JOHNSON GRAIN CO. INVESTIGATED

Police accompany state officials to Iowa Park office.

Local speculators doubt Johnson dead

Businessmen who are closely following the news of the disappearance of Johnson are a little confused by what the press reports.

"This is Johnson's last will and testament," said one of the men who has been following the case closely. "We have been trying to contact him since Monday, but he has not returned our calls." Another speculator added, "Johnson has always been a quiet business man, but we have never heard of anything like this before." A third said, "I have known Johnson for years, and he is not the type to disappear without a trace." The speculation about Johnson's disappearance has led to a flurry of activity in the business community, with many trying to come up with theories as to what may have happened.

B. Lewis Simmons, a local businessman, said, "Johnson was a respected member of our community, and we are all deeply concerned about his disappearance. We hope that the authorities will be able to find him soon and bring him back home safely." Simmons expressed his concern for Johnson's family, who are also deeply affected by the news.

George Sadberry, another businessman in the area, added, "We were all shocked when we heard the news. Johnson was a good businessman, and we know he would not have done anything to hurt anyone. We hope that he is just lost, and we hope to hear from him soon." Sadberry emphasized the importance of keeping an open mind and not jumping to conclusions.

The authorities have launched a wide-scale search for Johnson, and many agencies are working closely together to find him. The police have organized a team of investigators, and they are working day and night to find Johnson. The FBI and the Secret Service are also on the case, and they have joined in the search.

In the meantime, the business community is continuing to operate as usual, while at the same time, the news of Johnson's disappearance has sparked a great deal of concern and worry.

Investigations launched following death report

The Wichita Falls News-Journal reported that the Johnson Grain Co., located in Iowa Park, Texas, has come under suspicion after the disappearance of its president, Robert Johnson. The report states that a number of businesses and individuals have received letters from Johnson, claiming that he was going to make large donations to their organizations. These letters have never been delivered, and many are suspicious about the situation.

Johnson's family and associates have expressed concern about his disappearance, and they are actively involved in the search efforts. A reward has been offered for information leading to Johnson's whereabouts.

Meanwhile, the Johnson Grain Co. has been busy with its operations, and it has been reported that the company has not paid its bills or submitted its taxes for several months. The company has also been involved in legal disputes with several businesses and individuals.

The Wichita Falls News-Journal's story has led to a flurry of activity in the area, with many people expressing concern for Johnson's welfare. The business community is working closely with the authorities to find Johnson, and they have formed a task force to coordinate the search efforts.

Hartmann-Ratliffs vow recited on New Year's Eve

On several New Year's Eves, marital rites of many different denominations were performed in the Santa Sarah Kay Hartmann-Gruber and Carter Joe Ratliff. The ceremony took place in the Sacred Heart Catholic Church in Wichita Falls. The marriage ceremony was performed by Father Richard Judge, pastor of Sacred Heart Catholic Church in Wichita Falls.

Father Richard Judge, the officiant, read the nuptial rites of the couple. The ceremony was performed in the traditional manner with the bride and groom standing at the altar, facing each other. The officiant recited the marriage vows, and the couple was pronounced husband and wife.

The ceremony was followed by a reception at a nearby hotel. The newlyweds and their guests enjoyed a meal and danced the night away.

The wedding was a joyous occasion, and the couple was very happy to start a new chapter in their lives together.

COOK OF THE WEEK

Two of the recipes in the Cook of the Week feature for the first issue of the Leader will take on added interest because they are "stirrings from the Philippines" and were acquired by Frances (Mrs. E.M. "Sang") Boone during the eight years that she and her husband were missionaries to the natives of the Philippines.

Mrs. Boone, the former Mrs. William Lee McDonald, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William McDonald, and Mrs. Boone, son of Mrs. Libya McDonald now residing in Wichita Falls, and the late Robert L. Boone, both hold calls to be missionaries after their two daughters were grown. They became associated with New Tribes Mission and definitely launched out for faith because they were called to the ministry. They were sent to the very primitive tribe and lived in the most primitive conditions that the tribemen did.

During the eight years, they had only one church. In 1964 the Boone family, the Kalangib tribe had advanced to the point that they could carry on with the church work, so they returned to Iowa Park. They have two daughters, Mrs. Betty Lee and Mrs. Nancy Marjorie (Mrs. Charles). Mrs. Lee, who works in the American Missionary Fellowship during the week, and Mrs. Nancy, who is a home economist, are both active in the church. They have no grandchildren.

The letter was published in the January 16, 2017, issue of the Iowa Park Leader. The article was written by Philadelphia-based journalist, who has been covering education issues in the state for several years. The article was published under the byline of "Philadelphia-based Journalist."
Dove season ends Jan. 16

Although a winter cold front brought much-needed snow to the area recently, the dove hunter, not the snow, is the winning element of the season. The dove season opened Sept. 15 and runs through Feb. 12. Dove hunters are encouraged to be cautious in their hunting efforts due to the probabilistic nature of the birds. The hunting season ends on Jan. 16.
