Canada wild rye, Texas bluegrass, and Engelmann daisy.

SCS is helping to preserve these plants and animals. Almost all of our work is in the form of help and suggestions to landowners and operators. Since most of the wildlife in Texas is produced on privately-owned lands, this gives the Soil Conservation Service a good chance to help people preserve and maintain wildlife habitat.

Co-ordinated watchlist of rare and endangered species will be supplied to all SCS offices as soon as they are prepared.

"April is the month of awakening," said Mrs. J. W. Farmer as she began the program on "Open Mine Eyes" at the Tuesday morning meeting of Women's Society of Christian Service in fellowship hall of United Methodist church.

Mrs. Delbert Todd and Mrs. David Whittington sang the theme hymn at the beginning of the program and again at the end so the members might judge if they had opened their eyes and ears to the world of people, things and nature about them. Mrs. Otis Gay was piano accompanist.

Mrs. S. B. Keeter presided for business. She asked that each one think of an idea for recruiting new members. She announced the new name for the women's organizations of the church will be "United Methodist Women." The School of Christian Mission will be held at SMU, July 17-20. New handbooks will be out in December.

May 23 meeting will be a luncheon with the program beginning at 10:30 a.m.

Outstanding

Besides various recommendations by adults in the community the outstanding boy and girl candidates in junior high school submitted one-page essays on "What I Can Do for My Country."

Dale Pittman wrote as follows: "In the last few years I have begun to become much more aware of the problems facing our great country both political and social.

"Of course I realize my views alone are not going to change matters, it will take much time and hard work to solve even some of the simplest issues. One of the worst problems people are making now is saying too many words with too few actions.

"As an eighth grader my actions wouldn't have a great effect, however I still believe young people should keep up and be concerned with the major issues because in a few years I and students my age will become a part of the voting America, and in a democratic country such as ours it takes votes not violence to change major situations.

"I believe in time problems such as racial violence, strikes, busing and many other matters will be solved, but it will take many hours of hard work and planning to do so."

Diane Dressler's essay reads: "People today are complaining about the shape America is in. They say that someone should do something about it. But no one does. We need people who care enough to take action.

"As a teenager an important way to help my country is to begin in my community. Someone who can't get along well in his own home, can't expect to find world peace. You must start in your community if you expect to change anything.

"Trying to close the gap and good start. Understanding each other and helping a neighbor will establish a feeling of care for your fellowman.

"Pollution is a major problem of today, also. If you must go somewhere, walk. Don't ask to be driven there. Walking is good for the body and the air.

"Dreams are what made America and they will continue to do so. If the young people set forth their dreams and try to fulfill them through the year, the world just might change—for the better.

Other 8th grade students recommended for the Outstanding awards were Sandra Mason, Carla Cole, Carol Schroeder, Sharon Ratcliff, June Pondurant, Tonya Watkins, Susan Miller, Julie Cope, Martha Parkey, girls; and Butch Wilson, Kerry Johnston, Mark Smith, Barry Lucy, Bobby Robertson, Steve Giles, Jeff Spruiell, Rick Puder, George Bushfield.

Judges were Dr. Gordon Clark, Mrs. Barbara Piggott and Wayne House.

Mrs. Omega Harris was hostess at her home to Night Women of First Baptist WMU, Monday evening. Mrs. Louis Quick presided for business and program.

Mrs. D. O. James taught the chapter on "Pioneer Missions" from the text book "Catalysts in Mission, emphasizing that the Kingdom of God has many frontiers but no boundaries. For almost 100 years Southern Baptists concerned themselves with work in the South, but for the last 25 years have spread to the West, Northwest, Great Lakes area, and now to the Northeast. She described the work of five missionaries and their wives in the home mission fields.

Mrs. Lee Smith opened the meeting with a description of the work of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Wakefield in the Philippines, who are actively involved in a Baptist camp on the Island of Luzon. Mrs. Smith stressed the need of Christians in the Philippines to get away from pressures and problems of being a Christian in non-evangelical communities.

Special Education

Covered dish meal, fun time, and installation of officers were activities which provided an enjoyable evening for members of the Association for Special Education Tuesday at Bradford. Cafeteria tables were suggestive of springtime as vases of colorful blossoms on white covers seemed to invite guests to be seated for food and fellowship. The decorations were made by pupils in special education and were for sale. Proceeds will help pay expenses of the group to Six Flags. Mrs. Tommie Jares was in charge of arrangements. Mrs. M. L. Hines featured the theme "Bless Thou the Work of Our Hands" when she installed officers for the next year:

Mrs. Chas. G. Galliton, pres. Mrs. Richard Elliott, vice-pres. Mrs. Sam Willingham, treas. Mrs. A. L. Miller, secretary. A. C. Balle and Tiny Owens, directors.

For entertainment Mrs. Hines conducted a "character interpretation" skit based on one's favorite color. The five sheets of color: red, blue, green, yellow and purple, were displayed on windows facing the crowd, who entered wholeheartedly into the game. Mrs. John Reynolds was in charge of business. July 23 was set for the annual picnic, Sunday at 2:00 o'clock. Each family is to bring basket lunch. Games will be played.

Directors meeting will be at 7:30 Aug. 10 at the home of the new president, 203 Hope Lane. A major item of business will be planning for operation of the concession stand at Junior High during the next school year.

Old Friend visits

Mr. and Mrs. Keith Auld's were pleasantly surprised Friday evening when a friend of 20 years ago stopped for an overnight visit — Dr. John Huntsberger of Corvallis, Ore. He was enroute to Austin where he will teach science in the university.

The Auld's brothers Kenneth and Keith and Huntsberger were together in the Air Force Communications school a Biloxi, Miss., 20 years ago. John remembered, as he came through Chillicothe, Friday, that his friends had lived there. He stopped at the post office and learned their whereabouts. He made haste to Iowa Park, hence the reunion. Keith invited Kenneth and family of Archer City to join his family for an evening together—a feature was an hour of banjo and ukulele music by Huntsberger, who has made a name for himself as a performer on these instruments. The family will move to Austin in July.

At your service:

Electricity that helps broaden the path to knowledge.

Project a herd of charging elephants onto a movie screen, and a student sees what is happening in a far away world.

Play an album of Beethoven's symphonies, and the composer suddenly becomes more in a student's mind than just a name in print. Let a student watch the world of single-celled creatures through the illumination of a microscope, and he'll take a closer look at the world around him.

Test his ability against an electronic speed-reading machine, and he almost surely will respond to the spirit of the challenge.

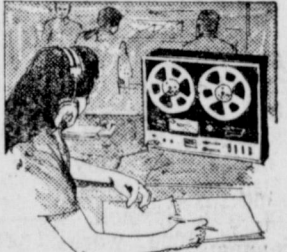

Educators today are much aware of the value of audio-visual equipment in the classroom. Modern education is a sight-and-sound world in which electricity helps bring history, geography, literature and languages to life.

Electricity is hard at work for you just about anywhere you go these days. And the use of electricity is expected to increase in the years ahead.

When additional power is needed, we'll be ready to provide it to schools and to all our customers.

But getting ready and staying ready is an increasingly expensive, never-ending job at Texas Electric. Our construction expenditures are at a record high for facilities necessary to keep an adequate and reliable power supply at your service.

Gas Drying

Electric Drying

Either we're four times cheaper, or they're four times more expensive.

Gas drying is not only easier on your pocketbook, it also makes life a whole lot easier. For one thing, gas drying practically eliminates the need for ironing. The new gas dryers are so gentle that clothes come out almost wrinkle-free. Clothes are tumbled dry, then cooled, and gently fluffed. Automatically, fluffs stay pleated. Creases stay creased. And your pocketbook. All this for a cost of about a penny a load. (Or $2.00 a ton.)

Take a look at the new gas dryers at your gas appliance dealer. Then do something nice for yourself. And your pocketbook.

Mrs. Jack Ralston, formerly a teacher here, now living with her daughter Mary in Chantilly, Va., sent birthday cards to Mrs. Clifford Roberts and Peanuts Wilson. The three of them share May 15 as birthday.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Quick visited Sunday in Olustee, Okla. with their daughter Mr. and Mrs. Hank Bagley and children Jamie, Kent and Kevin.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Fortner were recent visitors with Mr. and Mrs. Byron Saunders at Lockhart. They returned home Sunday.

Mrs. D. O. James, with Mrs. Joe Eubanks spent Mother's Day in Danville, Ark. They met a nephew from Little Rock and two nieces from Mississippi. Mrs. James visited with her sister Mrs. Tomm Crawford and brother Roy Horr, both of Danville. The Texans brought back strawberries from the Hill. The flowers were in bloom in all the bright spring colors.

Thanks . . .

for the opportunity to serve again as your State Senator.

Surprise Party for Dewey Spruiell

Hostesses for a surprise birthday party for Dewey Spruiell, Saturday night were his wife Polly, Paula, Glenda and Johnny. And other members of the family were invited to assist with the planning.

Mrs. Spruiell's brother and wife of Irving had come to spend the night, and around 9:00 he asked Dewey to go with him to get gasoline and have his car checked. When they returned to the house a transformation had taken place. Cars were parked everywhere and the house was full of relatives singing "Happy Birthday."

The cake was out of this world. It was baked in the form of a pasture. Through the artistry of icing, a picture had beendrawn of Dewey driving a team of minimules at full speed, pulling a wagon loaded with women seated on bales of hay, grabbing for their bonnets as they raced around the pasture.

Games of 42 and dominoes were played, gifts were unwrapped, and coffee and soft drinks were served with the cake, to round out an evening of hilarity.

Grads Feted

Jan Spruiell and Alyce Bondurant were honored at a Come As You Are breakfast last week at the home of Mrs. Dewey Spruiell. Sharing hostess duties were Judy Spruiell, Nancy Huckaby, Glenda Spruiell and Mrs. Bill Spruiell.

Pink, yellow and blue were used in decorations and floral arrangement.

Approximately 30 girls were yanked from bed and taken to the party, but they decided it was worth it. Menu consisted of ham, eggs, homemade biscuits, milk, juice, coffee, donuts, preserves and butter. Don't fool yourself into believing that girls don't enjoy breakfast. These did!

Each guest received a gift from the hostesses, with gifts to the honorees a little special.

Highlight of the party came when the Crystal Ball was brought in and a bit of the future was read for each girl present.

Alyce is daughter of Dr. and Mrs. D. C. Bondurant. Her high school accomplishments include: president of National Honor Society, vice-president of Thespians, 2nd in girls debate for two years, member of tennis team, pep squad two years, graduating third place in the class.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Spruiell are parents of Jan. She is senior representative to Band Council, pianist for Mixed Choir, secretary of National Honor Society, member of debate team, member of Stage Band 3 years, FHA officer two years, Wichita County representative to Farm Bureau seminar. Jan is active member of Faith Baptist church and in choir.

Miss Janie Cogdell, high school senior, was honoree when Mrs. Buster Reaves and daughter Dana entertained with a banana split party at their home Sunday afternoon.

An ecru ruffled cloth covered the refreshment table, which was centered with an arrangement of yellow tulips in a yellow basket. A wise old owl wearing a square top with tassel and gold glasses with chain attached, stood nearby as if supervising the serving of the delicacies.

Down the center of the large sheet cake ran a brown road marked "Success." At the end was a lovely doll dressed as a graduate carrying a diploma in her hand. One side of the road was written "Congratulations" and at the bottom, "Janie."

Autograph books with green cover and a silhouette in black of a graduating student were favors and each guest and the honoree received a gift from the hostesses. Janie has been active in school and church affairs: member of Pep squad, officer in FHA, office assistant in high school, member of VICA through the cosmetology class; past worthy adviser of Rairtow for Fils; one of the nominees for Outstanding Senior Girl sponsored by the 23 Study club.

She is daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Cogdell.

Fried peach pies and pecan cookies from the kitchen of Mae Roby along with sandwiches and fritos, punch and coffee provided a refreshment plate equal to a full supper when she and Mrs. O. M. Jones were hostesses to Senior Citizens club Monday at United Methodist church. Mrs. Charliotte Taylor of Irving was a guest. Others present included Messrs. and Mmes. J. A. Berg, L. P. Lambert, Raymond Good, Herman Evans, Oil Spruiell; Mmes. Lydia Hudson, Johnny Starros, M. L. Hines, Myrtle Travis, Myrtice McDonald, Alma Chesher, Gladys Thompson, Shirley Trimm; Mr. F. A.
