County Conference On Aging Scheduled For Friday Night

The Briscoe county committee of the Governor's Committee, White House Conference on Aging, will hold its first meeting Friday, May 6 at 8:00 p.m. in the County Court Room, according to Jack Strange county chairman.

He said that the county organization would be perfected and committee assignments given at the meeting, which will be in the nature of a community forum. He urged all persons in the county who are interested or directly concerned professionally with the health, welfare or any other problem of the aged, to be present at the meeting.

"We particularly want to interest our senior citizens themselves in taking a part in this study, because they know from personal experience many of the problems of the aging," the county chairman said.

"We need a large group of our citizens to complete this project," he said. "First an adequate number of persons participating will assure a thorough fact-finding job, without undue hardship on a few persons."

Reunion Held

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Helms were very pleasantly surprised last week end by a visit from a sister of his whom he hadn't seen in 12 years. She is Mrs. Nona Trouts, of Plains, Texas. Also, the other visitors in the home were another brother, Pat Helms of Plainview, his family, and the Joe Edd Holmes family.

Mrs. Helms was telling me how very proud Joe Edd and his wife are of their new home which they only recently moved into. It is located between Gasoline and Flomot an dis a lovely place. The young couple must be especially proud of their accomplishments as they themselves finished the interior work after it was moved in. It is young people like these that go to make up our good American heritage. The older Helms have only lived in their new home a few years and they too know what it is to see hard-earned work pay off in enjoyment. When all the children get together, they really enjoy their nice roomy home.

Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Duck went to Amarillo Friday to spend the week end with their daughters and family, the H. G. Boyles, and the Glen Barretts.

Mr. and Mrs. Glen Farley of Odessa spent the week end visiting his brother and family, the Wendell Farleys, a sister, the Babe Chandlers, and returned Glenna and Randy home after a week's visit.

Silverton Semi-Pros Defeat Amherst 10-8

The Silverton Semi-Pro team sent Amherst home with a defeat to the tune of 10-8 in last Sunday's Irrigation League contest. The battery for the winning team was Bill Satterfield and Norvelle Breedlove, doing the pitching and catching honors.

For Amherst, S. Williams and W. Weaver performed these same chores.

The leading hitter for Silverton with two was John Montague. W. Weaver led the Amherst team with three hits.

Silverton got nine hits for ten runs, while Amherst got seven hits for eight runs.

According to team manager Roy Morris, the team is looking very good. The next game is Sunday, May 8, when Silverton travels to Springlake to play. Other league games scheduled for that date are Tullia at Nazareth and Umbarger at Amherst.

The league standing for Silverton at present is one win and one protest, which will be officially settled by the NBC.

Alpha Mae McFalls, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sid McFalls, of Quitaque is now serving with the Women's Army Corps. She is stationed in Louisiana.

Scouting the Valley

with Wanda Cates

This weather we are having this week certainly makes it necessary for me to do a retraction in as much as this sudden change in weather certainly proves that it isn't spring. With this feel of snow in the air, we wonder where spring really is. The big norther that blew in late Friday afternoon sent the mercury falling to near freezing in Quitaque. So let's take the air conditioners down and put the heater back up for a few more days.

Speaking of snow, brings to mind something which may not be exactly timely for this season of the year, but yet very true about our everyday existence is the thoughts behind the mere word of snow.

One of the most beautiful sights in nature is that of freshly fallen snow.

In the country, the crystals lend softness to the harsh outlines of barren trees. The contour of fields, fences and houses are softened.

In the cities, the more grim aspects of human habitation are especially quieted by the cold and glistening covering.

All that is dirty and poverty ridden seems cleaner, more elegant. Dead leaves, garbage and broken bottles are, like the sidewalks, for a time smoothed over with this beautiful pure cloak.

Almost before our eyes, though, the white snow becomes darkened with soot. The crystals turn to slush, then mud and finally reveal the filth of the gutters—the unpleasant facets of life that men for awhile were given the chance to forget.

Opening the Bible or attending the church of our choice, like the snow, give us a chance to cover our baser natures with a pure covering.

The thoughts that were those of Jesus, and the great religious inspiration of the ages, can, as it were, making the horizon of our existence seem glistening. When we return to our shortcomings, they seem more ugly by comparison.

It remains for us to cover our greed, impure thoughts, hateful traits, bigoted impulses with the pure mantle of Christian thought. With this determination, our lives can change from a confused jumble of mortal fears, to a smoother, immortal vista inspired by God.

SCHOOL NEWS

This week, our school news is again short due to the class reporters being so busy. But we do have a little and it is always good, no matter how small it may be. Our school news is so very important to our paper and community.

Third Grade News

Mrs. Baird, teacher
Reporter, Sherry Stark
The third grade has organized the "Bird Watchers' Club". Our president is Barry Johnson; Vice President, Johnny Pointer; and Reporter, Sherry Stark. The motto is "Do not kill the birds." The object of this organization is to encourage each of us to recognize many different birds, both by sight and sound. Several are making bird houses. Tommy Price brought one he has just made to school this week.

We have learned that birds are our best friends. Without the birds, insects would be ankle deep over the face of the earth in only one year. There would be no plants so there would be no animal life. Birds also eat millions of weed seeds, and this helps the farmer. We hope to see our influence in helping to prevent others from killing birds.

Mistakes Are Everywhere--Even in You!

How many mistakes do you make every day? It's certain that you make several major ones and minor ones also.

Everyone makes mistakes in all walks of life. Mistakes are present everywhere; they are not new to anyone.

But what do you feel when you make a mistake? Chances are, you feel ruined for life and wish you could live that part of your life over. Is this really the solution to your problem? Should one mistake ruin your outlook on this phase of life?

Mistakes are here to acquaint you with life and to teach you its lesson. How many times do you think back to a mistake just be-books and we only lack one page in our speller.

In science, we are drawing pictures of animals.

Joe Lucero and Dusty Bailey are absent today (May 2).

We hate for school to be out because then we won't get to see Mrs. Rice every day.

fore doing the same thing again? Mistakes bring experience and will help you or others later.

What would life be without mistakes? "Wonderful!" you say. But no, life would be smooth sailing yet very boring. It stimulates your alertness to make mistakes and makes you more aware of a mistake coming.

Many people don't think much of mistakes. They hide and shield them from public eyes. Is this gaining experience? The bravest part of making a mistake is admitting how wrong you are. After the first brave attempt at admitting a mistake, the others come easier and so will the respect handed to you from both friends and enemies.

Mistakes are all in all, a blessing so you see. It seems strange that so much can be gained from even the most horrible mistake, but it is true. Next time you make a mistake don't become embarrassed and hide from it. Hold your head higher and admit the extent of your wrong, and you will carry for the rest of your life the privilege of knowledge and experience hard-gained. You will find this easy to keep with you always.

With the season of strong sunlight now here, some livestock owners will again be running into trouble with a peculiar disease problem known as "photo-sensitization."

It strikes the white or non-pigmented areas on farm animals... such places as the ears, eyelids, nose, lips and face, and the backs of newly-shorn sheep.

Summer sunshine can cause real sickness among some farm animals under certain conditions.

The disease may look like sunburn. However, it is far more severe than that. A combination of two factors brings it about. Livestock graze on certain types of weeds or pasturage which cause a chemical reaction in the system, making animals very sensitive to sun. Then, strong sunlight strikes the "sensitized" animals, bringing on the sickness.

Symptoms of this trouble include restlessness, animals shaking their heads, rubbing against posts or buildings. Pigs may wail as if it were painful to do so. Sometimes ears will become thickened, or eyelids swollen-together. In sheep, swellings occur around the head, giving the disease its name "bighead."

What to do when livestock begin to show any of these signs? The first thing is to have a veterinarian check them to see what the trouble is, and adopt a course of treatment to get them back into condition as soon as possible. Next, is taking protective steps to see what forage is causing the trouble.

Sick animals should be placed in darkened quarters or shady areas. Offending plants should be cleaned out, if possible. Some plants known to cause this trouble include: young or blooming buckwheat, alsike clover, bur clover, alfalfa, ladino clover, rape, Bermuda grass, St. John's wort... and there are quite a few others.

The important point is that strong sunlight is now here. Livestock owners should keep watch for anything that looks like "sunburn," and do something about it promptly, if it shows up.

Even before the people of the tornado-devastated community of Sunnyside had given much thought to building back or replacing their lost possessions after the storm there recently, the people of this area opened their pocketbooks and began pouring money in to soften the economic blow.

Significantly the largest contribution received was from the people of Silverton. They sent $5,000 to the stricken community and gave $1,000 toward rebuilding the Sunnyside Baptist Church. It was in the spring of 1957 that a similar tornado ripped into Silverton, about sixty miles from Sunnyside, inflicting tremendous devastation and leaving in its wake many homeless, dead and injured.

Briscoe County Sheriff Johnnie Lanham said in helping make the check presentation that "Money is one of the most desperate needs in a community hit by a tornado. There are hundreds of things that have to be done and nearly all of them cost. The money everyone in the Panhandle sent us was a tremendous help — I don't see how we could have gotten along without it."

The Silverton donation will be administered by a committee of people from Sunnyside who will pay out of the funds on a basis of need.

EVINRUDE BOATING FOUNDATION

FISHING TIPS

By RUDY EVINS

One night I went fishing for northern and walleye at a nearby dam and, because of the high water, had to fish as light as possible. I put my gear together on the bank, stuck a bucket in my pocket, put on my waders and walked out on the dam.

After I maneuvered a 34-inch northern to the net I thought I'd take time out for a cigaret. I reached into my pocket and pulled out my lighter... and mistakenly my bucket. Plop! Down the stream it went.

Many a time it takes a mistake or misfortune to teach a fisherman a lesson... and I'm no exception. I had my "light tackle box" with the rest of my gear but overlooked it.

The Evinrude Boating Foundation has this suggestion if you want to "fish light." Take an old tobacco can and punch five or six holes in the side of it. It's as simple as that. Now you can fill the can with split shot, hooks and swivels and wind your leaders around the outside of the can with the hooks buried in the holes you punched in the side of it.

When I want to travel "light" and yet want to take along a few extra plugs, spoons or jugs I very often open the flaps on my shirt pockets and put the hooks into the button-hole. The bait is easy to get at and won't rip the pocket when you want to use them.

Try the tobacco can and "button-hole" tips and you will find that it is sometimes easier to travel from spot to spot allowing you to find the "hot holes" along the banks or shores without carrying a lot of equipment.

Happy boating... and fishing. too. Rudy

SMALL TALK

by Wanda Cates

This week we would like to tell you about something Garrett Morrison did, told to us by a relative, when he was a very young man, to embarrass his mother. They had company for dinner and it seems as though Garrett had a special spoon which was his and only his, come what may.

It was just after the meal had begun when Garrett looked over and spied the precious spoon—in someone else's hand. "Of all the nerve!" he might have thought, as he grabbed the spoon and said, "Hey Bub, that's my spoon!"

This comes from a brother of Mr. C. L. Nobles when he was very young. The young man had broken his arm and he told the folks, "I sure am glad it wasn't my leg or I sure would get tired of carrying it in a sling."

Today I talked to Mrs. Bill Griffin and after some insisting on my part, she told me about one of the cute little things which her Johnny did, which is an every day occurrence for him, I think. On this day, Johnny had made mention of the fact that chickens had 4 legs. When his mother tried to correct him and tell him they had only 2, she didn't have much luck, so she let it pass till they saw some chickens. She then asked him if he could show her some chickens with 4 legs. He looked at them and said, "Oh, Mother, those are hens. Only roosters have 4 legs!"

I was told only recently that this was the part of the paper that a mother always looks for first when it arrived, which made me very glad you readers are taking such an interest and sharing with us some of the sweetness of your child.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnye Gilbert and two month old son of Anson visited in the J. T. Bradley home Saturday afternoon and in Flomot with relatives over the week end.

The elly Patricks enjoyed having all their children except LaRue home for the Easter holidays. She said the boys, three of whom are still single, really ran wild out on the farm where they were all born and raised. At least, they have lived there on the same place for 38 years, and none of her children seem to be any older than that. Those home this Easter were Mr. and Mrs. Walter Patrick of Farwell, Virgle of Clovis, Olen of Fort Worth, Roy of Amarillo and Earl and Arthur of Quitaque.

Mr. and Mrs. Gene McKinney came by for her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Foster during the Easter holidays and they all went to Amarillo to join others of the Foster children gathered at the Lee Smith home. Those present were Mrs. Viola Hodges and children, Harold Foster, Mr. and Mrs. Barbian of Amarillo, Mrs. Sid Mapp and children also of Amarillo, Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Richardson and children, Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Fred Foster of Memphis and Mr. and Mrs. Artie Dockrey of Lubbock, Mr. and Mrs. Zack Foster of Dalhart.

Out of the 32 Foster grandchildren, 28 were present. The group enjoyed lots of good visiting and food cooked and shared by all.

Mrs. Pete Clark received some painful burns last Friday when her oven exploded. She thought she had lit it, but later found it hadn't been. She was either thrown back or ran back from the impact which burned her hair and eye brows, face and arms. She is up and around but not too comfortable.

Mrs. Price Caldwell and Emadene, Kirby and Jim of Amarillo were here visiting over the week end in the home of her sister, Mrs. Alton Johnson and family and with her mother, Mrs. Jim Tunnell, who makes her home with the Johnsons.

Willie Gragson and Glynn Sanders turned coyote hunters Saturday night and went out and enjoyed killing a lot of them. They say there sure are a lot of them out this year.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Stroup went to Canyon Sunday for a visit in the home of her mother, Mrs. J. M. Wise. They were also joined by another sister, Mrs. Odell Wilkes and family of Meadow. They had a very nice visit.

 To use a tired old bromide, this is a free country; and a guy has a right under the constitution and local ordinance to spend his money where and how he likes. But I seriously question the good judgment of the bird who leaves his community to buy merchandise for the prestige of a label, whether it be Wichita Falls, Iowa Park or Split Lip, Nevada. As I see it, a man who takes a livelihood from a community should reinvest in that community so that his fellow citizens can similarly earn a livelihood. But, alas, and to paraphrase a popular song, "a citizen is a sometime thing." He'll conform to the conduct of good citizenship in most other respects, supporting his church, his schools and local charities. But he'll think nothing of burning the ethyl on a long safari to patronize business that doesn't patronize him. It

ABUNDANT LIFE

by ORAL ROBERTS

"GOD HAS BEEN HERE ALL THE TIME!"

During World War II a boy from one of the churches in my town was stationed in England. He was a gunner in one of the large bombers and completed fifty bombing missions over Germany.

During a lull in the bombing and fighting, a chaplain from the air base decided to take a ride with this boy's crew. They got in the plane and soon they were out over the English Channel.

The flight was uneventful until they started over the mainland of Europe. Suddenly the air was filled with anti-aircraft shells and it looked as if their plane could not possibly escape being blown out of the sky.

It was the chaplain's job to encourage the boys. He took the microphone of the intercom and said, "Boys, be of good cheer, for God is with us."

From the rear gunner's position came the cynical reply, "He might be up there in front, Chaplain, but he shore ain't back here."

About the time the gunner finished his sentence, a shell came bolting through the fuselage near him. But by some unexplainable miracle it failed to explode as it came hurtling through.

When the terror-stricken young man recovered his wits he called back to the chaplain, "Correction, please! I didn't know it, but God has been back here all the time."

In a few minutes the pilot was able to set the crippled plane down safely without injuries or loss of life.

Many times God is all around us but we do not recognize Him. Often we feel we are all alone and forsaken, that no one cares or is concerned about us, but if we would just look around, we would discover that God had been there all the time.

The Bible tells us that God notices when a little sparrow falls to the ground. He is all observing and ever-loving, and He is by your side.

There is a promise in the Bible that means a great deal to me. It is, "I will never leave thee nor forsake thee." That means that God will be with me all the time; that I will never have to worry about a thing, because He will help me and meet my needs.

I am away from home a great deal. My wife and children must stay at home much of the time while I am away. One night several years ago, while I was in a crusade 1,400 miles away from home, my wife became very frightened and upset.

When she told me about it later, I told her, "Honey, don't ever be afraid again. God is awake all night long watching over you. God is with you all the time."

Prepared by American Foundation for Animal Health

Farmers who have had any amount of sickness among their livestock are familiar with the old problem of diseases that look alike.

These hogs may have cholera, or it may be erysipelas. They sometimes look alike.

Milk fever and ketosis offer good examples for the cattle owner. Both diseases strike about calving time, hitting high-producing cows. Both cause cows to become either excitable or indifferent, can cause some paralysis or incoordination, and animals may walk with a staggering gait.

Treatment methods for each of these diseases are somewhat similar, but the medicine used are entirely different. Many veterinarians use special injections directly into the blood stream, and cows often make quick recoveries if treatment is begun soon enough. However, the medicine injected to cure one disease is useless for the other and vice versa.

Hog cholera and acute swine erysipelas also look much alike. Hogs may stay in their nests, resent disturbance, go off feed, and have a stiff gait. But, while the veterinarian can save quite a few erysipelas pigs if he gets to them soon enough, there is no cure for cholera. The only way to curb cholera is to have pigs vaccinated before outbreaks strike.

Of course, there are many other "look alike" diseases of farm animals. The important thing is to recognize that each presents a different problem, needing a different method of treatment and nursing. The wise owner will keep this in mind, and make sure of the exact disease before he tries to deal with it.

7, we are most grateful.

We send our sincere thanks to you for your personal interest and your services rendered. We wish that we could adequately express our thoughts.

Will you please extend our heartfelt thanks to all of your associates, your neighbors and friends who assisted in the search for the bodies of our son and the other two boys at the time of the most tragic catastrophe in our lives.

Sincerely yours,
John W. Arden
