Keyed TO BETTER LIVING...

Electric Refrigeration

With food prices what they are, there's never been a time when dependable food preservation was more important than right now.

Left-over meats and vegetables have taken on new values. Quantity buying of groceries and meats on special days when prices are lowest means more to the family budget than ever before.

New electric refrigerators provide the most in dependable, economical food protection. Department stores, furniture stores and electrical appliance stores all sell electric refrigerators which are keyed to Better Living.

Greatest Arab City

As a colorful gateway between East and West, Cairo has grown until it holds the dual distinction of being the largest city in Africa and the world's greatest Arab community. In reality Cairo is two cities: The old Cairo of noisy bazaars and dimly lighted, twisting streets with overhanging balconies and a spacious new city built on European lines. Modern Cairo has wide boulevards, fine government buildings, European-style hotels and residences surrounded by walled gardens where palm trees shade rose bushes and flowering hibiscus. Above the flat roofs rise slim minarets, shaded pink or brown. In the population of one and a third million, men in European dress mingle with Arabs in red fezzes and flowing robes, white-gowned Sudanese from the interior and an occasional veiled woman with a baby astride her shoulders.

Much Food Was Wasted

Sixty years or more ago, the flour mills in Minneapolis dumped wheat bran into the Mississippi river because nobody wanted to buy it, according to Larry Wherry, in the Golden Anniversary of Scientific Feeding. Cottonseed meal was used as a fertilizer, if used at all. Most of the linseed meal was shipped to Europe. Soybeans were known only in the Orient. Large milk companies did not permit the feeding of gluten feed to dairy cows, and tankage was almost unknown. But men of vision realized that a new era in poultry and livestock production could be built on the efficient utilization of these precious proteins that were wasted in an earlier day. So it was that the golden age of better feeding began, an age that has brought millions of dollars of increased income to American farmers, better standards of health and living to city and country folks alike.

Texas Becomes a State

The flag of the United States replaced the Lone Star banner over the capitol at Austin, Tex., February 19, 1846, with the inauguration of J. Pinckney Henderson, the first governor. The principal events of Henderson's administration centered about the Mexican war. Mexico never had relinquished its claim to Texas, although internal dissension in that republic had prevented it from military efforts to resubjugate the territory north of the Rio Grande, other than the two invasions in March and September of 1842. Shortly after annexation of Texas, Mexico brought the issue to a crisis by breaking off diplomatic relations with the United States.

Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Bedford who have visited the past three weeks in Olney, Seymour and Megargel with their children, have returned home.

Tax Payments Consume

Large Portion of Income

The average American spends three and three-quarters months out of the year working for the government. This corresponds to the money taken out of each dollar by federal, state and local governments, according to the Foundation for Economic Education. This amount is equal to the consumer's total food, housing and household expenses.

Only about one-third of the amount taken by government is conspicuous as direct personal taxes, such as income taxes and property taxes. The other two thirds is mostly in forms concealed from view, attached to items and services bought from private producers.

Out of the 23 cents of the average consumer's income dollar that is paid for food, only 18 cents goes to private producers for the jobs they have done in producing it and in making it available in the store and in the restaurant. The five cent difference is the amount of taxes, added in one way or another to the price as a charge for the expense of government.

Improvements Advocated

For Civil Service System

With more than five million public employees and a payroll annually of more than 11 billion dollars, the problem of proper administration of government personnel commands immediate public attention, according to the annual report of National Civil Service League.

The report states that domination of the political machines through control over the civil service commissions "still remains one of the most difficult obstacles to objective application of the merit system," and advocates placing responsibility for administration of state and local merit systems in an experienced personnel manager, which it believes is preferable to the traditional full-time paid and generally politically selected by-partisan commission.

The league advocated higher salary ceilings for responsible executive and administrative posts in the public service, and suggests adequate grievance machinery for handling public employee relationships in justice to those in the civil service and to protect the public, which depends upon uninterrupted service for its essential needs.
