UN-EMPLOYMENT!

It is becoming much too obvious that I was not born to be employed. When the W-2 bug first bit, I was 16 and a high school Junior. That was the year the high school became high fashion in the business world.

Just before I received that ticket to success, my learned counselor informed me that one could not hope to survive without a college degree—so I got one of those too. When I began applying for various jobs, interviewers merely smiled and told me to come back when I had earned a Masters.

Being a sane, reasonable person, I forged ahead, storing away such wondrous data as the formula for computing the validity of a test, the name of Pavlov's favorite dog, and the approximate location of the Lost Dutchman mine.

Now you might ask what I have to show for 23 years of schooling. The total, would reply, is three diplomas, a dozen or so awards, an entire wall of used textbooks, a file of tuition receipts, a footlocker full of wornout clothes, two very good friends, and a lot of unforgettable experiences.

However, I do not have a job. In fact, I have not had a job for the past three years.

If education had been the only obstacle, I'd be an executive in five figures today. Alas and alack, there are other vital considerations. A college department head turned me down as an instructor because I looked too young. Then there was the store manager who said I am too short.

The Jewish Community Center referred an older recreation director; a conservation agency required five years' experience in sewage control; the Bureau of Indian Affairs cut its budget; so did my Alma Mater; the Air Force had no openings. And the Marines told me I was the best qualified person for the job, swore me in, then sent a wire saying the quota was filled.

I consoled myself by rationalizing that it's better to be a Marine for two days than not to be a Marine at all.

Finally, I came full circle. A large newspaper told me I had too much potential for their job, and Taco Tico said I had too much education.

Now that I'm over 30, with a high school diploma and two college degrees, job requirements tend to run to drop-outs in the 18 to 24 age bracket at one end of the scale and to retired executives at the other extreme. Even when I fit all other specifications, employers now insist on a minimum of five years' experience. How can I get a job if they all demand experience? You tell me.

Well, I refuse to become paranoid and bitter. After all, I did have two very nice jobs. Ironically I was not qualified for either, but the employers were willing to take a chance, and I proved them both correct. Only circumstances forced me away from that rewarding, worthwhile work.

The thing to do now is keep on scanning those want ads and going to interviews. Meanwhile, it can't hurt to begin on a doctorate. Who knows? Maybe education will become fashionable again before I reach 65.

Service Held for Buddy Lynn

William I. "Buddy" Lynn died unexpectedly Tuesday afternoon in his home, apparently of a heart attack.

Funeral service was conducted today at 10:00 a.m. in the church of Christ with John L. Maples and Kale Martin officiating. Burial was in Highland cemetery here directed by Tanner-Aulds Funeral Home.

Pallbearers were Ray Fortner, Larry Latimer, Harrel Sullivan, W. D. Vestal, Hoyt Watson, and Robert Wilcox.

Buddy was born Dec. 6, 1903, in Montague. He and Lois Walker were married Dec. 2, 1933, in Marietta, Okla. They moved to Iowa Park in 1943 from KMA, where Buddy was employed as a welder for Wayne Hammond. He was employed with Thompson Tool Co. until 1952, when he put in his own welding shop.

Mr. Lynn was a sociable type person and took his friendships seriously in that he and Lois often had parties for friends and neighbors at their home south of town. From these gatherings grew the annual shooting of anvils at July Fourth picnics. These were expanded to come at other times of year, and Buddy received a great amount of public notice because of this hobby.

Another service to the area Buddy delighted in was his penchant for hunting poisonous reptiles. He had this part of the county cataloged in his mind and knew many of the snake dens in these parts.

Surviving are Mrs. Lynn; the son Harold and daughter Mrs. Don Daugherty, both of Iowa Park; four sisters: Mmes. Lola Laseman and Myrtle Laseman of Wichita Falls, Leatrice Mangum and Nate Taylor of Marlow, Ok.; brother T. L. Lynn of Wichita Falls; and six grandchildren.

Your C of C

Meeting and luncheon was held by the Area Relations committee of the Wichita Falls Board of Commerce and Industry at United Methodist church of Iowa Park at noon Wednesday. Twenty-three persons were present representing Lawton, Okla.; Electra, Iowa Park, Sheppard AFB and Wichita Falls.

Mayor Gordon G. Clark welcomed the group and noted that good relations among surrounding areas is necessary in order for problems to be solved with regional efforts.

J. W. Martin, chairman of the Area Relations Committee, stated that the purpose of this committee is to explore mutual fields of interest and need as to where to work beneficially for area improvements, and that the outcome has been to work with Industrial Development, Recreation, Tourism and Education.

Robert Head, chairman of the Industrial Committee, gave a complete analysis of his work by acquainting the group with the computerized program which will be used. Such a package to present to industrial prospects does two things: 1. Tells how each community measures up to industrial needs; 2. Tells what that community needs to do to measure up.

Head thinks that industry is moving out of large areas into small towns.

Duane Henre stated that 130 outlines have been mailed on recreation facilities, tourist attractions, special events, camping facilities, higher education institutions, and state and national parks. These are to be returned with information on areas within a radius of 100 miles as to the opportunities available. Recommended prospects are to print a brochure highlighting aspects of recreation.

The meal was served by members of the Christian Workers Class of the church. Next meeting will be in Electra in September.

Lawton was represented by Ev Hahney and by Head. Here from Wichita Falls were Jack Conley, Madge Francis, Bob Hillery, Martin, Henre and Connie Sparks. Frank Rezac came from SAFB; Minnie Gilliland from Electra. Other Iowa Park folk present were Ralph Beall, George R. Huckaby, Bob Hamilton, F. M. Wilson, Bill Steger, George Trammell, Marion Cleveland, O. N. Newman, Earl Watson, Richard Carver, Don Hughes, Faris Nowell.

FABULOUS, FRIVOLOUS FOURTH

That day of days is almost here—July the Fourth. It's that happy national holiday that's applauded alike by the makers of fireworks and calomine lotion. And dreaded by those who enjoy it too much.

It's a day known for family outings, fireworks displays, blanket tosses, blueberry whale blubber ice cream, damp deer, and St. Martin.

But perhaps July the Fourth is best known as Independence Day—a day with both the applause and the dread. Applause for another birthday of our freedom. Dread from harassed fathers driving cars full of assorted relatives, dogs, and screaming kids through bumper-to-bumper traffic. And dreaded by the bug-stung, sunburned vacationers who had too much of a good thing.

BEFORE 1776

The Fourth has not always been freedom's birthday—nor the vacationer's dream-time. It has been celebrated in many different ways for centuries, which may be surprising to those who thought that there was no Fourth of July before 1776. But it's true.

July the Fourth once was celebrated in honor of St. Martin. And that's where the damp deer (or soggy stags, as the natives of Scotland say) come in.

St. Martin of Bullion was a very popular Scottish saint. It was once popular to claim that the weather which prevailed on St. Martin's Day (or Bullion Day) was prophetic. It was a kind of medieval groundhog day. But instead of groundhogs, the weather prophets were the deer. "If the deer rise dry and lay down dry," the saying went, "there will be a good fall harvest." If the deer rose wet or lay down wet, then that meant 20 days of rain.

AFTER 1776

But back to America. Few took notice of the first American Fourth. In fact, the Declaration of Independence was read on July 4, 1776, as more or less an impromptu speech to a few passers-by. Someone read the document from a platform erected in the street to observe the passing of the planet Venus. It was not until the next year, 1777, that the nation had its first Fourth of July celebration. That year, John Adams went to the July Fourth dinner on a ship named "The Delaware." And he danced to the music of a band of Hessians taken prisoner at Trenton. Guy Lombardo didn't come until later—much later.

FIRECRACKERS AND FESTIVITIES

Fireworks became a popular way to express July Fourth enthusiasm soon after our country started making history. The bang-up idea was probably borrowed from the Chinese custom of setting off firecrackers on New Year's Eve to drive away evil spirits. And also to ward off evils, America adopted the custom called the "parade of the horrors." An early morning parade through the streets by persons dressed in wild costumes and making as much noise as possible supposedly drew in the good and frightened off the bad.

Community celebrations of a wide variety have long been Fourth of July favorites. One of the first was the Greeley, Colorado, "Spud Rodeo."

And in Kozebue, Alaska, the blueberry whale blubber ice cream came about. The citizens of Kozebue marked the Fourth with the blanket toss, too. Participants tried to bounce as high as they could on a kind of hand-held trampoline. And the women tugged the rope against visitors. The ladies of gay Kozebue almost always beat the outlanders at the rope tug.

But back to the ice cream. In Kozebue, the frozen delight is really made with blueberries and whale blubber. The fat and berries are hand-mixed with canned milk, sugar and snow. Was this the first "flavor of the month" for July?

TEXAS FOURTH

But Alaska cannot surpass the celebrations of Texas. The Lone Star State has its own unique ways of marking the Fourth of July. Here the day sees quarter-horse races and shows in Stamford and Columbus. And rodeos in Belton and Pecos. And old-fashioned festivals in Brady, Taylor, and at Round Top and Winedale. There's a fishing festival in Brazosport. Golf tournaments tee-off statewide. And good old-fashioned fireworks explode in Carrollton and many other Texas home towns.

No matter how the Fourth is celebrated in Texas, it is always marked with friendliness and good cheer. Go somewhere and celebrate this Fourth of July. And as you go, remember to spread friendliness on the highways, too. The Governor's Committee on Traffic Safety urges all Texans, native and transplant, and all visitors, to DRIVE FRIENDLY during this happy, frivolous holiday.

Remember that DRIVE FRIENDLY means keeping your speed in check, observing all traffic laws, and—most important of all—letting someone else drive if you have had a drink.

The "Spirit of '76" is the July Fourth spirit that we commemorate. The "Spirit of '72" is the friendly spirit behind the wheel that will also live on forever.

Judith Snead Married in Virginia

Stanford and Wilford Cofer of Suitland, Md. Miss Susan Snead, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Miss Deborah Snead of Raleigh and Miss Patricia Snead of Lynchburg were bridesmaids. Clark Key of Bedford was best man. The bride, escorted to the altar by her father, was attired in a formal gown of cotton batiste and val lace fashioned with fitted bodice and high neck and long sleeves. Rows of lace formed the full skirt with deep flounces on hem and sleeves.

She wore a floor-length Matilla of French illusion bordered with matching lace which fell chapel length.

A reception was given in the church social hall following the ceremony.

The couple are residing in Bedford, Va.

The Sneads are former residents of Iowa Park and have many friends here.

Bird Lore

by Lafayette Stankewitz

Cowbirds are on the prowl, so beware. I rank these brown-headed birds at the head of my "most unwanted" list, even higher than sparrows or starlings. I really believe they cause more loss of our desirable birds because one female can ruin so many nestings.

The male is our only blackbird with a brown head. The female is a duller color, all over. She lays white or bluish eggs, speckled thickly with gray and brown, and always in some other bird's nest. So be on the lookout for a speckled egg where a speckled egg ought not to be, and remove it. They prey on more than 100 species of birds, most smaller than they, but not always.

I have already seen our pair of Cardinals feeding one and have seen one with the young Orioles. The young bird is a buffy gray with soft breast-streakings.

Cowbirds build no nests and care for no young. They spend their time living, loving and in search of nests in which the female can deposit her eggs. She is smart enough to choose a nest with at least one egg, for that means the nest is being tended to. Cowbird eggs hatch sooner and the young are huskier and louder, so the legitimate babies are often sunted or pushed out of the nest. The unsuspecting foster-parents care for the illegitimate ones as if they were their own.

All winter these birds gather in pastures and feedlots where they live on insects that prey on cattle. I have seen these in large flocks and shudder to think how many nests will be ruined when they start prowling in the spring.
