Gilmore given 3-year sentence

Son faces similar penalty for fracas in courtroom

The months of tension and frustration came to a boiling point Monday afternoon in federal court when Iowa Park businessman Bill Gilmore was sentenced to three years in prison for mail fraud.

Besides Mrs. Gilmore's outburst, declaring her husband's innocence and being lead sobbing outside by family members, one of the couple's sons, Kenny, attacked FBI agent Lee Hale in the courtroom.

The younger Gilmore was charged before U.S. Magistrate Robert K. Roach for assault of a federal officer. Released on his personal recognizance, preliminary hearing in the case is to be at 1:30 p.m. Aug. 5. Maximum penalty on such a charge is a $5,000 fine, a three-year prison sentence, or both.

Judge Eldon Mahon had been lecturing Gilmore and Raymond Key at the time of Mrs. Gilmore's verbal outburst.

Gilmore was accused of paying kickbacks to Key and then billing Key's parent company, Petro-Lewis Petroleum Co., for the amount eventhough no work or services had been rendered. Because their cases related, the judge had both men standing before him for the lecture, prior to pronouncing sentences.

Speaking to the pair, Mahon said "I've never sentenced any person that gave me any joy. I came from a small community and I know what it's like for a small community to have a leader. Innocent people always suffer, probably more than either of you."

He made no bones about his thoughts on the case, saying "I'm not happy with either plea agreement (plea bargaining between the prosecutor and both defendants), but I don't know all the facts of the bargaining."

Mahon said he felt a third party, retired oil man Roy Fullerton, should be standing in court with the two.

Referring to one of several letters he received in Gilmore's behalf, he quoted a writer as saying what had been alleged did "not mean much," Mahon said "These three people stole $70,000." He pointed out some $10,000 in equipment had been returned. "That's serious business," he declared.

"I hold both of you more responsible because you are leaders in your communities, and the examples you've set are deplorable," Mahon lectured. "If a few dollars are involved, you've shown you didn't have any backbone. I don't think either one of you needs to be rehabilitated."

Mrs. Gilmore's outburst came after Mahon said "You have to face up to these matters when wrong things have been done. The public needs protection. Both of you have stolen."

"He has not stolen," shouted Mrs. Gilmore, "you haven't read the facts."

"Judge, I'm sorry. This can't be happening. This is all wrong. Bill didn't get any of the money and you know it!"

"The sentence I pass, I do so with compassion," Judge Mahon said, and then told Key first, and then Gilmore, each was sentenced to three years in prison. But he added a parole stipulation which provides that each can be paroled when the parole commission may decide.

Explaining later, Mahon said parole provision 4205-B2 does not require a minimum period of time in prison before being eligible for parole. He said hearings in such cases are normally held after 90 days by the commission.

Both Gilmore and Key were released under the same bonds which had held them since their court hearings, and are to report voluntarily by 2 p.m. Aug. 16.

OFFICER ATTACKED

After telling the two they were excused, Kenny Gilmore stood at his front row seat and shouted "This court is a mockery!"

He started to turn and then, pointing a finger at Agent Hale, who was seated inside the railing that separates spectators from the court area, he said "Lee Hale, you are a S.O.B. (using the initials instead of the curse words.)"

Then he scampered through the opening of the rail to where Hale sat and swung his fist. Hale, from a bent position, threw his arm around Gilmore's neck and bent him to the floor saying, "You are under arrest."

Family members came back into the room from the hall to where Hale had the younger Gilmore penned to the floor. Other officers, including another FBI agent, a federal marshal and two Department of Public Safety Officers, and also some witnesses started pushing and shoving, but no one was injured or arrested besides Kenny.

After getting him to his feet and wearing handcuffs, Gilmore was led to a cell in the marshal's office by Iowa Parkan John Brown.

Federal attorney Jimmy Tallant later explained that Gilmore had violated two felony offenses: attack on a federal officer and obstruction of justice. He said Gilmore had completed his 10th year as a federal judge and he had never had such an outburst in his court. He confirmed that both he and Agent Hale had grounds on which to press charges against young Gilmore.

APPEALS FOR GILMORE

Eleven local citizens spoke in Gilmore's behalf, during the early part of the hearing.

Don James said he had known Gilmore all his life and knew him as a sincere, hard-working man.

Mike Leath told of Gilmore's work with the youth of his church (First Baptist) and the community.

Frances George spoke of Gilmore's help as a city councilman on efforts to improve the city library. She also said it was her "... pleasure to have presented him with the Citizen of the Year Award," and said she would do it again.

John Brown spoke of his acquaintance with Gilmore through church and the Rotary Club, calling him a "Great American."

Sue McDonald called Gilmore the "working man's friend when something needs to be done by the city council," and enumerated several specific cases in which Gilmore had been involved.

Bill Spruiell said Gilmore was a good family man who had helped support his family since he was eight or 10 years of age. "He may have contributed more time and money to the city than anybody else," he said.

Preston Leath spoke of Gilmore's work on the fire department and in the church, saying he did a lot of work for the fire department and received only the cost of materials.

Norman Nettleton, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, said Gilmore was the most regular in attendance and most productive in selling benefit tickets for the Rotary Club.

James Hotchkiss, another DPS officer, said Gilmore's character had always been good.

David Parkey said Gilmore had always handled his debts properly for loans at the local bank.

Buck Voyles said he was concerned not only for Gilmore, but for his business which pays taxes and employs 30-40 people and there was "... no way Gilmore Inc. can carry on without him."

Gilmore's attorney, Hank Anderson, told the judge "I've seen him age physically since being charged. The Rotary Club has seen fit to have him resign. The city council is trying to force him to resign. His business is hurt, and banks are turning him down, even those outside the area, because of the publicity. I am appealing to the court, Gilmore said, to further serve my community, friends and family."

In his plea to the court, Key told the judge, "I know I'm guilty. I have tried to repay. I know I did wrong. I'm asking for some way to provide a living for my family. I've done an injustice. I want to work for the Lord, Jesus Christ, for He's our savior. And I'm sorry."

When asked for their comments Tuesday, Gilmore said "The only comment I've got is that I was railroaded." Mrs. Gilmore said "It's obvious that the judge didn't believe anything that Bill told him."

WRITTEN STATEMENT

In his written statement to Judge Mahon, provided to the Leader, Gilmore said the following: "This is an attempt to explain my involvement in the crime of Mail Fraud, and the events following the crime.

"For some 15 to 18 years, I had worked for the company that eventually became Petro-Lewis. It was one of my largest accounts. Roy Fullerton and I became friends while he was a pumper with that company. A few years ago, Roy was made superintendent. In working for Roy, I sometimes traded services with him, and never considered it anything less than mutual accomodation. It was not dishonest.

"In the summer of 1980, Raymond Key took Roy's place, because Roy was nearing retirement, and didn't want added responsibility that was to be given to him. The first time Raymond came to my shop, he introduced himself, and visited a while. As he was leaving, he turned back and said, 'Now, if there is anything I want, you know how to take care of it.' The remark caught me off guard, and I asked, 'What do you mean?' He answered, 'If I need a little extra cash, you see to it that I get it, and I'll tell you how to make out the invoices.' When I hesitated, he added, 'I CAN take this work elsewhere, you know.'"

"I'm ashamed to admit I didn't want to lose the business, and that's my only excuse for making the fraudulent invoices. During this period of time, Roy Fullerton also began asking for money, under the same conditions.

"The majority of the fraudulent invoices covered the cost of a bronze sculpture, which Raymond Key wanted to buy from my wife's art gallery, for a gift to a Petro Lewis official, Jim Harrison.

"When John Seckman, the investigator for Petro-Lewis, came to me with proof of the fraudulent invoices, I admitted it, and tried to make the company happy, and to resume our good relations. The only part I omitted was Roy Fullerton, because of our long friendship, his age and health.

"When Lee Hale came into the case, I continued to cooperate with him, with the expectation of being charged with my actual crime, and pleading guilty to it. However, I was unaware that I was being made an 'example' because of my public office. Rather than helping me, my cooperation was used against me. The original indictments were not true, and I was forced to plead 'not guilty'. When the indictments were dropped, and the one count revised to the actual fact, I pleaded guilty, and accept responsibility for that crime.

"In the case that the state charged me with, I was convinced I should plead guilty to one count, because of a technicality in the law. I did not have any part in the theft, or receive anything from it, except my legitimate invoices for repairs to the 503 engine in question. Petro-Lewis hands had brought the engine to my shop for the repairs. After the work was done, and the invoices made out, I called Roy Fullerton and told him the engine was ready to be picked up. He asked me to call Oilfield Services in Archer City, because they were going to buy the engine. I called them, as asked. I was not in the shop when the engine was picked up. A check was left, made out to Raymond Key. Roy Fullerton then came to the shop and asked me to cash the check, and he would pay me for the repairs. Someone had endorsed Raymond Key's name to the check, and I added my endorsement, because our bank will not cash non-customer checks. I sent an office girl to the bank. She brought the money back and gave it to me. I gave it to Roy, and he paid me for the repairs.

"My attorneys have told me I became guilty when I realized the check should have been made to Petro-Lewis, instead of Raymond Key. Though the state charge is not related to the federal charge, I feel it is necessary that you know these facts. Judge Keith Nelson presided over the state court, and can confirm that this is what I told him when he allowed me to explain the situation. "Respectfully,
/s/ Bill Gilmore"

The livestock portion and agriculture-related merchandise will be auctioned at 10 a.m. Saturday at the Wichita Livestock Auction barn, 2509

Joe Parker, Byers rancher-banker, announced final plans for the 14th annual auction during a luncheon Thursday for committee members throughout north Texas and southern Oklahoma.

The auction is a benefit for North Texas Rehabilitation Center, Wichita Falls, which is a facility for treatment

City agenda short, tame

Nothing in the early draft of the agenda for Monday night's meeting of the city council indicates any topics which would cause the turnout or explosiveness of the previous meeting.

Only four items are on the agenda for the 7 p.m. meeting in council chambers, according to Steve Morath, city administrator.

Aldermen will be asked to award a bid for purchase of a two-ton truck chassis and cab; act on an ordinance authorizing adjustments on this year's budget; reconsider discontinuing allowance of property tax discounts; and consider joining Texas Municipal League in a joint study of the Lone Star Gas Co. gate rate increase request submitted to the Public Utilities Commission.

of handicapped children and adults.

"We need to get down to business now and bring in those donations," Parker said. Farmers and ranchers have always come through for this auction, Parker added, and he expects a successful sale on both days.

Merchandise already in for the sale includes antique saws, tools, small appliances, a gun cabinet, cooker, coolers, a bronze sculpture by Lex Graham, paintings, an Edward M. Boehm porcelain sculpture of Bluebonnets, western hats, handmade afghans and other crochet work as well as numerous other new merchandise items.

Committee members have been calling on ranchers, farmers and businessmen for donations to the auction.

Parker emphasized the need for as

The Chamber of Commerce is already accepting booth/reservations for the Sept. 17 Whoop-T-Do.

Dr. James Edwards told directors at the monthly board meeting Monday that a number of special entertainment events have already been confirmed and listed several others which will possibly be on tap that day.

Edwards, who is chairman of the annual event this year, said Danny and the Red River Review, a square dance team, bluegrass band, both high school and junior high choirs and the turtle trot are already confirmed.

He said most of the special events will be finalized in time to be reported at the August board meeting.

Dr. Don Newberry has been contracted for this year's annual banquet speaker. Now president of a college at Snyder, Newberry last spoke here in 1977 and was considered the best received speaker in the banquet's history.

The banquet is scheduled Jan. 29, according to Linda Merrick, this year's chairman.

Directors decided to cut back on soliciting outside participants for this year's Christmas parade, changing it from a county-wide to a local event.

The parade will be held the Saturday following Thanksgiving, to kick off the annual Christmas sales promotion for local merchants.

Directors also delegated president Phil Welch to draft a letter to the commanding general of Sheppard AFB, re-emphasizing this community's realization of the base's importance to the community.

Davis, Ross nuptial vows recited Saturday

Mr. and Mrs. David Lofton Ross, who were married Saturday afternoon at Faith Baptist Church, are now honeymooning in Puerto Vallarta, Mexico. The bride is the former Miss Julie Lenore Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Davis, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gregory Ross. The double-ring ceremony was performed by Gary Lyles, a close friend of the bride and groom and their families.

Yellow and white, the colors emphasized in wedding decorations, bridal attendants' gowns, bouquets and at the postnuptial reception, gave magnificent accent to an early summer wedding. The daisy, one of the most popular flowers of the season, was outstanding in the florid pattern throughout.

The colors were first noted in the church foyer where guests signed the wedding book at a table covered with yellow taffeta draped with an heirloom white crocheted cloth made by the bride's late great-grandmother. Mrs. Phillip Johnson presided at the table where guests registered with a yellow plume pen.

In the sanctuary, the altar was centered with a brass archway traced with boxwood greenery dotted with yellow and white daisies. On either side tall brass pedestals held handsome arrangements of the yellow-centered long white ray flowers. Church pews were marked with white satin bows.

Tim Adeock of Abilene, organist, and David Morton of Shreveport, La., two accomplished young musicians, provided the wedding music. The former gave a concert of prelude selections including "Claire De Lune,"

MRS. DAVID LOFTON ROSS

"Liebestraum," "If Thou Be Near," "Moonlight Sonata," "To a Wild Rose," "Whither Thou Goest," "O Perfect Love," "Savior, Like a Shepherd Lead Us," and "You Light Up my Life." He accompanied the vocalist for his solos, "Wedding Song," and "This Is the Day." In lieu of the traditional marches, the organist played "Trumpet Voluntary" for the processional and "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring" for the recessional.

The formal gown of white chiffon and Venise lace chosen by the bride for her wedding lent itself to an exquisitely fine picture. The slightly raised bodice was fashioned with a high neckline of lace, a sheer yoke trimmed in lace and pearls, and sheer bishop sleeves cuffed and trimmed in lace. The A-line skirt that flows into a chapel train was adorned with matching lace appliques and white panels of the delicate ornamental trim at the sides extending from the waistline to the hemline.

The lace was repeated in the bride's camelot cap and in the border of her waistline illusion veil cascading from the headpiece. She carried a large nosegay of yellow and white daisies and roses, gypsophila completed with yellow and white silk lace streamers. She carried her flowers on a white Bible, a gift from her parents for the "something new" tradition. Clasped to the Bible was a brooch set with blue stones that belonged to her grandmother, Mrs.

Faye Hobbs, and it represented both "something old" and "something blue." For "something borrowed", she wore diamond ear rings that belonged to her sister-in-law, Mrs. Kenneth Davis.

The bride's father escorted her to the altar where he presented her in marriage for her parents.

The bride's chosen colors were seen at their prettiest in her attendants' full length yellow dotted swiss gowns made with empire waistlines. Touches of dainty white lace gave softness to the high collars and long sheer sleeves. They carried small nosegays of yellow and white daisies.

Mrs. Terry Davis, the bride's sister-in-law, participated in the wedding as matron of honor, and Mrs. Douglas Burgoyne served as bridesmaid.

The groom was attired in a champagne tuxedo, white shirt and wore a white rose boutonniere. Male participants wore champagne tuxedos and matching ruffled shirts. Ken Scheffe of Santa Rosa, New Mexico, served as best man, and Thomas Ross, brother of the groom, was groomsman. Ushers were Robert Ritter of Burkburnett and Rod Roof of Wichita Falls.

The bride and groom were both graduated from Iowa Park High School. She attended Midwestern State Univ. and is employed at the Iowa Park Schools tax office. He attended Rice Univ. and MSU and works for Fort Worth and Denver Railroad. They will live in Iowa Park.

When the couple left on their wedding trip, the bride was wearing a yellow dotted swiss sun dress topped with a white jacket that she had made.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Davis chose a full length peach crepe dress designed with a high waist, ruffled V-neck and long sleeves ruffled at the wrists. Mrs. Ross, mother of the groom, was attired in a long navy blue chiffon dress featuring an accordion pleated capelet defined with light blue brush designs and handkerchief points. Both wore yellow and white daisy corsages.

On the eve of the wedding, the groom's parents were hosts for the rehearsal dinner at Antonio's in Wichita Falls.

The dignity and refinement that keynoted the wedding permeated the Fellowship Hall of the church where the postnuptial reception was given by the bride's parents. The special beauty of the room was the treatment of the walls with white fabric accented with yellow and white silk bows around the top. The yellow and white daisies mixed with baby's breath were featured in an arrangement in a silver bowl for the centerpiece.

True to form, the three-tiered white wedding cake was the focal point of interest on the table. Each tier was encircled with royal frosting clusters of white daisies with yellow centers linked with cascades of the flowers that extended down four sides. The top tier was supported by filigree pillars situated among the frosting flowers. The finishing touch on the top was an ornament that suited the romantic mood of the occasion, featuring two yellow satin bells accented with delicate flowers on the outside and in the clapper area. The background for the bells was a heart outlined with yellow lace and filled with white tulle. The ornament was raised by a dais of white lace trimmed with white satin ribbon.

Other table appointments were the silver punch bowl and cups, yellow bell-shaped mints, bridal napkins accented with white doves and names and wedding date of the couple, and the silver coffee service.

Serving the refreshments were Mmes. Tom Venhaus, Reynold Redcliff, Carl King and Miss Cindy Lyles.

Out-of-town guests for the wedding included Messrs. and Mmes. John Ross, Odell Bishop, R.E. Davis, J.E. Woods, Preston Morton; Mrs. Wendal Gibson and Mrs. Jim Taylor.

Oklahomans face charges

Five charges resulted from a criminal mischief incident that took place here Friday, according to Billy Hamilton, police chief.

Three charges were filed in Electra and two here against three young Oklahoma men.

David Duane Wahl told police that his pickup was pelted by a beer can on West Highway shortly after 4:30 p.m. A pickup with three men followed Wahl to the West Highway and Johnson Road intersection where the trailing vehicle reportedly struck Wahl's pickup, causing $183 damages.

As I See It....

By BOB HAMILTON

With the re-evaluation of property taxes, not only here but all over the state, to rate everything taxable at what is supposed to be 100 percent of market value, an awful lot of people are fearful their taxes are going to zoom out of sight.

There is no reason to believe this, unless you have absolutely no confidence in your elected officials.

It is a fact that the value placed on property has no effect of what your taxes are. It is the rate applied by elected officials that establishes your tax bill.

The market value means nothing to what your taxes will be, any more than if your property were valued at 50 percent of market value. It never has.

With the taxable values established, elected officials sit down and figure what tax rate should be applied to generate the revenue required to operate for the year.

If, for instance, Iowa Park's school district needs no more money to operate on this year than it did last year, but the district's values were doubled, then the tax rate should be cut in half.

If a person paid $100 in taxes on a piece of land last year, when the rate was set at $1, then if the rate is set at 50-cents after property values have been doubled, the tax bill should be $100 again this year.

This new state-wide program of setting a tax value at 100 percent of market value has a major plus and a similar minus. If your home is valued at $25,000 for the school district, it has the same value for the county, and that has not been the base in the past. But the minus is, the law created a county-wide taxing district which, on the bottom line, is more expensive to the taxpayers than was the tax assessing/collecting program before it.

The new program has also taken from taxing entities such as cities a major, but little-known, tool for achieving lower bond interest rates.

Under the old program, of assessing values at whatever percentage the district wanted, a city might have a bond debt of $3-million and a tax district value of only $10-million. That is not a very healthy situation, since bond interest rates are set according to a district's ability to pay the indebtedness.

The city could double its values (and cut in half its tax rate to still generate the same amount of revenue) and show the bonding company that it had a $20-million value, against which only $3-million in debts were on the books, and make the bonds a more attractive investment.

But that is all in the past now. If the value assessments are reasonably correct, a district's value will remain in line.

It's a whole new ball game. And not everybody is happy.

Wilson accused of threatening state witness

Iowa Parkan Joyce Wilson, who is awaiting results of her appeal after being convicted of manslaughter, was arrested Friday for allegedly threatening a witness at her trial.

She was arrested at her home by Iowa Park police at the request of the Wichita Falls police department and transported to that city.

Taken before Justice of the Peace R.L. Stewart, bond was first set at $20,000, but later reduced to $10,000 and she was released after posting the bond.

Filing the retaliation complaint was Marie Fox of Wichita Falls, who said Wilson called her more than once that day, at her place of employment, threatening damage to her vehicle. She allegedly also called Fox's boyfriend and other acquaintances, making threats.

Fox was a witness for the state in Wilson's trial, when she was accused of shooting her husband to death. Her testimony was said to be the most damaging.

Save energy with high-efficiency a/c and get a bonus from Texas Electric

The amount shown is for a 3-ton central electric air conditioner with an SEER of 8.5.

If you replace your central electric air conditioner with one that's more efficient, Texas Electric will pay you a bonus of $80 per ton.

Not only that, you'll save on your electric bill as well. For example, a high-efficiency 3-ton unit will save you up to $160 a year.

This equipment costs more initially, but the bonus from Texas Electric plus the savings on your electric bill will make up the difference in just a few years.

If enough people buy high-efficiency equipment, summer peak load growth will be slowed — and so will the need to build new generating plants. In the long run, this will help hold down everyone's electric bill.

Before you replace your old air conditioner, ask your dealer about central air conditioners, heat pumps, and window units that qualify for this program.

City adopts budget, sets 45-cent tax rate

Holliday City Council adopted most of its 1983 budget and set the tax rate, in action taken during Monday night's regular meeting at the Community Center.

After reviewing the budget in regular session, council then voted to adopt it with the exclusion of the revenue sharing budget portion.

Aldermen tabled revenue sharing after city administrator Jim Hamill informed them a public hearing is required before it could officially be adopted. Council then set the public hearing for 6:30 p.m. Aug. 2 at the Community Center. A regular session of the council will precede the hearing.

TAX RATE ADJUSTED

The 1983 budget passed by the council includes an anticipated income of $198,400, approximately $46,900 above last year's outlay. But, with higher appraisals and new construction, the council approved a tax rate of 45-cents per $100 valuation, 10-cents below the rate set a year before.

Sales tax returns, according to Mayor James Cook are anticipated to run approximately $80,000 this year, providing the city with the largest single source of income. Anticipated ad valorem taxes total $50,000, while, for the first year ever, the city will receive $500 in cable television utility collections (gross sales return).

THE BUDGET

The city anticipates a total income of $389,238.58 during 1983, with $198,400 expected for the general fund, $177,940 in water fund, $7,300 in the municipal fund, and $5,643 in revenue sharing.

GENERAL FUND

Salaries totalling $85,000 dominate the general fund, while utilities are budgeted for $15,000, accounting $12,500, and $10,000 for asphalt to be used in street repairs.

WATER FUND

Of the $177,940 water fund, water and sewer collections will generate $117,000 towards the water budget.

Salaries will total $50,000, while bonds and interest payments amount to $21,902, and transfers to general fund for refuse totals $20,000.

The water department will pay $40,000 for water from Wichita Falls next year, and spend another $2,000 on equipment.

MUNICIPAL FUND

Expecting an income of $7,300, fines will add approximately $6,000, with $1,200 left over from last year. Attorney fees, building maintenance and law enforcement purchases total $3,100.

In other business, council tabled discussion on amending the water ordinance, granted a request by Armon Brown, Jr. for a one-half inch water meter, granted a leave of absence to Mrs. Joy Chambers, and agreed to reschedule meetings falling on a holiday for the following night (Tuesday).

Coldwater Cattle Co. joins rodeo roster

Ranch hands from Coldwater Cattle Co., Inc., once a part of the largest ranch in the world, have thrown their collective hats into the ring, joining working cowboys from 12 other Texas ranches already scheduled to compete in the 1982 Texas Ranch Roundup to be held here August 19-21. The roundup will give ranch hands a chance to compete peacefully for bragging rights as the best ranch in Texas.

The Coldwater ranch, headquartered in Amarillo, will be represented by a team that has one goal to accomplish in the roundup, according to ranch manager Rusty Tinnin. "We're coming to win," the ranch manager said.

The ranch is part of what was once the largest cattle operation in the world in the early 1900's, and also had the United States' largest proven gas acreage within once fence. But after several divisions among the family heirs, the ranch's present holdings include more than 85,000 acres in Potter and Sherman counties.

The Lewis Ranches, based in Clarendon, will return to defend the title their ranch hands won last year, but the cowboys will face stiff competition from the other participating ranches which also competed in 1981, including the R.A. Brown Ranch, the Cowan & Son Circle Bar Ranch, Moorhouse Ranch, Pitchfork

Land and Cattle Company, Scharbauer Ranches, Renderbrook-Spade Ranch, Double U Hereford Ranch and W.T. Waggoner Estate.

In combination, these ranches sprawl over two million acres of cattle country, nearly half the size of New Jersey.

Tom Moorhouse of the Moorhouse Ranch is expected to try to hold his Best All-Around Hand Title for a second year.

Rodeo tickets are $5 reserved seats and $3 general admission for each rodeo performance; $5 per person for each evening's dance; and $1 general admission for the afternoon contests. Tickets are on sale starting July 26 at Wichita Western World, The Cow Lot, Holts Sporting Goods, Cruse Western Wear and Cuttys, all in Wichita Falls; Hughes Western Wear in Vernon, and Frontier Western Wear in Bowie. Tickets can also be obtained at the gate or by writing Falls Distributing Co., Inc., 3811 Tarry, Wichita Falls, Texas 76308.

The 1982 Texas Ranch Roundup is co-sponsored by Budweiser and the North Texas Rehabilitation Center. Proceeds from the roundup will benefit the North Texas Rehabilitation Center, Wichita Falls; the West Texas Rehabilitation Center, Abilene; and the West Texas Boys Ranch, San Angelo.
