Beverly Kouri Loves the Stage for Itself

Beryl McPherson, Wichita Falls Times arts editor, has written a laudatory article featuring Mrs. Phil Kouri. It was published in the Sunday Magazine section for Jan. 2, and the Herald is happy to have permission to reprint the article. Printed under the heading "Of Arts & Artists," the piece reads substantially as follows:

On Jan. 14 the Backdoor Players will present "The Lion in Winter" to open its spring season.

Beverly Kouri will play Eleanor of Aquitaine, queen of England and France, wife of King Henry II of England, a role which won an Academy Award for Katherine Hepburn recently.

Her mother Elma Barker works in the retail advertising department of the Times Publishing Co.

Beverly was born in Olney, and as her father was an oilfield worker, she attended nearly every elementary school in Wichita Falls. She attended WFSH briefly, but most of her high school years were spent in Iowa Park.

At the age of 12 Beverly was doing pantomimes before civic organizations, clubs and churches By the time she was 15 she felt like a professional, and she walked into the old KWFT radio studios in the basement of the Kemp Hotel and asked Doc Warren for a job Television was three months old here and Doc had a daily variety show which came on just before the news.
