Armstrong abduction case continues to attract large crowds. The proceedings to-day were rather tame, until a discussion arose between the lawyers for the defense and for the crown with regard to a certain portion of the evidence of the witness Mrs. Broughton, in which the conversation that passed between Mrs. Broughton and Mrs. Armstrong at the time of the negotiations for the services of Eliza, as testified to by the former, was questionod. Reference was finally made to the Judge's short-hand notes. It was found that, notwithstanding the fact that Mrs. Broughton, at one time during yesterday's proceedings, testified that Mrs. Armstrong had never asked her about Mrs. Jarrett's character, later on she had declared, in course of her evidence, that Mrs. Armstrong said she would never let her daughter become an inmate of an assignation house. The Judge's notes were fully confirmed in this respect by those of the jury. The most startling testimony in to day's proceedings in the Armstrong abduction case was that given by Dr. Smith, of Harley street, one of the crown witnesses. He testified that he chloroformed and examined the girl Eliza and certified to her virginity at the request of Mr. Stead, of the Pall Mall Gazette, and Mr. Bromwell Booth, brother of Gen. Booth, of the Salvation Army. BALTIMORE, Oct. 27.-The tragic story telegraphed from Boston about an alleged plot to take the life of a young girl who had been married to the son of a well-known gentle man of this city has excited the greatest interest in Baltimore society, especially since the name of the proprietor of the St. James Hotel, Mr. A. L. Mellen, has been linked, though indirectly, by an afternoon paper with it. It is known that Edward Lester Mellen, the son and only child of the St. James Hotel son and only child of the St. James Hotel proprietor, contracted a marriage with one of the hotel chamber-maids, named Mary Somers, much to the disgust of his father, and people are speculating upon the possi-bility of this family being concerned in the Boston sensation.

and hope for the future.

INTERVIEW WITH MELLEN.

A United Press representative had an interview with young Mr. Mellen to-night with regard to the affair. He said that the whole matter was viewed by himself and his friends as a joke, so far as he was concerned. That there was no trouble between his father and himself, and that the rela-tions between his wife and his parents were now amicable and pleasant, although at first there was perhaps some little feeling. In reply to a question, Mr. Mellen stated that his father and mother left Baltimore eight days ago, visiting Cambridge, Mass., where they have relatives, also Boston and New York. They were expected home to-night at 9 o'clock, but not having arrived. he concluded that they were stopping in Philadelphia to-night. Mr. Mellen says he does not know Mrs. Emma Coolidge, of Boston, and never heard of her before. He scouts the idea that attempts were made to poison his wife. He admits that his wife was ill for several weeks at the Stockton Hotel, which was managed by his father, at Cape May, last summer, but claims that it was due to perfectly natural causes. He was married two years ago, he says, but does not rememhis father and himself, and that the relatwo years ago, he says, but does not remem ber the date.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 27 .- This forenoon the District Court again convened in the manlamus case of the Republican candidates for State Senator to compel the county re turning board to give them certificates of election instead of their Democratic oppo nents. The motion of the returning board to compel the Republican candidates make their petition more defito make their petition more definition and certain, argued yesterday, was decided this morning, Judge Cox delivering the opinion of the court in substance that the petitions should be more explicit and state what their grievances are. The case then went over until to-morrow BOSTON'S NEW COLLECTOR.

James D. Fish, ex-president of the Marine Bank, was on the witness stand nearly all day testifying as to the plundering of the Marine Bank and Gen. Grant. An important fact brought out was that at the time the alleged fraudulent check for $71,800 on the First National Bank was deposited in the Marine Bank, Ward had only $2200 in the former institution. That Grant & Ward's account at the Marine Bank was overdrawn $22,545 on the evening of May 3. 1884, was another important part of the testimony. Mr. Fish identified a large number of letters that passed between himself and Ward. In his replies to the questions he spoke in an emphatic and positive manner that appeared to carry weight and aroused not a little sympathy. His testimony as to the appeared to carry weight and aroused not a little sympathy. His testimony as to the Marine Bank's strained condition preceding the failure was another important part of his examination to-day. Every movement of the witness was watched by the specta-tors with intense interest. When, as on several occasions, his anger was aroused at questions put to him by the counsel for the defense it was plain that public sympathy was with him, and when in reply to the queston what his occupation was he spoke up sharply and defantly, 'a convict,'' 'a convict,'' there was a sensation throughout the room.

throughout the room. The day was important in the case as weaving more closely about Ward the net which is fast closing upon him. The exami-nation for the people was conducted by As-sistant District Attorneys Nicoll and Purdy. In the cross-examination Gen. Tracey con-ducted the case for Ward.

AN ATTORNEY REBUKED.

During Fish's examination Mr. Cockran made a reflection upon the witness which evoked an immediate rebuke from Judge Barrett. The Judge said that the witnes was entitled to the full protection of the court, no matter what his position was. Gen. Tracey, just before recess, asked the question, "Mr. Fish, where do you reside?" "In State prison."

"I mean your temporary residence." "Murray Hill Hotel." The witness said an Assistant District At-torney had called on him at the hotel and had discussed the case with him.

FISH PARALYZES WARD.

In the course of his examination Fish tes tified that the last time he saw Ward was three or four days after the failure. He said: "Ward came to me and wanted to make an explanation about the failure, and said that he could not help it. I said to him that by his treachery and deception he had ruined deception me, my family and the bank, and the reputation I had been building up for years. J raised a chair over his head and I said that if he was not such a disgraceful, sneaking villain I'd kill him on the spot."

Mr. Nicol-"What did Ward do?" Mr. Fish-"He crouched on the floor like a whipped puppy and begged me to spare his life. I used the strongest language I could. He was crouched then even as he sits now. I got in too, and one of them grabbed me and ordered me to shell out that $50 the miner at Muscogee told them about. I told them I didn't have it and that they could search me. They both drew pistols on me and took off my cost and kept that, and laid my papers on the outside of the crib after they had securely propped the door. My hands are small and I managed to get them through a crack and open the door. I got out and came down town. I then left for Sherman and found McKay and Smith hanging around the depot. I telephoned for police and they came in a short time, and McKay and Smith were arrested and put in jail. FORT WORTH, Oct. 27.-A. F. Lazier, who was arrested at Gainesville last August as he was about to be married, and brought to Fort Worth on the charge of obtaining money on false pretenses, was released to-day and the case against him dismissed by County Attorney Bowlin. Lazier celebrated the event by getting married this afternoon to Miss Annie L. Hellen, the Rev. R. N. Tinnon, pastor of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church performing the ceremony. Miss Hellen is the lady from whom Lazier was divorced about eight years ago. This is not the same lady he was to have married in Gainesville. A newspaper of this city had much to say concerning Lazier at the time of his arrest, and it is said that he has demanded a full retraction, and in the event of refusal, will institute proceedings against it.

In others it will be something of a reduction. J. H. Mar-tindale has agreed to the terms of the strikers, and as he has been paying higher prices than any other shop in the city, he will be the gainer.

MARRIAGE LICENSES. The following marriage licenses

Mrs. D. S. Boland, daughter-in-law of a leading Methodist clergyman, and who has just been discharged from Stroch's smallpox hospital, is published here to-day, and discloses a revolting state of affairs in that institution. The doctors gave her little personal attention, and very little nursing is done except by convalescent patients. The cries of patients for water are often heartrending, and only met by the response to rending, and only met by the response to "shut up." The stench is revolting, and there is no deodorising. No attention is ever given to those sent to the black small-pox ward. The cries that come from that place are awful. She mentions a case in which a doctor, when entreated, would give no relief to a patient, and she died unat-tended. The place is said to be inflected with vermin. A committee of doctors have inspected the hospital, which will probably be burned, and all patients removed to the new Mount Royal Hospital.

Mallory Strike in Statu Quo-The Deep Water Council Meeting-Local Matters. Special to The News.

GALVESTON, Oct. 27.-This morning the joint committee of the Knights of Labor and the striking 'longshoremen waited on Capt. Sawyer, agent of the Mallory Line, for a final answer on the question of their return to work on the half time basis, the forces to be equally divided alternately between white and colored labor, one ship each a week. It will be remembered that when the committee previously re ported to Capt. Sawyer he stated that he would refer the matter to Messrs. Mallory. This was done and the answer made to the committee through Capt. Sawyer was that the colored laborers would be continued for the present, until a full test of their capability was decided, and with the object in view things would remain unchanged for the time being.

AWARDED DAMAGES.

The District Court has been engaged since last Friday with the case of John Mc-Gowan against the Gulf, Colorado and Santa Fe Railway, for $10,000 damages for injuries sustained by plaintiff by an accident which occurred on the defendant road in the spring of 1884. The case at the last term of court resulted in a mistrial, the jury failing to agree, and the case on the present trial went to the jury about dark to-night. At 10:30 o'clock they returned a verdict assessing the damages at $1000 actual damages.

DEEP WATER DELIBERATIONS.

The City Council met as a committee of the whole to-night to consider several plans and propositions for furnishing Galveston a fresh water supply. One plan was that of Engineer Peeler, who claims to be backed by foreign capital, and proposes to excavate a channel through the western portion of the city, 80 feet deep and 300 feet wide, and extend it three miles and a half into the gulf to deep water, thus making an inland harbor up on the Strand. He claims this work can be done for $5,000,000, and says he has ample backing to consummate it. Another propo-sition was submitted from ex-City Engi-neer Hartrick to furnish deep water on the jetty plan, utilizing the government jetty already built. This plan will cost about $55-500,000, and, should it be approved, it will be submitted to Congress for approval and ac-ceptance by the government. A letter was also read from the Texas representative of the eminent Prinsian engineer. Roemer, asking that Maj. Roemer be considered in the field for the proposed work of furnish-ing deep water for Galveston, but outlining no definite plan. No action has been taken on any of the propositions further than reading and discussing them. by foreign capital, and proposes to excavate

AUSTIN, Oct. 27.-The Governor left for San Antonio to-day. Before leaving he finished a letter to R. L. Chalk, of Belton, in reply to the petition of Chalk for the pardon of one Reynolds. The Governor says: "You admit that this man is now a fugitive, having made his escape. You say he is half fed, poorly clothed and cruelly treated, and from your letter I take it you get your information from the convict himself. You also say that he prefers being inside the walls. It is hardly necessary for me to tell you that I know the main statesments as to his clothing, treatment and food are untrue. I have from the first month of my administration kept myself fully advised of the penitentiary management, and I know further that the present board of managers are personally conversant with all these matters. There is not a prison in America where the convicts are more humanely treated, or better fed and clothed. You ask me to pardon him, or give assurance of future treatment, and he will return. I can do neither. I have uniformally refused to negotiate with any one who is defying the law. No matter what his case may be, he must submit to the law and return to prison before I hear his case at all.

THE COODLEDODGER PAPERS.

How Mrs. Coodledodger Indulges in a Roller Skate-Coodledodger Philosophical.

Mrs. Coodledodger got stuck on the roller skating craze. She came home yesterday afternoon with a pair of skates slung across her arm, and her face was fairly beaming with smiles, as affable as a cream cheese with skippers in it.

"Look here, dear, what a nice present I bought myself," she remarked to her side partner as she held the implements up to his gaze. "Ain't they just the thing?"

"What do you want with that outfit, pigeon?"

"Why, I'm going to learn to skate." "You are; what put that notion in your head?"

"Well, I just stopped in the skating rink with Mrs. Skimkenhanken, and there was a young lady there cutting all kinds of figures on the skates, and she moved and acted as gracefully as a swan in water. I'm going to do that, dear, for I think skating produces an easy and graceful carriage in a lady."

"You do?"

"Yes, I do." "And you are going to hit it a lick?"

"That's what I'm going to do." "And you think it will lend you an easy movement and a graceful carriage?"

"That's just what it will." "All right, pet, let's yank up the dining room carpet, and then you can sail right in I'm willing to encourage anything that will put a little gracefulness in that hippopotamus form of yours. Come, let's see you get to work.'

The carpet was removed from the dining room, and Mrs. Coodledodger adjusted the rollers upon her ham-like feet, and Coodle the circus opened. When Mrs. Coodledodger went to straighten herself her feet shot from under her in a horizontral posi tiou, and the noble dame sat down on the floor with such grace and force as to shake the Coodledodger mansion from domesto center.

I had some hope of getting some symmetry to your figure and have a woman to be proud of."

'Coodledodger!" exclaimed the vivacious "Coodledodger!" exclaimed the vivacious dame, "don't you sit there laughing and making fun at me. Don't you dare! I'll knock you in the head with one of these skates. You needn't think I'm a fool for you to make a laughing stock out of, you infernal old—"

Coodledodger let fall one of his mild, sarcastic smiles, and slid silently and se-renely into the kitchen and sojourned be-hind the woodpile to quietly smoke his pipe and muse and meditate upon the vanities of this wicked world. Mrs. Coodledodger doesn't skate any more. That pair of skates now hang in the dark and solemn recess of the cellar stairs like a ghost of a departed glory. Coodledodger looks at them occasionally and smiles, but he daren't say anything.

A Family of Hermits. Cleveland Leader.

A remarkable case of hermitage was discovered to-day by the health officers. In an unpretentious residence on Bleecker street there has resided for a number of years a family by the name of Figee. The blnds have always been securely fastened, and, as the neighbors have never seen any of the inmates, no one knew of what the family consisted. It was thought, however, that only the man and his wise were inhabitants of the place. The manifest seclusion of the family occasioned the greatest interest in the neighborhood, and a number of plans were laid to compel the man or his wife to show themselves. Every plan was fruitless, and not a person in the neighborhood ever saw the family or presence of either. A. number of philanthropic citizens have called at the residence to inquire if the inmates did not desire some aid. In every instance they were answered by a voice proceeding through a hole in the door, thanking them,, but declining assistance.

Inroligh a hole in the door, thanking them, but declining assistance. To-day the health officers called, and they were refused admittance. They stated that they were compelled to look into the sani-tary condition of the house. After a great deal of hesitation the door was opened. The officers entered a large room, well fur-nished, the only light entering through the door, which had been left open. The her-mit, who stood before them, appeared to be a man about 45 years of age, of pleasant address and dressed in a neat suit of clothes. Upon entering the next room the officers discovered a mother, surrounded by seven children, the oldest a boy about 15 pears of age. They were scattered in various parts of the room and huddled together like freightened sheep when the officers entered. The mother was all dressed, and gave very intelligent answers to all the questions. asked.

Mrs. Coodledodger once more landed with tremendous force on the tuberosity of the ischium. "Now, pigeon, if that isn't grace personi-fied, I don't know what is," exclaimed Cood-ledodger in a consoling tone of voice, as he hid a diabolical smile with his hand. Come, dear, try it again! You'll move as grace-ful as a princess by the time you try these-capers a few more times. Come!" "Oh, my dear!" exclaimed the matured matron sorrowfully.

"What's the matter, pet?" "My corsets have given away." "Brace yourself with a salt sack and sail

She clinched her fists, gritted her teeth, pressed her lips together firm and hard, and made a wicked, a vicious strike for success. But alas! it was no go. She spun around several times like a humming top, made several double back action movements and sidewheel glides towards the middle of the room, and both feet began to move outward in rapid succession that caused the skates to click, click, click, with a musical sound, and once more Mrs. Coodledodger landed on the floor with a dull thud that caused her to wrinkle her face and exclaim: "Oh, my!"

"What! quit already, now that you are on the brink of success. Come on now!"
"No, I don't want to learn how to skate.
I've bursted all my clothes off, and bruised my cheeks all up, and now I'm going to quit."
"Oh, pshaw !" exclaimed Coodledodger.
Where are you going to get your graceful carriage from if you don't learn to skate?
What will become of your easy movement?

THE New York Tribune has to doctor a speech made by Evarts at Buffalo the other day. He said; "Gov. Cleveland was made President by the efforts of the better part of the Democratic party, aided by, we will say, an excellent part of the Republican party." The Tribune cuts out the latter cause. It is not willing to publish a measured appreciation of men who are now working with it. That is one way of making newspaper reports.

THE Republican candidate for Sheriff of Warren County, Miss., has withdrawn from the canvass, leaving the field entirely to the Democrats. The canvass had been very heated and there were fears of rioting and bloodshed which, it is said, is happily averted by the retiracy of the objectionable candidate, who was running for a third term in spite of the adverse criticism of his official record.

THE end of the campaign in Ohio did not close the war between Halstead and Mc-Lean. In a recent issue of his paper McLean thus pays his compliments to his esteemed contemporary:

In response to the Commercial-Gazette of yesterday and other days, we remark that no human being who knows Murat Halstead be-ieves him to be an honest man. On the con-trary, every person who has intimate knowl-edge of him knows him to be a traducer and ying rascal, and nobody who has had business relation with him would believe him under nath.

The following day Mr. Halstead, in his paper, makes the gentle reference to Mc-Lean:

STATE PRESS.

What the Interior Papers Say. The Tyler Democrat and Reporter remarks:

The Gatesville Advance predicts that there will be no GALVESTON NEWS within a twelve-month. The new girl will break the old lady to a certainty.

No. There is no strife in the family. When Abraham and Lot found the land between Beth-el and Hai too little for both, Abraham said to Lot, Let there be no strife between thee and me. Is not the whole land before thee? And Lot lifted up his eyes and beheld all the plain of Jordan and saw that it was like a garden, like the land of Egypt as you come inro Zoar. Lot cast his lot in the new land and pitched his tent toward Sodom, where the wicked men dwelt. And so the twin brothers of THE NEWS make an equitable division of the great State of Texas and keep peace in the family.

The Glen Rose Citizens says:

THE DALLAS MORNING NEWS is indeed a THE DALLAS BOUNDED TO UNDER THE DALLAS BOUNDED.

That is the way to tell it. THE NEWS is like John W. Demcy, when he was offended at being elected vice president, instead of president, of a Democratic State Convention, and rejected the honor with scorn, saying he would play second fiddle to no one. THE NEWS is as courageous as the giaour, who headed his band by always daring to be first. It is a pioneer in Texas journalism, and naturally strives to keep the place in which it started. So far it is flattered with the credit of having done so, though it has been continually cautioned to take a slower pace and fewer risks. It generally sees its way ahead, and does not take leaps in the dark. Thus far it has taken no step backward.

The Gonzales Inquirer says:

The Gonzales Inquirer says: A party who has been traveling over Goliad, Bee, San Patricio and Live Oak Counties writes that he finds many vacant residences and little towns almost deserted. These residences have belonged to small farmers and men with little bunches of stock, and larger stock owners have bought them out. Jones at once suspicioned that this so-celled detection was too intimate with the Jones at once suspicioned that this so-called detective was too intimate with the case, and was none other than J. T. Herndon, who has been a refugee since 1875, having forfeited his bond in 1876. He wrote to the postmaster at Tishmingo, inclosing John Jones' letter; also one to John Jones; and instructed the postmaster to deliver the letter if John Jones was all right; if not to put the whole matter in the hands of the Sheriff. Answer came back in due time that John Jones was a mith, but that Hern-don was there. A requisition was secured, and the Sheriff arrested Herndon and de-livered him to Sheriff Jones in Denison, who returned with him Wednesday. The Bosque County Blade discusses the

The Bosque County Blade discusses the approaching election for United States Senator, and says:

Mr. Maxey received honors and emolu-ments at the hands of a Republican Senate, such as during so notable a period of parti-san strife was never before given and ac-cepted by a Southern and Democratic Senasan strife was never before given and ac-cepted by a Southern and Democratic Sena-tor. He served one term as chairman of the postoffice committee, a position second to none within the gift of the Senate in in-fluence and national importance. He had for his brother-in-law, Mr. W. E. Smith, the lucrative office of Inspector of Postoffices for the State of Texas. His public services, in fact, have characterized him more as a laborious worker than as a man of brilliant forensic talents. So we have no great speeches of his by which a record is given to guide us in our choice at this time. If, however, such a thing is possible and Mr. Maxey in his re-election could give Texas a guarantee that he could control the same influence hereto-forc exercised with his Republican col-leagues, and could secure a position by which he could undo the scandalous and wholesale robbery as was perpetrated by the star route thieves during the time he was chairman of the postoffice committee of the United States Senate, Texas could well af-ford to continue to honor him in the future as in the past as a matter of expediency and of State pride in the past as a matter of expediency and of State pride

The Denton Monitor says:

A PROVISIONAL POLICY.

The New York Commercial Bulletin reminds the monometallists that it is not probable that the administration can or will maintain a policy in opposition to Congress. Its phraseology shows its monometallist leaning, but its statement contains some broad admissions. The following shows a juster consideration of the situation than is commonly found in the monometallist papers:

te advocates of silver coinage will be likely The advocates of silver coinage will be likely to charge that the President has already vir-tually nullified acts of Congress by the policy purposed with regard to silver, and it will be natural for the President and Secretary of the Treasury to reply that the steps hitherto taken have been in the belief that Congress, when in session, would supply a more adequate and appropriate remedy. If, after a bitter discus-sion, and possibly a prolonged contest in both Houses, Congress should refuse to repeal or to satisfactorily modify the coinage act, it may be doubted whether the President would then ted disposed, even if it were possible, to pre-vent the use of silver in payments for years to come by his construction of existing laws. The plain truth is that the laws were passed with the deliberate intent to thrust silver into cir-culation, and to require its general use on of alterns with cold. The fact that such use the deliberate intent to thrust silver into cir-culation, and to require its general use on equal terms with gold. The fact that such use was impossible was not at the time believed by Congress, and, it may be added, is not now be-lieved by most of those in Congress who ad-vocate a continuance of the coinage. The in-tent of the law undoubtedly was to bring about precisely that state of things which the policy of the President and Secretary of the Treasury has thus far avoided.

THE NEWS has heretofore pointed out that an executive sensible of the just authority of Congress must naturally limit effect, but a genuine resolution to be executed first of all, perhaps, by paying out a quantity of silver for salaries and mileage s a reminder that the administration means business.

a temperate discussion and a generous allowance of his good motives. Is it not reasonable, also, to anticipate that in laying the subject before Congress the President will frankly intimate that his treasury policy has been provisional, and that, in looking to Congress for a decision as to whether the coinage shall be continued, he will take an affirmative decision as implying all that the Bulletin and the public generally understand to be the intent of the law, and will act accordingly, by paying out silver, recommending at the same time such tax reform that this course may not lead to an accumulation of any other sort of money in the treasury? Doubtless the President's judgment and tact will lead him to present this matter so that Congress will feel that it is not deciding upon a policy of terms, but a policy of action. The alternative of suspension of coinage or actual and freer use of silver will be so far favorable to the gold men that whatever fear there may be of silver will thus be brought to bear upon the congressmen and induce them to face the responsibility and feel that it is immediate.

Hence it seems that the plain way of calling for a decision on the main question, to take effect in action as an inevitable sequence, is precisely the policy that will commend itself to President Cleveland's mind. He is so constituted as to seek the resolution of difficulties, the termination of suspense and the lodgment of responsibilities where they belong. Had there been a Democratic President in office when the silver coinage law was passed it is not probable that the accumulation would have been fostered. Republicans controlled matters for several years and hoarded coin, especially silver, and Mr.

Cleveland virtually came into office with a doubt as to the popular desire regarding a policy which suspended to some extent the intent of the law, but which had been maintained for such a length of time that it might be a matter of honest difference of opinion whether he ought then to wait for Congress or not. So he has waited, and the silver men have no occasion to be severe against the President for waiting.

They will be entirely relieved of apprehension and any antagonism be disarmed by his submission of the whole matter in a candid manner; and with this additional basis of confidence they may feel sure that if the President says silver coinage means silver payments it will be no monkeying pretense, to be withdrawn if it fails of

AN ISOPOLITICAL LINE.

An esteemed contemporary-the Fort Worth Gazette-apparently though strangely bent upon creating sectional jealousies scarcely ever omits an opportunity to pass without claiming all preference and all consideration for what it terms North Texas. and enlarging upon the deficiencies and demerits of other sections. Upon being urged to mark the line that divides North Texas from South Texas, that paper signified that probably the city of Waco could be taken as a conspicuous monument to indicate the line between the sections. Controversy upon this subject is unprofitable except to the politicians, many of whom base their claims for consideration upon the favor which it is assumed that the mere place of a person's residence somehow demands of the denizens of other localities. Nothing is more absurd, and yet in a political campaign some arrogated advantage of residence is usually the first and most highly vaunted qualification of the candidate. This sectional discussion is now renewed with a vehemence indicating that the politicians are opening the campaign prematurely. The line is drawn at or below Waco. When formerly the sectional question was between the east and west, Waco was also on the dividing line. There was then East Waco and West Waco, as now there should be North Waco and South Waco. It appears that the politicians intend to make that favored city the hub of the State, the point of intersection of the surface lines dividing the sections. From Waco east, west, north and south may be selected candates for all the offices. This is comfortable for Waco, a city that abounds in good material for filling the offices. Senator Coke is the western Senator, his residence being in West Waco. while General Ross may aspire to be the North Texas Governor by like token as to residence in the hub. Why a line running east and west through Waco should divide Texas fairly north and south is not understood. It leaves a preponderance of population and taxable values south of the line, though with a larger Democratic vote north of the line. In order to divide the State fairly as to area and taxable values, the line would have to be dropped down to near the border of Falls County. It is not apparent that such a line would materially increase the number of available candidates. Why then was Waco things alone. He represents the monoposelected? If the line is to be established to divide equally the Democratic vote of the and want to be let alone in the possession ng a great a money from the North to be used in the Virginia campaign. The manufacturers consider it to their interest to keep him in the Senate and are willing to pay for his seat. The opportunity is presented him to prepare himself for an easy life hereafter, even if he is defeated.

THE colored citizens of Indianapolis have held an indignation meeting, at which they protested against the wholesale slaughter of their people by the Hoosiers. Two were killed within two days at Indianapolis, one of them being shot down in the courthouse, where he was being tried. Had this protest gone up from the South the old shirt would fairly ooze with blood and the ignorant Northern voter would be induced to vote the Republican ticket. The time has come for the South to enter its solemn protest against the discrimination made by the Northern people in selecting the colored man for targets.

THE Queen has been appealed to in behalf of Riel. In all probability she will act in the matter just as if Rochefort in his defense of the doomed man had not assailed her.

SPAIN has not yet determined whether or not she will get the best of that Caroline Islands affair. As a consequence she broods over it and pouts.

BY THE time Foraker gets through with New York he will be too hoarse for Virginia. In fact it is generally believed that he and Sherman never intended to go to that State. Their only stock in trade is vituperation and misrepresentation of the South, and that would hardly win, even among the old rebels lately brought into the Republican fold.

A CASUAL glance at our esteemed Republican contemporaries reveals the fact that the "treason-stained saddle" of Robert E. Lee is running for Governor of Virginia.

Could the New York Sun inform an anxious public if Ben Butler is still a good man, and if his fighting weight is still more than 200 pounds?

Says the Philadelphia Record:

One of the funny things of the New York campaign is to find a leading antimonopolist declaring against Mr. Davenport because that gentleman believes that all trades and busi-nesses will find their own level if left alone, and for Mr. Hill, because the Governor would have the State interfere everywhere. Mr. Hill's Democracy, so far as matters of political economy are concerned. is that of Messrs. Randall and Kelley.

There is something more grave than funny at the bottom of this confusion. THE New York papers, Democratic and Republican alike, are urging registration, and from the tones in which they beg that this be done neither side seems over confident of winning.

MR. CLEVELAND'S positive announcement, in the shape of a thousand dollar check, that he favors the election of the Democratic ticket in New York, coupled with the expressions of Mr. Conkling, ought to give the State to the Democrats. Still, it must be remembered that there were not 2000 votes difference at the last election, and wise newspapers on either side will not crow till some time after all the returns are in.

The righteous are all right already. Sinners are the lost sheep that need looking after. The News Boy is not one of the stray sheep. It says:

If joining the church, and then never attending and neglecting the rules, and not living up to what the church teaches, will carry a man to heaven, why, we are in, but we don't believe in that kind of religion, but lots of people in Jasper do.

The Austin Citizen (colored man's paper) says:

The future destiny of our people rests en-tirely in their own hands. Where educa-tion is a great factor in our onward march, good morals should be the objective point. The true inwardness of sterling manhood and pure womanbood shows an exterior that must merit respect. Wealth may for-tify us to brave constant demands of neces tify us to brave constant demands of neces-sity, education may disperse the clouds of barbarous ignorance, but moral worth alone decides the permanency of all our in-stitutions. Not until our young men show that honesty and reliability are the compon-ent parts of their characters, and our young women love virtue and faithfulness, will our race ultimately reach the longed-for goal of social and moral aggrandisement and feel that they are deserving the respect of all mankind. Our people have a bright future before them, but the road is stony and the successful cultivation of good morals are the avenues that lead to it. Re-ligion, moral philosophy and ethics are esligion, moral philosophy and ethics are es-sentially the governing principles upon the basis of which the world must determine in-trinsic worth. Manhood and womanhood are purely the making of individual efforts. The Herald reports bears in the woods mean the old town of Son Augusting near the old town of San Augustine. The Limestone New Era says:

Every town along the line of the Texas and Pacific from Abilene westward is ex-pecting the Gulf, Colorado and Santa Fe ex-tension to split its streets wide open, and the land men are selling off all their surplus lots on the strength of the boom.

The Houston Herald tells the following snake story, which would be pronounced fabulous were there not many similar ones well authenticated and received as true by naturalists:

A gentleman stated to a Herald reporter this morning that while out hunting last Thursday, on the prairie near Cedar Bayou, he and his companions saw a jointed snake. He said that the snake was about three feet He said that the snake was about three feet in length and very small around the body. Upon seeing it he struck it with a stick, when the serpent became disjointed, flying into several pieces. Thinking that such conduct on the part of the snake was rather strange, he concluded to watch it. His patience was presently rewarded as the pieces commenced to asproach each other and finally become connected. After ad-justing his head and tail upon its body the snake deliberately crawled away.

RAILROAD RUMBLINGS.

A Traveler's Tale Told Between Two Meals.

Over the Kansas and Gulf Short Line-The All Narrow Gauge Tie that Binds St. Louis and Houston.

TYLER, Oct. 27.-THE NEWS correspondent has just returned from a trip over the entire length of the Kansas and Gulf Short Line Railway and to the town of Nacogdoches. Leaving here at 7:30 a.m. on the passenger train of the Kansas and Gulf Short Line, the stations of Bullard, Selman, Jacksonville, Rusk and Alto were passed, arriving at Wells, the present terminus for passenger travel on the road, at 12:30 p. m., the run of seventy-two and one-half miles having been made in five hours.

On that trip I heard more obscenity, more curses, oaths, witnessed more exhibi-tions of brutality, saw more knives brandished and heard more pistols shot off than I have ever seen, heard, or witnessed among the hundreds of cowboys I have been among on the prairies and ranches of Texas during my residence in the State. No Texas cowboy has ever yet descended so low in the scale of civilization as to play base ball at all, still more, to play it on Sunday." I was loudly applanded, and I will sell some Texas land in Cynthiana." OFFICIALS AT SHREVEPORT. Wells is still in the woods, though a considerable town has been "staked off," and before a great while there will occur a public sale of town lots there. When the conductor informs the passenger that he has arrived at Wells, the latter begins to examine the locality, and the information is verified by the discovery of the "hotel," the only edifice yet complete, which consists of rude pole shelter, under which an old negro furnishes the hungry traveler with a wholesome and palatable meal. Wells, however, is not to remain thus. Contractors are now on the ground erecting a depot building and will soon erect several store houses and dwellings. This prospective village is in Cherokee County, but is hardly a mile from the Angelina line. There is an abundance of fine timber-in fact a virgin forest of vast resources, consisting principally of long leaf pine and cypress, through which this road runs for a great distance.

At Lufkin, the Kansas and Gulf Short Line is about joining tracks with Bremond's Road, and within a week the only continuous line of narrow gauge from St. Louis to Houston will be completed. The last twenty miles of the road have been built by convict labor.

The fact that up to this time no accident of moment has occurred upon this line seems to be due to the road having been so skillfully and carefully constructed as to apparently assure immunity from these unfortunate and expensive occurrences. Even fortunate and expensive occurrences. Even now large shipments of cotton are being made from Tyler over this route, the cotton being conveyed over the short gap between. Wells and Lufkin by means of wagons. Considering the rapid and cheap transporta-tion which this narrow gauge system can furnish, the section it traverses, and the fact of its being independent of the pool, a heavy business for it seems assured. It has been repeatedly demonstrated that trains can make forty miles an hour on its track with perfect safety. From Lufkin, THE NEWS correspondent proceeded to the quaint old town of Nacog-doches. The natives marveled at the recent railroad facilities which enabled a man who had breakfasted at Tyler to eat supper there on the same day.

had breakfasted at Tyler to eat supper there on the same day. The principal curiosity of the place is the "Old Stone Fort," an old two story building, constructed of rough stone walls two feed thick, which, though it stands in a position to seriously mar the appearance of the town and to obstruct a street, the good people there seem to revere, though neither history nor tradition tells them when or for what purpose it was built, nor whence came the huge stones out of which it is constructed. It seems to have been used by the earliest settlers as a refuge from the raids of ma-rauders. rauders.

Progress of Grading and Possibilities of the Future, With Opinions as to the Best Breeds.

Major J. S. Grinnan, of Terrell, was ound by a NEWS reporter yesterday in the Live Stock Exchange, where all the cattle kings assemble in conference when they happen to be in Dallas. The Major was for many years engaged in the banking business in Galveston and New York, but believing that the raising of fine cattle was more valuable than a bank or a silver mine, he finally located in Kaufman County, where the grass is always knee-high in summer and the sun never dries up the springs. There he started in seven years ago by putting under a wire and plank fence 5000 acres, which he subdivided into nine wheat fields, in each of which he dug a large pond twenty-three feet deep to hold the water that flowed from never failing springs in the vicinity. The fencing of the property is thirty-five miles long, and the barns and general appliances for scientific stock raising are on a scale of perfection unequalled in the United States. The buildings are of neat design and fitted up with the view to comfort and cleanliness: the pathways and gates are laid off so as to afford the greatest possible facilities to water and pasture without unnecessary rampling, and the dairy, stables, etc., are fitted out with the latest improvements in furniture and machinery useful to the business. The herd consists of 1000 thoroughly graded short horns and Herefords, and the Major makes a specialty of raising fine Texas bulls. Throughout his experience his constant effort and final aim have been to advance Texas up to and beyond Kentucky in the raising of fine cattle, and in this he claims to have succeeded. Thinking that his experience might be use-Finishing that his experience might be use-ful in showing what can be done in Texas in the stock line a News reporter took oc-casion of his presence yesterday to call and interview him. After a slight interchange of courtesies the reporter proceeded to busi-ness, of which the following is the result: Reporter—What has been your fever ex-perience in fine stockbreedding ? Major Grinnan—I have never lost an ani-

Major Grinnan-I have never lost an ani-mal from fever. Reporter-How do you treat the disease? Major Grinnan-I maylsay that I do not treat my cattle at all. I had one fine bull very sick, and in going by a pond he fell into it and got well. I took the hint, and since then when any of my cattle took sick I have soused them in the water and they have recovered. I have no theory about the fever; all I know is that I cure it in the way I have related, and I am satisfied with the treatment. I have lost common cattle, but have been fortunate in never losing a full-blooded or graded animal. Reporter-Is it not your opinion that Texas raised fine bulls are less subject to disease than imported ones of the same species?

Major Grinnan-Of course it is, and it is Major Grinnan-Of course it is, and it is so with everything in the animal and vege-table kingdoms. The acclimated vine, beast or human being is better adapted to the peculiar conditions and circumstances of climate than are imported from a dif-ferent climate. The Hereford bull raised in Texas is, on the same principle, less sub-ject to disease and premature death than the one that is brought from the North or Europe. I have looked up Texas raised bulls of pure blood, for I value them at three times the price of the imported bulls. And this is not theoretical, for I have found by observation that about three out of every four imported bulls die.

by observation that about three out of every four imported bulls die. Reporter—Which breeds do you find best suited to your range? Major Grinnan—Well, I started out seven years ago at grading the best native cattle with the best bulls I could get, and my expe-rience satisfies me that Hereford cattle are the best adapted to Texas ranges. They are far superior to short horns or Holstein's as rustlers. In proof of this, I am now selling off all my shorthorn bulls. Reporter—How do you find Texas to com-pare with other States in the product of fine cattle?

Of course a fever that lasts several weeks is bound to pull the patient down; but a fever that only lasts a few days must be very violent to produce the impov-erished condition of the blood that dengue leaves behind. Hearne, the druggist, who happened

Mr. Hearne, the druggist, who happened to be present, here remarked that he knew of eight deaths in one day from dengue fever to have occurred at Marshall. Dr. Moseley-What is dengue? Well it is a hard question to answer. I find that when the system is in a state of health, but little if any treatment is neccessary. I consider it a fever which runs about thirty-six hours. it a fever which runs about thirty-six hours. In our climate I find that where the reduc-tion is not prominent on the surface there is a tendency to traumatic dysentery or at-tacks of the mucus membrane. Pepper, of the dengue, says it is a peculiar febrile dis-sease, characterized by a single paroxysm with or without remissions, severe pains and stiffness in the joints or muscles, a pe-culiar exanthematous eruption, and almost never terminating fatally. Hemorrhages from the nose and gums are occasionally observed, and Dr. Holliday records the occurrence of black vomit in two female children in the same family who had recovered from yellow fever. In observed, and Dr. Holiday records the occurrence of black vomit in two female children in the same family who had recovered from yellow fever. In severe cases the prostration following upon the subsidence of the fever is very great, and affects body and mind. The eruption, together with the inflammation and swell-ing of the superficial lymphatic glands, is associated with the final elimination of the infectious poison from the organism. I have never treated yellow fever, which many people suppose dengue resembles, but it is well authenticated that the differ-ences in the diseases are very wide. While the temperature steadily rises in yellow fever, it is remittent in dengue. In dengue the pulse rises with the temperature; in yellow fever the pulse generally falls on the third day, while the temperature continues to rise. There are many points by which the diseases can be easily distinguished. Dr. Thurston:--It is an eruptive fever of malarial origin, but beyond that we do not know what it is. It has been known for 123 years, and its name originated at the mouth of the Congo River. It is not a rheumatic disease, but it will develop any weak point of the system. If there is a tendency to rheumatism it will be likely to bring on an attack of rheumatism, and if there is a tendency to consumption it is likely to pro-duce hemorrhage. Dr. Carter--It is an epidemic infectious fever, and I am satisfied it is contagious. It is not related to yellow fever, Many of the cases, like yellow fever, are hemorrhagic and then it may look like yellow fever, but hemorrhage in dengue is not a bad sign, and it is in yellow fever. Dengue fever is a disease sui generis. I do not think that any-body has ever examined it. It is not a rheu-matio disease, and yet rheumatism is the only thing that can be confounded with it. It is very weakening, leaving the system in a susceptible condition for other sickness, and L en gravid we are eased and to be an ofference ofference other sickness, and L en gravid we are eased and the town the the

"You're doing a great deal of good for the railroads and the general public, too," said the jolly personage to the Rumbler, after an introduction had been effected by Col. John Howard, who usually manages such little social amenities about as grace fully as a yoke of steers might be supposed to waltz "Blue Danube." "And I have often heard of you, Dr. E. H.

Recently I succeeded in selling thirty sec-tions of land—think of it! Nineteen thou-sand two hundred acres to citizens of Morgan, Clark and Hamilton Coun-ties, Ohio, and of Franklin County, In-diana. These purchasers will immediately lay off a town, and immigration into the district will be active and continuous. The class of men who are to settle on the lands sold will be the most thrifty and enterpris-ing among the Ohio and Indiana farmers. The place they have selected for settlement is in Tom Green County, near the headis in Tom Green County, near the head-waters of the Concho. In this way I reach the ears of the very best element of settlers. I started into this work about fourteen months ago. It was during the presidential campaign, and everything was hot as yellow fever in that country. My first talk was made in Butler County, Ohio. It has a population of 50,000 and a Demo-cratic majority of about 4000. Every other sentence I would get off some fellow in the audience would guy me. 'For healthful-ness, ladies and gentlemen,'I said on that memorable occasion, 'for healthfulness, ladies and gentlemen,' I said on that memorable occasion, 'for healthful-ness and salubrity of climate the prairies of the Panhandle far exceed the'— 'Mulligan letters,' yelled a voice from the crowd. I kept right on with my lectures, however, in Indiana and Ohio, and since the election excitement died out I have been listened to with great attention and with much profit to all hands interested. Not long ago I talked to an audience of 350 business men in Xenia, Ohio, about sixty miles from Cincinnati, and my speech has borne good fruit. Out in the thickly settled districts of Ohio, Indiana, Pennsylvania and that tier of States, you will find many a wealthy farmer who has only the old home-stead, about 160 acres. It is highly im-proved, and he don't care to cut it up in slices. He has enough money to buy lands for his sons in other States. It is that class of men I have been working for settlement in Texas. Those people are very shrewd and intelligent. They haven't traveled much, and depended for their knowledge of other States on the newspa pars. Some time ago I lectured at Cynthi-ana, Ky. The audience were interested. When I was through they asked me all corts of questions about Texas. and I an Everybody now seems to be engaged in grading cattle and the distinctive features of native stock are fast disappearing, like the buffalo and the mustang. I think a well organized State Fair Association, say at Dallas, with its machinery extending into all the principal counties in the State, and with liberal prizes to offer, would do much towards advancing the interest of improve-ment in cattle. I would like to see a fair in every populous county in the State, and a State fair over all that would attract atten-tion from the other States. THE DENGUE.

The Disciples of Æsculapius on its Nature, Pathology, Etc.

It is unnecessary to state that the dengue is in Dallas. Luke has had it, and Paul has had it, and Mrs. Mulligan has had it. The bill collector whose normal motion was a double-quick, vulgarly called a dog-trot. now crawls along with a dislocated air and a distorted expression of countenance which seems to say, "Oh, do have pity." He has had the dengue, and there are 2000 others who have been in the same fix. The strangest part of the business is that with this almost universal experience nearly everybody wants to know what the dengue is. One young gentleman who has been hit and knocked down with it twice makes an in quiry of that kind of THE NEWS. He says "I know by experience what it feels like but I don't know what it is or anything about its relations.

"Is it a mild form of yellow fever, and has it any resemblance to measles?"

WHAT THE DOCTORS SAY. For the elucidation of a subject in which the readers of THE NEWS are so deeply interested a reporter yesterday undertook to sound the doctors in the line of the above inquiry with the following result: Dr. Johnston-Dengue is one of the eruptive fevers. It generally lasts from four to ten days, with a violent fever for the firs twenty-four or thirty-six hours, disordered stomach, and great pain in the head, back and limbs. I look upon its greatest danger and limbs. I look upon its greatest danger as consisting in excessive treatment. If purgatives are freely used there is a ten-dency to dysentery, and there the trouble lies. I am not prepared to say that it is not in some degree related to yellow fever. A great many think we never have yellow fever at the same time that we have decague. Dr. Veal—I think it is partly and truly an inflammatory or rheumatic fever. It is cer-tainly some acute and inflammatory action in the blood that produces these general pains. The muscus membrane is inflamed. I do not think that the disease is in any way related to yellow fever. There is some poison within the blood that in dengue fever produces a terrible weakening and impov-erished condition, which is not the case in

WHAT TEXAS WILL WANT.

Some of the Measures to be Pressed Before Congress.

Public Buildings, a Cattle Trail, Federal Court Reforms, Postal Service Changes Among Things Booked for Consideration.

Special to The News. WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.-The officials of the various departments and those interested in legislation are making preparations for the approaching session of Congress. It will, no doubt, interest the readers of THE News to know something about what is proposed of local benefit to Texas. As to the paramount question of the improvement of Galveston harbor there is no intention to speak at the present time, so it will be understood that the omission is intentional.

SPECIAL DESIRES OF TEXAS TOWNS. The people of San Antonio think that it has grown in population and business during the last few years sufficiently, and they accordingly expect that Congress will extend to it the privileges of immediate transportation of dutiable merchandise under the general statute.

Among the important matters which will be presented to Congress is the proposition to establish a national cattle trail, the author of which is the Hon. James F. Miller. The provisions of the measure were recently explained in THE NEWS. It is intended that an appropriation of $10,000 be made for the purpose of paying the expenses of the establishment of the cattle route.

There are several measure of a pecuniary character of a general nature, but having local application to Texas. The first is what is termed the education bill. It pro poses the distribution of money by the government for the promotion of education, the awards to the States to be on the basis of illiteracy. If, as Senator Blair, its champion, prophesies, it becomes a law, Texas would be entitled to $507,105 99 out of the first payment. The other is the measure to credit and pay the several States all moneys collected under the direct tax levied by Congress in 1861. The State has credit on its accounts for $130,008 06, and this is the amount that would be returned.

by Congress in 180. The State And this is on its accounts for $130,008 06, and this is the amount that would be returned. There will be several applicants among the cites of the State for government buildings. San Antonio is the most extrav-agant in its demands, as it wants a structure to cost $300,000. The Postmaster General and the Attorney General have both re-commended the erection of a public build ing at this point. Its claims are based on the fact that the United States Courts are held there, and that its business is rapidly accumulating, and the papers, books and records are necessarily very insecurely kept. The same may be said as substan-tially the condition as to the postoffice. El Paso, in view of the commercial and inter-national importance of the city, also wants a new public building. It advocates claim that it is the gateway between the United States and Mexico. It is an important port of entry between the two governments, and the Mexican government has authorized the expenditure of a large sum of money in the erection of buildings in the opposite city. Texarkana promised to be in a bad fix, as two buildings would seem to be required, but the two municipal authorities have com-promised on one. The difficulty is to be is des of the State line, so that a delivery of mail matter could be made in each division of the city, which will conduce to good order and promote the convenience of the pople residing in each division of the city. FIXED SALARES FOR COURT OFFICIALS. An effort will be made to induce Congress

FIXED SALARIES FOR COURT OFFICIALS. An effort will be made to induce Congress to change the method of paying the officials of the United States Courts. At present they receive fees and other emoluments, but it is desired that they shall be allowed fixed salaries. In the schedule of salaries, as officially arranged, the officers of the courts in Texas have been placed as follows: District Attorney-Western districts $4000, eastern and northern districts $3000. United States Marshals-Western district $4000. eastern and northern districts $3000. Chief Deputy United States Marshals and clerks Deputy United States Marshals and clerks to Marshals, $1200 each. In this connection it should also be said that there is a propo-sition to increase the salaries of Judges of the United States Courts. This project is supported with the view of enabling the government to get first class jurists, and also to render more certain their retention on the bench. Under this plan the salaries of the Judges in Texas are placed at $4500. The present salary is $3500. It is also de-sired to increase the salaries of the Circuit Judges from $6000 to $7000. Judges from $6000 to $7000. POSTOFFICE REFORMS SUGGESTED. Under the operation of the present law a great injustice is done the postmasters of the third class. In small postoffices of the first and second classes the law makes allowances for rent, fuel, clerk hire, etc., but nothing is given the third grade but the salary attached to the office. The officials of the Postoffice Department recognize the in-justice of this discrimination, and are in favor of at least allowing the lowest presi-dential rank office rent. It is believed, too, that it will add to the efficiency of the postal service to have proper quarters for these offices. There are fifty-seven postoffices of the third class in Texas, and to provide them with office rent, according to the official esti-mate, will cost annually $12,95. Another improvement which the postal free delivery service. Under existing laws this service is limited to places of 20,000 in-habitants, or those having gross annual re-cepts of at least $20,000. It is proposed to extend this limit so that the great benefits and towns of 10,000 population, in which the gross receipts are $10,000 annually. There are hundreds of growing enterprising cities to which this privilege could be wisely ex-tended, some of which are in Texas. ary attached to the office. The officials of above constitute the purely local matters. Of course, others will be brought forward as time goes by, of which your correspondent will keep THE NEWS fully advised. LUMINOUS LIMBS OF THE LAW.

"Oh, yes," replied one of the veterans, "he can remain in the diplomatic service for four years and then return in time to take up his case in the court." This illus-trates the nature and condition of the Su-preme Court. Some of the old-timers gather at the Birges House nearly every night and at the Riggs House nearly every night and trates the nature and condition of the supermeter Court. Some of the old-timers gather at the Riggs House nearly every night and swap stories. A good joke is told on Judge Wilson. Be-fore the Interior Department in the argu-ment of the Winona and St. Peter land case, Judge Wilson says at one point in his brief: "Lord Bacon has wisely and truly written, "the letter killeth, but spirit maketh alive." "Is in not enough if a man substantially complies with the spirit of the law, and if he does not comply with its every letter, if he honestly believes he has done so and acts accordingly, will his good faith and honest in the interpretation of the law." The opposing counsel, Gen. Cole, opened his brief as follows: "The claimat's counsel in this case is either grosely ignorant of the law or he has broken his oath as an attorney, for he does not know that Lord Bacon did not write the second epistle to the Corinthians, or he is trying to mislead the Interior Department, through falsehood and deceit, by quoting the Apostle Paul as good authority in land cases. When the great apostle wrote to the people of Cor-inth, 'the letter killeth, but the spirit giv-eth life,' he had no reference to timber-in western prairies, had not become a law until 1800 years later. So it is clearly to be seen that the language quoted is not in point. There is one thing in his argument also that is to be regretted, and that is the charge of plagiarism against the great Lord Chancellor of England, Bacon, who has been charged with being the author of the plays commonly credited to Shaks-peare, and also with corruption in office, but this new thrust of literary piracy is ex-ternely unjust, coming at this late date from a member of the Minnesota bar." ENTESMEN COMING IN.

STATESMEN COMING IN.

Thirty members of the House and half a dozen Senators are in the city. The Capitol building is undergoing the annual house cleaning. The atmosphere in the hall of the House is malodorous, either from the quantity of chewing tobacco expectorated upon the floor or from the very bad lan-guage used in the heated debates last ses-sion. The House postoffice has been rear-ranged, refitted, and very much improved.

STORIES OF KNOWN MEN.

Gen. Forrest in a Broadway Stage-Commodore Vanderbilt's Estimate of a Popular Divine.

New York Star. It is the trivial incidents in the lives of public men that frequently illustrate their character, and there is as much interest manifested in the anecdotes which belong to the sphere of current social gossip as in the more ambitious records of the historian. Gen. N. B. Forrest, the famous Confederate cavalry leader, visited New York shortly after the close of the war. One day while ding down town in a Fifth aven dude of the most pronounced type entered and took his seat in the corner opposite the General. While searching his pockets for something the youth withdrew a large envelope from which a number of papers slipped and were scattered on the floor. He picked up those within reach, and turning to Forrest, who looked like "a member from the rural districts," said, in the drawling, consequential and supercilious tone peculiar to his class: "I say, can you reach those papers?" The General grasped the situation in a moment, and extending his arm until the cuff and shirt sleeve separated, exhibiting a broad expanse of wrist, replied with well assumed country patois: 'Wall, I. jis' kin, stranger, an' that's about all." Then he drew himself up to a sitting all." Inch he drew himself up to a sitting posture again, and looked innocent, while the occupants of the stage roared, and the embarrassed dude proceeded to help himself and as quickly as possible leave the unsym-pathetic company. An old gentleman who, to judge from his shaking sides, heartily enjoyed the scene, now changed his seat for one next to the general and remarked to him: "Stranger, excuse me for the question, but where are <text><text><text><text> not travel around by way of the Southern Confederacy." Judge Longstreet, the celebrated humor-ist, the author of "Georgia Scenes," and the father-in-law of Secretary Lamar, was once traveling in a car from Augusta, Ga., to Columbia, S. C. Seated just behind him were two rural individuals, one in a split bonnet and homespun dress, and the other in blue jean trousers and check shirt. The female in the split bonnet was asleep. Soon after entering the car an old friend of the Judge approached, and, call-ing him by name, received a hearty greeting. A few minutes later, when he left, the rustic leaned over, and touching the old gentleman on the shoulder, inquired: "Mister, be you Jedge Longstreet, the man that writ 'Georgy Scenes?" "That's what folks say," good naturedly replied the judge. The explosion of a bombshell could scarcely have produced greater excitement than this revelation. The blue jeans indi-vidual at once commenced the agitation of the split bonnet. "Wake up, Sal; wake up! Here's the greatest man the Almighty ever made, the biggest man on airth. He'writ 'Georgia Scenes,' Sal; wake up and see him." By dint of much shaking the female was

The Judge, in relating the incident, said he had vever witnessed anything more ludicrous in his life. When Emily B. Faithful lectured in Stein-way Hall on the subject of "Woman," among those who occupied seats on the platform were Revs. Dr. Bellows and Par-ker. They listened attentively while she threw hot shot into the ranks of the males, slapping his friend familiarly upon the shoulder, said: "Don't be disheartened. Brother Parker; pitck up courage even in you are a man." Edwin Booth, on returning home after a performance one evening, during which his physical and mental strength had been severely taxed, suggested to his wife that he would enjoy a good porterhouse steak and a raw onion. Senator Wigfall, of Texas, a bold, outspoken man, happening to be in the pres-ence of Mr. Davis when the subject was re-ferred to, said: "Don't touch him, Mr. President. It's dangerous policy. When a man becomes so popular that his fellow citizens name their race horses and steam-boats, and the women name their bables, after him, let him alone; don't touch him." One of the French Princes who visited the forederate army at Manassas, while being escorted down a line of troops by Maj. Skinner, of the First Virginia Regiment, ex-pressed a desire to return by the rear. The Major, for a moment, was placed in an avkward position, and a bluah mantled his check, but quickly recovering himself he re-plied in French: "Your royal highness, we would gladly take you to the rear, but the truth is,the linen of the men is in rather an exposed condition. MAIL CONTRACT CLAIMS.

A measure of general importance to the South, and of consequence to Texas, is that to reappropriate and apply the amount allowed in 1877 to pay certain mail contractors. Congress having passed upon the justice of the claim by the act of 1877, and the Senate having again acted favorably on it in the Forty-seventh Congress, gives the friends of the measure confidence that it will be passed by the new Congress. It provides that the Secretary of the Treasury shall pay to the late mail contractors of the Southern States, or their legal representatives, the amounts which he shall find due under their respec-tive contracts for the years 1858-59-60-61, and appropriates $375,000 for such pay-

A measure of general importance to nasional banks is that to empower the Comptroller of the Currency to authorize national banking associations to increase their capital stock, and to change their names or locations. The purpose of the measure is to obviate the necessity of special legislation for which, under the existing law. COMMERCIAL.

DALLAS, Oct. 27 .- Since the weekly review of last Tuesday few changes have occurred in the quoted list. It is a feature to note that, notwithstanding the break in wheat at Chicago and at New York, involving, as it did, nearly all the leading centers, here prices rule firm, with a fractional advance for the best milling grain. The quotations to day are 77% cents for a choice article, and only a shade lower for the medium quality of merchantable wheat. For local brands the quotations to-day are $3 25 for the highest and $2 35 for the lowest grade. Bran sells at $12 per ton. For car load lots of miller's goods 10 per cent, off is allowed to the

There is no change to-day in groceries on provisions. Leather, leather wares and cattle also remain at previous quotations.

A feature of the week has been heavy re ceipts of hogs. To-day stockmen of Bear Creek and other Dallas raisers sent in their early spring litters. Only seven months is needed now to bring a hog from the suckling to the slaughtering size. Cotton came in freely to-day, and sold at rates quoted elsewhere, which is about ten points lower compared with last week. Ship-pers noted with pleasure the improved facilities for handling cotton reported this morning by telegraph from Galveston. That port, for obvious reasons, is preferred by Dallas ship-pers, and will become the one Texas port.

There is no quotable change in dry goods. Woolens are shaded higher and cotton goods are inclined to lower prices. Lumber is $2 50 lower, based on last autumn's Lumber is $2 50 lower, based on last autumn's rates, for undressed carpenters' lots. The trade has improved decidedly lately. The whsky market is proceeding' rapidly and uninterruptedly toward its restoration to the normal state from which it lapsed three years ago, and this in spite of the fact that the bulk of the jobbing trade is still confining itself to buying for legitimate wants only. "Prices of well established brands are advancing," says the Criterion, "at a rate recalling to mind the memorable period of the boom." This ad-vance is felt already here at Dallas, where stocks bought on the lower rate are about ex-nausted and nearly all on hand has been taken on the upward turn. The late pool disaster re-sulting from Cincinnati's jealousy of Peoria, has been recovered and the "entente cordial" being re-established a uniform rate of high wines is fixed at $107. From this basis all prices are governed for the present. At $1 07 high wines are 6 cents lower,based on last year. The ruling of the United States Commissioner of internal revenue to the effect that liquors cannot be shipped c. o.d. without paying a license at each express office of delivery is quite an inconvenience, both to dealers and to their patrons. An effort will be made at the coming session of Congress to procure a repeat path and content which the ruling referred to is based. At least so the disposition seems to be among dealers here. The, since the cold weather set in, has been President Cleveland's Smile. Philadelphia Times.

Philadelphia Times. The President has an emphatic way that "proves itself," as the lawyers say of a seal, of saying to the visitors at the White House who call merely to shake hands with him, "I am glad to see you," and when he kisses one of the little ones the emphasis resounds throughout the big rooms. "Do you know," asked a lady after a visit to President Cleveland when he was hand-shaking in the East Room, "the statuette of the 'Laughing Baby?" The baby seems smilling just out of pure good nature, because it is comfortable pure good nature, because it is comfortable itself and feels kindly toward every one, and President Cleveland's smile always reminds me of that statuette, he looks so good natured and has just such a fat face,

"It seems to me," said another, "the "It seems to me," said another, "the smile that President Cleveland's face wears when he is assuring them who call on him merely to pay their respects, that he is 'glad to see them,' is one of the most light-hearted smiles I ever saw on the face of a man of mature years who had a realizing sense of the responsibilities of life. It is a perfectly unaffected smile, as different as possible from the forced grin of an ordinary professional politician seeking popularity. It seems to proceed from genuine good-nature and to be the natural expression of one who feels kindly toward all the world and believes that the world generally means well by himself. It always reminds me of well by himself. It always reminds me of the smile a baby's face wears when the baby ST. LOUIS GRAIN MARKET. ST. 'Twas the witching hour of luncheon, when silence, like a mantle of peace, enwrapt the sanctum in her silken folds.

Alone in his clean cut solitude the telegraph editor communed with skeleton sheets of weird and wired intelligence, flashed from a thousand points. So occupied was his busy brain with the weighty matters before him, that his acute sense of hearing had not been disturbed by the delicate tinklings of footfalls on the tufted floor, until a voice proke the silence into a thousand pieces and caused the tympanium of his half shell ear to imitate the roaring of the conch that "Are you the managing editor?" the voice seemed to say, as it gathered itself together and became condensed into something like

"No, but I'm managing a little editing at present," replied the solitary occupant of the brainery, eyeing the mysterious visitor and wondering how long it would be before his staff associates would forsake the allurements of the lunch table and return to "Have you a correspondent at "Rising

"Not now, I believe. When I was a young man I had correspondents both at the ris-and in the Orient, but I'm married now and

"You have divined my purpose." "Have you had any experience in news-paper work?"

"I think so." "Would you trouble yourself to meet it half way if the item was important?" "Why, certainly." "Well, possibly the management will give you a trial, and if you will observe a few in-structions you may increase the population of your town several hundred per cent, and win fame and fortune for yourself." "What are the instructions?"

"To begin with, THE NEWS will take it for granted that your town is on a boom—every-body's town is—and you needn't mention that fact more than twice or three times a week. THE NEWS uses the possessive pro-noun 'your' advisedly. Rising Sun is just as much your town as Dallas is our town, but you need not mention that fact. The vulgar populace is too much prejudiced against bloated aristocrats who own and ossess entire communities and as a con-against bloated aristocrates who own and possess entire communities, and as a con-cession to modesty and popular prejudice you had better mention places by name rather than as personal belongings. To avoid unpleasant results merge your iden-tity in your literary endeavors as much as possible, and hold, as t'were, the mirror up to nature without having your own features gled with matter sent in by other correspondents."

"Is there anything more ?"
"You will have to see THE NEWS management, and don't trouble yourself to telegraph unimportant details of minor events" just to fill up;" and don't get "scooped" on an item if you have to set up all night and run the risk of breaking your neck to get it. Careful attention to these details may not make you a "journalist," but you will command just as high a salary as a newspaper man all the same."
"Well, P'll do my best," and so saying the applicant for a situation gathered a roll of white paper and went to see the management, and afterwards departed for Rising Sun, which, though it may seem a paradox, is a paradise of the undeveloped West.

To the Public.

It is the desire of the management of THE DALLAS MORNING NEWS to have the paper on sale, in sufficient quantities to supply the demand, on all railway trains running into or connecting with trains to and from Dallas. The traveling public are respectfully requested to bear this fact in mind and to report to the business department any failure on their part in being able to purchase copies of the paper in the manner indicated, giving date, train and other particulars.

To City Subscribers.

We beg to announce that the failure of our city circulator to call upon a number of citizens for their subscriptions is not due to oversight, but is the result of his finding it necessary, for the time being, to devote his entire time and attention to the systematizing of the routes, and the supervision of his carriers, to insure the prompt delivery of the paper each morning to the subscribers already obtained This work has prevented him from making a thorough canvass of the city. He expects, however, to resume this canvass this morning and continue daily until every section of the city has been visited. In the meantime be pleased to send names and addresses to the counting room, where they will receive prompt attention. Subscribers failing to receive their papers with regularity and promptitude will please notify us.

Additional local news will be found on the fifth page.

"Clothes do not make a man, perhaps; But if he's poor in dress, The world is bound to notice it, And, somehow, love him less."

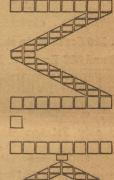

'Tis sad, but true, a good suit-on a man's back, of course-often goes further on the road to worldly success than a carload of intellect with a college diploma to back it up. It ought not to be, but fate will have it so, and we must float with the tide or "lose our venture." Now, it is the particular mission of E. M. KAHN & Co., to whom the majority of DALLAS gentlemen look for their garments and furnishing to dress mankind in faultless and becoming attire. Upon this issue does success depend, and if you fail to reach the goal of your ambitious desires after we get through fixing you up, dear, inconsistent man, blame us not! Yet we are prepared to treat you right royally in the way of

The tailoring art seems to have reached a limit with the popular ONE AND FOUR-BUTTON CUTAWAY FROCK SUITS, as every season brings us this favored style garment, and, with some triffing changes in cut and trimming, it remains virtually the same. We were early in the market this season, and our selections of fine woolens were very large and attractive. We can give you a magnificent assortment of "CUTA-WAYS" to select from, including all the late novelties in dark fancy worsteds, in neat checks, plaids and stylish patterns and mixtures; also Scotch cheviots and fine imported casimeres and corkscrews, dark brown, black and blue being the prevailing shades. Prices ranging from $15 up to $35. For extra fine business or street wear, favored to a great extent by professional men, although worn largely by stylish dressers, we mention the PRINCE ALBERT FROCK SUITS. We have an elegant line of these choice styles, in fine worsteds and corkscrews, in dark wine colors, brown and gray; prices ranging $22 50, $25, $30 and $35. These choice suits are equal in all respects to finest merchant tailor work. The 1-button sack will please a great many, and, as the mercury begins to drop, double-breasted sack suits will be very much worn. We have a GRAND LINE of these styles, all put up in the most durable and wear-resisting manner. They come in fancy suitings-plaids, small checks and invisible stripes, dark and medium mixtures-out of the best all wool fabrics, our prices ranging from $7 50, $10, $12 50, $15, $16 50, $18 50, $20 and up to $35, which gives you everything from a good, honest everyday 10000
