HIGHLIGHTS FROM THE PAST TO THE PRESENT

Highlights from the Past to the Present has been rather scarce in the past couple months. But this we again take up with the story and visit in the home of Mr. and Mrs. J.A. (June) Balentine, one of the early families who strived through the good and lean years to rear their six children and to become one of the well-known Hansford-County Pioneer families.

We will begin this week looking into the past life of Mr. June Balentine as we find he was born May 28, 1871, in Nash County, North Carolina. In 1882 he accompanied his family to Texas where they settled in Grayson County where June Balentine grew to manhood. On December 24th, 1895, June Balentine and Ola Lawson were married in Red River County, Texas.

Ola Lawson was born in Red River County, Texas in July of 1875. Her grandparents were early residents of Texas and moved to Red River County in about 1832. Mr. Lawson, Ola's father, was born in the Republic of Texas.

Mr. and Mrs. June Balentine made their home in Red River County where they farmed several small places with negro share croppers. Mr. Balentine bought his cattle along the Red River and in the Indian Territory; then shipped them to Fort Worth. Two children, Una and Robert A. (Bob), were born while the couple lived in East Texas. The hot weather of East Texas did not appeal to Mr. Balentine so he began searching for new and a better section of Texas.

In 1899 Mr. Balentine came to the Panhandle of Texas and purchased two sections of land from J.E. Southwood. The land was located some seven miles north-east of the town of Panhandle at the head of the East Dixon Creek. Returning home to East Texas he told his family of his purchase and they began to prepare for the move. Mr. Balentine came ahead in the covered wagon and brought all of the family's belongings. Mr. Balentine was accompanied by Dip Conley who just recently passed away in Dumas.

Mr. Balentine built a dugout to accommodate the living facilities for the family. The dugout was built on the creek. He soon purchased some cows from Mr. Bates who lived on the North Fork of the Red River near the present town of Lefors.

Mrs. Balentine with Una and Bob came to Claude, Texas by train and then on to Panhandle and to their new quarters by wagon. The family remained on their land in the area of Lanhandle for some two years before Mr. Balentine had the opportunity to sell to Mr. Gillispie and to move further north.

Finding land he liked in Hansford and Hutchinson areas, Mr. Balentine purchased a relinquishment from Alex Martin on the south fork of the Palo Duro Creek. Here he dug a dugout for their home in the hillside and hand dug a well to supply the family water. Their remaining four children were born in Hansford County on their ranch and were, John A. (Ab), Myrtle, J.P. (Put), and J.M. (Mike).

Mr. Balentine began work at once to build stables and corrals from the cotten wood lumbered purchased and hauled from the saw mill on Moores Creek. The supplies and needs for the family were purchased at Guymon and Texhoma and freighted to their home by wagon.

One of Mr. Balentine's specialties was his Hereford Bulls and he was one of the first to have Hereford Bulls in Hansford County. He took pride in his stock and saw that they were the best of their kind. Mr. Balentine was also one of the first to feed cotton seed cake to his cattle. He first fed the cake to his stock in 1903.

Trying to practice practical and economical methods, Mr. Balentine would raise enough hay and feed to supply the feed for his stock through out the long winter months which lay ahead.

Another of Mr. Balentine's economical practices was that he would never invest more than what he had the money to pay for when buying livestock or supplies. He also did a majority of the work himself with the help of his sons.

As the railroad land came on the market, Mr. Balentine purchased another section of land just south of the Tyler Headquarters. The family suffered through an epidemic of measles in the early 1900's. Mrs. Balentine was the only member of the family who escaped having them. Mr. Balentine became quite ill and doubts rose at one time as to whether he would recover, though he did. Another incident recalled by the family was the big prairie fire of about 1908 which rolled through the area, the Balentine property was left without much damage.

In 1909 Mr. Balentine built a house two miles down the creek where there were trees and water along the creek. He purchased the lumber for their home at Texhoma and freighted it to the homesite.

A great set-back faced the farmers and ranchers of the area when the bad winter of 1911 and 1912 was so destructive. Mr. Balentine, as did many of the other ranchers, lost a large portion of his livestock in this winter blast.

Increasing his land ownings and ranching empire Mr. Balentine purchased another section from Jim Cator in 1915 and two other 1/2 sections were added in 1916 and 1924. One of the places he purchased was the Boss Davis place.

In 1929 Mr. and Mrs. Balentine sold all their land except their home place but by 1930 they had it all back except the Davis place. The land sale was a way to get a large part of the grass land plowed into farmland.

A ranch in Hartley County was purchased by Mr. Balentine in 1928, but the depression and drouth of the 1930's hit holding things at an almost standstill for the family. In 1935 Mr. Balentine suffered a stroke. He sold his ranch in Hartley County in 1940 and shortly after that he suffered two more strokes before he passed away in August of 1944. His wife's death followed his in January of 1956.

The daughter, Una married George Willburn in 1915. She and her husband had five children and made their home in San Pedro, California. In 1948 she passed away there.

Robert A. (Bob) Balentine was a veteran of both of the World Wars and is presently semi-retired and makes his home in Parker County north of Weatherford, Texas, where he raises a few cattle. He has two children.

Making his home in Amarillo is John A. (Ab) Balentine who has worked on ranches during his younger years. He has served as Deputy Sheriff and is presently Brand and Animal Health Inspector in Amarillo.

Myrtle married Raymond Keith in 1931 and makes her home in Borger and has four children. J.P. (Put) Balentine makes his home in Houston and has served some thirty-five years with the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company.

The youngest child, J.M. (Mike) Balentine makes his home on the home place east of Morse where he is engaged in livestock and farming. He has two children.

Pioneers such as the Balentine family have truly made our area and county the fine place it is today. Mr. Balentine was never interested in being a public figure, he enjoyed working and managing his farm and ranch. One of his pride and joys was to have good cattle. He developed some of the best herds of cattle in the early days of the county. Again we say how fortunate we are to have have families such as these to be the fore-fathers of Hansford County.

BACK FORTY PHILOSOPHY

by Jack Shaw

No much doing this week on my Johnson grass farm, so I decided to watch the wife make a cake. Noticing all the things she mixed together, I was wondering if I wanted any cake. She assured me all would be fine when it was baked.

That made me think as to just what the outcome was going to be in the great society. What will be the results if we spend more and more money, educate everyone, and extend government services into all branches of physical health? Well, it is hard to tell but it looks to me like we will have the broktest bunch of educated giants in all the world.

PROPER USE OF DRUGS

AUSTIN--With the help of powerful new drugs, today's physician can treat patients whose conditions would have been hopeless a few short years ago. Yet, because drugs also can cause harm, their potential dangers have received increasing attention in the press as well as from regulatory bodies and even Congress.

Such publicity "has given rise to an alarm which at times borders on hysteria," writes Dr. Arthur Grollman, Dallas, in an editorial on drug toxicity in the January issue of TEXAS MEDICINE, published by the Texas Medical Association.

All human advances bring with them the possibility of danger; for example, the automobile, despite its multiple benefits, causes an enormous number of deaths. In considering the potential harm of drugs, Dr. Grollman believes that one should not lose sight of their contribution to the relief of suffering and to human welfare.

He writes, "For an objective evaluation of drug toxicity, emphasis should be placed on the relative usefulness of a given drug as well as on its potential harmfulness. Even such benign and essential agents as oxygen or water may be harmful when used in advisedly as therapeutic agents....It is thus apparent that the potential toxicity of drugs must be counterbalanced by emphasis on their proper usage."

"It would be to the disservice of humanity and medicine if we allowed an imbalanced perspective to hamper the advance in drug therapy which has characterized the present century," he adds. "Full knowledge of the drugs at his disposal rather than restrictive measures controlling their use will enable the physician to derive the great benefits of therapy while maintaining at a minimum the harm inherent in their use."

SOUTHERN SCHOOL ASSEMBLY HELD

by Kathy Fletcher

Mr. John Conrad presented the Southern School Assembly Monday, January 25, at the High School Auditorium. Mr. Conrad is a puppeteer and ventriloquist. In choosing the true story of Louis Braille as a vehicle for his program, Mr. Conrad was impelled to tell the highlights in the boyhood life of one of man's great benefactors, a story which had always intrigued him. After much research, he consolidated the facts into play form, built the entire marionette stage, carved out of wood the characters which acted out the play, and vitalized them with his own voice. Thus, he brought to life the little known story of the blind, French orphan boy, who at the age of eighteen, perfected what is commonly known the world over as the Braille system for the blind.

Mr. Conrad departed from the usual style of marionette production when he removed the stage draperies to expose to full audience view the arts and techniques of string puppetry, adding depth to the program. The wizard of his voice enabled him to faithfully speak eight distinct speaking voices, never failing to astound his listeners.

You would have had a nice send-off when you set out to conquer the world! It's still a great idea. And if you have any new boys or girls in the family you can put it into action now.

The cost is small. Only $37.50 for each $50 Bond—or less than 11¢ a day to buy one every birthday.

OUTDOORS IN TEXAS

By VERN SANFORD

For many years the carp was considered absolutely worthless. It was rated as a pest that contaminated our waters and did no good whatsoever.

Then an angler caught one of these bronze-colored scappers on sport tackle. That incident shed new light on the carp's personality. Anti-carp sentiment began to waver slightly. Maybe, just maybe, this carp wasn't as bad as most people led us to believe.

When it comes to public relations, the carp is about the sorriest fish that swims. It has carried this stigma of being a pest for so long that it doesn't know how to act in its newest role, that of a sport fish. But many people don't cuss the carp anymore. They're too busy having a ball catching it.

Five years ago it was rare to see anyone fishing for carp; today carp fishermen are fairly commonplace on all our Texas lakes. There is good reason for this upsurge in popularity. A piscatorial survey in the Highland Lakes of Central Texas a few years back revealed, for instance, that the balance of fish population was something like 70 per cent rough fish and 30 per cent game fish.

This means, quite simply, that your odds of catching a rough fish are much better than a game fish.

Which brings us back to a much-debated question. Just what is a game fish? One that will hit an artificial bait? If this is the true guidestick, then the carp can't be classified as a game fish. But on the business end of a fishing line, this stubborn battler does itself proud. It is a strong, grudging scrapper that doesn't know what the word "quit" means.

But just because they are plentiful doesn't mean they are easy to catch. Quite the contrary. Carp, and its kinsman cousin the buffalo, can be just as ornery as a bass at times. The man who succeeds day in and day out, of course, is the person who knows his ABC's of carp-fishing technique.

fished on a tiny treble hook (about the No. 10 size) since the carp has a small, round mouth. Simply mold the bait around the hook, throw it out and sit back to wait. Carp fishing isn't a fast sport. The person who succeeds at it is long on patience.

A carp roots along the bottom, sucking up food with its round mouth. It will pick up a bait which is lying still on bottom but will ignore one that is moving at all.

A carp telegraphs its bite in a series of light taps. The secret is having a delicate feel, letting the carp get the bait fully inside its mouth before driving the steel home.

Any kind of tackle is suitable for carp fishing. A medium-sized spinning outfit seems to be the universal favorite. Contrary to popular belief, carp aren't too bad on the dinner table. Secret is knowing how to prepare them.

Best method we've found is to chunk the fish and cook in a pressure cooker until the meat falls away from the bones. After removing the bones, fold the meat into patties and fry, just as you would fry salmon croquets.

When they're a rich, golden brown, serve with French fries or hushpuppies. I guarantee everyone will come back for seconds.

Mr. and Mrs. Harris Celebrate Silver Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Will Harris celebrated their Silver Wedding Anniversary Thursday evening January 21st, 1965 as friends gathered in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harley Alexander to commemorate the occasion. The honored couple were completely surprised by the group.

Hosting the evening for Mr. and Mrs. Harris was the Adult Sunday School Class of the Gruver Methodist Church. The Friends enjoyed the evening playing Forty-two and bridge along with canasta.

An elegant serving table, laid with an organdy cloth enhanced with a satin pattern was centered by a white fantasy arrangement bearing two candles. A tiny slipper holding two wedding rings stood amid the center piece. Coffee and cake were served as refreshments. Small silver bells signifying the occasion were the favors of the evening.

The party began as a poem written by Mrs. Gertrude Gruver was read: TO PAULINE AND WILL

Twenty-five years today You two have shared life's fun,

These years hold lots of happy memories, Of the many, many things you have done, From all of us comes lots of love

And many happy wishes too Because this is your Silver Anniversary But most just because it's you.

True friendship is the sweetest gift

That life could ever import. A gift that time increases And miles can never part, A gift that just grows dearer More warm, sweeter and true. We cherish this, Life's sweetest gift,

We love you both and always will For all the things you have done.

There's a spot in our hearts warm and true A spot no one else can fill. Whatever the ask, you were always there Reading and willing our burdens to share. The hostesses presented the honorees with a corsage of baby mums of white centered with wedding symbols and white baby mum boutonniere. A lovely lamp was a gift to the couple from their friends and fellow-church members.

What to do until an emergency happens

Emergencies have practically no sense of fair play. And almost always pick the worst possible time to happen.

People seem to prefer the day your insurance lapses to trip on your sidewalk, for example.

And the car usually waits until your bank account registers empty before demanding expensive repairs.

There's no fighting it. But you can be ready. By tucking away some reserve funds in U.S. Savings Bonds.

Bonds, themselves, are emergency proof. You can't lose the money you invest in them, even if fire, flood, robbers or plain carelessness causes you to lose the Bonds.

And when something expensive happens, you can just take them in to any bank and get yourself solvent again.

In the meantime, Uncle Sam uses your Bond dollars to handle other urgent matters, like taking care of your freedom.

Buy Bonds where you bank or on the Payroll Savings Plan where you work. Get yourself really prepared and you might even discourage a few emergencies from ever happening.

Keep freedom in your future with

The business man, the farmer and almost everyone that does business of any kind now finds it necessary to keep a form of books to show the money taken in and the expenses of operating for the purpose of accurately reporting their income tax and many other forms of State, City, County and Federal taxes.

It is sometimes difficult for many of us to keep accurately an account of many of the things necessary to give an accurate and comprehensive detailed report of income and expense involved in the maintenance of a business today. It is therefore fortunate that we have men trained in the schooling of mathematics and bookkeeping. Their years of training in this field enable them to keep your books in a time saving way and with less work than the average person is capable of doing.

MENTAL RETARDATION PREVENTABLE IF DETECTED EARLY

A rare but tragic disease, phenylketonuria, is one cause of mental retardation in children that can be easily detected, treated, and prevented by treatment which consists of a relatively simple special diet. Phenylketonuria, or PKU as it is more commonly called, is a metabolic disease which occurs only once out of each 10,000 births. It is rare but, because it could lead to some mental retardation early treatment is essential and, therefore, early detection is necessary.

In more technical terminology, PMU is the result of an inborn error of metabolism. The absence of the enzyme phenylalanine hydroxylase in the liver permits an abnormally high level of the amino acid, phenylalanine, to accumulate in the serum. This probably results in failure of development of the brain. If the abnormality is not detected early by the first month of life or soon thereafter--subsequent treatment will not prevent some mental retardation.

The treatment of PKU consists of administration of a diet low in phenylalanine, since the affected individual lacks the enzyme which normally permits utilization of this amino acid.

PKU is easily detectable with simple tests. Three tests are now being used and two of these tests can even be performed by a parent in the home. Many Texas physicians are now routinely testing newborn babies for PKU in hospitals and their offices, and more are doing these tests each year.

In 1963, the Texas Medical Association, in cooperation with the Texas Association for Retarded Children and the Texas Hospital Association, began promoting a "do-it-yourself" test kit for PKU in certain hospitals. The TMA kit, which was given to each mother when she and her newborn baby left the hospital, included an addressed postal card on which the mother marks and reports the results of a simple urine test, a three by five card containing instructions for administering the test, and a folder explaining PKU. The test is performed by pressing the end of a test strip to one of the infant's freshly wet diapers. Any color change of the test strip is then noted on the return postal card and mailed back to the hospital.

A second type of test being used also requires a diaper wet with urine. In this test, a drop of 19 per cent ferric chloride is placed on the wet diaper and any resulting color change is noted.

The third type of PKU detection test, known as the Guthrie inhibition assay test, requires a drop of blood taken after the baby has been fed for several days. The State Department of Health is performing the Guthrie test and has encouraged hospitals throughout the state to set up their own detection programs.

It is estimated that the early detection and treatment of PKU would eliminate one to two percent of the future residents of institutions for the mentally retarded. The results of early detection and treatment is dramatically shown by the case of two brothers with PKU. One child, not diagnosed until he was three, now has an 81 of 40 and is confined to an institution; the other, diagnosed at two weeks, was placed on a special diet and now, at age four, has an 8 IQ of 106.

TMA, the State Department of Health, and TARC are engaged in a constant educational program concerning PKU, both to physicians and the public. The ultimate goal is to have all newborn children tested at the proper times so that this rare but tragic disease will be a thing of the past.

HOMEMAKING NOTES

by Linda Webb, H.D. Agent

The Simplicity fashion lecture given by Helen Wright January 19, was a great success. I want to publicly thank each and every person who helped with the program. Mrs. Wayman Edwards, who provided the fabric from her shop for stage decorations; Mrs. B. J. Garnett; Miss Edith Wilson, the District Home Demonstration Agent; Gloria Knox who acted as ramrod in my absence; and all the models who did such a nice job with the costumes. Prettiness and soft detail are emphasized by the '65 spring fashions. They present a general air of femininity, from sportswear to evening wear.

Groups of colors are again more significant than any single shade. Graduations of tones from misty pinks to snappy brights will be offered.

Delicate face powder

tints are exceptionally lovely in soft woollens, crepes and slubbed silks; these shades include pink ivory, alabaster, blush, flesh and cream.

Corals are strongly favored for spring prominence, and fresh greens are receiving a good deal of attention. Navy blue, paired with white, neutrals of other colors will often be seen too.

Fabric designs have gone wild in a flurry of pattern-with-pattern looks, lots of dots, carnival stripes, checks, abstract plaids, and modern abstract styled prints.

Sculptured and dimensional fabrics, offer top fashion news. Lace is a leading fashion highlight, too, and lavish embroidery and applique work further enhance many fabrics.

Sheer fabrics such as chiffon, voile, georgette, chambray, dotted swiss, and others have a romantic, fragile look in new, not so fragile, polyester blends.

Supple crepe is a highlight, starring in cotton, silk, miracle blends, and sheer woolls. Subtle surfaced textures will stay on as classic fabric notes. Novelty knits in a variety of new stitches and new fiber mixtures create unusual surface effects.

Stretch is the fabric for active people: It allows maximum comfort, better fit and increased wrinkle resistance, among its many attributes.

Mock leather is one of the newest textile developments, which lets you wipe off stains, and iron away wrinkles. It can be washed or dry cleaned. You will be seeing plenty of this.

In a thimble, this is fashion news for spring. Sounds great to me--how about you?

The last note: I sometimes wonder if something doesn't go out of romance when a girl nestles her head on a boy's shoulder and her hair spray cracks.

TIPS FOR OUTDOORSMEN

by Vern Sanford

For Livelier Worms

To keep an earthworm alive longer, while on the hook, try hooking it under the breeding band and out through its head, rather than through the body. So hooked it also will attract more fish.

For Smoother Knots

When you tie a monofilament leader to your nylon line, put a drop of clear fingernail polish on the knot. When it dries, put on another drop. You'll discover that this will cause the line to slip easily through the rod guides, just as if there was no knot at all.

Don't Discard Ice Chest

Mr. Camper: When that old ice chest develops a leak, get a new one. But don't throw the old one away. It's fine for miscellaneous storage. Keeps dry foods dry and moist foods moist, too!

Terrapins Good Housekeepers

If your dog is kept in a confined area such as a small pen, droppings become a major problem. One answer is to keep four or five land terrapins inside the pen. They will keep the pen cleaned nicely.

Storing The 'Hoppers

To keep frogs, grasshoppers and the like alive for a long period, put them in a mason jar with a few handfuls of grass. Be sure to punch breathing holes in the lid. Place the jar in the refrigerator where it is cold but not freezing. When you are ready to go fishing, remove the bait. The 'hoppers and frogs soon become active again.

Repairing Broken Rods

To repair a broken hollow-glass fishing rod, simply purchase a steel drill-bit the exact size to fit into the rod. Glue into place and it will hold both halves securely together.

Keeping Sinkers Tight

To prevent a clinch-type sinker from slipping on monofilament line, simply put a rubber band into the groove of the sinker before putting it on the line. Clamp down tight and trim off excess rubber. Your sinker will hold its position firmly.

Emergency Fish Sealer

For an emergency fish sealer, nail an ordinary bottle cap head down on a strip of board. The rough edges will take the scales right off.

Better Tasting Carp

To make carp more edible, remove the backbone with a pair of pliers before cooking. This eliminates most of the muddy taste.

Protecting The Wallet

Before going fishing, place your wallet in a plastic bag and seal it tight before putting it back into your hip pocket. Then, if you get wet, contents of the wallet will remain dry.

Hardy Hack-saw Blade

If you're a deer hunter, try slipping a hacksaw blade into your knife sheath prior to going afield. It will come in handy for cutting the pelvic bone of your deer.

Repairing The Eyeglasses

A good way to ruin a fishing or hunting trip is to lose the tiny screw that fastens the ear piece to your glasses. To fix it, temporarily remove the staple from a match book cover. It will serve as a substitute until you return to civilization. A straight pin also works quite well.

Camouflaging Khakis

An old khaki shirt and trousers can be transformed into an effective camouflage suit by applying streaks of black and brown shoe dye to the material.

Good Fire Starter

To make a good fire starter, pour paraffin into empty shotgun shells. Pour in enough to fill within a half inch of the top. Shred the remaining portion of the shell so it will serve as a fuse.

Finding Lost Arrows

If lost arrows plague your hunting days, try marking the shafts with reflector tape. Then after dark go looking for them with a flashlight.

Stopping The Rattles

A handful of metal-case shells rattling around loose in your pocket may spook game just when you're trying to make like Daniel Boone. Put a rubber band around them to keep 'em quiet.

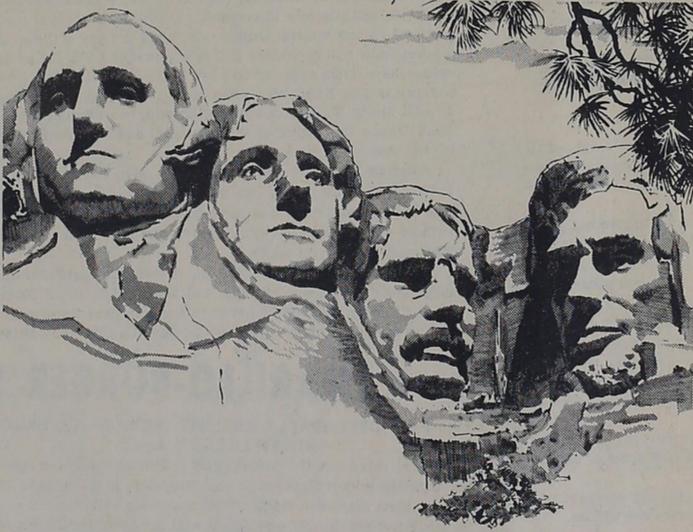

Keeping Tissue Dry

To keep toilet tissue dry in camp, put a roll in a discarded two-pound coffee can. It fits the roll and serves the purpose. Use the cans with the transparent plastic caps for easy identification.

Sure-Fire Fire Starter

A sure-fire fire starter, even in wet weather, can be improvised by mixing sawdust with a small amount of kerosene. Pack the mixture in screwtop cans or jars and take them along on your next trip afield.

How to help keep freedom ringing from every mountainside

High up on a mountainside in South Dakota, there's a famous tribute to four American patriots who did much to mold the shape of freedom.

But even if there were no Mt. Rushmore, we'd remember men like Washington, Jefferson, Roosevelt, and Lincoln. For the landscape of freedom is shaped by what they did, not by the mountainside that pays tribute.

Even today, freedom is shaped by the work of individuals—men and women, like you. Of course, only a few Americans will ever have their faces up on a mountain. But millions of Americans are playing a real part in the defense of freedom today simply by buying U.S. Savings Bonds.

When you invest in U.S. Savings Bonds, you put some money to work for your country right now. At the same time you're putting it to work for your own future. Aren't those good reasons to buy one soon?

OUTDOORS IN TEXAS

By VERN SANFORD

Down in that rugged, hilly country of Texas north of San Antonio, around Boerne and Bandera, there ranges a strange kind of animal. Scant few humans ever have seen one of these elusive critters. Indeed, many find it difficult to believe that they exist at all.

But they do exist, all right, and you can take the word of Bob Snow for that. Bob has killed more than 100 of the wild creatures and in the process has had some hair-raising experiences.

This animal of which we speak with awe is the Russian wild hog, a lean and muscular animal with the speed of a race horse, unbelievable stamina and a viciousness when cornered that has left many pursuing dogs bloodied and dead.

Despite man's best efforts to eradicate the Russian hog, its numbers continue to rise. According to Bob, there are more today than ever before. So many, in fact, that landowners openly are soliciting hunters to come to their ranches to hunt the hogs.

Snow, who is from Kerrville, is a hunter of wide and varied experience. For many years he was with the Texas Game and Fish Commission. But today he is retired to a life of hunting. He has traveled to Mexico after jaguar and mountain lion. He has hunted about everything Texas has to offer. But he states unequivocally that the Russian hog is the meanest, most vicious critter on four feet.

And coming from Bob Snow,

that's saying something.

Snow recalls a vivid incident which gives an inkling as to the character of the Russian hog. His pack of dogs cornered this large and mean specimen and Bob got in close enough to blast the hog in the head with a .45 automatic.

The boar only shook its head, brushed the dogs aside and took off again. Sometime later the dogs bayed the hog once more and the scene was repeated. Again the hog shook off the effects of the .45 slug and continued to fight.

Five times Snow brought the hog to bay and five times shot it with the .45. The boar never did go down and soon escaped into the brush when Snow ran out of ammunition. Later, some deer hunters found where the hog had crawled under a brushpile and died. In all, the hog ran for something like 10 miles and killed a couple of Snow's prized hounds in the process.

Yes sir, that Russian hog is a tough one, all right.

This hog got an inglorious start in Texas. Legend has it that many years ago a man with a traveling exhibit came to San Antonio. He was down on his luck and wished to get rid of his animals. Included in the lot were several Russian hogs.

A rancher bought the hogs and transported them to his ranch in the Bandera area. He hoped to crossbreed them with domestic stock. But soon thereafter the Russian hogs escaped and vanished into the underbrush. They all but disappeared for several years. Then ranchers started seeing the elusive hogs. Their numbers had increased appreciably.

Hunters like Bob Snow have found the Russian hog to be a sporting big-game animal. A few are slain each year by deer hunters. But in most instances the hogs have to be pursued by trained dogs which trail them in the dense oak and cedar brush characteristic of this part of the state.

There are no special dogs used in hunting the Russian hogs. Just about every kind of breed imaginable might be represented in a typical pack. Snow usually carries a new dog along on a hunt and if it shows any aptitude for hog hunting, it becomes an official member of the pack.

Bob follows along on horseback as the dogs take off into the underbrush, noses laid against the ground, trying to pick up the fresh scent of a hog. The porkers leave telltale evidence of feeding by ground burrows where they're rooted along the side of draws or along ridges. Sometimes they even kill young goats and sheep. This is one reason they are causing some concern among ranchers. Another is that they tear up fences.

The Russian hog has a long snout for digging. It also carries two imposing tusks rising from the corners of its lower jaw. When engaged in a close-in fight, the hog will sling its head back and forth, swishing these tusks through the air like sabers.

A Russian hog might bay immediately. Or it may take off and run for miles. Snow says it isn't unusual to trail one an entire day. One thing for sure... when it does come to bay, it is spoiling for a fight.

As Bob puts it, this is no place for the timid. An angered Russian hog will attack with the slightest provocation, and when it comes a-running, it means business.
