Council approves leases, hears plan for project

The city council Monday night approved two right-of-way leases, heard details on a proposed multi-purpose events center, and took no action following an executive session that lasted slightly more than an hour.

Both leases concerned structures that have been built on city street rightof-way.

One, concerning Faith Baptist Church, was drafted in 1988 and thought to have been finalized, but was not.

Appearing before the council, church spokesman Norman Hodges said the lease agreement had been approved both by the church leaders and the council, but had never been completed with the required signatures.

He asked that the necessary paperwork be completed, and the council agreed. Mayor Wayne House said the paperwork would be available for the signatures Tuesday.

When the church's new structure was built, it was determined the covered driveway had extended over city right-

Alderman Virgil Woodfin, who was a member of the council at that time, said he remembered the lease agreement being approved and had thought all required paperwork had been completed.

When Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Fowler were seeking to purchase the home at 101 South Colorado, a survey of the property determined a structure and fence had encroached onto the right-ofway on Daisy.

In order for the purchase contract to be completed, the six-year lease was said to be necessary.

Be assured none of those descriptive words apply. In fact, the order is exclusive enough that membership is by invitation only.

Though the order is desirous of increasing its more than 37,000 membership, only active members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars are eligible to be a Cootie. Members must be an active, working member and volunteer his services.

The Military Order of the Cootie is basically an honor degree of the VFW of the United States. Birdett describes it as comparable to the Shriners organization of the Masonic Lodge.

The order was organized in 1920 at Washington, D. C. by a number of VFW members because they desired camaraderie with others of like experiences. It first was classified as a "fun degree".

They recognized a need for an auxiliary to the parent organization that would bring the membership closer through social activities. But, later the organization began to assume other obligations of its parent order and earned the "Honor Degree."

When World War II broke out, the MOC visualized the need for hospital visitation and the presentation of entertainment for hospitalized veterans.

They inaugurated a program of "Keep 'em Smilin' in Beds of White" and trained personnel was commissioned to serve with and work for the Veterans Administration Volunteer

Included in the hospital visitation program is the Supreme Blood Program that is establishing each year record pacing life giving blood, representing annual donations to blood banks and hospitals from MOC members.

In addition to these and other programs, the MOC sponsors the Christie Broun Supreme Scholarship Program that is designed to provide college educations for all four years to three students graduating from the National Home each year, at a rate grant of $3,500 for each student's yearly attendance.

Of course, the name Cootie was selected by veterans because it was slang used by World War I soldiers, referring to some of the discomforts they experienced while serving in the military in foreign lands.

Objectives of the organization are to promote social and reunion features among members and to "keep alive the spirit of optimism and humor characteristic of the American service man."

The term used for local units of MOC is Pup Tents, state units are Grand Pup Tents and the national organization is the Supreme Pup Tent. Meetings are referred to as "scratches" officers are designated The only thing that is not done

Local educators attend meeting

Dorothy Palmer, Becky Lovelady and Johnna Adams were among approximately 1,100 educators representing the Association of Texas Professional Educators (ATPE) attending the group's 12th annual convention March 12-14 at Hyatt Regency D/FW, Dallas/Fort Worth Airport.

The educators adopted organizational policies ranging from professional benefits to alternative certification.

Several state leaders addressed the representatives of the 54,000-member group.

State Senator Bill Haley (D-Center) urged educators to become more politically active. "The system will work for educators when educators get in the system," Haley said. "Only then will we have a much better day for education."

Texas Commissioner of Education, Lionel Meno, reiterated the message he has delivered to teachers across the state since taking the post last July. "Public education must be designed so every child has an opportunity to excell," Meno said. "Without improved conditions we will not improve student achievement; and we as a society will be the losers."

The ATPE Texas Liberty Award was presented to State Representative Ernestine Glossbrenner (D-Alice). The award is the highest honor presented

When Wichita County invites a large maximum security prison into our North Texas area it is also getting some fringe "benefits" which include a perfect environment for spreading two extremely deadly and difficultly controlled diseases, DRUG-RESISTANT TUBERCULOSIS and

"In 1985, tuberculosis (TB) incidence started rising. It has risen ever since. By 1990, Americans were suffering 16% more TB than in 1984 and nearly 40 percent more than previous trends would have predicted," according to the article "A DEADLY RE-TURN" in the March 16, 1992 NEWSWEEK. The article continued to state that "homelessness, drug abuse and AIDS have left a huge population defenseless against the germ that causes the disease. By.... crowding thousands of them into PRISONS, shelters, and holding pens -- America has essentially cultivated the contagion."

"Multi-drug-resistant tuberculosis (MDR TB) bacteria, in the past year and several hospitals in New York and Florida, killing a guard, a dozen inmates and scores of patients," according to the NEWSWEEK article. ".. The most disease-prone TB carriers . . are . . indigents, prisoners, . . and . . people with HIV.

"The National Institute of Justice's 1989 survey of correctional AIDS policies reported that as of October 1989 correctional agencies have a cumula-a 72% increase over the previous year" as reported in "AIDS in Prison: Legal Issues: from CRIME AND DELIN-QUENCY, January, 1991.

"The problem of AIDS among the incarcerated appears to be more serious than that of the general population because of high incidence, population density and the 'keeper-kept' relationship between prison personnel and persons with AIDS," according to CRIME AND DELINQUENCY, Janu-

This problem, of MDR TB and

AIDS, is of DIRECT importance to the citizens of Wichita County, because, according to Dr. John Bybee, director of disease control and epidemiology for the state (Texas) Department of Health, "The jail is a repository for high-risk groups - intravenous drug users and people who may be HIV positive. When they're not in jail, they often live in crowded conditions. These people come in from the outside with the disease and may infect others, who then go out and infect others. So what we have is a selfperpetuating situation," as Dr. Bybee stated in the Dallas Times Herald on April;1,1991. According to Dr. Charles Alexander, head of the (Texas) prison system's medical program,"...46 prison inmates have TB, giving the prison system a rate of 92 cases per 100,000 inmates, compared with the statewide civilian average of 17 per 100,000." In the Dallas Times Herald there was one solution proposed by "state law" which would "require testing of inmates," however Assistant Chief Deputy Robert Knowles, director of the Dallas County Jail states that "they want to place the burden for paying for it on the COUNTIES, and we could be looking at a tremendous amount of money."

When Wichita County, Wichita alone, have swept through two prisons Falls and Board of Commerce and Industry look for a long-term industry for our area, I feel that there must be something other than this, a self-admitted center for highly contagious social diseases. We do not need more problems like this. We need businesses that will enhance and create a positive and safe environment in which our children can grow, our adults can thrive and our elderly can retire.

T'S MY TURN. . . By KARI COLLINS

The more prisons we have in Texas, the more criminals can be housed in those prisons for longer periods of time. The more convicted criminals there are in prison, the less there will be on the street. The longer sentences those criminals serve, the less there will be in the street.

I have watched with great interest over the past few months, the controversy surrounding the proposed prison site northeast of town.

I'm for more prisons in Texas here, there, anywhere - it doesn't matter where. Just more prisons to house the growing number of violent and career criminals in our state who are and have been roaming our streets because Texas prisons don't have enough room to house them for more than a fraction of their sentences.

Look around! Chances are you will see at least one individual who is on probation for a felony or on parole from prison. Would you feel safer living among them or having a prison gate separating you?

In 1991, the crime rate in Wichita County was surpassed in Texas only by that of Dallas, San Antonio, Odessa and El Paso. Our county had 9,478 crimes committed per 100,000 residents, according to the statistical division of the Texas Department of Criminial Justice (TDJC).

What happened to the people who committed those crimes? Just 179 of those convicted were sent to the state's prisons last year. The remainder were placed on probation.

Certainly it should be said that more and more prisons will not completely solve the state's crime problem. But it can place current criminals in a "holding pattern" while the crime problem is worked on at the other end of the spectrum. And I maintain that longer prison sentences do serve as a deterrent to crime.

TDCJ statistics show that Texas prisoners who were parolled in 1991 served an average of 1.6 years on an average actual sentence of 10 years. That's less than 1/6 of the time sentenced served.

Early release is caused by prison over-crowding. We need more prisons. Jurors serving on a trial are not allowed to consider how quickly the convicted defendant will be parolled when sentencing him.

On that average, if a criminal wasn't rehabilitated in that 1.6 years, he could conceivably commit a crime and be tried four or five more times in the amount of time he should have been in prison paying his debt to society.

In 1991, of the 49,608 residents in Texas prisons, 51 percent were repeat offenders - they had been there before.

Building prisons, then housing criminals in them is costly. The cost to house a prisoner in a state prison is $35 per day. Wichita County taxpayers pay about $45 a day for each prisoner in the county jail. One day in county jail takes three days off any prison time the prisoner may serve.

But if we are to look at the economics of housing a convicted criminal, we must examine what it costs to prosecute a case in Wichita County.

While the figures are conservative, because so many variables apply to any given case, they should give an idea of how much money it costs to prosecute a case in Wichita County.

On a simple four-day trial, for a hypothetical robbery case, we can expect to write a check from the county tax rolls for about $4,000 - for starters.

That figure includes four days pay for a prosecutor, public defender, secretaries, a judge, 12 jurors, a court bailiff, court reporter, and a deputy.

It does not include, however, pretrial preparation; witness and expert witness travel, lodging, meals and professional fees; postage; grand jury pay and prosecutor pay for presenting the case to grand jury; the cost to house a prisoner in the county jail; and the time an arresting agency spends on the arrest, booking, paperwork and the time the officer must spend testifying

In the case of a more serious crime, such as aggravated assault, sexual assault, murder or capitol murder, the cost will be considerably greater, commensurate with a longer, more complicated trial.

And most trial cases in Wichita County that end in a conviction and prison sentence are appealed, creating added expense on the same case.

An estimated half of the cases prosecuted in Wichita County involve repeat offenders.

Now, if half of these defendants are repeat offenders, could it be possible that if they had previously served their entire sentence, some might not be in the courtroom, but still in prison?

I would rather my tax dollars went to house them in prison rather than to re-try them again and again.

Criminals aren't scared and they aren't worried. Why should they be: If they actually get sent to prison for their crime, chances are slim they'll serve more than 1/3 of their actual sentence

And let's not forget the victims of these crimes. For every crime, there is a victim. A victim of a crime that ideally should have never happened.

What a crime victim suffers cannot be measured in dollars. But seeing justice served can help alleviate some of the anger and the pain.

More than economics are at issue with the local group opposing the prison and I would like to respond briefly to some of the grievances.

A few of the issues brought out

The escape rate: Texas had only 13 escapes during 1991, all of which were captured and returned within a short period of time.

The prison wouldn't provide enough jobs for local residents: It is true that not all of the jobs will be filled by locals immediately. But if it provides 80 jobs, that is 80 more jobs than we now have. And the remainder of the positions will be filled by individuals already in the system who will move to this area with their families. Those families will buy or rent homes, buy cars, and spend money on the same things we do, stimulating the Wichita County has the opportunity to help alleviate the at-large criminal population and benefit economically at the same time.

The point is to get the message to criminals that crime does not pay. Sadly enough, at this point in time, crime does pay, and it's getting worse every

We can help make the difference.

"I got to watch them build the CAT scan machine while I was working there. That was something else," he said.

The Birdetts moved to Iowa Park in 1960 and built one of the first homes in Garden Valley.

He worked at Sheppard Air Force Base for 22 years, retiring in 1988 as Quality Assurance Evaluator. "That included a lot of things, even driving a trash truck."

Birdett served as State Commander of the MOC in 1971-72 and National Commander in 1983-84. In his present capacity he is Supreme Quartermaster-Adjutant of the more than 900 Pup Tents located in the United States, Germany and the South Pacific.

The MOC is under the control of the National Convention, the National Council of Administration and the Commander-in-Chief.

Birdett has traveled extensively and has several trips on his agenda now. He has been assigned by the National Commander to attend conventions of the Cooties in New Mexico, Indiana, Tennessee, and Ar-

The commander always sends someone from the Supreme organization to help with the State MOC conventions where he is the honored guest and makes the after dinner speech.

Birdett's office walls are well decorated with framed honors he has received, including his honorary title of Kentucky Colonel bestowed on him by the governor of Kentucky, an Arkansas Traveler, a Nebraska Admiral and a Territorial Marshal presented to him by the governor of Oklahoma, among many other honorary titles.

Bobbie, Bobby, or Bob, he answers to any of them. He was called Big B while he was in the Navy. When he became the National Commander, he used The Big Bee as his symbol and his slogan was Bee Power.

So, on one of his office walls is a large replica of a bee, bearing his slogan, along side a large replica of a

The Cootie is a reminder of what the organization is all about, and a reminder also of the stories members can tell about cooties in the trenches and other places. "Some of the stories . are very true, but some I'm sure are fabricated," Birdett said.

He has a yellowed, brittle piece of sheet music that he found when the archives were moved to Iowa Park. He is very proud and protective of the song about the cootie that was written and published in the early years of the organization. It was presented to MOC by the composer.

Birdett once worked for Coco-Cola in Wichita Falls and for many years has been a collector of Coco-Cola memorabilia, now possessing one of the largest private collections in the United States. His ambition is to eventually have a Coco-Cola museum, he hopes on Highway 287. His interest in Coco-Cola can also be noted in his offices and on his walls.

The person that may have helped to spur his interest, or at least encourage it, is his wife.

Birdett tells the story of one Christmas in the early 1960s when they had very little money to spend on Christmas gifts. His wife bought him one share of stock in Coco-Cola

When she went to purchase it they tried to sell her 100 shares for $60. She informed the person she did not have that much to spend and that she wanted one share of common stock. Birdett has it framed and on his wall at home. And, he has added to his stock, "I at least have a vote now," said Birdett.

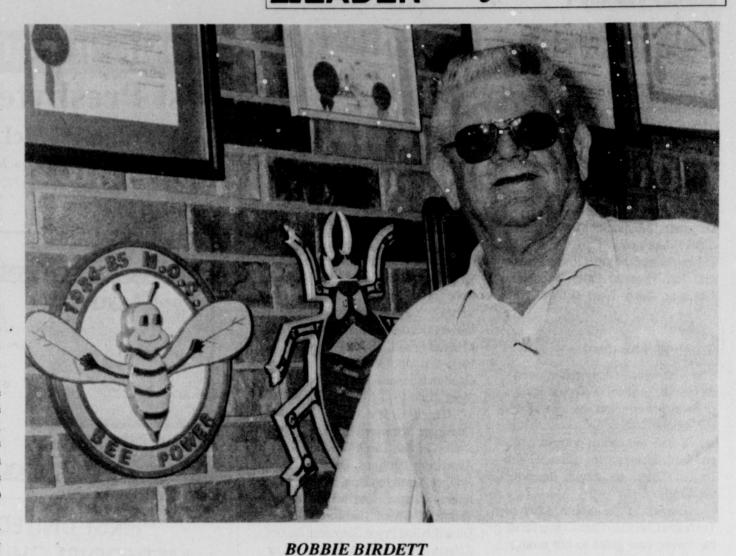

His name, Bobbie, also has a story behind it. "For a long time I was ashamed of my name, or the way it was spelled, so I went by Bobby or Bob. Before I was born my mother was sure she was going to have a girl and had her name already picked out, so she just gave it to me. " (That's sounds like the song, "The Boy Named Sue.)

As Bobbie got older, and after his mother has had to be in a nursing home for several years, not recognizing any of her family, he says, "I sort of like it, at least it is different.'

Birdett has been active in Scouting since he moved to Iowa Park and he served as vice president of Little League. He was Cubmaster and also served as Scoutmaster. He is a member of Iowa Park Masonic Lodge No.

Bobbie is county chairman of the Veterans Land Board and is a member of the Matagorda County Historical Society. He and his wife are members of Loop 11 Church of

"HONOR YOUR FATHER AND MOTHER" EPHESIANS 6:2

A basic biblical teaching is deep loyalty, respect, and care for one's parents. It is worthy of our attention that Jesus made provisions for His own mother even as he was dying on the cross. (John 19:26). A question for each to consider is how do I honor my father and mother?

1. By obeying God.

2. By always showing respect for them.

3. By being an example to others in godliness.

4. By being leaders in Christ's church.5. By having godly homes of our own.

6. By teaching our family the gospel of Jesus Christ. The greatest honor for parents to ever have would be for their children to honestly say, "My folks are true Christians, devoted to our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ." If anyone is truly deserving of our love and loyalty, it should be the man and woman who brought us into this world. What a debt of gratitude we owe to parents who esteemed highly the Word of God and obeyed the commands of

AUSTIN - Texas Comptroller John Sharp, who boldly ventures where most fear to tread, last week proposed that Texas legislators abolish school property taxes statewide.

Sharp thinks lawmakers should do this in the fast-approaching mid-May special session on public school finance.

In response, most lawmakers remained mum, either considering its merits or in shocked silence.

To replace the property tax revenues, Sharp wants to substitute a value-added tax on goods and services at each stage of production, at 3.75 percent.

He said the value-added tax, used in Europe and other industrialized nations, would raise $9.5 billion annually, about $2 billion more than the $7.5 billion raised by local school property taxes.

That's enough money to let lawmakers abolish the corporate franchise tax, too, Sharp said.

"A Lousy Tax" Sharp called the property tax "a lousy tax," having been raised 146 percent in nine years.

and was sentenced to three years in state prison.

No charges were levied against the other two women.

Officers were called Tuesday afternoon to a home in the 1000 block of Van Horn, where a girls' bicycle had reportedly been thrown into a swimming pool, graffiti written on the side of the pool, and another bicycle stolen.

Police, who suspect a group of neighborhood youths ranging in ages 17 to 21, were investigating the case Wednesday.

Also under investigation is an alleged sexual assault, reported to police Sunday by the mother of a 15-year-old girl who said the offense had occurred two weeks earlier at Lake Iowa Park.

The complaintant did not give police a name, but alleged she was taken at gunpoint from the high school parking lot by a man.

Owners of three vehicles told police Wednesday of last week their hood ornaments had been stolen.

A woman visiting a home in the 1000 block of Van Horn Thursday morning told police a side window of her van had been shattered during a period of slightly more than an hour.

Another criminal mischief case was reported Tuesday night, when the owner of a vehicle parked in Park West Shopping Center told police a tire had been slashed.

A youth's BB gun was confiscated Tuesday afternoon while he was walking around Lake Gordon.

Chief Wayne Parsons said any air guns or sling shots being carried by youngsters inside the city limits will be confiscated, and their parents notified to redeem them at the police station.

The new tax would mean cheaper house payments, a wider tax base, more money circulating in the economy, and postponement of a state income tax.

The tax would be value-added to goods and services, minus labor and raw materials costs, at each stage of production.

Business Tax Pool

Meanwhile, Gov. Ann Richards may push a business tax pool which would remove businesses from local school property tax

Still being formulated, the basic structure would put all business property, including utilities and minerals, in a separate tax base which would be distributed equitably statewide.

Bullock: Crime Next

Li. Gov. Bob Bullock told Houston business leaders he thinks that, for the first time in history, the crime issue will be more important than education.

"I anticipate cuts in education," he said, meaning education social services. Public school spending. adjusted for inflation and enrollment, has decreased 1.7 percent per year since 1987.

Once the state completes construction of 40,000 new prison beds, an extra $1.5 billion yearly will be needed to run them, still with no assurance that the state can take the 16,000 felons held for the state in county jails, Bullock said. Performance Budgeting

A key state budget official last week said higher education funding should be tied to how well a college or university achieves its goals rather than other factors such as student enrollment.

But educators and some lawmakers attending a meeting of the Joint Select Committee on Higher Education said the socalled performance-based budgeting could lead to numerous practical and political problems.

State Rep. Rick Williamson, vice chairman of the House budget-writing committee, defended his proposal, saying that it is necessary to ensure that taxpayers

"It is the way government will be funded whether we like it or not," said Williamson, D-

Sen. Carl Parker, chairman of the Senate Education Committee. said he supported Williamson in theory, but added, "Performancebased budgeting in education is a dead issue.'

The new test, The Texas Academic Skills Program, was mandated by House Bill 2182 in spring of 1987 and provides information about the reading, mathematics and writing skills of students entering Texas public colleges and universities.

Students in Texas colleges must take the TASP test before they have completed their ninth credit hour. However, college recruiters are advising that high school students take the exam before they enter a univerHelpful Facts

Cost for the test is $26.

WORTH QUOTING

Perhaps the American oil industry ought to submit their problems to an arbitration judge.

After that arbitrator in New York awarded all-star outfielder Ruben Sierra $5 million to plan for the Texas Rangers one more year and the following day, another arbitrator gave Ranger first baseman Rafael Palmeiro $3.8 million for a one-year contract, arbitration may be what the oil industry needs.

They're certainly not going to get any help from Congress or the Administration.

The U.S. Senate Wednesday night passed a massive energy bill, 94 to 4. The bill is an encyclopedia grab-bag of verbiage that covers everything about the source of energy except oil.

It eases the construction of natural gas pipelines, streamlines the licensing of nuclear plants, restructures the utility industry, broadens the use of alternative fuels in government cars and trucks, and requires more efficient light bulbs and household appliances.

But the bill ignores oil and the nation's dependence upon foreign oil --$50 billion worth a year.

Ignoring oil and its problems in a national energy bill is like rewriting the New Testament and leaving out the books of Matthew, mark, Luke and John. JAMES ROBERTS
